24 that I would pick up from my own sort of frolic and detour in this area is that workplace misconduct
25 should not always be handled in a formal way, requiring the filing of a formal complaint with the 26 judicial discipline commission when the allegation relates to workplace misconduct by a judge may, in 27 fact, disserve the ultimate objective of a quick, effective, and appropriate resolution to whatever the 28 complaint may be. So, I would, I would hate to see you require that any complaint against a judge that is 29 received through any process would automatically be referred to the discipline commission.

30

31 But by the same token, I think it is imperative that the system within the Judicial Branch be amped up,
32 including many of the recommendations that are set forth in the Rita and McCord report. And although 33 those are not within your purview here. Within this committee's process, I hope you will support, 34 encourage the Judicial Branch to implement those recommendations, and that you will support new 35 resources for those purposes. For training, maybe regular employment climate surveys, which are also 36 sort of state of the art, and for the role of an ombudsman who can truly triage these complaints with a

1 view toward the victim's interests as well as the interests of due process, a fair system, and transparency,
2 I would refer you, just as some of my recap to the particular language in the Rita and McCord Report,
3 talking about an ombudsperson who would be, "empowered to provide a confidential space for 4 reporting, ideas and advice, information about policies and procedures, resources for informal
5 resolution, including mediation and restorative justice, and referrals for formal investigations within 6 Judicial and to the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline, when necessary. This person should 7 retain sufficient autonomy in their interactions with employees, staff, and judges to maintain credibility
8 and independence in the eyes of all stakeholders. So as a sort of intermission recap, what I would tell
9 you is that the objective here is to establish a culture of excellence. And to achieve that, to get the 10 proverbial horse drawn cart down the road, sticks only go so far. Carrots are necessary too. As is an 11 odometer to measure the miles covered by the cart. And I would suggest to you that a culture of 12 excellence relies upon much more than just a robust disciplinary system, although that is certainly 13 central.

14
15 I'm going to hand the floor to Ms. Kauffman to tell you more about IAALS's work and IAALS's
16 recommendations. But of course, I am available either now or after her presentation for any questions
17 you may have Mr. Chair.

18
19 Rep. Weissman

20 All right, thank you. Committee, maybe we'll see if Ms. Kauffman can get through her material. Then 21 we'll go to questions for both at the end. All right, let the curtain rise on Act Two.

22
23 Brittany Kauffman

24 Thank you, Mr. Chair and members of the committee. My name is Brittany Kauffman and I am the 25 interim CEO of IAALS, the Institute for the Advancement of the American Legal System. And it's a 26 wonderful opportunity to speak with you all today. So, thank you so much for having both of us. I will 27 be providing additional background on how we developed the IAALS recommendations. To provide you
28 that context. I will also speak to the recommendations themselves and where Colorado's judicial 29 discipline system aligns with those recommendations and where there may be some opportunities for 30 improvement. So IAALS entered into the space of judicial discipline back in 2017 and 2018 starting 31 with some background research. Really digging into judicial discipline commissions around the country,
32 and starting with that research and then building to an in-person convening. So, in March 2018, IAALS
33 convened a group of 21 people from around the country that included commissioners, commission staff,
34 judges, lawyers, and scholars. All around the country for a multi-day in person meeting to talk about the 35 functioning of judicial conduct commissions around the country. We hoped to identify opportunities for 36 improvement, as well as develop a set of best practices to the extent we could. And I will note a few
37 things here in terms of that group. It included Cynthia Gray, who has been mentioned several times
38 already today, and who you already have heard testimony from. It also included William Campbell,
39 former Executive Director of the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline. So, we had a 40 representative from the Colorado system as well, and that was part of our convening. And we were able

1 to send those recommendations back to Colorado, as well. And I will also note there's a great variety, as
2 you've heard from already today and in the past, testimony of approaches around the country. So, there
3 is no single approach, no single model. But our goal was really to identify some better practices that
4 commissions could take and implement in their own systems, based on their own structure. The report
5 and recommendations that we have, and I'll share hard copies after we speak, are from IAALS. So, they 6 are IAALS's recommendations, but they very much draw on the wide-ranging comments from the 7 convening and our partners in that discussion, as well as our extensive literature and an organizational
8 model review. So, in addition to identifying some best practices for commissions, I also wanted to share
9 that our goal was to highlight concrete ways to improve trustworthiness in our Judiciary. The 10 recommendations build off the goal of today's judicial discipline system to protect the public and the 11 integrity of judicial proceedings, to deter future misconduct, and to promote public confidence in our 12 judicial system. The report recognizes that the commissions have multiple objectives, some inherent 13 tensions in them, which have already come up today, and our recommendations really seek to take these 14 into account while achieving those goals. I know these goals are very relevant to this committee's 15 efforts, and they've been at the forefront of your work, and I appreciate the opportunity to highlight a 16 few of these key recommendations here today that I think will be most relevant.

17
18 So, I won't in any way cover all the recommendations in here. I'm just going to highlight a few that I
19 think are most helpful. So, starting with commission independence, impartiality, and integrity. That is 20 really at the forefront of your focus. We have a number of recommendations that focus in on 21 commission independence and impartiality. First, we know, as in Colorado, commissions are established
22 by state constitution, and we recommend that, rather than by statute or court order. So, in that way, 23 Colorado is consistent with our recommendations. We also note the importance of the composition of 24 the commission, and our recommendations are that they follow the ABA Model Rule recommendation
25 for an equal tripartite set of appointees, equal number of judges of various court types, lawyers
26 appointed by the state bar, and governor appointed public members. So, Colorado's Commission is 27 generally consistent with this recommendation in the sense that it includes judges, lawyers, and public
28 members, and they're appointed by the Supreme Court and the Governor. There's a little bit of difference
29 in terms of the numbers there, but that representation across all those groups is really key. And I agree
30 with Professor Geyh's remarks about the importance of having all of those different perspectives there. I 31 also want to emphasize that diversity and representation is very important in the makeup of the 32 commission. Robust demographic, vocational, and geographic diversity helps assure the public that 33 those who judge the judges fairly represent their community. And I think that's really important in this 34 moment where we're talking about public trust and confidence. I note that one of the most recent Annual 35 Reports from the Commission notes its diversity and notes that this is a really important goal. So, I 36 would just emphasize that this needs to be continued to be prioritized going forward as new 37 commissioners are appointed. That representation really matters, and it matters to public trust and 38 confidence.

39

1 As to funding to ensure this independence, impartiality, and integrity, the Legislature, not the Judiciary,
2 should fund the Commission. And the Commission should prepare its own budget requests, separate
3 from the Judicial Branch budget request, and the commission should administer the funds provided free
4 of supervision of the court systems, administrative machinery. And I will note that Senate Bill 22-201, 5 provides that the Commission will prepare its own budget, administer its own money and resources, and 6 creates that special cash fund. And this really does bring Colorado in line with these recommendations, 7 and I commend that.

8
9 Regarding structure, we talked a little bit about structure already today, most commissions are one-tier.
10 They have a single body that performs investigative, prosecutorial, and adjudicative functions. A
11 growing number of commissions have separated that out. To separate out investigative and adjudicative
12 functions. Colorado still falls within this one-tier approach, and whether it be through a more formal 13 structure of moving to a two-tier or just internal checks, it's important to separate that investigative and 14 prosecutorial function from the adjudicative functions. And clarity about the Commission's approach in 15 this regard, will help externally in terms of public trust and confidence, as well as its internal 16 organization.

17
18 As to the Commission Rules. Thorough rules that are available online are essential, particularly today,
19 when people are online, they need to be able to access those rules. Commissions should have significant 20 control over amending and maintaining their own rules. That's a key part of our recommendations. And 21 while the Colorado Constitution gives control to the Supreme Court, the recent legislation does create 22 greater opportunity for objection and engagement with the Commission, despite that that's controlled by 23 the Constitution. And I think this is a really important step into making sure the Commission has more 24 independence. So that, I think is a really positive step forward in terms of the Commission's Rules and 25 procedures and ultimate independence.

26
27 Finally, on this point, another way to ensure these key goals is to have a Code of Conduct for the 28 Commission itself, and I will note that IAALS recommended such a Code of Conduct. And following 29 our convening and our report and recommendations, Colorado brought that recommendation back, and 30 has since adopted a Code of Conduct for its members. And that's in place, and that is an important 31 improvement over the last few years that we commend.

32
33 Moving to fairness and efficiency in commission operations, this is another key focus of our 34 recommendations. It is essential to make information clearly available online. I mentioned this a little bit
35 before, but information needs to be accessible, easy to understand, available to the public. We need to 36 decrease barriers to accessing this process. The Commission has a website with information, links to the 37 rules and additional explanation, which is very positive. There's also a form with instructions for 38 submitting a request for evaluation of judicial conduct. And, also, Colorado Rules allow any type of 39 submission, so it doesn't have to just be the form. So that's also, I think, a very positive approach by the 40 Commission. One additional improvement could be to submit that online versus just by mail. So, that is

1 an additional place that it could be improved. And, also, always thinking about plain language and easily
2 accessible information online. While there's quite a bit there, it's also heavy and dense and hard to dig
3 through for the average citizen, and that's really important to make this process accessible for all. We 4 recommend that commissions need not wait for complaints when there's evidence of misconduct and 5 disciplinary counsel themselves can serve as a complainant. And here again, Colorado is consistent.
6 Colorado and the Commission itself need not wait for a complaint and can initiate an inquiry on its own.
7 That's a positive aspect of this Commission. Anonymous complaints should also be processed as fully 8 and as routinely as possible. And while commissions generally interpret the ability for themselves to 9 initiate an inquiry as being able to take an anonymous complaint, there's not a lot of clarity in the rules,
10 on the website, in the forms that an anonymous complaint is allowed. Having that signature, having the 11 name, having the line for that, suggests that that's required. And while, of course, commissions would 12 like to have as much information as possible for follow up, and that's a positive thing, we also don't want 13 to deter complaints, and that's important for public trust and confidence.

14
15 Turning to the ombuds person that Justice Kourlis already referenced. One recommendation that we 16 talked about at the convening was the idea of creation of an ombudsperson. The goal of that person or 17 group would be to provide a place within the system that lawyers and litigants could go if they're 18 reluctant to file a complaint, even anonymously. Or where they're distressed by problematic conduct that 19 might not be within the Commission's jurisdiction. As I noted, it could be a single ombudsperson or 20 perhaps a committee of senior members of the bar who are unlikely to be intimidated. This person would 21 receive and try to resolve non punitively judicial behavior that may be concerning, but not necessarily 22 within the purview of the Commission. They would be able to receive complaints and take them to the 23 appropriate person within the system. But I would note, there would need to be great clarity around this 24 person's role and how they fit into the system. And, so, there's more work to be done there, but the 25 creation of such a role would be particularly valuable here in Colorado, and really aligns, as Justice
26 Kourlis said, with the recommendations of the investigation.

27
28 Turning to transparency and confidentiality that has already come up as well today and in some of the 29 past testimony. I'll just highlight this briefly. IAALS's recommendation focuses on the transparency and 30 confidentiality of proceedings. And while we recognize the inherent tension here, finding the right
31 balance is key to public trust and confidence, and this is in particular a challenge for commissions. All 32 commissions hold their initial investigative activity confidential. That's consistent here in Colorado and 33 across the nation, but 35 states make their fact-finding hearings public, and you have a very helpful chart
34 I'll just make the connection to from Cynthia Gray here that outlines the different state models.
35 Colorado's approach keeps those proceedings confidential, as you know, until a recommendation for 36 public discipline is filed. And in this way, just reiterating the prior conversation. Colorado just does not 37 line up with best practices in this regard, and it would be much better to have that happen at an earlier 38 point in time in the process.

39

1 And finally, shifting to education and information, we recognize that a trusted and well-functioning
2 system requires public education and information to everybody involved. These recommendations are 3 bolstered by our research in the area of public trust and confidence, which highlight the importance of 4 communication, understanding, and clear public information. This includes not just the Commission, the 5 judges, the public, the staff of the Judiciary all around in a 360-way. It would be helpful to have more
6 information to help bolster all of these goals. Particularly in Colorado, where more of the proceedings
7 are confidential. I think that's even more important. Public information, including information online
8 about proceedings, statistics, and having that very clearly available on the website versus potentially 9 buried deep in the information of Annual Reports.

10
11 So, to sum up, many of these recommendations have already been put in place, but there are still 12 opportunities for improvement. And thank you for the opportunity to highlight these recommendations, 13 and we look forward to your questions.

14
15 Rep. Weissman

16 Thank you both very much. Committee questions? Senator Gardner.

17
18 Sen. Gardner

19 Thank you, Mr. Chair, and with your permission, I'd like the opportunity to dialog a bit with Justice
20 Kourlis. Justice Kourlis, thank you so much, and as well, Ms Kauffman, your recommendations are 21 organized and cogent, as I would expect, but very helpful because of that. I have as I've dealt with this 22 whole set of issues over the past year and a half, struggled with a couple of things. Not exclusively these 23 two things, but a couple of things.

24
25 One is for the adjudicative function, who will do that in the system? The evidence would be that the 26 recommendations that have come from the Commission on Judicial Discipline to the Supreme Court
27 have been adopted almost universally, the one exception being when the Commission made a
28 recommendation that was somewhat less than the Supreme Court thought appropriate, and they thought
29 that something harsher was in-line. So that's the evidence. The perception of my constituents, however,
30 is that we have a system in which judges judge judges, and that, as citizens, that's not to them very 31 accountable. So, I have thought a lot about, how would we create a system that was somewhat different 32 than, essentially in our special master process right now, you have three judges appointed to do that.
33 How we might in the adjudicative function, perhaps, have, as we do in the Commission, a judge, a
34 lawyer, and a citizen with a lot of very stringent qualifications for both the lawyer and the citizen. But 35 there's some tension here from where I sit, perhaps not from where members of the Judicial Branch sit,
36 but from where I sit. There's some tension here between what I think are the facts of the system and 37 what the people of Colorado have as a perception and hold.

38
39 And part of what I think our job here is, is to ensure the confidence of citizens in the system. And, so, do
40 you believe to come to the question, Do you believe that the adjudicative function for discipline, and

1 let's set aside the Supreme Court for a moment, needs to be done by judges, as opposed to some mixed
2 adjudicative jury fact finder?

3

4 Rep. Weissman

5 Justice Kourlis.

6

7 Rebecca Love Kourlis

8 Thank you, Mr. Chair. So, Senator Gardner, I absolutely understand the tension that you are referring to,
9 both because of the appearance and the reality of possible conflicts when judges judge judges. If we look
10 at the discipline commissions, not necessarily just Colorado, but if we look at discipline commissions, 11 they really have three functions, right? They have an investigative function. They're supposed to dig into 12 the complaint and decide if it has merit. They have a prosecutorial function, because once they decide
13 that the complaint has merit, then they become the prosecutors. And then there is an adjudicative
14 function built into all of that, where they have to make a decision about whether or not to recommend 15 discipline, be it private, public. And I mean, that's the whole different question of transparency and the 16 point at which the public is invited into the process.

17

18 I agree with you that asking one group to do all of those functions creates some inherent inconsistencies,
19 and I also agree with you that the ultimate recommendation is more legitimate and credible if made by a 20 group of adjudicators, rather than an adjudicator who may be a special master, and to whom does that 21 special master answer and what is his or her qualification to be making that decision? So, I would err on 22 the side of a process that has a clear appearance of impartiality and balance, rather than a process that is 23 easier to administer.

24

25 I would, however, not give up the notion that the Supreme Court has the ultimate vote, the ultimate 26 determination, in terms of administering or approving the discipline. Particularly if it's a public process, 27 I think the Supreme Court's role is less suspect. It will be out in the open, but I think it is important for 28 the Supreme Court to maintain that leadership role in terms of policing conduct, as it does with the 29 attorney regulation system. As you know, with the attorney regulation system, the recommendation is 30 made to the Court from the fact finder within the attorney regulation process. And the Supreme Court
31 ultimately makes the decision and issues an opinion in many cases. So, I think that the functions should 32 be separated. The investigative, prosecutorial, and adjudicative functions should be separated within the 33 discipline process, and the ultimate adjudicative function should be performed by, as you say, perhaps 34 three extremely well qualified people whose only role is that, is adjudication. Or perhaps, I think, is as 35 you referred to, Mr. Chair in dialog with Professor Geyh. Perhaps resolving discovery disputes prior to 36 the actual adjudicative function. But that all gets sort of swept in.

37

38

39

40

1 Sen. Gardner

2 But if I understood you correctly, you come down on the side that ultimately and again, setting aside the 3 Supreme Court, itself. Ultimately, the final decision as to discipline should be made by the Supreme 4 Court?

5
6 Rebecca Love Kourlis

7 With the caveat that you interposed, pardon me, Mr. Chair, with the caveat that you interpose, namely,
8 when it pertains to a Supreme Court justice. Yes.

9
10 Sen. Gardner

11 Ok, thank you. And then the other thing that I've dealt with. The Judiciary, the Judicial Branch gets 12 1,000s of complaints. I get hundreds, as a member of the Judiciary Committee. Of the cases you 13 describe that involve a ruling that someone doesn't agree with and feels that they weren't treated fairly,
14 though the record would indicate they do, and I always agree with the court when it finds in my favor,
15 and I tend to disagree when they don't. So, lay people I know, as I receive these are dissatisfied and 16 bring this complaint, and they may send it to the State Court Administrator. They may send it to a Chief 17 Judge.

18
19 We have, and I guess there's this other category of that you've described, of the judicial employee who 20 may have a workplace and maybe a workplace harassment situation or something. I've been of the 21 notion that what needs to happen with each and every one of those is that it needs to be referred to the 22 Commission on Judicial Discipline. Now, perhaps not. That's probably too strong a word to say referred.
23 I often get these complaints and respond to them and say that's an appellate matter, or if it sounds like it
24 is something that ought to be addressed to judicial discipline, whether true or not, is to say that's where it
25 goes. Otherwise, the Branch does not engage on those. I got the sense that maybe you had a different 26 view of that, but maybe not. I just wanted to understand that.

27
28 Rebecca Love Kourlis

29 I would hate to see a system where you had to sort of exhaust your remedies. So, my suggestion is that 30 when it pertains to workplace misconduct, that no process within the Judicial Branch would be 31 forestalled by virtue of the complaint having been referred to the discipline commission. I'm not 32 opposed to the discipline commission being made aware of that complaint. I am suggesting that it could,
33 actually, interfere with a prompt and appropriate resolution if jurisdiction of the complaint is ceded to 34 the Commission and the employment aspects of it are interfered with or halted while the discipline
35 commission process is going on. So, if a complaint comes in from an employee who maintains that the 36 judge with whom he or she is working has treated him or her inappropriately, I see no reason for that 37 information not to be passed along to the discipline commission. But, I also vest primary responsibility
38 for dealing with that in the Judicial Branch and the Judicial Branch can keep the discipline commission
39 aware, made aware of what they are doing and how it's being handled. But I do not believe that a

1 complaint that is filed concerning workplace misconduct should be exclusively handled by the discipline
2 commission.

3
4 I want to make one other point in that context, if I may, which is this notion of an ombudsman. One of
5 the reasons, I mean you act as an ombudsman, in some respects, for the complaints that you get from 6 your constituents. You do sort of a preliminary review about whether they actually are an appellate
7 matter or whether they should be referred elsewhere. Somebody needs to be in that role, in my view,
8 because it's hard to figure out. As Ms. Kauffman says, wending your way through the rules and the 9 processes, even for those of us who are lawyers, can sometimes be difficult, and if we want a people-
10 centered system that actually serves the needs of the people who may have been negatively impacted by 11 something a judge does, it has to be understandable and navigable. And an ombudsman could really help 12 in that regard.

13
14 And then, at the risk of Christmas treeing, I want to hang one last point on that tree, because we haven't
15 talked about it. And that is the notion that the Judicial Performance Commission and the discipline
16 commission ought to be able to share information. That shows up in almost all of the recommendations, 17 and I think that's very important as well. Thank you.

18
19 Sen. Gardner
20 If I may continue, thank you, Mr. Chair. Let's talk about complaints involving members of the Supreme 21 Court. Do we need to have a separate process for that level, for the high court, and what does that look 22 like, exactly? And I know that could go awhile, but just sort of in a sense, and that's for you or Ms.
23 Kauffman, either one.

24
25 Rep. Carver
26 Do you want to take that one?

27
28 Rep. Weissman
29 Ms Kauffman.

30
31 Brittany Kauffman
32 Yes, thank you Mr. Chair and for the question, Senator. I think that in this particular circumstance, like 33 other complaints, you might get complaints of all sorts, and having a single process where the 34 complaints come to and are screened that's consistent across the commission as a first, just as the 35 baseline, as the default, is probably what I would suggest. Then, if it meets the standards of moving on,
36 then, as we've talked about, a different process would be appropriate. But, I think funneling everything 37 through a consistent process and approach makes the most sense, because that's probably not the most 38 common complaint that will come in. It's going to be the rare occasion. It makes sense to have a 39 common process at the start.

40

1 Sen. Gardner

2 So, would you, I hate to use the word advocate, but I mean, would you recommend a separate process
3 for the Court with, with the caveat that that you had, Miss Kaufman, about intake?

4

5 Rep. Weissman

6 Justice Kourlis.

7

8 Rebecca Love Kourlis

9 Thank you, Mr. Chair, for the adjudicative aspect of it, absolutely.

10

11 Sen. Gardner

12 Ok, thank you. Thank you very much,

13

14 Rep. Weissman

15 Senator, good for now. Okay, madam Vice Chair.

16

17 Rep. Carver

18 Thank you, Mr. Chair, and I know you won't be shocked to say I have several questions, but I'll try and 19 be as succinct as possible. First, Ms. Kauffman, to you. I was very impressed with the 2018 report which 20 you provided and note you, of course, the convening was in the best possible place at El Pomar down in 21 Colorado Springs. But, we move on. I want to explore a bit more the separation of the investigatory
22 function and the adjudication. And your report, as well as materials provided by Ms. Gray, and the 23 Professor referenced this, is that when you have a commission one-tier versus two-tier, that that is 24 usually where this issue is being addressed. And in looking over the more detailed information on states
25 that have moved to a two-tier, which I agree with. I think those functions absolutely need to be separated
26 and done by different groups of individuals. Some of the states will take the commission and set up two 27 separate panels and then presumably build some kind of firewall between the two of them to handle
28 those separate functions. And of course, except for Illinois, in whether it is separate panels within the 29 commission, or a body separate from the commission. One doing investigatory, the other doing
30 adjudicative. That in all states but Illinois, there is some type of appellate review on the final 31 disciplinary action by the Supreme Court. Some de novo, some purely appellate at that level. What 32 would your recommendation be for Colorado in moving from their one-tier to a two-tier, separating out
33 investigatory and adjudicative. Would you recommend that be done within the Commission, and 34 separating out the two panels, or a completely separate body from the Commission in doing the 35 adjudicative and the Commission doing the investigatory, prosecutorial.

36

37 Brittany Kauffman

38 Thank you for the question, Representative. I would look to, and so this is not an exact recommendation
39 today. I would look to the models, and Justice Kourlis might have one, but I would look at those models
40 and explore them. I think there is actually another chart that might not yet have been provided to all. I

1 will take a look at that. That is kind of a breakdown of every state's approach. I know you do have
2 materials from Cynthia Gray, but I think there's another one that would be helpful to answer that
3 question. We do recommend in our recommendations to default to that two-tier as a recommendation, as 4 a best practice. And, the question about where those two tiers reside, I would want to look further into
5 what has been found to be most effective in the other states, because we have such different models
6 across the country. So, I would look to that, and wouldn't have a recommendation today, on what's the 7 best model. But I think we can look to what's been most effective around the country. I don't know if 8 you have a specific recommendation.

9
10 Rep. Weissman

11 Justice Kourlis.

12
13 Rebecca Love Kourlis

14 Representative Carver, this was a subject of a lot of conversation at El Pomar, because some of the 15 participants come from states in which those two functions are totally different groups of people. Other
16 participants came from states in which they kind of switched off roles depending upon the case. There
17 was pretty robust discussion. The people who switched off roles believed that it made them better
18 participants in the system. But in a particular case, they were on a panel that had the investigative and 19 prosecutorial function. And in another case, they were on a panel that had the adjudicative function, and 20 they felt that it made them better able to understand the whole system and to operate within that system.
21 They also took the position that it was economically much more feasible, that you needed fewer people,
22 and you needed less turnover of appointees than in a system that was totally bi-furcated. But I believe 23 actually, your background is in JAG, right?

24
25 Rep. Carver

26 It is.

27
28 Rebecca Love Kourlis

29 And, so, you probably come to this with a pretty clear perception that they ought to be separate.

30
31 Rep. Carver

32 Exactly.

33
34 Rebecca Love Kourlis

35 And I see that. I see that absolutely as well, particularly from an appearance perspective. So, I agree with 36 Ms. Kauffman that if that's a question that you would allow IAALS and I to look into in a little more 37 depth, we'll give you information about the way other states have comprised those tiers in terms of 38 actual membership, and any research that we can find on the pros and cons.

1 Rep. Carver

2 Thank you. That would be, I'm sorry, did you have something further?

3

4 Brittany Kauffman

5 Yes, thank you so much for the opportunity to add one more thing. I do. I have it on me, a breakdown
6 from the National Center for State Courts of that composition, and it really shows the wide variety
7 around the country. So, this is another resource that we can provide.

8

9 Rep. Carver

10 Thank you. And I now want to move to anonymous versus confidential. I actually see those two ways of 11 offering both. And here's how I see the difference, but I invite your more educated background and 12 experience around these. I think confidential reporting, is critical, and a path needs to be created for that.
13 Whether it is through the ombudsman. Whether it is through, I know ILG had some thoughts on that.
14 But for an individual who is the victim? Is the person who is suffering the alleged misconduct by a judge
15 or perhaps by another employee, the supervisor. In order to provide some mechanism where they are not 16 so fearful of retaliation, that they can report confidentially. But with the understanding that if those 17 allegations are substantiated, and now you want to go to a higher level of assessing a penalty, there may 18 be some due process, confrontational clause type of issues, where that victim may have to decide if 19 they're willing to go public. So, we absolutely need to create that process, whether that is done in statute
20 or by rulemaking. I would invite your comment on that. But I also believe anonymous reporting is also 21 critical. You come into an office and you see things, practices, comments, whether it is sexually 22 inappropriate remarks or other type things, or favoritism, or things being done in violation of regulation,
23 approval of reimbursement reports, if that's a pattern. But it's not misconduct directed to you. You don't 24 like what you're seeing. You think it's wrong, but now you're looking for a mechanism to report that that 25 doesn't get you fired or bad performance reports for the rest of your life. And so that kind of reporting, is 26 also critically important. And again, how that is structured, and if that, can you give me your thoughts in 27 anything in more detail on, do you think just confidential or both confidential and anonymous? What are 28 your thoughts? And I know that Ms. Gray provided us. She is the fountain of all knowledge on this. 10
29 states provisions on anonymous complaints. So, whatever your response.

30

31 Rebecca Love Kourlis

32 I agree with you that confidentiality is paramount. I also agree with you that there has to be a mechanism
33 for filing anonymous complaints that are truly anonymous. I mean, for example, as Ms. Kauffman says, 34 I'm not sure you would feel comfortable filing an anonymous complaint online, because you have an 35 address, right, and a footprint irrespective of whether you sign it or not. So, the anonymity filter has to 36 be used at every stage. But I also think, Representative, that, and this is true, as you well know in many 37 of the victims' rights discussions. That there may come a point at which the proceeding can't go forward 38 unless the anonymous person is willing to actually be not anonymous, to step forward and testify or 39 appear in some fashion or another. And I think that the way that other systems have handled this. Most 40 recently, I think the way the Federal Judiciary, this new office that they have set up, is there is an

1 ongoing duty for the investigative body to keep this person engaged and informed and to allow him or
2 her the option about whether to come forward, if that should be, if there should come a point at which
3 there's a watershed, and things cannot proceed without testimony. So, Ms. Gray's advice about the actual 4 statutory wording is something to which I would absolutely defer and I think a good portion of it can be
5 in the rules, but I think a statute would have value here as well. To comport it with other victims' rights
6 kinds of approaches, and to assure that there is, again, that overwhelming sense that the system is 7 designed for the people who need to use it, and the objective is public trust and confidence in the 8 Judiciary. The objective is not to hide things that shouldn't be hidden.

9
10 Rep. Carver

11 Ms Kauffman, anything further on that one?

12
13 Brittany Kauffman

14 Thank you. The one thing I would add there is that I really appreciate your separating out or noting the 15 distinction between anonymous and confidential, because when a complaint or a request for review is 16 filed anonymously, there's no way to circle back to who provided that if that comes in the mail. There's 17 no connection back to the person, and having some type of mechanism where they can provide it, say,
18 through an ombudsperson, where that is then filed anonymously with the commission. But there's a loop
19 there, but at some point they can be connected back in. It can be made so it's confidential, but not 20 anonymous. In that sense, they can be looped back in and brought into the process in a non-anonymous
21 way, if they choose at that point. I think it's a helpful distinction to think through as rules and statutes are 22 created, because there are two different scenarios there. And if it's just discussion of anonymity, there 23 won't be that link back to the person to bring them in at the appropriate point.

24
25 Rep. Carver

26 Thank you. And then a final point, which I am more than glad to pursue offline. You know, as I was 27 reading through kind of our list of topics to look at and what might go forward. I thought it was 28 interesting that on the very first page of the IAALS report, there was a reference to difficulties that are 29 being seen in Illinois with their judicial discipline, and it's on page one, with a quote. And so that is 30 something that I would like to follow up with you further. And would appreciate that. Thanks so much.

31
32 Rep. Weissman

33 And Madam Vice Chair, maybe we can treat that as a pin for maybe brief commentary now. And I was 34 going to say, and as the Vice Chair already said, we certainly invite further submissions by email. I think 35 you know how to find all of us. We're coming to the key phase of the committee's work. So, the more 36 written material we can all chew on, I think will help. But if you'd like to say anything for now.

37
38 Rebecca Love Kourlis

39 Thank you, we will follow up with you. Perfect.

40

1 Rep. Carver

2 Thank you very much.

3

4 Rep. Weissman

5 Members, in the interest of getting us back on time. All right, sorry Rep. Bacon. I just saw a hand. You'll 6 have the last question.

7

8 Rep. Bacon

9 I was wondering if, well, I have two, but I'm sorry. I am curious about if you could go back to a 10 reference. Senator Gardner asked about if all harassment issues should be referred to the Commission, 11 and you made a reference to any sort of HR work being halted or kind of stalled. And I guess what I'd 12 like to understand, truly, is, if the work couldn't actually be done in a way where it coincides with 13 processes, and that they're not necessarily mutually exclusive. And I'm also curious about that, for what 14 it's worth, for when something is referred to an ombuds office. An ombuds office is created for that 15 space of safety. However, they're still going there with theoretical complaints. So, what does that mean
16 by way of regular HR process? I mean, ultimately, what I'm thinking about is a report is made to HR.
17 They can look into their processes as a matter of policy, and then there's also processes as a matter of 18 actual ethical code violations and/or law and so why couldn't those things be happening at the same
19 time? Why does it necessarily mean that something is halted and then, even if something went over to 20 the Commission, how could the Commission then not be in a place to provide insights for HR processes
21 for purposes of policy, if that makes sense. I mean, ultimately, I don't understand why they're mutually 22 exclusive in time frame, and also why that wouldn't be a case with an ombuds office. Unless we're 23 saying the ombuds should come to some sort of determination. Theoretically, an ombudsperson doesn't 24 necessarily have power, but they have the safety if I'm getting that right, given, you know, some other
25 experiences that I have there. So, I really did want to think through that. I just also want to, I'm just 26 going to drop my other question. It could be more rhetorical, but also, in regards to what he shared about 27 judges judging judges, if the Supreme Court has the ultimate decision even over itself, what are some of 28 these external mechanisms? I'm starting to put together how processes kind of help with trust. But what 29 are some external measures that even the Legislature could take, even if they're not rooted in actual 30 consequence, to help keep an eye on or to have that check, if you will, about self-interest supporting 31 self-interest. For example, we have SMART hearings here. Quite honestly, I have five questions. I want
32 them to report on us every year after all of this. You know, I may not have statutory power to remove a
33 Supreme Court justice, but I am curious about that. I mean, at the end of the day, we have [seven] people
34 who know each other well. We can even talk about politics and how that may even turn out to 35 supporting, quote, unquote misconduct, especially in the DEI spaces. And, so, I am curious your 36 thoughts on that, on external ways to keep an eye out if we do not have a natural space of power. And,
37 so, I will say, Mr. Chair, if we don't have the time here, I did want to ask those on record and figure out 38 if we can find some time and then whatever you might allow by way of grace for timing.

39

40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Okay, just a note for timing. And again, I do want to be respectful of outside individuals who we have
3 asked to come here. So, I want to keep us to hearing from the Judicial Institute at one o'clock. We have 4 an hour that I think it's worth the full hour to hear from the folks who put the ILG report together for us.
5 So, at this point, we're going to be cutting a 60-minute lunch break down to 30 and it will go down
6 further than that if it needs to. So, if you'd like to speak briefly, to Rep. Bacon's question. And again, I
7 think there's lots of room for off record follow up. And I encourage members on your own time to 8 access folks who are coming here before us. I think they'd be happy to keep talking with us about these 9 issues. And then I wanted to get quickly to Rep Lynch. But if you'd like to speak briefly to Rep. Bacon's 10 question.

11

12 Rebecca Love Kourlis

13 Thank you, Mr. Chair. But the position you're putting me in, I get is that every word I speak compacts 14 your lunch time.

15

16 Rep. Weissman

17 I did not mean that to be directed to you or to other witnesses, more for other members up here.

18

19 Rebecca Love Kourlis

20 Okay, so briefly, I agree with you completely, Representative Bacon, that the two processes need not be 21 mutually exclusive, and that the HR process can proceed in tandem with the disciplinary process. It
22 makes me a little uncomfortable to think that the disciplinary process is sort of going to be looking over
23 the shoulder of the HR process at every step of the way, but I think that would work out over time. What 24 I do want to avoid, or would want to avoid, is that the HR process couldn't go forward while the 25 discipline process was going forward. I think that would be a really bad idea, but as you say, they are not 26 mutually inconsistent, and they need not be seen as such. They could go forward simultaneously.

27

28 Your question about an ombudsman, I think that the ombudsman, and I think you inferred this, the 29 ombudsman, could both take in information and give out information. In other words, if the ombudsman
30 receives a complaint that should be an HR complaint, the ombudsman can also funnel it to the discipline
31 commission. The ombudsman would be in a position, again, as you say, not of power, but being kind of 32 a traffic director at the outset of the system, and also having some ability to recognize when something
33 looks really egregious, and making sure that attention is paid to it immediately. So, I see the ombuds 34 role as being very facilitative and appropriate within this two-juncture approach.

35

36 In terms of your question about, How do we measure this? How do we get a sense of whether things are 37 going better or not going better? You'll note, and this is analogous, I think, to SMART but, but not 38 entirely. You'll note in the Rita and McCord Report that they talk about two things, 360-degree
39 evaluations of Chief Judges every year. They talk about increased judicial performance evaluation
40 processes being more frequent. And I think that would be wonderful if the funding were available for

1 that, rather than just, when a judge or justice is up for retention. And then they also talk about climate
2 surveys. And I think the climate survey idea has real legs. There is a survey now that has established,
3 sort of a baseline that you have and asking the Judicial Branch to engage in that kind of survey on an
4 annual basis so that you could begin to assess whether the employment climate was getting better makes
5 sense to me. I think it is. I mean, there's a separation of powers issue here in terms of you telling them
6 how to maintain their employees, but if it is part of this whole establishment of a system or an office that
7 could indeed be part of the role of the Ombudsman, I could see that as working, as well. So, that that is a
8 very cursory response, and as we have all indicated, I remain available for whatever follow-up might be 9 useful to you.

10
11 Rep. Weissman

12 Okay, thanks again. Rep. Lynch.

13
14 Rep. Lynch

15 Thank you, Mr. Chair, and with the risk of my lunch hour being cut short, well, I'll ask a very simple
16 question, what do you see as the qualifications? So, we talk a lot about this ombudsman, right? But we're 17 talking about ombudsman with Supreme Court justices potentially. What do you see as the criteria for 18 that person? I mean, how are we going to select this person? Are they going to be from the Court? Are 19 they going to be from the public? Are they going to be from the . . .

20
21 Rebecca Love Kourlis

22 I think the person could be someone who has served in it? Excuse me, I apologize. The person could be 23 someone who has served in a judicial capacity, but I don't think need be. I do think the person should be 24 a lawyer, just because he or she knows the in and outs of the system, but I actually think that the people
25 skills and the commitment to a well-functioning process might be paramount, in my view. And I would 26 hope that would not be a terribly difficult position to fill. It's important and the person would have a big 27 role in assuring public trust and confidence. But, as has already been pointed out, doesn't have a great 28 deal of power to make decisions about what should or shouldn't happen. Rather, they would be able to 29 help people understand what their options are and get the information to the right place in the right form.
30 So, I mean, there's, there's kind of an analogy in the attorney discipline system. There are people who 31 man the hotlines in the attorney regulation system, and those people are lawyers within the system. So 32 that isn't necessarily the right model, but they need training. They need willingness to do it, and then
33 they need to understand that their ultimate commitment is to the public, not to the system. So, I don't 34 think it would be really hard, certainly not a sitting judge.

35
36 Rep. Weissman

37 Good question. Thank you. Rep Lynch, All right, last word by Madam Vice Chair.

1 Rep. Carver

2 Thank you, Mr. Chair. And I erred, the reference to the difficulties with Illinois are on page two, and
3 citation at the bottom footnote 15. I did also want to offline. Cynthia Gray did give us a handout of 13 4 states that set up a separate tribunal when there is misconduct allegations against a member of the 5 supreme court. So, if you would have recommendations on which model of those 13 you would 6 recommend, that would be helpful. Thank you, Mr. Chair.

7

8 Rep. Weissman

9 Thank you. And committee, thanks to Ms Jenson everyone now has in your inboxes via forward from 10 me. A document from NCSC called Composition of Judicial Conduct Commissions in table format
11 that'll get posted on the website for anybody in the public who wants to take a look as well. With that,
12 thank you both for your time and for indulging us in all the Q and A. And again, we invite follow up.
13 And it sounds like there will be follow up originating from some members of the committee as well.

Appendix 27(s)(ii)(4)

(Renumbered 27(s)(ii)(12) Below)

Presentation by ILG, LLC and SCA Vasconcellos Comment;

Appendix 27(s)(iii)(5)

Presentation by the Colorado Judicial Institute;

Legislative Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline—
August 10, 2022 Hearing:
Presentation by the Colorado Judicial Institute

[Recording malfunction during initial portion of testimony].

1 Marilyn Chappell

2 On the question of who should be the final-decision makers of formal disciplinary sanctions. The 3 committee has heard testimony about what other states do. And those states include Illinois and 4 Pennsylvania. I want to point out that those states have partisan elections to select judges. We don't have
5 that in Colorado. In Colorado, in 1966 our voters rejected that in favor of our judicial merit selection
6 system, which involves nominating commissions made up of volunteers that can't be a majority of any 7 given party and involve non attorneys and attorneys. So, that is our gold standard system for selecting
8 judges. So, when you look at other states systems for disciplining judges, CJI would urge that you
9 consider the context in which those judges are selected in the first place. And I would add that 10 Wisconsin also elects judges in direct elections. So, CJI submits that the final decision makers should be 11 the justices of the Colorado Supreme Court. Those justices, again, have been selected through our merit
12 selection system. They have extensive experience with adjudicating disputes, and our justices are 13 accountable to voters in retention elections, our justices are the best qualified individuals to make 14 decisions on the final, formal, serious sanctions of judges. Decisions that affect lives and livelihoods.
15 Those decisions should not be made by panels of individuals who are not selected through the exacting
16 system our justices are selected by and are not accountable to voters. And I know there's been discussion
17 about, well, what if there's a situation where the person being investigated is a Supreme Court justice?
18 Well, as you heard Ms. Kauffman from IAALS say, earlier, that is rare. And as you heard Professor 19 Geyh say earlier, for the most part, the system does not involve that sort of discipline and he is fine with 20 the highest, state, Supreme Court making final determinations. We would submit at CJI again, being 21 cautious about amending the Constitution, that if there's a need for some sort of off ramp for that rare
22 situation that can be accomplished by rule.

23
24 Third, on the authority to make rules on judicial discipline. Again, these formal disciplinary proceedings
25 are trial-like. They, again, affect people's livelihood. They are not the same sort of proceeding, for 26 example, that the judicial performance evaluation commissions have in considering evaluating judges.
27 The disciplinary formal proceedings should adhere to due process, and they should be governed by rules
28 written by people with experience in adjudicating disputes, and again, those people are the Justices of 29 the Colorado Supreme Court. Now, in Senate Bill 22-201 there was a statute added, section 13-5.3-107
30 that said the Supreme Court makes the rules with conferral with the state judicial discipline commission, 31 CJI submits that is the right balance and it does not need to be changed. In closing, again, Mr. Rupp and 32 I would like to thank the committee for considering the input of CJI. We trust that the committee will

1 take a long, hard, careful look based on the facts, and whatever is decided will be in the best interest of 2 our State. Thank you.

3

4 Rep. Weissman

5 Okay, thank you, Mr. Rupp, I wasn't sure if you wanted to add more? Okay. We'll see if there are 6 questions, committee questions for either of our witnesses. Madam Vice Chair.

7

8 Rep. Carver

9 Thank you for being here today. Appreciate your comments and your perspective. I was wondering if 10 you had any thoughts, if you heard the discussion with some of the previous panels where we talked
11 about, or if you're familiar with the IAALS report and the content of that. But a great deal of discussion 12 on investigatory versus adjudicative and dividing those functions either by doing two panels within the 13 Commission or setting up a separate group. And of course, the vast majority of states, when there is a 14 final decision by the Supreme Court still has, many of them have the two-tier system. And, so, we were 15 talking about structuring that. Do you have any comment on one tier versus two-tier on investigatory
16 versus adjudicative with, of course, the Supreme Court still having the final say on what the disciplinary 17 action is.

18

19 Rep. Weissman

20 Ms. Chappell.

21

22 Marilyn Chappell

23 Mr. Chair. Thank you, Representative Carver, we were here for that discussion. CJI does not, at this 24 point have a position on the separation of function between the investigative, prosecutorial, and 25 adjudicative functions. Other than, as I said earlier, that we support the Supreme Court being the final 26 decision maker. So, to answer your question, we do not have a position at this point. However, we 27 would be happy to discuss that further internally at CJI and request to submit further statements, if that 28 would be appropriate,

29

30 Rep. Carver

31 If that is something that you care to provide comment on, I think that would be most helpful. The other
32 piece, just based upon some of the comments that you made, the three areas that you wanted to comment
33 on. You talked about if, as 13 states have done, when there is an allegation of misconduct against a 34 supreme court judge. In those 13 states, they have set up a process for a special tribunal, and because 35 that has been, and hopefully in future, will be, a relatively rare occurrence, that it is an ad hoc measure.
36 You seemed, I just wanted to make sure I understood. You would be in support of that, but would like, if 37 possible, not to have that be caught up in a constitutional change. I mean, I do agree with you, and we 38 see this. We debate this on, you know, what should we put in statute versus what needs the flexibility of 39 being in rules. And of course, it's just one degree more when you are putting it in the Constitution. Can

1 you speak a little more to again, my takeaway is that you're not opposed to a special tribunal in those 2 circumstances.

3

4 Marilyn Chappell

5 Representative Carver, Mr. Chair, thank you for your question, and thank you for the opportunity to 6 clarify. On behalf of CJI, I would not say that we support a separate tribunal. What we do support is a 7 concept of some sort of rule provision that would pertain to the rare situation where a current or former 8 Colorado Supreme Court Justice is being investigated and is subject to potential formal sanctions. We're 9 not saying that we would agree that a separate tribunal is the correct answer. It could well be that 10 something more limited, for example, not the entire membership of the court, would need to be recused.
11 It could be that fewer than the entire balance of the court could be recused, and that sort of thing
12 involves a case by case analysis, and should be able to be addressed in some sort of rule and should not 13 require the formal establishment of an entirely separate tribunal. That would be our position.

14

15 Rep. Carver

16 Thank you, and you know, I know you heard the testimony. Just one more question, Mr. Chair, I know
17 you heard the testimony that Colorado is an outlier with regards to the scope of confidentiality, and that 18 the majority of states do limit confidentiality once a formal proceeding is initiated. Some of those at 19 when charges are filed, others at some time later in the process. Just on the merits. And again, just to 20 clarify, make sure I understood your point. You are, on the merits for that, but your concern is it would 21 involve a change in the constitution which you're cautious of. Am I summarizing your position 22 correctly?

23

24 Marilyn Chappell

25 Mr. Chair, Representative Carver. Yes, we agree with I think everybody else who said that once formal 26 charges are filed, that that is a point at which confidentiality can cease. So, we agree with that concept.
27 But yes, as you point out, that will that should involve caution, because it would require a constitutional
28 amendment. And as Justice Korlis said earlier, you want to be careful about opening a Pandora's box 29 once you open that possibility. But yes, CJI does support that change.

30

31 Rep. Carver

32 Thank you.

33

34 Rep. Weissman

35 Thanks. Other questions for either of our CJI witnesses? Senator Gonzales.

36

37 Sen. Gonzales

38 Thank you, Mr. Chair, and thank you both for joining us this afternoon. I appreciate you kind of walking 39 us through the mission and structure of the organization. Can you give us a sense of how many judges 40 are current members of your organization, and also judges are members of your board of directors?

1 Jeff Rupp

2 There are a handful. What would the number be? There are maybe, I think, two or three active judges
3 who are on the Board, and there are probably a similar number who are emeriti board members, former
4 board members. In terms of membership, I don't know the exact breakdown, but it's a good number. I
5 mean, ultimately, our mission is to promote the excellence of the courts, and so it's in their interest. So
6 even as even as they are members, and they are board members, in some cases, they recuse themselves
7 in appropriate ways during board meetings, when business comes up that might compromise or that they 8 feel that they should leave the room, and so we pride ourselves on being independent. But of course, we 9 work on their behalf to some degree, and they're interested in that.

10

11 Sen. Gonzales

12 Thank you. Is that a . . . Well, I'm not going to get into your organization's recusal process, because I
13 think it might be. That's a different conversation to have. But I will say that we, one of the things that 14 we're struggling with right now is how and when a recusal happens, and how best to ensure that 15 impartiality when it comes to issues of misconduct for justices themselves, right? And which is why I
16 think this would potentially require or necessitate a constitutional change. Okay, I am here in receipt of 17 the written comments that you submitted previously as well. I want to just disagree with the idea that 18 there are not serious problems with or need for major changes to the judicial discipline system. I think 19 that the survey that we have, we were just discussing around workplace culture demonstrates that there
20 are a lot of people who feel that the Judicial Branch is a great place to work, but also a number of 21 people, a concerning number of staff members and participants, employees of the judicial branch who 22 disagree. And I think that that cause for and that cry for changes to culture demonstrate that there
23 actually is work to be done. And so, I suppose that that's more of a comment than a question. But I just 24 wanted to appreciate you all coming forward. I appreciate the request for us to proceed with caution, 25 which is why I think that we didn't move this work forward during the legislative session. I think it's 26 why we're doing this work here to be iterative in our work, to hear from as many perspectives as we
27 could, and to proceed thoughtfully and carefully. More of a comment than a question. But I just wanted 28 that to put that on the record.

29

30 Jeff Rupp

31 And we appreciate that. This has been a very deliberative process, and as you point out, the work
32 continues. So, we appreciate that. If anything, it's just a gentle reminder,

33

34 Marilyn Chappell

35 Mr. Chair, may I respond further to Senator Gonzales. Thank you, Senator Gonzales, for your 36 comments. And we understand that, and we take that to heart. I would go back to what Justice Kourlis 37 said this morning, as far as dividing the issues into separate categories, some of them involving the 38 workplace, some of them involving Judicial Department employees who are not judges, and so forth and 39 so on. I would just refer back to that and to the concept that, yes, the system is not perfect. Yes, more
40 resources could be devoted to education and training, including on managerial issues, and again, CJI

1 supports providing the courts with the resources that they need to accomplish adequate training and
2 education.

3

4 Rep. Weissman

5 Comment noted. Senator, we have time for maybe one more question before we need to move with our 6 agenda. Committee? All right, seeing none. Thank you for being with us.

7

8 Jeff Rupp

9 Thank you.

10

11 Marilyn Chappell

12 Thank you.

13

14 Rep. Weissman

15 And, again, apologize for the slippage in time at the top of the hour.

Appendix 27(s)(iii)(6)

Presentation by the Colorado Coalition Against Sexual Assault (CCASA);

Legislative Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline—
August 10, 2022 Hearing:
Colorado Coalition Against Sexual Assault

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Okay, next on our agenda is to hear from CCASA, the Colorado Coalition Against Sexual Assault. We 3 are joined by CCASA's Policy Director, Elizabeth Newman. And it looks like another member of the 4 CCASA team. All right, however you'd like to proceed, thanks for being with us, and sorry we're a little 5 bit past the printed time.

6

7 Elizabeth Newman

8 Thank you, Mr. Chair and members of the committee. I'm Elizabeth Newman, Public Policy Director for 9 the Colorado Coalition Against Sexual Assault. CCASA is a statewide membership organization of rape 10 crisis centers, law enforcement, colleges, survivors, and others who are committed to preventing and 11 addressing sexual violence. We were invited here to speak today about a victim-centered approach to 12 judicial misconduct complaints. One of our primary tenants is to be victim-centered in our work. And 13 with that in mind, I'd like to ask the committee to allow my colleague Natalie Seils, to read testimony 14 from a person who was a victim.

15

16 Rep. Weissman

17 Sure. Ms. Seils, go ahead.

18

19 Natalie Seils

20 Thank you. My name is Natalie Seils. I'm here with CCASA. The following is a letter written from a 21 victim, written for the committee.

22

23 I was sexually harassed by a judge while working as an intern during law school. I can tell you that it
24 was an absolutely horrible experience. I reported the harassment, which went to the judicial commission.
25 They interviewed me a month later and told me it could be months before I heard anything back. They 26 requested I speak to no one about the investigation and warned me that doing so could result in a
27 misdemeanor charge. Lastly, they told me that they did not represent me, but the people of Colorado. I 28 was on my own.

29

30 With that, I was released back into society, expected to go to school, carry on with my life, and keep my 31 mouth shut. I began to have terrible anxiety. I was in the dark, and no one would give me updates or 32 explain anything. No one was able or willing to guide me. I was scared to tell anyone what was 33 happening and risk a misdemeanor. I started having nightmares about the judge. The anxiety began to 34 manifest in hideous ways. I was so worried that the judge was going to ruin my career and dirty my 35 reputation. I got to the point where I thought he could show up at my school or work and physically hurt

1 me to keep me quiet. I would walk to the parking garage every day and have trouble breathing, and
2 would break into sweats. I felt like I was thrown to the wolves. I continued to spiral as I waited in 3 silence, not knowing if my claim was being taken seriously or an investigation was moving forward. The 4 anxiety paired with something I had never experienced before, a deep depression. I began to hate law. I
5 felt that it all was corrupt, that judges could do as they please with no consequences, and, that as a
6 woman, these things would continue to happen to me, and no one would bat an eye. The judge that I
7 reported was still on the bench, and I had heard nothing about what was happening. It became physically
8 painful to get out of bed and go to class. I started crying every night when I got home and seriously
9 contemplated dropping out of school. Everything felt so hopeless, and I no longer felt like myself. My 10 friends approached me and begged me to go to therapy. I knew that I was not okay, but I did not have 11 the energy to figure out how to enroll in therapy, or, more importantly, how to pay for it. Then I hit the 12 lowest point in my life. I was driving home from a class, and I remember being so hopeless and tired
13 that I wanted it all to end. I let my hands hover off of the wheel for a few seconds, and thought about 14 how easy it would be to let go. I know I had never had thoughts of killing myself or wanting to die 15 before this.

16

17 I spoke to someone at my university and told them a little bit of what was going on. This individual put 18 me in contact with CAPE, an organization that acts as a resource coordinator for students who have been 19 sexually harassed or assaulted. I finally had someone to talk to where I felt safe and heard. The CAPE
20 officer organized everything to get me into therapy. It was quite literally a lifesaver.

21

22 However, the process with the Commission did not end there. Almost six months later, I got a call that
23 they needed personal evidence for me, I was on Christmas break with my family, and I felt the anxiety
24 hit again. Then more silence. Months later, they reached out, and I was told that I needed to schedule a 25 time to be deposed in the next couple of weeks, right around the time of final exams. This involved my 26 harasser sitting across the table from me as his attorney interrogated me. I was a witness and did not 27 have rights as a victim. I was powerless to do anything. With finals looming, I had to scramble to get an 28 attorney and find a way to pay for my own representation as a student, living off of student loans.

29

30 When I reported, I was scared. But I was told it was the right thing to do. Now I feel failed by the 31 system, and I do not blame others for not reporting. The process has been re-traumatizing, to say the 32 least. I have wanted to die. I have cried myself to sleep. I have been boiling with anger. I have been 33 numb, scared, worried. I have been all of the emotions that no victim should go through without support.

34

35 The reality is, it is not that hard to do better, and I have some suggestions. First, there should be 36 someone to explain the process in more detail at the beginning, maybe provide some written information
37 and help victims understand that they have the rights of a witness and that they should get their own
38 representation. Second, having someone as a point of contact. If a victim wants an update or is confused
39 about how the process works, someone they can feel safe and comfortable contacting to learn more.
40 Third, no one who reports should have to mentally suffer and have no resources to help. Having some

1 sort of stipend for mental wellness in this process should be a given, and it should not be an added stress
2 on the victim to figure out how to find a therapist and how to pay. Fourth, victims should have the right
3 to an attorney at no cost, whether this is paid for by the state or at minimum, attorneys volunteer pro
4 bono. Someone should coordinate this and cover expenses, instead of throwing this responsibility and
5 financial burden on a victim who is typically a lower-level employee and does not have the same bucket
6 of finances to dip into as a judge. Next, possibly creating a hotline or a neutral person for victims to 7 report to would be helpful. It can be terrifying to know that your harasser is five steps down the hall
8 from the person you are supposed to report to. Finally, little things need to be insured too, such as 9 making sure a victim is able to transfer or leave the job with the judge, change their phone number, etc.

10
11 If we care about this profession, if we want to foster young students into incredible lawyers, if we want
12 courthouse employees or people standing before a judge to feel safe and not objectified, then we must do
13 better. I am a first generation law student. I have experienced a lot of hardship in my life. I have fought
14 hard to be here, but this process almost made me give up and walk away from it all. I never want another
15 person who is doing the right thing to have such a terrible experience. I don't want this profession to be 16 seen as corrupt and a letdown. I ask you to help change it, to help victims who have already suffered feel 17 like everything is going to be okay. We can and must do better. Thank you.

18
19 Rep. Weissman

20 Okay. Thank you for reading the letter. We appreciate that the person whose story that is not in a 21 position to tell it directly. Ms. Newman, however you want to proceed to this point.

22
23 Elizabeth Newman

24 Thank you, Mr. Chair. I do have copies of our recommendations with me that I also submitted
25 electronically. And I wanted to start with the testimony from the victim, because I feel like it really 26 centers a lot of the recommendations that we put together. I will say, in addition to hearing from 27 someone directly impacted, we did speak with other state and national groups who work in this space, 28 and looked at other processes for handling sexual misconduct in institutions that are atypical, such as 29 Title IX at the higher ed level, as well as in legislative bodies. And what's happened with the federal 30 judiciary, with the Judiciary Accountability Act that was introduced last year. Our primary goal with 31 these recommendations are to return some power to victims, to ensure their safety, to support their 32 healing, and to prevent further harm. While our lens is around sexual misconduct, all forms of 33 harassment, discrimination, and offensive conduct in the workplace are pervasive and harmful. There is 34 significant harm to the individual, as you've heard, and as we document. The research shows this is 35 incredibly harmful to their well-being, but it also harms the entire work group. People who witness the 36 harassment, people who see that nothing is being done. And it also harms the employer. You know, we 37 have reputational harm. We have costs, financial burdens, and society at large.

38
39 Depending on how you ask the question, at least a quarter, if not up to 85% of women experience sexual 40 harassment in their lifetime. And what I want to highlight are a couple reasons that the Judiciary is at

1 high risk for sexual misconduct in the workplace and other forms of workplace harassment. There are
2 significant power disparities among the people involved in this system. Obviously, at the top, the judges
3 who represent both a formal and informal sense of power. There's a lot of control over careers. There are 4 relationships, there are networks, and there is a real chance that someone reporting something can really
5 be detrimental to their career. And then there are the decentralized workplaces, as we heard from ILG,
6 their report, you have these different districts that are operating in their own way and not as a cohesive
7 system.

8
9 We have highlighted some recommendations that are consistent with what you've heard, but what I want
10 to talk to you about today are some that are maybe unique or haven't been mentioned at this point yet. In 11 particular, as we talk about safe reporting, it's important that victims have a choice in what happens and 12 how they report, that that power is not taken away from them, their story is not taken away from them.
13 And so as we talk about formal and informal, anonymous complaints, those are all ways that we can 14 ensure that someone has some decision making in what's moving forward for them in making and 15 raising an issue. The other thing I want to mention is permitting reports from current and former 16 employees as well as volunteers, people in the courtroom. There should not be a limit to who can be 17 filing a complaint or the time frame. I also want to mention whistleblower complaints. I think that as we 18 talk about harassment and discrimination, those are incredibly important. But the retaliation provisions, 19 the opportunities for filing a complaint, should also be incorporating whistleblowers as well. When we 20 talk about investigations, we really are looking at a lot of the similarities with Title IX. There really can 21 be a very lengthy process, and we do want to ensure that there is due process, that there is a fair and 22 impartial investigation. But for Title IX, one thing that's been a really significant change and 23 development is having different people for receiving the complaints, for investigating the complaints,
24 and for making the decision on and adjudicating the complaints. Going back to the retaliation piece.
25 There really must be clear procedures and policies that are communicated broadly around how to 26 determine whether retaliation has occurred, and if so, what remedies there are for the victim and as well
27 as for disciplinary action for those who have retaliated. You know, the investigative reports really 28 highlighted retaliation as a major concern among employees, and given the risk factors within the 29 Judicial Branch, we think that's incredibly important. As well as ensuring the independence of either an 30 investigatory unit or a third party to conduct investigations.

31
32 I also want to highlight the importance of prompt investigations. That's something that we've seen as a 33 real challenge with Title IX, that these drag out. And as you hear, it is harmful to the victim to 34 continually be left in the dark about what's happening, to not know things are progressing, and to be 35 wondering when they're going to hear more. And oftentimes they might be in the same space, the same 36 physical space as the person who harmed them, and so having a prompt investigation can be very 37 important in that process. And even further continuing investigations after someone has retired or 38 resigned. That should not be the end of the complaint. That is something that also comes from Title IX.
39 For us, we know a student graduates, the complaint and the investigation still moves forward. I want to 40 spend a little time on how we feel like support for victims could be best implemented. And I know

1 there's been discussion about an ombuds office or person, and I don't think this is necessarily an and/or 2 situation or an either/or situation, but we really feel like there needs to be someone there for the victims.
3 And that would probably be a different role than an ombuds. An ombuds is more there to make sure that 4 the system is working properly, to make sure that things are progressing. We're suggesting an Office of 5 Employee Advocacy, which is how it's framed in the Federal Judiciary Accountability Act. As we hear
6 from interns, volunteers, others who are in the space, maybe also would benefit from such an advocate.
7 Someone who can provide confidential support and information about the process of reporting, as we 8 heard from the victim, you know, really needing some help on what are supportive measures that could 9 be in place? What are some of the corrective measures that might come down the line for the accused, if 10 it's found to be substantiated? Referrals for care, for medical or mental health care, community,
11 advocacy services, therapy, other resources, some guidance in navigating what are your options. Which I
12 do believe was referenced with regard to the ombudsperson. However, there are more opportunities and 13 ways that this advocate can be a support. The role of an advocate is really to help the person define what 14 is best for themselves, and giving them the information so that they can make their own choice. And the 15 most critical piece, I think, as was mentioned by the victim, is that legal representation, and that is part 16 of what was developed in the Federal Judiciary Accountability Act. Is that this office would be able to 17 provide legal representation in matters relating to the proceedings of a complaint. And then, as well as 18 regular status updates are informing the victim of the result of critical stages in the process.

19
20 I also want to mention really having the supportive measures in place. We see that a lot with Title IX, 21 letting people know they could change their phone number, they could change their e-mail address, they 22 could change their schedule, things like that that allow someone to feel safer. Allow them to not have 23 contact with the person who harmed them. There can even be no contact orders. Security services, 24 temporary leave, those types of options. People might not know what's available to them. And as we 25 heard, a lot of people are in the dark about the process of reporting. They're certainly also probably in 26 the dark about what types of supports they can get in the workplace.

27
28 And lastly, on sort of support for victims. I want to mention that interns, volunteers, people, who are 29 entering the legal profession are often starting at a courthouse. Often, they see the opportunity to work
30 for a judge as a critical step forward in their career. And this kind of experience can really derail them.
31 Not only because they might be turned off by the profession, but also because they need that letter of 32 recommendation, they need that endorsement, that reference from whom they worked for, in order to 33 move forward in their career. And especially at a young stage. You don't have a lot on your resume, and 34 so creating some kind of process for employees, volunteers, interns, to get some kind of 35 acknowledgement of their work and some kind of endorsement of them to ensure that this doesn't derail
36 their professional career. In terms of accountability and transparency, it was mentioned a little bit about 37 having some consistency in what types of actions will result in what types of consequences. There are 38 things such as a corrective action matrix that ensure that consistency, that spell it out, to eliminate some 39 of that implicit and explicit bias. If you have a body that is connected to the people that they are 40 regulating, they might be a little bit informed by who they know, what they perceive to be, maybe the

1 scenario of how something came about, and so having more standardized procedures can be really 2 helpful to eliminate some of those biases creeping in.

3
4 Another piece that was brought up forward for us in our research was, if a lawyer is bringing forward a
5 complaint against a judge, what happens when they have a case before that Judge again? Currently, my 6 understanding is judges make their own determination of whether to recuse themselves, if they have a
7 conflict of interest. Could we have a process that maybe lays out some steps to ensure that either there's
8 a recusal or reassignment in those types of cases. And lastly, I really want to highlight prevention. A 9 history of silence and misconduct must be addressed by shining a light, and this cannot be done without 10 training and awareness and communication across the entire organization. So, there must be policies, 11 and they must be communicated and they must be followed. But also, we must have training and 12 research on effective training really shows that it should be customized to the environment, so people 13 see scenarios that are relevant to them.

14
15 We also feel like, judges or leadership should have their own specialized training so they're not next to 16 someone that reports to them and are asking questions that maybe show a little bit of ignorance or a lack 17 of understanding. And, so, they have that space to ask questions, to learn. And, also, to make sure that 18 everyone is treated as bystanders, as allies, instead of as perpetrators and victims, so that we're in this 19 together. Right, that cohesive core mission that is shared and values that are shared across the 20 organization. And then just another endorsement for workplace assessments. The data that comes from 21 anonymous feedback can be incredibly enlightening, and can really show some areas where there is a
22 lack of or hot spots, as were referred to earlier. I think those are really important, and we've seen the 23 increasing use of them in the private sector, and really encourage the public sector to jump on board. I'm 24 happy to answer more questions or expand on anything further, but I really do want to respect your time
25 this afternoon.

26
27 Rep. Weissman

28 All right, Ms. Newman, thank you. I did take a look at the document before today when it went around
29 electronically, and just want to express my thanks to you and the organization for putting it together. I
30 think it's a very good taxonomy of some of the issues we have to continue to grapple with here
31 questions. Rep Bacon.

32
33 Rep. Bacon

34 I'm sorry, I actually missed one of the recommendations from the letter that you read, and I'm wondering 35 if you could share it with me. It was the last one. The fifth one. It was after the attorney, right to an 36 attorney.

37
38 Natalie Seils

39 The hotline?
40

1 Rep. Bacon

2 The hotline, okay. Thank you.

3

4 Natalie Seils

5 Yes, a hotline or neutral person for victims to report.

6

7 Rep. Bacon

8 Yes, thank you.

9

10 Rep. Weissman

11 Rep. Bacon good for now? Okay, I did have one question. So, years ago, this institution, this branch of 12 government, stood up the Office of Legislative Workplace Relations, and at the time, CCASA had been 13 pretty heavily involved in commenting to and sort of advising on processes that ended there, among 14 other places. The OLWR includes a formal resolution track and an informal resolution track. And the 15 preference of the individual going through the situation is to be given a lot of weight in that process. By 16 analogy, we have less severe sanctions that are considered informal in nature here in judicial discipline,
17 and we have more formal ones that tend to be more severe and go public. And as we're all hearing, they 18 may go public sooner than they now do. I just wonder if you could elaborate a little bit further how you
19 would advise us from CCASA's perspective on what we should be thinking about, and what, if anything, 20 we should be careful about when it comes to the role of informal processes here.

21

22 Elizabeth Newman

23 Thank you for the question, Mr. Chair. You know when we talk about informal resolutions, that is a
24 piece of it that is important for the victim to decide how they want to move forward. But I think the 25 institution also has a responsibility to follow to the degree that they feel like the severity of the conduct
26 needs to be responded to. And, so, an informal complaint doesn't necessarily mean an informal
27 resolution. On the other hand, we do want to protect and respect the wishes of the victim in terms of how 28 things move forward. So, in that regard, I would say that informal complaints and informal resolutions
29 do need to understand the power dynamics that are before them. For example, someone who's very 30 concerned about retaliation might be more likely to provide an informal complaint, and really wanting to 31 see themselves protected more so than the person who harmed them protected. And, so, I just want to 32 make that note that when we talk about things like alternative resolutions or that the federal judicial 33 branch has employee dispute resolutions, that we're really acknowledging the power differential. That 34 someone is going into something like that willingly, and that if we think about restorative justice 35 practices or transformative justice, that those really have to be something that both parties come to with 36 an equal understanding of what the harm is that's happened and a willingness to take accountability and 37 to have full discussions about it. And so just in this scenario, if we're talking about judicial discipline, I
38 think those, those can be more concerning because of that power differential. Thinking through those 39 resolution processes, however, it can be really healing. So, it's just a delicate situation where there
40 cannot be a hard line drawn, I think. And more so can benefit from the types of advocacy or roles of an

1 office such as OLWR to really allow people to kind of think through what the different options are and 2 how it will play out, rather than having a specific process that's applied to everyone equally.

3
4 Rep. Weissman

5 Thank you for that. Committee, Madam Vice Chair.

6
7 Rep. Carver

8 Thank you, Mr. Chair. And thank you both for being here. I wanted to follow up on, quite frankly, the 9 shocking, beg your pardon, victim's letter and how that played out once she had contacted the 10 Commission. You know that's inexcusable. So here, this young lady has drummed up the courage to file
11 a complaint. She's then told, don't say anything, or you're going to be potentially liable criminally with a 12 misdemeanor. Six months go by, hasn't heard a thing. You know, this individual could have also sought
13 relief and recourse through the HR system, but now she's under threat. Does this include her going to 14 HR? She's not allowed to talk to them? And so, you've heard the discussion with confidential or 15 anonymous. Routing that through the ombudsman. But I'm seeking clarification. If this isn't what you
16 meant, just let me know. When we're talking about a victim-centric process. My thought and some of 17 this is based upon labor processes I've done, as well as criminal justice. Is, in both worlds, my 18 experience has been that when a victim comes forward, that there is a set process and set personnel to 19 keep the victim apprised of the status of the investigation. Somebody that she could go to and say, hey,
20 they told me, if I tell anybody, it's a misdemeanor. Does that mean I can't talk to HR? What does that 21 mean? And, so, my thought, and ideally, this should be done by rule and budget, whether it's the 22 Commission and/or HR, is that there should be an individual, a process within the Commission that is 23 victim centric, and whose job it is to be that point of contact for the victim and be providing them
24 information about the process. When they could expect you know, we're behind. We've got this many 25 complaints. We think we'll get to you in five months, six months. Just let them know. But I think that 26 function, once a complaint has been filed within the Commission or HR is more properly done within 27 those organizations by dedicated personnel, as opposed to having that function be done by an 28 ombudsman. Do you have any thoughts on that?

29
30 Rep. Weissman

31 Ms. Newman.

32
33 Elizabeth Newman

34 Yes, thank you for the question, Vice Chair. In this particular case, this person reported to the 35 courthouse HR, which then forwarded the complaint to the Commission, so they did not seek out and 36 report directly to the Commission. And the Commission informed them that it might be several months
37 before they hear anything. That's not enough, though they did have their workspace transferred. But 38 again, it's an internship. It's not a formal employment. How much is HR? I think from the perspective of 39 a lot of people working in the sexual violence movement, HR is not there to represent the victim. They 40 are there to represent the employer. They are there to do their due diligence on behalf of the

1 organization, not on behalf of the victim. So, my personal feeling and CCASA overall supports ideas
2 that separate the victim advocacy piece from HR. We see that in Title IX many, many universities have,
3 well, they all have Title IX coordinators. If they get federal funding, they should. The Title IX
4 coordinator is there to facilitate the process, provide information. But they are really not there to be the 5 victim's advocate. They are there for the system, for the institution, and many, many universities have an 6 office for advocacy. They have some places, it's called a resource center. In some places they provide 7 trauma services. But they're there to be an advocate for the individual who's been victimized. Could that 8 be performed within the Commission, or within HR, if they had independence? Potentially, potentially.
9 But I think you have to also take a look at what is the perspective of the person who's been harmed, and 10 are they going to see them as truly independent and there for them, or are they going to see them as a 11 part of the system who's only furthering, you know, the interests of the system?

12

13 Rep. Weissman

14 Madam Vice Chair.

15

16 Rep. Carver

17 No, and I appreciate that. And while it's not apples to apples as a JAG, I was involved when the Air
18 Force created and put into place the victim witness assistance program. Which was a dedicated, 19 independent, confidential set of employees whose sole job was to provide support and assistance to 20 victims and witnesses. And most critically, or at least a core part of that was keeping them fully apprised
21 of the timeline, the steps involved, what they should expect, clarification on staying quiet or not. I mean
22 just, it was there, it was separate and it was independent. So, now granted that was in a criminal context,
23 but I think there is, at least in the HRs I advised, you know as JAG, we kind of float around doing a little
24 bit of everything. There in our HR department, we had personnel whose task it was to stay in contact
25 with the victim, the complainant, and the witnesses. And keep them up to date on the process. That was 26 their job. So again, I don't know that this is a statutory matter. It should be something that could be 27 properly taken care of by rule, and if you need more personnel to do it, then put it in your budget and ask
28 the General Assembly to fund it right, Mr. Chair, who will be back in 2023. So, I really appreciate the 29 recommendations and how your organization does really focus on the victim and the reality of the 30 situation they face. Which it's difficult to come forward, and then when you do come forward, you find 31 the whole process is a challenge. So, thank you.

32

33 Rep. Weissman

34 Thank you. And you know, members, I think we're all aware that we may be talking about things here
35 that would drive needs for appropriations. We can't do that ourselves, but we can advocate with those 36 who can. And our newest member of the committee has a particular history, I think, with that aspect of 37 legislative work. All right, members, I think we're at time, unless there are any other. I'm sorry, all right, 38 Senator Gonzales, last question.

39

40

1 Sen. Gonzales

2 Thank you, Mr. Chair. I just want to extend my appreciation to the victim who summoned the courage to 3 share their perspectives with us as a committee, as we are grappling with some really big issues. I think
4 that their experience really grounds us. If you all feel and if the person themselves feels it appropriate. I
5 would welcome receiving a written copy of their comments. Furthermore, and this is a piece that I
6 would just request written follow up if you're so able to provide this. On each recommendation, if you
7 all have models of who is doing this work well, whether that's in Title IX, whether that's in the work that 8 this body did a few years ago, whether that's just in universities or other places where you can point to.
9 This is a model of what recommendation three, subsection B looks like, or so on and so forth. Any of 10 that sort of model, language or model example would be most welcome. I'd like to particularly request
11 any sort of model, corrective action matrix that you may have seen in other circumstances and situations.
12 Because I think we've been trying to really understand. I think we all appreciate that not everything
13 needs to rise to the level of a formal reprimand or corrective action, but there are sometimes informal
14 steps that can be taken. And if that corrective action matrix lays out options of those types of informal
15 actions, I think that would really be helpful for us to think about. Understanding that that may not rise to 16 the level of statutory change or what have you, but as something that we can then figure out how to 17 make recommendations around. I'd welcome any of that follow up by submitting that to Ms. Jenson. But 18 again, I just want to really express my gratitude for these recommendations.

19

20 Rep. Weissman

21 Likewise, and thank you, Senator Gonzales. You know it was really difficult to hear that read. I don't 22 think any of us wants that to be the experience of anybody in our Judicial Branch of government. To the 23 Senator's latter points. We had previously inquired of NCSL, a research organization, are there any 24 models out there in other states for something like a VRA for the judicial discipline complaint process.
25 The answer was no. So, I would also appreciate sort of good metaphors, but I think it will be necessary,
26 and in this case, appropriate, to go outside of the immediate context. I mean, I just dug up the PDF from 27 ILG on their reports. I think that was 200 plus pages. I know there was a pretty lengthy document that 28 CCASA compiled in what was going on around here in 2018. Maybe you would call our attention to 29 some of that. Maybe you just know, or a partner organization knows of some company that's doing this 30 really well, or some nonprofit organization. I think we would appreciate sort of metaphors and positive
31 examples from any source that they could be found. And again, feel free to email that directly to any of 32 us, or Ms. Jenson can forward it to all members. And it could also be made part of the ongoing record on 33 the website for this committee, if you like. All right, thank you with that for testifying with us today and 34 for giving voice to the experience of somebody who survived something that she should not have had to.

Appendix 27(s)(iii)(7)

Presentation by Various Colorado Bar Associations;

Legislative Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline— August 10, 2022 Hearing: Bar Association Presentations

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Committee, the next item on our agenda is to hear from various bar associations. We have a couple
3 wrapped up in here. The first one will be from several representatives of the Women's Bar, and we'll 4 invite them up as a panel, and then we will have one representative of the El Paso County Bar who will
5 be with us on Zoom a little bit later. So, with that, we'll welcome Ms. Connaughty, Ms Garrison and Ms.
6 Busby, if you'd like to please join us.

7

8 All right. Thank you all for joining us and for being patient as we're trying to control the agenda here.
9 Whatever order you'd like, please proceed. We do have via your prior email transmission. We have the 10 written comments and the summary of those and, personally, I found them helpful. So, feel free to 11 elaborate on that however you'd like.

12

13 Emma Garrison

14 Thank you, Mr. Chair, members of the committee. We appreciate the opportunity to provide testimony
15 to you all today. My name is Emma Garrison. I'm the President Elect of the Colorado Women's Bar
16 Association, or CWBA for short. Here with me are my colleagues, Alison Connaughty, our Vice 17 President, and Ariana Busby, Co-Chair of our Public Policy Committee. All three of us have prepared
18 comments. We're going to be sharing the mic back and forth, but feel free to interrupt us with questions.
19 The CWBA is an organization of over 1500 attorneys and legal professionals with chapters across the 20 state. Our mission is to promote women in the legal profession and the interests of women generally.
21 Each year, our public policy committee actively engages with the General Assembly and advocates for 22 legislation that will promote and protect the interests of women and children. The CWBA is also 23 actively engaged in the Governor's Judicial Appointment process. We conduct due diligence on every 24 shortlisted candidate and present endorsement recommendations to the Governor, taking into account 25 the goals of advancing justice, creating a diverse bench and ensuring fair treatment of women, people of 26 color and other historically marginalized groups, and we create programs and initiatives throughout the 27 year that support diversity, equity and inclusion within the legal profession. Our members include
28 judges, judicial law clerks and staff within the Colorado State Judicial Branch. We estimate that about 29 10% of our membership is employed by the Colorado State Judicial Branch, and of course, hundreds of 30 our members practice before the Colorado State Courts. Our theme for this year is you uniquely belong.
31 We want women to know that they belong in the legal profession and that they are equal citizens under 32 the law. The allegations and revelations we have heard over the last year and a half have been 33 profoundly demoralizing to our members. Confidence in Colorado's Judicial System is of the utmost
34 importance to our organization. We are grateful for this opportunity to influence meaningful change. I'm 35 going to turn things over to Vice President Alison Connaughty.

36

1 Alison Connaughty

2 Thank you. When the revelations about complaints of sexual harassment within the Judiciary were
3 brought to light in February of 2021, we called a town hall so our members could discuss the impact that 4 it had on their practice and on the legal community overall. We also formed an internal committee to 5 press reforms forward and to closely engage with this problem on behalf of our membership. We've 6 engaged with various stakeholders, and we've also testified in support of SB 22-201. I'd like to tell you
7 all a little bit about the process that we went through to put together the written comments, the lengthy
8 written comments that we submitted for the hearing today. First, we reached out to our fellow diversity
9 bars, through the President's Diversity Council and through other means, and we invited their 10 participation. And we were able to gain some research volunteers. We identified which of the 18 areas
11 are a priority to our membership. And those nine areas that we commented on are the areas that you all 12 have received in our written comments. And I'm sure that you've noticed there's a lot of overlap between 13 a lot of the areas that are important to us. And with our research efforts, we reviewed resources that we 14 thought were pertinent through the National Center for State Courts, the Institute for the Advancement 15 of the American Legal System. We also consulted with members of IAALS and with the leadership at 16 their organization. We met with leaders from the judicial community. We met with the judicial 17 discipline commission. We also identified states that have recently undergone legislative changes and 18 constitutional amendments that we think Colorado should look to in terms of the changes that we should 19 be prioritizing throughout this process. And we have identified states that improve upon Colorado's 20 current model and compared resources, statutory language, relevant rules and constitutional provisions.
21 And we've divided our recommendations that we're going to be covering in our testimony today in three
22 areas. The first area Ariana Busby will discuss: administrative and access recommendations. I will cover
23 the recommendations that we have pertaining to ensuring the judicial discipline process is victim
24 centered, and Emma Garrison will discuss our recommendations relating to confidentiality and 25 transparency. Then it will come back to me, because we have been listening, and we know you're going 26 to ask us for examples from other states. So, I'm going to make sure that we have covered and 27 highlighted everything that we want you all to be looking at. With that I will turn it over to Ariana 28 Busby.

29

30 Ariana Busby

31 Thank you, committee. So, the CWBA has a number of recommendations regarding the administration
32 of the judicial discipline commission, as well as access. There's going to be six that I go over today. First 33 and foremost, the complaint process needs to be modernized. In looking at this, we looked at examples
34 such as our own Department of Regulatory Agencies, where you can file a complaint online. You can 35 also submit that complaint in writing if you need to. That's also something that you can see through the 36 Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel, where you're able to submit your comments online. So,
37 modernizing that complaint process, we feel would have a large impact on access to the Commission.
38 But it's also more efficient for staff. And so that's really a twofold recommendation. The second one is 39 one that you heard from IAALS earlier today, and really many of the speakers today, and that's 40 clarifying whether or not complaints can be made anonymously. It appears that anonymous complaints

1 are allowed, but that's not mentioned anywhere in statute or in the rules or in our Constitution. And if
2 you review even the instructions on filing a complaint, there's no mention of how to do an anonymous
3 complaint. And, so, we would recommend clarification on that aspect. In New York, for example, they 4 have a separate form for anonymous complaints, and those complaints are then treated as though they
5 were initiated by motion by the Commission. And, so, that's one state that we looked at as an example
6 for anonymous complaints. Third, we would recommend statutory and even rule updates regarding the 7 Commission's annual reporting to the Legislature and to the public to include more detailed information,
8 including the statistics on number of complaints filed, the disposition of those complaints, the content of 9 the complaints, what type of courts those complaints were impacting, for example, if they are all in 10 family court, that was something we would love to know. And the demographics in terms of who the 11 complaints are being filed against and who's filing the complaints. This can help us identify trends, that 12 can help Judicial identify trends for need for training, as well as to identify areas where we need to 13 provide more information to the public. For example, if there's many complaints that are dismissed as 14 being outside the jurisdiction of the Commission.

15
16 In terms of constitutional changes, we would recommend a modification to the requirements on the 17 makeup of the Commission. We're not going to discuss specifically the number of people that need to be 18 on the Commission, etc. However, if you look at other language for boards and commissions in the State
19 of Colorado, there's generally language pertaining to geographical diversity, gender diversity, cultural 20 diversity, etc. And that's something that's really missing here. There's a requirement for geographical 21 diversity, and that is something that you do see on the Commission currently, but we would ask that that 22 be modified to include gender, race, disability and geography to allow for a more diverse makeup of the 23 Commission.

24
25 And then, lastly, we have two recommendations regarding conflicts. First, we would recommend added
26 recusal provisions and disqualification standards for Commissioners and judges who review the 27 Commission's recommendation, including a process for challenging a recusal decision. There's not 28 currently a process in place to challenge if a Commissioner does not recuse, and we feel that that is an 29 area that must be addressed. Second, there needs to be an objective mechanism for replacing judges who 30 are conflicted out of a proceeding. You've heard several recommendations on how to address this. Our 31 report provides examples from several states, but we'd like to more particularly point to the State of 32 California, which has a rotating tribunal of appellate judges, and specifically makes it so that the Chief 33 Judge would need to recuse himself or herself if the complaint is against a member of the Supreme 34 Court. And, also, Minnesota, which would have the complaint go to the Chief Judge of the Court of 35 Appeals and six random judges from the Court of Appeals. With that, I'm going to turn to Alison to talk 36 about our victim centered approach.

37
38 Alison Connaughty

39 Thank you. A process that keeps victims informed and that provides victims with some autonomy
40 throughout that process is of utmost importance to the CWBA. We unfortunately were not successful in

1 finding a judicial discipline model on how to handle victims, either. But we did provide a few examples
2 in our written comments that we think serve as models we can look to in making sure that these rights
3 are codified. First of all, Colorado Victims' Rights Act at Colorado Revised Statute sections 24-4.1-
4 300.1 through 303 provides some helpful guidelines and a successful model. First, the term victim must
5 be properly defined. That term must be properly defined for a number of reasons. First of all, because it
6 serves as a very important trigger as to when someone is entitled to notice and entitled to participation in 7 the process. We, as attorneys, really like notice as an opportunity to be heard. We also want to ensure
8 that in creating these processes, we are not creating a way for people to abuse the processes. So that's 9 another reason why that definition, with respect to disciplinary proceedings, must be clear. We submit 10 that the term should apply, the term victim, should apply to subjects who are reporting harassment in the 11 workplace and discrimination in the workplace, at a minimum. And it should also be considered for 12 reporting parties whose pending cases are potentially impacted by the outcome of a disciplinary 13 proceeding in a dispositive way. And like the Colorado Victims' Rights Act, once someone receives that 14 designation, they should be provided with information on how the process will proceed. They should be 15 provided with information on the number of different potential outcomes of that process. And there
16 should be a requirement that they are consulted if they want to be consulted. With Colorado Victims'
17 Rights Act victims, they get an opportunity to opt in or out of notifications. And we think this is 18 important for that autonomy piece, in terms of giving victims back some of the power that our 19 colleagues at CCASA talked so much about during their presentation. I can't think of a better
20 organization to follow up after talking about victims' rights. And then the scope of the victims' rights in 21 the disciplinary proceeding must be clearly defined. I've talked a lot about notice. I've talked about 22 ensuring that they are fully informed, and we provided a couple examples in our written comments of 23 where this happens in non-criminal settings. One of them is university systems. The University of 24 Wisconsin System campus disciplinary process provides an example. And it articulates how students
25 who report misconduct by a university employee are protected. It provides that students must be 26 informed. It provides guidance on how students can submit an anonymous complaint, and it provides 27 students with the opportunity to opt in or out. And it makes sure that students have the opportunity to 28 provide input on what they would like to see happen with their proceedings. We think that's another 29 really important part of ensuring that this is a victim centered process. With these new rules and 30 regulations, victims should be given an opportunity to give input. That input does not need to be 31 dispositive on the outcome, but just giving them that opportunity and making sure that it happens gives 32 them back some of the power that they lose in a harassment situation or discrimination situation. We 33 also provided two other examples, one in the Code of Federal Regulations, 25 CFR Section 42. Again, 34 pertaining to schools, requiring schools to consider victims' rights when appropriate, and it lists those 35 victims' rights, and that citation is in our written comments. And, also, the Louisiana Supreme Court
36 made several substantive changes as the result of an extensive study and review of their legal structure
37 pertaining to judicial discipline. And the Louisiana Supreme Court has good language on when 38 proceedings need to be expedited. CCASA also talked about the impact that a long proceeding that's 39 dragging out may have on a victim's mental health, especially when a situation is related to not only a
40 person's self-confidence, but their workplace. It just is touching on so many different facets of a person's

1 life. I would encourage the interim committee to also look at the language for Louisiana, and we have
2 provided that citation in our written comments as well. And my colleague, Ms. Busby, talked about New 3 York and the anonymous complaints. And I would just say, if someone submits a complaint and asks to 4 do so anonymously, they also need to be informed about if and when their identity is going to be
5 revealed. And they need to be given some autonomy on if and when that happens as well. With that, I
6 will turn it over to Emma Garrison.

7
8 Emma Garrison

9 Thank you. The CWBA is also in favor of an amendment to the Constitution that would remove the 10 confidentiality protections upon the filing of a formal proceeding. As has been discussed earlier today,
11 this is how most other states approach judicial discipline, and it would also bring judicial discipline
12 proceedings in line with criminal proceedings and most civil proceedings. We did provide sample
13 language from several other states in our written comments. We also refer you to the work of IAALS,
14 who presented earlier today a study from the National Center for State Courts, and also the ABA Model
15 Rules for Judicial Discipline. We believe that this additional transparency would help promote public
16 confidence and would make the process less mysterious. Someone earlier referenced trial by headline, I 17 think, to avoid the media sort of being able to control the story and having less focus beyond rumors, is 18 to keep these formal proceedings public. And while Colorado does not have judicial elections in the 19 traditional sense, we do vote for judges in terms of retention, and having public proceedings would 20 allow the public and voters to be more informed on their retention decisions. We also believe that this 21 would serve as a deterrent function for other judges. Particularly if the judicial discipline opinions are 22 easily accessible and searchable online. Another recommendation that we endorse from IAALS is a
23 requirement that the Commission study all complaints that are filed, even ones that are not actionable 24 but don't go anywhere, to identify emerging patterns of problematic behavior, to alert and educate those 25 specific judges, but also potentially find broader areas that require education and reform. We further 26 recommend allowing for information sharing between the Commissions on Judicial Performance and the 27 Commission on Judicial Discipline. This would further increase transparency in the judicial discipline
28 proceedings and our state retention process. We provided examples from a few other states in our 29 written comments, and particularly highlight Alaska, Arizona, and Utah. Along those same lines, we 30 recommend information sharing with the judicial nominating commissions for judges who maybe want
31 to seek a higher-level court. Move on to the Court of Appeals or from County Court to District Court.
32 There may be cases when past misconduct that came out in the judicial discipline process may be 33 relevant to the nominating commission. Massachusetts is one state that allows the judicial discipline
34 commission to share relevant information with its nominating commission. And I will turn things back 35 over to Alison.

36
37 Alison Connaughty

38 Thank you. I think we have hit a lot of the specific examples, but just to reiterate. For confidentiality and 39 when that confidentiality needs to be removed, we would urge the committee to look at California and 40 also to Georgia, which is another good model. Georgia has a provision allowing for confidentiality when

1 the incapacity of a judge is at issue, and we agree with that exception, but overall, are advocating for our
2 confidentiality bar to be moved up in the proceedings. For recusal, California and Minnesota. We like
3 the fact that both of those states contemplate random panels of judges when there is a conflict of interest
4 amongst the reviewing court. For accessibility of information, we would urge the committee to look at 5 New York's model. They have a great determination database, and the information is organized in a very 6 clear way. And thank you, and I think we are happy to take questions as a panel.

7
8 Rep. Weissman

9 All right, thank you. Committee questions for any of our CWBA witnesses on anything we've heard?
10 There never, aren't questions in Judiciary. All right, well, goes perhaps to the thoroughness of your 11 presentation, both just now and in writing. You know, we can tell a lot went into the written comments.
12 I've given them a once through, and expect I'll be spending more time with them. As we've said before,
13 if in hearing anything you've heard today, you wish to submit further, please feel free to do so, either to 14 any of us or to Ms. Jenson. We're coming to the key part of the committee's work here next week, and 15 then between next week and the 30th. So, time is very ripe for further input. Should you care to offer
16 any. All right, you might be off the hook run away while you can.

17
18 Emma Garrison

19 Thank you all so much for your time and attention.

20
21 Rep. Weissman

22 I believe we have Mr. Kay from the El Paso County Bar Association, if we can get him connected on the 23 Zoom, please.

24
25 Daniel Kay

26 Thank you. Can you hear me?

27
28 Rep. Weissman

29 We can hear you. We can see you. Please, go ahead.

30
31 Daniel Kay

32 Thank you. I'd first like to thank the committee members for their very important work on this bill.
33 Specifically, I would like to thank the El Paso County delegation with Chairman Pete Lee, Co-Chair
34 Carver, and Senator Gardner, who are all attorneys, and we believe they really understand this 35 proceeding to its fullest extent. As you may know, El Paso County is the largest and the busiest Judicial 36 District. As such, I'm proud to represent the El Paso County Bar Association's interests that are outlined
37 in our letter to Representative Carver that I believe everyone has a copy of. First and foremost, the El 38 Paso County Bar agrees with your work, and in so doing, we believe that the independent and 39 transparent judiciary is of utmost importance, and we would recommend adopting the judicial 40 disciplinary commission's recommendations. We've set forth three bullet points in our letter that mirror

1 the recommendations of the judicial commission. In addition to the recommendations of the judicial 2 commission, we also believe, like the last speaker, that there should be communication between the 3 judicial performance commissions and the judicial disciplinary commission and the judicial nominating 4 commissions. I was on the judicial performance commission for 10 years, and we had two judges that 5 were accused of serious sexual misconduct, and we had no idea that these allegations were out there.
6 And, as a consequence, in both cases, the judges chose, after our recommendations that we retain them.
7 They chose not to stand for retention, but we had no idea why they didn't, weren't standing for retention.
8 And we had no idea about the allegations other than rumors, and we find out later what happened. So,
9 we always would interview the Chief Judge, the District Attorney and the Public Defender, and there's 10 no reason that there shouldn't be a representative from the judicial discipline commission that also 11 should give their input, or we could ask questions to. We believe the judicial disciplinary commission
12 needs to be independent and free of all constraints from the Supreme Court to restore the integrity of our 13 judicial system that has been tainted recently. The El Paso County Bar Association asks you to adopt all 14 of the recommendations of the judicial disciplinary commission. Do you have any questions of me?
15

16 Rep. Weissman

17 All right. Mr. Kay, thank you. We had a little glitch in getting a letter around, but we're remedying that 18 now, so all members of the committee will have the letter from the El Paso Bar Association that the 19 speaker just referenced. Questions of Mr. Kay concerning his testimony? Senator Gardner.
20

21 Sen. Gardner

22 Thank you. No real question of Mr. Kay, I just wanted to thank you for appearing today. We've been 23 colleagues in the El Paso County Bar for some years, and I appreciate the Bar's participation.
24

25 Daniel Kay

26 We felt that was very important. I don't know if any other bar associations contributed, but we felt, as 27 the largest bar association and the busiest bar association, we should weigh in on this matter, because of 28 its utmost importance, and we appreciate you, Senator Gardner.
29

30 Rep. Carver

31 And Mr. Kay, this is Rep. Carver. Just my appreciation for the work that the El Paso Bar has done. And 32 we know your diligence. We know how active the bar is down there, and the different sections are. So
33 many thanks to you. And thanks to your new president elect, Paul Hurcomb, and if I may just say, ex Air
34 Force JAG. Thank you.
35

36 Daniel Kay

37 Thank you. And Paul is on, as well. He's just listening.
38
39
40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 All right. Sorry, Mr. Kay, I was just going to say likewise. Thank you for taking the time to testify with
3 us today. We're a few counties away, but we've, we've also spoken over the years, and we will all have a
4 look at the official comments from the county bar association. And I'm sorry I didn't mean to step on 5 you just now. Anything else that you wanted to add for us?

6

7 Daniel Kay

8 I don't. I just appreciate this committee's work. I think it's extremely important, and we hope that you do
9 adopt the judicial disciplinary commission. We have been following this very closely in El Paso.

Appendix 27(s)(iii)(8)

Combined Presentation by the State Court Administrator and the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline;

Legislative Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline:
August 10, 2022 Hearing—Joint Presentation of the Colorado Judicial Department and the
Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline

1 Rep. Weissman

2 All right, the next element on our agenda is a joint presentation from representatives of the Judicial
3 Branch and the Commission on Judicial Discipline. We will invite back up Mr. Vasconcellos and also 4 David Prince and Elizabeth Krupa, the Chair of the Commission. Now for this part of the discussion, the 5 Vice Chair and I have talked a little bit about a good way to organize this. Members of the committee
6 are probably in receipt of a lot of documents over the past week from both entities setting out various 7 positions. What I thought I would do is reference an August 1 document in which the Judicial 8 Department lays out its responses to matters previously raised by the Commission, and then for the 9 record on August 2, the Commission sent us another document, kind of replying to those responses. Not 10 that this is the only organization of the material that we have in front of us. But it is one such. So, what I
11 thought I would invite our witnesses at this point to do is just kind of move through the document in 12 order. Example, Commission recommendation concerning accountability and core conflicts, and then we 13 have some discussion. I think it would be helpful for us to hear. As we look at all of this, there are some 14 areas where there seems to be substantial agreement. For example, that we need to go public earlier in 15 the process than we do now. You know, it's heartening to see that kind of agreement, and we know that 16 there's not agreement on all matters. Understanding that this will be an ongoing conversation, maybe we 17 could just sort of invite two or three minutes from each of the Department and the Commission on each
18 matter, as to where you believe that things stand based on conversations. What you think we should be 19 thinking about going forward, and we'll just try to move through the entire list that way. Does that sound 20 fair?

21

22 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

23 Yes, if I may.

24

25 Rep. Weissman

26 Chair Krupa.

27

28 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

29 Chair Weissman, thank you. What I believe that we have tried to do is go through our recommendations
30 and start where we have agreement. That seems to be, at least in our meetings, the easier way to start is 31 where we've agreed and move on from there. If I may, I'd like to just start with the areas that we agree. I 32 think those would be easy and quick.

33

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Yeah, look, I think that would be great. And I've attempted to organize this in a similar way. I was only
3 referring to the 8/1 document, just because it's in it's in writing, it's before everybody. I assumed it
4 would be before all of you. If you have already conferred and sort of agreed to proceed in that fashion, I
5 think that's also useful and am pleased to go ahead that way.

6
7 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

8 The areas that we have agreed. One to start is obviously the transparency. The Department and the 9 Commission agree, as you've heard from many people today, that the confidentiality of our process
10 should cease when formal proceedings are filed. There's agreement to that. I think what the Commission 11 and the Department would ask is for the interim committee to consider confidentiality in terms of 12 identification of victims and any information that might identify them. And a specific example is if you
13 speak of a law clerk or something like that. It may not name the alleged victim, but it would provide 14 details that would be easy to determine that. So, while formal proceedings would require disclosure, it
15 may require disclosure of the respondent judge and perhaps a summary of the allegation of misconduct,
16 but for the Commission to keep in mind confidentiality issues of the alleged victim and within the 17 District that it is encompassing. I think we have agreement on that.

18
19 The second area that there's agreement between the Department and the Commission would be that there 20 is a need for a pool of Special Masters. The Department had suggested that the pool be larger than nine.
21 The Commission has no opposition to that. I think where we differ is whether the pool should consist of 22 anyone, outside of judges. The Commission would encourage the interim committee to consider a pool 23 of special masters that consists of judges, lawyers and citizens, and to consider an opportunity and 24 evaluation process to where similar to striking a juror or preemptive challenge that either side, the 25 respondent judge or the commission, could ask for a recusal or to strike a member of that Special 26 Master's pool if an apparent or perceived conflict existed.

27
28 Rep. Weissman

29 Thank you. Just to put a question while we're on that subject, has there been any discussion about the 30 number of just to use the analogy peremptory strikes that each side would be allowed in that context, or 31 haven't you gotten to that detail yet?

32
33 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

34 Thank you, Chair Weissman. We didn't discuss numbers of preemptory challenges that way it would 35 depend on the panel that would sit. If it was a three-judge panel, or three hearing member panel, you
36 would be able to try to strike if there were conflicts perceived from any or all three of them by each 37 party. But we did not specifically address preemptory challenges, like there are in criminal cases.

38
39
40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Mr. Vasconcellos, on this same point. Not to answer, but I was taking your head nod on the last one to 3 mean full agreement with the way that Ms Krupa stated things. But my intent here is that you each have 4 the ability to speak to each point that's coming up.
5

6 Steven Vasconcellos

7 Thank you, Mr. Chair. As these things continue to evolve, and particularly in light of this morning's
8 conversation, I think the Department is absolutely open to a conversation about the composition of the 9 special masters, particularly around one judge, one lawyer, one citizen. I think there needs to be. And 10 this was discussed earlier at length, so I won't belabor the point a good investment in how to identify 11 particularly appropriate citizens who are capable, but I think that's definitely worth discussion, and it
12 gets a little bit into a separate issue, which we'll talk about later. But we think that sort of one judge, one 13 lawyer, one citizen construct probably works better if we take heed of suggestions from groups like 14 IAALS to have greater separation between the investigative and prosecutorial functions from the 15 adjudicatory functions. I think this composition of special masters that we're talking about probably 16 works better in that context.
17

18 Rep. Weissman

19 Thank you. Please go ahead.
20

21 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

22 Thank you. Chair Weissman, another area, I think, where there is some agreement would be to changing 23 the appointment term of Commission members. The Commission had recommended a larger range of 24 perhaps six to eight. The Department is fine to extend the period of appointment of Commission
25 members. They suggested a four-year term with the possibility of reappointment. So, a total term would 26 be eight years. So, I think there is consensus on that issue.
27

28 Steven Vasconcellos

29 Mr. Chair, certainly a lot of good discussion around extending the terms. We talked about a number of 30 things, longer, single terms. I know we are not exactly in lockstep with the Commission on this. I think 31 the current terms of office are four years, with the opportunity to extend for another four. We talked 32 about possibly two, fives, a single eight something longer for a single term, we tend to favor a six-year
33 term, which is in parallel with appointments to judicial performance commissions. But again, I think 34 there is at least conceptual agreement about term length.
35

36 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

37 Thank you. Another area that there appears to be agreement would be to codify the subpoena power of 38 the discipline commission to evaluate potential misconduct. Where I think some of that disagreement as 39 to where limitations might be placed, the Department had requested that there only be the ability to 40 subpoena after a full investigation, which kind of negates the need for the subpoena power. The

1 Commission had also asked that the subpoena power include basically any examination undertaken
2 pursuant to the Rules of Judicial Discipline 13(f), because that's the mechanism by which we can
3 address even anonymous complaints for evaluation.
4

5 Steven Vasconcellos

6 And just to clarify, yes, agreement about codifying subpoena power. I think we just want to ensure that 7 the subpoena is tethered to a specific complaint, not necessarily just an open ended we're just checking
8 to see if there happens to be anything wrong. I don't think that's their intent, but I'd like it tethered to a 9 specific complaint. And for guidance, the Department prefers the structure that's currently in statute for 10 the Colorado Civil Rights Commission in Title, 24 for reference, 24-34-206, we think that's probably the 11 most workable structure, in our mind.
12

13 David Prince

14 And to chime in just on the subpoena issue, this is one where there may be some hopefully small 15 wording issues when we actually get down to language, but I think we're in general agreement. And the 16 basic concept is the rules currently recognize subpoena power. The Department has some concern to 17 make sure it's tied to, I have to use the language of the Rules, a request for evaluation, because the 18 complaint has a technical meaning we don't need to get into and the Commission is okay with that. And,
19 so, it's really just codifying what's already in the Rule, because there's been some confusion over it. So, I
20 think we're in agreement with that. The one addition from just changing the Rule right now would be to 21 say that it's somehow tied to a request for evaluation, which the Commission is fine with.
22

23 Rep. Weissman

24 Thank you. Please go ahead.
25

26 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

27 Another area of agreement between the Department and the Commission is a victim's rights
28 consideration. Hearing the Women's Bar's considerations, and we did discuss that with them. I think we 29 are all in agreement that there needs to be a victim's rights component. But again, as the Women's Bar
30 said, in terms of identifying what victim means, and at some point, even if it's an anonymous complaint,
31 there may be information that we need to disclose to the respondent judge, a process by which we can do
32 that. I believe the Department and the Commission were in agreement that there might be some rules 33 along the way that as we go through this could help us, but ultimately to make sure that victims are 34 informed. Which we would just have a way to not discourage people from reporting. So, something that 35 was clear about their confidentiality, but also clear that there may be a point where we would have to 36 make disclosures. They would be notified, and we would give plenty of opportunity for that.
37

38 Rep. Weissman

39 Thank you. On that point, it's struck me reading through the comments from CCASA, from the Women's 40 Bar. This may amount to asking the Commission to take on certain work and functions that aren't there.

1 To the extent that that drives a need for more FTE or software resources, please let all of us here in the 2 appropriating branch know that as early as possible. And I think we want to make good on the need for 3 those resources so it can get done.

4
5 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

6 Thank you. Chair Weissman, just in response to that, I do think in most of the victim centered programs
7 that are codified, such as with the District Attorney's Office, they have Victim Rights Advocates. There's 8 plenty of task forces by the state that have victim advocates that are able to assist with resources. It is 9 something that we were hoping we could work with, and have worked with either chief judges or the 10 Department to be able to provide some information to victims, where they can get some resources to 11 assist them, whether it's trauma therapy or otherwise. We don't have a budget to pay for that. But if we 12 come to that, and as we progress from this interim committee to either the House or the Senate to a bill
13 or constitutional change, we will definitely keep in mind that we may need additional employment.

14
15 Rep. Weissman

16 Thank you.

17
18 Steven Vasconcellos

19 If I may, Mr. Chair, just briefly. I think we heard some powerful testimony already today to inform why
20 it's so important that victims are notified at critical stages in the process, that they understand how this 21 process works, that the process does not re-victimize. Incredibly important, I think, strong areas of 22 agreement between us and the Commission.

23
24 David Prince

25 I'm pausing to see if this is the right time to raise the issue or to wait a little bit, but I think this is as good 26 a time as any as I listen to Mr. Vasconcellos. I think he's referring to the victim letter that we heard, and 27 that was incredibly powerful testimony, incredibly shocking. I think to everybody who heard it, and it
28 illustrates some of the issues with the structure going into this year. I haven't really thought out how to 29 phrase this, I have to admit. Parts of it were particularly disturbing. One part was, what we've just talked 30 about is the keeping the complaining person or potentially victim or someone else who's worried about 31 retaliation, they may only be a witness in a proceeding, keeping them advised of the process is critical.
32 And one of the challenges we have under the current system is our Rules don't actually authorize that.
33 We have provided some update, but it's been inadequate, and we learned from a particular case a couple 34 of years ago about this problem, and started changing the way we did things to the extent we thought we 35 could in the Rules. I'm glad to see that we have agreement on what we've been short handing as a 36 Victims Rights Act aspect of the proposal to you, because, particularly the three members here that were 37 sponsors of 201, through the process, know that the first couple of drafts had a Victims Rights Act
38 portion of it that was specifically authorizing exactly this kind of update information to the victim. And 39 for whatever reason that wasn't worked out in the original version of 201 probably because it needed
40 further development in a process exactly like this. So, it is a critical part. Another aspect that 201

1 addressed that was certainly unintended at the time, is that you will recall that the Commission
2 traditionally has been dependent on others to provide staffing when you get to the point of investigation
3 and pursuit of an actual complaint. And that process addresses another aspect of reading that victim
4 statement, which is the victim statement that well, when I was interviewed, the first thing they told me
5 was that there's criminal liability if I tell anybody about this. That was shocking to hear. But it's not the 6 first time I've heard it. The first time I heard it was about two, three weeks ago, actually, and I don't
7 know if it's a practice in more than one case. I don't know if it's just one case. Part of what Senate Bill
8 201, did was it allowed the Commission to move to bring in its own personnel to handle investigations,
9 and one of the great advantages of doing that is that we now have, we haven't hired that position yet, but 10 as we hire that position, we'll have more control over what the person does, how they're trained, how 11 they learn from prior experiences. But in the transition of moving away from our old provider, we 12 learned in one case that that was the standard practice in at least in that case, I don't know if it extends 13 beyond that one case, because I obviously don't know if the Anonymous was the same case or a different 14 case, but that was the standard practice of the outside personnel that did those investigations on sexual 15 assault claims. Was to start the interview by telling folks, if you tell anybody about this, you risk
16 criminal liability. We were shocked at the Commission when we found out about that, we did not know
17 that had been happening in our name. We don't know if it happened beyond one case, but we 18 immediately decided to make sure that does not happen again, because it is shocking, it clearly has a
19 chilling effect on anybody's willingness to cooperate and provide information. So, I just wanted to share 20 that with you, with respect to the victim's letter that we all heard earlier this afternoon.

21
22 Rep. Weissman

23 Okay, thank you. As you've noticed, we've been departing from prior practice and are kind of taking 24 questions as we go here, just because we know you're going to be touching on so many different subjects
25 in the next half hour or so, rather than asking you to rewind to wherever we were. With that, Madam
26 Vice Chair.

27
28 Rep. Carver

29 Thank you, Mr. Chair. And just a question for clarification, do you believe what you have just discussed 30 in having personnel and processes to provide the information to the victim, keep them updated on status.
31 Is that something that you think requires further statutory language, or that you could do by Rule?
32 What's your thought on that?

33
34 David Prince

35 I think it would require a combination. So, in theory, where we started with the statute in the Senate Bill
36 was a little more modest than what's being talked about today. And today's discussion of what I
37 shorthand as a VRA is a shining example of the value of this process, because it was a fairly naive level
38 that was proposed earlier this year during the general session. And that did little more than authorize the 39 Commission to actually provide updates, because there was ambiguity in the Rules. Could have been 40 done by Rule, wasn't. So, as long as there's a statute, let's go ahead and have the statute make it clear.

1 There's actually a question. There's a legitimate question, given the strict confidentiality under the
2 Constitution, whether the current rule provisions that allow the Commission to make certain disclosures
3 are valid, and you can even make an argument about the statutory provisions that now allow information
4 sharing. I see some nodding heads. So, I think part of it could be done by rule, but part of it needs to be
5 done by statute, because in part, what we're talking about is actually hiring personnel. Because we're 6 talking about something more ambitious. And it illustrates another point that I know the three of us have 7 talked about and agree on, and that is the different components as we walk through these points are all
8 inextricably intertwined. And this is one example. Depends on what you do with the ombudsperson
9 position. I have the impression from the flow of discussion today, and I know that all three of us support
10 it, even though we didn't specifically discuss it. An ombudsperson position or entity is a fabulous idea.
11 Will be a great improvement. But there are different models under which it could happen, and actually 12 they could provide I know that the more recent discussion sort of rejected that and said it should be 13 person within, probably the Commission, which is fine too, but that also could be housed in the 14 ombudsperson entity. And, so, it kind of depends, but I think a statute is going to be required to set that 15 up and at least a rule, but preferably statute or addressing transparency in the Constitution is going to be 16 required to give some clear authority for the Commission to be able to provide update information on 17 how the case is proceeding. If you change transparency, it sounds like transparency is likely to change to 18 say, okay, we're going to we're going to make it transparent with certain exceptions at the point of filing
19 of formal proceedings. Well, we want to make sure that we're able to update that victim or complaining 20 witness or at-risk witness before we get to that point, and tell them what's going on in the case and how 21 far we're proceeding and a likely timeline. Some of that, we can probably push the rule a little bit now
22 and disclose But technically, the Constitution reads like we can't tell them anything. Our rules read that 23 we tell them when we decide to file formal proceedings. I made a mistake there. We tell them when we 24 decide to treat it like a complaint, which is a step above a request for evaluation that's still in that 25 confidentiality zone, but our rules allow us to tell them that, but that's about all that expressly authorizes.
26 So yes, it would be helpful to have a statutory base of authority. It would be better, if the Constitution,
27 when you define transparency, acknowledges that there will be some rules that are carve outs on both 28 sides, one being at the formal proceeding size, we can have rules that protect confidentiality of the 29 complaining witness, so it's not absolute transparency at that point, and that it's not absolute secrecy
30 before the point of formal proceedings, so that we can keep the victim or complaining witness, or 31 otherwise at risk witness, up to date on what's happening in the process. Does that make sense?

32

33 Rep. Carver

34 It does. Thank you very much, and a point for later. What immediately popped into my head as you were 35 talking Judge Prince is whether or not we need an AG memo on how far we can go statutorily on 36 confidentiality and still be within the Constitution, and at what point might we then have to put 37 something together for a constitutional change? So just a thought, but this has been most helpful. Thank 38 you.

39

40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 All right. Thank you, Senator Moreno.

3

4 Sen. Moreno

5 Thank you, Mr. Chair. I just want to clarify, because you've gone over areas in which you've reached
6 agreement, and maybe it's just wording or phrasing that I've misconstrued a bit. When are you proposing
7 that confidentiality cease? Is it when the complaint is filed or when formal proceedings begin because 8 are those the same or are those two different?

9

10 David Prince

11 I'm sorry, those are close. What happens in our process is person sends to us, we call it an RFE, a 12 request for evaluation, and they ask us, Hey, look at this thing that the judge did. And then we do an 13 initial review. And if you're right, they're different. If we say that it is, it's not frivolous. Let me just use
14 a simple phrase. If we say it's not frivolous, then we make a decision at the Commission that says we 15 will treat this like a complaint. And that starts a phase called the investigation phase. And we are not 16 proposing, not proposing, that transparency start then. Instead, you finish the investigation phase. We do
17 the investigation phase, and then we make a decision, is there evidence in our hands that shows by a
18 preponderance of the evidence that there is a violation here? If the Commission decides by a 19 preponderance of the evidence, it's demonstrated that there is a misconduct incident, then we file formal 20 proceedings. I think it's called a statement of charges. I think the actual document is something like that,
21 rather than a complaint. It's confusing. The terminology is quite confusing. And that's the point at which 22 we would say confidentiality ends. Filing of formal proceedings, not the complaint. People often say 23 complaint because they're thinking of civil litigation or criminal litigation.

24

25 Rep. Weissman

26 Senator Moreno.

27

28 Sen. Moreno

29 Thank you, Mr. Chair, and thank you for that response. So, would that transparency include when 30 informal remedial actions are specified or dictated?

31

32 David Prince

33 So that would be something that still needs to be worked out. The usual practice is that you only go to 34 formal proceedings if the anticipated plan is to go to public discipline. If it is going to be private 35 discipline, the Commission has the authority to turn to Judge Prince and say, Judge Prince, we've 36 decided, based on the investigation only that it's private sanction. Here's what we're proposing, here's 37 what we've decided to impose, and then the judge has the authority to say, I don't agree with that. And,
38 so, under our process, they don't go immediately as an appeal to the Supreme Court on private 39 discipline. Instead, they say, the way they want to challenge that is, they say, I want formal proceedings.
40 Now, we've not ever had that actually happen, but that's the way the Rule works. So, that's a point we

1 haven't actually talked about or thought about. So, you just put your finger on a key issue that at least I
2 didn't think about, which is, if you go to formal proceedings, and the recommendation, or the decision
3 that's being challenged was for private sanction. What do you do with transparency? I hadn't thought
4 about that. I don't think my other two colleagues had thought about that. It's something that needs to be
5 addressed. But it so rarely happens that we didn't think about it. I would suspect a year ago, most of us
6 didn't even recall that there was this option of private sanction going through formal proceedings,
7 because it's sort of hidden in the Rules.

8

9 Rep. Bacon

10 I don't want to necessarily be presumptuous of what you were asking, but I guess part of the question is 11 for clarity, if your procedure is what you defined, right, like RFE, investigation, you find preponderance,
12 and then you bring a statement of charges. Where does that live within the informal and formal 13 sanctions? Do you do that process for? Where is it that you get to the place where you know you want to 14 do formal or informal sanctions, and then, if they are informal, does that mean that they are all kept 15 confidential? I think we're just trying to find the line of where that transparency starts or stops.

16

17 Sen. Moreno

18 Thank you.

19

20 David Prince

21 And good question. And I described the process originally, if you're going all the way through the 22 process, and I tried to backtrack a little bit with Senator Moreno. But where that usually lives is,
23 literally, you have the request for evaluation, you have the initial look, decision to be treated like a
24 complaint, and then there's investigation. And as a practical matter, what happens is the factual
25 investigation is undertaken. Sometimes it's using an investigator, sometimes it's only a member of the 26 Commission who is looking into court records, say, for example, just listing the recording. And then the 27 Commission considers it, and at that point they decide, do we think this is appropriate for private 28 sanction in formal proceedings, or do we think it's appropriate for formal proceedings? That's the 29 decision point. And so, if you are looking at public, you go down the formal path, and the transparency
30 everybody's talked about today would be the way it worked. However, if the Commission says no, this is 31 really appropriate for private sanction, the private sanction means, by definition, that it's not going to 32 become public. And the other phrase we use for that sometimes is informal proceedings. So, we would 33 continue, usually, at that point is going to be negotiation. We would continue in negotiations with the 34 person, and that would all remain confidential under the current system. And I don't think any of us are 35 suggesting a change to that, because it defeats the purpose of private sanction. And I think Ms Krupa 36 actually wanted to weigh in on this point as well.

37

38 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

39 Go ahead and ask your question.

40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Rep. Bacon.

3

4 Rep. Bacon

5 I think also it's important to know the difference between. Well, I guess what we're all talking about by 6 transparency versus confidentiality. So, I guess the other piece is then what is shared in the private 7 spaces, not I guess it could be anything from the sanctions to literally, was there an investigation or the 8 some of the things that we've heard today. What are we keeping track of that we're sharing. But I would 9 love to hear your thoughts on the confidentiality around the informal spaces, and then, what are any sort
10 of tangible connections to transparency about what was going on with informal sanctions? Does that 11 make sense?

12

13 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

14 Yes, the informal or private discipline is usually a letter. It can be a letter of admonition or private 15 censure, different language for the same kind of thing. And that determination is usually based upon 16 either the harm mitigation that the judge has done to correct the issue, no prior discipline. There's many 17 factors that go into that decision, but it is similar, I would say, or akin to, perhaps, like a performance
18 plan. There are times that we will defer and let a judge work on something, and then we hold off on 19 making a decision to see if and when the judge complies with some of those options. Those I think we 20 would, the Department and the Commission, would agree should stay confidential. Because the judge is 21 taking steps to remediate something that did not cause harm either to a party, to the public, to the to the 22 bench itself. Where public discipline is usually entertained, or where taking it to a formal proceeding is 23 entertained is typically where the harm is larger, or the respondent judge just refuses to accept
24 responsibility, or an offer of resolution to the proceeding. The confidentiality portion of that isn't 25 necessarily to try to protect the judge from anything other than it's more of a kind of single instance. It's 26 not something that rises to the level where there's a concern that the public needs to be aware of. So, I'm 27 not sure that's answering your question, but in terms of the transparency of it, when formal proceedings
28 are brought, that's more akin to as we've talked about, either criminal or civil cases, the respondent judge
29 would be known and brief description of the conduct. But then after that, even if the hearing panel said,
30 you know, this could have been private, but you pushed it, or we ended up here, it's, you know, the least 31 they could do as a public censure.

32

33 David Prince

34 And there is a bit of transparency. You asked about, is there transparency as to well, telling someone 35 there was an investigation? There's limited bit of transparency there. But obviously, if we're keeping the 36 judge's identity a secret and the outcome a secret, there's not a whole lot of transparency. And that's in 37 the form of our annual report. And in our annual report, we routinely say an anonymous judge was 38 accused of doing X, and this is the result.

39

40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Rep. Bacon, let's do one last follow up here. I think there's six or eight more items that we need our 3 witnesses to hit on. Okay, all right, thanks for that extended discussion. However, you'd like to keep 4 proceeding from a continuum of agreement or not.
5

6 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

7 So, I think the last area of agreement would be that the Department and the Commission agreed to 8 keeping some kind of or tracking metrics. What those are, I think, is where we're having discussions,
9 and that may need to continue. But in terms of tracking the data, in terms of, again, do we need more
10 personnel to be able to do that, or software systems to do such would depend. We do in our annual 11 report say the number of requests that we got, which ones we actually investigated, the types of cases
12 that we investigate. I think where this idea of metrics or tracking came up was actually Representative 13 Bacon, several hearings back, where she asked that question, do you keep track? And apart from our 14 annual report, that was it, I think what we have discussed with the Department, and where the 15 Department does agree, is instances where we have repeated conduct, either out of the same district, or 16 just similar issues that keep cropping up within different districts. To be able to share that with the 17 Department and say, you know, there needs to be some education. With some of the funding and 18 employment resources that we've received from the most recent bill, the Executive Director from the 19 Commission can resume going out to different districts and presenting, we get a lot of delay cases where 20 a judge just has an issue with one particular case and gets way far behind. And those are easy ways to 21 educate and train. But what we have talked about with the Department is really ways that we can notify 22 them either of particular issues within a district, and we have had those where the judges are very 23 divided, and they start kind of complaining against each other, and it's just a little bit of a toxic
24 environment, and we need some assistance from the Department at that point. It doesn't rise to the level
25 of perhaps discipline, but it's something that the house needs to be looked at. So, we have talked about 26 that, as well as identifying areas of training or education for judges, things like that. So, I do think those 27 are important. Now, whether or not we're able to track or ask complaining witnesses, victims, witnesses, 28 or ascertain information demographics, as far as the judges is, you know, cultural, ethnic, how they 29 identify things like that. I'm not sure that that's something that we think we can actually do, or how we 30 would go about that in terms of privacy issues, but we are welcome and open to suggestions on that.
31

32 Rep. Weissman

33 Okay, please go ahead.
34

35 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

36 One area of disagreement is the Commission's recommendation that we codify a verification or similar 37 process to ensure that the Department complies with its statutory disclosure duties. Obviously, there's 38 been an obligation under a MOU since 2010 but there is a continuing duty of disclosure, and the 39 commission is asking for some verification penalties or enforcement mechanisms under that. And I'll let 40 Mr. Vasconcellos respond to how the Department disagrees.

1 Steven Vasconcellos

2 Thank you, Mr. Chair, and certainly not a disagreement with the concept of verification. Initial
3 proposals focused on a single verification on behalf of the Department, which you know, if I think about 4 someone in my role doing that on behalf of 4000 people. I don't know how I sign that in good faith.
5 That's too broad of a brush, and I think there's openness to discussing different ways of addressing
6 verification. It's not completely off the table, but not a big fan of too few a points for too many people
7 trying to even just do it on behalf of the State Court Administrator's Office, which is far more
8 reasonable. Which would be me on behalf of, say, 250 people, would still require a fair amount of 9 groundwork to be able to sign that verification in good faith, because of the statutory duties to report,
10 there's a lot of places, and this is a good thing, there's a lot of places and lots of pathways for concerns to 11 get to the Commission. We want that to happen, but then to certify everything has gone over. We want 12 to make sure that we're setting that up in a way that promotes success, frankly, and minimizes sort of 13 gotcha moments. I don't think that's the Commission's intent at all. Not ascribing that to them, but that's 14 the thing the Department's concerned about.

15

16 David Prince

17 If I may just following up on that. And I'm glad to hear the description, which is consistent with the 18 discussion we've had. A big advancement, one of the biggest advancements in Senate Bill 22-201, was 19 codifying this duty of disclosure by the Department. And I don't want to get into the history, but you
20 know that we've had some dissatisfaction with the way disclosures have been made, and we had a
21 contractual obligation in the past. And so what we're talking about is some sort of, it's really two 22 components, and we've talked about this, we've just focused on one of them for a moment, though.
23 There's really two components of this bullet point, and that is, first, some sort of verification system.
24 There are other examples out there. One example is simply rule 26(g) of the Rules of Civil Procedure.
25 Now that's case by case rather than company by company, but it requires an actual certification that says
26 I have made all the disclosures that are required. But that's in the context of an individual case. That's 27 one level of verification. We were really looking for some verification at a higher level. I understand,
28 and we understand the Department's concerns on sort of the original proposal, which was, let's have, we 29 were saying a judge, because they're subject to consequence. Let's have one judge just certify that. Let's 30 have them be the point person to make sure these things are going to happen. I don't know if there's 31 another mechanism out there to do it. Maybe Legislative Council has some ideas. Maybe, if there's a 32 central clearing house, I'm not sure how. One of the things the Department is required to do under the 33 statute is to develop some policies on how they're going to handle the disclosures. So, depending on how 34 they go about doing that, there may end up being a central clearinghouse in the Department that provides 35 everything, and so they could provide a certification. The other component that we haven't talked about 36 is just the enforcement mechanism. And I don't think we were very far apart on that. I think we were 37 actually in agreement, which would really be just a court proceeding. It raises some other issues in 38 connection with, you know, how you interact with some of the other pieces that were talked about this 39 morning, but I think I'll leave those and see if we get to them.

40

1 Steven Vasconcellos

2 Mr. Chair, I would agree in terms of the method for resolving disputes, the proposed three judge panel, I
3 think we're substantially on the on the same page. We have some, I think minor, disagreements about the 4 precedential value of the of the findings, but in large concept, I think we're very close.

5

6 Rep. Weissman

7 Senator Gardner.

8

9 Sen. Gardner

10 Thank you. Just so I'm clear. I mean the certification that we're talking about, that over which there's 11 disagreement, is conceptually a certification from the Judicial Department that they have reported
12 everything that they were required to report to the Commission. Is that, and I see, see an affirmative nod.
13 And the problematic part is, there's, as you say, 4000 people, and how do you know? And if, if one
14 judge or one court administrator in the 25th Judicial District, to make one up, decides to stonewall
15 something and not report it at all, you will have filed a false certification. I guess, is that the concern
16 now you've done on best of your knowledge and belief, like all of us do, every affidavit we do. What 17 would be the enforcement idea? I mean, how do we deal with that? I mean, everybody agrees that. I
18 think everybody agrees that the Department should report all of those things, make them known to the 19 Commission, the things that we've defined. What is the enforcement mechanism, or what is it that we 20 know because I've made a lot of certifications in my government life based on the best that I know. And 21 we make certifications in the discovery world based on what our clients tell us, you know. And we 22 always take a deep breath and ask them three more times and say, Are you sure? And only for them to 23 go, oops, there was one more thing. So again, pardon me for rambling a bit, but I'm trying to wrestle 24 with this problem with you about, what would we do? What would we suggest?

25

26 David Prince

27 And this is part of that. Each piece is dependent on the other piece and the interaction. So, I would tell 28 you that when we started this process with the bullet points, this was much more important in the 29 absence of something like the ombudsman process, because then you've got. What the request was for 30 was some sort of verification process, and if you have a genuinely independent neutral who is available
31 to members, particularly of the Department, because I think the concern is more internal issues, rather 32 than an external report. When you've got someone who's available to people within the Department and 33 has been publicized within the department, and they're not under the thumb of the Department, to put it
34 crassly. The need for verification starts to go away, because now you have a verification process, which 35 is, you know, no offense intended, Bob Gardner is the ombudsperson, and everybody knows Bob Garner
36 is out there, and he's not somebody asked earlier, who's the boss? The boss is not in the Department, and 37 so Bob Gardner has credibility. And so now we've got a verification process. We know that people will 38 know that they can go to him or her and make sure they have the information they need, and then that 39 person is a professional who can make sure it gets passed on to us. More broadly, if we don't have 40 something like that, then we're struggling. And Mr. Vasconcellos raises very legitimate concerns about,

1 how do you do that? I fall back to yeah, it's just like Rule 26(g) you do it on your best knowledge and
2 belief. If there's a violation, and there's been a legitimate system in place, there's no risk. But I
3 understand, and I would be nervous about it, too. The ombudsman concept is a much better approach to 4 providing that very verification.
5

6 Sen. Gardner

7 I'm more concerned, and I think you address that, Judge Prince, but I'm more concerned that that we do
8 the reporting that we need, not that we get some good faith and belief and statement at the end of the 9 year that everybody goes well, it's as good as we know. So, I appreciate the comment. I mean, I think 10 that gets to the nub of the problem.
11

12 Rep. Weissman

13 Madam Vice Chair.
14

15 Rep. Carver

16 Yeah, and just real quickly, I am a bit troubled by the verification proposal that's been put out because,
17 as the Senator said, the verifications that many of us do, or that we do in an individual case, is, in fact,
18 knowledge that we have, as an individual or as an attorney responsible for a case, and we better darn
19 well know, right? Or we've got more problems and just verification. We will be before the bar, but when 20 you are verifying subject to sanction, what over 4000 people have done or not done, particularly if there
21 is any gray area or subjectivity or judgment call on what is encompassed in this information disclosure
22 requirement and what isn't, I think that does raise some concerns, and I appreciate very much Judge
23 Prince saying that the ombudsman could help us solve this problem. I do also think, and we can discuss
24 this offline, but between the information disclosure requirements in SB 201, and the subpoena power
25 that we're talking about, properly defined, that those mechanisms working together, should provide the 26 kind of institutional assurances that there is proper information flow. And cognizant of the time and all
27 the other issues we need to discuss. So, I simply throw that out there, perhaps for some follow up
28 discussion. Thank you.
29

30 Rep. Weissman

31 All right, thank you. I think there's still a fair bit more that you want to unpack for us, so let me invite 32 you to return to that.
33

34 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

35 Thank you. The next area would be the Commission's recommendation to make the standards uniform
36 and clear requiring disqualification. And asking that we codify in statute the Judicial Code, Rule 2.11,
37 governing disqualification of decision makers at every level of judicial discipline. And the primary 38 concern, obviously, is just with respect to the current disqualification standards is the level of 39 inconsistency that's been applied so far. So, we would just like it uniformly applied.
40

1 Steven Vasconcellos

2 Thank you, Mr. Chair the Department views this and this is not fatal, but it's a bit of a belt and 3 suspenders approach. Rule 2.11, applies. The obligations under 2.11 apply already when a judicial
4 officer is serving in a decision-making role in the disciplinary process. Adding it to statute doesn't
5 enhance the power. Doesn't change it. It's arguably a belt and suspenders approach, and from that
6 perspective, it may not be the worst thing in the world. But I'm not sure that it's actually accomplishing
7 anything new. Those obligations are there today. One other consideration, and this is just something that 8 can probably be worked out. As we introduce potentially non judicial officers into decision making
9 roles, I think we need to look at 2.11 to understand whether that fits, that language fits for non-attorney, 10 non-judicial officer, again, not necessarily fatal, but something I think we need to tick and tie along the 11 way.

12

13 David Prince

14 I don't disagree with anything that Mr. Vasconcellos just said. The intent here, it's another one. What's 15 twofold, and generally, I'll tell you that I think the Women's Bar did an excellent job of addressing this 16 very issue, the two pieces of it. One, is the disqualification standards, which we've just talked about.
17 And the issue is a little less at this stage whether 2.11 applies to judges there is some ambiguity in our 18 law on that. It's more the uniformity that Ms. Krupa was talking about, which is we want essentially 19 uniform standards, because the Commission's view is that currently Rule 3.5 of the Commission that 20 was adopted for the Commission applies a very different standard for disqualification to Commission
21 members than applies to judges. I certainly agree and accept that there may need to be some tinkering to 22 address issues that may be different between a judge making a decision and a lawyer or civilian making 23 a decision in the process, but we want to achieve as much uniformity as possible when the issues are 24 essentially the same. The other component is some process for determining disqualification, and that ties
25 into what you're going to do with the overall structure and who's going to be final decision makers, and 26 when there's going to be the bigger question of disqualification. For example, if we use the ABA model,
27 we haven't got here yet, but we use the ABA model, and we say that when a current or former member
28 of the Supreme Court's conduct is at issue and the entire Supreme Court is therefore disqualified, then 29 leaving in place the final decision maker as the one who makes decisions on disqualification challenges
30 is fine. But if the disqualification decisions are made by the Supreme Court, and they continue to be 31 made by the Supreme Court when it's the Supreme Court making their own decisions about whether 32 they're disqualifying or not, that's a bit problematic. So, we're looking at uniformity, but we're also 33 looking at what is the process for deciding disqualification and that interacts with the other structural 34 changes you may or may not make.

35

36 Rep. Weissman

37 Okay? Thank you. Let's invite you to keep going.

38

39

40

1 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

2 Next would be rulemaking authority. The Commission has recommended that the interim committee
3 place rulemaking authority with the discipline commission, which is consistent with the judicial 4 performance commission and a majority of other states. I'll let Mr. Vasconcellos respond to that.

5

6 David Prince

7 Minority, a large minority.

8

9 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

10 Minority, sorry.

11

12 Steven Vasconcellos

13 Thank you, Mr. Chair the Department would, again, this is an area where I think that's ripe for some 14 change, and the Department would propose creating what I think we would recognize as a traditional 15 rulemaking body, no different than Civil Rules Committee, Criminal Rules Committee, and create a 16 rules committee specifically for judicial discipline with, of course, robust participation by the 17 Commission, public hearing, public comment in front of the Supreme Court, sort of the process that is 18 used in other rulemaking endeavors.

19

20 David Prince

21 We've largely addressed this issue before you previously, so I don't want to repeat it too much. But this 22 also, again interacts with what you do with the overall structure. If the Supreme Court continues as the 23 final decision maker, we have issues with the way rulemaking has been done in the past, and so our 24 recommendation would be consistent with those other jurisdictions that have said judicial discipline is 25 different, and so the judicial discipline commission itself should make the decisions on rules, should 26 have rulemaking authority. But if you end up changing who the final decision maker is, then you
27 essentially create a new final decision maker in the discipline process, and it would make sense that 28 whoever that is have rulemaking authority. So, we think that growing group that is still a minority, but 29 Cindy Gray mentioned is a fairly large minority, and is really more the modern trend says rulemaking
30 authority for judicial discipline ought to be in judicial discipline. Whether it's the Commission itself at 31 the commission stage, or if there's another body like there is say in Illinois.

32

33 Sen. Gardner

34 Thank you, Mr. Chair, more of a comment, but in the my discussions that I've had, both with the 35 Department and the Commission, I think it's fair to say that this is one of the issues on which there's 36 fairly strong disagreement. It may be resolved by change of process in some way, but I just say that for 37 the benefit of everybody on the committee, I think this is one of the hard ones for us to kind of figure out 38 and do, and there's two different approaches. So, thank you.

39

40

1 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

2 Thank you. Chair Weissman, that's why I started with the ones we agreed on, and we get to the harder
3 ones towards the end. The next would be the accountability and core conflicts. The Commission
4 recommendation was to maintain the existing structure in terms of a unified system with two tiers of 5 decision making. The discipline commission would remain the same with its investigatory and 6 adjudicatory role, but change the final decision maker from the Supreme Court to a multi perspective
7 board comprised of judges, lawyers, and citizens. We made a number of recommendations about how 8 that would be comprised and who would have appointment authority, and Mr. Vasconcellos can respond 9 to that.

10

11 Steven Vasconcellos

12 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Except in the instance when a Supreme Court member is the subject of the 13 inquiry, the Department does believe that the Supreme Court should be the final decision-making body.
14 And then in the case of the subject of the inquiry being a member of the Supreme Court, an alternate
15 body should be used, obviously, devil in the details, but we do believe an alternate body should be used
16 in that instance. And I think this ties in and as both Ms. Krupa and Judge Prince have mentioned so 17 many of these things are interleaved and braided together, but we see this in concert with changes to the 18 special master process that I mentioned earlier that have been discussed throughout the day. I think we're 19 very open to a discussion about the composition of the special masters. It's a very intriguing discussion
20 that happened earlier, around one judge, one lawyer, one citizen member. And I think that's a more
21 powerful, more meaningful change touches a greater volume of cases. And you know, in that regard,
22 then the Supreme Court is largely performing again. Let's also separate the investigative slash
23 prosecutorial role from the adjudicatory role. Have the have the special masters, have an adjudicatory
24 role. And the Supreme Court, in general terms, is the final review in a sort of an appellate fashion,
25 except when they are the subject of, one or more members are subject to the inquiry, and then let's focus
26 on creating a separate body in that instance.

27

28 David Prince

29 So, deep in the weeds, I agree with actually, a lot of what Mr. Vasconcellos just said. This is one of 30 those where I think we had a productive start of discussions that, given more time, might have been 31 more productive. But we live in the world we do, of time limits. As we've all said now, more than once,
32 there's a great deal of interconnectedness in all of this. So, I'm going to get into the weeds for a moment,
33 but you're used to me doing that, I think, at this point. So, there's a problem with terminology, and there
34 was a lot of discussion this morning about the two tiers and let's set aside the two tiers, because it's really 35 three tiers, no matter what you're talking about. But nobody uses that language. So, you have the 36 investigatory work, and that's the grand jury kind of stuff. Looking into it in the first place, deciding if 37 there. Let's just use the most serious stuff. Let's set aside private. Let's just go with public for a moment.
38 You have the initial investigation, the investigatory function, then you have formal proceedings, that's 39 the adjudicatory function, and then you have appellate review. That's the third phase. Nobody talks
40 about it as the third phase of the third tier, but that's really the simplest way to do it, if I were teaching a

1 class. In Colorado right now, we actually do have all three of those separated, and that's where that
2 language gets confusing. In many jurisdictions, they talk about a bifurcated or a unified system, which 3 makes it even more confusing, because that's different than the two tier and the one tier. And that just 4 means whether the Commission as a whole, as an umbrella organization, handles both the adjudicatory
5 function and the investigatory function, and that's been approved subject to many legal challenges
6 around the country, and Ms Gray talked about this. So, in Colorado, the way it's done, is that those two 7 are separate, but it's unified, to use that other buzzword, because the Commission handles, in a sense,
8 both of them. The Commission itself actually does the investigatory phase, the way it actually works,
9 and the way it works under our rules is that special masters then come in and do the adjudicatory phase.
10 They are the adjudicators. They decide the facts on the serious cases. Okay, so it is separate. The 11 Commission doesn't make the decision. That's what you hear in the debate in other states where they're 12 concerned. It's where the Commission itself is the decision maker in investigation, and the decision
13 maker is the trial judge. It is the DA and the trial judge. That's actually a theoretical possibility in 14 Colorado, because the Constitution says that the Commission can hold its own hearing instead of using 15 special masters. Our rules were never drafted to address that. We actually talked about that previously,
16 and it's never been done. So, that's one of those things that if you're going to address it in the 17 Constitution, you ought to think about what you want to leave in the Constitution. Let me finish. So,
18 you've got the adjudicatory you've got the investigatory phase which the Commission handles in 19 Colorado. You have the adjudicatory phase that's done by special masters as a matter of practice and 20 rule, but not constitutional requirement, because the Constitution allows two options. One is the special 21 masters, that's authorized in the Constitution, or the Commission itself holds its hearing. Now the if the 22 Commission itself were to hold its hearing, it would need to do like other states do. It would need to 23 divide itself into the different panels and all that stuff, and we just don't have the infrastructure to do
24 that, frankly. And then you have the appellate role of the or the review role, or final decision making,
25 however you want to phrase it, of the Supreme Court. So now we come back to the intertwinedness. So,
26 if what the committee wants to do is consistent with the joint recommendation of at special master
27 phase. Our phrase would be a little different than the Department's, but let's limit Supreme Court control
28 of the special masters, because right now, the Supreme Court selects the special masters. In one of their 29 statements they actually said it's the Chief Justice, but that's not quite the way the rule is worded. It's not 30 a big deal. The Supreme Court, as a practical matter, selects who the special masters are, and that can be 31 a problem in a conflict situation. If you change to this pool and you have multi perspectives on the 32 special masters, then suddenly having multi perspectives on the final decision makers is just not as 33 important. That's the challenge with some of these things. You make the proposal somewhat in isolation,
34 because you don't know how it's going to fall. But from the Commission standpoint, if you actually
35 change the way special masters are done, and this idea actually comes from Senator Gardner, if you
36 were to approach that change, and there's some independence, or some randomness, if you want to call it
37 that, there's a selection process for selecting those special masters, so you don't have just one group that 38 controls it. Then, suddenly the appellate level gets a lot easier, and you follow the way we would say it
39 is, you would follow the ABA model. And I think I actually heard Mr. Vasconcellos essentially adopt 40 that concept, I don't want to put words in his mouth. Essentially adopt that concept, which says, not just

1 if one justice's decisions are at issue, then only that one justice recuses. Instead, it's if any current or
2 former member of the Supreme Court's conduct is at issue, the entire Supreme Court steps aside and you
3 bring somebody in to replace them. That's the ABA model. That's the essentially, I'll leave it at that.
4 That's the ABA model and list that both CWBA and Cindy Gray provided. So, our recommendation is 5 still because we don't know what's going to happen elsewhere. Our recommendation was originally only 6 that the special masters be a kind of a specialized group instead of ad hoc each time, not that we change
7 their composition, and not so much the selection process. And, therefore, you should change the final
8 decision maker to have that multi perspective unit. If you change that middle step, I actually agree with 9 Mr. Vasconcellos and we had this discussion. So, we know we agree. That that affects more cases and is 10 more commonly occurring and probably has a bigger impact, and in the long run, is probably more
11 important. And then you preserve that final decision-making authority by the Supreme Court, and you
12 address the issue of but what do we do when the Supreme Court has a conflict. Another advantage of 13 that system is part of that system, the final piece of that system that we just described, adopt the CWBA
14 proposal and the ABA model. You can do by statute, because it's not really addressed in the 15 Constitution, and there's pretty good case law about what you as a legislature can and can't do. And so
16 you could actually do that part by statute. Could also be done by rule. That middle part, though, of 17 changing the special masters will require constitutional help, I think, ask the AG, but because the 18 Constitution says the three special masters will be three judges, and it even defines what kind of court
19 they are, I forget what it says, though. So, just be aware of that. One change in recommendation is based 20 on another being made, and the one in the middle requires amending the Constitution. Did I confuse you 21 entirely now?

22

23 Sen. Gardner

24 I don't know me how many times I've wanted to say to a judge, let me finish your honor, but thank you.
25 Thank you so much, Judge Prince, because I'm trying to digest all of that, and I always appreciate it. Let 26 me throw a curveball, just an idea that has sort of developed in our conversations has been that for the 27 adjudicative role, we might go to the model or the process that would allow or would say that the 28 Commission, and it might need to be expanded, but roughly the makeup in proportions, it is now. That 29 the Commission would have two tiers, and there would be the investigative and I guess that conflates
30 with the prosecutorial function together. And that then the adjudicative function would be done by 31 members of the Commission, and it would be an adjudicative panel, so that we don't, we don't have to 32 create some new set of appointments and pools. But the Commission, and then there are, as I've learned 33 over the past several weeks, there is a model of, there really are two panels, and the other is, well, there's 34 different panels, but they're the same people, and sometimes you're an investigator and sometimes you're 35 a fact finder. The reactions to that kind of model to do the adjudicative function, but do it within the 36 Commission, and then we'd have to figure out what to do about the Supreme Court kind of the thing. But 37 what does anybody think about that? Again, I'm throwing the curveball to everybody.

38

39 Rep. Weissman

40 Senator Gardner.

1 David Prince

2 I'll give an initial reaction, and I haven't talked about this with the other members of the Commission or 3 even our legislative subcommittee, so Ms. Krupa may be surprised.

4

5 Sen. Gardner

6 You can disclaim that these are not the views of the Commission, but only of Judge David Prince.

7

8 David Prince

9 That's correct. That's a that's a good phrasing, and I would expect nothing less, but a good curveball
10 from you, Senator Gardner, which I appreciate. It's really the same analysis, from my perspective, same 11 analysis I just laid out. I think you can. You're then addressing the concerns that we have at the 12 adjudicatory phase. And so my humble opinion is it makes it easier at the final decision maker the 13 appellate review phase, and you can stick with the ABA model instead of, again, of our recommendation
14 of an entirely new entity. And, you know, the first time I heard this, I was a little concerned about the 15 logistics, and I sort of looked at the sizes of the states and wondered if we really have the infrastructure
16 and financial support to do that, but you really wouldn't have to expand the Commission by much. It
17 would be wise. So conceptually, I'm on board. It would be wise to amend the Constitution, because the 18 Constitution defines how many members of the Commission there are. However, it already provides 19 authority actually to do this. And so in theory, you actually could do this by statute and rule. And I think 20 what you could do, this is really just thinking off the top of my head, so I'm scaring the two people next 21 to me. I think in this, I think you could find statutory authority if you didn't try to completely mix the 22 two panels, and we heard that there's value in doing that, having transitional people. But you could, by 23 statute, you could expand, you could add, you would only need to add, like, two people. I think you
24 could expand two more members that could only serve on the adjudicatory panel, for example, that 25 really is, off the top of my head. It may not, may not pass constitutional muster. But if you're trying to 26 come up with a pathway that doesn't require constitutional change on this point, you might be able to get 27 there. But there seems to be agreement by everybody that transparency ought to change, and that 28 requires a constitutional change. So, you're probably already down that path, so you might as well take 29 the safer route.

30

31 Steven Vasconcellos

32 Mr. Chair, Senator Gardner, probably a curve ball that I can't adequately hit at this point. It does leave 33 me a little cool, not because of the process itself. This is just first impression. I'm thinking back to 34 testimony earlier today about sort of public perception of process and seeding too many of the functions
35 well-intended even well-executed in one body, and they're being merit and having more separation there.

36

37 Rep. Weissman

38 Madam Vice Chair.

39

40

1 Rep. Carver

2 Thank you, Mr. Chair. And first of all, Judge Prince, I really appreciate the clarification following on the 3 discussion this morning from one tier versus two tier, and clarification of while the constitutional
4 provisions might have read thus and so that the system that is currently in play is investigatory by the 5 Commission and then special masters. Two concerns which we may be able to handle either by rule or 6 statutory. And again, I think we'll have a number of questions for the AG to answer on when we're over 7 the line and we've got to do constitutional.

8
9 First of all, let's say we stayed with Special Masters and we expanded the pool. Is there any concern that 10 in the kind of truly independent firewall that you need between the investigatory function and the 11 adjudicative function that you would also need separate support staff? And I'm just throwing stuff out.
12 Don't, don't require a comment at this point. But is there sufficient if we stayed with the current 13 construction and just expanded the pool of special masters, how we would codify that? How we could 14 ensure that, in fact, it was two independent functions that were in operation from support staff and 15 everything else?

16
17 The second piece, and I'm just throwing this stuff out for you to comment on or not. The second piece is,
18 there have been a number of bodies that have talked about, in the adjudicative function, and including if 19 you're using special masters. And for what it's worth, I agree to expand the pool, potentially, at least, I'm 20 open to it beyond judges and then who selects them. So if you go a judge, lawyer, citizens, but caution in 21 some of the literature I've read against having a single hearing officer that this adjudicative function
22 needs to be done by a panel. Whether it is a panel of judges, whether it is a panel that now reflects judge,
23 lawyer, citizen. And, then, obviously you have to determine who's going to select those folks to serve.
24 So, comments on any of that, and to the extent you think that's the right direction to go, what would 25 require a statutory change?

26
27 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

28 In terms of staffing that would kind of depend. If you increase the pool and you have the special masters
29 or a hearing panel. That's what attorney regulation does. It's a three-member panel with one presiding
30 disciplinary judge, and that's just because the judge knows the procedures and language and the other
31 two hearing members aren't necessarily sitting judges. But if you move it to a three-person hearing
32 panel, so there's not just one decision maker, and it has to be kind of a collective effort. The issue of 33 staffing might be more of a resource for that hearing panel or the special master's pool to get 34 information, copies. A staff member that does only that formal proceeding phase with the Special
35 Masters pool. Some of the discussions that we've had with the judicial department about a Special 36 Masters pool and how those members are selected is really, how do you make sure it's random? What 37 kind of software, or how do you do you have one person that kind of randomly selects out of that pool?
38 Is there a requirement that there is one judge, one lawyer and one citizen on each of those three panels?
39 Or is it just randomly drawn? Where you could get a three judge member panel? So, there's, there's some 40 considerations there that I think we had talked about in terms of if there was a special masters pool and

1 you were getting a three-member panel to sit how you would do that? That does require staffing. It
2 requires IT funds, software funds, things that weren't necessarily contemplated in the current bill. So, it
3 would affect staffing. To the extent of whether that's a part time FTE or a full time FTE, it would really 4 depend. But in terms of a Special Masters pool being increased and how that works, who appoints them?
5 I think we've all made recommendations. You've heard some recommendations about that. I think the 6 bigger concern is really that random selection process to ensure that it's not one person or one entity 7 picking who those sitting members are.

8

9 David Prince

10 And just one practical follow up before the Department speaks, Mr. Vasconcellos. Just a practical issue.
11 On the staffing, I agree with your concept, and I agree that that gives true separation. The practical issue
12 is that formal proceedings, we're in an unusual time frame at the moment, but historically, formal
13 proceedings don't even happen once a year. So, to have completely separate staff is probably not 14 practical, because they'd be like firefighters. You know, it's critical to have them on and available. This 15 is not quite that position, but they really aren't doing anything for a long period of time in this instance.
16 So even if you did it as a part time person, it would be more well, they're not going to do anything for 17 six months, and now I need them 12 hours a day for such and such a time, and the obvious solution is,
18 well, then you borrow personnel. But we've already been down that road, and that hasn't worked so well.
19 And I think Mr. Vasconcellos would agree that we probably don't want to do that. So, there's just a 20 practical issue there.

21

22 Steven Vasconcellos

23 Mr. Chair, Representative Carver, Ms. Krupa brings up a good concern around randomness. I think it'd 24 be a highly problematic situation if we had, for example, three categories of membership on the special
25 masters, say, judge, attorney, citizen, and then we were drawing a random three from a unified pool.
26 Where we could end up with three judges, we could end up with three citizens. I think the randomness is 27 you designate one seat for each on the special master pool, and the randomness is within the judge
28 selection and within the citizen selection and within the lawyer selection, and not across. We could end 29 up with some fascinating special master pools.

30

31 David Prince

32 Agreed, and just another practical point on the interconnectedness. Remember the starting point of 33 expanding the pool, not perspective, but just the numbers, was at a time when it was just judges, and we 34 wanted to build some institutional knowledge, and so then you talked about randomly selecting, or some 35 process for selecting from among a pool. But if the model is shifted to say we're actually going to have 36 these three perspectives on it. Well, then it starts. My insight, we haven't discussed this, but my insight
37 is, you would worry less about a pool and more about what we're going to get people to serve for so
38 many years. We're going to give them some training. They will be the panel, and there'll be a backup,
39 you know, an alternate, for each position, and then they have the authority to choose someone if they run
40 through their alternate. Very unlikely to happen, but could happen. Something like that. You don't need

1 to focus quite as much on the selection from a pool at that point, because the big pool idea is not quite as
2 important. And then you asked, I'm reminded, that you asked about, could you do this by constitution or 3 by statute, this idea of the true separateness. I haven't looked at that issue, but my memory of what's 4 stated in the Constitution, I would think the odds are you're probably going to need to change the 5 Constitution to have complete separation between adjudicative and investigatory functions, because the 6 Constitution is written with a unified system where the Commission sort of theoretically does both, even 7 though we have the option for special masters. So, I haven't really thought that one through.
8

9 Rep. Weissman

10 Rep. Carver.

11
12 Rep. Carver

13 Thank you. And I guess in this I'm not acting for a comment, because we need to move on. But just food
14 for thought. You know, some states that have formally gone down a true two tier, two independent
15 groups, organizationally, the public perception may be stronger on the independence of investigatory 16 versus adjudicative in that scenario, as opposed to keeping it all under the commission umbrella, and 17 then just by flow chart and personnel assignment, they're independent. So just something to think about.
18 Thank you.

19
20 Rep. Weissman

21 On this subject, I have one quick question, then I'll invite you to move on. A few moments ago, Mr.
22 Prince, I think you posited, and I see this point if we, if we add diversity of perspective to the special
23 master panel, and the fact that we are still appealing from that panel to the Supreme Court, perhaps 24 matters a bit less. Which gets me wondering, what is the standard of review on that appeal, including,
25 what is it now? In looking at the end of the rules, I would sort of expect to find some recitation of that in 26 rule 40 or thereabouts, not actually finding it. The force that the point you made has is a little bit 27 different if it's de novo versus if it's something like abuse of discretion.
28

29 David Prince

30 Excellent question. And thank you for raising it, because I had it in the back of my mind, but I know I
31 would have forgotten to raise it. Here's an interesting point that we haven't talked about, where there is 32 some ambiguity because little known fact, there's some old case law, and I can get you the case citation.
33 I don't know it off the top of my head, Mr. Gregory probably does. There's actually some case law in 34 Colorado from quite a while ago that does set the standard of review, and it's a basic appellate review, 35 not de novo review. The Rule and the Constitution, the way they're written, have always suggested to 36 me that it's de novo review, and I've always approached this de novo review I didn't find out about this 37 case law until the last year when we started looking at these issues, but there is some case law that 38 suggests it actually states, I shouldn't say suggests. It states that it's appellate review and not de novo.
39 And I haven't had a chance to talk with the Department, I assume the Department would say off the cuff

1 that they would see it as de novo review. So, you should assume that. But there's actually case law on it.
2 There's so little case law in Colorado on this issue. It's shocking that there happens to be one on this.

3
4 Rep. Weissman

5 Would appreciate the cite. Mr. Vasconcellos, if you wanted to say anything.

6
7 Steven Vasconcellos

8 Mr. Chair, this may be wholly unsatisfying. I think the best answer is make no assumptions about what 9 we assume at this point. I probably need to go back and talk with folks a little more about where we are 10 on this.

11
12 Rep. Weissman

13 I will resist the logic puzzle embedded in that statement.

14
15 Steven Vasconcellos

16 Thank you.

17
18 David Prince

19 We would propose appellate review to the extent there's any question in terms of going forward, and 20 that's why I phrased it as appellate review. But yes, there's a difference between truly being just the final 21 decision maker and somebody sends me recommendations versus I'm only doing appellate review.

22
23 Rep. Weissman

24 Let me invite you to move on down the list.

25
26 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

27 And there's only one last one on the list, and it's just the funding recommendation that the Commission
28 is seeking, a source of funding that's insulated from politics and performance of the economy and more
29 consistent with that of the judicial performance commission. We don't need a lot of discussion with that.
30 I think the Department believes the current funding is ideal and doesn't need any changing.

31
32 Steven Vasconcellos

33 Mr. Chair. Well said, Ms. Krupa. I think Senate Bill 201, addressed the long-standing problem of an 34 independent funding source, and that was the key challenge to be addressed. This is just one policy
35 geek's opinion, I think that general funding into a cash fund is the gold standard. That's a nice place to be 36 in funding. So, I'm not abundantly clear on what problem there is left to solve. It was important that the 37 fund source be outside of the control, either pragmatically or by appearance of the Supreme Court. That 38 has been done. I think it's a very solid fund source. I think, having been in state government for almost 39 27 years and seen numerous up and down cycles, no part of state government can wholly be insulated
40 from the vagaries of the budget, nor is the Commission on Judicial Discipline large enough to make any

1 serious inroads on balancing the budget in difficult times, and given the dramatic importance of their
2 work, I don't know that folks will be coming to their doorstep very quickly during budget cuts. So, I
3 personally feel like and the Department in general, feels like the current funding that was created by 201
4 was the right move, and don't see a need for further change.
5

6 Rep. Weissman

7 Okay, thank you. All right, members, unless there are truly burning questions, I feel like we should 8 move on and try to recover some time on the agenda. All right, thank you all for being with us and for 9 the robust discussion.
10

11 David Prince

12 Can I add one narrow point, and that's I tried to make a list of some of the other recommendations that 13 have been made today, and we can submit in writing if we want to. Many of them we endorse, and they 14 just weren't things that we put on our list. Some things are things that are already being done. One or 15 two of them actually were addressed by 201. But one that I did want to just mention very briefly is the 16 idea of anonymous complaints. And I just wanted to clarify for you, our current rules actually do not 17 expressly permit anonymous complaints. Ms. Gray actually explained this process. That's consistent 18 with many states. And, so, there's a work around. We do accept anonymous complaints, and we use the 19 authority of the Commission to self-start a complaint as a way of getting around a rule that requires
20 people to sign. So that is something that really should, it can be addressed by rule, but it really should be 21 addressed by statute to make it clear. And it is not publicized, people don't know it. If they just read the 22 rule, they would think there's no way I can make an anonymous report. So that's a very legitimate 23 criticism. It does need to be fixed one way or another.
24

25 David Prince

26 Okay, thank you, and thank you again.

Appendix 27(s)(iii)(9)

Presentation by former State Court Administrator Christopher Ryan;

Legislative Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline—
August 10, 2022 Hearing: Testimony of Christopher Ryan

1 Rep. Weissman

2 All right, next. And, sir, thanks for being patient with us. We have scheduled Mr. Ryan, the former State
3 Court Administrator, to present some perspectives to us. He did transmit in writing, some comments
4 which were circulated via Ms. Jenson.

5

6 Rep. Weissman

7 All right, Mr. Ryan, thanks for being with us. Appreciate your patience as we've veered a bit off our 8 time. Please go ahead.

9

10 Christopher Ryan

11 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Mr. Chair, Madam Vice Chair. Sorry, Senator Gonzales, it's been three years
12 since I've testified before a committee, and I'm a little not familiar with the light of procedures any 13 longer. Mr. Chair, Madam Vice Chair, members of the committee. As I begin, I'd like to offer the 14 following quote from John Wooden that's been particularly meaningful for me as of late. "Be more 15 concerned with your character than your reputation. Character is what you really are. Reputation is what 16 people say you are. Reputation is often based on character, but not always." I want to thank you for the 17 opportunity, inviting me here to share my perspectives and recommendations concerning the judicial 18 discipline process in Colorado. While I would like to respond to the personal denigration inflicted by the 19 Judicial Branch in detail, especially since watching this afternoon and where time can get away, I realize 20 this committee has a monumental task at hand. And this, coupled with the tight time frame for 21 developing policy recommendations for legislative action, does not lend itself easily to the vetting of the 22 totality of circumstances. So, my commentary will be brief. Hopefully, in the roles that you all perform, 23 you'll have an opportunity at some point to personally review all of the underlying information, not just 24 the portions that the Judicial Branch deems fit to publish, and you'll be in a position to make 25 determinations for yourselves.

26

27 Over the course of my almost 30-year career, I worked exclusively for judges in one manner or another,
28 and always, always performed my duties, understanding the roles and responsibilities with which I was 29 tasked. Given that most of the written work that I produced over the course of my career was issued
30 under someone else's name, I clearly knew who was in charge. My duties from the time I was a bailiff,
31 when I was 21 years old all the way forward, were always performed with the advice and consent of the 32 judicial officers for whom I worked. In broad response to the structural changes, the Judicial Branch has 33 taken the position that no investigation thus far has revealed that the basic structure of Colorado's
34 current system of judicial discipline is deficient. This justification for making a significant and novel
35 change to the current system is conspicuously lacking. In light of that statement, I'd ask you to take a 36 look at the role the Branch played in the investigations that have reported findings thus far. Remember,

1 judicial controlled the timing, execution, and terms of the contracts with RCT and ILG, including the
2 conditions concerning the retention of materials after their publication. Further, the Judicial Branch and
3 its attorneys were granted multiple opportunities to review the State Auditor's Report, their Executive
4 Summary, and redact information they identified as privileged, attorney work product, or subject to 5 other legal protections. In this respect, although they were not the primary actor, judicial was in full 6 control of the investigations.

7
8 My personal experience with what's happened since departing the Branch aligns entirely with the 9 following statement made by the Commission on Judicial discipline to this committee in its recent letter
10 of August 7, there have been ongoing efforts by the Leadership of the Judiciary, specifically the 11 Colorado Supreme Court, to endorse a specific narrative relating to the Masias Contract related issues.
12 The Department's Leadership has promoted a vision of disputed facts, endorsed the credibility of some 13 witnesses, denigrated the credibility of other witnesses, while also subverting a system of judicial 14 discipline charged by the Colorado Constitution with the task of impartially and independently
15 investigating these same facts and witnesses. The overt actions of the Leadership of the Department to 16 promote publicly a specific narrative and avoid an impartial judicial discipline investigation themselves
17 illustrates the depth of the flaws and the functionality and credibility of Colorado's current system of 18 juridical discipline. That needs to be remedied.

19
20 I didn't actually have access to that until today, and I thought it was important to include that in my 21 statement, so let me be clear in my actions, my devotion over the course of my entire career has always 22 been to the institution, not to any individual concerns, including my own. I was a true believer and 23 always a supporter of trusting in the process. In retrospect, it seems I was blind to motivations of 24 individuals and what I believed was an appropriate personal sacrifice to make on behalf of the Branch
25 was ill advised. Yet, despite what's transpired with me, I think it's important to say that I hold nearly all 26 the judicial officers and staff in Colorado's courts in the highest regard, any spillover from the actions of 27 the Chief Justice, the Supreme Court and key senior staff members onto those individuals makes me
28 extremely sad. Their already challenging jobs have been made more difficult by the taint of the Branch's 29 responses thus far.

30
31 I do not believe, and this is important to me to say, that there is, now, or ever has been, wide-ranging 32 systematic corruption or bias at work in the state's trial courts. With that in mind, I'd like to address the 33 areas, in my opinion, where the interim committee should focus its efforts. I also had some other ideas
34 while I was sitting and listening to some of the questions you had of the individual members of some 35 topics. It's been my experience that in addressing policy matters that impact the particular areas of 36 interest to the Judicial Branch, and I had a front seat at the table for a long time, there's a broad,
37 sweeping application of the concept of separation of powers and the use of the umbrella of judicial 38 independence as cover to keep, "outsiders out of judicial business." While I am not advocating for 39 violating constitutional principles, given the actions of the Court to control access to information, to 40 define the narrative, and to obfuscate in order to protect the actions of those who wear the robes, the

1 time has come to look with particular scrutiny on the motivations behind those self-protectionist actions
2 and the resulting difficulties they inflict. It's been my experience, the judges and courts themselves are 3 insular beings. And as a former insider, I never really appreciated the degree to which that shaped their 4 actions. Now, having spent a significant time outside of the circle, I have a new sense of what it's like to 5 draw their ire. And the degree to which they're focused on self-protection has become an area of extreme
6 awareness for me, personally. When it comes to judicial discipline, the Supreme Court and the Judicial
7 Branch have controlled all processes from start to finish, beginning in the 1960s with the large scale
8 change that reshaped Colorado's Judiciary until the changes in the last legislative session that gave rise 9 to this committee.

10
11 The first priority, in my opinion, this committee should consider is, once again, taking up the topic of the 12 Judicial Department's lack of inclusion under CORA. Access to information is essential to garnering any 13 ability to evaluate the actions and behaviors in question, and, as a result, should not be at the discretion
14 of the Branch. Mr. Chair, Representative Weissman, I know this was a particular interest of yours some 15 years ago when legislation was passed which provided limited inclusion of judicial records regarding 16 sexual harassment under CORA, which was set to sunset in 2021. I haven't followed what's happened
17 since, but I remember a lengthy exchange between you and I about those processes when that was being 18 developed. From my first-hand seat, I can tell you, it's essential that the opportunity for meaningful 19 review of the issues that involve administrative actions and access to information that can shed light on 20 them should not vary based on the institutional actor in question. If the records that would provide some 21 ability for an outside entity to evaluate what's occurred happened in the Legislative Branch, in the 22 Executive Branch, or the Judicial Branch, the ability of that investigative entity to access that 23 information should not be compromised and should be uniform.

24
25 In making further amendments and adjustments to the discipline process, the committee should next 26 focus on minimizing the appearance of impropriety. Based on the lengthy discussion I just heard,
27 hopefully, that's something that can happen. It needs to be, in my opinion, either through 28 institutionalization of a more formalized recusal process or the formation of a separate tribunal, entity,
29 or panel who would oversee the process and act as the ultimate decision-making authority. Especially,
30 when matters involving the state's highest court are in question. Of the people in the room, of the three 31 parties who are here, I'm probably the only person who's participated in actually helping select a panel,
32 even though they didn't sit in judicial discipline actions in Colorado. I don't know what's happened since 33 I left. I've tried not to follow the actions of the Judicial Branch, and I've tried to kind of keep to myself.
34 But I do know a lot about that process, at least what's happened and how it has worked.

35
36 Finally, the committee should consider making the processes more transparent. And this is important to 37 me. While I can appreciate first-hand the concerns about having to deal with unfounded accusations and 38 untruths about one's behavior being banded about publicly, the process should nevertheless be structured 39 in such a manner that provides an opportunity for public access about the proceedings, while balancing

1 the interest of fairness and due process. I think that can be achieved. There are a number of models that 2 you can look at to do that.

3

4 In Colorado's system, the way it works today, and Judge Prince talked about it, the private
5 admonishments or the private disciplines that occur. Most meritorious complaints and the sanctions
6 ultimately imposed remain cloistered. This does nothing but generate additional questions about the 7 ability of the disciplinary process to receive any real accountability for misdeeds. Representative Bacon,
8 you asked some particular questions. ILG is one of the few things I've actually listened to and how you
9 can make sure that things are actually followed through. The suggestion I would have is, whatever 10 changes you make, make them specific, use precise language, especially when you're coming to the 11 actions of the Judicial Branch. That you are looking to make sure it adheres to those sections that are 12 drafted. I worked for years and understand the length to which the parsing of precise language occurs
13 and what can turn on a phrase, the location of a comma, an improperly precisely placed and/or in one 14 location, can lead to a dramatically different interpretation than what may or may not have been 15 intended by the committee. Judicial independence, which I think is an important foundation of our 16 country, is one thing. But complete autonomy, is another. Judicial independence does not extend to self-
17 determination, its review of its own internal actions by the Judiciary.

18

19 In closing my opening statement, I want you to all take a moment ask yourself, what I have to gain from 20 any of this? I'm an unemployed 53-year-old with zero prospects for the future given the results of a
21 Google search of my name. I no longer have the ability to serve the public and work in the field of 22 public policy, which gave my career meaning. I can tell you, just as a policy wonk, just sitting back and 23 listening to the questions, things are going off in my head that I would love to be able to respond to, but 24 I no longer have a seat at the table. It's important for you, for me, to make sure that you understand I'm 25 doing this, because I believe that this committee's opportunity to address the deficiencies of the 26 disciplinary process can improve the environment of Judicial and correct the extreme imbalance of 27 power between the staff and those who wear the black robes. This needs to have the best chance of 28 success and that's why this was important for me to come and address you today. I remain hopeful that 29 some chance for meaningful review of these type of actions and corresponding improvement in the 30 conditions of those who've been affected by them or who choose to report them, are able to result from 31 me coming forward more than a year and a half ago. Thank you.

32

33 Rep. Weissman

34 All right, Mr. Ryan, thank you for testifying with us. Senator Gardner, 35

36 Sen. Gardner

37 Thank you. Thank you for appearing today. Mr. Ryan, I know it was probably a difficult decision, and I
38 have the deepest respect for you in appearing and making judicious but candid remarks. The first thing I
39 want to ask is you mentioned that you had heard several things today that you wanted to respond to and I
40 think you probably inserted some in your pre-prepared remarks. But are there other things that, without

1 taking all afternoon or what's left of it, are there other things you'd like to get on the record and on the 2 table?

3

4 Christopher Ryan

5 Mr. Chair. Thank you, Senator Gardner, there are few. I was sitting back and listening as Ms. Krupa,
6 Mr. Vasconcellos, and Judge Prince were talking about what they could do in coming up with the right
7 kind of panel of arbiters to do this, and questions about random selection and how do those pieces work.
8 There are examples in Colorado law that would probably lend themselves to working very well. I mean,
9 looking at eminent domain and how that's handled in this State, you have a committee of three 10 freeholders that are appointed, and then you've got a trial judge sitting with them. They're the fact 11 finders, but the trial judge is the one there, calling balls and strikes, dealing with any objections that get 12 raised, questions about admissibility of evidence, how that evidence is presented. There are simple
13 solutions that exist elsewhere, but they have not been applied in this area. The other one, one of the 14 questions was, how do we deal with this mixed issue of special masters? Do we do this with true
15 randomness? I was the clerk for the state grand jury for three years. The state grand jury is selected from 16 six separate counties. The 12 jurors that come up, there's a selection criterion that two have to come
17 from each county. You can define that criteria easily about how this has to be done. The more it's 18 bantered about of, oh, we don't know how we're concerned about this. The world of imaginary terribles
19 and slippery slopes that I've dealt with over the course of my career can be handled through concrete
20 solutions, and there are myriad examples to look at that would allow that to happen. The other piece, in 21 talking about appellate review, it really should be error correction. Especially if you're not going to 22 change the ultimate fact finder to be the Supreme Court. If you're going to allow de novo review and 23 allow them to interpret the facts their own way and come up with a separate conclusion, that throws the 24 whole system of the special masters making those determinations out the window. So, I'm glad Judge
25 Prince did the research to find that, and I think that is really important that that's codified somewhere.

26

27 Rep. Weissman

28 Senator Gardner.

29

30 Sen. Gardner

31 Thank you, and something else that I think is within your realm of experience, and I only briefly alluded 32 to it in another committee meeting. Under our Constitution, the Chief Justice is the executive for the 33 judicial branch and that model. When you were the State Court Administrator, and your predecessor,
34 and your successor, are all ultimately responsible to the Chief Justice. That's one model of how to run a 35 judicial branch in its administration. Another, and there may be multiple ones, but another one generally,
36 is something that the Administrative Office of the United States Courts does, and some other states,
37 which is to have a governing panel of sorts made up of a very broad based group of the Chief Justice and 38 other judges and so forth, and the State Court Administrator, that office, and all of the non-judicial 39 employees are responsible. The State Court Administrator is responsible to this board or panel, the 40 Administrative Conference. Without getting too far into it, it has struck me over the course of

1 discussions over the past year and a half or two years, that perhaps that that model, the other model that
2 the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts, and I think state of Texas uses may have avoided some of 3 the things that we've seen here. Give me your thoughts on the State Court Administrat[or's] Office, 4 responsibility and so forth.

5
6 Rep. Weissman

7 Mr. Ryan.

8
9 Christopher Ryan

10 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Senator Gardner, I do think that's a very valid concept, and I think it has a lot of 11 merit in terms of how you would approach that. You still in those systems have a Chief Justice that 12 serves as the ex officio Chair of whatever those entities are, but those do ensure that you garner a wider 13 perspective in terms of what's important. It helps to ameliorate some of the issues and some of the 14 challenges that I dealt with in changing of Chief Justices, where you get changing agendas, or the 15 abilities just between different Chiefs to actually execute the job as Chief of the Branch. I think that's an 16 excellent suggestion, and one definitely worth continuing to explore. You can come up with a variety of 17 things.

18
19 You know, the State Court Administrator could have a set term that they're appointed for. You know,
20 that's what happens with the public defender. There's a set term for the state public defender, and they're 21 reappointed by the Commission. I was shocked to learn from reading some of the ILG reports that Chief
22 Justice Rice strong-armed the rest of the court into giving me the job. If I had known that was the case, I 23 wouldn't have wanted it. I didn't want the job to begin with.

24
25 But I think that kind of concept, you can extend broadly to ensure that you've got consistent
26 management of the Judicial Branch. You've got a number of eyes looking at any decision that happens.
27 There have been examples in the past with previous Chief Justices in Colorado, where they have used
28 the 22 Chief Judges around the state, plus the judge of the Denver Probate Court and Denver Juvenile 29 Court to sit with them and give advice on certain things. It's been formal, it's been informal, depending 30 on who the particular Chief was. But I think you can institutionalize such a process and have outside
31 appointed entities as well, who are there being able to view what's happening with judicial business. If 32 there are things that need to be discussed in Executive Session, it's no different than a board of county
33 commissioners or city council members when those items have to be discussed. Those can be done in 34 private and report out what occurs in public. I think that would be a very workable system and should 35 not provide any difficulty. In fact, I think it would enhance the operation of the state's trial courts, given 36 especially the structure of what happened in the 1960s in Colorado and some of the benefits of the 37 system we have. Unified funding. You don't have individual courts fighting each other for the right
38 amount of money from the Legislature, that entity would help to make sure that those things continue 39 operating as smoothly as possible. And I think that's actually an excellent suggestion.

40

1 Sen. Gardner

2 Thank you very much.

3

4 Rep. Weissman

5 Members. Other questions for Mr. Ryan? All right, seeing none. Again, thank you for testifying with us 6 today.

7

8 Christopher Ryan

9 Thank you.

Appendix 27(s)(iii)(10)

Public Testimony;

Legislative Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline— August 10, 2022 Hearing: Public Comment

1 Rep. Weissman

2 All right, committee, I think out of respect for members of the public who've been waiting quite a while
3 already, I'm going to mix up the last few items on our agenda. We have a long-time block really, just for 4 sort of administrative next steps, and I don't think that we'll need all of that time block. But so that we
5 can approach our next meeting on the 17th with some clarity on how much detail we need to bring in 6 order to actually vote and get things drafting, Mr. Imel will be available to speak to us about that. But 7 first we'll go to public testimony, I believe, from Ms. Jenson we do have some folks signed up. We're
8 printing the list now. Just quick show of hands if you're here, if you're wanting to testify, could you
9 please just raise a hand? Okay, ma'am, please come on up. And then, do we have anybody on the Zoom
10 for public testimony? Okay, maybe we could just connect them in a panel. We will go to our physically
11 present witness first. All right, ma'am. Thanks for waiting with us throughout the afternoon. Go ahead, 12 let us know your name and affiliation, if any for the record, and please go ahead. Little gray button on 13 the bottom of the table.

14

15 Ruth Burns

16 This one.

17

18 Rep. Weissman

19 There we go.

20

21 Ruth Burns

22 Thank you very much, Mr. Chairman and Madam Vice Chair and members of the committee for letting 23 me speak again. My name is Ruth Burns. I am a licensed attorney. My number is 38055, but I am not an 24 attorney, like most attorneys who have been coming and speaking with you today. I am actually a poor
25 person with a license to practice law. I rarely take cases anymore, but I have been kind of drawn into a
26 case that was going through the First Judicial District, the Jefferson County District Court, where I saw
27 some things that I thought were very questionable. And that led me to speaking with Representative
28 Kennedy, and he and I spoke fairly extensively on this. I sent him some documents on my thoughts,
29 which I have also provided to you last night about nine o'clock, so I don't imagine you've had a chance
30 to look at them yet. But I sent you an affidavit that I had attached to a motion which sort of breaks down
31 my perspective on what I was seeing from a factual basis in the Jefferson County District Court, and just 32 kind of who I am and why I was doing it in the first place. And then the attachment, the motion for 33 recusal, that I had provided to you the last time I spoke. I had intended that mostly just to be an example.
34 Between that and the affidavit, the Affidavit talks about the facts and the motion talks about what I
35 believe were the violations that I was seeing by those judges in that court. So, I just wanted to clarify
36 that for you, and coming to speak again. Mostly, I wanted to talk with you about what I think maybe

1 could be some solutions, looking at this mostly from the perspective, yes, of a lawyer, but mostly just of
2 a member of the public who kind of got drawn into this sideways, as it were. And I think that there are 3 probably some good things that have been suggested today by a lot of these esteemed people who have 4 testified today. A lot of what I was hearing kind of goes right along with what I've got on my little list.
5 More transparency is really important. I'm looking at this from the perspective of how ordinary people
6 are going to look at actions by the court. Because I know you're going to have a hard time convincing
7 me that what I saw was not shenanigans, no matter how many kinds of excuses you come up with. And 8 I'm a lawyer. So, it seems to me we need definitely more transparency. I love the idea of having the 9 courts actually be subject to CORA, or, you know, at least the administration of the courts to be subject
10 to CORA. I think that's incredibly important, to actually be able to see the evidence of whatever issue
11 you think you need to look at. And I don't think it's appropriate that any part of any governmental branch
12 should be able to be above that. They should definitely be subject to it. I think it would be really helpful
13 for a lot of people if we had some kind of a program that would talk about just the concept of judicial 14 discipline and attorney discipline at the high school level, maybe. If we could, you know, start working
15 with some people who actually teach in the schools, because I know that I didn't even know that there
16 was such a thing as attorney regulation or judicial discipline until I got into law school. So I went all the 17 way through high school, all the way through college. Still had no idea it was out there. I think if people 18 actually knew that there was such a possibility, that right there, would make people feel a little more
19 comfortable with the notion that there is a court who has this sort of power over all aspects of their lives.
20 That at least they have some avenue that they could pursue. The other document that I gave you talked
21 about the absolute immunity doctrine, which I had mentioned the last time, and why I think it's a really
22 terrible doctrine that should go. I hope you have a chance to look at that. Obviously, that's about beyond
23 the purview of this committee, but it's a conversation I think maybe we should be having, because I don't 24 think it's right for any portion of our government to think that they're above our Constitution. But having 25 said that, if we can't, you know, just do away with the absolute immunity doctrine, it seems to me that 26 we're not actually going to get compliance with whatever rules or statutes that you make in the courts.
27 Because they are so able to just conduct their business and not have people generally looking at them. I
28 think that on a day to day basis, there really must be some sort of teeth in whatever rules or statute you
29 put out so that if there's a violation of those rules, that there is some consequence, some actual 30 consequence. Maybe a system of fines. I don't know. I'm just throwing out some ideas. Because you 31 can't sue a judge, but at least the judge should not feel like they can just do any sort of action that 32 disregards the rules, disregards the law, and just walk away. Even if they get publicly admonished,
33 publicly to whom? Right now, public admonishments are published in The Colorado Lawyer. Nobody 34 reads that, but lawyers so the public is not getting that. I like the idea that there should be more public
35 disclosure about if there are disciplinary actions against a judge, I think that would really make a 36 difference when people are looking at whether they want to retain a judge or not. Because most folks,
37 they look at you know what's in the Bluebook, but that's all they know. And, so, if there's nothing else,
38 they don't know whether that's a good judge or a bad judge. So, I just think that's a really important 39 aspect to consider.

40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Ms. Burns. I haven't been strictly enforcing time today, but if you could maybe take one more minute 3 and just conclude.

4

5 Ruth Burns

6 Absolutely and, yeah, I'll totally get out of your hair after that. There was, let's see education,
7 transparency, accountability. You know, that was really mostly what I wanted to say. I think that a lot of 8 other people have covered it pretty thoroughly. I just, I did want to throw out there the transparency 9 being extremely important, and there being some actual method by which a judge could actually have 10 some consequence for real violation of the rules. So anyway, thank you very much for listening. I really 11 appreciate it.

12

13 Rep. Weissman

14 Thank you. Please hold the table. In case there are questions. We'll go first to our online witnesses. Ms,
15 Fleming, looks like you've got your camera on and you're ready, so we'll go to you first. Let us know
16 your name and affiliation, if any. And please go ahead. Please aim for about three minutes.

17

18 Luanne Flemming

19 Yes, hello. My name is Luanne Fleming. I am an advocate with families against court embezzlement
20 and ethical standards, FACES. Thank you for the opportunity to speak in front of you today. We spent 21 many hours speaking in front of the Supreme Court, the judicial performance commission, public
22 meetings, spent the last seven years in front of legislators. And many of you who are present here today
23 will remember me. There is a very serious problem with integrity and accountability in Colorado courts
24 and across the nation. As a national blog talk radio show host on the hidden truth reveal channel, we 25 have covered stories weekly for five and a half years. Our organization has received over 300
26 complaints from families in probate courts in Colorado who have come forward, and 1000s nationally.
27 We and many other families have been forced into an unethical probate court system here in Colorado.
28 We put in complaints against attorneys where no actions were taken against them. This is a true 29 violation for the probate victims in Colorado. We picketed a judge Arapahoe County because we have 30 nowhere to complain to. The Code of Judicial Conduct is supposed to protect the public from 31 inappropriate acts of judges and judges are supposed to enforce the rules of professional conduct over 32 attorneys. When all this fails, our democracy is in jeopardy. This is what's happening. For many years in 33 Colorado, the focus has been spent on protecting judges and attorneys when everybody should be 34 protecting the elderly, the disabled, our families from the abusive court appointed guardians who isolate,
35 medicate, and steal their estates for their own gain. The problem in Colorado is that judges really don't 36 have such constraints, because the judicial discipline system allows them to violate all the above without 37 fear of any discipline. We desperately need to protect integrity in our judicial system. There has been 38 recent reports by the Denver Gazette. Reform advocates testify that Colorado's current method of 39 investigating by discipline judges should be scrapped for a more independent and transparent process,
40 the walls between the commission and the public should come down. Chris Forsyth, executive director

1 of the judicial integrity project told lawmakers and now another report by David Migoya, The Denver
2 Gazette. Judicial Discipline Commission says State Supreme Court, lied, misinformed the public during 3 probe. Now Senator Pete Lee, head of the Judicial District Discipline Interim Committee, allegedly 4 indicted. And the hundreds of complaints in our organization, not one family has reported a proper or 5 reasonable remedy through the judicial discipline process. So we do favor a system such that proposed
6 by Chris Forsyth with the judicial integrity project, is a step in the right direction. And I just want to say
7 to you, when is this embarrassment going to end for Colorado? We do these weekly radio shows, and the 8 stories keep coming into us and there's nowhere else to go to. So whatever you can do to remedy
9 situation would be greatly appreciated. Thank you.

10
11 Rep. Weissman

12 All right. Ms. Fleming, thank you. Please hold in case there are questions I see. Ms. McLean, you have 13 your camera on. Please go ahead.

14
15 Marilee McLean

16 Mr. Chair and interim committee. My name is Marilee McLean, and I'm the author of Prosecuted but
17 Not Silent: Courtroom Reform for Sexually Abused Children. I'm also the Executive Director for Moms
18 Fight Back, which is a nonprofit here that works on legislation here in Colorado. Last year, we passed a
19 law, HB 21-1228 which was in honor of my daughter Julie. And I find it amazing. I love the things you
20 guys said today. I would say it was really good work, and it was perfect testimony coming forward and 21 with ADA, everybody. But really what is missing in this picture is the fact that all the people that are 22 working within the system, except for the few that just testified now. What about the litigants? What 23 about the attorneys? When the litigant has an attorney that won't fight that judge because he's got to go
24 up against that Judge again? What about cases? And I have, literally, I work nationally, so I have 1000s
25 of cases. So it isn't just here in Colorado. This is about systemic failure, and I'm seeing it every single 26 day. What you're talking about isn't what we're talking about in public. Or what I'm getting, all the cases
27 that I'm getting. And what I see are lack of training for judges. There's no training in domestic violence, 28 child abuse, child sexual abuse, trauma. They sit on the bench two years and rotate and come off, and 29 then, once again, these children are being subjected to be living with their abusers, and it's in epidemic
30 numbers. I'm not making this up. I have the documentation to prove it. So, if you think our judges are 31 doing a good job, they're not. Because they aren't trained in these areas. And if they're not trained these 32 areas, you're not going to get due process. You're not going to not going to get your first amendment
33 rights protected. They're sealing the courtrooms. There's no accountability and transparency out there, so 34 they can do whatever they want. They have discrimination. So, in family court, if they don't want to 35 allow the evidence in they can throw it out. And I have so many children, so we're talking children. You
36 guys are talking billions of dollars getting spent and illegal things going on with judges. This is billions
37 of dollars being spent because families are not being protected in our family court, children are not being 38 protected. They're being abused and sent to their abuser because our judges are not trained. So, I'm 39 really just out here to tell you, I love what you're doing. But I've been on that commission trying to get 40 them to get it written in the Blue Book. The public needs to know what these judges are doing. We need

1 to see what these judges are doing. And that information is not getting out there. And when a woman has
2 lost her children and the judge, this is what this judge said to her. Wait till your children turn 18. They're
3 being abused. And she's in court because they're being abused. Wait till your children turn 18, and they
4 will look at you and they will say, bye, bye, I'm done with you. Is that proper? Is that a code of ethics?
5 I've seen way more, way more. Kicking people out of the courtroom, not allowing people to testify, not
6 allowing people, not allowing a woman that's trying to testify or talk about her children or what's going
7 on, the judge doesn't even let her talk. She ends up out in the hallway broken down, sobbing like a child,
8 and she's an educated woman. She's lost her three daughters. On what grounds? Because she tried to 9 protect them. This is what I see every day. And until we educate these judges and train them, we're 10 going to see more of this. And that's billions of dollars that are being spent yearly on these children,
11 when they have to go through the ACE study, adverse childhood experiences, and then they have all
12 these mental health issues and heart issues and all kinds of other issues. So, it's time we really look at it.
13 I love what you're doing. It's great. I hope it works. But please, the real reason we're here is for the 14 litigants, the people that are trying to protect their children. What's happening in the courts and where 15 judges are doing illegal things, and believe me, it's happening every day. I've witnessed it for 30 years.
16 Thank you. If you have any questions, I'm here to answer.

17

18 Rep. Weissman

19 All right. Thank you. We have a few more witnesses to hear from. Please hold we'll see if there are 20 questions. Mr. Austin, I don't know if you can hear us, I see you've been on a little while now. All right.
21 Well, there he is. Okay. Mr. Austin. I think you're off mute. Can you hear us?

22

23 Robin Austin

24 I can hear you. I can't get my camera working, but thank you.

25

26 Rep. Weissman

27 Okay, you're coming in pretty faintly. Please lean into the microphone as long as we can hear you.
28 Please go ahead. We don't need to worry about the camera.

29

30 Robin Austin

31 All right. Can you hear me now?

32

33 Rep. Weissman

34 It's a bit better. Please continue.

35

36 Robin Austin

37 My name is Robin Austin, and I am with FACES, families against court embezzlement and ethical 38 standards. Our organization came to exist precisely because many of our courts, in fact, operate 39 organized crime organizations, embezzling from victims through application of unethical standards.
40 Judicial discipline is the heart of justice, is it not? Attorneys favored by the court are given carte blanche

1 protections against prosecution for acts that are crimes in any other context. Our families, loved ones,
2 and we ourselves have been victimized by these crimes. We've often seen judges collude to block
3 evidence, violate God given and constitutionally protected rights, and tacitly endorse criminal elements
4 to enrich a circle of co-conspirators. We are not talking about a few disgruntled litigants, angry because 5 a judge ruled unfavorably to their position. We are talking about systematic denial of justice. We have 6 interviewed hundreds of Coloradans and 1000s nationwide during five years on blog talk
7 radio.com/hidden truth revealed. We are, in fact, a go to resource who many legislators refer victims of 8 court abuses to, because there is no meaningful recourse in place in the present lack of oversight system.
9 Our probate courts, family courts, divorce courts and criminal courts, all have been affected and because 10 the judiciary hides behind confidentiality of the discipline process. It is likely none of you are aware 11 how serious and prevalent these problems are. Now, this is compounded by legislator Pete Lee, who 12 scoffed at us when we raised concerns in the past, being charged with leading this committee only to be 13 compromised by charges of unethical behavior. We've heard many hours addressing workplace ethics
14 and almost none addressing how unethical judges affect victims in court. I hope efforts to address one do
15 not overshadow the other in deliberations. Judges fail miserably at policing their own. They seem 16 powerless to enforce rules of ethics for themselves or attorneys. But that is merely theater to convince 17 litigants they are not collusive. Our concern is that in listening to all these attorneys with their talk about 18 integrity, you may forget they are human and humans are not trustworthy. Do them the kindness of 19 creating meaningful oversight. There are many models and obstacles. One of the best models, in my 20 opinion, is Chris Forsyth. He's been studying the problem as we have fought beside him to create more
21 just courts. He's been telling us all for years what needs doing. I think it's time we listen to him and other 22 advocates. In any case, thank you for working to correct these serious, long-standing problems.

23

24 Rep. Weissman

25 All right, Mr. Austin, thank you. And again, please hold the line. We have a few more witnesses to hear
26 from. All right. Rabbi Bellinger, I hope I'm . . . Bellinsky, I'm sorry. All right, your name is showing up 27 very small on the screen. Rabbi Bellinsky, please go ahead, Sir, you're on mute.

28

29 Jacob Bellinsky

30 Hello. Can you hear me?

31

32 Rep. Weissman

33 We can hear you now. Please continue.

34

35 Jacob Bellinsky

36 Thank you. So yes, my name is Rabbi Jacob Bellinsky. I just want to start off real quick by just thanking
37 Representative Amabile's office and her legislative aide, Robin Noble, because she's the only one who 38 has reached out to me to try and help with my specific case. And I'm not here necessarily to talk about 39 my specific case, although I think it could be used as an example and a springboard for hopefully some 40 change and some real direct examples with evidence of how bad the system really is and how bad the

1 judicial discipline commission system is. Because with what I've gone through, with what my children
2 and I have gone through over the past three years. It is just really appalling, and it's just really
3 unconscionable. And I have so much evidence that the one thing I wanted to really discuss here today
4 was the difference between the fact that they claim this is a civil matter versus a criminal matter. Okay, I
5 was here at the last committee hearing back on, I think it was, when was it? One second. It was on July.
6 What was last hearing, July 19 or no, I'm sorry, July 12. So, on July 12, I appeared before this
7 committee, and I presented a 123, page document, 50 pages of attached state and federal criminal 8 complaints, largely detailing the crimes and misconduct of those judges and court officers involved in 9 my case and like with my kids. So here I am, over a month later, no questions were asked of me
10 following the testimony. No one from your committee reached out to me in the weeks following, and so
11 I'm here today to basically return and further access the public record with additional testimony, and I
12 would like to submit additional written testimony and make a written submission. But basically, you
13 know, last time I was reduced to three minutes. How can I sit here and tell you all the information and 14 evidence we need to tell you in three minutes time? So, I don't know how much time I'm given today, 15 but I would like to actually invoke, you know, three minutes for each of my eight children who are 16 crime victims here. So when can I have a presentation? When can I actually speak and speak to your 17 committee for more than three minutes, or get more and more time to actually present my evidence,
18 present all of the evidence. So, this 123, page letter went out back in April. So, and from the Governor's 19 office to the AGs office. The DA has got involved, the local sheriff, the Commission on Judicial 20 Discipline, Chief Justice Boatright was involved. And nobody, not a single agency, except for 21 Representative Amabile, got back to me in the following months, in the following weeks. Every single 22 agency wanted to claim that this is just a civil matter. You're just an upset person from you know, upset
23 with the judicial rulings. No, this, this is so, so esteemed. What this Court has done, what the system has 24 done to loving fit parents and with children, okay. That nobody wants to look at the evidence. I mean . . .
25

26 Rep. Weissman

27 Rabbi, excuse me. Couple things for your and others information. Previously, in response to some 28 comments that this committee has heard in prior hearings. Vice Chair Rep. Carver and Senator Lee did
29 send a letter to the Judicial Branch summarizing the significant concerns that have been registered to this 30 committee about issues arising out of family court and probate court and urging heightened attention to 31 those matters. What this committee cannot do is act to adjudicate any individual matter, whether yours
32 or anybody else's. We are here to grapple with structural issues. That's been the nature of the testimony
33 previous to today. You are welcome to continue to send us things in writing. We would urge that that 34 written testimony be focused on the committee's charge in Senate Bill 22-201.
35

36 Jacob Bellinsky

37 I understand that, but you have to understand, recognize that I am just one case of many. Okay, I
38 actually just put out a post recently in my local county asking for people's stories that I could bring to 39 the judicial commission to discuss at this particular hearing, I was reached. 10 different people contacted 40 me immediately to tell me about these, all these different egregious stories about how they were

1 victimized by the local court system or the district court system. Okay. So this is, this is, I'm not asking
2 for your specific help in my case, okay. I think that this is a matter that is so, so important to the public,
3 the public good and the public interest, that we need to totally reform the system, okay.

4

5 Rep. Weissman

6 Rabbi, we've given you about five minutes here. The Vice Chair, would like to, would like to add
7 something, and we have at least one other witness signed up, from whom we need to hear as well.
8 Madam Vice Chair, please go ahead.

9

10 Jacob Bellinsky

11 I listened for eight hours to your hearing today, eight hours. Now, they don't tell you when you're going 12 to testify, when the public comment is going to be. So please give me a few more minutes to finish my 13 commentary. Because you know what, I listened here for eight hours to your committee, today,

14

15 Rep. Weissman

16 Sir, sir, you've had five or six or seven minutes already. That's twice what we usually do. Please be 17 respectful. Please be respectful, Madam Vice Chair, please go ahead.

18

19 Rep. Carver

20 Rabbi, if I could just make this comment to those that have presented during public comment, and I
21 know several of you testified at the last hearing. After the testimony at the last hearing, Chair Lee and I
22 did the email to the Judicial Branch, and it was a broad range of concerns. That although many of the 23 comments were concerns about probate, family court, concerns that court appointed guardians or 24 officers were abusing their authority, were not acting properly. You know, I think some of the issues that 25 were brought up could very well require changes in the statutory law for family law / probate. Some of 26 the concerns that were brought up about court appointed conservators and allegations of embezzlement,
27 misconduct, failure to notify family members, that is a different issue. And then to add to the complexity
28 in this whole range of issues that you folks have brought forward. All valid issues, all valid issues. The 29 path of recourse to have your concerns addressed may be different, and sometimes it may be back to the 30 Judicial Branch. It may also involve an aspect where a Canon of Judicial Conduct has been allegedly 31 violated that would also generate a complaint to the Commission. So one of the things that we've been 32 discussing. And I don't know if you heard it as part of our discussion today, is the possibility of creating 33 an ombudsman just for litigants, so that when these concerns arise and you believe that there has been 34 misconduct by the judge or by a court appointed conservator, misconduct. That the ombudsman who has 35 knowledge of, okay, this is an appellate issue, and that's how you have to resolve it. This is alleged 36 misconduct by a court, court appointed conservator, and it may involve a couple of avenues to challenge
37 that conduct, and here's how you need to proceed. And to provide some clarity to litigants on what their 38 recourse is. Now, sometimes what the ombudsman may tell you is that what was done was part of 39 current statute, and the statute needs to be changed. So, I just wanted to make that generic statement
40 after talking with Chair Weissman to know that the comments you made last time and the comments that

1 you're making this time. We are looking at a systemic change to help address the concerns that have
2 been raised. Although some of those concerns, quite frankly, may involve a change in the Family Code,
3 right? So then that would go back to the legislature. So, I just wanted to provide that information to all
4 of you and know that that is an aspect we're looking at that would be part of a structural change. Thank 5 you.

6
7 Rep. Weissman

8 Sir, no, I'm sorry. We need to move on to other witnesses who signed up and to other matters on the 9 agenda. Again, we have over 100 pages from you. You have testified at a couple hearings now. You
10 have the right to continue to send us things in writing, and we will have two additional hearings of this 11 committee. And you have every right to sign up if you have comments pertinent to what we're doing.
12 But we need to move on for now. On the sign-up sheet from the side table here, there was a Deborah 13 Carroll. Okay, ma'am, please come on up. Thanks for waiting.

14
15 Jacob Bellinsky

16 A fraud, a big fraud,
17

18 Rep. Weissman

19 Please let us know your name and affiliation, and we'll make sure that you can speak uninterrupted.
20

21 Deborah Carroll

22 Okay, my name is Deborah Carroll, I want to thank you for listening to us today. My affiliations are 23 about 11 years of working as an advocate by going into courtrooms and watching what's going on in the 24 family, juvenile, and probate courts. I have no legal training, and I have a heart of gold for the children
25 of this country. What I want to make sure you get from what has happened, including the scandal with 26 the Supreme Court, and the pain of the people that are out crying to any avenue that they think will 27 listen. So, what I'm going to ask you today is to stop protecting judges who are violating laws with 28 impunity. Who are breaking families apart for decades, if not for the rest of the parents' lives. This is the 29 reality that many people have to face every morning they wake up. I spoke in June and talked about a 30 hotline. I don't know if the ombudsman office can simply provide an avenue for the HR issues and an 31 avenue for families in crisis. I think, I don't know, I can't remember if, when a case is opened, whether 32 or not there is a handout at that time about where to go if you need help with what the judge is doing. Or 33 the magistrate, who falls under a completely apparently lawless code. That's an issue. That the 34 magistrates in the family courts do not even fall under this code of ethics. As far as I can tell, they 35 answer to their judges. So I just want to remind you that Rebecca Love Korlis mentioned a hotline
36 today, and I am the one who brought this up to you two months ago. The people don't know where to go
37 for help. They cry. Rabbi is crying. Ms. Fleming's families are crying. They need your help. They need
38 help from every quarter that you can imagine, and you're sitting here representing a ray of hope. There
39 needs to be sunshine into these courtrooms. I have witnessed in Donna Schmalberger's courtroom, a 12
40 year old mother in a foster group home and a 13 year old father's parents try to get the infant that was

1 conceived in the foster group home under lack of supervision. And I have witnessed 25 court officials on 2 one side of the courtroom, and 20 including the parents and grandparents, guardians ad litem, and
3 caseworkers, and caseworker managers and the other. We're talking millions of dollars for court cases to 4 remove people's children from their homes. And there's federal funding for this, and nobody's looking at 5 the larger picture, but the money is flowing into our state, but not for the families. That's all I have to 6 say.

7
8 Rep. Weissman

9 Thank you. I'll just say one thing briefly, which is that both Judiciary Committees have heard and 10 understandably so over the years about the increasing number of people in civil matters, generally,
11 family law matters in particular, who are having to go pro se due to there not being enough attorneys in 12 Colorado practicing that kind of law, or simply the cost of representation. There is an ongoing kind of 13 licensing matter, court rules matter. Now, I don't believe it's resolved. That the court is undertaking to 14 allow paraprofessionals who are not lawyers to, in fact, work with families in family law matters in a 15 limited way. Which is one avenue to try to address this. There are more paraprofessionals on top of 16 lawyers, the hourly rate would probably be lower. You know, I don't think any of us up here who are 17 lawyers would want to go pro se, you know, ourselves. So, we appreciate that. And just to let you know 18 that there is one effort going on to try to help people not have to go through these matters entirely with 19 representation and that that is, that's not final. It's kind of without the scope of this committee. But I 20 thought I would mention it because it is an attempt to respond to some of what you're raising here.

21
22 Deborah Carroll

23 Well, in 2012 I was representing the Divorce Corp, and they put a film together, and we were, we were 24 talking about it, and one of the appellate judges came to the showing of the divorce court movie and 25 talked about, how DU is putting together this experimental pilot program with 24 families. And they're 26 cutting down on the red tape and getting, they're supporting them, but what's happened with that? That 27 was nine years ago, 10 years ago. What's happened? How long does it take for these children to be 28 saved? These children are broken in these families. They lose a parent who's fighting and then his bad
29 mouthed through the courts and separated. How long do we have to wait before we're going to actually
30 see immediate change? I used to post on Facebook judge so and so could do the right thing on Monday
31 morning? Well, Facebook shut me down, of course. Do the right thing. Stop charging $10,000 out the 32 gate for a PRE who knows that the family were co-parenting successfully for seven years, until the 33 mother brought in a boyfriend who's not getting enough child support. Come on.

34
35 Rep. Weissman

36 Ms. Carroll matters like PREs and CFIs and their role in family court proceedings are statutory matters.
37 I have actually talked with other folks about that. That is not what this committee is allowed.

38
39 Deborah Carroll

40 I understand that.

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18 19 20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28
29
30
31
32
33
34
35
36
37
38
39
40

Rep. Weissman

But I hear what you're saying.

Deborah Carroll

I'm glad that you hear what I'm saying. I hope that you all hear that.

Rep. Weissman

We are going to ask you to hold there. We'll see if there are questions for you or any of our other witnesses from the committee. Rep. Bacon, I see a thought forming over there.

Rep. Bacon

And I'm wondering. I don't necessarily want to open a door wide open. But I think what the public testimony has really highlighted for us is kind of the question of, where can people go if they're struggling with trusting an institution. For us, there is this separation of powers. It is very real. I wish I could tell courts what to do and how to do it better. And I think the scope of what we're talking about here, as a matter of discipline. Part of what we've been talking about here, as well is what kind of pieces of information can be made transparent, and thinking about what we can control by way of external accountability measures, if that makes sense. Or what is it that we can make public? And so I do want to just ask a very limited scope question on an example and kind of hear your feedback. You know, part of what we've been talking about today is keeping track of claims, right. To be able to look at longitudinal data or trends to shift in that culture. And I'm wondering if, because that seems like something we can at least advise on, we're trying to figure out what we can actually do as a matter of law in the Constitution. But if we got to a place where we were keeping data regularly, a number of complaints and X, Y. I want to presume it would then be able to help not only us, but just the public and the Judiciary put spotlights in particular places. Because as a side note, I will find time to speak with many of you about probate, about all these other courts outside of the space, I will provide that space. It is my duty, as you say. But for purposes of this committee, I think what I'd like to understand, if you have any thoughts, and maybe from the women here at the table, because I'm looking at both of you. And as an attorney, what do you think about this notion of this transparency and tracking the types of cases and what not to be able to support with us? If that makes sense. And we don't need everybody's answer, I wrote down your name. I'm so sorry.

Ruth Burns

Ruth Burns.

Rep. Bacon

Thank you.

1 Ruth Burns

2 Thank you, Representative Bacon. I would say that you do have to consider where it is, where it is
3 appropriate to draw a line. I think that the statistical information should obviously be made public, and I
4 think that it should be tracked. How much of that tracking needs to specifically be made public is
5 something that you'll have to decide. And I was hearing earlier testimony from some of the folks who 6 were here that they think that if you have a specific judicial discipline matter, that it needs to stay not
7 public until there's an actual claim, an actual complaint filed. I think there's something to that, because I
8 think you do have to consider employee confidentiality. HR issues, those obviously exist. But I do think 9 that it would be really helpful for the public as far as trusting the judiciary more. I think it would be 10 helpful for us to know that there are these, these actions going on. I mean, some sort of a reporting of the 11 fact that we've had so many complaints, and we're doing so many hearings about them. Just this kind of 12 overarching statistical data, at least, would be helpful to know that there's something going on. And I do
13 think that the point about being subject to CORA that Mr. Ryan brought up was very well put. I think
14 that that's extremely important, because that's a big part of how the Judiciary is doing its business behind
15 closed doors, as it is, because they're not subject to CORA. So, we just don't get the opportunity to see
16 that stuff. So, I think that would be really an important thing. I think it's a tough question. It is. And I do
17 think that there may be, should be, at the least. I would like to say that if there is, well, definitely, if 18 there's a complaint filed, that there should be some sort of public reporting of this judge had a complaint
19 filed. And the reason I think that, and I think it should be public, and not just in the Colorado Lawyer, is 20 because that helps to inform the public, and that gives us a better opportunity to decide, do we want to 21 keep this judge on the bench, or don't we? Because I think that's a big problem that the people in general
22 have. Is that the judges are subject to retention elections, but they don't know whether they want that 23 judge to stay or not. And that kind of leads to a very uninformed public not being able to make good
24 decisions about who they want. So I think that's really important. I love the idea of an ombudsman. I
25 thought that was a fantastic idea that Justice Korlis brought up. I think that in my own personal case,
26 which I'm not asking you to do anything about. Again, just for illustration, this is what I saw. But I think 27 that if there had been an ombudsman available to me, and I had been able to find that person, I could 28 have gone and talked to that person about what I was seeing without feeling the need to start, you know,
29 filing motions for recusal, maybe, or filing the complaint that I'm going to have to, seven complaints that 30 I'm going to have to file with the regulators over three judges and four lawyers that I was seeing in just 31 this one case. So, I think that that would be a very well received sort of move on your part to put 32 something like that in place for litigants, specifically. Obviously you have one for the HR issue, but I
33 think that all of us would be greatly relieved to know that there was at least somebody who was going to 34 listen. Because I think that's a big part of where the Judiciary has some problems. Because when you go
35 in there, you think you're looking for justice, and what you find is lawyer gameplay. You have privileges
36 and immunities and causes of action, and, oh, this isn't really you can't, you know. And it's law, and the 37 judges have to listen to that, but it results in people not having really an avenue to be heard. And that's 38 something that really hurts people, to not even have someone listen. So, I think the ombudsman is a 39 really well thought out idea. I like the idea of a hotline where people could call just for getting resources.
40 You know, this is what I'm seeing. Where can I go? What can I do? So, I love that idea. I think that

1 would really help a lot with improving the perception, or excuse me, the perspective, of people and what
2 they think of their judiciary. I think that a large part of the problem is just that they're way up here, and
3 we're way down here, and never the twain shall meet. And we need to find a way to make them meet, or 4 else we're never going to see what they're doing up there. Thank you.
5

6 Rep. Weissman

7 Ms. Burns, thank you. There are 20 years of Annual Reports on the Commission on Judicial Discipline
8 website. They're in PDF format. I think what we've talked about today and other days is there are ways
9 to service that data better, and I think that a lot of members of this committee are going to grapple with 10 that in the time that we have. But just, you know, pulling one up by example, there are some summary
11 data that is hopefully or at least partially responsive to the points that you're making. You know, 2020
12 there were 199 RFEs, or requests for evaluation. And then it goes on to break down how many properly
13 alleged something within the Canons, and how do those go? And, so on. Again, maybe that's buried in 14 the text. And I think we're all going to try to work to surface that a little bit better.
15

16 Ruth Burns

17 And I think that as this Committee continues with the incredibly important and valuable work that you're 18 doing, I think that we will start to see more ways that you can consolidate these kind of issues and start
19 addressing them as much as you can within the scope of what you're supposed to be addressing here. So 20 yeah, we appreciate you.
21

22 Rep. Weissman

23 Rep. Bacon, good for now? Okay, all right, committee, other questions for any of our witnesses?
24 Alright. Thanks for testifying with us today and for being patient through a long day's agenda.
25

26 Ruth Burns

27 Thank you all very much.

Appendix 27(s)(iii)(11)

Committee Discussion re: Logistics and Future Actions; Adjournment;

Legislative Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline— August 10, 2022: Committee Discussion and Adjournment

1 Rep. Weissman

2 All right, Mr. Imel, maybe I could invite you up front. All right. So, committee the next hearing is the 3 one where, under our joint rules, deadlines for interim work, we need to have a series of votes as to what
4 we're actually going to ask LLS to draft. In conversations with Ms. Jenson going back to last week, I had 5 this, we're getting a handout here. I had the question, just as a member, you know, what quantum of 6 information do we need to have on the table as of the 17th or shortly thereafter in order to properly
7 frame a drafting request. So, I thought I'd invite Mr. Imel to speak for the office as to how that should go 8 next week.

9

10 Conrad Imel

11 Thank you, Mr. Chair Conrad Imel with the Office of Legislative Legal Services. When you make your 12 bill requests next week. Sorry, you can request bills, joint resolutions, or concurrent resolutions. You can 13 request up to six next week. You can forward 3 to Legislative Council on September 30. When you
14 make your requests, you can make them by subject as broad as possible, similar to submitting a usual
15 bill request to our office. It doesn't require that you submit all of the information with that request.
16 Within three days of the bill request meeting, we will need sufficient information to begin working on 17 the draft. The specific amount of information would depend on what you want your bill to be. I think it's 18 okay for there to certainly be some gaps or some unanswered questions at that point. But we would need 19 to be able to start working on bill drafts so that we can get that out to you in time for you to give 20 feedback and have subsequent drafts. This interim committee process is a relatively fast drafting 21 process. The deadline to finalize your bill draft is just over three weeks later, on September 9. So, in 22 order for us to draft, get a draft out to you, get feedback from you, any work you'd like to do with 23 stakeholders, send back changes and get new drafts to you. As you can imagine, that process is going to 24 move pretty quickly over the 23 available days.

25

26 Rep. Weissman

27 Okay. Mr. Imel, thank you. Just to clarify one other thing. So, 9/9 is the deadline. There's been fiscal 28 analysis, and this committee set its final meeting to approve three, or up to three of the six, on 9/30. My 29 understanding is that we have those drafts in front of us. They are properly the subject of amending, just 30 like any other bill that is in committee. I think that those amendments would need to be reduced to 31 writing. Maybe you could say a bit more about timing of that and how your office, how you would like 32 us as members to engage with you between the 9th and the 30th as to amending texts after they are 33 locked on that interim deadline.

34

35

36

1 Conrad Imel

2 Yes, thank you. You're correct. So, the bill drafting will be finalized on the 9th for fiscal notes, the fiscal
3 analysis process occurs over the next few weeks. So, we cannot change the bill draft at all until the 4 meeting on the 30th. And on the 30th, you would make any changes by amendment that we will draft for 5 you. Again, the preference would be, as soon as you know about amendments, the more time we have,
6 the better the drafting process will be. Just like any committee hearing during the usual legislative 7 session, we could draft them very quickly the day of or during the meeting, depending on how that
8 meeting's process works. It's just however much time we would need to draft it. So, the bill request, like 9 any other bill request, would have a drafter, and any member could reach out to the drafter and request 10 an amendment be drafted.

11

12 Rep. Weissman

13 Thank you. Committee. Any other process questions of Mr. Imel. Senator Gardner.

14

15 Sen. Gardner

16 I am just looking up? I shut my computer down too quickly. What are our next meeting dates week from 17 today?

18

19 Rep. Weissman

20 So, the next meeting where we need to vote, so it'll take five votes, assuming we're all here to send a bill
21 downstairs for drafting, is one week from today, August 17, and then our final meeting is September 30.

22

23 Sen. Gardner

24 But we have a September 9 deadline?

25

26 Conrad Imel

27 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Yes, so when the bill request is made next week, one member of the committee
28 will be designated to shepherd that bill through the process, kind of like a sponsor would be. So that 29 member would approve finalizing the bill draft on September 9. That's not a committee action, it's a 30 member.

31

32 Rep. Weissman

33 And Mr. Imel, is it one, or is it proper to sort of designate more than one member until that point on the 34 9th.

35

36 Conrad Imel

37 Our preference would be to designate one member, one single point of contact. If you are that person, 38 you can designate other people for us to work with, which could include other committee members or 39 other stakeholders. Just like any bill process. On any bills that are forwarded to Leg Council on the 30th,

1 you can designate prime sponsors for both the House and the Senate and additional co-sponsors at that
2 time.

3

4 Rep. Weissman

5 Okay, Madam Vice Chair.

6

7 Rep. Carver

8 Thank you, Mr. Chair and Mr. Imel. Just to make sure I'm clear. On the 17th, we will put forward up to 9 six bill ideas that we want drafted. But the bill drafters actually need some level of detail within three 10 days of the 17th.

11

12 Conrad Imel

13 That is correct.

14

15 Rep. Carver

16 And, so, and obviously, we're not restricted to as we're looking at all these issues, and we're looking at 17 perhaps changing Colorado law in how another state has done it. But, certainly I think that would to the 18 extent that we are and we've gotten recommendations about different states that have good provisions
19 based upon what our witnesses have recommended. So, I just, I just throw that out, and obviously, Mr.
20 Chair, we can have further discussion. I would definitely appreciate, and I don't know if I'm alone in 21 this, in having the AG's Office address how far we could go statutorily on confidentiality and perhaps 22 some other issues without triggering a constitutional change. And I don't know if other committee 23 members have any thoughts on some additional staff work or supporting work that we would like to 24 have available to the committee on the 17th as we're working our way through this.

25

26 Rep. Weissman

27 Yeah. So, Rep. Carver, I have put it on my list to reach out to Mr. Morrison on behalf of the AG's Office
28 on that question that came up earlier. One technical but important question for Mr. Imel. Three days is 29 calculated how? We should consider that deadline Friday the 19th, Monday, the 22nd? We have a 30 weekend intervening. I don't know if the first day counts.

31

32 Conrad Imel

33 I believe it is calendar days, not working days, so technically it would be Saturday, the 20th. I can't 34 speak. I don't know who your bills will be assigned to. I don't, I can't speak for all of our drafters. I don't 35 think anyone's running in on Sunday to get working on that. So, you may have an extra day there. Again, 36 I would, I would stress anything you have earlier, that would be helpful.

37

38 Rep. Weissman

39 And to the last point, the Vice Chair and I had talked about folks who might helpfully be present for our 40 discussions on the 17th. We're thinking about reaching back out to Ms. Gray with NCSC, she is a good

1 source of comparative knowledge. So, if there are questions on the fly that we want to get into as late as 2 the 17th, although I second Mr. Imel's point earlier. It is probably better for all of us, please let us know,
3 and we'll see what we can do to have folks available on the 17th to help us with any final deliberations,
4 Senator Gonzales and Senator Gardner.
5

6 Sen. Gonzales

7 Thank you, Mr. Chair and Madam Vice Chair, I think to your point around needing to come with as 8 much information as we can to the 17th. I'd really support to the extent that we individually, after having 9 had several meetings in which we've been able to receive an extraordinary amount of content from 10 different stakeholders and perspectives related to this issue, to the extent that we have concepts or even 11 like bullet points that we would like to, ideas that we'd like to propose for bill drafting, I'd really like to 12 just put that forward. Because I think that this is such a, there have been so many points that we have 13 discussed as a committee, and as we begin to then narrow down into what we will actually put forward
14 to our amazing staffers to actually then translate into bill language. To the extent that we have 15 paragraphs or bullet points or some sort of something that is fleshed out. I would just, you know, 16 encourage us all to do that.
17

18 Rep. Weissman

19 Thank you, Senator. I would second that. I mean, I think we're all familiar with the one pager or the fact
20 sheet, you know, that we all do, or others do. I very much want to encourage members as we're all 21 thinking about things, and it doesn't need to be any more formal than an email, and bullet list and 22 complete sentences is even fine if the press of time is great, which it always is. I think the more that we 23 come into the 17th, or even better, have shared with each other before the 17th, sets of concepts reduced
24 to writing that will help our discussions next week, that will help the drafting office. Senator Gardner.
25

26 Sen. Gardner

27 A couple of things. One, with respect to the Vice Chair and requesting opinions from the Attorney
28 General, I get my advice as a legislator from the Office of Legislative Legal Services, and so. Who will 29 always give me an opinion concerning my most aggressive stance on what my powers as a legislator are,
30 but also with the necessary caveats. The second thing, I have been sitting here all afternoon thinking
31 about this, and I just throw this out in everybody's thought process. Not exclusively, but it does seem to 32 me that there's a concurrent resolution out there and there's a bill out there. I don't know if the eight of 33 us, by the necessary majority, will be able to agree on a concurrent resolution and a bill. And maybe 34 they're going to be alternative versions. But it's hard to imagine that. But it seems to me that those are 35 the components of this, of our work here. And maybe I'm going to be thinking in that way of what are 36 the components of a concurrent resolution that we could get consensus around, and what are the 37 components of a bill. Is a bill necessary, probably is. It may be a bill that has triggers so that if the 38 concurrent resolution passes in November of 2024, imagine this, it would go into effect. That's just some 39 thoughts about what does this thing look like.
40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Senator, thank you. I mean, I think I broadly agree with that taxonomy. I think that we have to consider
3 things that are constitutional in nature. I think we've talked about some subject matters that would be a
4 bill and would not pose issues vis a vis the current constitutional text. Then a second flavor of bill is that
5 which would ride along with a referred measure pursuant to Article 19, I think of our state constitution,
6 we can't put that on the 23 Ballot. The 23 Ballot is reserved for fiscal matters, so the people would be 7 voting on this not until November of 24. Madam Vice Chair.

8

9 Rep. Carver

10 Thank you, Mr. Chair, I stand corrected by the eminent Senator Gardner, you are quite right, sir. It
11 would be the most able staff that can research the constitutional issues. I just see some fudge factor
12 there, especially on confidentiality and perhaps some other issues. So however, we get that legal advice
13 by whatever method I would find it helpful to have that before. I don't know that we need it by the 17th,
14 but certainly, as we're thinking about drafts, to have it before the 30th. And the 17th would be better, 15 actually.

16

17 Sen. Gardner

18 And I certainly appreciate the input of the Attorney General's Office. I think I have a far better chance of 19 getting something by the 17th from our own counsel.

20

21 Rep. Weissman

22 So, updating my to do list accordingly. And of course, I think all of us should feel free to reach out to 23 Director Eubanks. And I don't know actually who in the office would be assigned to this particular 24 question, but we won't ask Mr. Imel to jump on it right now, it might take a bit of research. Okay?
25 Committee, any other questions of Mr. Imel about our next steps? All right, thank you, and thanks for 26 being with us till a late afternoon here. All right. Committee, I think that concludes our work. Unless 27 there are any other thoughts anyone wants to share for the record again, plan on a pretty robust day next
28 Wednesday, August 17. We'll be in some room in this building. It may depend. Okay, Ms. Jenson
29 already has it figured out. Plan to be here in 357 next week, not the room downstairs. We'll see 30 everybody on the 17th. Sorry, Senator Gonzales.

31

32 Sen. Gonzales

33 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Just for the committee's awareness, I will be here in person for the majority of the 34 day. At some point in the mid-afternoon, I'll have to join you all remotely to catch a flight, so. But 35 appreciate this work, and we'll see y'all then.

36

37 Rep. Weissman

38 All right. Thank you. And again, the remote option is available for members who need it. Depending on 39 how focused we can be in framing our drafting requests, next week is not necessarily an eight-hour day.

- 1 It could be considerably less, that's up to us. So, we have our work cut out for us. Until next week, the
- 2 Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline is adjourned.

Appendix 27(s)(iii)(12)
Presentation by Investigations Law Group,
LLC and Steven Vasconcellos;

Colorado Legislative Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline—
August 10, 2022 Hearing: Testimony of Liz Rita, Ann McCord, and
Steven Vasconcellos

1 Rep. Weissman

2 50 minutes from Ms. Rita and Ms. McCord to discuss the report and their findings, and then some 3 questions from members of the committee, and then five or 10 minutes from Mr. Vasconcellos, 4 separately to sort of inform us on what changes might already be underway or at least pending on the 5 part of the Branch in response to the issues raised by the report. But for now, Ms. Rita, Ms McCord,
6 thanks for being with us. Sorry for having run over time here a little bit. In whatever order you'd like,
7 please dive in. You know, we have had the report for a while and I'm sure that all members of the 8 committee have read through it. It's pretty exhaustive. So, I guess feel free to pick a median between 9 brevity and thoroughness. Please proceed.

10

11 Liz Rita

12 Well, good morning. Thanks for having us. And it is our pleasure. And in deference to your lunch hour, 13 I will probably shorten the introduction just a little bit. I'm Liz Rita. And this is Ann McCord. And we 14 are with Investigations Law Group. Chair Weissman and Vice Chair Carver, thanks for having us. And 15 committee members, as well. On April 22, you might remember, the Colorado Judicial Branch issued 16 the request for proposals. It seems like it was yesterday in our world because we've been living and 17 breathing this for so long, but it was some time ago. We answered that RFP and were selected to do the 18 investigation of the many individual instances of misconduct identified in what we call in our report, the 19 Eric Brown Memo. As you know, Mr. Troyer's firm was selected to do the investigation of the contract
20 procurement piece. Our deadline was initially April 15. But it was extended to July 29, because we had 21 such a volume of people interested in speaking with us, and we recommended to the Judicial Branch.
22 You don't want to tell these people that they can't talk to the investigator. This is too important. So, we 23 extended our time, so we could make sure everyone who reached out to us received an interview and 24 everybody did. And in terms of our scope, we really were looking at three things. We were looking at 25 the individual instances of misconduct, some in the judicial branch, allegedly, some in the finance
26 department and some of the probation department. We were also asked to conduct a comprehensive 27 survey of the workplace, which we did, and we were asked for recommendations. All told, we 28 interviewed 168 people, we reviewed 1,000s of pages of documents, and we sent a survey to 4,133
29 employees of the judicial branch. Voluntary interviews, as I mentioned, were also conducted. I think I
30 can I can skip this part for time's sake, if you would like or I can talk about a brief sort of methodology
31 of how we went about the investigations. But it seems to me that the interest here today is primarily in 32 sort of the workplace and recommendations. So, I'll defer to your decision on that.

33

34

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Thank you. You know, I think the matters that you were charged to investigate here are certainly all of 3 public interest. And I think we all have opinions about all of that. Our charge under the statute that set
4 up this interim committee is really structural issues of how judicial discipline processes go. And to the 5 extent that there's a workplace matter that does not involve judicial officers. That's without the scope of 6 the commission. And that's really without our scope. To the extent that you did get into matters
7 involving judges. Now, the scope of the Commission, as well as internal matters to the Department are 8 implicated. And thus, I think there is more tangency to what we all have to grapple with here. If that 9 helps.

10

11 Liz Rita

12 It does. I think in terms of the investigations, I think it suffices to say, you know, we relied on our years
13 of experience in doing workplace investigations in drafting our approach to those, I want to assure you 14 that we approach those the same way we approach every investigation we do, we didn't shorten it up, we 15 didn't make some sort of abbreviated process. Each of those was treated as a separate, full investigation.
16 And so, we feel good about the fact that we gathered enough data to reach firm findings in those 17 investigations that we did. We did the same thing in terms of our cultural assessment. And Ms. McCord
18 is going to speak to that in a moment. But we do these for clients all the time, we use tested resources, 19 including PhD statisticians to make sure that our data is statistically sound. And we made sure that we 20 heard from everyone that was our primary goal. We really wanted to help. I think, you know, we've 21 talked a lot about public trust in the agency, but to really help some of the employees regain some trust
22 in their employer that they were going to be heard through this process. So, I think what we should 23 probably do is talk a little bit about the workplace assessment, because I think that our recommendations
24 should be the focus of our time here today.

25

26 Rep. Carver

27 Ms. McCord.

28

29 Ann McCord

30 Thank you. Thank you so much for having us here today. Again, it was a pleasure to work on this 31 project. It was quite meaty. But I think we felt like we were very thorough and came up with some very 32 good data for you to consider in the future and good methodology for you to build upon in the future
33 when you look at the Judicial Branch. So as Ms. Rita mentioned, we conducted a survey, we sent out a 34 survey to over 4,100 individuals, those who worked at the Judicial Branch and appointed officials, our 35 survey had two different bases, one for those who are appointed officials. And the other was for those 36 who are employees of the Branch, we collected all of that data we had about a 63% participation rate,
37 which is great. And so, we feel like the data was really statistically relevant. As Liz mentioned, we did 38 use a statistician on the project to ensure that we were looking at things through a statistical lens, and 39 that we could feel confident in our findings. We had 103 people reach out to participate in voluntary
40 interviews. Of those, 97 agreed to interview with us and six provided documented information instead of

1 participating in the interviews. We collected all that data and created the report that you have. That
2 you've hopefully had a chance to look at. And some of the key things that we identified in that
3 assessment was that there really is not a systemic issue, because there's not a system in place to drive
4 consistency in how the different Districts are run or how they engage with their employees. So that was
5 a bit of an aha moment for us. And for that reason, we dug into specific Districts to look at where were 6 some findings that would be helpful to look at what's working well. And where are some districts that
7 might be struggling? We mentioned in the report that we only looked at Districts with 80, or more
8 participants in the survey when we called them out in the report, because we felt like that was most 9 statistically relevant. There were some districts that had 30 participants, for example, and might have 10 had some either really high scores or low scores. But for the purposes of the report, we focused only on 11 those Districts that had a significant number of people who participated so that we, you know, felt good
12 about providing that information to you. The good news, as we highlighted is that a majority of the 13 people have a good experience working for the Judicial Branch, 72%. So, they were satisfied with their 14 job. And that is higher for appointed officials at 89%. And then most individuals felt good about their 15 work environment and about the work relationships. So, on the whole, the survey was positive.
16 However, 14 to 21% of the participants gave negative responses to questions, and there was a lot of 17 discussion within the survey about concerns of reporting misconduct and concerns about retaliation. So,
18 while there are some positive things to build upon, when we dug into the specific districts that were 19 struggling, we felt like that was an important place to focus efforts on, how to build better cultures 20 within those districts.

21

22 Ann McCord

23 Some of the themes that came up from the survey were, of course, as I just mentioned, fear of retaliation
24 for reporting misconduct, specifically, if it was judicial, misconduct by appointed officials need for 25 transparency and accountability, which sounds like you've talked about a fair amount today, the absence
26 of shared cultural values across the Districts. And so, for that reason, you know, again, there wasn't a 27 system to say, you couldn't look at it holistically, you had to look at it District by District. There were 28 some insufficient avenues for safe and confidential reporting, and handling of complaints, which it
29 sounds like you've talked about a fair amount today. And, with respect to employee complaints about 30 concerns about appointed officials, there was feedback that when those reports were made, there was 31 kind of a absence of feedback to the complainant of what happened. So, it went into the judicial 32 disciplinary process and the person who had expressed concerns was still wondering am I going to have 33 to walk down the hall with this person who I feel has treated me differently based on my gender or fill in 34 the blank. So, you know, there is this gap of how to handle the workplace, as was discussed previously,
35 and then how to focus on the judicial discipline. So that was something that caused a lot of consternation
36 for folks that we talked to and also led to the perspective of why report it, nothing's going to be done. So 37 those were some of the highlights of the areas of improvement that we found. Happy to talk about some 38 of our recommendations, but if you'd like to dig in at all on the survey, happy to answer questions.

39

40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Members questions on the survey. Senator Gardner.

3

4 Sen. Gardner

5 Thank you. More in the nature of a comment Thank you for your work. Your task that you undertook
6 and the results of your report are somewhat reminiscent, not on all fours by any means, but somewhat 7 reminiscent of the legislative workplace, the uniqueness of those who are appointed judicial officers in 8 our branch, those who are elected and so forth. You don't even need to comment on that. I think it was 9 very good that you were able to build on that kind of experience with a unique branch of government 10 with a different category of people. So, thank you.

11

12 Sen. Gardner

13 Thank you. Yes, we felt like that provided a nice foundation for us to build upon.

14

15 Rep. Weissman

16 Still have the 2018 report on my shelf at home Senator, I think it's a fair point.

17

18 Sen. Gardner

19 Do you read it? You read it like nightly or . . .

20

21 Rep. Weissman

22 Maybe not quite nightly. It was a challenging time for this place. Committee, any other questions at this 23 point? Rep. Lynch.

24

25 Rep. Lynch

26 Thank you, Mr. Chair. So, in my mind, I've compartmentalized the two issues here. One is the judicial 27 discipline so that those are the officials in the office. But there's also this big bureaucracy, if you will.
28 Can you comment about the findings within that bureaucracy versus the findings of those officials that 29 are serving in an official capacity? I mean, can you kind of separate those two? Is that fair to do? Or can 30 you comment on that a little bit?

31

32 Ann McCord

33 Thank you, Chair. Yes, I think that, you know, in terms of the survey, we did separate out the feedback
34 we got from SCAO, as well as the feedback we got from the various Judicial Districts. And we found 35 that in terms of processes, such as what we're talking about today, places where people can go and 36 confidentially report, for example. The absence of a structured, anonymous reporting system, which is 37 possible to put into place and the feeling that nothing is going to be done. And the feeling that I am 38 afraid to come forward with a complaint were universal across sort of both of those groups of 39 employees. So, within SCAO, we found demonstrated and expressed examples of fears of coming
40 forward and reports of retaliation. We also found on the SCAO side, lots of reports of toxic relationships

1 between leaders at the top of different organizations and those relationships impacting how well those
2 groups were working together. And that was something we looked at more and heard more about in the 3 sort of administrative side than we did on the judicial side. I think that there's opportunity for 4 improvement in the processes on both sides. So judicial discipline on the one hand, but also how 5 complaints are handled and appropriately managed internally. And appropriately investigated internally,
6 are also areas that where some improvement would be, I think, helpful.

7
8 Rep. Weissman

9 Madame Vice Chair.

10
11 Rep. Carver

12 Thank you, Mr. Chair. And first, let me commend you for the thoroughness, in which you investigated
13 the listed allegations on the Eric Brown Memo, that was truly impressive, and especially how old some 14 of those allegations were and some of them being somewhat cryptic. I did have a couple of things I
15 wanted to ask you on your recommendations. The creation of an ombuds person and other safe reporting 16 mechanisms, and especially given the wide range of experience that you have had not just here, but the 17 Legislature and you know, other entities. How would you structure the ombuds person? First does it
18 need to be in statute? Second, how do you structure it so that it is truly independent and able to provide 19 that safe space, safe reporting space? And perhaps managing the traffic based upon the types of 20 complaints that come in? If it's repeated delays in their case? Is that an appellate issue or has it now
21 reached the point where it's a violation of a Canon and could go to the Commission and I'm just 22 wondering if you have a bit more structure on that. And, you know, you could provide it to the 23 committee offline. But I do think that that is so important and whether or not in your mind, you see a 24 difference between confidential and anonymous, and how should both be done by the ombudsman? And 25 again, in the interest of time, feel free to provide that offline. But I think that's a critical
26 recommendation, whether it is done by rule or statute, and I'm somewhat leaning statute on that. Any, I 27 mean, go ahead.

28
29 Liz Rita

30 I'm happy to say a few words about that. And then we are also very happy to provide additional 31 information as well offline. We hadn't anticipated or really thought about having the ombudsperson
32 available to individuals other than employees and judicial officers. We hadn't thought about litigants the 33 way it's been described and discussed a little bit here today. That's an interesting idea. I'm not opposed to 34 that. But I'd have to think a little bit about how that might work. Because that does require person who 35 has a much broader understanding and skills base, I think, if you're dealing with litigants, versus 36 knowing, you know, the employment rules and the personnel rules and the employment law and those 37 parameters when it's an employee. But the way that we look at the ombuds person, and I will, I'm going
38 to say a few words, and then let and let Ms. McCord add because Ms. McCord's decades of experience
39 in HR surpass, you know, she's forgotten more about this than I have ever learned in terms of how to set
40 these kinds of things up. But, I think it's important that that our focus is that this has to be a safe place

1 for people to go with the caveat, there are some claims that might come forward, that are going to trigger
2 some kind of reporting. So, it's a little different than what we ordinarily see, in a private employer,
3 where the employer can say, this is a confidential resource, this person isn't required to report what you
4 bring to them. They're there for your support to help you figure out what to do. And to determine next
5 steps. Here, it has to be structured a little bit differently, because you have the concurrent obligation and 6 interest of the Commission in dealing with allegations against judges. And to your point, Representative
7 Bacon, the whole issue of whether HR things can be going forward at the same time as judicial 8 commission hearings concerns us greatly, too. And there's got to be a way to thread the needle. My 9 concern is that there are two investigations going on at the same time, because that is always difficult in 10 the investigative sort of phase of things to have witnesses interviewed twice about the same set of facts.
11 This does happen to us occasionally, when we have concurrent criminal matters going forward with our 12 investigations, but it's difficult. And then back to your point, Vice Chair, in terms of the anonymous
13 versus confidential, there are great anonymous reporting systems that allow you to connect and discuss a 14 complaint with an anonymous complainant, like Conversant there, just one I happen to know about that 15 you can have that dialogue with the anonymous complainant without them revealing their identity. And 16 it tracks the complaints and it tells you where they're coming from. So, you can take a look to see if 17 there's clusters in certain judicial districts or certain departments within SCAO, you can track that from a 18 global perspective. There's robust reporting that comes out of those systems. I think Ms. McCord has 19 more experience with those. And if she may add a few words to that. Thank you.

20

21 Ann McCord

22 Yeah, I think that I'd say first about the ombuds given that the judicial branch has more than 4,000
23 employees, I think an ombuds person for the judicial branch for employee and appointed official
24 concerns, that person is going to be really busy. You add in if there were, you know, litigants who are 25 feeding into that office, and I just don't know how it could be successful. It seems as though that that 26 would be a really big workload and prioritization would be difficult. So, I'll put a pin in that. And so 27 again, to Liz's, to Ms. Rita's point, we were looking at the workplace and working at the experience of 28 appointed officials working with one another, employees working with appointed officials and 29 employees working with employees. When we made the recommendation that we made. With respect to 30 anonymous reporting, you know, that is common in what we see in businesses, public, private, you
31 know, across the country. That they have anonymous reporting tools, that somebody can submit an 32 anonymous complaint, there's a safe place that you can ask questions. You can get more details who was 33 there what with who were the witnesses, can you point me in the right direction? Many times the 34 anonymous complainant becomes a confidential complainant and they're comfortable doing so because 35 you've build that trust with them through this anonymous tool. What we've seen in our investigative 36 work, and that we investigate anonymous complaints pretty routinely, and many times we think during 37 the course of the investigation, we've probably talked to the person who submitted the complaint.
38 Generally, it's bigger than a one-person issue when someone decides to go anonymous, but it certainly 39 can be, you know, a personal experience. So one of our recommendations was, in addition to the 40 ombuds person, that there is an anonymous reporting tool that's, you know, that's embraced by the

1 judicial branch, how that is set up, how that's managed, really does take care of a lot of the process and
2 the gray areas that we saw in the system when we were talking to the folks and looking at the survey
3 results. So, we think that those are two important elements to a successful culture. All of this is 4 predicated on the idea that you're going to have somebody who's looking at culture across the board,
5 because building trust, building consistency, shared values, and those sorts of things are what are going
6 to bring people forward and make them more comfortable not being anonymous. So, I think, you know,
7 again, our focus was on the workplace, but happy to, you know, think about how this would be applied
8 in a broader context.

9
10 Rep. Weissman

11 Thank you. Just a quick note, while we're building our follow up list, anything you could share based on 12 professional experience on the universe of anonymous reporting softwares, tips on successful
13 implementation, and management and whatnot, that's going to be sub-statutory, I think, but I would 14 personally be interested to see that and I think we'd want to share it with other folks in the room who are 15 parties to this discussion. So, thank you, Madam Vice Chair.

16
17 Rep. Carver

18 Thank you, Mr. Chair. And going to Ms. Gray. And in this is in our inbox and available, she does point
19 out, in fact, did a cut and paste on 10 states that have provision statutory or by rule on anonymous
20 filings. And so, your recommendation, if you wouldn't mind looking through those and your 21 recommendation on which ones based on your experience would be the most useful? And I agree with 22 you and your comment, Ms. McCord, really crystallized. I think we are talking about two completely
23 separate functions for an ombudsperson. One for the employees within the Judicial Branch, and the 24 other, maybe even attached to the court system in some way or physically located there, to provide that 25 advice on what a proper path is for somebody who has a complaint. I do think and that was helpful to 26 me, thank you. And then I'll just go offline. It has been, two things have been really startling to me. Over 27 and over again, the people who have made the complaints and have this feeling like so what happened,
28 did anything happen? To me, that's astounding. And so, certainly in our conversations with the 29 Commission later on, to get clarification on that, but it's not just the complainant. It's the public trust
30 factor. So the recommendations that we've received from some quarters, that there be a summary of 31 what happened with a complaint, substantiated or not substantiated, and that that be made available to 32 the public and at a minimum, that should go to the complainant. And whether that is certainly HR should 33 have that if they don't already, but the Commission in their process should have that function. And, you 34 know, perhaps we've been so focused on other issues that we haven't really explored that aspect with the 35 Commission. But your expertise in this area, I think, would also be I think that's a huge issue of 36 transparency, accountability, and public trust and trust for those making the complaints. That if they 37 knew what happened, they might be perfectly satisfied. Unfortunately, that doesn't seem to be happening
38 in a systemic way. So, thank you.

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Rep. Carver, did you want a response on that point?

3

4 Rep. Carver

5 If you have a few words, but again, simply to follow up offline, and which you could then share with 6 members of the Committee and in writing and up to the Chair, whether we bring you back on the 17th
7 for more Q&A.

8

9 Liz Rita

10 I will make one comment. Thank you. I think that I want to make sure it's known that leadership at 11 SCAO also feels that stress and strain around not having the information to go back to the employee. So,
12 it wasn't something that as an outsider, we were, like, scratching our head about, that was something that 13 in our interviews that we had with individuals. It's a frustration and stress for them as well, you know,
14 they're struggling to ensure that this person has a safe workplace, how to manage that. And in many 15 times, they were doing so without much of any feedback on where things stood within the judicial 16 discipline process. So, I just want to make sure that it's known that they're aware of the concerns they're 17 equally interested in trying to find a resolution there.

18

19 Rep. Weissman

20 Rep. Bacon.

21

22 Rep. Bacon

23 Thank you. I have a few questions. And if I wanted to turn back to the survey, just to gather further
24 insights. So, there were some pieces in here and looking through your graphs that were disaggregated by 25 gender. And I'm curious, if you if you do still have some data. In some of the questions that you've asked
26 that could be disaggregated by data that aren't shared by gender that aren't shared here, so I definitely 27 want to have a sense of, you know, workplace, that was one of them that you put by male and female,
28 but there were a lot of places that weren't. Just to see if there's something there. And if you have that, is 29 that something you could share with us? Some of these charts?

30

31 Liz Rita

32 Thank you. Yes. So, what in working with our statistician, what we did is, looking at the data, we called 33 out anything in the survey where there was a difference in experience or answers with respect to gender.
34 So those that were statistically relevant are in the survey, but certainly we can break down every 35 question by gender, that's not a problem.

36

37 Rep. Bacon

38 I'd be interested in that. And then can I continue? I'm also curious about what you may have found by 39 way of understanding procedures, you know, some of the questions said, I feel like I know what the 40 policies are. But did they articulate what they think those policies are? And we've been talking a lot, for

1 example, because I do have an extension on the relationship to the Commission. Do people know that
2 there are certain things that are supposed to trigger? You know, the Commission's sort of investigation?
3 So, were you able to further assess people's articulation of what these policies are? And if they felt like
4 they were effective, and I'm curious if you have any particular insights on when complaints, or types of 5 complaints are supposed to be referred to the Commission? And if there's any sort of general feedback
6 on if folks within the branch feel like that's even happening? And the reason why I'm asking that is 7 because there were some places in your report that I questioned, when did this go to the Commission?
8 Did this go to the Commission? And, so, I'm curious if you have kind of like a global answer on that.

9
10 Ann McCord

11 So, I think that the answer to the first part of the question is that there is a lot of opportunity to educate
12 around what the process is how to submit a complaint, what happens after a complaint is submitted? I
13 don't think that that is well known among the 4,000 plus employees of the judicial branch. So, there's a 14 lot of opportunity there. As we talk about respectful workplace training and the office of people and 15 culture, we see that one of the first things that should happen, there is some robust education around.
16 This is what a complaint looks like. This is what you do when a complaint comes to you. This is how 17 they're processed. If you have a concern, here are the different ways that you can submit that complaint.
18 So, there's opportunities there, I would say, because the survey was yes, no, and sometimes comments.
19 We didn't get to dig into each like, yes, question. Do you really know what that is? But in our almost 20 100 interviews, we were able to have some conversations around that. So, it's a bit anecdotal. But based 21 on the information we received in the investigations that Miss Rita conducted in the survey, there's an 22 opportunity there to improve the knowledge base.

23
24 Rep. Weissman

25 Ms. Rita

26
27 Liz Rita

28 And, and I can add a little bit to that Representative Bacon in terms of what I heard in interviews, and 29 again, it wasn't in a survey sense. So more anecdotally, that the previous memorandum of understanding
30 between the Commission and the HR office where there was this delegation of investigative authority to 31 HR, created some opportunity for obstacles for information to be passed back to Commission, and 32 people didn't understand necessarily, you know, what had to be reported and when and there were 33 instances that I investigated, that should have been reported to the Commission. And from our 34 investigation from the Commission's review of its files, we didn't find any evidence that those matters
35 had been reported. So, to add on to Ms. McCord's point, it's it was unclear, I think, for some frontline
36 employees about what the process is, I think it was also unclear, and perhaps still is unclear at some of 37 the higher-level offices at SCAO as to how those things are supposed to proceed.

1 Rep. Bacon

2 So my last two questions are, you know, outside of the I don't, it's not hearsay. But have you heard from 3 the Commission in regards to what they may have learned from you? Or this report in regards to what
4 should have been reported to them? And then the other question that I have, it is a little bit of a shift, just 5 putting them out here for response, is it in the ombuds space? Has there been conversation and I didn't
6 get to ask this of IAALS as well, about who the ombuds person actually reports to, whether it is the 7 Supreme Court for matters of, you know, within the judiciary, or to the Commission, if it's, for example,
8 if it's matters dealing with the Supreme Court, I haven't actually seen recommendations, or I'm sorry, a
9 description of you know, where the ombuds person actually reports to. Also, should the ombudsperson
10 have a narrow scope. And, you know, it's 4,000 employees, and there's an HR department, particularly 11 when it comes, for example, to discipline. And so, I'm curious if you can elaborate on your thoughts on 12 that. So again, my first question was, by chance, have you heard from the Commission of things that 13 they may have learned through your investigation, but the other piece is on the ombuds office, and who 14 that person should actually report to. And if there's any room to narrow scope of what the ombuds
15 person does, because of that reporting?

16

17 Rep. Weissman

18 Ms. Rita.

19

20 Liz Rita

21 I can begin in terms of my thoughts about that. I spoke with folks at the Commission and they were very 22 helpful in terms of giving me access to information I needed to do my job. So, in order for me to 23 investigate some of these allegations about misconduct against judges, I needed to get information about 24 whether there had been something filed and if there had been something filed, but it was, and they were 25 very helpful and expressed some frustration about learning about some of these instances from me, and 26 finding that there was no record of these things being reported. Now, with the caveat, some of these 27 things were very old, right, some of the matters we looked at were 20 years old, or thereabouts are 10
28 years old. So, the record keeping, in some sense, you know, perhaps contributed to some of this 29 confusion. But we didn't have any specific conversations with them about other than, you know, my 30 interviews with them in terms of our investigation from that, that standpoint. And then in terms of the 31 structure of the ombuds, I think, inherent in your question is sort of two separate questions. One is where 32 does the person actually sit in the organization? Who is their boss? And who are they accountable to?
33 And then who do they give information to? So, kind of two separate things, both of those things have to 34 be very clearly delineated to maintain objectivity. So, you know, the problem with objectivity starts to 35 happen when there are subjective components along that decision tree. Right, I might report it to judicial 36 discipline, if in my judgment, you know, something happens, or here are a list of criteria that I have to 37 report to the Commission on Judicial Discipline, I prefer the latter, where there's less subjectivity for 38 that person, to perhaps exercise their own judgment in a way that could be seen as biased, you know, if 39 there was some relationship or so forth. So, there's got to be some clear delineated areas where the 40 ombuds person has to report. And again, this is different than in the private sector, it's not something that

1 I think there's a great sort of out there in the box model for. You'll have to think through what those
2 criteria should be. But that person is going to have to have the ability to report things, I think directly to
3 the Commission on Judicial discipline, if we're to keep them independent. And there may be instances
4 you might consider where that person has to report something back to SCAO to HR, if something is
5 happening in the workplace that needs to be attended to that rises to the level of let's say, you know, any
6 EO violation, so it can be difficult. In that world, you still have to build trust that this is a person that
7 people can go to and feel safe. So, this is not an easy needle to thread in in the Judicial Branch, I don't 8 think.

9

10 Rep. Weissman

11 Rep. Bacon, good for now? Okay, Senator Gonzales.

12

13 Sen. Gonzales

14 Thank you, Mr. Chair. We've been having this discussion around whether complaints, how to investigate 15 complaints once they arrive and whether the survey that you conducted is very helpful to help grow the 16 understanding of employees of the Judicial Branch around the different processes. I'm curious, given 17 your professional experience, if you have recommendations on how long substantiated versus 18 unsubstantiated allegations or complaints should be retained. Because I'm wondering if there are 19 instances where there's a complaint and then there's another complaint, and then there's another
20 complaint? If those three things are happening, if those three complaints are being say, investigated,
21 concurrently? Is there any process for hey, look, are these are flagged in the same way? I'm just curious.
22 Yeah, like, I'm curious what your, from your professional expertise and kind of taking a step outside and 23 then looking in, if you have recommendations on how long the retention policies of those complaints
24 should remain, in effect, whether they are confidential, or anonymous.

25

26 Liz Rita

27 Thank you, Mr. Chair, I do. Again, back to this anonymous reporting tool, one of the great uses of that is 28 to document any complaint that comes in. And what I've seen work really well in the private sector is to 29 use that tool to document and, you know, give it a numeric code, this complaint came in on this date, 30 this was who was assigned to investigate it, here are the witnesses, this is what happened. And this was 31 the determination. From that, if you use a centralized source like that, to document this information, you 32 can look at it globally and say, gosh, we have some hotspots here, or we have these are the types of 33 things that are coming forward, we really need to focus our training around that, because it seems like 34 people are unaware. Or, you know, this is, again, this idea of the Office of People and Culture and a
35 focus on DEI and, you know, culture. The point is, you take that data to help inform training, not as a
36 club, but as an informative piece of information to come up with your plans. So, I've seen that work
37 really well. As far as retention. You know, I would say that that's something that should be talked about 38 within each entity. My experience has been that seven years is kind of a nice number. But when it's in an 39 electronic format, sometimes we never purge that information anyway. And it's there. But especially as 40 you know, the cycles of culture go having three to five years of good information at your fingertips

1 rolling seems to really help inform what's happening in your workplace culture. And having a tool like
2 that. A separate group who manages the investigations, documents it within this tool, and then, you
3 know, looks at it and reports back. That these are the types of things we're seeing in the organization can 4 help inform time, budget, training, you know, where we're going to focus our efforts.
5

6 Rep. Weissman

7 Rep. Bacon I'm sorry, Rep. Lynch.
8

9 Rep. Lynch

10 Thank you, Mr. Chair. So, I'm, I may have missed it somewhere. But is it possible for me to get a copy
11 of the actual survey? And maybe it's in maybe it's in there somewhere. Is it on the website? Okay, cool.
12 All right. Moving on. So, I'm just kind of curious, as I'm reading through the statement from Chief
13 Justice Boatright, I was just wondering if you guys had any comments on what I call the Cliff Notes
14 version of this of this report. And if you just give me any feedback on how you feel that response went.
15

16 Rep. Weissman

17 And Ms. Rita you've seen the Chief Justice's letter or a statement that issued concurrently with your 18 report or no?
19

20 Liz Rita

21 I did read it, I didn't study it, but I glanced at it. So, in all honesty, I haven't really, I think, interpreted it
22 at any depth. But I will say, you know, we always like to have the shortest, sweetest report we can and 23 this, you know, what we provided was the shortest sweetest report we could to document a lot of work.
24 So, I think anytime there's a summary of a page or two summarizing that much work, you know, there's 25 a lot that can be said that's omitted from that kind of a summary. I didn't see anything that was 26 inaccurate in it. I could say that. I saw a lot of things that I would have added if it were me doing the 27 summary but he didn't ask my opinion about it. So, yeah.
28

29 Rep. Weissman

30 I apologize. I might have inadvertently cut you off mid answer to a prior question. and wanting to make 31 sure.
32

33 Liz Rita

34 I only just had for help, just as a helpful additional fact, what was McCord added? When you use that 35 anonymous reporting tool as the repository of all complaints, so not just the anonymous ones, but any 36 other complaint that comes in is fed into the same tool, then you have this global perspective of all the 37 complaints. So, it can be used to manage not only the anonymous complaints, but everything else as 38 well. Yep.
39
40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Okay. Committee time check, we have about 10 more minutes with these witnesses, including both
3 questions and presentation. Was there more in the way of this sort of summation that you wanted to put
4 on the record for us? I feel like we might have sort of jumped into questions midstream in your opening 5 presentation.

6

7 Liz Rita

8 No, and that's fine. You know, we were going to be summarizing something you've all read. So that's not 9 necessary. We did note that there was a question about our recommendation about escalation criteria for 10 matters that come to the Judicial Commission on Discipline as to whether they become public or not.
11 That may not end up being an important point if the system is changed, so that there's more public
12 oversight or more public opportunity to see what's happening. But we think something that's missing in 13 that chain is an assessment about what kinds of criteria should matter in the decision about whether 14 something becomes public or not public. As it stands now, it's, it's left in the discretion of the 15 Commission. And I'm not suggesting they haven't exercised it wisely, but they've exercised it without 16 any parameters around discretion. And so having some list of criteria that would assist them in making
17 that decision, would make it more objective. And I think, you know, might result in things being 18 handled in the public setting that ought to be in today's world that are considered important enough, that 19 might be about harassment or discrimination on the basis of a protected class, which we believe 20 implicate the Judicial Code of Conduct.

21

22 Rep. Weissman

23 Okay, thank you, Rep Bacon. And I think you have some questions.

24

25 Rep. Bacon

26 I just, I'm sorry, if I didn't want you to have to go back through a summation. But I did want to know if 27 you could also just kind of give me a sense in a lot of the findings. And I'm going to jump over to the list
28 of allegations. The conclusions were that there wasn't necessarily direct cover ups or intentional acts, by 29 the Justices. But I am curious about how you would articulate your thresholds in regards to what would 30 need to be required, particularly in relationships to other employees or subordinates, or particularly the 31 HR team, that if there needed to be, for example, either direct collusion, is there anything to be said
32 about should have known that's wrapped up into some of those findings? So, for example, in the I think
33 it was the third one, with the law clerk, it's like, while the Justice may not have, how much did you see 34 that maybe other people did have intentions? And therefore, what is the connection to the Chiefs who 35 are making decisions? You know, what is that threshold? And then even from, you know, some of those 36 findings as well, I know, since there are a lot of recommendations around culture. Seems to me that 37 there is this emerging theme of should have known? I don't I mean, it's not like we're talking about 38 criminal negligence. But you know, what does that mean, in the workplace? And then to what extent 39 should we then hold, you know, the chiefs responsible? And I do understand that this will be like your,
40 this may be a little bit more of commentary than your direct findings, but I have you all in front of me,

1 and I was really just looking for the in between in the subtext on those types of connections. You know,
2 what are we talking about? Like, if you were tasked to investigate the Chiefs? It's okay, if the number
3 fours, you know, may have had these intentions, but we don't see that in some of these reports. And 4 again, why is that? Is it because the standard is like should have colluded, you know, to this outside of 5 directly being held responsible? And then what do you make by way of this should have known space,
6 beyond culture? If there's anything that we can tangibly assign to that? If it's policy or even statute like
7 to what extent is someone responsible? And I know there's a little bit of this in harassment statute, but 8 like, for this type of culture to persist. So, if you have a little bit. I know we don't have any time. And 9 next time I'm buying family, because I'm the one that pushes us through to lunch, but I'm wondering if 10 you could just shine a little light on that.

11

12 Liz Rita

13 Yeah, I think I can. I think I can shine some light in pretty direct way, I think that the question that 14 you're asking is, should anyone at the Judicial Department sort of be above the law or above the policy
15 or above the rule? And I think, in some of these cases, there was less attention to the regular process
16 than I would have expected from folks in high levels. And that's both, you know, in the court side, and 17 on the SCAO side, that it's somehow there is an understanding that those rules don't apply to me in this 18 role. I don't have to do an investigation. I don't have to go through a process for hiring that is sort of 19 standard and allows everybody the opportunity to compete for a position for example, I think the bottom
20 line should be that everyone should be subjected to the same rules when it comes to workplace behavior
21 when it comes to complaints of misconduct when it comes to matters of hiring and promotion. I think it's 22 that simple.

23

24 Ann McCord

25 I have one other comment. I think the other thing that we heard and saw as a theme is that in some cases,
26 the Chief Justice or the not the Chief Justice. Chief Judge, thank you, would look to their Court
27 Administrator to kind of manage what was happening within their District. And we noted a need for 28 training across the board about what is the requirement to have a workplace that's free from harassment
29 or discrimination or bullying or you know, whether it's driven by Title VII or otherwise. And I think 30 there's an opportunity there because folks who are in sitting as judges don't necessarily have 31 backgrounds working in the employment setting, working in businesses where they see, they get training
32 that people tend to get when you're working in the private sector. And so, we think that there's an 33 opportunity for training for judges to understand this is the expectation of conduct. Again, what does a
34 complaint look like? What's my responsibility when I see something or hear something? What am I
35 supposed to do with that? And so, I think we did talk about that a little bit on the training and culture 36 side, as well.

37

38 Rep. Weissman

39 Rep. Bacon.

40

1 Rep. Bacon

2 The last thing that I just want to say to this is, because I think we found this a little bit. I went there with 3 the Troyer Report, too. And I think the question is, if you are a chief, you're responsible for everyone.
4 So, you can't not read an email, you can't not know that the HR chief was acting in a certain way, and
5 then get a finding say that you were not deliberate. And somehow that absolves of responsibility. So,
6 part of what I'm getting at is, if anyone is found responsible and being intentional in their behavior then
7 the chiefs are responsible. And I feel like some of the ways that we are reading this is separating the two 8 between what someone actually did versus what they're fully responsible for. And that's what I was 9 getting at, you know, what is the standard, either through law or through these ethical canons, that 10 connects those two, other than just saying there is criminal collusion, or this criminal definition of 11 negligence? That's what I'm trying to get at if we're actually finding this. I'm also stating this as a 12 comment more of a question. Because I, I have to really, also try to understand the investigators. In one
13 what were they asked to actually find? Right? Not any sort of assessment, but two the lines that we have 14 to walk in talking about a whole branch of government, you know. But I'm a legislator, and someone 15 gave me a microphone. So, I can say these things, right. Like, I think the reason why I'm putting out this,
16 this out there as well, is also to perhaps help you all to, you know, give me a hypothetical of what are 17 those tangible connections that we may need to say in spaces that are struggling with culture like this?
18 Do we need to create a statute? Do we need to write a particular rule? Do we need to say if your chief of 19 HR does these things, and because you didn't read an email you were sent does not mean you're not 20 responsible? It means also, what are you doing to read emails? What are you doing for your surveys are 21 360s and all of those things there? There doesn't seem to be a narrative of culpability that way. But that's 22 just my thoughts. Please feel free to, to comment. You know, I think we just need to hear from HR 23 professionals and people who do workplace work to make to help us make those connections, if that 24 makes sense.

25

26 Liz Rita

27 I'm just going to make an introductory comment and then I think Ms. McCord should answer in part 28 because I think what you're driving at is what we saw as the critical problem of this system, such as it is,
29 even though we've said there's not one system. There's 24 or 25 systems, and that is the absence of a
30 culture, there's the absence of shared cultural values that drive things like accountability and drive things
31 like responsibility. And when you don't have that, I mean, perhaps you can legislate it, by statute, but I'm 32 not certain that it will take if there's not the effort and the investment in building the culture of 33 accountability.

34

35 Ann McCord

36 And that's why, you know, we recommended to continue the culture surveys, you know, to continue 37 doing those and making them public on an annual or biannual basis annual might be a little difficult, but 38 annual or biannual basis, make it public. Are things improving, we've identified some districts that not 39 only were they ones that did not perform well in the survey or had opportunities, but that's where we 40 heard from a lot of people who were struggling with, I don't know how to, you know, file a complaint,

1 I'm afraid I'm concerned. So, using the surveys, and then the 360s, for the judges, I think, creates a
2 system of accountability. And it's going to have the optics on it, where you'll know, geez, you know,
3 these we see improvements here, we don't see improvements over here, what's happening. So, we
4 believe that those tools are helpful and necessary to kind of change the dynamic and bring the different
5 districts together so that people who work within the judicial branch have a consistent experience. And 6 we can move the 70-63%, who like to work there up to 83%.

7

8 Rep. Weissman

9 Okay, thank you. I have one last question, which is back in all the way up and it's really procedural as to 10 how your work went? Page 8 or so of your report talks about how you accessed information and 11 navigated claims of privilege or confidentiality? Could you just summarize briefly, so you needed to 12 access a lot of information from within the Branch to put this together? And we have summaries here
13 that were fit for public consumption, or whatever the words were? I'm interested in how, regardless of 14 the final product, how you felt was or wasn't the thoroughness of what you were in fact able to access
15 versus what you would have liked? Did you receive things subjected to redaction? Did you become 16 aware of the existence of certain documents which you then sought out, could not get because of an 17 asserted claim of privilege or confidentiality, etc.?

18

19 Liz Rita

20 I can respond to that, I think primarily, we were able to access the documents that we asked for. That's a
21 simple answer. It's got a complicated, you know, sub narration, they were provided to us in a format
22 where we had to search and that isn't terribly typical in the work that we do, we were able to get some 23 assistance in sort of getting buckets, around 1,000s of pages of documents. And, frankly, I just looked 24 through almost everything because I didn't want to miss anything, I wanted to make sure we were being 25 thorough. We were not, we were not thwarted in our gathering of data by any argument of privilege or 26 receipt of redacted materials. In fact, I received a lot of materials that, you know, I couldn't put in the 27 report, because they, for example, were records from the Judicial Discipline Commission, you know,
28 which are confidential under state law. So, I didn't feel that we personally for our investigation ran into 29 those roadblocks. And so that's to answer your question about documentation. And were we able to get 30 what we needed. It took a little longer than we had hoped to get information. But let's face it, we were 31 we were really looking at a very broad set of issues. And it's not surprising, it took a long time for 32 people to compile the data that we needed. In terms of how we assessed what we could and couldn't put 33 in the report. I'm not sure if this is responsive to your question. But we're really careful to try not to 34 include things in the report that would identify individuals who had come to us and participated in this
35 process on our promise to keep their participation as confidential as we could. And we were also really 36 conscious about not putting in documentation that we knew shouldn't be disclosed under Colorado law.
37 Other than that, I didn't make any sort of assessment that something was too controversial, for example,
38 or something to appear. We just put it in there and the Department was invited, if anything in their in 39 their view was privileged or it shouldn't appear for some reason that they would redact it and to my 40 knowledge, they didn't redact anything. It just went forward as our draft.

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Okay. Thank you. I think in the interest of time, we should let you go there or we can let Senator
3 Gonzales have the last word.

4

5 Sen. Gonzales

6 Thank you, Mr. Chair for your indulgence. I want to echo Vice Chair Carver's commendations to you all
7 for the thorough investigations of the 16 allegations. I'm curious if, in the course of your investigation
8 and report, other allegations that were not reported came up. And whether I'm just curious how you
9 treated those. Sort of as following up from Chair Weissman's process question.

10

11 Liz Rita

12 Yes, the answer to the question is yes, other allegations came up. I wouldn't say, I don't know the 13 number from the top of my head. A number came up and we handled them in, I think two ways. We 14 included the data that was raised as part of our culture assessment. So, that data fed into the culture
15 assessment piece of the report. We also offered people to recommend that those be investigated
16 separately. And if somebody agreed that they wanted it investigated, we forwarded that back to SCAO
17 for their investigation. And that was sort of the end of our involvement in it.

18

19 Sen. Gonzales

20 Thank you.

21

22 Rep. Weissman

23 Okay. Again, thank you both for being available, especially as we ran a little bit over our original time.
24 We appreciate your presentation.

25

26 Liz Rita

27 Thank you for having us.

28

29 Rep. Weissman

30 All right. Last thing before a short lunch break will be Mr. Vasconcellos on behalf of the Judicial Branch 31 to kind of let us know the status of ongoing responses to the matters in the report.

32

33 Rep. Weissman

34 All right. Thanks for being patient with us. Please dive in however you like.

35

36 Steven Vasconcellos

37 Thank you. Excuse me. Thank you, Mr. Chair. Good afternoon committee. I will keep this under five 38 minutes. Happy to answer any questions either in real time that you'd like to ask, over the lunch hour, or 39 offline. For the record, my name is Steven Vasconcellos. I'm the State Court Administrator for the 40 Colorado Judicial Department. I did want to take a brief moment to thank the principal's at ILG, Ms.

1 Rita and Ms. McCord for their thorough, thoughtful report, and the recommendations on how to improve
2 the Judicial Department's workplace culture. Their insights are incredibly important, as we work to 3 critically examine and modernize our workplace, its policies, and practices. I am grateful that their 4 investigation did not identify widespread judicial misconduct. At the same time, no one should have to 5 endure workplace harassment, be unclear how to report it, or have to fear retaliation. I will tell you from 6 my own personal perspective, the degree to which folks expressed concerns about the availability of safe
7 reporting, and to the degree to which folks had personally observed retaliation was extraordinarily
8 troubling. The cornerstone of our work ahead is building a strong culture based on shared values that are 9 flexible enough to work in 22 different Judicial Districts, along with the appellate courts and the State
10 Court Administrator's Office. A culture that shares at its core, zero tolerance for harassment and 11 retaliation. Updated policies and training are important, but not nearly enough on their own. Our 12 ultimate goal is to repair the foundations of a safe workplace, increase public trust and confidence in the 13 judiciary. And to increase trust within the judicial department among its 4,000 employees. Transparency
14 and accountability will be necessary to meet these goals. Our success will turn on several factors. Our 15 ability to build a strong shared workplace culture, to have safe reporting mechanisms to hold 16 perpetrators of misconduct accountable, to regularly report on our progress, as we continue to invest in 17 the health of the Judiciary, and maybe most importantly, for everyone in the organization, regardless of 18 position to demonstrate and be held to the same standard of excellence. The branch has 4,000
19 hardworking employees and judicial officers and in turn the people and communities they serve deserve 20 no less.

21
22 I'd like to move briefly into our preliminary efforts and what we've done since we've received the report.
23 Obviously, we've done some follow up work with both RCT and ILG, asking additional questions about 24 their recommendations of how the recommendations might work together in concert. Chief Justice
25 Boatright, Justice Marquez, and myself have already met with key leadership constituencies around the 26 State. Court executives, Chief Probation Officers and Clerks of Court both to describe the report, answer
27 questions about the report and solicit feedback on moving forward. We are scheduled to meet next week
28 with the Chief Judges in the four Judicial Districts that were highlighted in the ILG culture survey. We 29 are scheduling, actively scheduling listening sessions for our 4,000 employees to give them multiple 30 opportunities to tell us their thoughts, to give us their feedback. It's very important that this process not 31 be some sort of top down only initiative. This there needs to be a strong grassroots element to what 32 we're doing here. I think if the staff across the state don't see their fingerprints on this work, they're not 33 going to have a connection to it in a meaningful way. And we won't be able to sustain the changes that 34 we need to make. I apologize for my voice.

35
36 Additionally, at the Judicial Conference next month in September, Chief Justice Boatright and Justice
37 Marquez will be speaking at a plenary session to all of the judges in the State to help set expectations
38 about why the investment in culture is so critically important. And the key role that judges as leaders
39 will play in moving forward. As I look ahead, there's sort of three main categories of operational
40 components to our implementation work in the near term. One is policies and procedures. If you've read

1 both the ILG and RCT reports, you know that there's several areas identified in policy and procedure
2 that either need to be updated, substantially reworked, or created from scratch. That work has already
3 begun. And that work will take some time. But that is sort of in the category of low hanging fruit that 4 can be done out of the gate. There are also structural enhancements.

5
6 Particularly I'd like to point to the creation of the Office of People and Culture that ILG has 7 recommended, along with better tools around safe reporting pathways for both confidential and 8 anonymous reporting. And, you know, there's been a lot of really good discussion and questions and 9 debate about the role of an ombuds. And how big is their scope? Who should they report to? I think it's 10 challenging to have a single ombuds person fielding inquiries from a body of 4,000 people that cover the 11 range from concerns about how to address an issue with a coworker, to allegations of misconduct by a 12 judicial officer. And so, as already been mentioned, nothing new here, having really laser like clarity, in 13 the role and scope of the position, who they report to. It is going to be incredibly important. Because,
14 you know, by volume, I think the most common area of, I'm not saying it's the most important, but 15 certainly the most common area that ombudsman is going to come into play is sort of the well called 16 basic personnel action that doesn't involve a judge and help having guidance and a place to land when 17 they don't know where to go. That doesn't get us away from a very profound need to clarify our 18 processes, better market our processes, so folks understand where to go for complaints in a formal 19 setting with if they want to make a formal complaint. What the life of that complaint looks like? How 20 they expect to be treated through that process? All of that work needs to be done. But there will still be 21 people who are not sure where to go and want to engage with an ombudsman. The most common place
22 that's going to be is on a kind of employee-to-employee conflict level, that's probably our most common
23 thing that our HR department has to address. I think in that context. I don't see a problem, per se, with 24 the ombudsman being part of you know, the Judiciary being part of the Judicial Department itself.

25
26 But, you know, our organization has statutory reporting obligations that were clarified in Senate Bill
27 201, this last session around judicial misconduct to the Commission on Judicial Discipline. And one
28 thing I want to be very careful about, there was a lot of discussion about, you know, HR investigation in 29 parallel with commission reporting and investigation. How does that all tie together? I think they're, I
30 think when we're talking about judicial officer involved events, we're talking about something slightly
31 different. Well, not slightly different, very different than what we're talking about with, say something
32 employee on employee. When it's a judicial officer involved allegation. There's a timeline in which once
33 say, for example, I'm made aware of information. There's a timeline statutorily now that I have to report 34 to the Commission on Judicial Discipline. That has to be met. I have a statutory obligation. Our 35 organization, every member of our organization shares that statutory obligation. There is not a
36 traditional HR investigation, vis-a-vis the violation of personnel rules. We are not a regulatory body
37 over judges. The Commission on Judicial Discipline is, and to a different degree, the Office of Attorney
38 Regulation Counsel. Those processes need to be honored. And they are separate from HR, our HR teams
39 role in an incident that involves a judge is to help ensure complainant safety. Is the complainant in a
40 position where they are safe to perform their job. If they are not, what do we need to do to help ensure

1 that employee safety? And then information gathering, not investigation. What information do we need
2 to gather to be compliant with our statutory obligations? And so I see that on the kind of the HR /
3 Commission, you know, do they parallel. I think they're separate processes. I think our HR Department
4 has a different obligation, a different set of duties as it relates to an incident with judges versus if it's 5 staff on staff. So, anyway, the implementation of Office of People and Culture, some really profound
6 need for modernization around complaint handling, particularly as it relates to employee complaints.
7 And we're very open and have had extended discussion with the principals at ILG about kind of those 8 modern reporting tools.

9
10 And it may not surprise you that we will be asking for the General Assembly support for some 11 additional resources to help implement, fully implement successfully, these recommendations. Not 12 everything will require new resources but I think particularly standing up an Office of People and 13 Culture and some of the reporting tools that we need to invest in are not things we have within our 14 existing resources. More to say, in the interest of time, I'll cut it short. Plus, I think you guys have more
15 time with me this afternoon. So, I'm happy to answer any questions that committee might have at this 16 point.

17
18 Rep. Weissman

19 All right, thank you. Um, one quick question. We heard previously, that a lot of the employees the 4,000 20 plus folks who work for the branch, may not be aware of exactly how to raise up a complaint to the 21 Commission if they feel that they need to. I would imagine that the Branch has an employee handbook,
22 maybe several for different positions. A bailiff is not the same as a PO, isn't the same as a clerk etc. And 23 I would also imagine there's some kind of new hire orientation or orientations. Is there any reference in 24 either of those to the fact of the CJD to how to report to it in the event that an employee has an incident
25 with a judicial officer that might implicate the jurisdiction of the Commission?

26
27 Steven Vasconcellos

28 Thank you, Mr. Chair. No, and that's one of our key gaps right now. I mean, I think if you look at our 29 personnel rules, our employee handbooks, the supporting documentation, it just does not at all
30 adequately address what happens when I mean, I think it's more clear, and then we can do a better job
31 than we're doing today. But I think it's more clear about what happens when you're having difficulties
32 with a coworker. It is not at all adequate. When it comes to what happens if you are say experiencing 33 maltreatment from a judicial officer.

34
35 Rep. Weissman

36 I appreciate your candor and answering. I urge a speedy rectification of that that absence. Committee 37 other questions? All right. And as you noted, sir, we will hear more from Mr. Vasconcelos in 38 conjunction with members from the Commission on another part of our agenda at 2:30. If there are no
39 questions, we will take a recess. Members, we have 15 or 20 minutes to go find a quick lunch. I do want

- 1 to get us going at one o'clock so we can keep the time out of respect for our witnesses. Until then, the
- 2 interim committee will be in recess.

Appendix 27(s)(iii)(13)

Relevant Exhibits and Hearing Materials:

Appendix 27(s)(iii)(13)(a)

Letter from Thomas Neville to the Interim
Comm. on Jud. Discipline, July 29, 2022;

STATE COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL PERFORMANCE

www.ojpe.org

July 29, 2022

Members of the Legislative Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline,

Thomas D. Neville, Chair
Richard Benenson
Jan Burton
Lindsay Daugherty
Bart Dorscheid
Mark Fogg
Ledy R. Garcia-Eckstein
Barbora Hurd
Alan Loeb
Keith Massey
Dennis K. Obduskey
Commissioners

Kent J. Wagner
Executive Director

1300 Broadway
Suite 220
Denver, Colorado 80203
(303) 928-7777

Colorado's Commissions on Judicial Performance ("JPCs") were created by the legislature to establish a comprehensive system of evaluating judicial performance to provide persons voting on the retention of judges and justices with fair, responsible, and constructive information about individual judicial performance C.R.S 13-5.5-101(2)(b) (2019). One of the other important roles the JPCs serve is to provide initial and interim evaluations to assist judges in improving their performance which helps ensure the quality of Colorado's judiciary. Interim evaluations provide judges with valuable feedback on how to better meet the statutory criteria C.R.S. 13-5.5-109 (2019). This feedback helps judges who are already meeting standards excel and can help struggling judges improve via a performance improvement plan C.R.S. 13-5.5-110 (2019). In evaluating individual judges, commissioners review survey reports of collected responses from attorneys and non-attorneys who have appeared before the judge, case management data, review written opinions and orders, conduct courtroom observations, review information provided to the commission by interested individuals either in writing or through interviews, and conduct an interview with the judge. JPCs are limited to evaluating statutorily defined criteria: integrity, legal knowledge, communication skills, judicial temperament, administrative performance, and service to the legal profession and the public by participating in service-oriented efforts designed to educate the public about the legal system and improve the legal system C.R.S 13-5.5-107 (2019). Current statutory language and rules governing JPCs are silent on the use of disciplinary information from the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline in the evaluation process.

The evaluation narratives published for use by voters have long been criticized for not providing information about a judge or justice's disciplinary record, if any. This criticism is understandable where disciplinary issues relate to the statutory criteria JPCs apply in evaluating judges. Colorado Rules of Judicial Discipline Rule 6.5(d)(4) provides, that under certain circumstances, confidentiality does not apply to disclosures:

In response to an inquiry by the Office of Judicial Performance Evaluation ("Judicial Performance") if the Commission determines, in its discretion, that disclosure to Judicial Performance is consistent with its Constitutional mandate under Rule 1(b) and on the condition that Judicial Performance will not publicly disclose such information or its source without independent verification by Judicial Performance.

While this rule permits the Commission on Judicial Discipline to provide some information to JPCs, it severely limits how JPCs could use non-public information. In early 2022 the State Commission sought cooperation from the Commission on Judicial Discipline to develop joint rules that would expand sharing information regarding judicial discipline records between the two commissions. In part, because of the current investigations addressing judicial misconduct, these discussions were postponed until there is some resolution of the issues currently before the Interim Legislative Committee on Judicial Discipline.

To better fulfill their statutory and constitutional obligations, JCPs should have access to information of judicial discipline maintained by the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline. Providing JCPs access to disciplinary information bearing on statutory retention criteria can only enhance public confidence in the narrative evaluations prepared by JCPs and the value of interim evaluations for improving judicial performance. Access to that information under the current rules will require careful study and consideration by the two commissions because disciplinary information only becomes public once the Commission on Judicial Discipline files a recommendation for “removal, retirement, suspension, censure, reprimand, or discipline” with the supreme court. As a result, any new rules governing how JCPs use disciplinary information must ensure that non-public disciplinary information remains confidential while providing guidance on how JCPs can take such information into account in evaluating whether judges meet the statutory criteria. However, if the Constitution were amended so disciplinary information became public at an earlier stage in the Commission on Judicial Discipline’s work—at the end of the investigation phase or beginning of the formal proceedings stage for example—JCPs would be able to access and use that information as part of their evaluation process, perhaps without complex rules and procedures defined by the two commissions. In most cases under the current rules, by the time disciplinary information becomes public and JCPs can directly refer to disciplinary information in their evaluations, the issue is moot. By that point, the judge has either decided not to stand for retention or resigned, and judicial performance evaluations are not conducted or not published.

The Commission on Judicial Discipline did not provide a recommendation to the Interim Committee for when discipline proceedings/information should become available (CCJD Report page 21). JCPs also do not have a specific recommendation as to the “borderline” between when information remains confidential and is available to the public. Colorado’s Judicial Performance Commissions ask that discipline information be made available to the public at an earlier stage in the Colorado Judicial Discipline process. If that occurred, JCPs would be able to use the information at a stage in their evaluations to better assist the judge with performance improvement recommendations or making decisions regarding retention. Again, it would be unlikely that any additional rules or legislative changes would be required if the information was public and accessible at an earlier stage.

On behalf of the State Commission,

/s/ Thomas Neville

Thomas Neville, Chair

Appendix 27(s)(iii)(13)(b)

Colo. Women's Bar Assoc.,
RECOMMENDATIONS ON THE JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE INTERIM COMMITTEE AREAS OF STUDY SENATE BILL 22-201, August 3, 2022;

Executive Summary
CWBA Comments to the Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline

- Modernize the complaint process to allow filing online and to eliminate unnecessary barriers like notarization.
- Clarify the Commission’s ability to accept anonymously filed complaints and explain the Commission’s process when an anonymous complaint is filed.
- Make judicial discipline opinions publicly accessible and searchable online.
- Require the Commission to prepare annual reports with statistics about complaints filed, including information regarding disposition, subject matter, and demographics.
- Add recusal provisions and disqualification standards for Commissioners and judges who review the Commission’s recommendations, including a process for challenging a recusal decision.
- Create an objective mechanism for replacing judges who are conflicted out of a proceeding. For example, if a Supreme Court Justice is the subject of a judicial investigation, statute should clearly identify how a new panel of judges is selected to review the recommendation of the Commission. Several examples of statutory language from other states are provided in our comments.
- Require that the disciplinary process be made public upon the initiation of a formal proceeding. This change would allow for greater transparency and bolster the deterrent effect of disciplinary proceedings. Several examples of statutory language from other states are provided in our written comments.
- Require that the Commission create a system to identify emerging patterns of problematic behavior as reflected in received complaints (even non-actionable complaints) and alert the respective judges of those patterns for educational and reform purposes.
- Allow information sharing between the Commission on Judicial Performance and the Commission on Judicial Discipline when there has been misconduct relevant to both bodies. The recommendation from the Institute for the Advancement of the American Legal System discussed in our comments provides several state models on this topic.

- Adopt a process that keeps victims informed and protected throughout the disciplinary proceeding, including notification rights, the option to participate in the proceeding, and the right to provide input. The Colorado’s Victim Rights Act (VCRA), (CRS 24.4.1-300.1-303) provides a useful framework for defining the term “victim” and centering the needs of victims in this kind of process. Certain university disciplinary processes discussed in our comments are also useful models for a victim-centered approach.
- Revise the requirements regarding the makeup of the Commission’s membership to ensure that there is gender, racial, cultural, and disability diversity, in addition to the current requirements ensuring geographic representation and participation from judges, lawyers, and non-lawyers.

Date: August 3, 2022

To: The Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline

From: The Colorado Women's Bar Association

Regarding: Recommendations on the Judicial Discipline Interim Committee Areas of Study Senate Bill 22-201, independent oversight of matters concerning judicial discipline

The Colorado Women's Bar Association ("CWBA") thanks the Interim Committee for the opportunity to provide comment on several areas of study pursuant to Senate Bill 22-201. The CWBA reviewed the eighteen areas of study presented to this Committee in Senate Bill 22-201 and has identified nine areas that are priority to its membership:

- Section One
 - Effectiveness
 - Balancing public confidence and judicial control
- Section Two
 - Independence
 - Supreme Court Justice misconduct
 - Disqualification standards
- Section Three
 - Confidentiality and transparency
- Section Four
 - Victim-centered approach
- Section Five
 - Judicial appointments
 - Recommendations

As there is substantial overlap between these topics, some are addressed together in a single section. The CWBA also thanks the contributors to this product; Ariana Busby, Megan Cronin, Alison Connaughty, Becky Crotty, Emma Garrison, Brooke Meyer, and Carlos Romo. Please consider the following written research-based commentary, and attachments, for the position of the CWBA on these areas.

Though this memo contains CWBA's position, the recommendations in this memo were informed by input from a broad range of affected stakeholders, including CWBA membership, the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline, the Colorado

Judicial Branch, and the various diversity bar associations that comprise the CBA/DBA Presidents' Diversity Council, some of whom assisted with our research.

I. Effectiveness and Balancing Public Confidence and Judicial Control

- Effectiveness. Effectiveness of investigating and addressing the allegations of mishandling judicial misconduct complaints published in 2021;¹
- Balancing public confidence and judicial control. Whether a system of judicial discipline can be effective and inspire public confidence while retaining judicial control of final decision-making authority over judicial discipline cases;

Several available measures could make the Judicial Discipline Commission Process more effective and readily available to those who might seek its process and, in turn, increase public confidence in the system. These measures include:

1. Complaint Process

- a. First, modernization. The commission should eliminate unnecessary barriers to complaint filing (called a Request for Evaluation of Judicial Conduct), such as notarization, and provide for online filing. The current complaint form has to be downloaded and printed, filled out, then signed, and mailed or emailed. A form can also be mailed or faxed to the victim or reporting party upon request. An online complaint submission (similar to what the Department of Regulatory Agencies does for other professions, or the Office of Attorney Regulations Counsel does for attorney complaints), with the option of a handwritten form, would increase efficiency and accessibility.

- i. Please see examples of the DORA complaint forms here:

<https://dora.colorado.gov/file-complaint>

- ii. Please see examples of the Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel complaint form here:

<https://coloradosupremecourt.com/Complaints/FAQ.asp#:~:text=To%20file%20a%20complaint%20against%20an%20attorney%2C%20contact,registration%20number%2C%20address%2C%20law%20firm%2C%20and%20phone%20number.>

¹ Bulleted and underlined text taken from Senate Bill 22-201.

COLORADO WOMEN'S BAR ASSOCIATION

- iii. Please see an example of an online complaint form for judicial misconduct on the New York State Commission on Judicial Conduct website: <https://cjc.ny.gov/>

2. Anonymous Complaints

- a. Second, the complaint rules or instructions should clarify whether the commission will accept anonymous complaints. Commission websites should advise complainants of the extent of their legitimate expectation of anonymity. It is the CWBA's understanding that anonymous complaints are allowed. However, that process is not clearly set out on the website and it is not mentioned in the Rules of Judicial Discipline. Further, the Commission should review any policies that restrict complainants or subject judges from discussing complaints publicly, consistent with the First Amendment.

- i. Please see an example of New York's anonymous complaint procedures at page 4 of the New York State Commission on Judicial Conduct:
<https://cjc.ny.gov/Legal.Authorities/NYSCJC.PolicyManual.pdf>
("The Commission may authorize investigation of anonymous complaints that are sufficiently detailed and allege conduct that, if true, would constitute misconduct. An anonymous complaint authorized for investigation shall be treated as a complaint brought by the Commission on its own motion pursuant to Judiciary Law §44(2).")
- ii. Please see the Arizona Commission on Judicial Conduct's FAQ section on its website, explaining the complaint process and other questions, including confidentiality:
<https://www.azcourts.gov/azcjc/Frequently-Asked-Questions>
("Section 2.f. Is My Complaint Confidential? . . . [A]ll complaints become public at some point. The degree and timing of the public disclosures depend on how a complaint is resolved. . . . Most information that is available to the public is available on th[e] website.") See AZ ST J COND COMM Rule 9 (2021).

3. Accessibility of information

- a. The decisions of the Judicial Discipline Commission should be more readily available online and detailed statistical information about decisions should be made available. Please see Section Three on confidentiality for further discussion on the contents of those orders. The Judicial Discipline Commission does not appear to make its orders readily available online. Though the Commission mentions both private and public discipline in its annual report, little information is disclosed. The 2020 report has a bulleted list of examples of previous discipline, but not how often it occurred or the nature of the outcome. No aggregate disciplinary record is available. While some numbers are reported (number of complaints, etc.), the report contains little statistical analysis. Commission orders—at least in non-dismissed cases—should be available online, searchable, and with guides or filters to identify different types of orders. The Commission should provide summary statistics on Commission activity and consider posting judges' aggregate disciplinary record, as state bars generally do as to lawyers.

COLORADO WOMEN'S BAR ASSOCIATION

- b. Statutory amendments could require these reports; for example, the CWBA recommends amendment of Colorado Revised Statute § 13-5.3-103(2)(b)(VII)-(VIII), which presently requires the Executive Director to maintain Commission Records and Statistics. The CWBA also recommends an amendment to Colorado Revised Statute § 13-5.3-102, which governs the Commission on Judicial Discipline's powers and duties, to codify this information sharing.
 - i. Please see the New York State Commission on Judicial Conduct website as an example of a searchable database and easily accessible aggregated data:
https://cjc.ny.gov/Determinations/all_decisions.html
 - ii. Please see the Pennsylvania website on Judicial Discipline for another example of a searchable database:
<https://www.pacourts.us/courts/court-of-judicial-discipline/court-cases>.
 - iii. Please also see the Arizona Commission on Judicial Conduct's website, public discipline is searchable by year:
<https://www.azcourts.gov/azcjc/Public-Decisions>
 - iv. Texas statute requires that an annual report be prepared and submitted to the legislature each year regarding the number of complaints finalized within a statutory period of filing. Tex. Gov't Code § 33.040. A provision like this should be adopted, specifying statistical information including (1) number of complaints filed, (2) number of complaints deemed frivolous, (3) how complaints were ultimately disposed, (4) general subject matter of complaints, and (5) demographic information regarding the complainants and the investigated judicial officers for each category complaints discussed.

COLORADO WOMEN'S BAR ASSOCIATION

- v. Further, a Texas statute – effective only September 2022 to September 2023 – requires the judicial conduct commission to prepare a report for the legislature with “recommendations for statutory changes that would improve the commission’s effectiveness, efficiency, and transparency in filing, investigating, and processing any complaint filed with the commission.” Tex. Gov’t Code § 33.041. Something similar could be considered to keep the dialogue on this issue going beyond this Interim Committee and could also include request for an analogous report from the judicial branch.

II. Independence, Supreme Court Justice Misconduct, and Disqualification Standards

- Independence. How to achieve a system of judicial discipline in which individual cases are investigated and determined independent of undue influence by the judiciary, to be overseen by the community, the bar, and the judiciary;
- Supreme Court Justice misconduct. How to address judicial discipline effectively and credibly when members, actions, or decisions of the supreme court are being evaluated for potential judicial misconduct;
- Disqualification standards. The appropriate method for defining a consistent and clear set of disqualification standards for each of the decision makers, including supreme court justices, commission members, special counsel, and special masters, and for determining disqualification issues;

The CWBA recommends adding recusal provisions and disqualification standards to the current framework of rules, statutes, and constitutional provisions to improve the present disqualification process for all parties to the Judicial Discipline Commission process.

1. Disqualification Rules for Commissioners
 - a. With respect to disqualification rules for commissioners: Recusal rules should address “recurring issues, such as when judge-commissioner sits on the same, collegial court as the respondent-judge or knows or believes some good or bad fact about the respondent-judge.” Recommendations for Judicial Discipline Systems, IAALS, July 2018, p. 7. The Colorado Rules of Judicial Discipline Rule 3.5(d) and 3.5(g)

set out rules regarding appearances of impropriety and disqualification. These rules appear comprehensive but do not contain a provision for challenging a Commission member's recusal decision. If a Commission member does not recuse on a particular matter, there should be a mechanism for review of that decision, possibly by the Executive Director or, alternatively, a rotating Supreme Court Justice.

2. Disqualification Rules for Judiciary Participants

- a. With respect to disqualification rules for judiciary participants: Colorado Code of Judicial Conduct Rule 2.11 sets out disqualification standards that judges must follow. While this rule should naturally and automatically extend to judges' review of the Commission's work, the CWBA recommends application of the specific recusal and disqualification scenarios of Colorado Rules of Judicial Discipline Rule 3.5(d) and 3.5(g) to any judges who are reviewing the work of the Commission. Likewise, the CWBA recommends implementing a mechanism to challenge a judge's decision not to recuse from a particular proceeding.

3. Creation of a replacement panel of judges for when one judge is conflicted off a proceeding

- a. Upon a judge's recusal from a proceeding, a codified mechanism must exist to replace that judge in the disciplinary process. Several other states provide models that Colorado can look to for writing these new recusal standards.

In Indiana, all supreme court justices, except the chief justice, are required to recuse from review of a discipline case involving a justice. Upon the justices' recusal, the clerk of the supreme court and court of appeals randomly select six court of appeals' members to join the chief justice on the panel. The commission and the respondent justice each strike one judge from that selection, so the final panel consists of the chief justice plus four judges. If the commission or the justice does not strike a judge, the clerk strikes one "at random in their stead."

In Minnesota, review is "heard by a panel consisting of the Chief Judge of the court of appeals or designee and six others chosen at random from among the judges of the court of appeals by the Chief Judge or designee."

COLORADO WOMEN'S BAR ASSOCIATION

In California, a tribunal of seven court of appeals' judges selected by lot reviews a Commission on Judicial Performance's determination to admonish or censure a judge or former justice of the supreme court or remove or retire a justice of the supreme court. Ca. Const. Article VI section 8.

In Massachusetts, there is a default roster in place when a supreme court justice is being investigated: "[t]he chief justice and the six most senior justices of the appeals court other than the chief justice shall serve in the place of the supreme judicial court when charges are brought against a member of the supreme judicial court." (<https://malegislature.gov/Laws/GeneralLaws/PartIII/TitleI/Chapter211C/Section9>).

III. Confidentiality and Transparency

- Confidentiality and transparency. The best method of balancing the values of confidentiality and transparency for judicial discipline matters;

The CWBA recommends modifying the present constitutional provision (by introducing a referred measure) that mandates confidentiality until the conclusion of formal proceeding. An amended constitutional provision should remove confidentiality upon a formal proceeding's filing. The current constitutional provisions undermine the potential deterrent effect of disciplinary proceedings. Further, modification of the current confidentiality provisions would allow for greater transparency of the overall process.

The CWBA cites the IAALS Recommendations for Judicial Discipline Systems, published in 2018. (Attached as Exhibit One). Colorado has already incorporated a lot of the recommendations contained in the IAALS white paper. The CWBA endorses IAALS' recommendation to amend Colorado Constitution Article VI, Section 23(3)(a) to include recommendations and best practices on diversity of power and authority, separation of the commission's investigation powers from its adjudicatory powers and making proceedings public upon a formal complaint's filing.

To promote greater transparency, the CWBA endorses IAALS' recommendation that the Commission look for emerging patterns of problematic behavior as reflected in received complaints (even non-actionable complaints) and alert the respective judges of those patterns for educational and reform purposes.

Additionally, administrators of judicial performance evaluations should share misconduct as appropriate with disciplinary authorities. While records concerning attorney discipline are made available to the judges who oversee the judicial appointment process, the CWBA recommends extending this information-sharing to Judicial Discipline Commission actions concerning judges who apply for a position in a higher court. The CWBA also recommends implementation of additional measures to promote transparency, such as listing Judicial Discipline opinions in a readily available and searchable database.

The CWBA also cites Judicial Disciplinary Hearings Should Be Open, by Robert H. Tembeckjian. Tembeckjian argues that judicial disciplinary hearings should be public based on (i) the Sixth Amendment’s “guarantee that criminal trials shall be public;” (ii) most civil proceedings are public under federal and state laws; and (iii) debates that shaped the drafting of the Constitution. Judicial Disciplinary Hearings, p. 419. Of the 35 states with public judicial disciplinary hearings, the majority’s proceedings become public upon conclusion of the investigation phase and the filing of formal charges. In the remaining 15 states, the proceeding does not become public until imposition of discipline on the theory that a public proceeding would cause a judge who may eventually be exonerated [to] suffer irreparable harm[.]”Id. pg 420. On the flipside, however, non-public proceedings make the process seem “sudden and mysterious,” and undermine the public’s confidence. Id. pg 421.

Tembeckjian draws a parallel between disciplinary hearings and the criminal process, and in doing so, he argues the filing of charges (or the initiation of a disciplinary proceeding) is the proper removal of confidentiality. At the time the article was published, the ABA Model Rules for Judicial Disciplinary Enforcement recommended confidential investigations but public formal disciplinary proceedings; the American Judicature Society took a similar position in 1996. Id. pg 424.

Finally, the CWBA cites the National Center for State Courts Study on Judicial Discipline Sanctions. At the time of publication, more than 80% of complaints investigated by judicial conduct committees were dismissed without filing formal charges. NCSC Study on Judicial Discipline, pg 3. The “general purpose of judicial discipline proceedings is preserving the integrity of the judicial system and public confidence in the system.” Id. pg 3. In one instance in California, a judge who was sanctioned by the California Supreme Court was reelected to the bench because the public “has only limited knowledge of her improprieties” since the disciplinary proceedings had remained confidential until after the election.” Id. pg 5. The study suggests that confidential proceedings lead to an uninformed public that consequently and unwittingly reelects an unfit judge. The study also found that most removal cases “involve more than one act of misconduct or a continuing failure to act.” Id. pg 60. In Colorado, the public could potentially be asked to vote on the retention of a judge who has faced disciplinary proceedings when that public is not fully informed on a judge’s performance.

COLORADO WOMEN'S BAR ASSOCIATION

Overall, the article underscores that a number of factors—some obvious, others less so—are considered in a judicial disciplinary proceeding (see a specific list of factors on pages 81 through 82). “There is no magic formula for balancing aggravating and mitigating factors that would reduce the sanction decision in all cases to a science, resulting in sanctions with which no reasonable person could disagree.” Id. pg 83. Public proceedings would inform the public that “judges are held to a higher level of scrutiny than are ordinary lawyers” (pg 79, citing In re Inquiry Concerning a Judge, 788 P.2d 716, 723 (Alaska 1990). The study contends that “part of the purpose of judicial discipline is to deter other judges and to reassure the public that the judiciary does not tolerate judicial misconduct . . . and should be treated as other important decisions by the court and be made available on a web-site, in the court’s official reporter, and in the regional reporter.” Id. pg 83.

Please see below for language from other states that make proceedings public upon filing of charges and not the conclusion of a proceeding:

Alabama	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Proceedings of the Judicial Inquiry Commission are kept confidential except the fact that a complaint has been filed with the Court of the Judiciary; confidentiality is maintained during the Commission’s investigation; Commission is to act as an impartial investigator. • https://judicial.alabama.gov/appellate/jic
Alaska	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • “All investigative records, files, and reports of the commission are confidential and no disclosure may be made except as permitted by AS 22.30.060. All confidential documents acquired in the course of a commission investigation shall be accorded the same confidentiality as commission-generated documents.” • When Commission has finished its investigation, it discloses either (i) that no basis for action was found against the judge; (ii) appropriate corrective action that cannot be disclosed has been taken; or (iii) Committee has filed a formal charge against the judge. • Judge can choose to waive confidentiality. • Alaska Jud. Cond. Comm. R. 5 (current through July 14, 2022)
Arkansas	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • All investigatory records, files, and reports of the Commission shall be kept confidential except: (a) upon written waiver of judge; upon inquiry by an appointing authority in connection with the selection or appointment of judges; upon inquiry in connection with the assignment or recall of a retired judge to

COLORADO WOMEN'S BAR ASSOCIATION

	judicial duties; or (b) if, after the investigation, the Commission reasonably believes that there has been a violation of any rules of professional conduct or a violation of criminal law. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • To note, the show cause portion of the hearing is not open to the public, only the formal disciplinary hearing is open to the public. • https://www.jddc.arkansas.gov/wp-content/uploads/2020/05/Statement_of_Confidentiality.pdf
California	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • “Under the California Constitution and the commission’s rules, complaints to the commission and commission investigations are confidential. The commission ordinarily cannot confirm or deny that a complaint has been received or that an investigation is under way. Persons contacted by the commission during an investigation are advised regarding the confidentiality requirements. After the commission orders formal proceedings, the charges and all subsequently filed documents are made available for public inspection. Any hearing on the charges is also public.” • https://cjp.ca.gov/complaint_process/
Connecticut	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • “Any investigation to determine whether or not there is probable cause that conduct [prohibited under statute/rule]has occurred shall be confidential and any individual called by the council for the purpose of providing information shall not disclose his knowledge of such investigation to a third party prior to the decision of the council on whether probable cause exists, unless the respondent requests that such investigation and disclosure be open, provided information known or obtained independently of any such investigation shall not be confidential . . . If a preliminary investigation indicates that probable cause exists that the judge, compensation commissioner, or family support magistrate is guilty of [prohibited] conduct . . . , the council shall hold a hearing concerning the conduct or complaint. All hearings held pursuant to this subsection shall be open[.]” • https://portal.ct.gov/JRC/Left-Nav/statutes/Governing-Statutes
Georgia	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Before formal charges are filed, “all information regarding a disciplinary or incapacity matter of a judge shall be kept confidential by the Investigative Panel and Commission staff before formal charges are filed and served; provided, however, that if prior to filing formal charges the judge and the Investigative Panel agree to a satisfactory disposition of a disciplinary matter other than by a private admonition or

COLORADO WOMEN'S BAR ASSOCIATION

	deferred discipline agreement, a report of such disposition shall be publicly filed in the Supreme Court[.]” <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Once the formal charges are filed, all pleadings and information shall be subject to disclosure to the public. • However, “with respect to an incapacity matter of a judge, all pleadings, information, hearings, and proceedings shall remain confidential[.]” • https://casetext.com/rule/georgia-court-rules/rules-of-the-judicial-qualifications-commission-of-georgia/section-ii-general-provisions/rule-11-confidentiality
Louisiana	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The Louisiana Supreme Court adopted several substantive amendments to its Judicial Discipline Rules, in 2020 and 2021, including hearings on allegations of judicial misconduct that have been investigated will now be public, as will the record and results of the formal proceedings. LA ST S CT Rule 23, § 23 (2020). • If a judge is admonished, any additional admonishments within a judge’s term of office (ten years for appellate court judges and six years for district court and other judges) shall now be public. • Information will be made available about confidential non-disciplinary dispositions on the supreme court’s website and in supreme court publications.
Texas	Tex. Gov’t Code § 33.032 (https://statutes.capitol.texas.gov/Docs/GV/htm/GV.33.htm#33.0321) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The formal hearing and any evidence introduced during the formal hearing, including papers, records, documents, and pleadings filed with the clerk, shall be public. • The disciplinary record of a judge, including any private sanctions, is admissible in a subsequent proceeding before the commission, a special master, a special court of review, or a review tribunal. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • A voluntary agreement to resign from judicial office in lieu of disciplinary action by the commission shall be public on the commission’s acceptance of the agreement.

Additionally, Massachusetts – which generally does not allow any information to be disclosed –allows its Commission on Judicial Conduct to share information deemed relevant with its judicial nominating body simply by providing written notice to the judge. The pertinent statute provides the commission with the authority to create procedures to divulge information when “any federal agency, the judicial nominating council, or any like agency for screening candidates for judicial appointment . . . seeks information or written materials from the commission concerning a judge, in connection with his selection or appointment as a judge.” (<http://malegislature.gov/Laws/GeneralLaws/PartIII/TitleI/Chapter211C/Section5>).

The Massachusetts Commission’s current rule provides that

[T]he Commission may:

- (a) divulge whatever information is a matter of public record; and
- (b) after obtaining the judge’s signed waiver, divulge other relevant information; or
- (c) divulge other relevant information after giving written notice to the judge affected of its intention to do so and allowing the judge seven (7) days to respond.

(<https://www.mass.gov/professional-conduct-rules/commission-on-judicial-conduct-rule-5-confidentiality>.)

Finally, the CWBA recommends reinforcing the sharing of information between the Commission on Judicial Performance and the Commission on Judicial Discipline. This would also increase transparency in discipline proceedings and in our state judicial retention process.

As part of IAALS 15 Recommendations: Recommendation 3 says in part: "Administrators of judicial performance evaluations should share misconduct as appropriate with disciplinary authorities." Some states that share disciplinary information with performance evaluations are:

- Alaska Performance evaluation tracks public files from the state Commission on Judicial Conduct, as well as recusal filings, peremptory challenge filings, and conflict-of-interest forms.
- Arizona requires its Commission on Judicial Performance Review (JPR) to obtain information from the state’s Commission on Judicial Conduct about any discipline that has been imposed on any evaluated judge. The language on Arizona's website says:

The Commission on Judicial Performance Review shall carefully consider:

- (1) statistical reports of the survey results;
- (2) comments from public hearings, Rule 6 (d);
- (3) written comments from the public, Rule 6 (d);
- (4) written or oral comment to the Commission submitted by the judge being reviewed, Rule 6 (e);
- (5) its own factual report relating to a judge, Rule 6 (e);
- (6) the information obtained from the Commission on Judicial Conduct;
- (7) the assignment of the judge (civil, criminal, domestic relations, juvenile, administrative, probate, special assignment, etc.); and
- (8) a comparison of the judge's scores with the mean scores of all judges reviewed, Rule 6 (e).

· Utah performance standards, require that judges “not be the subject of more than one public reprimand issued by the Judicial Conduct Commission for the current term; . . . Utah Supreme Court. Utah Code Section 78A-12-205 (2022)

https://le.utah.gov/xcode/Title78A/Chapter12/78A-12-S205.html?v=C78A-12-S205_2022021120220211

IV. Victim-centered Approach

- Victim -centered approach. Benefits of a victim-centered approach to judicial misconduct complaints that allows the victim to have a voice in how complaints are handled and resolved;

A process that keeps victims informed throughout the disciplinary process is of great importance to the CWBA.

The CWBA could not locate a model in another state that codifies victims’ rights in judicial discipline proceedings. Such a model would apparently make Colorado a vanguard of judicial discipline reform.

Colorado’s Victim Rights Act (VCRA), codified at Colorado revised Statute section 24.4.1-300.1-303, provides helpful guidance. First, the term “victim” must be properly defined with respect to disciplinary proceedings and who is entitled to be considered as that title. At the very least, the term should apply to the subjects of harassment and discrimination. The term should also be considered for reporting parties whose pending cases are potentially impacted by judicial misconduct findings. And, as with VCRA victims, judicial discipline victims must be entitled to notice and an opportunity to be heard in the disciplinary process.

COLORADO WOMEN'S BAR ASSOCIATION

Second, the scope of victim's rights in judicial discipline proceedings must be clearly defined. The VCRA and administrative university disciplinary proceedings offer guides of defining victims' rights. For example, the University of Wisconsin System campus disciplinary process articulates students' right to know the range of possible sanctions the accused faces, to receive notice that their report might be included (in anonymized form) in an annual crime statistic report, and to consent to sharing of information among campus offices and with third parties. UWS 17.10(1). Victims are also provided with notice that their report can result in a report as an annual crime statistic with the victim's name withheld, and campus offices must have a waiver signed by the student in order to share information among one another or with any third party, including parents.

https://docs.legis.wisconsin.gov/code/admin_code/uws/17

The Code of Federal Regulations provides another example of language that could apply in judicial discipline proceedings. Schools are commanded to "consider victims' rights when appropriate," and lists rights such as participating in disciplinary proceedings in writing or in person, providing a statement concerning the impact of the incident on the victim, and having the outcome explained to that victim. 25 CFR section 42.0. <https://www.law.cornell.edu/cfr/text/25/42.9>.

The Louisiana Supreme Court also made several substantive changes to Louisiana Supreme Court Rule XXIII in 2021 after extensive study, review and deliberation, with an eye towards being more victim-centered in its discipline process. While the potential scenarios Louisiana's new language addresses are extreme (alleged criminal conduct), it provides another example of how victim rights can be addressed by expediting proceedings and putting consequences in place for aggravated disciplinary issues. See the press release regarding additional changes to the Judicial Discipline Rules: https://www.lasc.org/Press_Release?p=2021-34. Among the changes, "judges who have been charged and convicted of a felony or lesser crime that reflects adversely on the judge's honesty, trustworthiness, or fitness as judge may now be required to repay the costs of appointing a judge to cover their dockets while they are suspended from performing judicial functions during the pendency of criminal and judicial discipline proceedings. LA ST S CT Rule 23, § 22 (2021). There is a monetary cost for judges who want to resign during a formal proceeding. "[J]udges who retire or resign prior to the conclusion of public judicial discipline proceedings may now be required to repay the costs incurred in the Commission's investigation and litigation of the matter." LA ST S CT Rule 23, § 22 formal proceedings (2021). To expedite matters, such as those involving possible criminal conduct, the Commission must provide the hearing officer with instructions regarding the expediting of the matter. LA ST S CT Rule 23, § 4 (2021).

The impact of harassment or other misconduct on a victim can be profound, especially in the context of the workplace. The CWBA urges legislators to ensure that victims of judicial misconduct receive notification rights, the option to participate in proceedings, and a guaranteed right to provide input. While a victim's input does not need to be dispositive, it must be considered.

V. Judicial Appointments and Recommendations

- Judicial appointments. Whether the supreme court should continue to control the appointment of the four judge members of the commission;
- Recommendations. Recommendations from the department, the commission, and any other stakeholders the interim committee deems appropriate.

The CWBA recommends this Interim Committee revisit the Constitutional Provisions and Rules identifying the makeup of the Judicial Discipline Commission. The Commission should aim to have a diverse membership. The current composition of Judicial Discipline Members focuses on geographic diversity as well as having judges, lawyers, and non-lawyers on the Commission. The CWBA recommends that an amendment to the Colorado Constitution Article VI, Section 23(3)(a) include a requirement that the governor consider the overall makeup of the Commission's representation of geographic location, gender, racial, cultural, and disability diversity in his or her appointments. A similar amendment would need to be made in the Colorado Rules of Judicial Discipline Rule 3.

VI. Conclusion

Overall, the CWBA sees this Interim Committee as an excellent opportunity to improve upon Colorado's existing rule, statutory, and constitutional framework for judicial discipline. The CWBA recommends the aforementioned changes to ensure Colorado's judiciary is accountable to the citizens it serves, to ensure the Judicial Discipline Commission is adequately structured and supervised, and to make Colorado is a leader in judicial discipline efforts overall.

Appendix 27(s)(iii)(13)(c)

Colo. Jud. Inst., STATEMENT OF THE COLORADO JUDICIAL INSTITUTE,
August 10, 2022;

STATEMENT OF THE COLORADO JUDICIAL INSTITUTE
Legislative Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline
August 10, 2022 Hearing

The Colorado Judicial Institute (CJI) – an independent, nonpartisan, nonprofit organization – has for over 40 years worked to preserve Colorado judges' ability to fairly and impartially decide cases, free from partisan politics. CJI respectfully submits:

- CJI has supported the full and fair investigation of recent allegations of judicial misconduct.
- The facts are now in from thorough, independent judicial investigations.
- The facts do not match allegations of judicial misconduct that were widely reported before the facts were in – unfortunately and unfairly compromising public trust in Colorado's judiciary.
- The facts do not substantiate lack of reporting of judicial misconduct to disciplinary authorities.
- The facts do not demonstrate serious problems with or need for major changes to Colorado's judicial discipline system.
- Any changes to the system should be carefully designed to ensure they improve the system and do not create unintended adverse consequences.
- If anything, the facts support making further education and training resources available to Colorado's judiciary, including pertaining to managerial issues – and CJI stands ready to assist with that effort.

WHAT CJI IS AND WHY WE'RE INVOLVED

- CJI is an independent, nonpartisan, nonprofit organization, established in 1979 and comprised of non-attorney and attorney members from throughout Colorado.
- Our mission is to promote excellence, equity, impartiality, and public trust in Colorado's courts through outreach, education, and engagement.
- CJI programs include providing scholarships for continuing education of judges; annually recognizing outstanding judges; supporting the Diversity on the Bench initiative that helps ensure the courts reflect the diversity of the communities they serve; and sponsoring public education about the judicial system, merit selection, and the rule of law.
- We believe CJI's mission and programs help ensure that litigants have their day in court with dignity and respect.

COLORADO'S MERIT SYSTEM FOR SELECTING, EVALUATING, RETAINING, AND DISCIPLINING JUDGES

An overview of Colorado's judicial merit system is in order to place the Interim Committee's work in context. In 1966, Colorado's citizens adopted Colorado's merit judicial system, rejecting partisan judicial elections. Colorado is one of more than 30 states that do not elect judges to the bench. Our system is a "four-legged stool," consisting of the following:

Selection: Bipartisan nominating commissions, made up of volunteer non-attorneys and attorneys, recommend qualified candidates to the Governor for appointment.

Performance Evaluation: Bipartisan evaluation commissions, made up of volunteer non-attorneys and attorneys, review information about judges' performance from multiple sources and make recommendations to voters.

Retention: Judges stand for retention in general elections.

Discipline: The Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline (Commission), created by Colorado's constitution Art. VI, § 23(3), made up of volunteer commissioners, non-attorneys, attorneys, and judges, address allegations of judicial misconduct.

Colorado's judicial merit system is widely admired and a model for those of other states.

CJI'S INPUT ON THE INTERIM COMMITTEE'S WORK AND PROPOSALS FOR CHANGES

CJI respectfully submits the following comments on the Interim Committee's work.

The facts do not show serious problems with, or need for major changes to, Colorado's judicial discipline system.

- The facts now available to the Interim Committee and public through RCT and ILG investigative reports do not support widely-reported judicial misconduct allegations. They reveal no failure to report alleged judicial misconduct to judicial disciplinary authorities.
- What, if any, changes are needed based on the facts? While Colorado's system is not perfect and can always be tweaked for improvement, there is no serious problem to be "fixed" warranting any major overhaul.
- If anything, the facts show Colorado's judiciary could benefit from additional education and training resources, including pertaining to managerial issues. CJI stands ready to assist in generating such resources.

Changes, if any, to Colorado's system should be carefully designed to ensure they result in improvements.

CJI offers the following comments on proposals to modify Colorado's system.

- Caution in amending Colorado's Constitution: Potential changes to the Colorado Constitution's provision on judicial discipline, Art. VI, § 23(3), should be thoughtfully considered, given the expenditure of resources required to change the constitution and possibility of unintended negative consequences through changes. For example, while CJI supports the concept of expanding transparency of judicial disciplinary proceedings, changes to confidentiality should be designed to maintain confidence in the system on the part of complainants, judges under investigation, the judiciary and other stakeholders, and of course the public.

- Final decisionmakers of judicial discipline – Colorado Supreme Court: The members of the Colorado Supreme Court are chosen through Colorado’s gold-standard judicial merit selection system. They have extensive experience with the litigation process, and they are accountable to voters in retention elections. They are the best-qualified individuals to make critically important final decisions on judicial discipline. Such decisions should not be made by panels of individuals not selected through such exacting standards and who are not accountable to voters.
- Rulemaking authority – Colorado Supreme Court, with conferral with Commission: Judicial disciplinary proceedings are adjudicative proceedings – that is, litigation-like in nature – with substantial potential impact on individuals' livelihoods. They should adhere to due process requirements. They are more formalized proceedings than those used, for example, in judicial performance evaluations. The rules for disciplinary proceedings should be written by judicial officers with experience in adjudicating disputes. Colorado's Constitution provides for rulemaking by the Colorado Supreme Court, Art. VI, § 23(3)(h). C.R.S. § 13-5.3-107, enacted as part of SB 22-201, strikes the right balance in leaving rulemaking authority with the Colorado Supreme Court, with conferral with the Commission.
- Appointment of members to the Commission – leave as stated in Colorado's Constitution: Colorado's Constitution, Art. VI, § 23(3)(a), specifies the membership of the Commission, with appointments made by the Colorado Supreme Court and Governor with the consent of Colorado's Senate. The selection process has served Colorado well for decades, and no need for change has been shown. In particular, no need has been shown to remove Colorado's judiciary from a role in appointing members of the Commission.
- Recusal/disqualification – provide clear conflict rules for all involved in process: Clear, uniform standards on recusal and/or disqualification of disciplinary process decisionmakers at every level – not just judges – should be implemented. The best means to do so is through rulemaking.

CJI thanks the Interim Committee for consideration of CJI's input.

Appendix 27(s)(iii)(13)(d)

Colo. Jud. Dep't, RESPONSES TO RECOMMENDATIONS FROM THE COLORADO
COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE,
August 1, 2022;

Judicial Department Responses to Recommendations from the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline

August 1, 2022

Members of the Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline,

Since the last Interim Committee hearing on July 12, 2022, representatives from the Judicial Department and the Commission met and discussed the full list of recommendations put forward by the Commission in its June 14, 2022, report and subsequent summary. The meeting was productive, and the discussion covered many questions and concerns. The Department and the Commission found common ground on several of the Commission's recommendations, although a number of details need to be addressed regarding their implementation. Although we do not agree with all of the Commission's recommendations, the Department and the Commission are not and should not be adversaries in this process. It is clear that both parties want a robust, fair, and more transparent system of judicial discipline, which is essential to Colorado's merit selection and retention system.

The Judicial Department's positions, reasoning, and remaining questions are discussed below. Where there are areas of disagreement, the Department's comments reflect its overarching concerns about creating a system that injects politics into judicial discipline proceedings, as well as its goal of ensuring that any reforms to the system retain appropriate checks and balances so that no entity involved in the process has unchecked power or is unaccountable for its decisions.

Commission Recommendation Regarding Accountability and Core Conflicts:

Maintain existing structure that is unified system with two tiers of decision-making. Discipline Commission remains the same as it is with same investigatory/adjudicatory roles. Final decision-maker change from Supreme Court to multi-perspective board comprised of judges, lawyers, and citizens.

- Judges shall be majority/minority of members (policy issue for decision)
 - Consider 3 judges, 3 lawyers, 4 citizens, and a person with prior judicial discipline experience discussed below.
- Judge members divided between appellate courts, district courts, and county courts.
- Appointment power of judge members also divided between the representative groups so that no single group of judiciary exercises control of member selection. Appeals judges as a whole select appellate judge member, district court judges as a whole select district court judge member, county court judges as a whole select county court judge member.
- One lawyer position reserved for affinity bars and selected by those groups collectively in a system of their design.

- Lawyer and citizen members otherwise appointed by governor and confirmed by senate.
- One additional member appointed by the Discipline Commission from its former (not current) members to provide institutional knowledge. This person would recuse on any individual cases in which the person participated while on the Commission.
- Final discipline decisions could remain subject to due process review by court system (equivalent of C.R.C.P. 106 review) but this board’s decision is otherwise final.

Response from the Judicial Department:

A system like the one proposed here does not exist in any other state. Under the current constitutional structure, the Court reviews the Commission’s recommendation where the Commission seeks public discipline of a judge. (The Court has no reviewing role where the Commission resolves a matter by informal remedial action such as a private censure.) This structure is consistent with the Court’s inherent power and ultimate responsibility to regulate the practice of law and the judicial branch. The ABA Model Rules for Judicial Disciplinary Enforcement similarly provide for final review of discipline decisions by the highest court of the state because “[t]he highest court has the inherent power and final responsibility to regulate the judicial branch of government.” No investigation has revealed that this basic structure of Colorado’s current system is deficient. Thus, the justification for making such a significant and novel change to the current system is conspicuously lacking. To the extent the concern stems from the possibility of future conflict-of-interest issues, case-by-case recusal pursuant to the Code of Judicial Conduct (which applies to participation in judicial discipline proceedings) ensures that any action by the Court is free from conflict. Although the Rules of Judicial Discipline do not specifically address recusal processes for the Supreme Court in judicial discipline proceedings, the Court has proposed a rule for the Commission’s consideration that would expressly address recusal through a fair and transparent process that ensures that the Court’s review is conducted by conflict-free judicial officers.

If the Interim Committee is considering the creation of a final decision-making Board similar to the Commission’s proposal, several details and novel issues will need to be considered. The Department is concerned that the proposed structure could politicize the discipline process, which is currently apolitical. Many details of this proposal remain unclear, such as term length, oversight over the Board, an applicable code of conduct and recusal provisions, and the process, if any, to challenge the impartiality of a member on the panel, among many others.

Additionally, requiring the Commission, which functions as the investigator and prosecutor of judicial discipline cases, to appoint one of its former members to the final decision-making Board is fraught with potential conflict and diminishes procedural fairness. It would be analogous to a system permitting a District Attorney to appoint a former member of its office to the jury in a criminal case it was prosecuting. Such a system would present the appearance of bias and immediately raise questions of conflicts and fundamental fairness for a criminal defendant.

The Department further believes that allowing groups of judges to pick their own representatives could lead to inappropriate internal politicking and create the public appearance of protectionism inherent in groups of judges selecting the individuals that could decide discipline against them.

In light of these continuing questions, the Department does not support this proposal.

Commission Recommendation Regarding Special Masters Pool:

Create pool of individuals to supply special masters for formal proceedings. Set a number, at least 6 maybe up to 9. Serve in pool for several years, choose a district court or appellate court length, to gain subject expertise and institutional knowledge. Stagger terms. Draw from this pool when formal proceedings undertaken. Commission or new Board to select, or combined selection process.

At hearing, an Interim Committee member raised the idea of having the special masters be a multi-perspective group rather than exclusively judges. The Commission finds this to be a reasonable proposal.

Response from the Judicial Department:

The Department agrees that it would be beneficial to have a pool of special masters who understand the disciplinary rules and process. The Department believes a pool larger than 9 would be necessary to ensure that diverse perspectives are available in each disciplinary matter and that there are available special masters should there be issues with conflicts or availability. If non-judges will serve as special masters, there must be a defined process for identifying and appointing those special masters that is free from political influence.

The Department indicated to the Commission that it is also open to a selection process for the special masters in which a larger list of special masters is generated (perhaps randomly drawn from the pool or chosen by the Chief Justice); the Commission and respondent judge could then strike a set number of special masters from that larger list to arrive at the final panel.

The Department is also open to a somewhat different proposal, under which the pool of special masters would include judges, attorneys, and citizens, each with different appointing authorities. Under this approach, a panel of three special masters would be randomly selected for a case and would include one judge, one attorney, and one citizen.

Commission Recommendation Regarding Commission Member Terms:

Set terms of Commission Members at same length as pool members and Board members, range of 6-8 so that gain greater expertise and insulate from influence. Can make single full term in light of longer term length.

Change appointment authority for judge members from Supreme Court to be consistent with the suggestion above to limit influence of single, small group.

Response from the Judicial Department:

The Department and the Commission representatives discussed various terms and discussed the possibility of two five-year terms for commission members. The Department remains concerned that, the longer the term of appointment, the more difficult it is to find volunteers for these appointments. The Department believes a four-year term with the possibility of reappointment, allowing for a total of eight years on the Commission, is appropriate and matches the ABA Model Rules for Judicial Disciplinary Enforcement. Alternatively, the Department would support a single six-year term, which is consistent with the term for judicial nominating commissions.

Both the IAALS Report and the ABA Model Rule recommendations support varied appointing authorities, with the judge members appointed by the highest court of the state, lawyers appointed by the state bar, and governor-appointed public members. The Department supports the current appointment process in which the Governor appoints a majority of the Commission, with the consent of the Senate, and the Supreme Court appoints a minority number of district court and county court judges. However, the Department sees merit in the position taken by IAALS and the ABA that attorney members be appointed by the state bar association. As stated above, the Department is opposed to any appointment system that politicizes the appointment process. Along these lines, the Department is concerned that having categories of judges select their own representatives could lead to inappropriate politicking for a position or give the public appearance of judges trying to protect their own constituency.

Commission Recommendation Regarding Transparency:

Consider changing confidentiality border from conclusion of formal proceedings to filing of formal proceedings. Changes on this issue will require constitutional amendment.

Response from the Judicial Department:

The Department agrees that full confidentiality should cease when formal proceedings are filed. Representatives from the Department and the Commission discussed details about what information would be public and when, the need to protect victim and witness information, and designing a system that encourages victims and witnesses to come forward. The Department believes this issue merits further consideration, and that some of these areas could be addressed through rulemaking. The Commission raised the issue of confidentiality in disability proceedings, where the Commission may institute proceedings to retire a judge or justice due to a disability. This issue is worthy of discussion now and in the adoption of any future rules.

Commission Recommendation Regarding Disqualification Standards.

Make standards uniform and clear. Codify in statute that Judicial Code (e.g., Rule 2.11) governs disqualification of decision makers at every level of judicial discipline. Prior legislative draft can be reviewed on this issue.

Response from the Judicial Department:

Rule 2.11, which governs a Judicial Officer’s obligation to disqualify in a judicial proceeding, already governs the judge members of the Commission, the special masters, and the Supreme Court in judicial discipline proceedings. The Department is not opposed to Rule 2.11 applying to all individuals in the disciplinary process (including attorneys and citizen members). However, the Department has some concerns that Rule 2.11 may not be an ideal fit for the attorney or citizen members involved in the process, as much of the language in Rule 2.11 addresses the judicial function of a judge and may not contemplate conflict scenarios that would apply to attorneys or citizen members. Further, unlike judicial officers, an attorney or citizen member who violates 2.11 is not inherently subject to any supervision or consequence related to that violation.

The IAALS report on judicial discipline emphasizes that “Commissioners and staff members should be governed by a written, detailed, mandatory, and enforceable code of conduct.” All members of the Commission are currently subject to a Code of Conduct contained in RJD 3.5, which the Court adopted (with certain additions and modifications) based on a proposal that the Commission presented to the Court. It is unclear why the Commission wants to move away from the existing Code of Conduct, which more closely tracks the specific nature of the work of the Commission, but the Court is open to further discussions about the disqualification standards and the applicability of Rule 2.11. The Department has asked the Commission to propose changes to RJD 3.5 consistent with its proposal above.

Pursuant to the constitutional authority of the court, and consistent with SB22-201, the Supreme Court has proposed an amendment to the Rules of Judicial Discipline to address potential conflicts and disqualifications for Supreme Court justices. The Department will share more information on the proposal and rules process with the Interim Committee in the coming days.

Commission Recommendation Regarding Rulemaking Authority:

Place rulemaking authority with Discipline Commission, consistent with Judicial Performance Commissions and majority of other states.

Response from the Judicial Department:

Under article VI, section 2 of the Colorado Constitution, the Supreme Court has general superintending authority over all courts of the state, and as such, is responsible for developing rules for judicial proceedings. Consistent with that general authority, article VI, section 23(3)(h) vests the supreme court with rulemaking authority for procedures before the Discipline Commission. The Court’s rulemaking process in other areas involves tasking a diverse committee with reviewing and discussing proposals and making recommendations to the Court for rules changes. Significant proposed changes are then published for comment, and the Court holds a public hearing. This kind of structure has been lacking for proposed amendments to the Rules of Judicial Discipline. The Department is considering a more formal committee structure similar to that used for proposed amendments to other court rules. Such a committee structure should include representation by the Commission. The Department nevertheless believes the Supreme Court remains the appropriate rulemaking authority. As the Commission highlights, the Judicial Performance Commission (JPC) has its own rulemaking authority. The JPC, however, is a statutory creation that does not adjudicate disputes but instead serves to inform voters about the performance of judges. In contrast, the Discipline Commission functions within the court system, using court processes, and decides disputed matters impacting judges' careers and livelihoods. The Court's role in rulemaking remains an appropriate check on the disciplinary system to ensure due process, particularly if the Court's authority in other areas of the disciplinary process is diminished or eliminated. Unlike the Commission, the Court is accountable to the voters.

Commission Recommendation Regarding Subpoena Power:

Codify in statute subpoena power of Discipline Commission effective and available from decision to evaluate potential misconduct forward.

Response from the Judicial Department:

The Commission's current subpoena authority is addressed in Rules of Judicial Discipline 4 and 22. The Department supports further clarification of the Commission's subpoena authority, either through rule amendments or statutory changes. The Department is reviewing whether the Commission's subpoena authority is appropriate to address in statute under the current constitutional structure.

To the extent that the Commission seeks such broad subpoena power, the Department worries that would enable the commission to issue subpoenas untethered to specific complaints. Naturally, the Commission's subpoena authority should be related and limited to its constitutional charge.

If the Commission's subpoena authority is codified in statute, the legislature should look to other entities with statutory subpoena and consider how that power is typically circumscribed. The Colorado Civil Rights Commission, for example, has statutory subpoena authority under section 24-34-206, C.R.S. Unlike the Commission's proposal, that statute does not allow for subpoena authority based merely on a decision to evaluate potential misconduct. Rather, it specifies that, after a charge is filed alleging discrimination and after a determination that the alleged discrimination or unfair practice imposes a significant societal or community impact, the Civil Rights Commission may issue a subpoena limited to matters directly related to the charge. Such a subpoena is enforceable through the district court for the district in which the alleged discrimination has occurred.

Similarly, the ABA Model Rules for Judicial Disciplinary Enforcement state that the disciplinary body should have subpoena authority only after a full investigation is authorized (which occurs after screening and a preliminary investigation) and the subject judge is notified of the investigation. The Model Rules also specify the mechanism for enforcement or quashing of subpoenas.

The Department believes that any proposed statutory or rule change needs to address the extent and limits of the Commission's subpoena authority, and the venue for challenging or enforcing a subpoena from the Commission.

Commission Recommendation Regarding Verification and Enforcement Mechanism:

The Commission proposes a verification method to ensure compliance with the SB 22-201 duty of disclosure placed on the Department and a means of enforcement if a dispute arises.

- In prior draft legislation, a verification system was proposed in which a member of the judiciary would certify compliance with the duty of disclosure annually. The Commission is open to other ideas for a mechanism of verification.
- For dispute resolution, the parties continue to discuss ideas with no specific points of dispute at this time. One idea is to create enforcement mechanism for discovery/disclosure disputes for pre-formal proceedings phase. Use three judge panel drawn from trial judges not of the district involved in the matter. Judicial selects one, Commission selects one, those two select the third. Decisions, subject to redactions to conceal identities, are public and have precedential value.

Response from the Judicial Department:

The Department opposes an annual certification process as impractical given the size of the Department; it is impossible for any individual to certify compliance by 4,000 judges and employees. The Department believes that the statutory disclosure obligation is sufficient to compel compliance. The Department will work with the Commission to ensure the Department's reporting and disclosure obligations are clear and that routine and consistent training is provided on these obligations.

There may be times when the Commission, the subject judge, the Department, or a third party are not in agreement on issues of disclosures, document production, or something else in the disciplinary process. For resolving these disputes, the Department agrees with the idea of a three-judge panel. The Department has reservations about the decisions resolving disclosure disputes being public, given that the proceedings at that stage generally would be confidential. It is also unclear what is meant by stating that such decisions have precedential value. The Department is open to the decisions of the three-judge panels being available in subsequent judicial discipline proceedings, whether related or unrelated. The Interim Committee should give additional consideration to an appellate process and enforcement mechanism for decisions of the panels.

Commission Recommendation Regarding Funding:

Set source of funding that is insulated from politics and performance of the economy, consistent with funding for Judicial Performance Commissions.

Response from the Judicial Department:

The current independent funding is ideal because it includes a mixture between general fund direct sourcing and the new special cash fund. General Fund revenue is widely recognized as the most reliable and sustainable source of revenue in the state. The Department does not agree with any proposal in which the legislature would appropriate attorney registration fees assessed by the Supreme Court pursuant to its independent constitutional authority to regulate the practice of law. Funding the Commission with fees that are within the Supreme Court's purview undermines the General Assembly's progress in providing financial independence to the Commission via SB 22-201.

Commission Recommendation Regarding Victim's Rights Act:

Probably best to handle by rule, but enact a version of a VRA for discipline and authorize Commission to protect identity of complaining witnesses to the extent practical to limit retaliation risks.

Response from the Judicial Department:

The Department and the Commission agree that legislative direction for the disciplinary process to keep complainants informed and take reasonable steps to protect their privacy is appropriate. The specifics are likely best addressed by rule. The Department wants to ensure that any legislation does not foreclose restorative justice or similar processes that would encourage victims to report; that it keeps victims reasonably informed throughout the process; that it provides victims a voice in the complaint and resolution process; and that it does not discourage victims from reporting misconduct.

Commission Recommendation Regarding Metrics:

Under SB 22-201, the Commission will track demographic statistics in addition to its existing tracking of trends in misconduct complaints that it reports annually. The Commission is to report this information in the SMART process. The Judiciary's SMART process reporting should be amended to include a report on what actions it has taken in response to these trends.

Response from the Judicial Department:

This Department believes this concept needs further definition and specificity regarding the statistics and trends that are being tracked. Data collection may prove useful to provide more information to the public and inform public policy. At times, data collection proves to be more challenging than anticipated, so it would be helpful to have discussions now about the data to be tracked and limits or hindrances that aren't immediately apparent. The Department agrees that the Commission should share workplace trends and perceived culture problems. The Department agrees with the Commission that periodic conferral regarding the trends and concerns would be helpful.

Appendix 27(s)(iii)(13)(e)

Colo. Comm'n on Jud. Discipline,
RECOMMENDATIONS TO INTERIM COMMITTEE,
August 2, 2022;

COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE RECOMMENDATIONS TO INTERIM COMMITTEE

Reply of Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline
To Response of Judicial Department to Recommendations
August 2, 2022

Members of the Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline,

Representatives of the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline (the “Commission”) and the leadership of the Colorado Judicial Department (the “Department”) met on July 22nd and 25th to discuss potential reforms to Colorado’s system for judicial discipline.

The Commission on Judicial Discipline and the Department have the same goal: Ensure that any reforms to the system retain appropriate checks and balances so that no entity involved in the process has unchecked power or is unaccountable for its decisions.

The parties discussed submission of a joint report to the Interim Committee and circulated a draft joint report. However, the Department has separately filed its Response on August 1, 2022. The Commission replies (in blue font) to the Department’s comments as follows:

1. ACCOUNTABILITY AND CORE CONFLICTS

Commission Recommendation:

Maintain existing structure that is unified system with two tiers of decision-making. Discipline Commission remains the same as it is with same investigatory/adjudicatory roles. Final decision-maker change from Supreme Court to multi-perspective board comprised of judges, lawyers, and citizens.

- Judges shall be majority/minority of members (policy issue for decision)
- Consider 3 judges, 3 lawyers, 4 citizens, and a person with prior judicial discipline experience discussed below.
- Judge members divided between appellate courts, district courts, and county courts.
- Appointment power of judge members also divided between the representative groups so that no group of judiciary exercises control of member selection.
- Appellate judges select appellate judge member, district court judges select district court judge member, county court judges select county court judge member.
- One lawyer position reserved for affinity bars and selected by those groups collectively in a system of their design.
- Lawyer and citizen members otherwise appointed by governor and confirmed by senate.
- One additional member appointed by the Discipline Commission from its former (not current) members to provide institutional knowledge. This person would recuse on any individual cases in which the person participated while on the Commission.

- Final discipline decisions could remain subject to due process review by court system (equivalent of C.R.C.P. 106 review) but this board's decision is otherwise final.

Response from the Judicial Department:

A system like the one proposed here does not exist in any other state. Under the current constitutional structure, the Court reviews the Commission's recommendation where the Commission seeks public discipline of a judge. (The Court has no reviewing role where the Commission resolves a matter by informal remedial action such as a private censure.) This structure is consistent with the Court's inherent power and ultimate responsibility to regulate the practice of law and the judicial branch. The ABA Model Rules for Judicial Disciplinary Enforcement similarly provide for final review of discipline decisions by the highest court of the state because "[t]he highest court has the inherent power and final responsibility to regulate the judicial branch of government." No investigation has revealed that this basic structure of Colorado's current system is deficient. Thus, the justification for making such a significant and novel change to the current system is conspicuously lacking. To the extent the concern stems from the possibility of future conflict-of-interest issues, case-by-case recusal pursuant to the Code of Judicial Conduct (which applies to participation in judicial discipline proceedings) ensures that any action by the Court is free from conflict. Although the Rules of Judicial Discipline do not specifically address recusal processes for the Supreme Court in judicial discipline proceedings, the Court has proposed a rule for the Commission's consideration that would expressly address recusal through a fair and transparent process that ensures that conflict-free judicial officers conduct the Court's review. If the Interim Committee is considering the creation of a final decision-making Board similar to the Commission's proposal, several details and novel issues will need to be considered. The Department is concerned that the proposed structure could politicize the discipline process, which is currently apolitical. Many details of this proposal remain unclear, such as term length, oversight over the Board, an applicable code of conduct and recusal provisions, and the process, if any, to challenge the impartiality of a member on the panel, among many others. Additionally, requiring the Commission, which functions as the investigator and prosecutor of judicial discipline cases, to appoint one of its former members to the final decision-making Board is fraught with potential conflict and diminishes procedural fairness. It would be analogous to a system permitting a District Attorney to appoint a former member of its office to the jury in a criminal case it was prosecuting. Such a system would present the appearance of bias and immediately raise questions of conflicts and fundamental fairness for a criminal defendant. The Department further believes that allowing groups of judges to pick their own representatives could lead to inappropriate internal politicking and create the public appearance of protectionism inherent in groups of judges selecting the individuals that could decide discipline against them. In light of these continuing questions, the Department does not support this proposal.

Commission Response:

The Department is incorrect in stating that the independent decision-maker design proposed is without precedent. The proposed design is inspired by the system adopted by Illinois. Most states have designs that are half a century old. Several states are reconsidering their discipline system designs currently. Colorado has long played a role in leading the nation to promote best practices through structural legal reforms. Colorado should not shy away from addressing the problems demonstrated in our current judicial disciplinary structure.

Moreover, good reason exists to approach the discipline system differently than most states, the Colorado Supreme Court has defined its role differently than the high courts of other states. The Colorado Supreme Court has created a unique role for itself in the operations of the Colorado Judiciary. As explained in the Troyer/RCT, Ltd. Report, the Colorado Supreme Court has expanded its role dramatically beyond that of neutral and detached judicial officers, the justices now operate as the “board of directors” for the Colorado Judiciary. This setting aside of the traditional judicial role creates inherent conflicts of interest for the justices in judicial discipline that are unique. The Colorado Supreme Court cannot ask to continue to be viewed solely as disinterested judicial officers when they no longer operate solely in that role. These are challenges that require a uniquely designed system.

The board of directors makes contract decisions and must be concerned about incurring liability for the company. This makes them ill-suited to credibly exercise independent decision-making about the ethics of the same company--decisions that inherently carry the risks of creating civil liability for the company. The Chief Justice himself has illustrated this problem when he explained to the General Assembly that one of the reasons he withheld records from Colorado’s constitutional discipline system was to protect the Department from potential civil liability. In effect, the Department proposes that the board of directors themselves be designated as the final decision-maker for claims of misconduct made against their own personnel.

To be credible, a neutral, detached, and objective decision-maker must oversee a system of judicial discipline. To be credible, that decision-maker cannot be a corporate board of directors that may prioritize the risks of incurring financial liability over the necessities of enforcing ethics rules. To be credible, that final decision-making body cannot be the same entity that also controls access to evidence and decides whether misconduct allegations are reported in the first place.

The Department also states that “No investigation has revealed that this basic structure of Colorado’s current system is deficient.” The Commission disagrees with this characterization and notes the problems detailed in the testimony before the SMART Committee Hearing process from January of 2022, before the Senate Judiciary Committee, and before this Interim Committee as well as incidents reported in the press.

The current system in Colorado provides the leadership of the Department with various avenues for exerting improper influence over an unwanted evaluation of potential judicial misconduct. In the last few years, the Department’s leadership has exercised many of those avenues. One recent example is from the Troyer Report. Mr. Troyer testified that the Department produced approximately 12,000 documents related to the Masias contract within approximately one month of Mr. Troyer's engagement in October 2021. Though the Department had the ready ability to produce those records to Mr. Troyer during the fall of 2021, the Department withheld all but about one dozen such records from the Judicial Discipline Commission over a 10-month period in 2021 that included the period in which the disclosures to Mr. Troyer occurred. As of the date of this writing, and after the General Assembly codified an affirmative obligation for the Department to produce these records within 35 days, the Department continues to withhold most of these materials from the constitutional judicial discipline process. As further testified by Mr. Troyer at this Interim Committee's July 12, 2022 hearing, the Department provided him with access to its records through its Relativity software database. The Department has never offered to provide the Judicial Discipline Commission with similar access to these records (in the form in which they are maintained by the Department). The leadership of the Department has exercised its practical control over the process to withhold access to resources, personnel, funding, information, cases, and evidence.

These are signs that our system has serious deficiencies that need to be addressed.¹

In the closing paragraphs of the Department's comments, the Department notes concerns about conflicts of interest if Colorado adopts a multi-perspective final decision-making body on judicial discipline. The Department states two primary examples. Both can be evaluated on their own merits, and consideration will reveal that the concerns raised can be readily resolved. The ideal solution will address the demonstrated problems in the current system first while it can also minimize the risk of speculative potential problems for the future.

In our current system, a small group of judges exercises ultimate and unreviewable control over final decisions on judicial discipline as well as practical control over many aspects of the system preceding a final decision. The events of the last few years have demonstrated the inherent conflicts and temptations of self-interest that have made this system unworkable and undermined its credibility. While potential conflicts will inevitably exist in any system design, the current system is an "all or nothing" system in which a distinct group of judges (the Justices of the Supreme Court), who are not subject to practical oversight, have final and near complete control of the system that extends to even the foundational rulemaking functions. As a result, when a conflict arises for the Supreme Court, the system fails at most levels and is deprived of credibility. A multi-perspective system that separates practical system control from substantive decisional control. Moreover, such a system will exist through both diversified composition and a diversified selection process. The diversity of this system, itself provides a source of credibility and functionality. When a conflict arises, that conflict will affect only one aspect of the multi-faceted decision-making body so that the body can continue to function and do so with legitimate authority and credibility. A multi-perspective decision-making body is far more durable and resilient than the current “monocultural” design.

¹ The Department's description of the Supreme Court's review role in the current system also includes an error. The Department states that the Supreme Court "has no reviewing role" when private discipline is imposed. The Colorado Rules of Judicial Discipline provide the respondent judge with the opportunity to challenge a decision imposing private discipline through a request for formal proceedings, the results of which are then reviewed by the Supreme Court. See Colo. RJD 35(i).

2. SPECIAL MASTERS POOL

Commission Recommendation:

Create pool of individuals to supply special masters for formal proceedings. Set a number, at least 6 up to 9. Serve in pool for several years, choose a district court or appellate court length, to gain subject expertise and institutional knowledge. Stagger terms. Draw from this pool when formal proceedings undertaken. Commission or new Board to select, or combined selection process. At hearing, an Interim Committee member raised the idea of having the special masters be a multi-perspective group rather than exclusively judges. The Commission finds this to be a reasonable proposal.

Response from the Judicial Department:

The Department agrees that it would be beneficial to have a pool of special masters who understand the disciplinary rules and process. The Department believes a pool larger than 9 would be necessary to ensure that diverse perspectives are available in each disciplinary matter and that there are available special masters should there be issues with conflicts or availability. If non-judges will serve as special masters, there must be a defined process for identifying and appointing those special masters that is free from political influence. The Department indicated to the Commission that it is also open to a selection process for the special masters in which a larger list of special masters is generated (perhaps randomly drawn from the pool or chosen by the Chief Justice); the Commission and respondent judge could then strike a set number of special masters from that larger list to arrive at the final panel. The Department is also open to a somewhat different proposal, under which the pool of special masters would include judges, attorneys, and citizens, each with different appointing authorities. Under this approach, a panel of three special masters would be randomly selected for a case and would include one judge, one attorney, and one citizen.

Commission Response:

The Commission and Department agree there is a need for a pool of special masters. The Commission does not agree to the proposal that the pool must consist only of persons who “understand the disciplinary rules and process.” The entire purpose of a pool of special masters is to allow specialization, experience, and training in these areas of knowledge. The Commission has no opposition to a pool larger than 9 but the pool should consist of judges, lawyers, and citizens and be drawn randomly, not by one person. The Colorado Constitution Article VI, § 23(3) provides that special masters “shall be justices or judges of courts of record.” Traditionally, this provision has been interpreted to include Senior Judges. The provision also arguably allows the appointment of special masters from municipal courts of record, Federal courts, and the Denver County Court. The Commission agrees there should be a process to evaluate and strike a potential special master based on bias or other conflicts, with all parties having the ability to assert for cause or preemptory challenges like jury selection.

3. COMMISSION MEMBER TERMS

Commission Recommendation:

Set terms of Commission Members at same length as pool members and Board members, range of 6-8 so that gain greater expertise and insulate from influence. Can make single full term considering longer-term length. Change appointment authority for judge members from Supreme Court to be consistent with the suggestion above to limit influence of single, small group.

Response from the Judicial Department:

The Department and the Commission representatives discussed various terms and discussed the possibility of two five-year terms for commission members. The Department remains concerned that, the longer the term of appointment, the more difficult it is to find volunteers for these appointments. The Department believes a four-year term with the possibility of reappointment, allowing for a total of eight years on the Commission, is appropriate and matches the ABA Model Rules for Judicial Disciplinary Enforcement. Alternatively, the Department would support a single six-year term, which is consistent with the term for judicial nominating commissions. Both the IAALS Report and the ABA Model Rule recommendations support varied appointing authorities, with the judge members appointed by the highest court of the state, lawyers appointed by the state bar, and governor-appointed public members. The Department supports the current appointment process in which the Governor appoints a majority of the Commission, with the consent of the Senate, and the Supreme Court appoints a minority number of district court and county court judges. However, the Department sees merit in the position taken by IAALS and the ABA that attorney members be appointed by the state bar association. As stated above, the Department is opposed to any appointment system that politicizes the appointment process. Along these lines, the Department is concerned that having categories of judges select their own representatives could lead to inappropriate politicking for a position or give the public appearance of judges trying to protect their own constituency.

Commission Response:

The Supreme Court's existing exclusive authority to appoint judicial members of the Commission is a critical point of control and a mechanism of substantial influence over the judicial discipline process. The importance of control over the selection process and the credibility of that selection process is ripe for change.

The Supreme Court's control over the appointment of judge members of the Commission and any other body to be created is markedly different from the appointment authority to be exercised for non-judge members, such as an appointment authority placed with the Governor and subject to Senate confirmation. The Supreme Court is the ultimate "boss" of the judge members. Once on the Commission, the Supreme Court continues to exercise considerable authority and influence over the judge members. For those judge members, the Supreme Court can influence career advancement, docket assignment, resource provision, desirable committee assignments, staffing assignments, and/or work assignments. In contrast, when the Governor appoints a citizen member to the Commission, the Governor usually has no further tools to influence the decisions of that member. Nevertheless, there are reasons to consider modification of term lengths so that a single Governor may not have a disproportionate impact on the composition of the Commission and (as shown necessary in other states) the Commission is insulated from improper politicization. Given the lessons of the last few years, this critical avenue of applying pressure to judge members of the Commission should not be left un-addressed. Diversifying the appointment authority, placing it in the hands of appointing authorities that do not influence the future careers and the daily professional work of Commission members, is the best approach.

4. TRANSPARENCY

Commission Recommendation:

Consider changing confidentiality border from conclusion of formal proceedings to filing of formal proceedings. Changes on this issue will require constitutional amendment.

Response from the Judicial Department:

The Department agrees that full confidentiality should cease when formal proceedings are filed. Representatives from the Department and the Commission discussed details about what information would be public and when, the need to protect victim and witness information, and designing a system that encourages victims and witnesses to come forward. The Department believes this issue merits further consideration, and that some of these areas could be addressed through rulemaking. The Commission raised the issue of confidentiality in disability proceedings, where the Commission may institute proceedings to retire a judge or justice due to a disability. This issue is worthy of discussion now and in the adoption of any future rules.

Commission Response:

There is apparent agreement for confidentiality to cease when formal proceedings are filed. The Commission does not oppose specifics regarding the details of what information would be made public and to protect victims and witnesses to be addressed through rulemaking if there is notice and opportunity for public comment prior to adoption of such rules. The name of the respondent judge and a brief recitation of the alleged misconduct without identifying victims or witnesses should be made public.

5. DISQUALIFICATION STANDARDS

Commission Recommendation:

Make standards uniform and clear. Codify in statute that Judicial Code (e.g., Rule 2.11) governs disqualification of decision makers at every level of judicial discipline. Prior legislative draft can be reviewed on this issue.

Response from the Judicial Department:

Rule 2.11, which governs a Judicial Officer's obligation to disqualify in a judicial proceeding, already governs the judge members of the Commission, the special masters, and the Supreme Court in judicial discipline proceedings. The Department is not opposed to Rule 2.11 applying to all individuals in the disciplinary process (including attorneys and citizen members). However, the Department has some concerns that Rule 2.11 may not be an ideal fit for the attorney or citizen members involved in the process, as much of the language in Rule 2.11 addresses the judicial function of a judge and may not contemplate conflict scenarios that would apply to attorneys or citizen members. Further, unlike judicial officers, an attorney or citizen member who violates 2.11 is not inherently subject to any supervision or consequence related to that violation. The IAALS report on judicial discipline emphasizes that "Commissioners and staff members should be governed by a written, detailed, mandatory, and enforceable code of conduct." All members of the Commission are currently subject to a Code of Conduct contained in RJD 3.5, which the Court adopted (with certain additions and modifications) based on a proposal that the Commission presented to the Court. It is unclear why the Commission wants to move away from the existing Code of Conduct, which more closely tracks the specific nature of the work of the Commission, but the Court is open to further discussions about the disqualification standards and the applicability of Rule 2.11. The Department has asked the Commission to propose changes to RJD 3.5 consistent with its proposal above. Pursuant to the constitutional authority of the court, and consistent with SB22-201, the Supreme Court has proposed an amendment to the Rules of Judicial Discipline to address potential conflicts and disqualifications for Supreme Court justices. The Department will share more information on the proposal and rules process with the Interim Committee in the coming days.

Commission Response:

The Commission's primary concern with respect to the current disqualification standards is the high level of inconsistency being applied by leadership within the Department. The standards being applied by the Department to those outside the Department is simply not the same standard being applied to Department leadership. Two years ago, this was not a known difficulty. However, it is now a demonstrated problem. Commission members have been held to, and have been following, more stringent standards of disqualification and non-interference than the leadership in the Department have followed. The most public example is the Supreme Court's continuing endorsements of a specific factual narrative and specific witnesses in a potential judicial discipline matter since February of 2021 despite the requirements of Rule 2.10 of the Colorado Code of Judicial Conduct. This system of double standards is inappropriate and undermines the validity as well as credibility of the judicial discipline system. Uniform standards should apply.

The Department notes that it considers "unclear" the Commission's desire to move away from the revised Colo. RJD 3.5 adopted by the Supreme Court in October of 2021. The Commission explained its concerns to the Department. Experience since that time has added several examples to the problems with the inconsistent standards imposed that can be discussed with the Interim Committee to the extent the Committee wishes.

The simple bottom line as to disqualification standards is that Colorado should dispense with the double standard that holds members of the judiciary, the most directly self-interested participants in the discipline system, to a lower standard of conduct than lawyers or members of the public. If any disparity is necessary, it should hold the judge members to a higher rather than lower standard on issues of this importance.

6. RULEMAKING AUTHORITY:

Commission Recommendation:

Place rulemaking authority with Discipline Commission, consistent with Judicial Performance Commissions and majority of other states.

Response from the Judicial Department:

Under article VI, section 2 of the Colorado Constitution, the Supreme Court has general superintending authority over all courts of the state, and as such, is responsible for developing rules for judicial proceedings. Consistent with that general authority, article VI, section 23(3)(h) vests the supreme court with rulemaking authority for procedures before the Discipline Commission. The Court's rulemaking process in other areas involves tasking a diverse committee with reviewing and discussing proposals and making recommendations to the Court for rules changes. Significant proposed changes are then published for comment, and the Court holds a public hearing. This kind of structure has been lacking for proposed amendments to the Rules of Judicial Discipline. The Department is considering a more formal committee structure similar to that used for proposed amendments to other court rules. Such a committee structure should include representation by the Commission. The Department nevertheless believes the Supreme Court remains the appropriate rulemaking authority. As the Commission highlights, the Judicial Performance Commission (JPC) has its own rulemaking authority. The JPC, however, is a statutory creation that does not adjudicate disputes but instead serves to inform voters about the performance of judges. In contrast, the Discipline Commission functions within the court system, using court processes, and decides disputed matters impacting judges' careers and livelihoods. The Court's role in rulemaking remains an appropriate check on the disciplinary system to ensure due process, particularly if the Court's authority in other areas of the disciplinary process is diminished or eliminated. Unlike the Commission, the Court is accountable to the voters.

Commission Response:

The Commission stands by its recommendation to place rulemaking authority with Discipline Commission as is consistent with the majority of other states and incorporates its other responses as to why this is necessary.

7. SUBPOENA POWER

Commission Recommendation:

Codify in statute subpoena power of Discipline Commission effective and available from decision to evaluate potential misconduct forward.

Response from the Judicial Department:

The Commission's current subpoena authority is addressed in Rules of Judicial Discipline 4 and 22. The Department supports further clarification of the Commission's subpoena authority, either through rule amendments or statutory changes. The Department is reviewing whether the Commission's subpoena authority is appropriate to address in statute under the current constitutional structure. To the extent that the Commission seeks such broad subpoena power, the Department worries that would enable the commission to issue subpoenas untethered to specific complaints. Naturally, the Commission's subpoena authority should be related and limited to its constitutional charge. If the Commission's subpoena authority is codified in statute, the legislature should look to other entities with statutory subpoena and consider how that power is typically circumscribed. The Colorado Civil Rights Commission, for example, has statutory subpoena authority under section 24-34-206, C.R.S. Unlike the Commission's proposal, that statute does not allow for subpoena authority based merely on a decision to evaluate potential misconduct. Rather, it specifies that, after a charge is filed alleging discrimination and after a determination that the alleged discrimination or unfair practice imposes a significant societal or community impact, the Civil Rights Commission may issue a subpoena limited to matters directly related to the charge. Such a subpoena is enforceable through the district court for the district in which the alleged discrimination has occurred. Similarly, the ABA Model Rules for Judicial Disciplinary Enforcement state that the disciplinary body should have subpoena authority only after a full investigation is authorized (which occurs after screening and a preliminary investigation) and the subject judge is notified of the investigation. The Model Rules also specify the mechanism for enforcement or quashing of subpoenas. The Department believes that any proposed statutory or rule change needs to address the extent and limits of the Commission's subpoena authority, and the venue for challenging or enforcing a subpoena from the Commission.

Commission Response:

There appears to be agreement that the Commission's subpoena power should be codified. However, the Department seems to suggest that the authority should be limited to applying only after a "full investigation." The Commission does not know what is meant by "full" investigation being authorized. The current rules do not use this term. Such a limitation, however, would undermine the basic utility of a subpoena as a necessary investigative tool. This is particularly true given that the Commission does not have law enforcement authority to seek warrants.

The current rules provide that the Commission's initial evaluation of a request may include examination of documentation under Colo. RJD 13(a). Thus, the subpoena power is inherently needed to conduct that initial evaluation. So long as the codification of the subpoena power authorizes subpoenas starting with this step of needing to review documentation in the hands of third parties with reliable means of enforcement, the Commission's concerns would be satisfied.

The subpoena power must also include any examination undertaken pursuant to Colo. RJD 13(f). In part, this is a necessity because this is the mechanism by which Colorado's Commission, like other commissions, addresses anonymous requests for evaluation.

8. VERIFICATION AND ENFORCEMENT MECHANISM

Commission Recommendation:

The Commission proposes a verification method to ensure compliance with the SB 22-201 duty of disclosure placed on the Department and a means of enforcement if a dispute arises. In prior draft legislation, a verification system was proposed in which a member of the judiciary would certify compliance with the duty of disclosure annually. The Commission is open to other ideas for a mechanism of verification. For dispute resolution, the parties continue to discuss ideas with no specific points of dispute currently. One idea is to create enforcement mechanism for discovery/disclosure disputes for pre-formal proceedings phase. Use three judge panel drawn from trial judges not of the district involved in the matter. Judicial selects one, Commission selects one, those two select the third. Decisions, subject to redactions to conceal identities, are public and have precedential value.

Response from the Judicial Department:

The Department opposes an annual certification process as impractical given the size of the Department; it is impossible for any individual to certify compliance by 4,000 judges and employees. The Department believes that the statutory disclosure obligation is sufficient to compel compliance. The Department will work with the Commission to ensure the Department's reporting and disclosure obligations are clear and that routine and consistent training is provided on these obligations. There may be times when the Commission, the subject judge, the Department, or a third party are not in agreement on issues of disclosures, document production, or something else in the disciplinary process. For resolving these disputes, the Department agrees with the idea of a three-judge panel. The Department has reservations about the decisions resolving disclosure disputes being public, given that the proceedings at that stage generally would be confidential. It is also unclear what is meant by stating that such decisions have precedential value. The Department is open to the decisions of the three-judge panels being available in subsequent judicial discipline proceedings, whether related or unrelated. The Interim Committee should give additional consideration to an appellate process and enforcement mechanism for decisions of the panels.

Commission Response:

There is a clear need to codify a verification or similar process to ensure the Department complies with its statutory disclosure duties. The Department has been under an obligation to disclose allegations of judicial misconduct and relevant evidence to the Commission since 2010. It is beyond dispute that the Department has consistently failed to honor this duty of disclosure.

The simplest illustration of the continuing need for a verification or similar system to require compliance or to create consequences for non-compliance is derived from the Troyer report. As noted above, Mr. Troyer's testimony established that the Department had approximately 12,000 documents readily available for disclosure to him in the fall of 2021. However, despite the requirements of the 2010 MoU and repeated requests from the Commission, the Department produced only about 1/1,000th of those documents to the Commission in 2021. Earlier this year, the General Assembly took the unprecedented step (as far as the Commission knows) of codifying the Department's disclosure obligations. Nonetheless, as of this writing, the Department still has only produced about one-third of the documents disclosed to Mr. Troyer in the fall of 2021. Both these contractual and a statutory duties of disclosure continue to be inadequate without defined verification, penalties, and enforcement mechanisms.

9. FUNDING

Commission Recommendation:

Set source of funding that is insulated from politics and performance of the economy, consistent with funding for Judicial Performance Commissions.

Response from the Judicial Department:

The current independent funding is ideal because it includes a mixture between general fund direct sourcing and the new special cash fund. General Fund revenue is widely recognized as the most reliable and sustainable source of revenue in the state. The Department does not agree with any proposal in which the legislature would appropriate attorney registration fees assessed by the Supreme Court pursuant to its independent constitutional authority to regulate the practice of law. Funding the Commission with fees that are within the Supreme Court's purview undermines the General Assembly's progress in providing financial independence to the Commission via SB 22-201.

Commission Response:

The Commission incorporates its prior discussion of this issue.

10. VICTIM'S RIGHTS CONSIDERTIONS

Commission Recommendation:

Best to manage by rule but enact a version of a VRA for discipline and authorize Commission to protect identity of complaining witnesses to the extent practical to limit retaliation risks.

Response from the Judicial Department:

The Department and the Commission agree that legislative direction for the disciplinary process to keep complainants informed and take reasonable steps to protect their privacy is appropriate. The specifics are likely best addressed by rule. The Department wants to ensure that any legislation does not foreclose restorative justice or similar processes that would encourage victims to report; that it keeps victims reasonably informed throughout the process; that it provides victims a voice in the complaint and resolution process; and that it does not discourage victims from reporting misconduct.

Commission Response:

The Commission incorporates its prior discussion of this issue.

11. METRICS

Commission Recommendation:

Under SB 22-201, the Commission will track demographic statistics in addition to its existing tracking of trends in misconduct complaints that it reports annually. The Commission is to report this information in the SMART process. The Judiciary's SMART process reporting should be amended to include a report on what actions it has taken in response to these trends.

Response from the Judicial Department:

This Department believes this concept needs further definition and specificity regarding the statistics and trends that are being tracked. Data collection may prove useful to provide more information to the public and inform public policy. At times, data collection proves to be more challenging than anticipated, so it would be helpful to have discussions now about the data to be tracked and limits or hindrances that are not immediately apparent. The Department agrees that the Commission should share workplace trends and perceived culture problems. The Department agrees with the Commission that periodic conferral regarding the trends and concerns would be helpful.

Commission Response:

The Commission agrees that this topic needs further development.

Appendix 27(s)(iii)(13)(f)

Letter from Christopher Gregory to the Interim Comm. on Jud. Discipline with Appendices 1-2, August 7, 2022;

COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

August 7, 2022

Members of the Colorado Legislative Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline

On July 11, 2022, the Colorado Judicial Department, through State Court Administrator Steven Vasconcellos, wrote to you with a description of the Department's interactions with the Colorado Judicial Discipline Commission regarding the Discipline Commission's efforts to examine the allegations flowing from the Masias contract. That narrative leaves the reader with several misimpressions. I am writing to correct those misimpressions on behalf of the Commission.

In this response to the Department's July 11th letter, the Discipline Commission attempts to limit its statements to objective facts, minimizing the characterizations or commentary, so that the Interim Committee may reach its own conclusions about the functioning of the current system of judicial discipline. As it has done in the past, the Discipline Commission also limits itself to correcting inaccurate statements made by the Department.

There are significant details in both this correspondence and in the appendices. But the bottom line is this: members of the Colorado Supreme Court, directly and through its senior staff, made a series of decisions and took a series of actions throughout 2021 and 2022 that limited the ability of the Commission -- made up of citizens and legal professionals who volunteer their time and energy - to do its Constitutionally mandated work. The Court chose to share documents and information with 3 other investigations, but not with the Discipline Commission. It chose delay, mixed messages, and obfuscation.

The justifiable concerns of the legislature and the legal community about these choices have led us to the work of this Interim Committee. We hope this level of detail is helpful as you continue your work.

Subpoena and Document Production

Attached as Appendix 1 is a chronology of the Discipline Commission's interactions with the Department related to the disclosure and production of Department records regarding the Masias contract and related issues. The Department has previously released much of the correspondence addressed in Appendix 1. The Department released this correspondence through its Public Access to Information and Records Rules (P.A.I.R.R.) starting in January of 2022. Other than an initial notice, the Department released the correspondence between the Discipline Commission and the Department on these issues without consulting the Commission.

The Production

At page 3, Mr. Vasconcellos characterizes the Department as having produced to the Discipline Commission “a large number of documents” “last summer” and, later on the page, referring to “numerous records produced in 2021.”

The Discipline Commission conducts many evaluations that require it to review Department records. On average in recent years, it reviews records in approximately 70 evaluations per year. It is accurate to state that the Department gave the Discipline Commission access to “a large number documents” on various topics in 2021. As to evaluation of the Masias contract related issues, however, the Department provided the Discipline Commission with 10 documents comprising 60 pages. These individual productions are identified in Appendix 1.

By way of context, Robert Troyer testified on July 12, 2022 that the Department provided him with approximately 12,000 documents for the RCT, Ltd. investigation. His testimony implies that this material was provided without the need of an initial request, but this was not clear. The scope of the RCT, Ltd. investigation was factually narrower than that of the Discipline Commission. For example, Mr. Troyer stated that RCT, Ltd. did not examine the misconduct allegations stated in the “Memo.” Mr. Troyer also testified that RCT, Ltd. was hired by the Department in mid-October of 2021 and that he had received the vast majority of these 12,000 records within one month, or by mid-November.

In contrast, the Discipline Commission made its first affirmative request for the Department’s records on these issues no later than February 8, 2021. Further requests followed as detailed in Appendix 1. The Discipline Commission’s requests for records resulted in production of 10 documents over the next 10-11 months (until the end of 2021). In other words, in the same time frame, the privately hired investigator received one thousand times as many documents and received them in one tenth of the time as the Discipline Commission.

For further context, the Executive Summary of the State Auditor’s report that the Department posted on February 27, 2022, stated that the Department had provided it with access to 16,000 documents.

Mr. Vasconcellos asserts that by the time of his July 11th letter, the Department had produced to the Discipline Commission approximately 1,600 documents. This means that after approximately one- and one-half years of making requests, the Discipline Commission received approximately one tenth of the materials provided to each of these two investigations.

The Discipline Commission stands by its prior statements to legislators that the Department did not provide – and still has not provided – the Discipline Commission with “unfettered access” to its relevant files as was represented to legislators by Department leadership on January 25, 2022.

Access Agreement

Appendix 1 includes the primary events material to the “access agreement,” though not every piece of correspondence is listed.

The July 11th letter proposed an explanation of the Department’s delay in producing its records to the Discipline Commission. Mr. Vasconcellos offered that the Department believed that it needed an agreement under C.R.E. 502 addressing 5 bullet points in order to produce records. The letter gives the impression that the Department stated this belief to the Discipline Commission in August of 2021 and that the Discipline Commission resisted the Department’s straightforward request for agreement on these five bullet points. This impression is objectively inaccurate.

On August 18th, the Chief Justice wrote to the Discipline Commission addressing various aspects of the Discipline Commission’s ongoing requests for information and the Discipline Commission’s concerns about the perceived inadequacy of the Department’s document production to date. At the end of the letter, starting at the bottom of page 3, the Chief Justice stated, “One possible approach to addressing the Discipline Commission’s concerns is for the Discipline Commission to enter into an Access Agreement with the Judicial Department” (emphasis added). The Chief Justice did not describe the purpose of an “access agreement” as addressing the issues listed in Mr. Vasconcellos’ recent July 11th letter as the Department’s needs. Instead, the Chief Justice asserted that the purpose of such an agreement would be to address the “Commission’s concerns.” At that time, the Discipline Commission’s concern was that the Department did not appear to be complying with its existing contractual obligation under the February 5, 2010 Memorandum of Understanding (the “MOU”)¹ to provide access to its records. If the Chief Justice intended to convey the concepts and conditions on future production indicated by Mr. Vasconcellos’ recent July 11th description, the letter he sent did not do so.

¹ The scope of the February 5, 2010 MOU includes disclosure of information related to general and criminal complaints of misconduct involving judges. Through a separate October 1, 2012 MOU with the State Court Administrator’s Office (SCAO), the CCJD had further contractual expectations for disclosure of general court and case records with mechanisms for the disclosure of enumerated “protected records.”

In his July 11th letter, Mr. Vasconcellos implied that the Discipline Commission could have received the 12-16 thousand withheld documents if the Discipline Commission had simply drafted an agreement to address the Department's terms and signed it. However, the actual language of the Chief Justice's letter delivered a different message. The Chief Justice explained in the same August 18th paragraph quoted above that an "Access Agreement, however, cannot circumvent the agreements to which the Department is bound."

The Department was citing the "agreements" as a basis for withholding records from the judicial discipline system. The "agreements" that the Chief Justice said could not be "circumvented" were not identified or explained further. What these "agreements" are remains unknown. The message of the Chief Justice's letter at the time was that, even with an "access agreement," the Department would continue to withhold requested materials.

By August 18, 2021, the Discipline Commission had negotiated with the Chief Justice for six months to obtain records that should have been ministerially disclosed to the Commission under the 2010 and 2012 MOU's. Right or wrong, the primary message the Discipline Commission received from the Chief Justice's August 18th letter was that no further progress could be expected without the involvement of Special Counsel. The Discipline Commission turned its energies to getting an attorney onboard who could pursue the discovery dispute further. Conversely, the Department's leadership appears to have turned its energies to blocking that engagement as shown in Appendix 2.

The Department's July 11th letter also gives the impression that the Department was waiting for the Discipline Commission to draft an agreement addressing the Department's bullet points. The Department, however, had not expressed this expectation to the Discipline Commission and had not disclosed its expectation for required terms (i.e., the five bullet points from the July 11, 2022 letter).

The Department provided its first draft of an "access agreement" in November of 2021, nine months after the Discipline Commission began requesting disclosures from the Department. The Commission defers to the actual correspondence to address the back and forth of negotiations. The Discipline Commission would welcome working with the Interim Committee to find a procedural path that would allow it to share this correspondence if it is deemed of value.

The draft "access agreement" did not commit the Department to providing access to its relevant files. To the contrary, the draft agreement authorized the Department to withhold records from the Discipline Commission and, critical to the Discipline Commission, do so without disclosing or explaining the legal basis for such withholding. In other words, the draft agreement authorized the Department to withhold material records without the Discipline Commission ever knowing that anything had been withheld, without knowing that a claim of confidentiality was being asserted as to a pivotal record, and without knowing the basis for such claims of confidentiality or privilege. This was not acceptable to the Discipline Commission. If the Department's privately hired investigators agreed to the terms proposed to the Discipline Commission, one must ask how they know whether they were given full access to the Department's records.

The Chief Justice requested that the full Discipline Commission meet with him, Justice Monica Marquez, and other Department leaders at the Ralph J. Carr Judicial Center on January 28, 2021. During this meeting, the Chief Justice raised the issue of the "access agreement." He represented to the Discipline Commission that the Department needed only an assurance that production of records to the Discipline Commission would not waive the Department's potential claims of confidentiality or privilege. The Discipline Commission reminded him that it had already provided an unequivocal assurance of this point in writing (through the terms of the subpoena itself stating that a responsive production would not be a waiver of such claims) and stated that this assurance could also be put in the form of an agreement if so desired.

After the meeting, the Department's counsel persisted in pursuing an "access agreement" on very different terms than those stated by the Chief Justice. As a result, the CCJD proposed a draft agreement on March 10, 2022, which directly acknowledged that disclosure to the CCJD did not waive claims of confidentiality or privilege held by the Department, the terms defined by the Chief Justice at the January 28th meeting. The Department, nevertheless, declined to accept the Commission's draft agreement.

A final agreement was not reached until after the General Assembly legislatively mandated the Department's information sharing through SB22-201. Even after enactment of SB22-201 and the CCJD proposing another draft "access agreement" in conformity with CRE 502, the Department continued to argue, inter alia, over including a provision confirming the Department's obligations to fully comply with its disclosure obligations. The final agreement did not include such a commitment by the Department.

Subpoena

In his July 11th letter, Mr. Vasconcellos stated, "the Department is not aware of any discussion or communication in which the Department questioned or challenged the Discipline Commission's subpoena authority or indicated that it would not comply with a subpoena." Mr. Vasconcellos may be unaware of the operative facts.

On February 24, 2022 at 1 p.m., Special Counsel met with the Department's counsel handling discovery. The Department's counsel asserted that the Discipline Commission did not have subpoena authority until formal proceedings are filed under Rule 18. The Department's counsel advised that if the parties could not reach agreement on the "access" terms proposed by the Department, the Department would seek to quash the Discipline Commission's subpoena, and the Department's counsel expressed confidence that their client, the Colorado Supreme Court, would sustain their objection.

This followed a meeting between the full Commission and the Supreme Court's Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel ("OARC") on December 17, 2021. In a case wholly unrelated to the Masias matters, the Supreme Court's OARC advised the Discipline Commission of this new view that the Discipline Commission holds no discovery or subpoena authority until formal proceedings are filed and, therefore, has no such authority during its investigation phase. These events are confirmed by two witnesses.

The Discipline Commission is relieved to learn that the Department has reversed its expressed position and now affirms that the Discipline Commission has subpoena authority during its investigation phase. Nevertheless, the statement by Mr. Vasconcellos is not enforceable. A need still exists to codify the scope of the Discipline Commission's authority to issue, and its means of enforcing, subpoenas.

Funding

Under the heading "Funding," the Department's July 11th letter addressed the Discipline Commission's funding and the issues related to the Discipline Commission's retention of Special Counsel for the Masias matters. Appendix 2 provides a chronology of events on these topics. As with Appendix 1, the Department purports to have already released the correspondence addressing these issues months ago through P.A.I.R.R.2 responses. Both appendices address the context for communications the Department previously chose to make public.

The issues of funding for the Masias matter and the Discipline Commission's general funding are properly addressed together. The Discipline Commission's pursuit of funding for its investigation of the Masias matter led to the Supreme Court's actions that, in turn, required the Discipline Commission to obtain substitute general funding from the General Assembly.

The Department's July 11th letter notes that the new legislation provides for "independent funding for the Discipline Commission" and went on to state the Department's claimed support "for the Discipline Commission to manage its own budget independent of the Judicial Department." The letter fails to note, however, that the black letter law governing Commission funding prior the SB22-201 provided for exactly the same independent financial management. The funding access problem did not arise because of a flaw in the existing law. The problem arose because the leadership of the Judiciary sought to use its practical control over funding access to override existing law's grant of independent financial management authority to the Discipline Commission. SB 22-201 affirmed prior budget authority but substantially reduced the Judiciary's practical ability to subvert that authority.

Rule 3 of the Colorado Rules of Judicial Discipline ("Colo. RJD") authorized "the Discipline Commission to manage its own budget independent of the Judicial Department," to use

Mr. Vasconcellos' phrase. Prior to SB 22-201, Colo. RJD 3 provided the Discipline Commission's Executive Director with budget authority subject to oversight by the Discipline Commission itself. This type of budget structure, a chief executive addressing the budget subject to oversight by a board-like entity, is commonplace in the private and public sectors. The Discipline Commission's financial management was subject to further oversight by the State Auditor. Thus, the Executive Director's decisions were subject to two layers of financial oversight.

Colorado Rule of Civil Procedure 227 separately identifies the source of the Discipline Commission's funding through attorney registration fees. Rule 227 is, itself, consistent with Colorado's Constitution Article VI, § 23(3)(c) which recognizes that the Discipline Commission's expenses are "to be paid by the supreme court from its budget to be appropriated by the general assembly."

The blackletter law provided the Discipline Commission with independent financial management authority prior to SB 22-201. Problems arose because Judicial leadership asserted unwritten authority to control, and ultimately terminate, the Discipline Commission's access to its funding.

The Department's July 11th letter referred generally to communications about resources in the summer of 2021. The reader is referred to Appendix 2 for specifics. Mr. Vasconcellos stated that in one meeting, he was told "that the Discipline Commission had the resources it needed" regarding special counsel. This is an accurate statement but omits key context.

Mr. Vasconcellos appears to be referring to a meeting he had with Commission Executive Director William Campbell on or about August 31, 2021. By the time of that meeting, the Supreme Court's OARC had approved the Discipline Commission hiring private sector Special Counsel with an accepted budget estimate of up to $100,000. By the date of that meeting, the Discipline Commission was finalizing its retention of counsel on these terms discussed with the Supreme Court's OARC. Based on its discussions with Judicial leadership, the Discipline Commission believed that there were no unresolved resource needs to be addressed. Only in the months that followed did the Discipline Commission learn that the Colorado Supreme Court and OARC were moving to prevent the Commission's access to the contemplated funding.

In his letter, Mr. Vasconcellos next stated that the Discipline Commission "fail[ed] to follow defensible procurement processes" in retaining counsel and characterizes the financial conditions of the retention of counsel. This statement is false.

The Discipline Commission welcomes the opportunity finally to address the Department's claims in the open. Judicial leadership has spread these unfounded stories within the legal community for several months. The Discipline Commission has received persistent questions about these misstatements from lawyers throughout the year, with the most intensity following the appearances of Justices at the Colorado Bar Association in March of 2022. The most common versions of the narrative being circulated are that a) the Discipline Commission hired its Special Counsel without competing bids and without obtaining permission from the Department or the Court and b) that the Discipline Commission agreed to pay full market rates. These are both objectively false, as demonstrated in Appendix 2. The notion that the Discipline Commission would need permission from the Department or the Court to conduct an investigation is itself reflective of the significant structural conflicts presented through the Masias matter.

Procurement Process

The Discipline Commission asked the Supreme Court's OARC (still an apparent collaborative partner at that time) what procurement process for retention of private counsel was required in July of 2021. The Supreme Court's OARC represented to the Discipline Commission that no procurement process was required. OARC further advised the Discipline Commission that it would only have to enter a written engagement letter agreement and provide a copy for the contracting file. The Discipline Commission later learned that the Supreme Court's OARC had (and has) no written procurement code. The Department likely presumes that the Discipline Commission did not follow a procurement process because the Court, through OARC, had itself advised the Discipline Commission that none was required. The Discipline Commission, however, did not view the recommended course to be responsible in this situation. Therefore, the Commission solicited bids from the market.

Confidentiality restrictions made the solicitation process challenging. The Supreme Court's OARC provided recommendations of individual firms for the Discipline Commission to consider hiring. The vast majority of the firms the Discipline Commission approached declined to submit a bid once they learned that the Judicial Department itself could be an adverse party (recall, the first task contemplated for Special Counsel was overcoming the Department's objections to disclosing documents). Three firms were courageous enough to submit proposals. The Discipline Commission studied the three private sector proposals and that of the AG's office, balanced the pros and cons of each, and selected one firm. The Department's persistent representation that no procurement or bidding process was followed by the Discipline Commission is simply false.

Budget Approval

As highlighted in the Department's July 11th letter, the expense of hiring Special Counsel was not in the Discipline Commission's original 2021-22 budget. The need to hire counsel was not known to the Discipline Commission at the time the budget was prepared. The Discipline Commission traditionally accessed its funding through the Supreme Court's OARC and they provided administrative support for the budgeting process. After initial discussion in June, the Discipline Commission sought further guidance from the Supreme Court's OARC in July of 2021. OARC advised the Discipline Commission that no budget approval was required, only notice of the expenditure to allow coordination among those entities sharing the same funding source. They asked for a budget estimate, and the Discipline Commission provided the figure of up to $100,000. (At the time, the Discipline Commission did not anticipate the degree of resistance it would ultimately encounter from the Department in producing its records). As described in Appendix 2, the Supreme Court's OARC accepted the estimate and confirmed that no formal budget process was required.

These discussions were handled informally as the Supreme Court's OARC was seen as a collaborative partner at the time. The Discipline Commission continued exploring the possibility of sharing an investigator with OARC but few primary source documents exist. However, a small number of email exchanges detailed in Appendix 2 confirm the material points. Contemporaneous secondary source documentation also exists confirming these facts.

Rates

The more common version of the narrative promoted by Judicial leadership has been that the Discipline Commission is paying full market hourly rates for its private sector Special Counsel. This is inaccurate.

When the Discipline Commission asked what procurement requirements existed, it was told that none existed. It was not informed of any requirement to obtain discounted hourly rates. Nonetheless, the Discipline Commission thought it reasonable to request discounted rates despite the unusually high degree of professional risk any lawyer would be taking in this engagement. The Discipline Commission obtained discounted rates. When requested by the Supreme Court's OARC, the Discipline Commission documented that the rates were discounted in early October of 2021. Also in October, the Colorado Solicitor General approved, in writing, the rates being charged in this matter as reasonable for private sector lawyers retained by the State of Colorado. The Attorney General's Office further approved the terms of the engagement of Special Counsel.

Despite these prior approvals, the Supreme Court's OARC refused to release funds for the Discipline Commission's Special Counsel once the Discipline Commission identified the firm hired. The Supreme Court's OARC also raised objections to the engagement of counsel itself. On April 22, 2022, after public pressure was applied, the Department (through the Supreme Court's OARC) finally entered a written agreement to allow the Discipline Commission access to funds to pay Special Counsel. The agreement simply implements the authority the Discipline Commission has always held under its Rules 2(aa) and 3(d). Mr. Vasconcellos personally participated in the creation of that agreement. Thus, the persistence in asserting objections to that engagement based on erroneous facts is difficult to understand.

The term of that agreement has now expired. The Discipline Commission's Special Counsel has billed a total of less than one-tenth of the amount budgeted by the Department for the same time frame for the Colorado Supreme Court's privately hired counsel. This comparison does not account for the taxpayer dollars also spent on the team of AG's representing the Supreme Court, the team of inhouse counsel for the Department, the work of the State Auditor's office undertaken for the Chief Justice, or the work of the Denver District Attorney's office. The focus on Special Counsel's hourly rates and circulation of misinformation about those rates is misplaced in this context.

Control

The Department's July 11th letter asserts that the Department leadership did not attempt to "control" or limit the scope of the Discipline Commission's investigation of the Masias matters. It also asserts that the Supreme Court's OARC had no reason to "impede" the Discipline Commission's investigation.

The Attorney Regulation Counsel, Jessica Yates, was directly appointed by the Supreme Court and serves at its pleasure. At various times, Ms. Yates has been presented as the Court's designated "fiduciary" of attorney registration fees held on behalf of specifically listed beneficiary under C.R.C.P. 227, including the Discipline Commission as well as the OARC itself. No legal authority for this asserted authority has ever been provide in response to requests.

When Ms. Yates met with members of the Discipline Commission on September 27, 2021, she explicitly stated that the Commission's outside Special Counsel could not address certain issues unless the Discipline Commission obtained prior approval from the Colorado Supreme Court. Ms. Yates also stated, as the chief attorney-ethics-enforcement officer in Colorado, that the Special Counsel would be violating ethical rules if Counsel asserted positions that contradicted the positions of the Department. These are examples of efforts by Judicial leadership to exercise direct control over the investigation and the work of Special Counsel.

Other

The July 11th letter includes several statements that create misimpressions beyond those listed here. Some have been addressed by prior materials or can be corrected by review of the governing rules. Correcting each and every misstatement does not appear to be productive or fully necessary at this time. Therefore, the Discipline Commission will not attempt to do so here.

Conclusion

The Department's July 11th letter reflects a broader context of ongoing efforts by the leadership of the Judiciary, and specifically the Colorado Supreme Court, to endorse a specific narrative relating to the Masias contract related issues. The Department's leadership has promoted a version of disputed facts, endorsed the credibility of some witnesses and denigrated the credibility of other witnesses while also subverting the system of judicial discipline charged by the Colorado Constitution with the task of impartially and independently investigating these same facts and witnesses. The overt actions of the leadership of the Department to promote publicly a specific narrative and avoid an impartial judicial discipline investigation themselves illustrate the depth of the flaws in the functionality and credibility of Colorado's current system of judicial discipline that need to be remedied.

The events of 2021-2022 illustrate the many conflicts of interest that are deeply ingrained at several levels of Colorado's current structure for judicial discipline. Nevertheless, the basic overall structure remains sound and the avenues of improper influence can be restricted with a small number of relatively straightforward reforms, such as those the Discipline Commission has proposed.

Chief Justice Boatright represented to the General Assembly in early 2022 that the Court's primary goal was to get Judicial "out of the business" of judicial discipline. This is the central challenge to be addressed. The Discipline Commission has proposed that the Interim Committee recommend granting the Chief Justice's request and creating a new multi-perspective, citizen and bar involved entity to replace the Colorado Supreme Court as the ultimate decision-maker in judicial discipline cases. The Discipline Commission has further recommended mechanisms to reinforce reliable information disclosure and stable, conflict-free funding of the judicial discipline process.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Chris Gregory", with a long, sweeping underline that extends to the right.

Christopher S.P. Gregory
Executive Director

Appendices (2)

Appendix 27(s)(iii)(13)(g)

Press release from Colo. Jud. Dep't re: Colo.
Comm'n. on Jud. Discipline August 7, 2022
Letter, August 8, 2022;

“The Commission’s response to the Department’s July 11 letter to the Interim Committee underscores the Department’s longstanding concern that a public back and forth characterizing previous discussions benefits no one, and in fact damages the Department and the Commission. The Commission’s response, which includes a timeline of events and discussions, omits many relevant statements, ignores important context, in some instances misstates discussions, misquotes language from the Department’s written communications, modifies quotes to imply something other than what was stated (in some cases not indicating the quote has been modified), and falsely attributes ill-intent to many members of Department leadership. The Commission’s communication is disheartening. Obviously, we disagree with the Commission’s characterization of events.

Additionally, the Commission again asserts that the Judicial Department is withholding documents and information from the Commission related to its investigations. That is not true. The Judicial Department is cooperating with all document requests from the Commission. On July 12 – three weeks prior to the recent allegation from the Commission – attorneys for the Department notified the Commission’s counsel that it had fully complied with the Commission’s subpoena, including production of privileged and confidential information. The Department recently received five broad new requests for documents that require the collection, labeling, and production of what will likely comprise nearly 30,000 documents. Department attorneys and the Attorney General’s Office are working as quickly as possible to provide these documents to the Commission in the manner agreed to with the Commission’s Special Counsel. Thus, it is entirely inaccurate for the Commission to state that the Department is “withholding” documents when in fact the Department is working feverishly to comply with these requests in a timely manner.

Despite the course of communications over the past few months, the Department has been and continues to be willing to engage with the Commission, identify issues, and propose solutions.”

Appendix 27(s)(iii)(13)(h)

Colo. Coalition Against Sexual Assault,
RECOMMENDATIONS FOR PREVENTING AND
RESPONDING TO SEXUAL MISCONDUCT IN THE STATE JUDICIAL BRANCH, August 9, 2022;

August 9, 2022

Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline
Colorado General Assembly

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR PREVENTING AND RESPONDING TO SEXUAL MISCONDUCT IN THE STATE JUDICIAL BRANCH

BACKGROUND:

The Colorado Coalition Against Sexual Assault (CCASA) works to prevent and end sexual violence in our state, including sexual harassment and assault. Sex-based harassment is pervasive, making up nearly half of all harassment complaints received by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC). Studies have found between a quarter to 85 percent of women experience sexual harassment in their lifetimes and up to 94% of people do not report it.ⁱ According to the EEOC, Black women are the most likely of all groups to have filed a sexual harassment charge, often reporting racial discrimination as well.

Workplace harassment, discrimination, and other offensive conduct based on one's identity is detrimental to an employee's performance, professional advancement, and/or physical and mental health. Research correlates experiencing workplace harassment with career interruptions, lower earnings, discouragement from professional advancement, and restricted access to learning or mentoring opportunities, thereby leading to unemployment, financial stress, wage loss, economic instability, and leaving their fields entirely.ⁱⁱ Additionally, victims of sexual harassment are more likely to report symptoms of depression, general stress and anxiety, post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), increased use of alcohol and drugs, disordered eating, self-blame, reduced self-esteem, emotional exhaustion, anger, fear, and lower satisfaction with life in general.ⁱⁱⁱ Further, there are high costs for employers with turnover, decreased victim and workgroup productivity, reputational damage, and direct payouts or settlements.

Moreover, the Judicial Branch contains several of the risk factors identified by the EEOC Task Force Study on Workplace Harassment:

- Significant Power Disparities – High-status workers can feel emboldened to exploit low-status workers, who may be more economically vulnerable and less likely to understand internal complaint processes. Studies find that when these power disparities are gendered, more harassment may occur. Judges represent both a formal and informal power in the Judicial Branch. Extreme power imbalances without clear protections and accountability measures can disempower victims.
- Control over Careers – Fear of and actual adverse job repercussions leave employees to reasonably conclude that not reporting is the best course of action. Clerks and interns/externs are dependent upon judges for recommendations that can open or close career doors depending on the judge's recommendation, creating a massive power imbalance and giving judges too much control over a clerk's career. Attorneys may fear hostility, negative bias, and/or unfair rulings.

- Decentralized Workplaces – Limited communication or supervision between organizational levels can allow harassment to go unchecked.

Senate Bill 22-201 created the Legislative Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline to study a range of issues, including a victim-centered approach to judicial misconduct complaints. CCASA offers the following recommendations to address risk factors for workplace harassment and changes to protect and support victims and complainants.

RECOMMENDATIONS:

1. SAFE REPORTING

According to investigative reports, Colorado Judicial Branch employees report strong distrust in the existing reporting structures in place. A safe reporting system offers multiple avenues for reporting with transparent processes, communication, and timely follow-up. Further, it must avoid conflicts of interest and generate trust in the system for complainants.

- A. Maintain an accessible, clearly explained process for confidential formal and informal reporting options that are communicated at least annually to all employees throughout the organization.
- B. Explicitly permit anonymous complaints that can be investigated and provide the option to be informed if other complaints are made against same person to allow for a change to formal reporting.
- C. Permit complaints to be reported out of chain of command.
- D. Permit complaints from former employees, interns, and volunteers.
- E. Establish strong and enforceable protections from retaliation or continued abuse or harassment.
- F. Establish an independently managed hotline/helpline (separate from Human Resources) to accept complaints and provide confidential information about the process for filing a complaint for all state employees.

2. TIMELY INDEPENDENT INVESTIGATIONS

The Court must improve the legitimacy of the process for handling complaints against employees and reports of fraud, waste, abuse, or other misconduct within the State Judicial Branch, including judicial officers, court employees, clerks, and interns. Conducting prompt, thorough, and independent investigations assures employees and others who make complaints that they are being taken seriously and will be resolved in a fair and impartial manner.

- A. Assure complainants, witnesses, and others who participate in the investigation that they will be protected against retaliation. Establish policies and practices to determine whether retaliation has occurred, and if so, what remedies are available for the victim and what disciplinary action may be applied to those who retaliated.

- B. Ensure the independence of staff within the investigatory unit or utilize a third-party to conduct investigations. Provide the resources, access to information, and authority to effectively investigate complaints.
- C. Establish clear rules for how, when, and by whom investigations will occur and communicate that information to employees, clerks, volunteers, and interns.
- D. Conduct prompt investigations and inform complainants of process and timelines throughout the investigation.
- E. Continue investigations even after a complainant or accused employee resigns or retires.

3. SUPPORT FOR VICTIMS/COMPLAINANTS

When a victim of harassment or misconduct makes a report, they enter into a system shrouded in secrecy. There are no support mechanisms in place, no one working on their behalf, providing guidance or resource referral, and no way of accessing information on the status of their complaint. The current system makes it difficult and professionally risky to report harassment and misconduct, and then leaves complainants isolated, uninformed, and unsupported. Further, victims are deposed as witnesses, where legal advice or counsel may be appropriate, but are on their own to find and pay for it.

- A. Create an Office of Employee Advocate modeled after that in the Federal Judicial Accountability Act^{iv} to provide:
 - i. Confidential support and information about the process of reporting, investigations, supportive measures for complainants, and corrective measures for the accused;
 - ii. Referrals to medical and mental health care, community-based advocacy services, and other resources;
 - iii. Guidance in navigating options, such as formal and informal complaints, and law enforcement reporting and medical reporting for sexual assault;
 - iv. No-cost, privileged legal assistance, consultation, and representation in personal civil legal matters related to the initiation of or participation in proceedings either through staff attorneys or pro-bono program;
 - v. Regular status updates on cases and inform victim of results at critical stages.
- B. Define and communicate supportive measures for victims and witnesses, even if a complainant does not pursue formal reporting, including:
 - i. Individualized services to protect complainant safety or deter further harassment or discrimination;
 - ii. Transfers, reassignments, or changes in work location, phone number, email address, supervision, or parking spot both during and after investigations;
 - iii. A one-way no-contact order to prohibit the harasser from directly communicating with the victim;
 - iv. Escort or security services when walking to parking lots, through buildings, or other spaces where the accused may be encountered;

- v. Temporary leave for employees, clerks, volunteers, or interns with a guarantee to return at the same level and pay.
- C. Create a system to issue letters of recommendation or provide references for clerks, interns, volunteers, or employees who have made a complaint, especially if it was against a supervisor.

4. ENSURE ACCOUNTABILITY AND TRANSPARENCY

Inconsistent accountability measures communicate that harassment, discrimination, and other misconduct are tolerated. Accountability is not only an acknowledgement of harm and an accepting of responsibility, but also a change of behavior and repair of harm. Sanctions must be proportionate to the inappropriate conduct that had been substantiated and standardized to avoid implicit or explicit bias.

- A. Establish a Corrective Action Matrix to ensure consistency in corrective action including for people in positions of power. Lay out and communicate throughout the organization the type of disciplinary actions that each type of misconduct would warrant and who decides the sanctions.
- B. Develop a process for judicial recusal or reassignment of district in cases where an attorney or party to the case has reported the judge for misconduct.
- C. Require the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline to establish a publicly accessible and searchable judicial misconduct database.
- D. Track anonymized data on complaints (formal and informal), investigations, and remedies, including district locations, patterns, and themes and report publicly on an annual basis. Require an annual report to the Governor, Legislature, and the public from the Chief Justice on steps taken to address and prevent judicial misconduct and harassment and discrimination in the Courts.

5. PRIORITIZE PREVENTION

Regaining public and employee trust must come through a commitment to transparency, accountability, and prevention efforts. A history of silence must be addressed by shining a light on issues of harassment, discrimination and misconduct through policies, trainings, and assessments.

- A. Establish or update workplace misconduct policies to be comprehensive and communicate a commitment to maintaining a workplace that encourages ethical conduct, mutual respect, professionalism, and collegiality throughout the organization.
 - i. Apply policies and communicate them to all individuals working within the courts, including interns, clerks, and volunteers.
 - ii. Explicitly state that confidentiality policies do not apply to misconduct or unethical behavior.
 - iii. Include abusive and bullying behavior as prohibited conduct.
- B. Require annual training for all Judicial Branch employees on workplace behavior and interventions. Successful anti-harassment training must be:
 - i. Comprehensive and customized to the Judicial Branch, including hypothetical scenarios and workplace realities that employees may actually witness;

- ii. Standardized to communicate consistent mission, values, policies, and procedures across the organization;
 - iii. Treating all participants as allies and bystanders, rather than perpetrators and victims, and encourages participants to stand up for each other and create a culture that is safe;
 - iv. Hybrid or self-guided interactive modules with check-in points to ensure engagement and retention.
- C. Establish separate training specifically for judges to demonstrate positive workplace culture and create a safe space to ask questions and learn.
- D. Conduct anonymous workplace culture assessments to help to identify potential areas of risk and underreporting and build employee trust in the commitment of the leadership to changing the culture.
- i. Results should be shared with employees and included in reports to the legislature, Governor, and public.
 - ii. Include responses from current and former employees, including a mix of focus groups, interviews, and surveys.
 - iii. Utilize a third-party to administer to minimize distrust and fear of retaliation.

CONCLUSION:

Sexual violence and other misconduct thrive in systems with secrecy, power disparities, and a lack of oversight. The Judicial Branch, like many other workplaces and institutions, has reckoned with its inadequacies and now has an opportunity to create an environment and climate that enables respect, accountability, and credibility within the organization and to the broader public. We urge the Interim Committee and the Judicial Branch to implement these recommendations to create a more victim-centered process for responding to and preventing misconduct, including sexual harassment and discrimination.

ⁱ Select Task Force on the Study of Harassment in the Workplace, "Report of Co-Chairs Chai R. Feldblum and Victoria A. Lipnic" June 2016.

ⁱⁱ Institute for Women's Policy Research, "Sexual Harassment and Assault at Work: Understanding the Costs" October 2018.

ⁱⁱⁱ Cortin, L.M. and Leskinen, E.A., "Workplace Harassment Based on Sex: A Risk Factor for Women's Mental Health Problems" 2013.

^{iv} Judiciary Accountability Act of 2021, SEC. 7. OFFICE OF EMPLOYEE ADVOCACY.

Appendix 27(s)(iii)(13)(i)

Colo. Coalition Against Sexual Assault,
Anonymous Letter from a Victim to the Legis. Interim Comm. on Jud. Discipline,
August 10, 2022;

Letter from a Victim for the Interim Committee Hearing:

I was sexually harassed by a judge while working as an intern during law school. I can tell you that it was an absolutely horrible experience.

I reported the harassment, which went to the Judicial Commission. They interviewed me a month later and told me it could be months before I heard anything back. They requested I speak to no one about the investigation and warned me that doing so could result in a misdemeanor charge. Lastly, they told me that they did not represent me, but the People of Colorado. I was on my own. With that, I was released back into society—expected to go to school, carry on with my life, and keep my mouth shut.

I began to have terrible anxiety. I was in the dark with no one to give me updates or explain anything, no one able or willing to guide me. I was scared to tell anyone what was happening and risk a misdemeanor. I started having nightmares about the judge. The anxiety began to manifest in hideous ways. I was so worried that the Judge was going to ruin my career and dirty my reputation. I got to the point where I thought he could show up at my school or work and physically hurt me to keep me quiet. I would walk to the parking garage every day and have trouble breathing and would break into sweats. I felt like I was thrown to the wolves.

I continued to spiral as I waited in silence, not knowing if my claim was being taken seriously or an investigation was moving forward. The anxiety paired with something I had never before experienced, a deep depression. I began to hate law. I felt that it was all corrupt, that judges could do as they please with no consequences. and that as a woman, these things would continue to happen to me and no one would bat an eye. The judge that I had reported was still on the bench, and I had heard nothing about what was happening. It became physically painful to get out of bed and go to class. I started crying every night when I got home and seriously contemplated dropping out of school. Everything felt so hopeless, and I no longer felt like myself my friends approached me and begged me to go to therapy. I knew that I was not okay, but I did not have the energy to figure out how to enroll in therapy, or more importantly, how to pay for it.

Then I hit the lowest point in my life. I was driving home from a class and I remember being so hopeless and tired that I wanted it all to end. I let my hands hover off of the wheel for a few seconds and thought about how easy it would be to let go.

I had never had thoughts of killing myself or wanting to die before this. I spoke to someone at my university and told them a little bit of what was going on. This individual put me in contact with CAPE, an organization that acts as a resource coordinator for students who have been sexually harassed or assaulted. I finally had someone to talk to where I felt safe and heard. The CAPE officer organized everything to get me into therapy. It was quite literally a lifesaver.

However, the process with the Commission did not end there. Almost 6 months later, I got a call that they needed personal evidence from me. I was on Christmas break with my family, and I felt the anxiety hit again. Then more silence. Months later, they reached out and I was told that I needed to schedule a time to be deposed in the next couple of weeks right around the time of final exams. This involved my harasser sitting across a table from me as his attorney interrogated me. I was a witness and did not have rights as a victim. I was powerless to do anything, With finals looming, I had to scramble to get an attorney and find a way to pay for my own representation as a student living off of student loans.

When I reported, I was scared, but I was told it was the right thing to do. Now I feel failed by the system and I do not blame others for not reporting. The process has been re-traumatizing, to say the least. I have wanted to die, I have cried myself to sleep, I have been boiling with anger, I have been numb, scared, worried, and I have been all of the emotions that no victim should go through without support.

The reality is it is not that hard to do better and I have some suggestions.

First, there should be someone to explain the process in more detail at the beginning, maybe provide some written information, and help victims understand that they have the rights of a witness and that they should get their own representation.

Second, having someone as a point of contact. If a victim wants an update, or is confused about how the process works, someone they can feel safe and comfortable contacting to learn more.

Third, no one who reports should have to mentally suffer and have no resources to help. Having some sort of stipend for mental wellness in this process should be a given, and it should not be an added stress on the victim to figure out how to find a therapist, and how to pay for one.

Fourth, victims should have the right to an attorney at no cost. Whether this is paid for by the state, or at minimum attorneys volunteer pro bono, someone should coordinate this and cover expenses instead of throwing this responsibility and financial burden on a victim, who is typically a lower-level employee and does not have the same bucket of finances to dip into as a judge.

Next, possibly creating a hotline or a neutral person for victims to report to would be helpful. It can be terrifying to know that your harasser is 5 steps down the hall from the person you are supposed to report to.

Finally, little things need to be ensured too, such as making sure a victim is able to transfer or leave the job with the judge, change their phone number, etc.

If we care about this profession, if we want to foster young students into incredible lawyers, if we want courthouse employees or people standing before a judge to feel safe and not objectified, then we must do better. I am a first-generation law student; I have experienced a lot of hardship in my life. I have fought hard to be here. But this process almost made me give up and walk away from it all. I never want another person who is doing the right thing to have such a terrible experience. I don't want this profession to be seen as corrupt and a let-down. I ask you to help change it, to help victims who have already suffered feel like everything is going to be okay. We can and must do better.

Appendix 27(s)(iii)(13)(j)

Am. Bd. of Trial Advocates, OUR SUPREME COURT UNDER SIEGE, August 10, 2022;

OFFICERS 2022

PRESIDENT
Richard Kaudy

VICE PRESIDENT
Tom Overton

TREASURER
Angela McGraw

Secretary
Jim Chalal

PAST PRESIDENTS

1977 Stu Blunt
1976 Pete Watson
1977 Paul Renner
1978 Ray Connell
1979 Lee Wills
1980 George Ashen
1981 Ralph Harden
1982 Mike Hilgers
1983 Will Browne
1984 Bob Montgomery
1985 Harry Balaban
1986 Bill DeMoulin
1987 Rick Everstine
1988 Mike Williams
1991 David Little
1992 Dan Sparr
1993 Jim Lyons
1994 Mike Ludwig
1995 Carol Welch
1996 Gil Dickinson
1997 Fern Black
1998 Ron Pred
1999 Greg Kanan
2000 John Rodman
2001 Frank Patterson
2002 Mike Jones
2003 Bill Gray
2004 Tina Habas
2005 Dennis Brown
2006 Gary Blum
2007 Liz Starrs
2008 Steve Wahlberg
2009 Al Avery
2010 Gary Jackson
2011 Brian McConaty
2012 Cliff Beem
2013 Michelle Prud'Homme
2014 Rich Caschette
2015 Jeff Villanueva
2016 Sonny Flowers
2017 Bruce Montoya
2018 Jerry Pratt
2019 Pete Ramirez
2020 Jan Spies
2021 Brad Ross-Shannon

Our Supreme Court Under Siege

No bribery. No payoffs. No cover-up. The headline should be “We were wrong. We’re sorry.”

It’s time to set the record straight.

For a year and a half, the press has attacked the Colorado Supreme Court repeating mere allegations to try to find a scandal.

There were two allegations. One was that a leadership contract was granted to hush former employee Mindy Masias. The second was that there was a secret list of allegations of improper conduct by state court employees, including some judges.

The Court, transparent at every turn, publicly released the document that contained the allegations. It called for independent investigations with investigators to be picked by the legislative and executive branches. The Court promised to make the results of the investigations public, and it did so.

There were separate investigations into each allegation. The first investigation concluded that allegations of hush money were false. The second investigation concluded that virtually every one of the allegations on the “secret” list, which goes back 20 years, were “unsubstantiated,” “unfounded,” and “misleading.” As the investigator’s report noted: “many of the allegations leave out important context or misstate facts.”

The independent investigators found nothing criminal or unethical. – but suggested ways that the Judicial Branch can manage its nearly 4000 employees so the judiciary can better address and resolve employee issues.

The judicial process in Colorado is safe and fair.

OFFICERS 2022

PRESIDENT
Richard Kaudy

VICE PRESIDENT
Tom Overton

TREASURER
Angela McGraw

Secretary
Jim Chalal

PAST PRESIDENTS

1977 Stu Blunt
1976 Pete Watson
1977 Paul Renner
1978 Ray Connell
1979 Lee Wills
1980 George Ashen
1981 Ralph Harden
1982 Mike Hilgers
1983 Will Browne
1984 Bob Montgomery
1985 Harry Balaban
1986 Bill DeMoulin
1987 Rick Everstine
1988 Mike Williams
1991 David Little
1992 Dan Sparr
1993 Jim Lyons
1994 Mike Ludwig
1995 Carol Welch
1996 Gil Dickinson
1997 Fern Black
1998 Ron Pred
1999 Greg Kanan
2000 John Rodman
2001 Frank Patterson
2002 Mike Jones
2003 Bill Gray
2004 Tina Habas
2005 Dennis Brown
2006 Gary Blum
2007 Liz Starrs
2008 Steve Wahlberg
2009 Al Avery
2010 Gary Jackson
2011 Brian McConaty
2012 Cliff Beem
2013 Michelle Prud'Homme
2014 Rich Caschette
2015 Jeff Villanueva
2016 Sonny Flowers
2017 Bruce Montoya
2018 Jerry Pratt
2019 Pete Ramirez
2020 Jan Spies
2021 Brad Ross-Shannon

Sincerely,

Richard M. Kaudy
Chapter President

Gilbert A. Dickinson,
Chapter National Delegate

Thomas J. Overton,
Chapter Vice President

The American Board of Trial Advocates consists of lawyers that practice in the civil trial courts. We represent the entire spectrum of clients in non-criminal matters, both plaintiffs and defendants. Our dual mission is to preserve civil jury trials and preserve the independent judiciary.

Appendix 27(s)(iii)(13)(k)

Christopher Ryan, Written Testimony,
August 10, 2022;

Mr. Chair, Madame Co-Chair, and Members of the Committee:

As I begin, I offer the following quote from John Wooden that has been particularly meaningful for me as of late, “Be more concerned with your character than your reputation. Character is what you really are. Reputation is what people say you are. Reputation is often based on character – but not always.”

I want to thank you for the opportunity to share my perspectives and recommendations concerning the Judicial Discipline process in Colorado. While I would like to respond to the personal denigration inflicted by the Judicial branch in detail, I realize this Committee has a monumental task at hand. This coupled with a tight timeframe for developing policy recommendations for legislative action, does not lend itself to the vetting of the totality of circumstances. So, my commentary will be brief. Hopefully, in the roles you perform you will have an opportunity, at some point, to personally review all the underlying information, not just the portions that the Judicial Branch deems fit to publish and will be in a position to make determinations for yourselves.

Over the course of my almost thirty-year career, I exclusively worked for judges in one manner or another and always performed my duties understanding the role and responsibilities with which I was tasked. Given that most of the written work I produced over the course of my career was issued under someone else’s name, I clearly knew who was in charge. My duties from the time I was a Bailiff forward were always performed with the advice and consent of the judicial officers for whom I worked.

The Branch has taken the position that “No investigation has revealed that this basic structure of Colorado’s current system [of judicial discipline] is deficient,” Thus, the justification for making such a significant and novel change to the current system is conspicuously lacking.” In light of that statement, I would ask you to look at the role the Branch played in the investigations that have reported findings thus far. Remember, Judicial controlled the timing, execution, and terms of the contracts with RCT and ILG, including the conditions concerning retention of materials after their publication. Further, the Judicial Branch and its attorneys were granted multiple opportunities to review the State Auditor's report and executive summary and redact information they identified as privileged, attorney work product, or subject to other legal protections. In this respect, although not the primary actor, Judicial was in full control of these investigations.

Let me be clear, my devotion was always to the institution, not to any individual concerns including my own. I was a true believer, and always a supporter of trusting in the process. In retrospect, it seems that I became blind to motivations of individuals, and what I believed was an appropriate personal sacrifice to make on behalf of the Branch was ill advised.

Despite what has transpired, I hold nearly all the judicial officers and staff in Colorado's courts in the highest regard. Any spillover from the actions of the Chief Justice, the Supreme Court, and key senior staff members onto them makes me extremely sad. Their already challenging jobs have been made more difficult, by the taint of the branch's responses thus far. I do not believe there is now, or has ever been, wide-ranging systematic corruption or bias at work in state's trial courts. With that in mind, I would like to address the areas, in my opinion, where the interim committee should focus its efforts.

It has been my experience that, in addressing policy matters that impact areas of particular interest to the branch, there has been a broad sweeping application of the concept of separation of powers and the use of the umbrella of judicial independence as cover for keeping outsiders "out of judicial business". While I am not advocating for violating constitutional principles, given the actions of the Court to control access to information, to define the narrative, and to obfuscate in order to protect the actions of those who wear the robes, the time has come to look with particular scrutiny on the motivations behind those self-protectionist actions and the resulting difficulties they inflict. It has been my experience that Judges, and Courts themselves, are insular beings, and as a former insider, I never really appreciated the degree to which that shaped their actions. Now, having spent significant time outside of the circle, I have a new sense of what it is like to draw their ire, and the degree to which they are focused on self-protection.

When it comes to Judicial Discipline, the Supreme Court and the Judicial Branch have controlled all the processes from start to finish, beginning in the 1960's until the changes in this last legislative session that gave rise to this committee. The first priority the committee should consider is, once again, taking up the topic of the Judicial department's lack of inclusion under CORA. Access to information is essential to garnering any ability to evaluate the actions and behaviors in question and, as a result, should not be at the discretion of the branch.

Representative Weismann, I know this was a particular interest of yours some years ago when legislation was passed which provided some limited inclusion of judicial records regarding sexual harassment under CORA, which was set to sunset in 2021. The opportunity for meaningful review of issues that involve administrative actions, and access to information that can shed light on them, should not vary based on the institutional actor in question.

In making further adjustments to the Judicial Discipline process, the committee should next focus on minimizing the appearance of impropriety, through either institutionalization of a more formalized recusal process or the formation of a separate tribunal, entity, or panel who would oversee the process and act as the ultimate decision-making authority when matters involving the State's highest court are in question.

Finally, the Committee should consider making the proceedings more transparent. While I can appreciate firsthand the concerns about having to deal with unfounded accusations and untruths about one's behavior being bantered about publicly, the process should nevertheless be structured in such a manner that provides the opportunity for public access to the proceedings, while balancing the interests of fairness and due process. In Colorado's system, most meritorious complaints and the sanctions ultimately imposed remain cloistered. This does nothing but generate additional questions and concerns about the ability of the disciplinary process to achieve any real accountability for misdeeds.

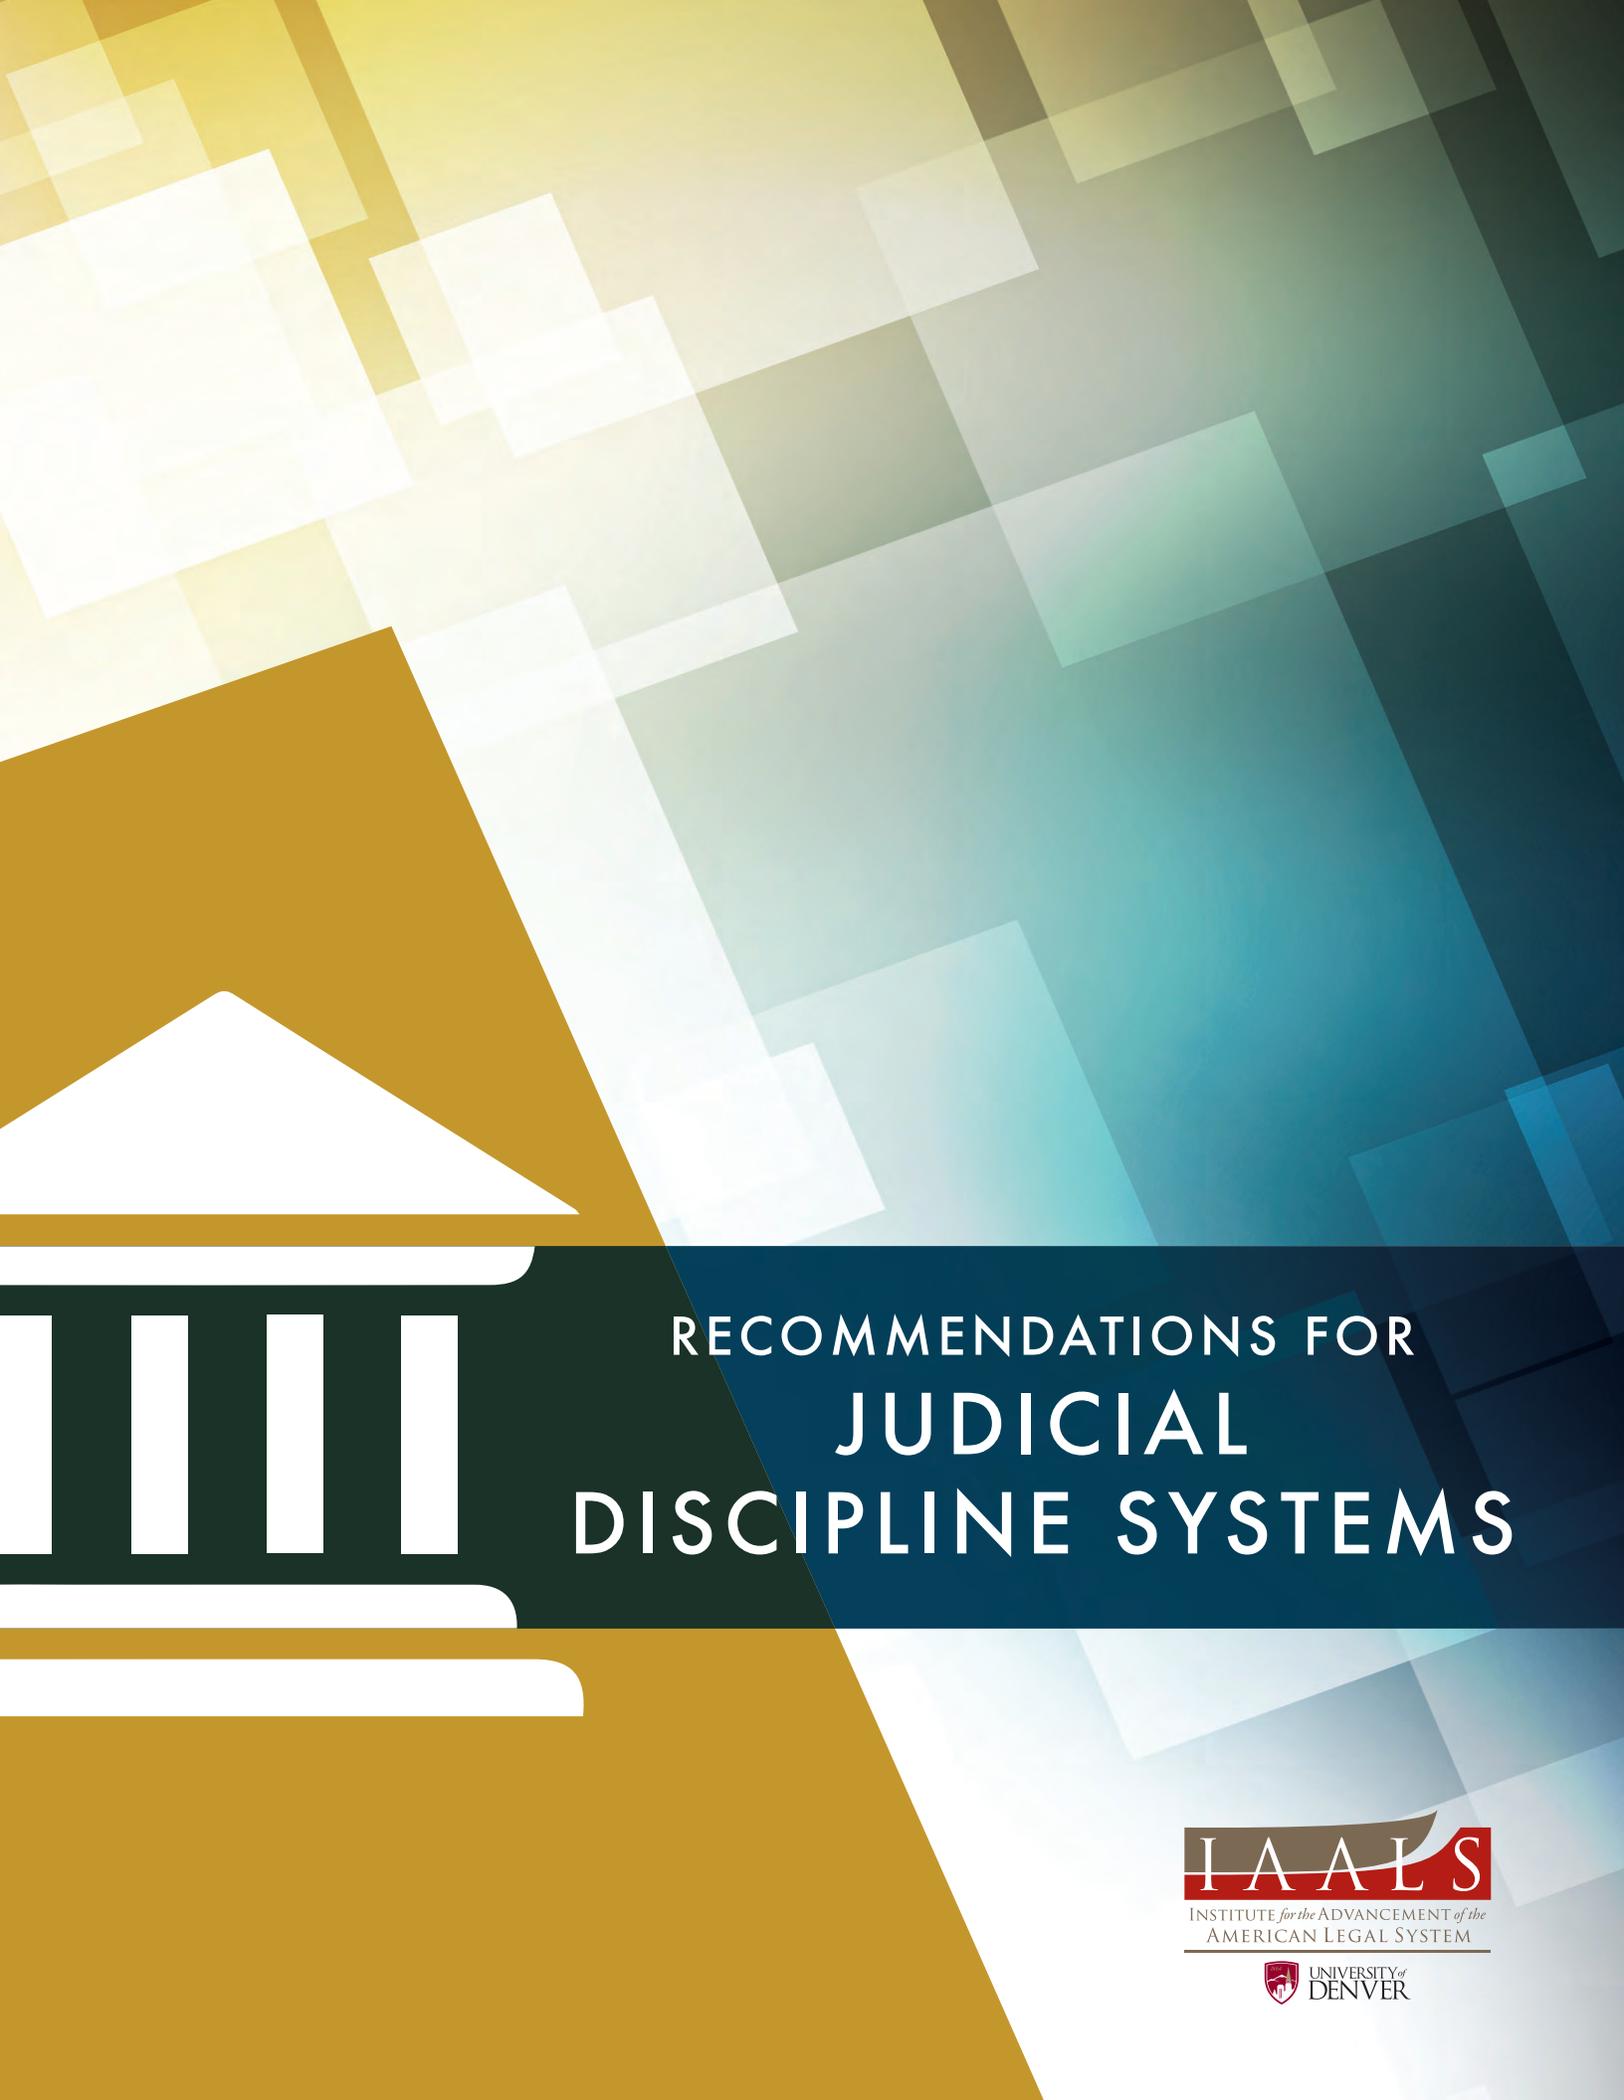

Judicial independence is one thing, but complete autonomy is another. Judicial independence does not extend to self-determination in review of its own internal actions.

In closing, take a moment to ask yourself what I have to gain from any of this. I am an unemployed 53-year-old, with zero prospects for the future given the results that come from a Google search of my name. I no longer have the ability to serve the public and work in the field of public policy, which gave my career meaning. It is important for you to understand that I am doing this because I believe that this opportunity to address the deficiencies of the disciplinary process, improve the environment at judicial, and correct the extreme imbalance of power between the staff and the black robes, has the best chance for success. I remain hopeful that some chance for meaningful review of these type of actions and a corresponding improvement in the conditions of those who have been affected by them, is able to result from my coming forward more than a year and 1/2 ago.

Thank you.

Appendix 27(s)(iii)(13)(I)

Inst. for the Advancement of the Am. Legal System, RECOMMENDATIONS FOR JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE SYSTEMS, July 2018;

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE SYSTEMS

IAALS

INSTITUTE for the ADVANCEMENT of the
AMERICAN LEGAL SYSTEM

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE SYSTEMS

REBECCA LOVE KOURLIS

Executive Director

Institute for the Advancement of the American Legal System

KEITH SWISHER*

Professor of Legal Ethics and Director

University of Arizona, James E. Rogers
College of Law

RUSSELL WHEELER*

Visiting Fellow, Governance Studies

The Brookings Institution

July 2018

PART OF IAALS' JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE PROJECT

SPONSORED BY:

THE STURM FAMILY FOUNDATION

For reprint permission please contact IAALS.
Copyright © 2018 IAALS, the Institute for the Advancement of the American Legal System.
All rights reserved.

INSTITUTE for the ADVANCEMENT
of the AMERICAN LEGAL SYSTEM

IAALS—Institute for the Advancement of the American Legal System

John Moyer Hall, 2060 South Gaylord Way, Denver, CO 80208

Phone: 303-871-6600

<http://iaals.du.edu>

IAALS, the Institute for the Advancement of the American Legal System, is a national, independent research center at the University of Denver dedicated to facilitating continuous improvement and advancing excellence in the American legal system. We are a “think tank” that goes one step further—we are practical and solution-oriented. Our mission is to forge innovative and practical solutions to problems within the American legal system. By leveraging a unique blend of empirical and legal research, innovative solutions, broad-based collaboration, communications, and ongoing measurement in strategically selected, high-impact areas, IAALS is empowering others with the knowledge, models, and will to advance a more accessible, efficient, and accountable American legal system.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Preface	1
Introduction: Mission & Overview of Judicial Disciplinary Systems	2
Protecting Impartial Judicial Decision-Making	4
Promoting Commission Independence, Impartiality, and Integrity	5
Creating Commissions in Constitutions, Not Statutes or Court Orders	5
Appointment and Removal of Commissioners	5
Funding Sources and Methods	6
Structure that Separates Investigation from Adjudication	6
Recusal	7
Written and Thorough Procedural Rules and Codes of Conduct	7
Orientation and Continuing Education for Commissioners and Staff	8
Sanctions	9
Private Dispositions	9
Suspensions Without Pay	10
Allocating Costs	10
Informal Measures and Remedial Steps	10
Judicial Performance Evaluations	11
Fairness and Efficiency in Commission Operations	12
Jurisdiction	12
Initiating Complaints	12
Ombudsmen	13
Staff Screening	14
Transparency and Confidentiality of Proceedings Orders	14 15
Advisory Opinions	16
Education and Dissemination	17
Describing and Explaining Commission Activities	17
Summary Statistics	17
Educating Judges, Others about Commission Work	18
Concluding Considerations	18
Recommendations	19
Appendix A: Convening Participants	21
Appendix B: Convening Agenda	22

PREFACE

Until the 1960s, the formal methods for addressing allegations of state judges' misconduct, such as legislative impeachment or recall elections, were cumbersome and time-consuming. These shortcomings were highlighted when scandals rocked several state judiciaries,¹ revealing a need for more efficient disciplinary procedures. Starting in 1960, California and eventually all states established variously named bodies (this Report uses the generic term "commission") to investigate allegations of judicial misconduct or disability and—where appropriate—prosecute, adjudicate, and either recommend discipline to the state's highest court or impose it, subject to appellate review.²

Effective judicial discipline is an important part of a trusted and trustworthy court system. The public must know that judicial ethics and violations of the Code of Judicial Conduct are taken seriously. Absent that assurance, the system appears self-serving, protectionist, and even potentially corrupt. And it is not just the reality of the existence of effective systems that matters; it is also the appearance. A wholly effective system with no transparency and no public confidence will not suffice.

To explore the functioning of judicial conduct commissions, in March 2018, IAALS convened a 21-person group of commissioners, commission staff, judges, lawyers, and scholars (identified in Appendix A). They, along with IAALS Executive Director Rebecca Kourlis and a small number of IAALS staff, worked through the agenda in Appendix B. This Report draws on that Convening.

IAALS is grateful to Colorado's El Pomar Foundation and to the Sturm Family Foundation for the financial support that enabled this Convening to occur and to reach its full potential.

Although the Convening participants reached at least general consensus on several matters, IAALS, not the participants or their organizations, is solely responsible for this report and its recommendations. Opinions and recommendations are those of IAALS. This Report nevertheless draws from the wide-ranging comments during the Convening and on the extensive literature and organizational models offered by the American Bar Association and others. Observations attributed in the Report to Convening participants are paraphrases drawn from notes that two IAALS staffers compiled. The Report cites secondary sources lightly, but the white paper prepared for the Convening (available on IAALS' website³) is rich with references to the literature. The Report does not try to describe the many nuanced differences that distinguish commissions from one another, although it offers some generalizations based in part on a May 2018 IAALS staff review of commission websites. Cynthia Gray, who directs the National Center for State Courts Center for Judicial Ethics, has highlighted some principal variations in her work.⁴ And the Center publishes quarterly its very helpful Judicial Conduct Reporter, with summaries of commission activities and decisions, among other publications.⁵

Finally, we recognize that many of the practices that we endorse in this Report are already in place in many or even most states. In short, the system is already doing a good job in many areas. We also recognize that commission structure, jurisdiction, and operations may be beyond a commission's authority to change, based as they are in constitutions, statutes, and court rules. In this Report, we seek to identify some better practices that commissions, state supreme courts, and legislatures can review and identify as doable and advisable—or not. We also seek to identify concrete ways to improve the trustworthiness of the judiciary. This Report is a companion document to IAALS' report on its 2017 Judicial Recusal Convening,⁶ and both reports seek to identify concrete ways to improve public confidence in the judiciary.

1 See, e.g., Note, Court Scandal in Oklahoma Supreme Court, 20 OKLA. L. REV. 417 (1967); Kenneth Manastar, Illinois Justice, The Scandal of 1969 and the Rise of John Paul Stevens (U. Chi. Press, 2001).

2 National Center for State Courts, State Court Organization, §19, Judicial Discipline: Investigating and Adjudicating Bodies, available at <http://www.ncsc.org/microsites/sco/home/List-Of-Tables.aspx>.

3 Keith Swisher, Judicial Discipline in the States, IAALS Judicial Discipline Pre-Convening Whitepaper (2018).

4 See, e.g., Cynthia Gray, How Judicial Conduct Commissions Work, 28 JUST. SYS. J. 405, 405 (2007).

5 National Center for State Courts, State Court Organization, Judicial Conduct Reporter, available at <http://www.ncsc.org/Topics/Judicial-Officers/Ethics/Center-for-Judicial-Ethics/Judicial-Conduct-Reporter.aspx>; see also National Center for State Courts, State Court Organization, Center for Judicial Ethics Publications, available at <http://www.ncsc.org/topics/judicial-officers/ethics/center-for-judicial-ethics/cje-publications.aspx>.

6 See Russell Wheeler & Malia Reddick, Judicial Recusal Procedures, A Report on the IAALS Convening (June 2017).

INTRODUCTION: MISSION & OVERVIEW OF JUDICIAL DISCIPLINARY SYSTEMS

Today's disciplinary systems seek to protect the public and the integrity of judicial proceedings, deter future misconduct, and promote public confidence in the judicial system.⁷ The Texas State Commission on Judicial Conduct accordingly says its mission is “to protect the public, promote public confidence in the integrity, independence, competence, and impartiality of the judiciary, and encourage judges to maintain high standards of conduct both on and off the bench.” It does so “through its investigation of allegations of judicial misconduct or incapacity” and, pursuant to the Texas constitution, takes “appropriate disciplinary action, including issuing sanctions, censures, suspensions, or recommendations for removal from office.”⁸

As an additional example, the California Supreme Court says its state disciplinary system's purpose is “not punishment, but rather the protection of the public, the enforcement of rigorous standards of judicial conduct, and the maintenance of public confidence in the integrity and independence of the judicial system.”⁹ Although some other states articulate their systems' purpose with more particularity—e.g., “[r]eassuring the public that judicial misconduct is not tolerated or condoned” and “[f]ostering public confidence in the self-policing system”—their aims are generally consistent.¹⁰

The American Bar Association's 1994 Model Rules for Judicial Disciplinary Enforcement state in essence that the primary grounds on which to discipline a judge are: violating the state judicial conduct code or other applicable codes and violating a valid order of the state's highest court or the commission.¹¹ Not every such violation warrants discipline, however. Instead, the commission (and perhaps later the supreme court) must consider the violation in the context of the system's purposes, including the seriousness of the violation, the presence of a pattern of improper activity, and “the effect of the improper activity on others or on the judicial system.”¹² (For a full breakdown of the investigative, prosecutorial, and adjudicatory process leading to dismissal or discipline, see Prof. Swisher's accompanying whitepaper.¹³)

There is a general sense that these bodies are functioning well, although some pervasive, if not always well-grounded, concerns persist. For example, discipline commissions frequently face conflicting charges of unreasonably high dismissal rates and of a reticence about impeding judges' independence or privacy. In 2017, a court watchdog group in Pennsylvania critically detailed events leading to the conviction of a state supreme court justice for campaign irregularities, justices' involvement in a “pornagate” scandal, and an unusual attempt to settle, outside the disciplinary process, serious misconduct charges against another justice. The incidents, said the report, “shed light on our judicial disciplinary culture.”¹⁴ In 2015, another watchdog group charged that “[i]t commonly takes years [for the Illinois Judicial Inquiry Board] to act against judges who violate the Illinois Code of Judicial Conduct, and the punishment seldom is more than a public reprimand.”¹⁵ In late 2017, the California Supreme Court refused to intervene in a case in which critics charged that state's commission with a conflict of interest as to an oft-reprimanded judge.¹⁶ The same commission was the subject of heated pro and con debate after it declined to discipline a judge for what many decried was a too-lenient sentence for a student convicted of sexual assault¹⁷; voters later recalled the judge for his decision, making him “the first

7 See, e.g., Cynthia Gray, A Study of State Judicial Discipline Sanctions 3 (2002); Cynthia Gray, How Judicial Conduct Commissions Work, 28 JUST. SYS. J. 405, 405 (2007).

8 TEX. ST. COMM'N ON JUDICIAL CONDUCT, MISSION STATEMENT, available at <http://www.scjc.texas.gov/about/mission-statement/>.

9 Adams v. Comm'n on Judicial Performance, 897 P.2d 544 (Cal. 1995).

10 Cynthia Gray, A Study of State Judicial Discipline Sanctions 3 (2002).

11 MODEL RULES FOR JUDICIAL DISCIPLINARY ENFORCEMENT R. 6 (1994).

12 MODEL RULES FOR JUDICIAL DISCIPLINARY ENFORCEMENT R. 6 cmt. (1994).

13 See Keith Swisher, Judicial Discipline in the States, IAALS Judicial Discipline Pre-Convening Whitepaper 11-17 (2018).

14 Pennsylvanians for Modern Courts, Report and Recommendations for Improving Pennsylvania's Judicial Discipline System, April 2017, at 2, available at https://www.pmconline.org/uploads/1/0/8/8/108820081/2017_pmcreport_errata.pdf.

15 Emily Hoerner & Zoe Rosenbaum, In Illinois, punishment is slow and lenient for errant judges, Injustice Watch, Dec. 4, 2015, available at <https://www.injusticewatch.org/projects/2015/illinois-court-commission-judge-punishment/>.

16 Bob Egelko, State high court will let commission consider judge's discipline, SFGate, Dec. 20, 2017, available at <https://www.sfgate.com/bayarea/article/State-high-court-will-let-commission-consider-12445882.php>.

17 Rebecca Hersher, Calif. Judge Cleared of Misconduct After Sentence in Stanford Assault Case, NPR, Dec. 19, 2016, available at <https://www.npr.org/sections/thetwo-way/2016/12/19/506183605/calif-judge-cleared-of-misconduct-after-sentence-in-stanford-sexual-assault-case>.

judge recalled in California in more than 80 years.”¹⁸ And in 2016, John Grisham published a fanciful but not completely unrealistic novel about a fictitious Florida disciplinary body.¹⁹

In short, the trustworthiness of judicial disciplinary systems is a subject that matters and continues to generate controversy. Most recently, but not a subject of this Report, the federal judiciary has reacted to law clerk and court employees’ charges of judges’ sexual misconduct—and to legitimate concerns that the system’s disciplinary system is inadequate in addressing such misconduct—by establishing a Working Group on Workplace Conduct.²⁰

In reviewing state discipline commissions, it is clear that there often is no one-size-fits-all organizational arrangement and set of procedures for commissions. Small states with relatively few judges and misconduct complaints may go about their work differently than will commissions with many more judges, complaints, and actions in response to them. But all commissions face multiple objectives, some of them with inherent tensions, including:

- Describing the commission’s work transparently and publicly without unduly invading judges’ and complainants’ privacy and expectations of confidentiality;
- Rejecting complaints that are end-run appeals of judicial decisions while being receptive to claims of biased behavior, chronic delay, and other on-bench misconduct;
- Making the public aware of the complaint process and avoiding barriers to filing complaints without encouraging frivolous or otherwise unmeritorious complaints;
- Promoting objectivity within the often single body that investigates, prosecutes, and adjudicates complaints without creating large and slow-moving bureaucracies;
- Processing complaints promptly but with the thoroughness they deserve;
- Maintaining commissions’ structural and operational independence from the other branches of government and from, at times, state supreme court overreaching, without eliminating commission accountability;
- Memorializing commission procedures and conduct codes and holding commissioners and staff to them and providing commissioners continuing education about their work, without imposing unduly on the time of busy commissioners who volunteer to serve on the commission; and
- Using a range of informal ways to deal with errant behavior, including voluntary resignation, without letting judges who have committed serious misconduct avoid their just deserts by walking away from the bench.

This report offers basic recommendations and a range of options in six areas:

- Promoting impartial judicial decision-making
- Promoting commission impartiality
- Sanctions
- Fairness and efficiency in commission operations
- Advisory opinions
- Education and dissemination

A final section summarizes the key recommendations that commissions and creating and appointing authorities may wish to consider.

18 Maggie Astor, California Voters Remove Judge Aaron Persky, Who Gave a Six-Month Sentence for Sexual Assault, N.Y. TIMES, June 6, 2018, <https://www.nytimes.com/2018/06/06/us/politics/judge-persky-brock-turner-recall.html> .

19 JOHN GRISHAM, THE WHISTLER (2016) .

20 Joan Biskupic, Chief Justice Roberts Calls for Review of Procedures for Protecting Court Employees from Misconduct, CNN, Dec .20, 2017, available at <https://www.cnn.com/2017/12/20/politics/roberts-judicial-misconduct/index.html>; www.uscourts.gov, Judicial Conference Receives Status Report on Workplace Conduct Review, March 13, 2018, available at <http://www.uscourts.gov/news/2018/03/13/judicial-conference-receives-status-report-workplace-conduct-review>; Andrew Hamm, Report on judiciary procedures to address workplace misconduct, SCOTUSBLOG (Jun .8, 2018), <http://www.scotusblog.com/2018/06/report-on-judiciary-procedures-to-address-workplace-misconduct/> .

PROTECTING IMPARTIAL JUDICIAL DECISION-MAKING

The discipline process is not—and cannot be—another means of appealing an outcome in a case. Judges need to be able to make judicial decisions without fear of administrative or substantive interference, and the appellate process is in place to correct legal errors. Nevertheless, allegations of judges’ adjudicative legal errors clog the disciplinary systems and pressure commission members and staff to review high numbers of non-cognizable complaints.²¹ It is a problematic area in part because, as one Convening participant said, judicial independence does not have a “good connotation with the public,” especially, said another, in some minority communities in which “judicial independence” is code for “judges can do whatever they want—put people in jail for ten years for stealing bread—and be answerable to no one.” Convening participants cited several examples of commissions’ recruiting bar groups to try to explain commission decisions involving judges’ proper but unpopular merits decisions. Commissions must not become another appellate body, but that is a difficult concept to communicate and implement.

Commissions risk discouraging meritorious complaints in their understandable efforts to deter complainants alleging pure legal errors—website postings or complaint instructions, for example, asserting that the commissions have “no power to review a judge’s decision” (even if, as one participant said, most would-be complainants ignore such admonitions). If, for instance, the judge ordered a defendant to drink “toxic sludge,” duct-taped shut a defendant’s mouth, or unlawfully jailed defendants (all actual examples²²), the defendant likely has a cognizable misconduct complainant, even though the complaint centers on the judge’s decision or order. Similarly, while delay in one case may reflect a judge’s prioritizing the matters on her docket (perhaps due to speedy trial mandates), evidence of a judge’s chronic delay is often a meritorious basis for a complaint, as might be a pattern of decisions always finding for or against the claims of an identifiable category of litigants. Thus, commissions should review their online materials and their screening procedures to ensure that meritorious complaints are not being deterred or dismissed based on the misperception that judges’ decisions and orders are categorically untouchable. To assist in separating the wheat from the chaff, commissions could consider placing word count or page limits on complaints and directing complainants to identify the alleged judicial misconduct with as much particularity as possible.

In addition, several Convening participants encouraged commissions to intervene informally but proactively when they see—or receive from lawyers or bar surveys—evidence of a judge’s developing a pattern of problematic demeanor (such as visible exasperation with new lawyers), for example. Early and proactive intervention should be considered even when the problematic behavior does not yet warrant significant discipline.

21 See, e.g., Keith Swisher, The Judicial Ethics of Criminal Law Adjudication, 41 ARIZ. ST. L.J. 755 (2009); Cynthia Gray, The Line Between Legal Error and Judicial Misconduct: Balancing Judicial Independence and Accountability, 32 HOFSTRA L. REV. 1245 (2004).

22 See In re Benoit, 487 A 2d 1158, 1165 (Me .1985) (suspending a judge after he jailed three defendants either without any legal authority or without following necessary procedural protections against unwarranted incarceration); TEXAS PRACTICE SERIES, HANDBOOK OF TEXAS LAWYER AND JUDICIAL ETHICS § 26 4 n 68 (2008) (citing discipline of Texas judge who sentenced one defendant to “jail with three days of bread and water” and another defendant “convicted of illegally dumping toxic torts to drink toxic sludge”); Brian Kumnick, Judge Silences Defendant with Duct Tape, Legal Grounds, Sept .2, 2009, available at <https://blogs.findlaw.com/legalgrounds/2009/09/judge-silences-defendant-with-duct-tape.html>.

PROMOTING COMMISSION INDEPENDENCE, IMPARTIALITY, AND INTEGRITY

Judicial discipline commissions indisputably must strive to treat all complaints, complainants, and respondent judges impartially. Commission structure, membership, and procedures can influence that goal.

CREATING COMMISSIONS IN CONSTITUTIONS, NOT STATUTES OR COURT ORDERS

Although most commissions are established in their state constitution, some still are not. We agree with the ABA model rules that constitutional creation is preferable—“essential” said one Convening participant—so as to lessen undue interference in commission activities.²³ Several Convening participants described requests by legislators to “go after” particular judges, with the implicit threats of legislative retribution toward the commission, and instances in which state supreme court justices or the court as a whole seemed to retaliate against a commission for attempting to discipline a top state judge.

APPOINTMENT AND REMOVAL OF COMMISSIONERS

In 2018, commissions range in size from three (Oklahoma) to 28 (Ohio), and the median size is nine (not including alternate members).²⁴ In most commissions, no member category (judge, lawyer, public member) maintains a majority.

Although the Convening reached no consensus, we agree with the ABA Model Rule recommendation for equal-tri-partite appointees—equal numbers of judges of various court types appointed by the courts, lawyers appointed by the state bar, and governor-appointed public members.²⁵ In particular, populating a commission with a majority or super-majority of judges (which still characterizes a handful of commissions) heightens the concern that judges are unlikely to deal impartially with complaints about fellow judges²⁶ and deprives commissions of an adequate representation of public members, who can provide the system with insight from the community and non-technical critiques and perspectives of judicial conduct and culture. For all commissioners, furthermore, institutional memory and independence come in part from staggered terms and rules permitting removal only by the appointing entity and only for cause, making it more difficult for an appointing authority to summarily remove all commissioners for whom that authority is responsible.

Finally, robust demographic, vocational, and geographic diversity will help assure the public that those who “judge the judges” fairly represent the community. The varied appointing authorities require coordination to ensure that all appointing authorities keep diversity in mind when considering prospective commissioners. One commission member spoke of reaching out to appointing authorities to describe the commission’s need at any particular moment in terms of diverse membership.

23 MODEL RULES FOR JUDICIAL DISCIPLINARY ENFORCEMENT R .2 cmt .(1994) .

24 Based on review of commission websites accessed through the National Center’s Center for Judicial Ethics, available at <http://stage.ncsc.org/Topics/Judicial-Officers/Ethics/State-Links.aspx> .

25 MODEL RULES FOR JUDICIAL DISCIPLINARY ENFORCEMENT R .2(C) (1994) (recommending a 12-member commission) .

26 Cf. BENJAMIN H. BARTON, THE LAWYER-JUDGE BIAS IN THE AMERICAN LEGAL SYSTEM (2011) .

FUNDING SOURCES AND METHODS

We agree with the ABA model rule that the legislature, not the judiciary, should fund the commission, and that the commission should prepare its own budget requests, separate from the judicial branch budget request.²⁷ Further, the commission should administer the funds provided, free of supervision of the court system's administrative machinery. Just as the judicial branch should not be the budgetary ward of the executive branch, the judicial discipline commission should not be the budgetary ward of the judicial branch whose members' conduct it investigates. One participant noted the downside—in legislative debates over funds, the commission does not have “the clout [it] would have if the supreme court advocated on their behalf.” On the other hand, nor does the commission have “the clout to combat an unhappy supreme court bent on reducing commission funding.”

Budgetary independence, of course, will not by itself ensure legislative appropriations sufficient to operate and staff a vibrant commission. States may wish to explore supplementary sources, such as judge-paid or lawyer-paid fees (several states' lawyers pay a portion of their registration fees to cover judicial discipline system costs). Colorado, for example, now follows this model.²⁸

STRUCTURE THAT SEPARATES INVESTIGATION FROM ADJUDICATION

Most commissions are “one-tier”: a single body performs the investigative, prosecutorial, and adjudicative functions. Judges argue that this arrangement violates due process given a commissioner's likely difficulty during the adjudicative stage of ignoring problematic evidence submitted during the investigative stage. Nevertheless, the twenty or so supreme courts that had considered the due process objection as of 2007 rejected it, primarily because appellate review in the supreme court is available to correct conflict-of-interest-related errors.²⁹

A few commissions separate the investigative and adjudicative functions through a bifurcated structure—either two panels within the same commission, or two separate bodies (a “two-tier” structure), each tier with its own membership, offices, and staff. Bifurcated structures can promote objectivity and the appearance of objectivity, and not all complainants have the resources to pursue appeals to the state's court of last resort.

Several Convening participants argued that bifurcated structures are unnecessarily costly and may take longer to reach a resolution—causing delay that is “agonizing for judges who have their reputations up in the air”—and that internal structural checks can seemingly overcome one-tier threats to objectivity.

Two additional structural issues warrant mention. First, many commissions appoint a single hearing officer to serve as the initial fact-finder. This practice means that important issues, at least initially, are decided by a single, often-retired judge, rather than with the diverse input from lawyer, public, and sitting-judge members. Because this practice is inconsistent with the wise design of commission bodies, we recommend that states resort to it as little as possible.

Second, most commissions have an executive director and disciplinary counsel. States should establish clear rules barring executive directors from performing both investigative- and adjudicative-stage functions for the commissions.³⁰ In addition, the independence of disciplinary counsel can vary significantly from state to state, including counsel's reporting relationships as to the commission and its executive director. States should ensure that disciplinary counsel have sufficient independence to ensure full and fair investigations and, as appropriate, prosecutions.

27 MODEL RULES FOR JUDICIAL DISCIPLINARY ENFORCEMENT R.2(F) (1994) .

28 See, e.g., COLO. COMM'N ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE, ANNUAL REPORT 2015 .

29 See Cynthia Gray, How Judicial Conduct Commissions Work, 28 JUST. SYS. J. 405, 414 (2007) .

30 MODEL RULES FOR JUDICIAL DISCIPLINARY ENFORCEMENT R.4 cmt.(1994) .

RECUSAL

States should also adopt and enforce recusal provisions to protect impartiality and its appearance.³¹ For example, recusal rules and procedures should address recurring issues, such as when a judge-commissioner sits on the same, collegial court as the respondent-judge or knows or believes some good or bad fact about the respondent-judge. One commission reported each year giving a list of all judges in the state to each commissioner with instructions to check off those from whose matters they should be recused; they receive no information about complaints about those judges. States should all employ conflict-checking procedures.

Commissioners typically should recuse themselves to the same extent as a judge presiding over a (non-disciplinary) case, but appearances of partiality and subconscious biases can arise even when recusal is not strictly required.³² Recusal of commissioners and staff members should be rigorous, and recusal rules should be clearly articulated to commissioners and staff. A small number of states provide for alternate commissioners, thereby lessening the potential disruption to the commission's work when a member has to recuse from the investigation or hearing. In that instance, of course, it is important that the commission member who recuses has no contact with the alternate commissioner as to the case at issue.

WRITTEN AND THOROUGH PROCEDURAL RULES AND CODES OF CONDUCT

Convening participants agreed, given the spotlight that often shines on commissions, that they cannot be governed by an attitude of "it's just the way we do things." That is why all commissions have adopted written rules and most have posted them on their websites. Still, many Convening participants acknowledged many "practices" that to date have not been included in their commissions' procedural rules; while not every practice must necessarily be codified, most should be to promote fairness and transparency to all. Commissions should also have significant control over amending and maintaining their own rules. The Convening participants recounted troubling instances in which a state high court adversely reacted to the potential or actual discipline of its members and retaliated by restricting the commission's jurisdiction and impeding its work through amendments to the rules governing the commissions' procedures.

Commissioners and staff members should be governed by a written, detailed, mandatory, and enforceable code of conduct, similar to IAALS' Model Code of Conduct for Judicial Nominating Commissioners.³³ The code, whether integrated into a procedures handbook or standing alone, should cover work expectations (e.g., attendance), confidentiality (including social media), campaigns or endorsements, appropriate behavior in hearings, ex parte communications, among other topics. One participant, for example, recalled being unaware, until consulting a code, that members should not communicate with their respective appointing authorities. The code should regulate the use and admission of extraneous material (e.g., to define clearly how, if at all, investigations and prosecutions may take cognizance of anecdotal or general impressions of the respondent-judge, gained outside of an investigation). Finally, the code should also reinforce the independence of disciplinary counsel from undue staff or commissioner influence.

31 MODEL RULES FOR JUDICIAL DISCIPLINARY ENFORCEMENT R.3(1) (1994).

32 See Russell Wheeler & Malia Reddick, Judicial Recusal Procedures, A Report on the IAALS Convening (June 2017), available at http://iaals.du.edu/sites/default/files/documents/publications/judicial_recusal_procedures.pdf.

33 See Rebecca Love Kourlis & Malia Reddick, Model Code of Conduct for Judicial Nominating Commissioners (2016), available at http://iaals.du.edu/sites/default/files/documents/publications/model_code_of_conduct_for_judicial_nominating_commissioners.pdf.

ORIENTATION AND CONTINUING EDUCATION FOR COMMISSIONERS AND STAFF

Commission members, busy people as they are, nevertheless need orientation—preferably, a personal session with top commission staff—and continuing education about their roles, including education about recognizing and correcting for implicit bias,³⁴ and guidance in discerning and processing matters involving mental health or substance abuse. Commissioners and staff should know about available programs in which respondent judges might receive help for mental health or substance abuse issues; where such programs do not exist, the commission can play a role in requesting that the state judiciary provide them. New public members also need an introduction to the state’s judicial process.

Convening participants referred to occasional problematic behavior—for example, “some new members rarely come to meetings” and “quorums have been difficult, embarrassingly so”—and how commissioners deal with such problems. An executive committee, for example, may meet with errant members, but if internal corrective action does not work, the committee may turn to the appointing authority to explain the grounds for removing the members for cause. Consistent with our recommendations above, several Convening participants emphasized the value of written expectations, procedures, and codes in efforts to correct behavior: “When something goes bad, and you don’t have a code or policies, it really goes bad.”

34 Cf., e.g., Athena D. Mutua, Disparity in Judicial Misconduct Cases: Color-Blind Diversity?, 23 J. OF GENDER, SOCIAL POLICY, AND LAW 23 (2014), available at <http://digitalcommons.wcl.american.edu/cgi/viewcontent.cgi?article=1652&context=jgspl>.

SANCTIONS

To varying degrees, states have available a variety of disciplinary sanctions: removal, retirement, suspension, censure, public or private reprimand or admonishment, lawyer discipline, and diversion/deferred discipline arrangements. A minority of states impose fines or costs. In addition, the applicable court or commission may generally impose interim suspension when the judge has been charged with a criminal offense or poses a serious risk of substantial harm to the public.³⁵ States without a clearly and publicly articulated range of sanctions should adopt them, along with standards for their application. One Convening participant put it simply—“if there’s no articulated standards, no one can walk away with any sense of fairness.” Some states list very few standards for the imposition of one sanction over the other, and several other states rely on somewhat lean or incomplete factors previously announced by other state supreme courts.³⁶

Each state should consider adopting a full array of sanctions and remedies seeking an optimal fit between conduct and remedy. For example, the availability and even preponderance of private remedies (over public ones) in a particular state may consciously or subconsciously drive commissions toward more private sanctions, even when a public sanction would be more appropriate. The few states that do not allow commissions to remove or suspend judges³⁷—or at least recommend the same to the highest court—should reconsider that limitation. On the other end of the sanction spectrum, states without diversion arrangements or judicial assistance programs should consider them.

Participants said that those members of the public who follow the commission’s work tend to regard admonishments, reprimands, or censures as mere “hand slaps,” but judges see them differently, especially when the sanction is public. Some commissions or courts read aloud a censure order to the judge, in public, and many courts and commissions are now commendably distributing public disciplinary sanctions to the media in press releases or news items online.

PRIVATE DISPOSITIONS

One participant warned “it will be hard for IAALS to come up with a recommendation” about private dispositions. Some questioned their utility—“why would you censure someone privately?” It is no deterrent to similar behavior by other judges, and it does not enhance public confidence in any way. Others distinguished between a private “admonishment”—okay—and a private reprimand—not okay. Others thought commissions should summarily publish such reprimands or retain and release them if a judge aspires to higher office. There was general agreement that commissions need the authority to send warnings—in various formulations (“heads-up” or “advisory” letters)—to give the judge the opportunity to change what appears to be an emerging pattern of problematic but not yet serious or prejudicial misbehavior. Other participants thought private reprimands were, or could be seen as, a way to sweep difficult matters under the rug, and, at the least, should be governed by well-articulated standards for their application so that they are used only when truly appropriate (as we recommend above).

Because the issue of “if and when” to use private dispositions is so thorny, we recommend that states review their treatment of private dispositions to ensure their appropriate and consistent treatment. They can be appropriate in certain circumstances (e.g., when a judge has committed a single, non-prejudicial error for which a private communication will likely remedy the issue), but there is a risk of abuse (e.g., when a judge has received one or more prior private dispositions or when the misconduct is egregious or prejudicial).

35 MODEL RULES FOR JUDICIAL DISCIPLINARY ENFORCEMENT R .6 and R .15 (1994); see also National Center for State Courts, Available Sanctions in Judicial Disciplinary Proceedings (2015), available at http://www.ncsc.org/~media/files/pdf/topics/center%20for%20judicial%20ethics/sanctions_tables_2015.ashx.

36 See In re Deming, 736 P.2d 639 (Wa. 1987) (adopting ten, non-exclusive factors to guide the imposition of judicial disciplinary sanctions); In re Brown, 626 N.W.2d 403 (Mich. 2001) (listing seven factors); In re Brown, 625 N.W.2d 744, 745 (Mich. 2000).

37 Cynthia Gray, A Study of State Judicial Discipline Sanctions 7 (2002).

SUSPENSIONS WITHOUT PAY

Suspension without pay is a useful alternative, particularly in cases of serious misconduct in which there are significant mitigating factors such as the judge's lack of a disciplinary record, and we thus recommend that states ensure that commissions and supreme courts have suspension without pay as an available sanction in appropriate cases. The length of suspension is a debatable topic, however, partly because lengthy suspensions burden other judges. One participant said the commission's or supreme court's job should be to remove someone if warranted, not to suspend the judge for a long time and hope for a resignation. Although we do not here recommend a specific maximum or minimum length, we recommend that states review this issue and consider it in context of their other available sanctions.

ALLOCATING COSTS

States and commissions should consider whether judges who consent to discipline or are found to have committed misconduct should be forced to pay some or all of the commissions' or courts' costs—at least if the judge was deceptive or obstructionist during the proceedings. Avoiding the embarrassment of a misconduct finding may be a strong deterrent to misconduct. An added deterrent is the financial pressure of having to pay some or all of the investigative or prosecutorial costs. On the other hand, assessing costs could strap respondent-judges with potentially inflated or otherwise inaccurate estimates of disciplinary costs and accomplish little except excessive punishment. Assessing costs might also discourage sanctioned judges—with arguably valid cases but limited financial resources—from pursuing an appeal after paying or facing the risk of paying for some or all of the disciplinary proceeding costs. These costs, of course, tend to rise the longer the proceeding is disputed—to fold is cheaper.

States and commissions should also consider whether to provide respondent-judges with appointed counsel or later reimburse them for the costs of retaining counsel. When a commission concludes that a misconduct complaint, fully investigated or adjudicated, was not meritorious, it would carry a lot of weight with the judiciary if the commission were to reimburse the costs of that defense. This recommendation probably should be considered in tandem with the recommendation above, as paying for non-misbehaving judges' counsel might appear more publicly palatable if misbehaving judges have to pay disciplinary costs.

INFORMAL MEASURES AND REMEDIAL STEPS

Informal measures are often appropriate for cases involving a temporary disability that creates an inability to perform the duties of the judicial office. These are difficult, often wrenching situations, and commissions should have available the greatest spectrum of measures possible, from training, counseling, and diversion through suspension, retirement, and removal. Substance addiction cases are particularly perplexing, in which a less typical and more rehabilitative approach may be warranted. In permanent disability cases, moreover, commissions and courts need solutions, such as a retirement path, that do not necessarily utilize the typical disciplinary sanctions, such as censure or removal.

The Convening's discussion of sanctions highlighted differences over the use of informal sanctions, with general agreement that beyond the standard sanctions, commissions should be empowered to recommend or require corrective action, including "remedial measures, making apologies, and undergoing education, counseling, or mentoring."³⁸ The latter types of remedies—such as alcohol abuse counseling, stress management counseling, or anger management programs—often get closer to the root cause of the misconduct. Deferred discipline agreements, for example, are confidential agreements, entered prior to formal charges, allowing the judge to take some form of corrective action but imposing consequences if the judge does not comply.³⁹

38 Cynthia Gray, How Judicial Conduct Commissions Work, 28 JUST. SYS. J. 405, 416 (2007); see also generally Charles Gardner Geyh, Informal Methods of Judicial Discipline, 142 U. PA. L. REV. 243, 311 (1993).

39 MODEL RULES FOR JUDICIAL DISCIPLINARY ENFORCEMENT R. 6 cmt. (1994).

JUDICIAL PERFORMANCE EVALUATIONS

Several Convening participants volunteered that their states have judicial performance evaluation programs in place, and said they thought a benefit was fewer complaints: “judges get evaluated, criticized, and have a chance to correct problems.” In fact, the dual purposes of judicial performance evaluation are to provide information to voters in retention elections and to give the judge feedback that he or she would not otherwise get. Where egregious or uncorrected patterns of misconduct are uncovered through judicial performance evaluation, states should ensure that the commissions receive such information.

FAIRNESS AND EFFICIENCY IN COMMISSION OPERATIONS

JURISDICTION

Most commissions' jurisdictions extend at a minimum to all non-federal judges in the state. Commission jurisdiction should also reach misconduct of resigned or retired judges that occurred before the judge stopped hearing cases. Most convening participants agreed with that scope of jurisdiction, as does the ABA model rule (at least for complaints filed within a specified period after termination of service).⁴⁰ Removal from office obviously has much less practical consequence to a retired judge (who might no longer hear any cases after retirement or might do so only on a sporadic and pro bono basis), but commissions and courts should also have the authority to issue public reprimands, censures, or admonishments (depending on the state's range of available sanctions), order loss of benefits, impose monetary fines, disqualify judges from holding other public offices, or refer them to attorney disciplinary authorities. Alternatives to post-service commission action are parallel procedures for lawyer discipline, which may not be well-suited to deal with judicial misconduct, or commission authority, where appropriate, to refer alleged misconduct to prosecutorial authorities.

The deterrent effect of a potential misconduct finding is mitigated if a judge may resign to avoid the sanction, and some judges surely leave the bench for that reason. Recently, for example, a court employee alleged that a state judge committed sexual harassment, and according to the press, “[n]othing was made public, and the judge has announced that he plans to retire . . . apparently ending the state investigation. He probably will receive full retirement benefits.”⁴¹ Certainly, as many but not all states have provided, judges should be unable to remove themselves from commission sanctions simply by leaving the bench, at least in situations involving egregious misconduct.

Commissions vary in their authority to investigate allegations of misconduct by judges before they assumed office. Some states allow it, at least for allegations of serious misconduct that may bear on the judge's fitness to hold judicial office. Others disallow pre-judge investigations on the basis that the commission's charge is to deal with misconduct by judges, and that other authorities, such as bar discipline committees or criminal prosecutors, should explore such allegations. In any case, there should be some authority to act on such misconduct, either in the bar or the commission.

INITIATING COMPLAINTS

The commission should post prominently on its website, as almost all do, the judicial ethics rules enacted by the state supreme court in the state's code of judicial conduct and any additional statutory or constitutional provisions. Given the headwinds that may discourage filing complaints against powerful figures like judges, we also encourage commission openness in receiving complaints—such as providing complaint forms online and with filing and appellate instructions, in English, Spanish, and other languages depending on the state's population mix. We encourage jettisoning unnecessary prerequisites to submission (e.g., notarization); displaying notices in the clerk's office and courthouse generally advising litigants of the complaint mechanism's availability; and accepting electronic submissions. On this last recommendation, although e-tax and court filings are now commonplace, most commissions still accept complaints only through mail or hand-delivery; we encourage commissions to consider accepting electronic submission of complaints and correspondence about complaints. In addition, chatbots and other forms of artificial intelligence may be potentially efficient ways to help potential complainants understand the process and weed out complaints solely about the merits of judicial decisions.

40 MODEL RULES FOR JUDICIAL DISCIPLINARY ENFORCEMENT R .2 (1994) .

41 Editorial Board, Justice Undercut After a Complaint of Sexual Harassment, Wash .Post, April 17, 2018, available at https://www.washingtonpost.com/opinions/justice-undercut-after-a-complaint-of-sexual-harassment/2018/04/17/8ea94e20-41bf-11e8-8569-26fda6b404c7_story.html?noredirect=on .The editorial was based on this news story: Lynn Bui, “Md . Judge was Reprimanded after a Sexual Harassment Complaint .His Discipline Remains Secret,” Wash .Post, March 24, 2018, available at https://www.washingtonpost.com/local/public-safety/a-md-judge-was-reprimanded-after-a-sexual-harassment-complaint-his-discipline-remains-secret/2017/03/23/979d9d52-0a65-11e7-93dc-00f9bdd74ed1_story.html?utm_term=.c383c400e124 .

As recommended earlier, commissions imposing word or space limitations on the complaint forms might reduce the burden on staff and commissioners in wading through large numbers of long-winded complaints. One participant suggested requiring complainants to cite the canon or other ethical rule (from the corpus of rules posted on the commission website) that they claim the judge violated. But, the bottom line is that commissions are there to deal with complaints, and they need to focus on public access to the process.

Commissions, especially those facing large caseloads, are concerned that greater openness to receiving complaints and greater ease in submission procedures will encourage meritless complaints, which abound already. The concern can be acute as to online submissions. Some convening participants reported no increase in filings once their commissions accepted online complaints while others said “the number of cases opened increased tremendously as did hours processing them but the number of full investigations and discipline imposed did not.” Participants generally opposed responding to complaints in cyberspace because of confidentiality concerns. On balance, we nevertheless recommend permitting electronic submission of complaints and as appropriate electronic communications concerning complaints, coupled of course with good cybersecurity practices. Eight commissions now accept complaints filed online and generally report favorably on the practice, noting that any increase in filings is outweighed by more legible and comprehensive information and lower processing costs. Said one commission: “It’s the way of the future and nice to deal with less paper.”⁴² But commissions should also permit complainants, such as prisoners without online access, to submit complaints in paper. Following these dual recommendations will modernize and increase access to the disciplinary system.

Commissions furthermore need not wait for complaints when there is evidence of misconduct. A news piece can form the basis of a complaint, and disciplinary counsel can serve as the complainant. Anonymous complaints should be processed as fully and as routinely as possible. Most commissions require the complainant to identify him or herself on the complaint and sign it. Some require complainant identification but agree not to reveal the identity to the subject judge. Although total anonymity precludes asking questions of, or providing feedback to, complainants, it protects vulnerable complainants, such as court employees, who fear career-threatening retribution were a judge to learn that an employee had alleged sexual or other misconduct. Convening participants brought forth numerous examples of court personnel and even some attorneys who have been unwilling to complain without anonymity or, at a minimum, an assurance of confidentiality in the early stages of the investigation.

OMBUDSMEN

The Convening discussion broadened toward the end into how to accommodate lawyers and litigants and others who think the court system is in one way or the other giving them a raw deal but who are reluctant to file a complaint, even anonymously, or are distressed by problematic conduct that may not be within the commission’s jurisdiction. One cited a judge’s taking a vacation in the middle of a trial, which may not violate a code provision but still seems irresponsible. Participants warmed to the idea of an ombudsman, or perhaps a committee of senior, unlikely-to-be-intimidated members of the bar—who could receive complaints and take them to a chief judge, court administrator, or perhaps the discipline commission chair who could seek a non-punitive resolution of the problem.

42 Cynthia Gray, “On-Line Complaints,” posted May 22, 2018, available at <https://ncsejudicialethicsblog.org/2018/05/22/on-line-complaints-2/>.

STAFF SCREENING

Encouraging filing through openness and treating all complaints with respect does not preclude screening procedures. Disciplinary counsel generally have great responsibility and discretion in screening complaints. However, commissions, as a whole or as a panel, should review staff-proposed dismissals. (Many do, although the timing and attention differs across states.) It is, said one participant, “important to be able to say that the membership made these decisions.” Commission and staff must resist the understandable tendency to regard some categories of complaints—by prisoners, for example—as inherently suspect, or the tendency to assume that complaints alleging a form of legal error cannot, by that fact alone, be meritorious.

TRANSPARENCY AND CONFIDENTIALITY OF PROCEEDINGS

While all commissions hold confidential their investigative activity, 34 states make the proceedings public once the commission brings formal charges. Twenty-six do so when charges are brought, four when the subject judge answers, and two when the hearing itself begins.⁴³ Commissions inform the complainant and the subject judge once they dismiss a complaint, but only a few states publicly disclose dismissed complaints.⁴⁴ Keeping confidential the initial stages of complaint processing can encourage people to file complaints and witnesses to cooperate by guarding against retaliation, protect judges and the judiciary as a whole from unfair publicity stemming from frivolous complaints, encourage judges to resign or retire rather than fight legitimate complaints in public proceedings, and, in the case of minor problems, allow corrective action without the glare of publicity.⁴⁵

Publicizing complaints that commissions dismiss can give rise to unfair “adverse inferences”⁴⁶ if the judge’s name becomes public, although it is speculative how wide or deep this “adverse inference” from a dismissal cuts. (A different question is whether, in the interests of transparency, to post routine dismissal orders without the judge’s name. If it posts such outright dismissals, the commission should identify them as such, as does Arizona,⁴⁷ rather than oblige researchers to sift through haystacks of complaints to find the few meritorious needles.)

Convening participants were divided over whether a complaint should be kept confidential from the subject judge until the commission dismisses the complaint or needs to request a response or explanation. Participants generally saw little point in alerting a judge to all pending complaints, because most are dismissed after initial review. And a policy of initial complaint confidentiality may encourage complainants who would otherwise be reluctant to file. On the other hand, in one participant’s words, “if judges knew how many complaints get dismissed, they would have more faith in the process.” There is a transparency issue here, too, in that the public deserves to know that the commission is doing its work—and needs to understand the basis upon which complaints are dismissed. Otherwise, the appearance is that the system rarely disciplines judges despite the high number of complaints. Perhaps it would be wise to develop a particular kind of dismissal order titled so as to highlight that the issues raised were appellate in nature and not appropriately handled through the discipline process.

There are, however, exceptions to the rule of confidentiality in the investigative stage. First, commissions should be permitted to call possible misconduct to the attention of bar authorities, prosecutors and bodies considering a judge’s appointment or reappointment to judicial or other public offices. Second, we do not think that the First Amendment permits states to prohibit complainants from disclosing that they have filed complaints or describing their content, to prohibit judges from responding at all in such situations, or at least to prohibit complainants to describe alleged misconduct without disclosing the filed complaint itself.⁴⁸ A Convening participant said that complainants who believe a judge committed serious misconduct should not be forced to decide between filing a complaint under rigid confidentiality rules or eschewing a complaint to 43 Center for Judicial Ethics, When confidentiality ceases in judicial discipline proceedings, available at <http://www.ncsc.org/~media/files/pdf/topics/center%20for%20judicial%20ethics/when-confidentiality-ceases.ashx>.

44 Cynthia Gray, How Judicial Conduct Commissions Work, 28 JUST. SYS. J. 405, 411 (2007).

45 Landmark Communications, Inc. v. Virginia, 435 U.S. 829, 835-36 (1978).

46 MODEL RULES FOR JUDICIAL DISCIPLINARY ENFORCEMENT R. 11 cmt (1994).

47 See ARIZ. COMM’N ON JUDICIAL CONDUCT, PUBLIC DECISIONS SUMMARY 2018, available at <http://www.azcourts.gov/azcjc/Public-Decisions/2018>.

48 Cynthia Gray, How Judicial Conduct Commissions Work, 28 JUST. SYS. J. 405, 410-411 (2007).

be able to describe the alleged misconduct publicly. Besides, some said, prosecuting complainants who violate confidentiality rules is a “lost cause” given everything else on commissions’ plates and the First Amendment.

Third, there should be a rule of reason allowing a commission to confirm that it is investigating a complaint when the news media alleges that a complaint has been submitted or describes a judge’s reported conduct that reasonable people believe would merit investigation. For one example, the state constitution authorizes the Texas commission to issue “a public statement concerning any proceeding when sources other than the Commission cause notoriety concerning a judge or the Commission itself and it determines that the best interests of a judge or of the public will be served by issuing the statement.” According to the commission website, it has issued nine such statements, starting in 2000, the most recent in 2013.⁴⁹

ORDERS

Putting aside dispositions by stipulation, commission and court orders explaining disciplinary decisions often contain less analysis than do standard judicial opinions. To the extent possible, commission orders and court decisions should summarize the allegations, explain why they do or do not describe cognizable misconduct, and explain how any sanction imposed is appropriate. Collectively, such orders can clarify broadly worded codes of conduct by making clear to judges and potential complainants what behavior constitutes misconduct. Orders can clarify what facts are necessary to establish misconduct, or why various sanctions are appropriate. In doing so, the detailed orders convey the message that the state takes seriously allegations of misconduct and disability, and when published, they contribute to the development of the state’s common law of judicial misconduct.

49 See TEX. COMM’N ON JUDICIAL CONDUCT, PUBLIC STATEMENTS, available at <http://www.scjc.texas.gov/public-information/public-statements>.

ADVISORY OPINIONS

As of 2011, 43 states,⁵⁰ through the disciplinary commission or more often some other entity,⁵¹ provided advisory opinions to judges requesting guidance about whether some contemplated action would run afoul of the code of conduct or other rule. Separating the advice-giving entity from the discipline commission lessens the demands on commission staff, who are busy enough simply processing complaints. Creating a separate body, however, makes it all the more important that commission orders are clear and explanatory, so that the advisory opinions can speak with confidence about the state of the disciplinary law. States should make clear whether a judge's reliance on an advisory opinion approving some course of conduct may serve as a defense to misconduct allegations or mitigate discipline. Procedures for requesting and writing advisory opinions, the opinions themselves (or a link to a separate website if applicable—and with names, if any, redacted) and the effect of such opinions should be embodied in written rules and available online.

Many commissions offer informal advice by telephone or otherwise. That advice should be committed to some written record, should a judge later rely on it as a defense in a misconduct proceeding.

50 Jennifer M. Perkins, Current Developments in Arizona Judicial Ethics, 4 PHOENIX L. REV. 667, 667 & n.2 (2011).
51 See GEYH ET AL., JUDICIAL CONDUCT AND ETHICS § 1.13, at 38 (5th ed 2013).

EDUCATION AND DISSEMINATION

DESCRIBING AND EXPLAINING COMMISSION ACTIVITIES

Commissions vary in whether and how they make their discipline orders public. It appears that about half the states post online at least some final discipline-imposing orders issued by the commission or the supreme court, usually identifying the judge by name and sometimes briefly characterizing the nature of the disposition (e.g., “Informal Sanction (Public Reprimand)”). As noted earlier, only a few states appear to post routine dismissal orders.

Simply posting orders by date and number or even name of judge puts a time-consuming burden on scholars, news media, and watchdog groups that want to know and report what types of judges have been disciplined, for what action, and with what sanctions. (CNN recently faced this significant challenge in attempting to research and analyze how the federal judicial conduct system handles sexual misconduct claims.⁵²)

By contrast, the New York and Washington commissions post all determinations imposing some kind of discipline and provide filtering mechanisms to let users sort the orders by type of determination (e.g., admonition, censure, etc.), year, county, and judge type.⁵³ Of course, some states may not have the resources to provide this type of availability, and small states that produce a handful of determinations each year probably have no reason to do so. Nevertheless, posting information about orders and providing a search function are fairly easy and inexpensive tasks in light of today’s technology.

States should also consider listing judges’ aggregate disciplinary records, thus keeping up with state bar programs that allow clients or employers to look up a lawyer’s disciplinary record, if any, on the state bar’s or supreme court’s website.

SUMMARY STATISTICS

Transparency also requires commission websites to provide summary statistics on the operation of the disciplinary system—data should at least include the number of complaints filed by type of allegation, against what type of judge, with what disposition, the time from filing to commission disposition (and separately, the time from appeal to the supreme court or other appellate body and its disposition), as well as available or easily obtainable demographic information about complainants and subject judges. Most commissions provide some type of information—directly on the website or through a link to the commission’s annual report—and when they do, the data are usually well categorized. Transparency is not the only reason to provide clear explanations of a commission’s work. Because the percentage of complaints resulting in actual discipline strikes many observers as low—usually in the one to five percent range—commissions need to document and routinely explain that such numbers are mainly the result of high numbers of collateral attacks masquerading as misconduct complaints.

EDUCATING JUDGES AND OTHERS ABOUT COMMISSION WORK

In addition, commissions and staff should—as many do—educate judges (or educate the court system’s continuing education body) about common judicial ethical issues and educate the public about the disciplinary system to promote confidence that judges are not above the law.

In addition, most commissions indeed regularly offer outreach and trainings to judges and court staff so that common judicial ethics pitfalls are avoided; these outreach and training opportunities also foster a more 52 See Joan Biskupic, CNN Investigation: Sexual misconduct by judges kept under wraps, CNN, Jan .26, 2018, available at <https://www.cnn.com/2018/01/25/politics/courts-judges-sexual-harassment/index.html>.

53 See N.Y. COMM’N ON JUDICIAL CONDUCT, COMMISSION DECISIONS, available at http://www.cjc.ny.gov/Determinations/all_decisions.htm; see also WASH. COMM’N ON JUDICIAL CONDUCT, available at https://www.cjc.state.wa.us/index.php?page=search_discipline.

proactive, rather than reactive, approach to judicial discipline. Convening participants referred to press releases about annual reports and high visibility cases, commission presence at annual bench-bar and other conferences, regular interactions with reporters and editorial boards as ways of keeping the media and the public informed about how commissions operate, what they do and how to understand their determinations.

CONCLUDING CONSIDERATIONS

To repeat, there is no one-size-fits-all ideal organizational structure or set of procedures for all disciplinary commissions. Variations in size and resources mean that what might work in one state would be impractical or impossible in another. Similarly, the extent to which a commission is operating under constitutional, statutory, or court rule mandates also dictates what it can change and what it cannot.

Accordingly, this Report is not an all-inclusive, best-practices guide, and this final section is not a compilation of recommended practices. Rather, we submit here observations and suggestions that commissions and, as appropriate, legislative, executive, and judicial branches might consider in assessing commission structure and procedures. We realize that many of these suggestions reflect arrangements and practices already adopted in many if not most states.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1. The commission should clearly explain the difference between conduct that is appropriate for an appeal and conduct that is appropriate for a discipline complaint, and commissions should carefully screen for the latter, even when the conduct complained about is a judicial decision.
2. The commission is more secure from easy manipulation if based in the state constitution.
3. The commission should pay attention to emerging patterns of problematic behavior reflected in complaints (even non-actionable complaints) and other sources and alert the respective judges to its awareness of those patterns. Administrators of judicial performance evaluations should share misconduct as appropriate with disciplinary authorities (and states that do not have judicial performance evaluation should consider adopting it).
4. The commission should have a diverse membership—demographically, vocationally, and geographically. Appointing authorities should be able to remove commissioners only for cause.
5. The commission should be able to assess its budgetary needs and present them unfiltered to the legislature, with appropriate autonomy to administer its funds. Commissions should consider seeking alternative or supplementary sources of funding, such as bar fees, fines, and orders recovering costs.
6. The commission should, through its structure or internal checks, separate the investigative and prosecutorial functions from the adjudicative functions. The commission executive director should not perform investigative and adjudicative functions in tandem, and disciplinary counsel should be given sufficient independence to assure full and fair investigations and as appropriate prosecutions.
7. The commission should have written rules of procedure and a code of conduct binding commissioners and staff. Commissioners' breach of the conduct rules, including such violations as failure to attend meetings, should be actionable by the appointing authorities. States should employ conflict-checking procedures that flag when commissioner recusal may be warranted.
8. The state's code of judicial conduct, other ethical rules and applicable sanctions should be clear and publicly available on commission websites. The commission and the court should consider adopting a wide array of potential sanctions and should develop standards for discerning what sanctions to impose.
9. The commission should eliminate unnecessary barriers to complaint filing, such as notarization, and provide for online filing.
10. The rules or instructions should be clear as to whether the commissions will accept anonymous complaints. Commission websites should advise complainants of the extent of their legitimate expectation of anonymity. And the commission should review any policies that restrict complainants or subject judges from discussing complaints publicly, consistent with the First Amendment.
11. States should consider establishing a forum—perhaps an ombudsman—to receive and try to resolve non-punitively judicial behavior that may be concerning or irresponsible but not necessarily unethical.
12. The commission should operate under rules that balance the need for confidentiality in the early stages of proceedings and for transparency about complaints with potential merit. Its procedures should shield judges from complaints unless there is a need for a response or the commission decides to bring charges. Its confidentiality rules must be consistent with the First Amendment.
13. Judges should be able to receive advice in various forms, either from the commission, its staff or a separate body, about whether contemplated actions are consistent with applicable conduct rules. Such advice should be duly recorded, and there should be clarity about what protection, if any, judges have from misconduct complaints if they conform conduct to advice provided. The body of advisory opinions should be readily available and searchable online.

14.

Commission orders, aside from stipulated dispositions, should adequately describe the underlying complaint, explain why the commission did or did not give credence to the complaint, why the conduct alleged does or does not constitute misconduct, and describe and justify the appropriate sanction. The orders should contribute to a common law of judicial discipline, including defining the meaning of ambiguous or general conduct codes. Commission orders—at least in non-dismissed cases—should be available online, searchable, and with guides or filters to identify different types of orders. The commission should provide summary statistics on commission activity, and consider posting judges' aggregate disciplinary record, as state bars generally do as to lawyers.

15.

The commission should operate under rules that limit the ability of judges to use resignation or retirement from the bench as a means of avoiding investigation for allegations of serious sexual and other misconduct, and sanctions for documented misconduct.

APPENDIX A

CONVENING PARTICIPANTS*

James J. Alfini, Professor of Law and Dean Emeritus, South Texas College of Law Houston

Hon. Federico C. Alvarez, Alvarez ADR, LLC; Denver District Court (Ret.)

Joyce E. Bustos, Public Member, New Mexico Judicial Standards Commission

Reiko Callner, Executive Director, Washington State Commission on Judicial Conduct

William J. Campbell, Executive Director, Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline

Zachariah DeMeola, Manager, Institute for the Advancement of the American Legal System

Hon. Margaret H. Downie, Executive Director, Arizona Commission on Judicial Conduct; Arizona Court of Appeals (Ret.)

Keith Fisher, Principal Court Management Consultant, National Center for State Courts

Thomas M. Fitzpatrick, Partner, Talmadge Fitzpatrick Tribe

Hon. Jeremy D. Fogel, Director, Federal Judicial Center; U.S. District Court for the Northern District of California

Cynthia Gray, Director, Center for Judicial Ethics, National Center for State Courts

Mark I. Harrison, Member, Osborn Maledon

Hon. Rebecca L. Kourlis, Executive Director, Institute for the Advancement of the American Legal System; Colorado Supreme Court (Ret.)

Hon. Martha Minot, Judge, La Plata County Court, Colorado (Ret.)

George A. Riemer, Member, Arizona Supreme Court Attorney Regulation Advisory Committee; Attorney Discipline Hearing Panel

Randall D. Roybal, Executive Director & General Counsel, New Mexico Judicial Standards Commission

Michael L. Schneider, Executive Director and General Counsel, Florida Judicial Qualifications Commission

Judie Stanton, Public Member, Washington State Commission on Judicial Conduct

Keith Swisher, Prof. of Legal Ethics, University of Arizona James E. Rogers College of Law

Nicole VanderDoes, Chief Counsel, ABA Standing Committee on the American Judicial System

Dorothy M. Webster, Alternate Commissioner, Washington State Commission on Judicial Conduct

Russell R. Wheeler, Visiting Fellow, Governance Studies, The Brookings Institution

Seana Willing, Executive Director, Texas Ethics Commission

* Participants' affiliations are provided for informational purposes and do not denote the affiliated organization's support for this report .

APPENDIX B

CONVENING AGENDA

March 1-2, 2018 | The Penrose House | 10 Lake Circle | Colorado Springs, CO 80906

Thursday, March 1

10:00am – Noon	Welcome & Introductions Hon. Rebecca Love Kourlis Impartiality Keith Swisher - BREAK -
1:00 – 5:15pm	Independence James J. Alfini Integrity William J. Campbell - BREAK - Fairness and Efficiency Cynthia Gray
5:15pm	Cocktails & Dinner

Friday, March 2

8:30 – 11:30am	Transparency and Promoting Public Confidence Russell R. Wheeler - BREAK - Synthesis of Discussion Identification of Discipline System Reform Proposals Hon. Rebecca Love Kourlis
----------------	---

Topic Outlines:

Impartiality (Swisher):

- Disciplinary System Structure
- Disciplinary Counsel

Independence (Alfina):

- Treatment of Adjudicative Legal Errors
- Budget/Funding
- Standards of Review

[This grouping addresses both the independence of the judiciary and the independence of the commissions to review judicial conduct and, where appropriate, to hold judges accountable.]

Integrity (Campbell):

- Code of Conduct or Best Practices for Commission Members and Staff
- Diversity of Commission Members

Fairness and Efficiency (Gray):

- Efficient, Yet Thorough Case Screening
- Available Sanctions
- Handling Substance Abuse Cases
- Investigative and Disciplinary Defense Costs
- Advisory Opinions

Transparency and Promoting Public Confidence (Wheeler):

- Timing and Extent of Public Disclosure of Investigations and Dispositions
- Public and Judicial Education
- Reporting Disciplinary Sanctions

INSTITUTE for the ADVANCEMENT
of the AMERICAN LEGAL SYSTEM

UNIVERSITY of DENVER

Institute for the Advancement of the American Legal System
University of Denver
John Moye Hall, 2060 South Gaylord Way
Denver, CO 80208
Phone: 303.871.6600 <http://iaals.du.edu>

Appendix 27(s)(iii)(13)(m)

Letter from Paul Hurcomb to Legis. Interim
Comm. on Jud. Discipline, August 10, 2022;

EL PASO COUNTY
BAR ASSOCIATION

P.O. Box 0429
Colorado Springs, CO 80903

The Honorable Terri Carver
200 E. Colfax Rm 307
Denver, CO 80203
VIA E-mail terri@terrincarver.org

RE: Judicial Discipline Committee

Dear Representative Carver:

I am writing on behalf of the El Paso County Bar Association (“EPCBA”). The lawyers of the EPCBA work daily in the 4th Judicial District, the largest and busiest judicial district in Colorado. Because of our daily work in the courts, we understand and value the importance of maintaining an independent and exemplary judiciary. An essential component of both those values is an effective and credible system for examining and resolving allegations of ethical misconduct by judges.

We at the EPCBA have been following the work of your bipartisan committee on Judicial Discipline closely. We have met and discussed the issues revealed through your committee’s work and the various recommendations available to us. We focused on the report of the CWBA and the joint statement of positions from the Judicial Department and the Judicial Discipline Commission. We appreciate your comments and request that the committee also consider opinions of local bar associations like the EPCBA on the changes to Colorado’s system of judicial discipline.

First and foremost, we have concluded that the status quo is no longer acceptable. The testimony before your committee reveals that the system is not working and is not credible with the public or the legal community. We believe the primary goals for reform to the system are ensuring genuinely independent review of judicial misconduct allegations and transparency for the public to have confidence in our judiciary.

To these ends we support the recommendations set forth by the CWBA and the Judicial Discipline Commission that are before you.

- For the final decision-making body, we support the establishment of a citizen-involved body that has representatives of the bench, the bar, and citizenry to provide genuine independence and public accountability for resolving allegations of judicial misconduct. There should be meaningful diversity on the body, including gender, age, racial, cultural, disability and geographic diversity to ensure that the body is not Denver-centric. The judges on the body should not hold leadership positions in the judiciary to avoid conflict situations. We also believe that the majority of the decision-making body should be judges to address separation of powers concerns and honor their unique insights on the role of the judge.

- In support of independence, the Colorado Supreme Court should no longer hold rulemaking authority over judicial discipline. If a new final decision-making body is created, it should hold rulemaking authority. If not, the Discipline Commission should hold rulemaking authority.
- On the issue of transparency, we need to protect the judiciary from being damaged by publicizing meritless claims of misconduct. We understand these are the large majority of complaints made. We also must end the secrecy that deprives the current system of investigating misconduct complaints of credibility with the public. In Colorado, formal proceedings cannot be filed until a claim is found to be supported by a preponderance of the evidence. Therefore, the interests of confidentiality and transparency are best balanced by ending confidentiality at the time formal proceedings are filed, when the allegation has been found to be supported by a preponderance of evidence. Formal proceedings should be as transparent as any other litigation such as a criminal, civil, or domestic relations case.

In addition, the EPCBA recommends the Judicial Disciplinary Commission be permitted and encouraged to communicate with the local Judicial Nominating Committees and Judicial Performance Committees.

We believe these are the most important reforms. While we believe the final decision-making body should be reformed, until that constitutional amendment can take effect, we agree with the CWBA's critical point that when a current or former member of the Colorado Supreme Court is the subject the misconduct allegation, the full Court should be disqualified and replaced by a random selection of conflict-free judges. This can be enacted by statute as an interim measure on disqualification.

We appreciate your committee's work. One of our board members, Dan Kay, will be available for any questions at the committee hearing on August 10th, 2022 at 1:50 p.m. We encourage you to seek his input.

Sincerely,

Paul W. Hurcomb
EPCBA President-Elect

cc: Board of Trustees, EPCBA

Appendix 27(s)(iv)

Hearing before the Interim Comm. on Jud.
Discipline, Colo. Leg.,
August 17, 2022;

Colorado Legislature Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline: August 17, 2022 Hearing

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Good morning, everyone. The Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline subject to Senate Bill 22-201
3 will come to order Ms. Jenson, if you would kindly call the roll.

4

5 Juliann Jenson

6 Representatives and Senators. Bacon.

7

8 Rep. Bacon

9 Present.

10

11 Juliann Jenson

12 Gardner.

13

14 Sen. Gardner

15 Present.

16

17 Juliann Jenson

18 Lynch.

19

20 Rep. Lynch

21 Here.

22

23 Juliann Jenson

24 Moreno.

25

26 Sen. Moreno

27 Here.

28

29 Juliann Jenson

30 Van Winkle.

31

32 Sen. Van Winkle

33 Here.

34

35

1 Juliann Jenson

2 Carver.

3

4 Rep. Carver

5 Here.

6

7 Juliann Jenson

8 Mr. Chair.

9

10 Rep. Weissman

11 Here.

12

13 Rep. Weissman

14 All right, everyone, thanks for being present. So, our agenda today is three items, we have opening
15 remarks, which will be brief, we will invite public comments, and then we will proceed to consideration
16 of bill draft requests. The only opening thing I was going to say was just information only for members
17 of the public who might be here or listening online. So, every interim committee is approved for a
18 specific number of hearings, this one was set for five. Per legislative rules at the penultimate meeting,
19 which is this one because we've had three meetings prior to today, we need to agree on sufficient detail
20 for drafting. So that that process may commence and we can timely meet the successive deadlines that 21 are stacked up after today. So, that is the core of today's agenda. And that's what we'll come to following
22 public comment. By very rough analogy. You know, this is equivalent to submitting a drafting request.
23 We are not required to have all the details page and line fleshed out nor at this point really, can we, but
24 we have to give the nonpartisan drafting office enough detail to be able to proceed, and then there'll be a
25 pretty intensive process to bash out the details. We are subject to an interim deadline of September 9, at 26 which the bill drafts that we agree to send for today have to be finalized, we could analogize that to bill
27 paper, although it's not quite the same in this interim context. And then we will have additional time
28 between September 9 and September 30 to consider and have drafted amendments that we could run. If 29 we want to on those drafts at our final 9/30 hearing, the work of this committee is done after whatever
30 votes we take on 9/30. And the bills go forward in the process. Just wanted to note that for everyone's
31 understanding of today, and how it situates in the greater arc of things. And I'll invite Vice Chair Carver 32 to make any opening comments if she'd like.

33

34 Rep. Carver

35 Thank you, Mr. Chair. And my only opening comments is really a sincere and truly heartfelt thank you
36 to all the stakeholders, all those who have testified, your input and insights have been invaluable. I think 37 you'll see so many of those concerns addressed in the draft proposals that are coming forward. And, so, 38 thank you for your dedication and time to this process.

39

40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Likewise, we've had a lot of thoughtful input from a lot of entities. And that has certainly helped us get
3 to where we've gotten to today. Okay, we'll proceed to public comment. I'm inclined to hear first from 4 folks who have made the effort to be physically present in the room so that you can leave after that if
5 you'd like. I think both of you folks are here for public comment. Please come up. Join us at the table.
6 Ms. Debuque and Ms. Pelham, I think we see that you've signed in here. We'll come to online witnesses
7 after you. Go ahead and let us know your name, and if you're speaking in connection with any 8 organizational affiliations, whose proxy you have, and please proceed. We aim to keep it to about three 9 minutes each and then we'll see if the committee have any questions for either of you. Please go ahead.

10

11 Kimberly Debuque

12 Kimberly Debuque. I'm here just representing myself. And I would like to get my time over to Tamara 13 to speak on behalf of both of us.

14

15 Rep. Weissman

16 Please go ahead.

17

18 Tamara Pelham

19 Hello, thank you very much for hearing my testimony. Mr. Chairman, committee members, I have 20 emailed you a boatload of documentation, and I also emailed the staffers for this committee. But what 21 I'd really like to communicate today is that I feel there is a disconnect, or maybe not a disconnect, maybe
22 a I'm just gonna start it over. Is it unreasonable for anybody to expect that when you go into a trial, that 23 you have been compelled to attend in a civil matter, that the judge would have read the entire court
24 docket, that they would be educated about the body of law that they are being asked to interpret and 25 apply to a civil matter? In our case, a contract law matter, an HOA contract law matter. I would contend 26 that it is not only a reasonable expectation, but that it is required by the judicial code that a judge that is 27 sitting and adjudicating a case hearing and deciding a matter would actually know the court docket as 28 well as the body of law that they are adjudicating under. That didn't happen for us. We were assigned
29 our case, our court date got assigned to a senior judge four days before our hearing. Four days, on a
30 Friday, the 18th Judicial Court was notified that a senior judge would be available to hear not just our 31 case, on October 6 of last year, but four days' worth of cases. And that was a Friday, it's not beyond
32 reason to expect that a senior judge who's been retired for 15 years, probably didn't spend 15 minutes
33 over that weekend preparing not just for our case, which had 100 pages of narrative, original text in the 34 filings, 44 references to different case law citations, as well as up to 300 pages of exhibits. But our case
35 and every other case that was heard by this senior judge over four days. Ours is an example of what's 36 happening with this senior judge program. Unfortunately, the senior judge did not see it our way. But he 37 went into the trial and said, I've read the trial briefs. And he agreed with the defense's trial brief. Okay,
38 that's fine, except that he had read nothing else. And it's all throughout. There's examples scattered
39 throughout the court transcript. We left, we paid, we're done. That was another $60,000 adventure to go
40 to court. Our judge that had been assigned to our case, our sitting judge had already read everything in

1 our docket, had already ruled in July of 2021 on both the defense as well as the plaintiffs' motions for
2 summary judgment. Saying nope, we can't decide this in summary judgment, we have to go to trial to 3 hear extrinsic evidence to consider just extrinsic evidence outside and beyond 100 pages of arguments.
4 And yet, he didn't get to hear and adjudicate our case. Now, if you look at the canons and the rules, it is
5 in strict violation of rule 2.6 and 2.11, which states that a judge shall hear and decide a case to which he
6 is assigned. And the only reason that they don't hear and decide it is if they're disqualified under Rule
7 2.11, which is not, does not list reasons that are just timely, or are their absence. It's they have a conflict
8 of interest. Our case was terribly mismanaged. And we approached the Commission on Judicial 9 Discipline. We submitted an RFE on May 31 of this year. And within about an hour by July 28, we got a 10 response back from the Commission that were just sore because we lost. That's effectively what they 11 said we can't act on anything that you put in a 21 page letter to the Supreme Court listing at least a dozen
12 instances in our court transcripts, where the judge clearly indicates says that he didn't read the court
13 docket didn't know that CIOA was an acronym for the Colorado Common Interest Ownership Act,
14 asked the defense attorney during our court case, how certain statutes that we hired him to actually 15 interpret how they comported. That's what the judge asked a defense attorney, which to me is in 16 violation of rule 2.6 soliciting bias from attorneys. You can't do that and have a fair trial. We are we 17 were denied a fair trial. And then we were denied a fair review of our RFE, the way I see it, the fact that 18 Christopher Gregory was the one that preliminarily reviewed our RFE, and then said, oh, well, sorry,
19 you fail on the merits, you're just upset that you didn't win is in violation of the intent of the actual 20 Constitution. There's nothing in the Constitution that says that your executive secretary gets to make a
21 decision on an RFE that you supply to a commission of at least 10 people, and I thought it was 11. But I
22 think it's 10. Regardless, that's not fair. It that's not to be his decision. It should be a subset of committee
23 members at a minimum, commission members at a minimum, and then we should know what they did
24 or didn't do. We don't even get the benefit of knowing whether they asked the senior judge, did you read
25 the dang docket, before you went in there, not just our docket, but all of the dockets. And the reason I
26 believe the reason that they can't take action on our RFE is because if they did take action on RFE, if 27 they did find that that senior judge was in violation of the judicial code, lots of them, I have a half a 28 dozen of them listed and substantiated in my documentation with the evidence, then it would imply and 29 it would implicate the senior judge program at large, that has been on an operation under the Supreme 30 Court Directive 95-03 since 1995. There are probably 1000s of litigants that have been denied a fair 31 trial, because senior judges are allowed to just sit in at the will or the discretion of the district that puts 32 them in.

33

34 Rep. Weissman

35 Alright, Ms. Pelham. Thank you. I was gonna, we haven't been keeping strict time. I was going to ask 36 you to conclude. It seems like maybe that's the point you wanted to land on.

37

38 Tamara Pelham

39 I'm sorry, I can't hear ya.

40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Sorry, the siren is loud. I was going to ask you to conclude and it sounds like you maybe you got to the 3 end of the points that you wanted to make. We do all have your written testimony. I do have an email
4 from you as well, I'm sure that other committee members do. I think you just laid a lot on the table. I
5 mean, I can really only hit a few points right now. I appreciate that CIOA is a source of frustration for 6 homeowners, sometimes that is outside the scope of this committee, but it is something that comes to the 7 attention of the full General Assembly, I would say on an annual basis. And there are often bills to go
8 into some aspect of CIOA, so the frustrations that that law can generate for homeowners aren't lost on 9 us. I would also say as to the role of initial review of complaints. You know, the Commission, like a lot
10 of constitutional bodies has some degree of latitude in setting up its internal procedures by rule. We are 11 going to talk more about how those rules are formulated, today and beyond, you know, to the question
12 of sort of the judicial capacity and senior judges, I mean, again, that's beyond the scope of this 13 committee, but it is something the full General Assembly grapples with here and there. A couple years
14 ago in recognition of increasing population in our state increasing need for Judge hours, basically, to 15 hear matters. This General Assembly, changed the statutes and allowed there to be more judges hired in 16 a variety of fast growing districts. You know, my recollection is the 18th was one of them. I live in the 17 18th myself. We're growing quickly. You know, that is something that can continue to come to the 18 attention of the full, General Assembly. We are not able to get into the guts of your individual matter
19 today at the court level or the commission level, nor anyone else's. I don't mean to say it's specific about 20 your matter with CIOA. But I do think that a lot of the points you've made about how cases are heard, 21 and you know, the subject matter out of which this arose, are things potentially within the orbit of the 22 entire General Assembly that will reconvene next January for all 100 legislators to grapple with.

23

24 Tamara Pelham

25 How can the Commission on Judicial Discipline, ignore the fact that the Senior Judge Program
26 inherently violates judicial code. And it puts every judge that is either sitting and usurped by a senior 27 judge or the senior judge himself in a position that he must violate judicial code. This is not that deep.
28 It's not that hard to read these words and recognize that the Senior Judge Program, if you can insert a
29 senior judge, for a sitting judge into a case that has been ongoing for a year, and they do not fully come
30 up to speed on absolutely every nuance that has already been adjudicated. That is a violation of code.
31 And it fails me to understand how Christopher Gregory or anyone else on that Commission says, no,
32 that's not the case. You're just upset about the determination.

33

34 Rep. Weissman

35 Ms. Pelham. Thank you, I need to let Vice Chair Carver, ask a question or make a comment, Madam
36 Vice Chair.

37

38 Rep. Carver

39 First of all, thank you for being here today. And also reducing that to writing, very important. The 40 Constitution clearly says that the scope of the Commission, when there's allegations against a judge,

1 include violation of the Canons of judicial conduct. So, while I, I'm not in a position as a member of this
2 committee, nor are my committee members, in a position to speak directly of whether the Commission
3 properly assessed your complaint. Let me just tell you, that in other public comments, we have heard
4 about judges doing delay after delay after delay. And to the point that it raises an issue on whether the 5 Canons have been followed. There are issues that have come up on failure to recuse when there is a
6 perceived conflict of interest. And this, I think, is another aspect. And I thank you sincerely, for bringing 7 this to light. Because this is what you are describing is certainly not in alignment with how we expect
8 the public expectations or the rules as written for cases to be managed. So, let me just say that, you 9 know, your testimony, we have a wide range of stakeholders that are either here present or listening in.
10 And as they heard the other public comments they have heard yours. And, so, it is a matter of record it
11 as part of our administrative record, that it is a serious matter. And I think we can't, it's already covered
12 in a general rule of the canons. So, with that, I just want to thank you for coming forward. And I know
13 that individuals in the audience have been taking notes, I would think that hope and expect that there
14 might be some appropriate follow up to look at this. We expect litigants going into a court that the judge
15 is in fact prepared, even if they're substituting. And, so, enough said. Thank you.

16

17 Tamara Pelham

18 May I add one.

19

20 Rep. Weissman

21 I'm sorry Ms. Pelham, I need to allow discussion from members of the committee. Senator Gardner.

22

23 Sen. Gardner

24 Thank you, Mr. Chair, Ms. Pelham is it?

25

26 Tamara Pelham

27 It is.

28

29 Sen. Gardner

30 Thank you and I I've been reading your written testimony while you were speaking. Your oral testimony
31 has pretty much followed that. And I have not reviewed all of your written submission nor taken a look
32 at the case and the pleadings and so forth. And so there may well be things about the case that raised
33 questions and caused one some concern. I don't know. I'll have to look at it. I am troubled by your, and 34 I'm going to be very candid with you. Your blanket condemnation of the Senior Judge Program. I think I
35 alone sitting here am the one person who, for their livelihood appears in the courts of Colorado as well
36 as the federal courts from time to time. And I have to tell you, my experience with the Senior Judge
37 Program has been overall quite good. I've also had the occasion to arrive at the courthouse on a Monday 38 morning and be called into a judge's chambers and told that my case, which is scheduled has been 39 assigned to a judge down the hall so that we don't have to reschedule, because another case has carried 40 over in the docket. And this happens, my experience with that, and I will let you in on a lawyer secret.

1 Sometimes when called into the chambers to say well, I can't hear your case this week, because my case
2 that I'm hearing is carried over, but Judge so and so had it, I've actually sort of walked out and gone,
3 that's great. Or I have walked out and said you know, I'm not so sure. Because judges and that might be
4 just because of the kind of case I have, and, and so forth. But I think a blanket condemnation of the of 5 the Senior Judge Program that somehow the they've they're not able or would not prepare themselves or 6 review the pleadings or be able to decide a case has not been my own experience of 35 plus years in 7 Colorado courts. Nevertheless, I you know, I've walked out of the courtroom, sometimes thinking I don't 8 know how that Judge reached that conclusion. And sometimes I've walked out of the courtroom and 9 thought, I'm really glad that the judge understood the case, the way I understood the case. And my 10 colleague across on or I want to say on the on the other side of the courtroom has walked out and said I
11 just don't know how he or she arrived at that conclusion. So again, I want to look at your material here.
12 And I appreciate that. But the sort of blanket and sweeping condemnation of senior judges again, I know
13 of very fine district and appellate court judges who have continued to serve as senior judges. And I
14 thought, I'm really glad that's the case because that judge is a really fine judge. And I think that's the 15 goal of the Senior Judge Program, to fill a need. We certainly in this last legislative session, made some 16 extensions to the Senior Judges Program because of the extreme backlog we have as a result of COVID.
17 And that was not without some controversy. But again, my confidence in the senior judges that we have 18 is such that I thought this was a good issue. There is a body of thought, not very large, that somehow
19 that Senior Judges Program is unconstitutional. I think anyone who sits in front of a case before a senior 20 judge who wishes to raise that, and it may have been raised to the Colorado Supreme Court, I think 21 unsuccessfully and ultimately, one can hold the view that something is unconstitutional, even though the 22 state Supreme Court has decided it is and all that becomes is a matter of disagreement. I often disagree
23 with decisions of the Court but they are the law and we accept them as such. So, thank you, you may 24 wish to respond. And that's up to the chair.

25

26 Rep. Weissman

27 Ms. Pelham. I want to hear from our other witnesses on before we get into more back and forth, Ms.
28 Debuque, I want to make sure you're here in a supportive role. Do you want to make any comments?
29 You're free to.

30

31 Kimberly Debuque

32 Thank you Chair. Senator Gardner, no disrespect. I don't think that we were trying to file a complaint or 33 state that we were against the Senior Judge Program as a whole. Our experience with our case, and that's 34 all that we can speak on, is it was not, there were violations based off of the codes that we presented to 35 the judiciary committee for review. And in that turn, we did not feel that we were even, that our 36 complaint was not read. The case was not reviewed. And that's where it comes from. I'm sure there are 37 senior judges out there who are phenomenal. Right. And just like any other regular judge, we can agree 38 or disagree whether we think their verdict was good or bad. We understand that our verdict was against 39 us. We have no issue with that. It was the manner in which our case was handled is what we have the 40 issue with. Thank you.

1 Sen. Gardner

2 If I may Mr. Chair.

3

4 Rep. Weissman

5 Sure, Senator, go ahead.

6

7 Sen. Gardner

8 Thank you, Mr. Chair. I appreciate that. And appreciate the response. I think my understanding of the 9 written document and the testimony I heard, and your correction of how I should have taken it with 10 regard to the Senior Judges Program simply points out the difficulties of advocacy before the courts and 11 what any fact finder, or decision maker in an appellate context might understand the case to be. And so,
12 I appreciate your clarification that it wasn't a condemnation of the Senior Judges Program, because I 13 certainly, however, incorrectly took that as part of the implication. Thank you, ma'am.

14

15 Rep. Weissman

16 And Ms. Debuque, the only thing I would add to your and Ms. Pelham's comments, something that this 17 committee has heard before, as recently as last week that you'll hear us grapple with today. And going
18 forward. What we have is a process dating basically to the 1960s. That's kind of when the Commission
19 as it now stands was first constituted and the broad strokes of its functioning were set up. And that 20 basically involves two adversarial parties, the complainant and the judge. There wasn't really a 21 consideration at that point of what we now talk about pretty regularly. And, for example, a criminal 22 context, excuse the analogy, which is essentially victim rights and victim notifications, to use the 23 parlance from that other domain of lawmaking. Where we set forth in text, including constitutional text, 24 maybe in statute, the idea that people who found yourselves in your position, you know, have 25 affirmative rights to be kept apprised not to say that we're going to put our thumb on the scale of the 26 outcome, that would be inappropriate, but you want to know what's going on. And we are aware that 27 maybe the process as we inherit it today could do a better job as far as letting people know what's going 28 on. We're aware that the Commission may need more FTE more resources in order to make good on that 29 for the people who bring complaints to the Commission. That is part of what we've been actively 30 grappling with how to do that. So, that one may not like the outcome, but at least there's better
31 understanding about what's going on along the way. That is something you'll hear us grapple with. I do
32 want to get to our witnesses online. We have at least two. Mr. Hart if you could please connect Ms. Dees 33 and Ms. Havilland on the Zoom.

34

35 Rep. Weissman

36 Alright, looks like Kelly Havilland might be getting connected first. Screen says your audio is still 37 connecting. At the point when you can hear us feel free to activate your camera and please go ahead 38 with your testimony. Again, please try to keep it to about three minutes.

39

40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Okay, so we don't have Ms. Dees on there it seems.

3

4 Rep. Weissman

5 Members, we did have two folks who signed up online in the usual way in advance. If we're not able to 6 connect with them, we might just move on with our agenda and we could possibly come back here. It
7 looks like Mr. Hart is trying to communicate with the witnesses.

8

9 Rep. Weissman

10 All right, Ms. Havilland it looks like you have managed to connect. If you can hear us, please let us 11 know your name and affiliation for the record. And please go ahead.

12

13 Kelly Havilland

14 My name is Kelly Havilland. I am not affiliated with anybody.

15

16 Rep. Weissman

17 Please continue.

18

19 Kelly Havilland

20 I am very interested and very interested in the hearing today because there's been so much going on that 21 I wanted to share my experience with you. I'll make it very short, very sweet. We've had an experience
22 in court. That my granddaughter was abused and neglected by the same person or persons that a
23 caseworker perjured to get the child placed into that house. Anyway, in court, I needed to tell the judge
24 what I needed to tell her to help my granddaughter. And the judge was so wrapped up and believed
25 everything that the Department of Human Services was saying. She believed everything. And the child
26 is still stuck in this environment. After Natalie Chase was removed from her spot in that case, and I had 27 a conversation with her personally, I called her phone. I booked an hour and spoke with her and let her
28 know that I had already been approved in that District I'd already been approved by her personally two
29 years prior. There's so much going on in the courts, that as a normal citizen who needs to be able to help
30 their child or their grandchild is not able to. Do these things violate the Constitution? And you do the 31 best that you can even with attorneys they can't, they can't help because they risk being disbarred for 32 going against the State. I have had to learn that the hard way. When I did speak with Natalie Chase after 33 the fact she said that this does constitute both a state and federal lawsuit. And instead of chasing a 34 lawsuit and making people be accountable for the destruction and the abuse that my daughter had to 35 endure or is still enduring, I'm in court trying to help her still, for the same continuous behavior that the 36 caseworker had perjured in court for. I don't know how in the State of Colorado, this is acceptable. And 37 I'm hoping that this action in court for judicial discipline. Like, I like Natalie Chase, she's already 38 approved me. But all it takes is one deceitful caseworker and they can ruin it. That would be the same 39 thing as caseworker says to you, oh, that so and so must need a mental health evaluation, get a mental 40 health evaluation just to prove that you're okay. And they still don't listen to you. I mean, it's every right

1 was violated in that court. And nothing can be done. I don't know how this is acceptable to children, or
2 in my case, granddaughter is still getting abused, still to thisday. Accountability needs to happen. There
3 needs to be a whistleblower. For people who do catch CPS purgering in court or falsifying information.
4 There's there's no protection for us. And I need change.
5

6 Rep. Weissman

7 All right, Ms. Havilland. Thank you. We'll see if the committee has any questions. We're seeing no
8 questions here. Again, we can't get into the guts of an individual matter. But I think all of us who've 9 been here for whatever number of years appreciate that the child and family law domain can be 10 adversarial at times, can be very difficult for those going through it. And that sometimes folks have 11 difficulty accessing an attorney to help them go through it. You know, I know that that latter aspect is 12 something that our Supreme Court is currently working on, in terms of scope of practice rules for 13 paraprofessionals. And the broader domain of all of the family code is, you know, something that can 14 and probably will come up in some fashion here next year, again, by the full General Assembly, it's not 15 something that this committee is empowered to grapple with. I guess I just wanted to sort of make that 16 comment. I don't have a specific question for you. Members, questions, comments? We're seeing none
17 here. Thank you for testifying with us today. As always, if you want to submit more in writing, you're 18 free to do so. There is a contact email address on our committee webpage, you should also be able to 19 upload, you know, through the website, if you want to submit comments that way. Thank you. Okay,
20 thank you. Mr. Hart, no sign of Ms. Dees on the Zoom. Alright, and nobody else signed up. Okay, last 21 call for anyone in the room who wanted to make public comments at today's hearing. All right, we'll 22 close that phase.
23

24 Rep. Weissman

25 And we'll proceed to the next phase of the agenda, which is discussion of the bill draft requests, which is 26 the core work in front of us today. I guess by way of opening comments, again, members, as a reminder,
27 the bill that set up this interim committee approved us to send forward not more than three measures,
28 concurrent resolutions, or bills into the 23 regular session, by operation of the joint rules. We could 29 approve as many as six today. And there would then be some kind of winnowing process. You know, a
30 thought that I had somewhere between last week and here, is that this interim committee is potentially a
31 little bit different than a lot of other ones in that are our subject matter is narrower. We're not talking
32 about all of wildfire prevention, or all of transportation, or all of water, or things like that. And Rep
33 Lynch, I know you have experience with a wildfire committee. I was on a sentencing interim. And five 34 years ago, all of sentencing is broader than three or six or 100 bills. In this case, we've set up a pretty
35 narrow charge. And I think, as we've heard, witnesses over the many hearings now. I think the issues
36 before us have actually been pretty well framed. Now, is there a perfect agreement on every detail? No.
37 And there doesn't need to be at this point. But my thought and something I've discussed at length with 38 Vice Chair Carver and others is that today instead of going forward in more of a branched way and 39 having four or five or six things under consideration, and there being a little bit of uncertainty on our 40 part and everyone else's part about where we're going to land including on issues of constitutional

1 nature, that it might be possible to proceed from here in a little bit more of a consensus way. Especially,
2 and not limited to the question of a concurrent resolution, which Senator Gardner noted last time, we
3 need to take up. I don't believe we're discharging all that we're all here to do if we don't grapple with 4 putting a properly framed, referred measure in front of the people to update the constitutional backdrop
5 of all of this. So, you know, I've had discussions with members about that. I know that there have been a
6 lot of discussions. What the Vice Chair and I have put together and distributed and we'll proceed to talk
7 about here is some framing notes on all of that. Again, not that this is exhaustive of every detail, but my 8 thought and hope is that we can find broad agreement on what we're about to set forth, and proceed in 9 that way. And we have a deadline of the 9th and then we have the final deadline of the 30th. You know,
10 from the get go, I have appreciated that there are very consequential questions here. Philosophical 11 questions, but that things needn't necessarily and shouldn't and hopefully wouldn't break down along a 12 party line way. You know, this Interim Committee is set up evenly four-four, drawing inspiration from 13 an interim committee on a different subject that met last year. Because some issues ought to be bigger
14 than party divides. Not that there aren't disputes. But issues like this, ought to be able to find support 15 across the spectrum for the sake of transparency and accountability and public confidence in 16 government, which is something that, you know, we all, I think both depend on as public officeholders,
17 and ought to work hard to protect. So, with that, I'll see if Vice Chair Carver wants to make any opening
18 comments. Otherwise, we can proceed to read for the record, the notes that everybody has, and then 19 we'll, we'll just get that out there. And then we'll open up for discussion by any members. Madam Vice 20 Chair.

21

22 Rep. Carver

23 Thank you, Mr. Chair. And I may have overall comments later. But if this is an appropriate time to put 24 forth draft proposals, is that agreeable to the Chair?

25

26 Rep. Weissman

27 Sure, we can reserve any more general comments. But Madam Vice Chair, if you'd like to proceed to 28 frame a measure that we would consider, please go ahead.

29

30 Rep. Carver

31 Thank you, Mr. Chair, and a draft proposal that would be the subject of changes to the Constitution. So,
32 a concurrent resolution, those changes would be to Article XXIII. And, excuse me, Article VI, section
33 23, I beg your pardon. And the changes would start on paragraph (3)(e). And, so, the other parts the 34 previous parts of Section 23 paragraph (1) unchanged, (2) unchanged, (3)(c) unchanged, (3)(d)
35 unchanged, and then moving to (3)(e). And I am simply for the record going to read this and I may have 36 just some brief narrative to give the context. So, in (3)(e), we are creating, again, based upon a lot of the 37 discussion we heard from stakeholders, we are creating an independent adjudicative body to adjudicate
38 that is for the prosecution and the initial decision on was there misconduct or not? And if so, what is the 39 appropriate disciplinary action? That independent adjudicative entity would be a separate body, separate 40 from the Commission which would retain the investigatory functions as described in the Constitution. It

1 would have an equal number of judges, lawyers, and citizens. And, so, with that, I'm just going to read
2 this into the record.

3
4 (3)(e): create an independent adjudicative entity to conduct formal hearings. The independent
5 adjudicative entity shall have an equal number of judges appointed by the Supreme Court, lawyers
6 appointed by the Governor confirmed by the Senate, members of the public appointed by the Governor
7 confirmed by the Senate. Of the members within those three pools, there shall be a random selection of 8 one judge, one lawyer, and one member of the public to conduct the hearing. So, again, the idea is there
9 should be representatives from these three groups just like there are representatives at the commission
10 level of judges, lawyers, and citizens doing the investigatory function. Same thing at the adjudicative
11 level. And the pool is to make sure that we have members in case there is a disqualification conflict of 12 interest with any of the members, given the specific judge involved, so that we can proceed forward.
13 And obviously, the initiation of the formal hearing is when the Commission has done its work and 14 recommended that a formal proceeding be initiated, because the evidence and the level of misconduct
15 takes it beyond an informal remedial action or private discipline. So, the terms, we are still going to 16 determine that.

17
18 So, next topic, but related to (3)(e), we are changing the standard of review by the Supreme Court. In the 19 current constitutional language, when the Supreme Court reviews / after the adjudication is done, which 20 used to be by judges alone, right. So, the current constitution provided for a panel of judges to decide the 21 adjudicative thing. We are moving away from that to a panel, not just judges. In fact, where the judge is 22 just 1/3 of the panel. But now, we're also changing the standard of review for the Supreme Court to 23 review what the adjudicative body has brought forth. Current language is de novo review on facts and 24 law. We are changing this to a more appellate standard of review. That is narrower than a full blown de
25 novo review, where the court can open up fact finding and all of that. That is changed to a more limited
26 appellate role. And the review that we're talking about is scope of review on the law is plenary. On the 27 facts, scope is limited to if it's clearly erroneous. And as to sanctions, the scope of review is whether the 28 sanctions imposed are lawful. We are also creating or proposing to create for the first time an 29 opportunity for the Commission to be able to appeal to the Supreme Court if the charges are dismissed at 30 the adjudicative stage. And we have looked at what other states have done, this was a feature that other
31 states have used and we thought it appropriate. So, we have added that language as well, to subsection
32 (3). Moving on to changes to confidentiality. And let me just say, in both of the sections that we just 33 heard from, we are trying to move to a more balanced approach where it moves away from a judges only 34 process to go much more with the two components at the bottom: investigatory and adjudicative. Being 35 judge, lawyer, citizen. We believe that is appropriate. And then we are limiting the Supreme Court's 36 scope of review to an appellate review, not de novo. So just to summarize.

37
38 Moving on to (3)(g)--changes to confidentiality. The current provision in the Constitution has a
39 sweeping confidentiality to include the formal proceedings so that it was only at. The public could not 40 see what was going on in formal proceedings. And we heard many, many stakeholders testify that

1 Colorado was really an outlier in this. We are one of the very few states that does not allow the formal
2 proceeding to be public. We have changed that. Our substitute language changing that section will 3 provide that once formal proceedings are initiated, there is no longer the requirement of confidentiality.
4 Two other areas that we are and, potentially three, that we wanted to address specifically for 5 confidentiality, because it is absolutely critical that the complainant victims be kept apprised of what is 6 going on with their case in the Commission, where the confidentiality would still pertain under this 7 proposed change. Because remember, we're saying when formal proceedings are initiated, which then 8 goes to this new adjudicative, independent body. So that still leaves the cover of confidentiality on the 9 commission work, which we believe is appropriate. However, we want to make crystal clear that the 10 complainant victim must be kept apprised of what is going on in their case, and there was some question
11 about the ability of the Commission or should there be legislation in this area to do that, without 12 clarifying language in the Constitution. So, we are doing the exceptions to confidentiality in that case.
13 We are also making it clear that when there has been a substantiated finding against a judge, that there
14 has been some level of wrongdoing, violation of Canon, etc. And that that substantiated finding has 15 resulted in either private or public discipline. That information must be shared with the judicial 16 performance commission for purposes of retention. And with the judicial nominating commissions, if a 17 district court judge perhaps is seeking a higher level or a county judge or whatever, that, as part of that 18 process in being considered for another judicial position. They must know if the judge in question has 19 been disciplined. And then we have also, because the OARC and OPDJ provides similar judicial 20 oversight evaluations, that that is also appropriate information for those groups to receive in order to 21 properly do their job. And then the final one is just to provide clarification. Right now, and you'll see in 22 the second bill particularly, how critical it is that we, as part of our public transparency and 23 accountability, that we provide data to the public on key metrics on how this process is working. And, in 24 order to predict confidentiality in some of these areas, the way you do that is you aggregate the data. So,
25 you know, number of cases that involved, that were rejected because they were outside the 26 Commission's jurisdiction, they were a matter of law, number of cases involving this type of alleged 27 misconduct, number of cases. We'll get to that in the second bill. That will detail all those out. But the 28 bottom line is, there was concern about, if we do a much more robust data collection and sharing with 29 the public, are we clashing with the constitutional confidentiality rules? So, on this one, we have a
30 placeholder for that as a potential exception to confidentiality in the Constitution. But our expectation in 31 working with our bill drafter and legal staff, that we're going to drill down on that, and, if legally, we are 32 fine to aggregate that data and share it and do it without a change to the Constitution, then that provision 33 would be unnecessary. So just wanted to make that clear.

34

35 The change in rulemaking authority, which resides in paragraph (h), paragraph (3), subsection (h), we 36 are doing a change to this, that we believe takes into account the very important interests of the 37 Commission and the Judicial Branch. So, a rulemaking committee would be formed to work on rules
38 regarding the Commission, that would be chaired by a member of the Commission. Membership, the 39 number has yet to be determined, the size of the committee. But we also wanted to point out that the 40 Supreme Court which their role on the Rules would be obviously as they do with all rulemaking

1 committees, would be a review and approval process. And we know that, you know, there may be,
2 there's a lot of details still to be worked out on this. But that is the basic structure. Other areas that we
3 want to make changes in the rulemaking language, we want to specifically include references in the 4 rulemaking in this area, again, regarding commission operations, to really point out encourage, or 5 perhaps direct, we'll see, rulemaking around complainant, victims' procedural rights in the process. And 6 with regards to confidential reporting, we believe it is appropriate, as you know, get down into the 7 details in those two areas. That that is the kind of, if you're fleshing it out in depth, that that really should 8 be done by rule. And with a thorough discussion by commission by this rulemaking committee that is 9 going to have commission and judicial membership. And, so, we wanted to call that out. We think that's 10 important. We think that belongs, that should be called out in the Constitution, because those are such 11 critical elements to what--encourage and provide a space for safe reporting, and a process that is fair and 12 respectful and without reducing any barriers for complainant victims to move forward. We also would 13 include language that makes it clear, removes any legal issue, that these two areas--confidential
14 reporting and procedural rights of complainant victims--is an area where the Legislature can also take 15 action. In those two areas we wanted to eliminate any potential legal argument that where it's called out
16 in rulemaking, that that would somehow be a separation of powers blockage to the Legislature. Because 17 of the importance in this area.

18
19 And then the final change in the Constitution would deal with the situation where the allegation is 20 against a Supreme Court Justice. The appellate step cannot be the Supreme Court itself. And, so, we set 21 up a new special tribunal just for this purpose. And we looked at other states which have many models.
22 But there are a number of states that have utilized courts of appeal judges and to make them a pool,
23 excluding all court of appeals judges that have any disciplinary action. So, if they've got private or 24 public disciplinary action in their background, they are not part of the pool. But, then, in the remaining
25 pool of court of appeals justices, we would do a random selection of seven. Now, obviously, in all of 26 these areas, whether it's commission members or independent adjudicative body, or now this special
27 tribunal, there is always the process of disqualification because of conflict of interest. We didn't feel like 28 we needed to put that in the Constitution. That is an automatic standing procedure. So, that's why we 29 only called out Court of Appeals judges that have disciplinary actions in their background, they would 30 not be part of the pool, from which the seven drawn randomly or by lot. And everything else would 31 remain the same. If it's an allegation against a Supreme Court Justice. So, you would still have the 32 investigation by the Commission, you would still have the step of the independent adjudicative body,
33 but then the appellate review function would be done not by the Supreme Court, but by this special
34 tribunal of Court of Appeals judges. The same standard of review at the appellate level for the special
35 tribunal would mirror the narrowed standard of review that the Supreme Court has in the other judge
36 cases, right, not de novo, but a true appellate review standard that would also be utilized by the special
37 tribunal. And with that, Mr. Chair, that is the first draft proposal, which would be a concurrent 38 resolution.

39
40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 All right, Madam Vice Chair, thank you for setting that forth and detail. Committee I think before we go
3 on to any other ideas, there's enough there that we should pause, we should see if there's any questions
4 or discussion about what Vice Chair Carver has just set forth. And then, you know, we'll proceed to 5 other measures. So, members, you've heard, you've heard the suggestions as put forth by Vice Chair
6 Carver. Everybody has the written document. Any questions or discussion on any of the elements for the 7 first measure that the committee would move forward? Senator Gonzales.

8

9 Sen. Gonzales

10 Thank you, Mr. Chair, Madam Vice Chair, I want to appreciate the work that has gone into this 11 proposal, recognizing that it's a culmination of several conversations that we informally have had over 12 the iterative process of these different committee hearings. I'd like to just lift up that I'm very 13 appreciative of the changes to confidentiality and also the exceptions that you've outlined. And I'd like to 14 lift up the I am also just appreciative of that new subsection (3)(i) that you've walked us through. I think
15 that I will, I may have questions once it's drafted about specifics. But the outline that you've put forward
16 today, in order to give Mr. Imel and the rest of the team in all or less are the guidelines to move forward, 17 I think is correct. So, I'm just appreciative of the conversation and where we're at thus far.

18

19 Rep. Weissman

20 Okay, thank you, committee. Any other comments, Rep. Bacon.

21

22 Rep. Bacon

23 Thank you. And I also truly appreciate your diligence. And, quite frankly, the people on this committee
24 and helping us all get to this place. I do also want to talk about the piece around confidentiality,
25 particularly in sharing the reporting on trends. I actually think this may show up in a couple of other 26 places. And it might actually be something that we can really do to strengthen not only internal but 27 external accountability, on the things that we have been seeing by way of culture. And you know, there 28 is something to be said about figuring out what could be identifiable or non-identifiable information in 29 that space. But to the extent that we can really figure out how to put a spotlight on the patterns, I think
30 will strengthen a lot of the concerns we've had from community as well. That's kind of like this ancillary
31 narrative to transparency, to understanding, you know, what is the culture like? What are the problem
32 areas or potential for adjustments, and quite frankly, to ask what will be done about that over time that 33 people can keep track of. So, I do believe we've been pulling data in different ways, and the Commission
34 has been pulling data in different ways. So, I'm also curious around if there are any boundaries on 35 confidentiality, although I might suspect that that may not be the case, since we're doing some of these 36 things. But yes, I just wanted to flag that and to figure out how that could be consistent in other spaces.
37 And thinking about which data pieces we'd like to be consistent across the Branch across the 38 Commission, and any other kind of office or procedures that we set up.

39

40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Thank you. And on the point of confidentiality, and really to the existing language, I mean, what Rep.
3 Carver has framed as our invitation as a General Assembly to invite the People of the State to update the 4 Constitution. There is some research that Mr. Imel and the office had begun to do, interpreting the 5 existing language, which, even if I think we were to change the Constitution, as we seek to do here, with 6 voter approval would be informative about how everybody would be thinking about that kind of 7 language going forward, we need to get some things in writing, and cases pulled from Lexis and sent to 8 us by way of follow up, but that's something that we can share with members of the committee who 9 want to go deeper on that point. Committee, any other comments about the proposal, the one that Rep
10 Carver has set forth? Senator Gardner.

11
12 Sen. Gardner

13 Thank you. Let me just second the comments with my colleagues. And thank the Chair and Vice Chair
14 for what it is to get to and we'll talk about the other proposals, but a single page front and back of 15 legislative proposals that we have, I hope, and I think have developed some consensus around for all of 16 us, a majority of us in any case, and that was no small task. And, so, thank you for doing that. And I
17 look forward to the next proposal.

18
19 Rep. Weissman

20 Thank you, committee. Any other comments on proposal one? If there are none, we can consider that 21 submitted. I know that Mr. Imel has been taking notes, and we will get him more detail. The next step 22 would be a draft from LLS and we would then all look at that and go from there.

23
24 Sen. Van Winkle

25 Was that a motion?

26
27 Rep. Weissman

28 Not needed at this point per guidance from Ms. Jenson. With that I can proceed to propose, I'll just call it
29 measure 2. What Rep. Carver proposed was in the way of a constitutional amendment. And this would 30 be a regular old bill, in all the subject matter that we've grappled with, you know, there's the question, is 31 it more appropriately set forth in the Constitution? Or is it more appropriately set forth in the statutes?
32 The answer is, we need a bit of both. And the architecture of what I'm going to propose here, will really 33 ride along with what the Vice Chair Carver has just laid out. As I think about it, the Constitution is the 34 place to speak broadly, and to set down fundamental principles that will stand up to time. And the 35 statutes are the place to flush out details. Because of what we're inheriting in Section 23, it is necessary
36 to update some of those provisions. But we don't want to bury so much detail there that some successor
37 committee to ours is back at this in a few years. So, with that, I'll read out a series of elements that I
38 think could go into a bill, but I'll just call it measure 2. And then I might, as the Vice Chair did say a 39 little bit about, the why for each.

1 The first element and we've heard testimony, and this would be to codify the subpoena power of the 2 Commission. We've heard about this. It's in the rules now. It's important enough that it should be set
3 forth statutorily that subpoena power would be tied to individual cases, there wouldn't be any free-
4 floating inquiry, but where a specific matter has come to the Commission, in the usual process would be
5 proper to issue a subpoena. So, that that could be fleshed out. In current parlance, you know, we could 6 talk in terms of a request for evaluation. Specifically, this would also include a request instituted by the 7 Commission itself, we might say sua sponte. For those who love Latin, that that's important because that 8 may be how a matter comes to the Commission and the ball gets rolling. We would clarify that both the 9 Commission and the new adjudicative entity, the separate entity that our Vice Chair Carver spoke of that 10 would find its origin in the Constitution. Both entities have subpoena authority. We realize and we heard 11 some testimony about this over the prior hearings, that there may be disputes about the scope of or 12 compliance with the subpoena. We would need to flesh that out. But for now, we just want to notice that 13 we need some process for that. That's the first element.

14
15 The second element would be under the broad theme of safe reporting. This ties into a lot of what Vice 16 Chair Carver spoke of in terms of measure 1, we need either to invite the voters to pass updated
17 constitutional text or resolve through legal research that there isn't any issue, even with the existing 18 language. But the point here is really, we've heard powerfully, especially last hearing, that confidential
19 reporting and anonymous reporting, if that is the wish of the complainant are integral to a functioning
20 process. So, we need to set that forth in statute. We've also heard and this was set forth in detail in 21 writing, particularly by the comments from the Women's Bar and the other associations with which they 22 worked, that there's room to have a more modern process. There are, complaints should be accepted
23 online. Somebody wants to mail in a complaint or fax in a complaint, you know, that's okay, too. But we 24 can we don't need the formalities of the mail or notarization or such. We even heard and we don't need
25 to get into this detail in the statute. But there's even specific software out there in the world. That is 26 purpose built for receiving and handling anonymous complaints. We heard about that last time. So, those 27 are the broad strokes of number 2, on safe reporting.

28
29 The next element would be closely related to that. And this goes to my point to our witnesses from a
30 little bit earlier this morning. It is important that we set forth in statute specific rights that complainants
31 or victims, if you will, have throughout the complaint process. And again, we either need clarity in the 32 constitutional text by means of the concurrent resolution that Vice Chair Carver spoke of, or at least to 33 determine by exhaustive legal research that we don't need that constitutional textual backdrop. But the 34 point is to make sure that the complaint process is fully explained at the beginning to each complainant,
35 including the right of confidential reporting. And related to that requirement to maintain confidentiality.
36 Even as we have talked about moving that point where we go from confidential to public, there is still 37 going to be a zone of confidentiality, and where complainants are apprised of what's going on in their 38 life. We do need that to still respect the broad requirements of confidentiality, that's important for due
39 process reasons. We will call on the Commission to have points of contact. We realize they may need
40 more FTE for this fiscal process will surface that, but the Commission should have points of contact to

1 keep complainants apprised of the status and where they are. And these things can take time. We've 2 heard today, we've heard previously that there can be just frustration or confusion on the part of
3 complainant when they don't know what's going on. And we want the Commission to have the resources
4 to keep folks apprised. And in particular, that would include ongoing updates and, specifically, notice of 5 outcomes and sort of specific turning points if you will, in both the investigative and the adjudicative
6 processes. And finally, where a complaint is rejected because the Commission determines that it's 7 outside of its jurisdiction, it's not raising an issue. One of the ones set forth in the Constitution, but 8 maybe it's appellate in nature, or the remedy is to us here at the General Assembly to change the 9 underlying laws that should be explained clearly to each complainant. So that's the substance of the third 10 element.

11
12 The next one. And we've spoken about this, and I believe this is important, is broadly data collection.
13 Again, we need to make sure that this is consistent with the constitutional provisions or to have legal 14 guidance that that we can proceed without constitutional change. So, we want the Commission to collect
15 certain data elements and be sure to include them in their annual reporting. And to put this data online in 16 a more contemporary, searchable way. We appreciate the Commission may need resources for website
17 overhaul, it's on us to provide those resources. Fundamentally, this will involve documented compliance
18 with the complainant. Procedural rights that we just talked about in the prior element. And we would 19 like to see aggregated data without personally identifying characteristics. For the following: where 20 complaints were dismissed due to lack of jurisdiction, when complaints were not dismissed and were 21 investigated, what results, you know, grouped by outcomes, when complaints went to the adjudication 22 phase, how many, as much as possible, what outcomes, broad numbers of inquiries that were 23 substantiated versus not. And then summary data on disciplinary outcomes. And we know that the 24 Commission can render some things like that. So, we've heard repeatedly from members of the 25 committee from interested organizations and the public that we want to see more aggregate data about 26 what's going on. We appreciate that there is some in the Commission's reports, but we want to build on 27 that. And of course, all of this has to comport with the rules of confidentiality, and must respect the 28 desires of complainants or victims to remain confidential. That's important. So, we will have some 29 details here to work out. But those are the broad elements. One thing that we want to continue to grapple
30 with, and all members of the committee can weigh in on this. We have existing language at 24-72-401
31 and 402. That actually sets forth a misdemeanor penalty for revealing information about a Commission
32 matter. That is a criminal penalty. We certainly appreciate that. The confidentiality is important. And I
33 believe that we can find within attorney ethics and judge ethics provisions to enforce that. But we 34 appreciate the concern, including civilians who wouldn't be under either of those ethics codes. No firm
35 resolution here, but we want to grapple with it. Because I think we heard last week that there is 36 potentially a powerful disincentive, operating here by the mere fact of this. So TBD where that lands, 37 but it would be looked at in this measure.

38
39 And, then, finally, and our drafting office can help with this. We have set forth in 201 and all the other
40 parts of 201 that other than creating this interim committee, a statutory framework. And the last point

1 here is just that we're aware that we might need conforming amendments with what was laid down in the 2 statutes from that bill. So, it syncs up with what we're talking about here. And we would invite the input
3 from Mr. Imel and other drafters to help us with that. So, those would be the elements of what I'm 4 calling measure 2. And I'll open to questions. Madam Vice Chair.

5
6 Rep. Carver

7 Thank you, Mr. Chair. And I just want to make a few comments because you're seeing issues repeated.
8 First addressed in the concurrent resolution, and then in the statutory language. And as we were, as the 9 Chair and I were working through this, and then, you know, going out and consulting with our other 10 committee members and stakeholders. We wanted to ensure a clear legal path to be able to keep the 11 complainant / victim apprised. So, with or without the concurrent resolution, if you read the scope of 12 confidentiality that is currently in the Constitution, there is a legal question there about keeping, to the 13 extent to which, the complainant could be kept apprised with any level of detail during the Commission
14 process. And this has led to complainant victims feeling like they're left, left out in the cold, left in the 15 dark, don't know what's going on. It's very frustrating. The Commission understands that frustration, but 16 is concerned about that legal issue, flowing from the confidentiality provision in the Constitution. We 17 also believe that the interest in this issue, which is a passion of mine personally, that we wanted to not 18 only have a clear legal path to address this in a robust way. But we recognize that this is the kind of 19 issue that should be addressed, we hope will be addressed, in some detail by the rulemaking committee.
20 But also is a proper subject for the Legislature. And, so, the language which at first may seem a bit
21 confusing in this measure 2. So, what does it mean upon passage of the CR or resolution of separation of 22 powers? Well, of course, the CR will not go to the voters until 2024, correct? So, there was differing 23 views on the committee on what the current state of the law is, does, in fact, the current language on 24 confidentiality in the Constitution bar the Legislature from going forward in this area. Gray area. So,
25 that is why the language is upon passage of the CR or if our legal staff are able to determine that, in fact,
26 there is no legal barrier. I mean, we have rulemaking under the now Commission and Judicial Branch.
27 And if the Legislature took it up, is there a separation of powers issue? So that's what we're saying, if 28 there is a legal issue there, which I personally believe there is, some of us believe there is. But you
29 know, out of 100 lawyers, you might get a lot of different opinions, right? That we put that in there so
30 that if the legal research comes down, says, look, there is no barrier to the Legislature going forward in 31 2023. If they're so inclined, they don't have to wait for the CR. But, if in fact, there is a legal issue, we 32 wanted to ensure that sufficient language was put in the Constitution that clears that issue up totally.
33 And we believe the importance of these issues, that it is proper to put that in our fundamental law, the 34 Constitution, as a proper subject for rulemaking in and of itself. But these are, in fact, fundamental 35 issues, both confidential reporting, which then you see reflected in the statutory measure under safe
36 reporting. It's the same to a certain extent, it's the same issue. If it is a subject of a rulemaking by the 37 now proposed rulemaking committee. And now the Legislature wants to flesh that out. Do we have a
38 separation of powers issue? Well, let's just fix that right now. Right, that's the idea. So that we clear
39 away any concern. And so, even though this language that we've read and have in writing, because even 40 as detail oriented as the Chair and I tend to be, and our colleagues can attest to the annoyance of that.

1 We wanted to make sure we got the language right. And so obviously, we are reading. And, so, I don't
2 know if that was a question or an issue for any members of the committee, how we were trying to work
3 these two measures together, and why you're seeing this kind of contingent language written in. And 4 same thing with on data collection, which I think is that and making the formal proceedings public.
5 Those are the two biggest elements for public accountability and transparency. So, the public knows
6 what's going on, right? The public knows this process, once you go to formal proceedings, and this data
7 collection piece, that the complainants' rights are in fact being complied with. See above section and 8 again, we welcome the committee and stakeholders' further discussion in all of these areas. But then 9 aggregate data, what are the key metrics that we need for the Legislature but more importantly, the 10 public to know how this process is working? What is happening? And we think we've hit the key
11 metrics. There may be more that is subject to discussion. But how else do you accomplish public
12 accountability and transparency if you do not provide a window that is data based into how this process
13 is working and reaching back to the Constitution. Remember, we put that placeholder provision also 14 under exceptions to confidentiality. Do we need to put something in the Constitution to be able to 15 provide this robust data collection and providing it to the public? We don't believe, well let me speak for 16 myself. I don't think the current confidentiality provisions of the Constitution as currently written or as 17 proposed, bar us from doing aggregate data, as with personal identifying information blocked, so that it's 18 a judge and a victim. And this was the nature of the complaint, this is what happened. Especially for 19 those complaints that end at the Commission stage, right? Once it goes into formal proceeding, then 20 that's public. And their identities potentially are public, although we're also looking at is there a method,
21 you know, as discussed, what does due process require at the formal proceeding? So, if it looks like 22 we're being somewhat redundant, that's not by accident, it's by design, identifying the issues where 23 there's legal uncertainty, establishing the appropriate language in the Constitution to make it absolutely
24 clear, as well as the legislative authority. Although if we don't find an independent legal basis to go
25 forward on safe reporting and victims' rights, that that runs into confidentiality, until we get the CR
26 passed, right, then that obviously, would affect the timing of when the Legislature can take up these 27 matters. So, I don't know if any of that was clarifying or helpful, but the language is somewhat cryptic.
28 And I just wanted to kind of explain the broader context, in these different areas, subject areas that are 29 appearing in both measures.

30

31 Rep. Weissman

32 Alright, thank you, committee. Other questions or comments on this? Rep. Bacon.

33

34 Rep. Bacon

35 Thank you, and thank you for that Rep. Carver. I just wanted to be able to at least share a few thoughts
36 on the point I made earlier about sharing as well as collecting data. I am curious when we get to a place
37 in drafting, how we'll talk about where the data is reported, and to whom. Not only how can we perhaps 38 think through any language on accessibility via a website, and all of those other issues, perhaps around
39 language for those who need some support with accessibility? But, also, I am curious in and I will say

1 for some other reasons dealing with the culture within Judiciary, on how they might be able to report to 2 the Legislature. Oh, go ahead.

3

4 Rep. Carver

5 No, I beg your pardon. Go ahead.

6

7 Rep. Bacon

8 No, I mean, the finishing thought there was even thinking through SMART, you know, what kind of 9 information could we also support with as the Legislature and looking through the data and also in 10 supporting with the transparency of what's going on? The last thing I will just say before, as well, I was 11 hoping that we could also think through data around judicial districts and complaints. And I do know 12 that we really have to think through disaggregated data by way of some of those confidentiality issues.
13 You know, for example, in schools, we don't put data out of this less than 15 Kids, right, I do think that 14 there might be something that might be helpful, around disaggregated data, particularly when it comes to 15 gender identity, or some of the issues that we've identified through the reports on when it comes to the 16 broader issues of feeling safe, who feels safe, who doesn't feel safe? Who knows? What policies and 17 procedures are and whatnot, if there's any way to think through any possible spaces in which data could 18 be disaggregated in the broadest of sense, at the same time to be able to help identify some of the 19 potential culture issues, if that makes sense. So just wanted to start there and hear some thoughts.

20

21 Rep. Weissman

22 Madam Vice Chair.

23

24 Rep. Carver

25 Thank you, Mr. Chair. And my apologies for interrupting Rep. Bacon. On the data collection piece. The 26 very first sub-bullet is this data is done in the Annual Report, but it must also be posted on the web in a
27 searchable format. So, that and, you know, we heard that during testimony, I think you perhaps made a 28 comment as well, to make the data truly useful to the public. It needs to be in a searchable format,
29 instead of people having to sit down with Annual Reports for the last 10 years and pull the data out and 30 do their own collation of statistics to see what is happening with this type of complaint by subject, what 31 is happening with discipline, what is happening with complaints being rejected. And, so, again, an area I
32 care about, I know you care about deeply, as do the other committee members, that if we're going to 33 have true accessibility and accountability, we have to provide the data in a manner that facilitates that.
34 Right. And so certainly, if there are further thoughts from you and the other committee members or 35 stakeholders on language beyond what's in the draft proposal, we would welcome that. To get to that 36 goal, as best as we can. Thank you.

37

38 Rep. Weissman

39 Okay, thank you committee. Further discussion on what I'm calling measure 2, Senator Moreno?

40

1 Sen. Moreno

2 Thank you, Mr. Chair. This may be worked out in drafting, but is measure 2 contemplated to be that if
3 sections of measure 2 would be effective only if the Concurrent Resolution is adopted, and then other
4 pieces go into implementation sooner than that or I just wasn't sure if the measure in its entirety, takes 5 effect only if the Concurrent Resolution is adopted.

6
7 Rep. Weissman

8 Thank you. And I think that's a great question and goes to the core of what Vice Chair Carver was 9 speaking to, to some extent, I think what effective clauses attached to what substantive elements of 10 measure 2 is going to be as TBD pending a little bit more legal input from LLS we've begun that 11 conversation with Mr. Imel, and we may want a verdict memorialized into a more formal memo from 12 the office. My hope as to the substance of measure 2 is that we can proceed as quickly as possible for all 13 the reasons that we've heard. However, if it is the legal judgment of our nonpartisan staff that it is not
14 proper to do so until the CR is passed and proclaimed effective, then the bill will still reflect if it is a
15 legal judgment, that we have the space for at least some of these elements to proceed on the foundation
16 of the existing constitution, then I'm imagining something like a more regular, you know, a petition
17 clause, maybe a safety clause TBD. On that where we have guidance to support that. And frankly, the 18 answer may be a little bit mixed. I think these are important subjects that we're dealing with, I would 19 want to see them spring into effect as quickly as possible. But we need a little bit more guidance on 20 exactly when there could be. Members other questions or discussion on Measure 2? Rep. Bacon.

21
22 Rep. Bacon

23 I did want to know, perhaps, where you may think about the conversations around anonymity and 24 anonymous reporting, if it may be here, or elsewhere. So, perhaps, you know, we don't have necessarily 25 the answers here, but it was raised. I think it'd be helpful if we could provide clarity, at some point to our 26 community since we talked about the differences between anonymity and confidentiality.

27
28 Rep. Weissman

29 Maybe I'll speak to that as I think I can, and I'll invite the Vice Chair to do the same. I think we heard
30 powerfully that anonymous reporting is really important. And I think that we need a system to support
31 that, you know, sounds like their software can go out and buy and fiscal will surface that but I want to 32 say very plainly, I believe we need to be explicit that anonymous reporting is allowed if that's what the 33 person making the report wants to do. You know, right now, that is, it's allowed. It's more implied in the 34 Rules, I think. We want to shift from implied to express. You know, I will point out there's an issue. And 35 I think we need to resolve this down the road. If an anonymous complaint gets all the way to the 36 adjudicative phase, and now we're public now there's a tension between anonymity and the declaration
37 we're making here and measure one that that adjudicative phase should be public. And I think there's due 38 process issues and the respondent having to confront an anonymous complainant. I don't know how we 39 sort all of that out. But on the front end, the idea that one should be explicitly empowered by all of what 40 we're doing here, constitution, statute, and rules that may follow. I think that it's very important that

1 there be anonymous reporting, and then where something is anonymous. I mean, there's almost by
2 definition, no issue of breaking that anonymity in terms of surfacing that in an aggregate way. So, that's 3 kind of what's on the top of my head, Madame Vice Chair, if you wanted to say anything further.

4
5 Rep. Carver

6 I think you covered it. An obvious place where it could be included is under safe reporting. And 7 certainly, we did discuss both. So, but for purposes here, we wanted to lead off with confidential and,
8 and perhaps another bill, next bill may or may not touch on this area as well. So, more discussion, I
9 think.

10
11 Rep. Weissman

12 Rep. Bacon, further comments, good for now? Okay. Committee, any further discussion? All right.
13 Seeing none. Again, I know Mr. Imel has been taking notes. If there's no further discussion or questions
14 we can consider Measure 2 submitted for drafting. Mr. Imel question, comment?

15
16 Conrad Imel

17 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Conrad Imel, Office for Legislative Legal Services. We do need approval of the 18 committee for drafts. So, majority of the members of the committee, Ms. Jenson can perhaps advise you 19 on if you need a formal vote or without objection.

20
21 Rep. Weissman

22 We can just see if there's objection. Committee objection to measure 2 as it's been discussed? Alright.
23 Seeing no objection, we'll consider that approval to proceed with measure 2, as discussed. Senator
24 Gardner.

25
26 Sen. Gardner

27 Did we need to designate points of contact for the two drafts?

28
29 Rep. Weissman

30 I believe that we do. My thought was that Vice Chair Carver and I would be the nominal points of 31 contact with Mr. Imel. Of course, everybody will be involved as soon as there's a draft to start looking 32 at. But for the purposes of the office, if it's okay with the committee Vice Chair Caver and I will run 33 point on both of these.

34
35 Okay, so, members, that's two. I wanted to float one more thing and I think it's worth a little bit more
36 discussion here, because the following subject, although important, I think we just haven't had as much
37 occasion to chew on. And that's the idea of an Ombuds Office. This came up pretty powerfully last 38 week. Maybe wasn't talked about as much in the writings that have been before us and in prior hearings
39 but I think this is an important element of an overall functional system. And I would like to see us
40 grapple with it. I don't have as much to read into the record or in writing you know, to handout. So, I

1 want to frame this and I hope the committee would support the idea, and we can see what members want
2 to run point on it going forward. It may be that we have to get more detail to Mr. Imel. I believe that
3 we've given the office enough to proceed with the first two. We'll see where the discussion goes, what
4 your notes are, we may need to use the three day follow up window here. But to me, this writes along
5 with safe reporting. I don't consider myself an Ombuds pro. But you know, such as I've been exposed to 6 testimony and the survivor advocacy space. I mean, this concept in workplaces of all stripes, I think is 7 pretty important. It was testified to, I think very aptly last week, that there are power disparities. And 8 we've grappled with that in our workplace. It's true in the Judicial Branch as well. So, the proposal for 9 what I'll just call measure 3 here would be that we have an ombuds function that is accessible to, at the 10 very least, employees of the Judicial Branch, and we'd have to define the scope there a little bit. There 11 would be information provision, would be one core function, there would be receipt of complaints, and 12 then there would be a requirement, and we'd flush out the details to pass that to the Commission on the 13 question whether it's a proper complaint, whether it's within the jurisdiction. That wouldn't really be for 14 the ombuds to make, I think they need to err on the side of getting the information out the door to the 15 people who are charged with figuring that out. And it may be that, you know, they have a co-equal
16 portal to some anonymous reporting software, and so forth. This is where I think we'd really want to 17 lean in with some of our witness groups, like the Women's Bar, like CCASA, like others who have 18 grappled with these issues and how to frame them to get it right. I do believe that this function, just call 19 it an ombuds function, is within our scope. I think it goes to questions of public confidence.
20 Accessibility of information goes to safe reporting. Where it's housed, FTE levels, budget levels are 21 things we have to work out. But I'll stop there for now. But my hope is that the committee would agree 22 to at least take the next step forward from today, see how far we can get by the 9th and then see if we 23 can bash something out by September 30 that we can all agree on. And I'll turn it to Senator Gardner.

24

25 Sen. Gardner

26 Thank you, Mr. Chair. And I agree that, based on the testimony we've heard and the concerns expressed 27 that we need for lack of a better lack of a better term, someone or some set of persons to perform this 28 Ombuds function. I think one of the reasons we don't have a proposal on the table right now is that in all
29 of that discussion, it was never clear to me exactly who the ombudsperson would serve. What did
30 members of the committee think? I think I heard you indicate that that was someone that would serve
31 employees and would be an internal personnel function. But then I've heard some discussion of maybe 32 there's a different person at the Commission that would serve complainants and so we need to get some 33 clarity around that going forward, and I'll just stop there. And maybe people can say what their thoughts 34 are on this?

35

36 Rep. Weissman

37 Yeah, thank you, Senator. I agree, we do need some clarity. I think that we need to have a personnel
38 function, half an FTE, an FTE who knows at the Commission to make good on, and this goes back to 39 Measure 2 to make good on complainant procedural rights. And that, you know, that's a small subset, we 40 have maybe hundreds per year flowing. And the purpose of that personnel function at the Commission is

1 to serve those ends that we've discussed. In terms of the universe of people who might flow to this
2 ombuds person. I think the first core universe is current, possibly recently, former judicial employees.
3 Everyone from probation officers, bailiffs, clerks, everybody. That's a more defined universe. That's 4 several 1000 people. We had some talk last week. And my recollection is we kind of move fluidly back
5 and forth between an ombuds function to the whole public and an ombuds function within the Branch
6 itself. I think both are worthy of grappling with. I think the more important of the two, and probably the 7 easier to wrestle to the ground, in the relatively limited time we have is the function visa vie employees.
8 We know that complaints can arise from there, we want those to be sort of received and trapped and 9 dealt with in an appropriate way. You know, folks from the Branch have pointed out to us that there are 10 some attempts, maybe not quite at ombuds service provision, but at least at public information and 11 demystifying the litigation process, via Sherlocks, which is an acronym for something I can't remember
12 right now, but self-help folks, particularly who are there for unrepresented litigants. There's a Chief
13 Justice Directive on that that goes to the tune of a couple of pages and it was sent. I don't know if all
14 members have it, but I think I got it. I think the Vice Chair got it. We can certainly share that. That's 15 public record. We'd have to grapple with how a public ombuds aspect would relate to that. Certainly,
16 we'd be in conversations with Judicial about it. But if we had to narrow our scope for this first step, I
17 think that personally speaking for nobody else, I think it should revolve around employees based on 18 what all we've heard. So, that's where I'm at for now. I want to see if any other members want to weigh 19 in on the idea of an ombuds. Rep. Bacon.

20

21 Rep. Bacon

22 So I am, I am interested in doing this work, I've had the, I'm going to call it privilege of trying to set up
23 an ombuds office for another department. And I do think that, you know, the thing that we should orient 24 around with the ombuds office is, again, the problems that we're trying to solve for, which we have 25 named, which we've had constituents name, we've had ILG name, particularly around the culture pieces,
26 and finding safety in a space to be able to come forward. And, so, the way an ombuds office supports 27 that is by creating a neutral space or a space that feels at least freer of fear, and that having to report to 28 the people that one may have harmed you or to the system that may have harmed you, but also being 29 able to collect and again, the data pieces. So, part of the reason why I was asking is that the ombuds, 30 also in their neutrality could also help as well shed some sort of light spotlights on key areas and 31 organizational culture that may need to be shared. And, so, in regards to what you shared, Senator
32 Gardner, I agree. You know, the first two questions are, who does ombuds serve? Internal or external?
33 And then who do they report to? And that reporting piece is also critical to that neutrality. And, so, I 34 think we have to think about particularly, not only connection to agency, but were kind of the 35 management of that office as a function when it comes to budget lines. And all of those things sit as 36 well. I do think key questions are where does the ombuds work fall as a matter of procedural timeline,
37 when it comes to complaints? What are the investigatory lanes? What kind of information can or cannot 38 be shared? And what kind of powers does the Ombuds office have? So, if we're talking about subpoena
39 in one place? What does that mean in another, and then the last piece is really figuring out as well. What 40 you can do afterwards, you know, after an ombuds, office is up and running? Where is the authority that

1 the Ombuds Office has not only in sharing some cultural pieces, but might be able to actually have a
2 touch point in changing culture within an agency? So, you know, this could be the space in which they
3 also can report out on how is confidentiality working? How is anonymity working? Is there a space for 4 people to provide that feedback on those procedures, to then create another, another iterative cycle for
5 the agency to make some sort of adjustments. So, I just wanted to be able to share a few of those insights
6 that might be helpful to organize the conversation just as a as a starting point. But also, I think it's just
7 been made clear that our constituencies, feel like they need a place. And so, for what it's worth, you
8 know I've also seen setting up an ombuds office, perhaps not forever, but it's an integral part of culture
9 shift for a particular timeline, until you can be ensured the space is safe. So, I do think that it would be 10 incredibly responsive of us to figure this out. I do think regard that, I think where we decide, or for 11 whom the ombuds serves, determines the scope of this office. And, so, if we want to also think about 12 potential depth of resources or capacities, that's critical. Especially when it's dealing with external or 13 litigants or complainants, you have to clearly define the scope. But I think that might be a lot of people, 14 compared to X number of employees. So, I'll stop there.

15

16 Rep. Weissman

17 Thank you, Rep. Bacon. I appreciate all those comments, particularly as to scope you know, employees
18 let's round up and call it 5000, maybe closer to 4000. You know, we're about 6 million in the whole
19 State. So, several orders of magnitude there. Committee other questions, discussion on what I'll call 20 Measure 3, an ombuds function? Rep. Lynch.

21

22 Rep. Lynch

23 Thank you Mr. Chair. So, how I think makes more sense to proceed with this is to kind of see what 24 shakes out on Measure 2 sub 3. Because that it seems like, you know, I would like to see some structure
25 around what that looks like, and then we fill in the gaps with an ombudsman program. Does that make 26 sense? And I will be glad to work with Rep. Bacon on getting to the bottom of that.

27

28 Rep. Weissman

29 Thank you. I appreciate that. I see personally, I see these things rolling in the same direction, at least. As 30 we move forward to drafting I think, you know, for the sake of the office and you know, for our own
31 division of the considerable labor in front of us. Different folks will be point on different bills. We 32 definitely will need to stay in touch and the drafts as they and move forward have cognizance of each
33 other. Vice Chair Carver's point and a discussion previously was, compared to everything else we've laid
34 out, there's just the most conceptual work to do here. So, maybe have it in its own bill, and we'll see how 35 far we can get. We do have the deadline of the 9th after which the text has to lock, we can continue to 36 work. I hope we do continue to work particularly on this concept subsequent to the 9th and see if we can 37 make more progress. And if we have to effectuate that by amendment, so be it. Alright, so I'm hearing
38 interest both from Rep. Bacon and Rep. Lynch to run point on this. I appreciate that. Members other 39 discussion on Measure 3 concerning an ombuds? Alright, if not, seeing no objection to proceeding in 40 this fashion. Mr. Imel, Rep. Bacon, Rep. Lynch will be the points of contact on this measure. We can

1 consider that submitted. That is 3. Members, did anyone else want to raise any other issues as far as 2 going forward from this point? Question or comment, Rep. Bacon.

3
4 Rep. Bacon

5 Okay. I was curious, I did want to put this kind of on the record just for us to maybe circle back to with 6 some ancillary issues that we've heard throughout this. One of which particularly is around looking at 7 tolling and some of the statutes of limitations on some of these issues. We heard this, I think, in our first 8 couple of committee meetings around delay of investigation or length of investigation that aligns to 9 statutes of limitations. So, I just wanted to raise that and figure out if that may fit here, if that might, not 10 for us to necessarily discuss now, but later and figure out where they may land because I didn't see us
11 come across that. And we have a lot of reports that mentioned that issue. So, thank you.

12
13 Rep. Weissman

14 All right. Thank you. Senator Gardner.

15
16 Sen. Gardner

17 Thank you. Just to comment. I, as we've gone through this process, I have pondered whether the system
18 we have, in Colorado of the Chief Justice acting as the executive of the Judicial Department, which is 19 the model that we've had and have used for quite some time, is the appropriate one, or whether the 20 model that is used by the Administrative Office of the U.S. courts, where there's an administrative 21 council made up of judicial officers and so forth, who, to whom, the state court administrator or the 22 court administrator, and all of those folks report is the right model. I don't think that it is that that 23 question and issue was particularly within the purview of this committee in the scope. But I am going to,
24 providence willing, be around for a couple more years. And I'm interested in that issue and thinking
25 about it. And I just found people who are interested in these things are paying attention. I wanted to put 26 that on the record that I'm thinking about it and looking at it and asking if we have the best model or 27 whether we need to change which would require a concurrent resolution as well. But I don't want to get 28 it mixed up in this.

29
30 Rep. Weissman

31 Thank you, Senator. You know, I guess I've grappled with similarly, if only in my own head. And I
32 think I don't mean to put words in anybody's mouth. But I think the Supreme Court itself, and at the 33 SCA level, they've had discussions about that, you know, a reality. We all go through school, we learn
34 about the three branches of government. You know, we think of judges and justices as deciders in black 35 robes. The reality is, they're also bosses, their employers, they are fountains of organizational culture.
36 It's really that that we're talking about here. So, I agree. I think that's without what we're about here. But 37 I will just second that. I've been turning those things over in my mind as well. I'll be without resolution
38 at this point. Committee. Any other questions or comments? All right, if there's nothing else for today,
39 so we have come to the end of our agenda. We have three measures that have been framed for Mr. Imel.
40 Points of contact are identified. As a reminder, our next meeting will be September 30. We'll keep in

1 touch as to exactly what room and exactly what time and whatnot. Our mission at that point is for more
2 recorded votes on advancing things forward. Amendments would be proper at that point. Our interim
3 deadline, and there won't be a meeting on the 9th, but we have an internal drafting deadline for this
4 purpose of September 9, we will need to work aggressively with Mr. Imel and other drafters who are 5 assigned to these matters. To get the text into the best shape that we can, we will keep in touch with each
6 other and external stakeholders. The text does have to lock from the point of September 9 on. nd at that 7 point, it's just amendments in the usual fashion. And we should all keep in touch on that too. With that,
8 if there's nothing further. One last chance. Sorry, Mr. Imel, please go ahead.

9
10 Conrad Imel

11 Thank you, Mr. Chair. I'm just want to remind Representative Bacon, Representative Lynch. They have 12 three days to provide drafting information for the ombudsman bill. So, please send that over. You can 13 send that to me. We'll get drafters assigned today. I'm not sure exactly who it will be. But if nothing else,
14 you can send it to me. And I'll forward it to the right person. For all of the folks who are serving as point
15 of contacts on the bills. The September 9 deadline is a little different than the bill paper deadline. We of 16 course would like you to approve the drafts. If you don't, by the end of the day on September 9, they will 17 be deemed finalized, we'll remove any questions, finalize it for fiscal notes and send it. It will be made
18 public at that point. Also, a reminder that once those drafts are finalized, there, the fiscal notes staff does 19 have the authority to share those with agencies so they will not remain confidential at that point. All 20 right.

21
22 Rep. Weissman

23 Mr. Imel, thank you understanding we probably need a bit more on Ombuds. Do you have enough for 24 present purposes for measure 1 and measure 2?

25
26 Conrad Imel

27 Yes, I think so. Yes.

28
29 Rep. Weissman

30 Okay. Very good. All right. So, everybody, we should look for more from Mr. Imel or others in the 31 drafting office. If there are no further comments, again, we'll keep in touch about details for our next 32 hearing on 9/30. Senator Gardner is wondering if we'd like to spend another couple hours chewing on 33 things after lunch, but maybe we won't put that one to a vote. All right with that, members, thank you for 34 the discussion this morning. You know, I don't know if we're at the end of the beginning or what but we 35 know that we have work in front of us and we will apply ourselves to it. Until then, the interim 36 committee on judicial discipline is adjourned.

Appendix 27(s)(v)

[No Hearing Held]

Transcript of *Hearing before the Interim
Comm. on Jud. Discipline, Colo. Leg.,
August 30, 2022;

Appendix 27(s)(vi)

Transcript of *Hearing before the Interim
Comm. on Jud. Discipline, Colo. Leg.,
September 30, 2022;

Colorado Legislature Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline:
September 30, 2022 Hearing

1 Rep. Weissman

2 The interim committee on judicial discipline created pursuant to Senate Bill 22-201 will come to order.
3 Ms. Jenson, if you would please call the roll.

4

5 Juliann Jenson

6 Senators and Representatives. Bacon.

7

8 Rep. Bacon

9 Present.

10

11 Juliann Jenson

12 Gardner

13

14 Sen. Gardner

15 Here

16

17 Juliann Jenson

18 Gonzales

19

20 Sen. Gonzales

21 Present

22

23 Juliann Jenson

24 Lynch

25

26 Rep. Lynch

27 Here

28

29 Juliann Jenson

30 Moreno

31

32 Sen. Moreno

33 Here

34

35

36 Juliann Jenson

1 Van Winkle

2

3 Sen. Van Winkle

4 Here

5

6 Juliann Jenson

7 Carver

8

9 Rep. Carver

10 Here

11

12 Juliann Jenson

13 Mr. Chair

14

15 Rep. Weissman

16 Here

17

18 Rep. Weissman

19 All right, everyone is present. Just for those listening online, we'll briefly just situate where we are. This 20 is the fifth and final meeting of this Interim Committee. At our previous meeting in mid-August, we 21 discussed drafting and approved, three measures to proceed to drafting and members of the committee
22 have been working intensively on those in the intervening weeks. Our mission and our primary agenda
23 item here today is to vote on the draft measures that have been public since the 9th of September, those 24 were posted to the Interim Committee website. We know that many folks here and others have been 25 spending a lot of time with those drafts. As with any other bills are in this case, pre-bills, amendments
26 are in order. And we will get to motions and discussion of amendments in due course. Downstream after 27 this, like any other interim committee measures that come out of here are approved by the Legislative 28 Council Committee. That meeting is in a few weeks. And then all of these will read over across the desk
29 and either the House or the Senate, like any other measure in the 2023 Regular Session and go through 30 the full legislative process. So, with that, I did not intend to make any other opening remarks. I will see 31 if Madam Vice Chair wanted to add anything.

32

33 Rep. Carver

34 No, Mr. Chair. All right.

35

36 Rep. Weissman

37 Thank you. Okay, we will just proceed to our primary work, which is consideration of Measures 1, 2, 38 and 3. We will go in order. The first of those is what some of us are calling Measure 1. LLS 150, sorry.
39 Senator Gardner.

40

1 Sen. Gardner

2 Mr. Chair, I thank you for indulging me. But before we get started on this, I wanted to and I'm sure I
3 speak on behalf of all of the members of the committee, I want to thank the Chair and the Vice Chair for 4 endless, endless hours, because I know, I've been on the phone with you quite a few hours as well to 5 work through all of the issues in bringing these bills forward. So, thank you both for the amount of time.
6 It's life consuming, but it's very, very important. So, thank you.

7

8 Rep. Weissman

9 Thank you, Senator, I really appreciate that. It is a good thing that the cellphone companies of the world
10 have long since moved to unlimited plans or Rep. Carver and I would both be in trouble. Madam Vice 11 Chair.

12

13 Rep. Carver

14 Thank you, Mr. Chair. And thank you, Senator Gardner. It is we have truly exercised our cell phone 15 minutes in this process. Thank you.

16

17 Rep. Weissman

18 Okay. So, members will deal first with Measure 1, which is the proposed concurrent resolution, also 19 known as LLS-0150. Everybody has the draft dated 9/9. And I guess without further ado, I move the 9/9
20 draft LLS-0150. And ask for a second?

21

22 Rep. Carver

23 Second.

24

25 Rep. Weissman

26 All right. The motion is for the September 9 draft of Measure 1 by the Chair, seconded by the Vice 27 Chair. Okay. So, members, Rep Carver and I and there been a lot of other conversations as well, have 28 been working pretty assiduously on an amendment here, which hopefully everybody now has. What we 29 propose to do is talk through this amendment in considerable detail, what's going on in the multi-page
30 amendments, and why. And then we'll see if there are any questions from members or other discussion
31 and then we'll come to appropriate votes. So, with that, I move L.002 to LLS-0150. And ask for a
32 second.

33

34 Rep. Weissman

35 Okay. Amendment is moved by the Chair, seconded by the Vice Chair. All right. So, members, you
36 have what spills just a little bit onto the fourth page. I will talk sort of section by section through what's 37 going on. And why. I'm just going to start from the top of page one. What lines 3 to 14 are doing. You'll 38 see some new language is added at the end of that existing paragraph. A point was made to us which we 39 think was a valid point that there shouldn't be any overlap between membership of the Commission and 40 the adjudicative board. The whole work here is to separate those two functions of the overall process of

1 judicial discipline. At least, in my mind, I don't think anybody had contemplated that. But it was not
2 specifically foreclosed as a textual matter. So, what we do here is to say that nobody shall be appointed
3 to the board, who's on the Commission. Moving down the next lines 17 to 20, are really just meant to be 4 clarifying. The two key points here are that one of the functions of the adjudicative board is to hear
5 appeals from informal remedial action. And that because we're still in the informal phase that that
6 remains confidential. There was some commentary to the effect that the language in the 9/9 draft maybe
7 wasn't as clear as it could have been. What we're trying to do is make that more clear. At lines 21 and 8 22, we clarified that the four judges to be appointed should be District judges, not Court of Appeals, not 9 County Court, but specifically District judges. Given the trial-like nature of this phase, we think that's 10 appropriate. In the next lines, 23 to 25. We're trying to do two things. This is sort of the other book end
11 of the first lines that we spoke about higher up on this page one, there shall be no overlap between 12 membership of the Commission and the Board. And, also, just clarify something that's previously been 13 implicit, which is we want to stagger terms here. This is standard and setting up a variety of boards and 14 things throughout government. It was implied we wanted to make it express why some of the terms are 15 going to be shorter upfront. Line 25 is really just clarifying. We mean the respondent justice, that was a
16 suggestion that was made and we think is very reasonable. In lines 26 through 28, we provide a standard
17 of review for the adjudicative panel upon taking an appeal from the Commission's order of informal
18 remedial action of the standard is abuse of discretion. This parallels the standard of review that we've set 19 forth later, where an appeal is taken in the formal process, we think that's the appropriate standard of 20 review at lines 29 to 30. This is really just meant to be clarifying. There was a concern raised that, on the 21 one hand, we need to set forth confidentiality. On the other hand, later on in sub (g) of the section (3), 22 we have set forth carefully delineated exceptions to that information being reported to the complainant.
23 Aggregate information, you know, for the sake of transparency of the process. By adding the words
24 consistent with subsection (3)(g) of the section, we really just mean to say that those are both on the 25 level that we really do mean what we say in sub (g) in terms of information flowing, consistent with the 26 otherwise important framework of confidentiality. The next couple of lines are essentially conforming,
27 you know, we need to get rid of some references to masters who exist in the current process, and will not
28 exist in the new process, because of the changes that we're making. Related to that on line 2 of page 2
29 recommend is no longer the appropriate word, rather, what what's really happening is an order. Again, 30 because we're changing the process a little bit, lines three to five, on page two, just moving down the 31 page. This is to clarify the instances in which the tribunal will take appeals rather than the Supreme 32 Court. There was some concern about the scope of the word involves. So, instead, we're just citing to the 33 relevant subsection (3)(f)(II), and there's more on that below. The next lines 6 through 8 are in a similar 34 vein. We're just trying to be clear that here we meet all the circumstances where the tribunal consisting 35 of a Court of Appeals would be invoked. Next on lines 98 through 15, we're relocating this paragraph 36 due to some other changes. So, you'll see this language occur further down. So, it's being relocated, not 37 struck entirely. Next, and I won't go through every subsection, but starting at page 2, line 16. And 38 continuing over. As far as page 3 line 15 of the amendment. We're doing two things. We're both adding 39 some substantive reasons why the tribunal would sit to take an appeal from the adjudicative board rather 40 than the Supreme Court. Because we've added some text for drafting reasons, we're splitting it up into

1 the capital lettered subsections instead of having an even bigger chunk of text. There was some 2 discussion with various interested parties over the course of the last weeks. We think it's appropriate to 3 somewhat broaden the list of reasons why the Supreme Court would not sit to take an appeal, but rather
4 why the replacement tribunal would do so. So, that's all of what's going on from page 2, line 16 to page
5 3, line 15. Moving further down, we're now at page 3, line 17. This is some language that we've worked
6 on as recently as this week. As we stared at the existing drafting of Section (3)(G)(I), we realized it lacks
7 a little bit of clarity in terms of what has come down to us from history. So, I'll say a little bit more about
8 this. And I think the Vice Chair might also want to unpack it for the record. There were really three 9 different principles going on in this paragraph. And they're all important. One, again, is confidentiality.
10 We have a confidential process up to the point where it becomes formal in our proposed new construct.
11 We are changing some of the terminology in this part of the amendment, I think without trying to 12 change the meaning. The existing language from long ago uses the word privilege, which has been 13 glossed to mean absolute privilege in the sense that one cannot be sued in defamation for what you say,
14 in the context of this process. We want there to be full and open communication from both parties. And 15 the system will test all of that against the standards that we've set forth. And the result will be whatever
16 it is. But if there's a defamation action, coming out on the other side, because one party doesn't like what 17 the other party said, that's a chilling effect on the entire thing. And we don't want that. And the drafters
18 of the prior language didn't want that either. But we're trying to use more clear terminology, which is 19 why we simply say what we think has long been meant, a person is absolutely immune from any action
20 for defamation dot, dot, dot. I won't, I won't read the rest of it. At the at the end of that paragraph, as 21 amended, we still see the use of the word privilege. In a more maybe typical legal sense, for example,
22 attorney client privilege, there might be privileges about medical records, psychiatric records, spousal
23 communications, all manner of other privileges that the law has recognized. Where those privileges
24 attached to a writing that was taken up into the record what the current section (3)(G)(I) says those 25 privileges remain, even once they're rolled up into the record, and we're leaving that part intact. We 26 think that's, that's important. So, that's the intent of all of that language, page 3 lines 28 to 29, is really 27 kind of just cleaning up some terminology. Instead of private discipline we're speaking of informal
28 remedial action. Things could happen in the informal stage that maybe aren't even disciplinary, as some 29 of us would think of that word. It might be some advice about better managing a docket. So that's the 30 reason for that change. Page 3, lines 30 to 32. We're clarifying one of the reasons where otherwise 31 confidential information may flow, and that is for the important purpose that appointments to the 32 adjudicative board must be made with knowledge of whether a potential appointee judge has any kind of 33 disciplinary history. So, the appointing authority needs to know that so we add that to the existing list.
34 Coming to the bottom of page 3, lines 34 to 37. This is mostly relocating an existing I'm sorry, better to 35 really say that what we mean here is again, trying to balance we have a great importance on 36 confidentiality, we also have reasons where information needs to move. What Rep. Carver and I talked 37 about is the need to say very plainly and even at the constitutional level that the various entities, for 38 example, nominating commission, performance commission, and so forth, who would get information
39 for limited carefully set forth purposes, can't then go on and do anything else with that, and you'll see the 40 general reference to sanctions for violation of confidentiality as may be provided by law. It's kind of a

1 standard reference in constitutional text to the ability of the General Assembly to speak further as a
2 statutory matter. We'll come to that question in Bill 2. And finally, we're now at the end of the 3 Amendment. Going over to the top of Page 4. This is really a conforming amendment. In the current
4 structure, we speak of the Commission but we're creating the new Adjudicative Board and the Special
5 Tribunal and we need to list those here as well. So, thank you for the indulgence. That is, that 6 Amendment 2 to LLS 0151. Madam Vice Chair.

7

8 Rep. Carver

9 Thank you, Mr. Chair, just a couple of comments, and especially wanted to emphasize and affirm what 10 the Chair said, on (3)(g)(I). As we were reading through that, and I think, you know, as happens many 11 times we've read through the current constitution, the draft proposal, and then all the comments is, as we 12 were rereading (g)(I), we realized that the language was not crystal clear. It was and so we reached out
13 to stakeholders. And through that process, they put forth kind of the history of this section, and that the 14 core of the provision is to establish the principle of absolute immunity, absolute privilege for individuals
15 that testify to the Commission and the process and authors of papers that are considered in this process.
16 And that, of course, if the individuals that testify in the Commission or produce a paper that is 17 considered by the Commission, if they were to make those same statements outside the judicial 18 discipline process, then that would be a different matter for purposes of defamation tort. But we 19 absolutely, as we were reporting this section, wanted to make it clear, which is why we're putting it in 20 the record, that the intent of this modified language is to absolutely preserve the meaning and legal 21 intent of the existing constitutional provision with regards to absolute immunity. Nothing is changed on 22 that, even though we have some of the players, the new adjudicative board, the additional appellate 23 board by the special tribunal in cases involving the justices. So, we wanted to put that on record to 24 ensure that the meaning of that section fully encompasses all the past legal effect of the existing 25 provision on absolute immunity.

26

27 Rep. Carver

28 Second.

29

30 Rep. Carver

31 Thank you, Committee, any questions or discussion on Amendment 2. Senator Gardner.

32

33 Sen. Gardner

34 Thank you, Mr. Chair. I'm going to be and this is more in the nature of a comment, but I'm going to be 35 supporting Amendment 2 because it consists of a variety of consensus amendments. Legislation is never 36 to everyone's satisfaction. And we need to move this forward. But I do want to comment, and I suppose 37 in the nature of preserving the appellate issue, as it were, with respect to private remedial action or 38 informal remedial action, I was surprised and found it curious that I think it was the Judicial Department
39 had concerns about informal remedial action not being appealable. As well as if it were to be appealable
40 than it needed to be the confidentiality around that action needed to be preserved. And the reason I find

1 that curious is because for many years, I've had clients sit across the table from me and when I did a lot
2 of misdemeanor criminal work, I would have to explain to a client that you know, this is kind of take it
3 or leave it. You know, what's been offered to you is, maybe it doesn't seem fair to you, but if you want
4 put all the chips on the table, then you do that in front of the judge and you take all the consequences
5 that go with that. And by the way, you have to give away your right of appeal most generally when you
6 accept that agreement, and I find it even more curious, because the Office of Attorney Regulation
7 Counsel sort of regularly offers informal remedial action to attorneys on a kind of a take it or leave it
8 basis. And, so, it surprised me that Judicial in dealing with the Commission, where in formal remedial
9 action might be proposed and offered, as it were, that. And I understand why they do, but that the judges
10 in that situation might well want to appeal to the adjudicative panel for abuse of discretion and protect 11 their confidentiality when they put everything on the on the line and reject the deal as it were. And I
12 guess I'm more troubled by the fact that over the years, I've had clients in both of those fora that I just 13 discussed to, I've had to say, you know, you got to take this deal, or put everything up on the table. But 14 when it came to Judicial, they, they'd like to preserve the right of appeal and confidentiality, as well. So
15 I'm not real satisfied with that piece. But overall with the amendment, I'm supportive, and I may revisit 16 that issue come the session. So, I thank you for your indulgence, Mr. Chair.

17

18 Rep. Weissman

19 Thank you, Senator. Committee, any other comments or questions? Senator Moreno.

20

21 Sen. Moreno

22 Thank you, Mr. Chair. And thank you, Senator Gardner, for sharing some of that, because I think I have 23 some similar concerns around the maintenance of confidentiality, when informal actions are appealed to 24 the independent adjudicative board. So, we should talk further about that. But I had a couple of 25 questions. So, in this bill, and sorry, I know we're on the amendment phase. But my questions may cross
26 into both. There are potentially now four entities involved in judicial discipline: the Commission, the 27 independent adjudicative, board, the Supreme Court and the tribunal. And all those have different. I was 28 just joking that actually having putting a flowchart in statute or the Constitution might actually be 29 helpful in this circumstance, but I was wondering, the commission itself will still be able to engage in 30 both informal and formal, disciplinary? I just want to make sure I'm understanding that piece correctly.

31

32 Rep. Weissman

33 Okay. Thank you, Senator. Good, good opportunity to clarify. So, right now from the structure that we 34 have from long ago, formal and informal are kind of all mashed up in the same Commission. The new 35 construct, preserves the role of the commission at the preliminary phase, they do the investigative work,
36 they are in charge of ordering informal remedial action, and we're trying to be more consistent in using 37 that term. At the point when formal proceedings commence. Now, if the people approve this on the 24
38 ballot, what kicks off formal proceedings is a ordering of a panel of the adjudicative board to 39 commence. At that point, things are now no longer confidential. That's a key move that we're making as 40 the formal part of the process is vastly more open. And we join a lot of other states that way. So, right

1 now, it is correct to speak of the Commission as handling informal and formal matters. Going forward, it
2 would be more correct to speak of the commission as handling informal and the adjudicative board,
3 operating through its three member panels to handle formal matters. Senator Moreno.

4

5 Sen. Moreno

6 Thank you, Mr. Chair, and thank you for that that is super helpful. And, so, the independent adjudicative 7 board will simply handle formal complaints or appeals of informal actions.

8

9 Rep. Weissman

10 Yes, I think that's a correct statement really, as going forward. There are, it's one adjudicative board 12
11 People appointing authorities, as we've discussed, will operate in panels of three one judge one lawyer,
12 one civilian, but they now they will have two different roles. They will sit in appeal from informal
13 remedial action. They will in the first instance, hear a formal matter. So, they're operating in an appellate 14 way as to informal matters, and they're operating more like, excuse the analogy, but like a three judge, 15 trial court or a three number trial court for formal matters.

16

17 Sen. Moreno

18 Thank you.

19

20 Rep. Weissman

21 Members other questions or discussion? Senator Gonzales.

22

23 Sen. Gonzales

24 Thank you, Mr. Chair. I just wanted to go back to page three, line 37. And the violations of 25 confidentiality as may be provided by law. And those will attach in different sections of statute, but not 26 within the sort of broader recommendation for the constitutional change that we're providing here. In 27 this Bill 1, is that correct? I just want to ensure that I'm understanding that aspect correctly.

28

29 Rep. Weissman

30 I'll speak to that as I understand the question. And if I, even if I haven't answered, please, please ask
31 again. So as provided by law simply means that there's, there's a delegation, if you will, from the 32 Constitution, to the General Assembly to by statute, provide sanctions for violation of confidentiality,
33 there is no specific sanction within the constitutional text. And in fact, when we turn to Bill 2, we'll have 34 a lot more to say about the challenges and arriving at the right sanctions for violating confidentiality and 35 some of the very consequential case law that has to inform our work in that.

36

37 Sen. Gonzales

38 Thank you.

39

40 Rep. Weissman

1 Committee other questions or discussion? If there are no further questions or discussion on L.002 to 2 LLS 150, it's been moved and seconded. I will ask if there was any objection to L.002. Seeing none,
3 L.002 is passed. I have no further amendments to LLS 150. Madam Vice Chair, any the other members?
4 Madam Vice Chair.

5

6 Rep. Carver
7 No, Mr. Chair.

8

9 Rep. Weissman
10 Seeing none, LLS 150 has been moved. And Ms. Jenson, should we restate it as a motion to Legislative 11 Council? Okay. So just for the sake of clarity, I move LLS 150 as amended by amendment 2, to the 12 Committee on Legislative Council.

13

14 Rep. Carver
15 Second.

16

17 Rep. Weissman
18 Okay. Motion was by the Chair, seconded by the Vice Chair. Ms. Jenson, if you would call the roll on 19 the motion.

20

21 Juliann Jenson
22 Senators and Representatives. Bacon.

23

24 Rep. Bacon
25 Yes.

26

27 Juliann Jenson
28 Gardner.

29

30 Sen. Gardner
31 Aye.

32

33 Juliann Jenson
34 Gonzales.

35

36 Sen. Gonzales
37 Aye.

38

39

40 Juliann Jenson

1 Lynch.

2

3 Rep. Lynch

4 Yes.

5

6 Juliann Jenson

7 Moreno.

8

9 Sen. Moreno

10 Aye.

11

12 Juliann Jenson

13 Van Winkle

14

15 Sen. Van Winkle

16 Aye.

17

18 Juliann Jenson

19 Carver.

20

21 Rep. Carver

22 Yes.

23

24 Juliann Jenson

25 Mr. Chair.

26

27 Juliann Jenson

28 Yes.

29

30 Rep. Weissman

31 Okay. The vote is 8-0 to Legislative Council. Now, members at this point we need to discuss
32 sponsorship and Chamber of origin in the ultimate legislative session. Ms. Jenson do we do we need 33 recorded votes on this or? Okay. So, I would like to be one of the house co-primes. Rep. Lynch has 34 offered to be the other co-prime for the House. Senator Gardner and Senator Gonzales will take the 35 baton in the Senate. And we will start this as a House Concurrent Resolution. Okay, it is proper. Senator
36 Gardner.

37

38

39

40 Sen. Gardner

1 Thank you and Senator Gonzales and I find that quite acceptable that it start in the House with the
2 understanding that all issues will be resolved in the House and things will be quite smooth and the 3 Senate. I'm sure you can provide those assurances to us, Mr. Chair.

4

5 Rep. Weissman
6 Senator Gonzales.

7

8 Sen. Gonzales
9 We expect a perfect bill. It's going to be great.

10

11 Rep. Weissman
12 It'll be easy. Okay, Ms. Jenson has clarified it is proper at this point for other members to sign on as 13 nonprime co-sponsors. Okay, Senator Van Winkle. Further members, Majority Leader Moreno, Rep.
14 Bacon would you like to be a co-sponsor? Okay. Rep. Bacon is in. Rep. Carver, we would we'd love to 15 have you but we understand that term limits are having their way with you. Okay.

16

17 Sen. Moreno
18 No glory.

19

20 Rep. Weissman
21 All right. I think that was everyone. So, thank you. Committee. We'll move to. Oh, I'm sorry. Mr. Imel, 22 please go ahead.

23

24 Conrad Imel
25 Thank you. Conrad Imel, Office of Legislative Legal Services. Do we have your permission to make 26 technical changes to the bill as we finalize it for Legislative Council?

27

28 Rep. Weissman
29 Senator Gonzales suggests that it's already perfect. Sure, Mr. Imel, maybe you could just sort of say for 30 the record, what is meant by technical. I think you mean things like the bill summary and the topic 31 perhaps?

32

33 Conrad Imel
34 Yes, the bill, the bill summary, we will probably change to reflect what's in the amendment. I think 35 because you've done in the house. You're okay. That part of the different clauses in the bill refer to 36 where it's starting in case the editors find any technical issues that we've made, as we finalize it for 37 Legislative Council. I'll also remind you now Mr. Chair that you've set the co-prime sponsors for the bill
38 but at Legislative Council it's tradition that the chair of the committee would present all three bills.

39

40 Rep. Weissman

1 Understood. And I have been in communication with Ms. Mullis about that process. So, thank you.
2 Okay. Mr. Imel, do you have everything you need for Measure 1? Okay. We will proceed to Measure 2, 3 also known as Bill 2 or LLS 0151. I will move Bill 2 and ask for a second.

4

5 Rep. Carver

6 Second.

7

8 Rep. Weissman

9 Okay. The motion is by the Chair. Second by the Vice Chair. All right, members, everybody should 10 have LLS 0151, amendment number 1. I see extra copies are being brought around. Now, as before, 11 we'll talk through this in detail. I'm going to turn it over to Rep. Carver. Madam Vice Chair, if you'll 12 explain the amendment.

13

14 Rep. Carver

15 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Starting at, this is on page 1, lines 2 through 8. Because we are creating in this 16 process, a new entity, the independent adjudicative board, independent adjudicative panel. And in 17 specifically referencing the panel later on in this bill. We thought it prudent to provide a definition, a 18 statutory definition for panel, which obviously as the board consists of three pools, district court judges,
19 lawyers, and citizens. And then when a formal proceeding is initiated, members will be drawn. One
20 member will be drawn from each of the three pools to constitute the panel, which will then hear that
21 specific case. And, so, this is just clarifying that by definition. In the rulemaking section, and this is 9
22 and then going to the bottom of the page. In Senate Bill 22-201, we created or directed that APA
23 procedures need to be followed for rulemaking in other words and opportunity for public comment.
24 And, so, this is just to ensure that that is clarified as well for this new rulemaking committee that we are 25 creating in the CR, that for the Commission rules and then for the adjudicative board, that in both 26 instances, public participation is necessary as far as public notice and comment. There is special
27 outreach to the entity that the rules apply to. Again, remembering that we have made the adjudicative
28 panel a separate and independent process from the Commission. We decided that in looking at what the 29 other states had done, and there's various models, that in order to do the kind of process where we truly
30 have independence of the investigatory function and then a separate and independent body, basically 31 hearing the allegations and acting analogous to a trial court. This would be the adjudicative panel, and 32 then setting up more clearly on the appellate review standards that are clearly appellate and not, not the 33 broader provisions that we currently have. So, this is just capturing the procedures in 201 and applying
34 them across the board. Going to page two. Then 6 through 11 is basically just doing some cleanup. But I 35 do want to make comments on two critical issues that we had hoped to include in this bill, but found that 36 there were additional issues that still needed to be discussed and resolved. First, the process for resolving 37 subpoena disputes. And in the first instance modifying subpoena power for the commission and the 38 adjudicative panel, which is critical. But there are also venue questions, other questions that came up 39 associated with subpoena while we were able to get partway there, we could not get all the way there on 40 all the issues. And, so, we believed it was better to reserve the subpoena issue, for should this

1 committee, pass this bill, reserve it for the legislative session, with the commitment and full intent that
2 there will be a subpoena provision in this bill to address all those issues. So that is the first thing that I
3 wanted to put on record and that reflects Chair Weissman and my absolute commitment on the necessity
4 of a subpoena provision in this bill. The second provision that we ended up deleting from this bill was 5 on criminal penalties. As we've discussed in this committee, the current criminal penalty for sanction of 6 breach of confidentiality is a misdemeanor penalty, a criminal penalty. In speaking for myself, and I
7 believe chair Wiseman, we believe that that criminal misdemeanor penalty was not the appropriate
8 penalty, at least applied broadly to everyone. We believe that they're, as we dug into this, and again, we 9 very much wanted to have in this bill, a criminal penalty or whatever penalties civil, there's a range of 10 options on what the appropriate penalty should be, perhaps dependent on whether it is the complainant
11 or a witness, or a commission member who has breached confidentiality and violation of their duty. So 12 rather than give the impression, which we were fearful, the draft proposal would give by including in the 13 bill, provision on criminal penalty, updating it to include the current legal entities operating but not 14 changing the criminal penalty, that we would give an impression that we were satisfied or agreed with 15 the existing criminal misdemeanor penalty. We do not. But we're not able to get to a fully vetted
16 alternative sanction for breach of confidentiality. That is why we decided the better course was to delete
17 out that section. But put on the record our full commitment and statement that this must be addressed in 18 this bill in 2023. And that is the strong feeling of both the Chair and I. So just to explain that. And then 19 moving on, again, on page two lines 12 through 19. The existing statutory Bill draft proposal that was 20 published on September 9, contained provisions about mandatory complainant rights, that is that the 21 commission has an absolute legal duty to keep the complainant apprised of the status of the case,
22 including periodic updates. No more, we hope. Will we hear testimony or read in the as we read in the 23 ILG report, that a complainant files a complaint and then months pass, they hear from no one, they don't 24 know what's happened. And then all of a sudden, they get a notice months later about an interview. And 25 then it goes silent again, they have no idea what happened. This is not a process that inspires confidence.
26 And so that is in the draft proposal. But then in hearing from our stakeholders, they pointed out in 27 addition to what we had in the draft proposal, these additional steps in the process that they wanted to 28 call out specifically for keeping the complainant updated. And we thought that content was right on the 29 money. And we were glad to add it. And that's what those lines do. And then at the bottom of page two,
30 lines 20 through 35. Again, this is just there was an issue that was raised. And again, we are as part of 31 this process, we are, we are trying to address ensuring that these bodies are acting independently, 32 without conflict of interest, and there was concern about staff, and how do we determine what staff will 33 be tagged to support a formal proceeding in front of the adjudicative panel. And we thought the best way
34 to resolve that, that since the trial court judge who will be selected from the pool has to run the conflicts
35 list right? Before they are selected to hear that specific case, that in those circumstances, the judge 36 selected for the panel would choose the staff with the hard restriction that it cannot be staff from the 37 district of the respondent judge. And that is what that section does. And then over on page three, these 38 are, again, cleanup items. And that covers the substance of the amendment.

39
40 Rep. Weissman

1 Thank you, Madam Vice Chair, I wanted to add just a little bit more on the two key points that the Vice
2 Chair spoke to subpoena and sanction. You know, the idea that there is access to information through
3 subpoena for both the entity doing the investigation, the Commission and the respondent is not new. It's 4 not unique here. In fact, it's been in Rule 22, specifically promulgated by the Supreme Court for some
5 time. It is my understanding based on information from the Commission, subpoenas aren't even issued
6 very often. Nonetheless, when they are it's important that there be solid process for issuance and for 7 resolution of disputes about issuance, and we have grappled with this mightily haven't quite landed to a
8 specific resolution. So, the Vice Chair and I did agree that rather than try to lay down text by 9 amendment that that might not be broadly agreed on or might need to be subject to a lot of further
10 revision. We would be silent in this bill as to the question of subpoena. That silence doesn't mean that 11 there is entirely no law on point. The law on point remains the Commission Rule and whatever gloss
12 there is on that, and we do fully intend to return to that in the regular legislative process. Sometime
13 starting next January. I did also want to speak to the sanctions issue because this has come up
14 powerfully in testimony. You know, we have inherited specifically 24-72-401 and 402, from I think they 15 turned 40 years old next year. Those are the misdemeanor provisions that the Vice Chair spoke of. We 16 have, from a policy standpoint, we have heard that those can have a chilling effect. We've heard that 17 very powerfully here. That kind of chilling effect. Even the prospect of it is in my view inimical to this 18 process working as it is supposed to work. We have had a fair bit of legal research, appreciate the work
19 of our nonpartisan staff and LLS to help us dig on that. National Center for State Courts has also sent us
20 some material to the effect that as applied in some circumstances, at least, these types of criminal 21 provisions may in fact be unconstitutional. There is a very recent 10th Circuit case not dealing with 22 judicial discipline, but dealing with another question of transparency for policy reasons and the First 23 Amendment right to speak on matters grounded in one's own experience. That I think is suggestive.
24 Policy considerations and legal research do suggest that the analysis can be different for in my mind
25 system actors, members of the Commission, staff of the Commission. In those cases, the test on point is 26 sometimes called the Pickering, Garcetti test. That's a slightly different First Amendment rule
27 concerning freedom of speech. And what we realized, you know, as we grappled with this further, is that 28 we do need to do more work to set in place a replacement. Confidentiality in the early stages is 29 important, we've discussed all of that. The existing misdemeanor penalty, as written is not appropriate
30 and does need to be modified. In the earlier draft, we had made conforming changes to it. It was the 31 Vice Chair's idea that we should not even run the risk of blessing, the continuance of that by minor 32 change and having it roll forward out of this interim committee, in a bill that the regular session would 33 see, hence, the decision to strike any amendment to those provisions out of this bill. We know that those 34 provisions remain on the books. We intend to take this question up. Again in 23, I think that's one of the 35 most important ongoing pieces of work that we have to do with this bill. So, committee if there are 36 questions or discussion for amendment 1 to Measure 2. That is all fair game. Seeing no hands shooting
37 skyward, I'll ask if there is. The amendment has been moved and seconded. Is there any objection to 38 amendment 1 for Measure 2, LLS 0151. Seeing none, the amendment has passed. Any further 39 amendments to Measure 2? Seeing none, amendment phase is closed. I guess Ms. Jenson as before, I'll

1 restate the motion for clarity. I move Measure 2, LLS 0151, as amended by amendment 1 to the 2 Committee on Legislative Council. And I ask for a second.

3

4 Rep. Carver

5 Second.

6

7 Rep. Weissman

8 Motion by the Chair second by the Vice Chair. Committee, any closing comments? Wasn't sure if I saw 9 hands. Okay. Ms. Jenson, if you could kindly call the roll.

10

11 Juliann Jenson

12 Senators and Representatives. Bacon.

13

14 Rep. Bacon

15 Yes.

16

17 Juliann Jenson

18 Gardner.

19

20 Sen. Gardner

21 Aye.

22

23 Juliann Jenson

24 Gonzales.

25

26 Sen. Gonzales

27 Aye.

28

29 Juliann Jenson

30 Lynch.

31

32 Rep. Lynch

33 Yes.

34

35 Juliann Jenson

36 Moreno.

37

38 Sen. Moreno

39 Aye.

40

1 Juliann Jenson

2 Van Winkle.

3

4 Juliann Jenson

5 Aye.

6

7 Juliann Jenson

8 Carver.

9

10 Rep. Carver

11 Yes.

12

13 Juliann Jenson

14 Mr. Chair.

15

16 Rep. Weissman

17 Yes.

18

19 Rep. Weissman

20 Okay. Measure 2 as amended passes to Legislative Council by a vote of 8 to 0. As before we need to 21 settle sponsorship and Chamber of origin. Rep. Lynch and I will start Measure 2 in the House. Senator
22 Gardner and Gonzales have agreed to take the baton in the Senate. As before, perfection is assured.
23 Committee, who else would like to be a co-sponsor of Measure 2 upon introduction, Senator Van 24 Winkle. Rep. Bacon and Senator Moreno. And Madam Vice Chair will be there with us in spirit. Okay.
25 So that brings us to Measure 3. I'm sorry, Mr. Imel, as before please go ahead. Chamber to which.

26

27 Rep. Weissman

28 Yeah, so we'll start this in the House. I'm sorry.

29

30 Conrad Imel

31 Then permission for technical changes. I didn't want to because you had mentioned this earlier on the 32 technical changes. I won't because the amendments fall within what the current bill topics are for each of 33 these bills. I won't change the bill topic. If there's a desire to change it, let me know now and I can but 34 otherwise, I wouldn't consider that a technical change for bills one and two. If you want to mention 35 specifically constitutional changes, statutory changes, something like that.

36

37 Rep. Weissman

38 Thank you, Mr. Imel. Let me look, looking at Measure two. I think the topic seems fair.

39

40

1 Conrad Imel

2 Yeah.

3

4 Rep. Weissman

5 No need to change.

6

7 Conrad Imel

8 Right.

9

10 Rep. Weissman

11 Okay. Committee that brings us to, to Measure three. We'll take a short recess before we jump into 12 Measure 3. So, the interim committee on judicial discipline will stand in recess.

13

14 Rep. Weissman

15 All right, the Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline, we'll come back to order. So, we had discussed
16 and voted on Measures 1 and 2, which brings us to Measure 3, LLS 0152 on the agenda, and we'll 17 recognize the sponsors first, who would like to who'd like to start to speak to Measure 3. Rep. Bacon.

18

19 Rep. Bacon

20 So, we had the wonderful privilege of being able to work on this bill. Before we move forward, we just 21 want everyone to still be able to look at the posted draft. And to keep that as language in which we'd like 22 to continue to move forward. So today, we've asked myself and Representative Lynch, have asked to 23 talk a little bit about this bill, why it's important. And in particular, why we think working on it is critical 24 to all the people who have been spending time with us, let alone to the people who work for the judicial 25 department, and our neighbors and taxpayers. So ultimately, we have decided to not bring the bill
26 forward for committee today, and that we need to do some additional work. But we would like to be able 27 to welcome some of our comments and feedback from our colleagues. And then I'd be more than happy 28 to kind of get us started in giving a little bit of an overview of what the bill is in its draft form and where 29 it is that we hope to go. If I might have the Chair's indulgence.

30

31 Rep. Weissman

32 Rep. Bacon, please go ahead.

33

34 Rep. Bacon

35 Wonderful, thank you. So, we set out, we were. . . Sorry, I chuckle, assigned this bill. But ultimately,
36 Representative Lynch and I really wanted to be sure that we were able to take into account the voices of 37 people who came before us, particularly in the experiences they've had with trying to navigate, quite 38 frankly, making complaints. The bill that you see as draft that was posted suggests that we create an 39 ombuds office. And the role of an ombudsman is to be a neutral space that provides safety for people to 40 not only try to figure out if they want to file a complaint, but how they can be supported in doing so. The

1 ombuds office also can serve in that capacity, where that person, the ombuds office as an entity would
2 act as an advocate for the complainant in the sense of helping the complainant make decisions that are
3 best for the complainant and not the system. And whether it's their job or any judicial proceedings.
4 Ombuds offices in general tend to be one of three things, we tend to see them mostly in support of 5 people out in the community in trying to figure out how to navigate a complex bureaucratic space.
6 Ombuds offices also are neutral spaces to do investigations, where there comes complaints. And then we 7 have the ombuds offices that provide that safe space and become the advocate, as I just mentioned, for 8 those bringing complaints. So, what we do agree on is that there needs to be something like that. We 9 heard from people talking about, we heard even in reference to bills 1 and 2 with the referred Measure
10 and bill 2 that people may not hear back when they file a complaint. But it's been made plain that people
11 need support. So, the bill that you see outlines the scope and role of an ombuds office, we don't 12 anticipate that the ombuds office would act as HR in the sense of resolving the issues for Judicial, but 13 we do expect that there would be an office where people can feel safe and going in learning how they 14 can be protected through any complaints. The rest of, the remainder of the bill creates a what we would 15 call nonpartisan board to manage an ombuds person, because the way that we proposed it is that the 16 ombudsperson should not, you know, be managed by judges in the sense of especially when it comes to 17 judicial discipline. And, so, we created in the bill, a nonpartisan board with appointees who have 18 experience in the space. And then the last part of the bill talked about the scope and role of what the 19 ombuds person could do. And we'd like to put a spotlight on what it looks like to support complainants,
20 not only by creating an anonymous place to report which we heard was critical. But to be able to support 21 those who are complaining with finding resources and referrals to legal counsel and referrals to mental 22 health supports. So that's the scope of the bill as written. I'd like to just add, you know, my personal 23 thoughts on the need to continue this work. You know, we just went through kind of all the 24 jurisprudence and you know, I'm sure the people in this room can appreciate a good highlighter in the 25 Constitution. But I do think that we heard a lot in this committee, about culture within this Department.
26 The overwhelming bulk of the Troyer Report, talked about how people felt like they were compelled to 27 behave a certain way because of management. ILG also reported in the sense that, hey, you actually 28 have to do something about your culture. We're trying to figure out what that means, as a matter of 29 judicial discipline. But what is clear to me, that I think is very unique about at least the court's 30 department is that, you know, misconduct isn't, you know, so, I guess overt or clear, when judges are 31 also managers, we have to figure out how judges can contribute to safety of an office or toxicity within 32 an office. And there isn't a bright line to necessarily talk about that. However, this Department is unique
33 in that sense. And there is something to be said about people feeling like they need to go to the Denver
34 Post instead of people within the office to figure out how to remain safe. We heard from stakeholders, 35 we heard the letter from a young woman who really struggled to be supported in all the things that were 36 at stake not only for her mental health but for her career. And we think it is critical that that is addressed.
37 I will say for me, I also you know we will come it to continuing to do this work, because there is real
38 urgency around it. And having listened to those reports and all the stakeholders on this culture issue, you
39 know, there are a few things that kind of behoove me, when we hear from Chief Justice Marquez in 40 January, that will be now the third Chief Justice that is involved with these issues, which means we're

1 talking about over five years, the statute has run so long that we can't prosecute someone for allegedly
2 stealing from the state. We have, you know, the notion that now we're going to have to work with the 3 Judicial Department. And this is with all due respect, but to follow a supplemental request, follow, you
4 know, how the department wants to build an office, I think about the additional time spent on top of our
5 lovely summer mornings here, to be able to follow this. But you know, I cannot get over how there may 6 be a request that, you know, we want to support, to find millions of dollars to be able to build an office,
7 but a lot of people struggle to bat an eye to find $5 million to pay one person. And so, you know, they 8 gave me a microphone, and I've said this before, but I want to make it clear that this is of interest to the 9 Legislature. We owe it to staff who work for the State and the Department, we owe it to our neighbors
10 who are taxpayers. And we it is part of our dual duties to be financial stewards for the state. And for 11 what it's worth, I think we have to be beyond hoping it's going to change even with the utmost faith,
12 faith that it will, to knowing it will. And the way we can know it will change is by this body, or this 13 branch of government putting a stake in the ground and saying that it must. And, so, we know between 14 today, and the end of session, which is a year from now, that there's a lot of work that needs to be done.
15 But the legislature is willing to put things to paper to be sure that it does. And, so, we need to continue
16 to work in partnership with the Judicial Branch. However, we have a year, we have, we have a year, we 17 cannot extend these issues any longer. We know that the culture is critical. And I want to reiterate, there
18 will be a space for people to be able to talk about the things that intimidate them. Because we know in 19 practice and organizational culture, it takes a couple of years to shift that. But there needs to be 20 something that people can rely on so that they can trust the process, feel safe, and change that culture.
21 So, you will see for me a commitment to talk about this through session. I do want to ask Mike, any of 22 my colleagues Rep. Lynch, to speak as well. But lastly, I do want to thank everyone who has been 23 working so diligently on this issue in this gray space, at least for this committee, but it is not gray in the 24 sense of what we hope to accomplish. So, for all of you who have been writing me pages of emails, like 25 hey, can you call me today, I want to say thank you, especially to our drafter. But please know, we have 26 a great starting point. And we hope to continue and get something down that we know we can rely on.
27 So, thank you so much.

28

29 Rep. Weissman

30 Thank you, Rep. Bacon. Rep. Lynch, go ahead.

31

32 Rep. Lynch

33 Thank you, Mr. Chair. And I want to say it's been a real honor working with Representative Bacon on 34 this. We, you know, we kind of opened a can of worms here and then that this happens a lot, as I'm 35 discovering is that once we start going down the road, we discover well there's these other issues and 36 there's these other issues. And are we really addressing what we initially set out to and then we discover
37 that that through stakeholder involvement, we discover that this needs to be expanded. And I think that's 38 where we came to with this bill on something that seemed really simple, which is to just create a real
39 simple ombuds office, it's no big deal, we discovered that there's other there's more scope in that office
40 than we initially thought. I want to say that you can count on there definitely being an ombuds office by

1 the end of next session, I'm pretty confident that we'll be able to get that done. I feel that taking the 2 additional time to put into this is prudent to make sure that we cover all the bases from all of the 3 information that we received through this process. And I will gladly let that be one of my bill titles if 4 that needs to happen. So that is my commitment to make sure that we continue this process and get this 5 done. We just, we just weren't to a to a place where I felt it was comprehensive enough right now. We 6 also need to hear more from the Judicial Department what you know what, what are their plans and 7 where their gaps and where their, their areas where we can legislatively encourage them to do the right
8 thing. One of the things we we've discovered is that this is a very essential part of judicial discipline,
9 because you have people that that are put into very uncomfortable positions, and that that oftentimes
10 subverts their feedback into what's going on around them. And we want to make sure that that does not 11 exist within the judicial department. So, I look forward to the continued conversations with all the 12 stakeholders. And thank you so much for all the work that you all have put into this, we're not done,
13 we've got a good starting point. And that's the good, the good news, we've got a good base. And we're 14 going to continue to build that over the next few months to make sure that we have something that is 15 completely comprehensive and in providing the best place for folks that have issues to go to without 16 feeling any sort of pressure, or, or the public, quite frankly, thinking that there's some sort of, there's 17 some sort of influence in that office that that that we want to ensure does not exist. So, thank you so 18 much Representative Bacon for your work on this. And I look forward to continuing the conversation.

19

20 Rep. Weissman

21 Thank you both. I'll see if any other members of the committee want to comment on this subject.

22 Senator Garner.

23

24 Sen. Gardner

25 Thank you, Mr. Chair, I appreciate the work that both of you have put into this. Thank you. And the 26 commitment because this is an important matter, having an appropriate office and staff to deal with 27 shepherding for lack of a better term, and navigating for judicial personnel in this system is important.
28 And I with your consent, would like to be the Senate prime or coprime on the bill, in the hopes that we
29 do what I think is the second thing Representative Bacon I think that this interim committee work has 30 ultimately there's a whole list but I think it's ultimately been about the judicial discipline process as well
31 as department culture and processes for employees and others who interact with the department to know
32 how they can make a concern known. Final complaint, if that's the appropriate thing, or just have a
33 conversation and raise a concern all of that. So, thank you both. I know this has been to this point, a 34 really hard, heavy lift and conversations, I think sometimes process is much easier than culture. Thank 35 you so much.

36

37 Rep. Weissman

38 Senator Gonzales.

39

40

1 Sen. Gonzales

2 Thank you, Mr. Chair, and thank you, to the stakeholders who have been offering their comments,
3 sharing their perspectives and the need for this. For this work on culture, and people to proceed, thank 4 you to Representatives Bacon and Lynch, for your leadership in drafting what I saw to be a stack of 5 amendments to acknowledge right the ongoing conversations that are continuing to unfold. I also want 6 to express my support and willingness to continue to engage in this drafting process and effort as we
7 head towards the 2023 regular session in January. Knowing that in many ways, during every public 8 comment session, we heard people who were frustrated and unable to find the appropriate manner to 9 navigate the issues that they've that they've that they found themselves in through the existing processes,
10 right and being able to provide the opportunity in the space for them to go and receive the support that 11 they need in order to have their complaints be addressed or their concerns be addressed. And then also 12 providing that same space for internally, right, externally in terms of individuals who are navigating the 13 court process, but also internally within the staff and the people who work within the department, it's 14 going to be really important. I look forward to continuing that work. Thank you.

15
16 Rep. Weissman

17 Thank you, Madam Vice Chair.

18
19 Rep. Carver

20 Yes, I want to just recognize and commend the hard work of Representative Bacon and Representative
21 Lynch and the passionate stakeholders who know these issues, bring their expertise. See a problem,
22 which was certainly highlighted and documented extensively in the ILG report. I mean, nothing could be 23 more clear about the need for change, and better support and information for complainants in this
24 process. And I do want to just personally say and I know, I've mentioned it earlier, but I feel so strongly
25 about it. In an earlier job that I had. We, I saw the difference occur in a process involving complaints of 26 misconduct that were about to be adjudicated, investigated and adjudicated, when the complainants did
27 not have a designated support system to go to for information, for advice for a sounding board, other 28 than the two parties formally involved in two or more in the other functions, doing their official duties.
29 And, so, I personally witnessed the change that that made for victims and complainants to have that 30 Ombudsman's function. And it was a meaningful and significant change for the victims and 31 complainants in that process. So, I commend your work. I don't know that you particularly need people's 32 spirits hovering around in 2023. But this is certainly one where I am with you in spirit. It is something 33 that needs to be done. And I commend your work. Thank you.

34
35 Rep. Weissman

36 And thank you. Committee. Did anyone else want to comment on the subject? I'll, um, I'll add my two 37 cents. I mean, I think the broad why, on top of being capably set forth by several of the members of this 38 committee just now are very concisely summarized in the legislative declaration of the draft. Where are 39 their power disparities? I think that we should all be able to relate to that because, frankly, all of us with 40 our black name tags on here are everyday we walk in here we are on, whether we realize it or not, we're

1 on one end of a power disparity as to just about everybody else we interact with. And I think that we
2 need to be mindful of that and what it means and what impact it can have on others we deal with, even if
3 we don't mean it to. I think that is also true of judicial officers in particular. You know, it has struck me
4 in the now years of grappling with this subject. I mean, I think all of us particularly lawyers, are 5 accustomed to thinking of judges as folks in black robes who decide what the law means, and grapple
6 with disputes about where the facts meet the law. But in the cases in which we've been talking about 7 here, and had been the subject of these extensive reports, a judge is also a boss, a judge is somebody
8 from whom an organizational culture emanates. To the broader point that both Rep. Lynch and Rep.
9 Bacon have made. Others are also fountains of organizational culture within the 4000 or so employees
10 of the branch. So, I don't mean to make that solely about judges. It has been my personal view that 11 ombuds legislation should encompass both issues arising as to judicial officers and issues arising as to 12 others, understanding that they might be dealt with differently. I think another key purpose is also set 13 forth in the legislative declaration. The proximate beneficiaries are, as you both said, those who are 14 working in the branch or possibly others who have contact with our courts, but ultimately, it is even 15 broader than that it is the entire public in their function as payers of tax dollars that support our 16 government, and as people who deserve to be able to look at what we in government do and have some 17 confidence in it. You know, that confidence has been shaken. I think that we're here among many other
18 reasons to try to help put that back together. And I think this is part of that work. You know, I set myself
19 to the exercise earlier this week of looking back at our charge, our formal charge set forth in SB 201.
20 And how that connects specifically to this question of ombuds work. And I just wanted to note points of 21 connection that I personally see now, as a formal matter, the charge of this interim committee stops
22 mattering after today. But the broader point is, these are things that all of us, collectively in the whole
23 legislature set forth to call out in statutory text. And I think that they continue to have for us the interim
24 committee shall study the following issues and so be on that list was, how to achieve a system of judicial 25 discipline in which individual cases are investigated and determined, independent of influence by the 26 judiciary and overseen by the community, the bar and the judiciary. Questions of culture are not totally 27 separable from that, in my mind, I think even more to the point, the bill, our charge set forth, that we 28 should study the benefits of a victim centered approach to judicial misconduct complaints, that allows 29 the victim to have a voice in how complaints are handled and resolved. And I think ombuds offices are 30 even more squarely connected to that point. So again, that was the formal charge of this committee,
31 those words take on another meaning down the road, but I thought it was worth mentioning that. Last,
32 you know, of all the things that we've grappled with a lot of them have a considerable history, certain 33 things I've been thinking about probably since 2019, a lot of the issues that were in Measures one and 34 two that Rep. Carver and I grappled with go back at least as far as the regular session, the subject of an 35 ombuds office, and how that would fit into the broader work arose a lot later, in the game here on you
36 know, kind of came up in August, I think we all felt it come up very powerfully, which is why we 37 decided even though there wasn't a lot of framework to approve, and go ahead with drafting and Rep.
38 Bacon and Rep. Lynch, I really do appreciate your willingness to take that up slash be voluntold into 39 taking it up. You know that the work that you've done, I don't think stops here. I appreciate your on 40 record commitment that it doesn't stop here you have my on record commitment that I will lean into this

1 because I also think it's very important. You know, a few other examples come to mind in 2017. I served
2 on an interim committee and an idea came up that did not arise as an interim bill. But I had commitment
3 from other folks. And it became a bill in the next regular session in a bipartisan way. More recently,
4 Rep. Lynch and I were co-sponsors of a bill that didn't quite make it this past year. It was an almost
5 interim bill out of a different interim committee last year. Rep. Lynch picked it up, I joined him in that
6 effort, and we didn't make it out of appropriations, but I'm informed that it is now going to actually come
7 out of the interim wildfire committee. Point being, this process is multi-phase sometimes that is 8 frustrating to all of us on some occasion. I certainly include myself in that. But I think the starting points
9 that the sponsors have laid down and that key stakeholders have helped them lay down, put us in pretty
10 good shape for moving forward. I'm eager to see ongoing work, and I will be as much a part of that as I
11 can be. So, with that, those were the three measures that we had before us. I'll turn now and to see if any 12 members of the committee want to make any broad kind of concluding comments on our work for the 13 summer. Rep. Lynch.

14

15 Rep. Lynch

16 Thank you, Mr. Chair. And as this is one of representative Carver's potentially last official duties, I want
17 you to know that there is an opportunity for public service moving forward with the drafting of this 18 ombudsman bill. So, thank you for your service for the last eight years as your time is coming to a close,
19 but you're not out of the woods.

20

21 Rep. Weissman

22 The tradition of voluntolding continues in the interim committee. Any other comments? Madam Vice 23 Chair.

24

25 Rep. Carver

26 I just wanted to take this opportunity. And some I've expressed personally, but on the record the 27 stakeholder involvement, the depth to which stakeholders have been willing to dig in on very difficult
28 and challenging issues and sometimes with very short suspenses. I know as we were getting through the 29 process, you were probably counting down the days to September 30. Before you got yet another issue
30 with we really need to hear back from you in a couple of hours. And it's an issue of, you know,
31 significance. But all of you have come through. And of course, the great Cynthia Gray, with her
32 responsiveness to every research request we made, to give us an overview of what other states are doing.
33 And to delve into the details, that the whole point of this interim committee as it was set up in 201 was 34 to provide a forum and a venue for us to give these very important issues thoughtful consideration and 35 vetting. And, and that is what we have tried to do to our utmost. And I just want to touch very briefly on 36 three points that I want to emphasize that I think are reflected in the concurrent resolution. That is the 37 change to the constitutional provision, as well as the underlying statutory bill, and to be supported and 38 added on by the ombudsman bill, which, again, I believe is critical. But first and foremost, we needed a
39 change in process for greater public accountability and transparency. Colorado was an outlier in making 40 these judicial disciplinary processes confidential, really, up until the very last stage of decision making.

1 That really was unacceptable. And, so, we have now moved confidentiality back to where I believe it
2 belongs where the vast majority of states have it to still have confidentiality at the investigatory stage.
3 But once the process moves forward with formal proceedings, recommended disciplinary action by the 4 Commission, then the public needs to have full view of that process at the trial level and at the appellate
5 level. And that's one of the very important changes we've made. And in addition to supporting that 6 public accountability and access, the critical comments, very important comments brought to us by 7 stakeholders on better data collection. With all due respect to keeping private personal identifying
8 information, how can the public know how this process is working? And they must have an ability to see
9 how this process is working at the Commission stage. And then of course, the other stages are public.
10 And so having that what we believe to be robust data collection, on an aggregate level that is made
11 available to the public. Facilitating that with the appropriate provisions in the constitution to make clear
12 that there is not a confidentiality issue with that approach, and then laying that out in a separate 13 subsection in the statutory bill. So just as we have tried to address the serious issues with complainants.
14 We have also tried to use this forum as a method to absolutely ensure public accountability and 15 transparency. After all, the people are who we all work for, and our three independent branches of 16 government. And, so, we believe that is absolutely critical. I also want to make just a couple of more 17 points on how we have moved and we have moved significantly from the structure in the current 18 constitutional provisions on judicial discipline. It has been quite frankly, again informed by what other
19 states have done and our excellent stakeholder input. In our current system, the Commission in its work 20 when they believe discipline is warranted, other than an informal remedial action would take that to 21 Special Masters made up of judges. And then the Special Masters would review and put forth
22 recommendations to the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court had de novo review on both law and facts,
23 as well as determining the sanction. What we are proposing in the CR, to be taken up by the Legislature
24 and then we hope, passed by the Legislature and submitted to the voters is a drastically different system.

25
26 First, we keep the good work of the Commission on their investigatory function, critically important, 27 and the fine work that they have been doing for decades. But we have now proposed to eliminate the 28 Special Masters function. Instead, we replace it with more of a trial-like process, and not just judges. In 29 fact, the judge is one of three members on the adjudicative panel, to hear the facts, look at the law, look 30 at the recommendation for proposed sanction. It will be a judge, a trial judge--district trial judge, an 31 attorney and a citizen. And they will do that de novo review and make their determinations on facts and 32 law and sanction.

33
34 And then at the appellate level, of course, if it is a judge, the appellate level remains the Supreme Court.
35 If it is a justice involved or not just a justice involved as the respondent the subject of the complaint. But 36 when a justice is involved in any meaningful way, as a complainant, as a witness, their staff, their family
37 members, all of those cases now move to the special tribunal as the appellate level. In addition, the catch 38 all provision that if there were some other fact scenario where the justices believed, even if they their 39 family and staff were not engaged, but a matter where the justices are seeing more than two of their 40 members, having conflicts where they need to recuse that this also would go to the special tribunal.

1
2 And finally, a much more limited in scope standard of review at the appellate level, no more de novo
3 review on the facts and discretion in choosing the sanction. Instead, a much more narrowly prescribed
4 and traditional appellate review standard for both the special tribunal and the Supreme Court. Yes, de
5 novo on the law, whether it is due process concerns or others. But on the facts, they take the facts as 6 established at the lower level and only if the factual determinations are clearly erroneous can there be
7 action at the appellate level? In addition, on the sanction before the Supreme Court had broad discretion
8 to substitute its own judgment on what the sanction should be against the judge no more. Now, the 9 sanction that is ordered by the adjudicative panel that now goes up for review, whether it is special
10 tribunal or the Supreme Court can only be changed if there is an abuse of discretion. So, I hope with 11 these changes, that the people of Colorado, we'll see how we have, again, I think in the interest of public
12 accountability, but also for the complainants involved and the other parties. That we have, I truly
13 believe, strengthened the judicial discipline process in a way that takes full account of due process,
14 which does our best to minimize conflicts by having judges, trial judges at the adjudication panel stage,
15 a Court of Appeals judges that special tribunal, but also excluding those within a disciplinary history,
16 that we are really strengthening modernizing reforming our judicial discipline process in some pretty 17 significant ways.

18
19 And then finally, but to me, a very personal and important issue. The dysfunction of and dysfunction, 20 maybe not when you read the words on paper, but dysfunction in reality, or on how complainants felt in 21 having faith and trust in a process that they could go to in the first instance to file the complaint, huge 22 amount of distrust. Who knows what the actual number of complaints would be if it was a process that 23 had greater trust and transparency and greater follow through. And so, again, we commend our 24 stakeholders, the very, very strong section in the statutory Bill supported and enabled by the concurrent
25 resolution to make absolutely clear that complainants must be kept apprised at every appropriate stage.
26 They are to have an understanding upfront about the process. And that has to be followed through by the 27 Commission. And that is a mandatory duty, not if you feel like it not if you get around to it, it is 28 mandatory in every complaint that is filed. And we have made absolutely sure, in our concurrent
29 resolution by an exception to confidentiality, whatever gray area there was in that law, to ensure that that 30 information could be provided to the complainant without any legal issue or cloud. And I believe that is 31 such a critically important reform that was needed that the ILG report called out for. And, so, I'm very 32 glad that as part of the process. And with that, Mr. Chair, again, just commend you for your leadership. I
33 don't know if we counted the minutes, the hours, probably best that we didn't, on the amount of time that 34 we spent discussing these but it was time on these issues, informed by the stakeholders, informed by 35 everybody who participated. And I commend your leadership and appreciate the process that has gotten 36 us to these two bills. Thank you, Mr. Chair.

37
38 Rep. Weissman

39 Thank you, Madam Vice Chair. Committee, any other closing comments? I'll um, I just a few of my 40 own really, which are in the vein of thank you to a number of folks. You know, we did have support

1 from a number of outside organizations in particular, the National Center for State Courts, whose
2 comparative research I think, helped throw into relief, how out of sync we are with the weight of
3 authority and as to how these things are structured in other states, and there were a lot of initial summary
4 documents to digest and then many times over the summer, you know, one or both of us had further
5 questions of Cynthia Gray I'm sure other members of the committee might have as well. She never 6 failed to have an answer and sometimes it was within an hour. Their work has been very helpful. I did
7 want to specifically acknowledge the Colorado Women's Bar Association, who for over a year have 8 provided multiple sets of written comments which have been very helpful, have also volunteered their 9 own research. And we know it takes a lot hours to dig and put together the things that you've shared with 10 us. And that's on top of all of your active members having a day job, too. So, I want to acknowledge 11 that. I also want to specifically acknowledge CCASA, the Colorado Coalition Against Sexual Assault, 12 which I think uniquely here is the one organization whose mission is centered around the experience of 13 survivors of things. And I think that perspective has been and will continue to be helpful. Also, I try to 14 never fail to acknowledge our nonpartisan staff for what they do to keep this place running. Mr. Syed
15 and Ms. Jenson, for all manner of scheduling support, keeping straight on the rules, our earlier 16 discussions where a lot of folks had to be scheduled to be brought in, were very helpful in framing how 17 we went forward. We know that's a lot of work. So thank you, Ms. Princell, Mr. Imel, we've put you
18 through a lot of research requests on top of the drafting, that's also been very helpful, and I know it's 19 gonna continue to be and then members, you know, we all volunteered for this, and on top of everything
20 else going on, and I just want to thank everybody for that time. I also want to suggest our work is not 21 quite done, even beyond the respects in which, you know, we've all spoken of, you know, our colleagues
22 will see some bills issue into the system. And I think it's on us to help them understand the context.
23 Eight of us have been here all summer, the other 92 have not. So, we have some perspective that I think 24 that we should share, even more importantly than that going forward and 24, when the question of 25 amending the Constitution, to really make the big structural changes that we know that we need to is 26 before the voters, we are going to be natural advocates of that that change, shall we say? That seems like 27 a long time away. I mean, it is kind of a long time away. But there will be people asking there will be 28 members of the press asking, you know, well, why? I think that we need to lean in and help answer that 29 question. Why when the time comes? And then, you know, Madam Vice Chair, thank you in particular.
30 You know, we're probably at least 10 hours on the phone this week. But like you said, I haven't been 31 counting. It has been an interesting process. I mean, we very intentionally set this committee up to the 32 bipartisan that we have tried to work in in that consensus way, because some things are bigger than 33 party. And this isn't the normal interim committee. We're not just talking about bills, we're talking about 34 our foundational document. And some very core structure of government trust and government
35 separation of powers issues here. And then that goes beyond regular disputes and philosophy that may 36 arise. So, we have worked together, I think very constructively to bring us to where we are. My hope
37 was always that we could pass things out of here as broadly as possible. I think 8-0 on two key Measures
38 speaks loudly to our colleagues downstream of this moment, and I know that we'll continue to work on a 39 successor to Measure 3 as well. So, you know, thank you, everyone. You know, I look forward to our 40 continuing to do this work into the next session. Senator Gardner? No. All right. Committee if there's no

- 1 further business, then for the last time, I will declare the Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline
- 2 Adjourned.

Appendix 27(t)

Hearing before J. Budget Comm., Colo. Leg., December 15, 2022 (Colo. Comm'n. Jud.
Discipline budget request presentation):

Appendix 27(t)(i)
Transcript;

Colorado Legislature Joint Budget Committee— December 15, 2022 Hearing: CCJD

1 Sen. Zenzinger

2 Our next presentation is the Commission on Judicial Discipline, so I will welcome up Mr. Christopher 3 Gregory.

4

5 Christopher Gregory

6 Good afternoon, Madam Chair, Members of the Committee. I'm Christopher Gregory, Executive 7 Director of the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline. The purpose of the Colorado Judicial 8 Branch is to ensure that Colorado has a reliable forum to decide disputes and resolve social harms
9 through application of the rule of law. The importance of this role is reflected in the size and the 10 resources provided to the Department, which includes roughly 339 active judges, 85 magistrates, 40
11 senior judges, and more than 3,500 supporting employees. The Department has a budget of 12 approximately $660 million. Within our system, the judges are responsible for performing the branch's
13 basic function, as well as managing the department's overall administration and operation.

14

15 I offer this context to reinforce the critical importance of the Commission on Judicial Discipline and our 16 Office of Judicial Discipline in ensuring that judges perform their intended functions in an ethical 17 manner. As far as a general description of our Commission, we were created in 1966 as part of some 18 larger reforms that changed the methods in which judges are selected in the State of Colorado. Prior to 19 that, we had a rather inconsistent judicial system that was selected through elections. Through those 20 changes, we now have an appointive system. But the basis for the change was that there were great 21 public perceptions that the Judiciary was having difficulties with corruption and was not performing the 22 ultimate purposes for which it was created.

23

24 The Commission itself is composed of 10 members who are all serving without pay. This includes two 25 District Court judges, two County Court judges, two attorneys, and four citizen members. The 26 Commission itself is constitutionally charged with enforcing the Colorado Code of Judicial Conduct.
27 Broadly explained, the Code recognizes that judges need to ensure fairness, accuracy, timeliness, and 28 avoid even the appearance of impropriety when they're performing their basic functions. As expressed
29 through Rule of Judicial Discipline 1(b), the Commission's mandate is to protect the public from 30 improper conduct of judges, to preserve the integrity of the judicial process, to maintain public
31 confidence in the Judiciary, to create public awareness of proper judicial behavior on the part of the 32 Judiciary and the public, and to provide for the fair and expeditious disposition of complaints of judicial 33 misconduct or judicial disabilities.

34

1 I highlight the mission, the importance of the Commission in the context of where we are presently
2 situated, and that is, in the past two years, there have been public concerns as to the decisions made by
3 the Judicial Branch's leadership, failures in reporting incidents of judicial misconduct or allegations of 4 judicial misconduct to the Commission, and the overall general culture that has been found in the 5 Department. Out of these concerns, it has become apparent that the Commission needs independence
6 and autonomy to perform its constitutionally mandated function. The Legislature addressed this as part 7 of Senate Bill 22-201, which was passed and enacted in the past session. And one of the primary
8 purposes of that was to move the Commission away from its prior funding and resourcing structure,
9 where we were completely dependent upon the Supreme Court and its Office of Attorney Regulation
10 Counsel. I will highlight just a few parts of that legislation that passed, including the fact that it requires
11 that the Department continue to provide in an indefinite manner, office space and facilities for the 12 Commission to operate. It also required that both the Department, itself, and the Office of Attorney
13 Regulation Counsel provide administrative support for the Commission pending its transition to internal 14 or other external resources. However, in the statute as exists right now, that's supposed to sunset at the 15 beginning of this next fiscal year. I'll get to that in a moment. The statute had created a $400,000
16 ongoing cash fund, which was intended to allow the Commission to address variability in the complexity
17 and needs of its investigation and litigation of cases. It also created the Office of Judicial Discipline,
18 which has 4 FTE: myself--the Executive Director, a legal assistant, an attorney acting as special counsel,
19 and an investigator. The resources for general counsel and other miscellaneous support is provided
20 through the statute for the Office of the Attorney General to do that. I will note that the statute
21 contemplated other things that are non-monetary, including cooperation and sharing of information
22 between the Department, the Colorado Supreme Court, and the Commission. There's also an expectation
23 that when the Colorado Supreme Court is engaging in rulemaking, it must do so in a public way and 24 with consultation through the Commission as to any rules that would relate to judicial discipline.

25
26 All of this brings me to what we are requesting this year, and as detailed in what I had submitted, we are 27 seeking salary adjustments in the amount of $178,977. The whole point of these salary adjustments is 28 that there were mistaken assumptions when the financial or the fiscal request was made as part of Senate
29 Bill 22-201. At that time, we were unaware of the compensation levels that were being paid to the 30 existing counsel that we had at the Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel. After further research and 31 additional information, it appears that those same attorneys that had represented us on cases in the past
32 as Special Counsel were being paid somewhere close to the range of what a County Court Judge
33 receives in the State of Colorado. Consequently, our request reflects adjusting the funding for that 34 position so it is reflective of that salary level. But not just that, just the importance of what that attorney
35 is entrusted to do. And I would note in that context too, that our statutes, the constitutional provisions, 36 allow the Commission to seek a recovery of attorney's costs and fees if we do prevail in judicial 37 disciplinary proceedings. And that would be a way that, well, in essence, that position can fund itself to 38 some degree, or at least support our Special Cash Fund to deal with more complicated cases. As to our 39 Executive Assistant / Office Manager position, when it was originally proposed, the scope of it was 40 anticipating that that person would not have to take on additional scopes of work, including looking at

1 some of our accounting functions, managing other aspects of our office, including coordinating IT
2 services. And as it has become more apparent over the course of this last year, there really is a need for
3 that person to do much more. When we recruited for the position, we did so on the assumption that we
4 would have someone that is qualified to do all of those things. And all this does is ask to equate her
5 salary to what we would be paying an investigator, which is the last position that we have yet to fill 6 through our agency.

7
8 As part of our request, we have also asked for $25,000 to consult with an outside, nationally recognized
9 organization to propose revisions to the existing Colorado Rules of Judicial Discipline. I think that this 10 is very important, just in the context of what Senate Bill 22-201 requires, which is this consultation and 11 cooperation between the Supreme Court and the Commission in the development of rules. Through a lot 12 of the public controversy, it has become apparent that there are some structural changes that need to 13 happen in our system, and the best way to do this would be through the recommendations of outside
14 entities. And this had been done previously. Back in 2008, the American Bar Association had come in 15 and done an evaluation of our system and made some recommendations, which, incidentally, have 16 informed some of the recommendations that were made as part of the interim committee process.

17
18 The other item that we were asking $25,000 for is just to support our IT systems. Again. This was 19 something that wasn't fully anticipated when we made our budget request as part of this last session.
20 Once the change of the fiscal year occurred, the Commission has had to go out and contract with an 21 outside vendor to maintain its computer hardware, software, those systems, and that was an 22 unanticipated expense as part of last year's budget request.

23
24 I will note that, in addition to what I have submitted as our financial request, we will be submitting a
25 budget amendment. And as part of that, we are requesting the addition of an additional 4 FTE with an 26 expected overall cost of $339,073. The reason for this is that the Commission had been operating with 27 an assumption that SCAO was going to be providing many of our administrative resources. And recent 28 events have made clear that that's not something that we can rely on. On November 18, I received a 29 letter from the Colorado Supreme Court explaining that they were announcing a change to Rule of Civil 30 Procedure 227, which is what had provided our agency with its resources prior to the passage of Senate
31 Bill 22-201. And it also had provided the resources for OARC, in conjunction with SCAO, to provide 32 the administrative support according to the statute. Interestingly, in that letter, they said that our support
33 will terminate on the beginning of this next fiscal year. Essentially, we're headed towards a cliff if we 34 don't do something, and we would need to either get these resources internally or have been provided 35 elsewhere. I'll note also, in conjunction with that, we had been negotiating a Memorandum of 36 Understanding with the Department. To date, we don't have anything signed from them. What has been 37 proposed is not in line with what the statute expected, which would have been them providing us the 38 same terms as the Judicial Performance Commissions. And we also don't have a signed lease that 39 confirms what the statute also requires with them providing our office space and facilities within the 40 Carr Building.

1 Ultimately, that leads to, I think, the basic question that's been asked throughout this process, what is our
2 position as to an independent administrative unit? I would say that we wholeheartedly appreciate that
3 proposal and support it. It is absolutely absurd that we would be requesting administrative staffing that 4 equals what our operational staffing is and not have that resource be available to other agencies or 5 entities. I think Mr. Ioannides had brought up some good points, that there's probably some details to be 6 worked out with this. Our concern is the same, I think, as his, that no matter what happens, even if your 7 committee, the Legislature does fund this request for the $300,000 for our Office to internalize some of 8 these resources, or this administrative unit is going to be created. By the time that any of that would 9 come online, we're going to have a gap and the Commission absolutely needs greater assurances that the 10 Department will be doing what it is promising to do in providing these services in the interim. I don't 11 know what we would do without having budget support in an off year before that would be online. I 12 have no idea how we could manage our payroll or provide any of these other things, including the 13 accounting function.

14
15 So that said, I would just ask, if you have any questions? I'm happy to answer.

16
17 Sen. Zenzinger

18 Members. Do we have any questions for Mr. Gregory? We do. Senator Kirkmeyer.

19
20 Sen. Kirkmeyer

21 Thank you, Madam Chair, I just want to make sure I heard correctly. So, the SCAO is supposed to be 22 providing certain things like leases for office space and certain other administrative responsibilities per 23 statute, and they sent you a letter and told you that they're not going to. Did I hear that right? Or am I
24 getting it wrong?

25
26 Sen. Zenzinger

27 Mr. Gregory.

28
29 Christopher Gregory

30 Yes, I'm happy to clarify. Under 13- 5.3-103 (3), C.R.S., the expectation of the Legislature was that the 31 Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel, which is part of the Supreme Court using attorney registration
32 fees, and the State Court Administrator's Office would continue supporting our Commission over the 33 course of this fiscal year as we sought to find a way to either make some of these things independent or 34 to be able to continue having those supports provided in that way. What the Supreme Court did with that 35 letter. Number one, they violated the other statute, which relates to our rulemaking, 13-5.3-107, C.R.S.
36 which expects them to give us notice and give us an opportunity to discuss a rule with them before they 37 would have to propose that rule change publicly. They didn't do that here. They just announced that 38 they're changing a rule that would have taken away the source of funds for the Commission, and they 39 did that just automatically. Shortly after that happened, I think the practical issue that we had. The 40 Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel deactivated our access to Westlaw, which is an essential resource

1 that we have to perform our function. Fortunately, I was able to speak with the State Court
2 Administrator and he was able to get that resource through the Department. However, it just illustrates
3 an ongoing history where we have been having to fight over our basic resources. We've been facing
4 threats of being essentially evicted from our office space because the Office of Attorney Regulation
5 Counsel no longer wants us there. There's a whole history that was presented to the Interim Committee
6 about these issues, but there is a difficulty with the Department essentially doing what they're obligated 7 to do and what they're promised to do under our existing statutory structure.

8
9 Sen. Zenzinger

10 Thank you for that. Clarification. Members, any questions.

11
12 Sen. Kirkmeyer

13 I think we have lots of questions

14
15 Sen. Zenzinger

16 That we might not be able to dig into fully today, but it does give really good context for your budget
17 request today, and so we appreciate that. Senator Bridges.

18
19 Sen. Bridges

20 I was going to say that all seems pretty messed up. Wouldn't you agree?

21
22 Christopher Gregory

23 I've been living it.

24
25 Sen. Zenzinger

26 Thank you. So, I hear, then, that you would be supportive of the Independent Administrative Services
27 item and that that would provide some essential functions that you need. Are there any other needs that 28 are not included in your budget request as a result of some of these actions that have been taken? Mr.
29 Gregory.

30
31 Christopher Gregory

32 Thank you, Senator. One thing that I think does likely need to be addressed, particularly if this 33 administrative support would occur through our Office. We would need adequate office space to have 34 that kind of staffing, and it's not clear who would be paying for the remodeling or the capital
35 improvements to make that happen or to assure that the space is truly adequate. In addition to that, I
36 think one thing that doesn't directly impact us, but may come up as far as what occurs across the street
37 during session, during the interim committee process, there was a proposal to create an independent
38 ombudsman office to address, at least on a minimal level, the needs of employees within the Judiciary to 39 understand their employee policies, but also if there were issues of judicial misconduct that needed to be 40 reported, that ombudsman office could be a go between that could help those referrals be made in

1 anonymous ways. So that the people that are kind of in the middle of this, that could be victimized by it,
2 aren't so exposed. As I understand it, there's been pushback from the Department about having that
3 ombudsman office being external. That they would want to have it be part of something that they're 4 internally doing. Respectfully, I think that that degrades the entire purpose and function of that office.
5 But when it was proposed, the suggestion was they would need to depend wholly on us for these 6 administrative supports. But we, of course, didn't have them. So, the fiscal note that was attached to that 7 interim proposal reflected this same request that we have for over $300,000 added to the budget. But if 8 an independent administrative unit were approved and moved through this process, I think it creates 9 great possibilities to create that ombudsman office or other similarly situated entities that need
10 independence from the Department itself to perform their functions.

11

12 Sen. Zenzinger

13 Thank you for that. That's some good additional context for that request. Members we are at the end of 14 our hearing time. Any last questions or thoughts before we move on to our next hearing with the 15 Department of Military and Veterans Affairs. All right. Thank you very much, Mr. Gregory, for your 16 time and attention today. And congratulations on standing up a brand new department more or less. And 17 it was really good to hear the update on your progress. So, thank you. Thank you very much.

Appendix 27(t)(ii)
Written Submissions of the Colo. Jud. Dep't
and the Colo. Comm'n on Jud. Discipline;

JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT
FY 2023-24 JOINT BUDGET COMMITTEE HEARING AGENDA

Thursday, December 15, 2022
9:00 am – 2:30 pm

9:00-10:00 COURTS AND PROBATION (C&P)

Main Presenters:

- Chief Justice Brian D. Boatright, Colorado Supreme Court
- Steven Vasconcellos, State Court Administrator

Topics:

- Introduction and Opening Comments
- Common Questions: Page 1, Questions 1-4 in the packet
- General Questions: Page 5, Questions 5-12 in the packet
- Admin Services for Independent Agencies: Page 16, Question 13 in the packet
- Bridges Program RFI: Page 17, Question 14 in the packet
- Counties Special Funding Request for 23rd JD: Page 19, Question 15 in the packet

10:00-10:30 OFFICE OF STATE PUBLIC DEFENDER (OSPD)

Main Presenters:

- Megan Ring, State Public Defender

Supporting Presenters:

- Veronica Graves, Human Resources Director
- Matthew Blackmon, Director of Finance

Topics:

- Introduction and Opening Comments
- Common Questions: Page 1, Questions 1-4
- Requests: Page 2, Questions 5-6

10:30-10:45 BREAK

10:45-11:00 OFFICE OF ALTERNATE DEFENSE COUNSEL (OADC)

Main Presenters:

- Lindy Frolich, Director

Supporting Presenters:

- Darren Cantor, Deputy Director
- Daniel Nunez, Chief Financial Officer

Topics:

- Introduction and Opening Comments: Slides 1-9
- Common Questions: Pages 1-4, Slides 15-18
- Requests: Questions 5-9 in the packet, Slides 10-17
- Admin Services for Independent Agencies: Pages 3-4, Question 8
- Increased Flexibility Court-appointed Counsel: Page 4 Question 9 in the packet, Slide 17

11:00-11:15 THE DEPENDENCY AND NEGLECT JUDICIAL PROCESS (OCR AND ORPC)

Main Presenters:

- Chris Henderson, Executive Director, Office of the Child's Representative
- Melissa Michaelis Thompson, Executive Director, Office of Respondent Parents' Counsel

Topics:

- The Dependency and Neglect Judicial Process: Page 2, Slides 2-9

11:15-11:30 OFFICE OF THE CHILD'S REPRESENTATIVE (OCR)

Main Presenters:

- Chris Henderson, Executive Director
- Ashley Chase, Staff Attorney and Legislative Liaison

Supporting Presenters:

- Mark Teska, Chief Operating Officer

Topics:

- Introduction and Opening Comments: Slides OCR-1 – OCR-4
- Common Questions: Pages 2-3, Questions 1-4 in the OCR responses
- Requests: Pages 3-4, Questions 5-6 in the packet, Slides OCR-5 – OCR-10
- Admin Services for Independent Agencies: Pages 4-5, Question 7 in the packet, Slide OCR-4
- Increased Flexibility Court-appointed Counsel: Pages 5-7, Question 8 in the packet, Slide OCR-11
- Additional Items: Legal Contractor Rate Increase, please see joint ADC/OCR/ORPC response

11:30-11:45 OFFICE OF THE RESPONDENT PARENTS' COUNSEL (ORPC)

Main Presenters:

- Melissa Michaelis Thompson, Executive Director

Supporting Presenters:

- Linda Edwards, Chief Financial Officer
- Ashlee Arcilla, Deputy Director

Topics:

- Introduction and Opening Comments: Page 12, Slides 12-21

- Common Questions: Pages 2-3, Questions 1-4 in the packet, Slide 22
- Requests: Pages 3-5, Question 1 in the packet, Slides 24-29
- Admin Services for Independent Agencies: Pages 5-6, Questions 1 in the packet, Slide 22
- Increased Flexibility Court-appointed Counsel: Pages 6-8, Questions 1 in the packet, Slides 22
- Additional Items: Page 8-11, Question 1 in the packet, Slide 22

11:45-12:00 LEGAL CONTRACTOR RATE INCREASE (OADC, OCR, AND ORPC)

Main Presenters:

- Lindy Frolich, Director, Office of the Alternate Defense Counsel
- Chris Henderson, Executive Director, Office of the Child's Representative
- Melissa Michaelis Thompson, Executive Director, Office of Respondent Parents' Counsel

Topics:

- Legal Contractor Rate Increase: Page 2, Slides 2-14

12:00-1:30 LUNCH BREAK

1:30-1:45 OFFICE OF THE CHILD PROTECTION OMBUDSMAN (OCPO)

Main Presenters:

- Stephanie Villafuerte, Colorado Child Protection Ombudsman
- Jordan Steffen, Deputy Ombudsman

Topics:

- Introduction and Opening Comments: Slides 1-8
- Common Questions: Pages 1-4, Questions 1-4 in the packet, Slide 9
- Requests: Pages 4-20, Question 5 in the packet, Slides 9-16
- Admin Services for Independent Agencies: Page 22, Question 6 in the packet, Slide 17
- Additional Items: Slides 18-24

1:45-2:00 INDEPENDENT ETHICS COMMISSION (IEC)

Main Presenters:

- Dino Ioannides, Executive Director

Topics:

- Introduction and Opening Comments
- Common Questions: Page 1, Questions 1-4 in the packet
- Requests: Page 2, Question 5 in the packet
- Admin Services for Independent Agencies: Page 3, Question 6 in the packet
- Additional Items: None

2:00-2:15 OFFICE OF PUBLIC GUARDIANSHIP (OPG)

Main Presenters:

- Sophia M. Alvarez, Executive Director
- Deb Bennett-Woods, Chair – OPG Commission

Topics:

- Introduction and Opening Comments: Slide 1
- Common Questions: Pages 1 - 2, Questions 2-5 in the packet
- Admin Services for Independent Agencies: Page 1, Question 1 in the packet
- Additional Items: Slides 2 -4

2:15-2:30 COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE (CJD)

Main Presenters:

- Christopher Gregory, Executive Director

Topics:

- Introduction and Opening Comments:
- Common Questions: Pages 1-2
- Requests: Pages 2-3
- Admin Services for Independent Agencies: Page 3
- Additional Items: none

JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT – COURTS AND PROBATION
FY 2023-24 JOINT BUDGET COMMITTEE HEARING AGENDA

Thursday, December 15, 2022
9:00 am – 2:30 pm

COMMON QUESTIONS FOR DISCUSSION AT DEPARTMENT HEARINGS

1. Please describe the implementation plan for new programs added to the Department from one-time stimulus funds (such as the CARES Act, ARPA, and one-time General Fund), as well as any challenges or delays to program implementation.

Diversion Program

Senate Bill 22-196 (Health Needs of Persons in Criminal Justice System) appropriated $4.0 million of American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA) funds for use by adult diversion programs. Of this amount $1.8 million is to be used for grant programs with the intent of diverting individuals with behavioral health disorders from the criminal legal system and into community treatment programs, as specified in S.B. 22-010 (Pretrial Diversion for People with Behavioral Health).

History of Diversion Funding

The General Assembly appropriated $400,000 annually for Diversion Program operations beginning in FY 2014-15 to support programs in four judicial districts. By FY 2019-20, this same funding amount supported programs in ten districts as the interest and commitment to offering pre-trial diversion options expanded. Appropriations to the Program were reduced to $100,000 in FY 2020-21 and FY 2021-22 as budget balancing measures, thereby limiting allocations to existing programs and inhibiting expansion of new ones. The number of programs funded in FY 2021-22 fell to ten (down from twelve districts in FY 2020-21), as the 9th Judicial District did not apply for funding and the 6th Judicial District obtained alternative county-based funding to support its program operations.

Fiscal year 2022-23 was the eighth consecutive year in which Adult Diversion grant requests exceeded available funds. In FY 2022-23, the number of programs funded returned to twelve, with the return of the 9th Judicial District and the addition of the 8th Judicial District. The infusion of the $4.0 million federal ARPA funds provided a secure source of two-year funding for program expansion. The Adult Diversion Funding Committee elected to administer half of the federal funding in FY 2022-23, with the remainder reserved for FY 2023-24.

The table below describes the changes in Adult Diversion sites, funding requests, and awards by fiscal year from FY 2014-15 through FY 2022-23:

Overview of Adult Diversion Programs:
Funding Requests, Awards and Participant Enrollment

Fiscal Year	# Applicants for Adult Diversion Funding	# Programs Awarded Funding	Adult Diversion Funding ¹ Requested	Adult Diversion Funds Awarded	# Participants Enrolled	% Change in Participant Enrollment (from Prior Year)
FY23	12	12	$2,031,657	$1,900,000	Unknown	Unknown
FY22	11	9	$852,620	$100,000	801	-37%
FY21	14	11	$1,137,954	$100,000	1,275	+ 1%
FY20	11	9	$890,762	$400,000	1,259	-17%
FY19	9	9	$748,455	$400,000	1,518	-5 %
FY18	9	9	$694,653	$400,000	1,592	+ 90%
FY17	6	6	$570,324	$400,000	837	+ 67%
FY16	5	5	$277,923	$277,923	502	+ 68%
FY15	4	4	$240,060	$240,060	299	NA

Future of Adult Diversion

As demonstrated above, requests for funding have exceeded the Adult Diversion Program’s budget each year representing the overwhelming demand for these programs. Even with variations in the resource environment, the number of programs seeking funding has tripled in just eight years, and the number of participants has increased from just under 300 at the Program’s inception to almost 1,600 at its peak utilization. With the budget expansion of $2.0 million dollars in FY 2022-23, the State Court Administrator’s Office (SCAO) is expanding staff capacity of the Adult Diversion Program to include a Program Specialist, through a contract using ARPA administrative funds. When ARPA funds are expended after FY 2023-24, the replacement of the federal funds with a General Fund appropriation will be necessary to maintain the future success of the program and expand its impact to additional sites.

Information Technology:

The Department has developed a four-year IT infrastructure plan identifying projects to support an increase in virtual, cloud, and remote technology options. A FY 2021-22 supplemental request for ARPA funds was submitted to support this plan. With the Long Bill appropriation, the plan began in FY 2021-22 and is targeted to be completed in FY 2024-25. Key projects updates:

- SDWAN Project –provides increased network bandwidth and backup capabilities to each court location. The implementation of this project is in the first year of a 3-year plan. The largest schedule challenge with this project is its dependence on third-party vendors that provide local internet circuits needed to complete the implementation. The project is being kept on schedule by adjusting the schedule to match when the internet circuits can be delivered.
- Audio/Visual (A/V) Upgrades – upgrades four hundred and fifty plus (450+) courtrooms and proceedings spaces throughout the state. The overall implementation plan involves the creation of an eight-year replacement lifecycle schedule for all A/V equipment in order to provide the most reliable audio and video experience. Significant supply chain issues have affected delivery dates from the start of the project that impacts the overall schedule. The project is being kept on schedule by installing A/V systems in phases as equipment arrives.

The Department anticipates slowly improving supply chain issues throughout the life of the project.

- Other projects on target to be completed by the end of FY 2024-25:
 - Disaster Recovery – upgrade and replace end-of-life hardware that is fundamental to the Department’s ability to recover access and functionality of business-critical systems;
 - Data Center Refresh – upgrade and replace end-of life hardware and improve our information security architecture;
 - Network Infrastructure Upgrades – upgrade networking equipment that is local to each court location.

Most elements of this implementation plan will require additional spending authority from the Judicial Department Information Technology Cash Fund beginning in FY 2024-25. Both the implemented hardware and software will have on-going maintenance costs and will need to be replaced on a regular lifecycle schedule. This includes equipment such as A/V, networking, and data center hardware, as well as video conferencing (Webex) and information security software. The Department is still preparing the FY 2024-25 impact to the budget; however, we anticipate the Judicial Information Technology Cash Fund will cover these costs.

Victim Assistance

House Bill 21-292 (Federal COVID Funding for Victim’s Services) appropriated $3.0 million of ARPA funds to the Department for distribution to Local Victims Assistance and Law Enforcement (VALE) Boards in the 22 Judicial Districts throughout the State. The implementation of this legislation required educating stakeholders on the program, holding training sessions, awarding and sub-awarding funds, establishing procedures, forms, workflows, accounting, reporting and monitoring protocols. In FY 2021-22, all of this was done before subrecipients began serving their constituents, leaving approximately five months for local project implementation. This initial funding was only appropriated for a one-year period. Despite this time limitation, the Local VALE programs successfully spent 93 percent of the available funds. Senate Bill 22-183 (Crime Victims Services) provided a second round of funding, allowing for the APRA funds to be spent through December 31, 2024. The Department anticipates that this funding will be fully expended.

2. Please identify how many rules you have promulgated in the past year (FY 2021-22). With respect to these rules, have you done any cost-benefit analyses pursuant to Section 24-4-103 (2.5), C.R.S., regulatory analyses pursuant to Section 24-4-103 (4.5), C.R.S., or any other similar analysis? Have you conducted a cost-benefit analysis of the Department’s rules as a whole? If so, please provide an overview of each analysis.

The Judicial Department does not promulgate rules.

3. How many temporary FTE has the Department been appropriated funding in each of the following fiscal years: FY 2019-20, FY 2020-21, FY 2021-22, and FY 2022-23? For how many of the temporary FTE was the appropriation made in the Long Bill? In other legislation? Please indicate the amount of funding that was appropriated. What is the department’s strategy related to ensuring the short-term nature of these positions? Does the department intend to make the positions permanent in the future?

The Department was appropriated $185,846 to fund 1.5 FTE in FY 2022-23 to assist with the administration, monitoring, and reporting of the federal ARPA funds that were received by the Department. It is anticipated that once the ARPA reporting requirements are completed in FY 2024-25, the positions will be eliminated.

4. Please provide a description, calculation, and the assumptions for the fiscal impact of implementing the provisions of the Partnership Agreement, including but not limited to changes in annual leave accrual, holiday pay, and paid family and medical leave. If your department includes employees who are exempt from the Partnership Agreement, please indicate whether or not you intend to implement similar benefit changes as those required for covered employees. Please provide a breakdown of the fiscal impact of implementing the provisions of the Partnership Agreement for: a) employees who are subject to the Agreement, and b) employees who are exempt from the Agreement.

The Judicial Branch is exempted from the COWINs Partnership Agreement, however, in an effort to avoid disparity for Judicial Branch employee compensation, portions of the agreement tied to salary, will be similarly implemented. Specifically, Articles:

- 12: Job Classifications and Position Descriptions
- 30.2: Holiday Pay
- 31.1: Across the Board Increases
- 31.2: Pay Equity Study
- 31.6: Step Placement in Pay Plan Based on Time in Job Series

Beginning in January of 2023, the Judicial Department will embark on a Compensation and Classification Renovation project. This project is long overdue and aims to update all 250+ job descriptions to reflect the work currently being performed. Based on the outcomes of the updated job descriptions, a pay plan and salary structure will be created and assigned to each job description. The anticipated outcomes will create symmetry with the work being done in the Executive Branch System Maintained Study outlined in Article 12 Job Classifications and Position Descriptions of the COWINs Partnership Agreement.

During the Compensation and Classification Renovation project, the Judicial Department will analyze the data to implement a plan that mirrors the 31.6 Step Placement in Pay Plan Based on Time in Job Series proposed in the COWINs Partnership Agreement. The Executive Branch is requesting 26 FTE to complete the analysis. Based on similar ratio of number of employees to required FTE to complete the analysis, the Judicial Branch would need 4.0 additional FTE. We anticipate the analysis could be completed by the end of 2024. It is not possible to predict the financial impact of this endeavor until the analysis is complete.

Additionally, during the Compensation and Classification Renovation project, a Market Study Analysis will be completed each fiscal year, to keep the Judicial Department compensation competitive and avoid turnover due to salary misalignment. This can result in pay range movement, and individual compensation movement, accordingly. Of note, similar to the Executive Branch, the Judicial Department currently recognizes and addresses salaries that lag the market on an annual basis. Funding requests related to these adjustments are either identified in the Department's total compensation template or addressed in the system maintenance budget request. The Judicial Department contracts with a third-party vendor to conduct a market analysis of individual job position compensation. The Judicial Department uses that analysis to address salaries that lag the market by at least 6 percent. Unlike the Executive Branch, current practice in the Judicial Department also includes moving incumbents of the effected job classes an equal percentage within the pay range, to proactively abate compression issues.

The Executive Branch currently recognizes and addresses salaries as lagging the market beginning at 15 percent below the market. The Judicial Department's approach of addressing a smaller margin of market lag has allowed us to do smaller incremental movements with lesser financial impact each fiscal year, allowing the Department's compensation to stay more competitive. Further, the Compensation and Classification Renovation project starting in 2023 will modernize our Compensation and Classification branch-wide, with built in sustainability measures for future changes and growth.

Finally, once the Compensation and Classification foundational work identified above, is complete, in order to further ensure symmetry and avoid disparity, the Judicial Department will complete a department-wide Pay Equity Study mirroring the 31.2 Pay Equity Study, listed in the COWINs Partnership Agreement. The Department anticipates the cost of the study to be approximately $350,000. Necessary individual salary adjustments will be made based on recommendations from the study. The fiscal impact of implementing recommendations of both the Compensation and Classification project and the Pay Equity Study will be determined upon completion of each.

In an effort to further avoid disparity for employees, the Judicial Department also plans to mirror Article 30.2 Holiday Pay.

GENERAL QUESTIONS

- 5. [Sen. Kirkmeyer] Please describe, explain, and justify the Compensation Plan Maintenance request. Please describe how the Judicial Branch has addressed compensation plan adjustments historically and how compensation plan maintenance, salary range adjustments, and associated salary increases differ from the compensation approach and outcomes in the Executive Branch.

Every year, the Judicial Department's third-party vendor identifies job classifications that lag the market by at least 6 percent. The Department then uses the vendor's data to support funding requests to increase those salaries and salary ranges to be within market ranges. Similarly, the Executive Branch's total compensation salary survey adjustments increase salaries for classified employees when they lag the market by 15 percent or more. These salary adjustments are reflected in the Department's pots templates. The Compensation Plan Maintenance request is for funding to address the annual adjustments to salaries required in order to proactively address compression pay that results when an employee salary that is determined to lag the market by 6 percent or more is adjusted upward. For more information concerning the Judicial Department's processes related to employee salary analysis, please see question 4, above.

- 6. [Sen. Kirkmeyer] If not previously addressed in the common question, please explain whether the collective bargaining/partnership agreement applies to Judicial Branch employees.

The Judicial Branch is exempted from the COWINs Partnership Agreement, for additional information please see question #4.

- 7. [Sen. Kirkmeyer] Please explain and justify the need for the R2 and R5 requests for an additional 7.0 FTE of HR staff and an additional 6.0 FTE of contract management and purchasing staff. Please provide context of the Courts' need for significant additional HR and admin/fiscal support services staff as it relates to the creation of an independent administrative services unit for the independent agencies.

The concept of an administrative services agency to provide support to the independent agencies in the Judicial Branch has been discussed for some time as the balance of providing efficient services and meeting the needs of all stakeholders has been challenging. As we describe below (and in previous decision items), there is a gap between the administrative capacity and the needs of the Judicial Department. As discussed below, the additional administrative staff requested for the Judicial Department are needed to be able to meet the operational and fiduciary obligations of the Department, excluding the needs of the independent agencies.

The administrative services agency will enable the independent agencies to have more of a connection with the entity fulfilling their administrative needs. The briefing issue narrative provided by the JBC staff outlined some examples of delays in providing support to the independent agencies. These issues are expected to continue even with the addition of the new human resources and financial staff at SCAO.

Human Resources

The success of courts and probation in Colorado is dependent upon the capacity of the organization to fulfill its statutory obligations. Courts and probation are comprised of over 4,000 FTE supported by a Human Resources Division of 31.0 FTE (not including the Director). The Bloomberg BNA's HR Department Benchmarks and Analysis report identifies a benchmark ratio of 1.5 full-time HR staff per 100 employees. Further, the workload has increased in key areas of HR, such as compensation and employee relations due to employment law changes. Therefore, to be fully staffed the HR Team would need a total of 60 FTE, to reach 100 percent capacity.

Stated another way, each SCAO HR Analyst supports an average of 667 employees in widespread geographic locations. Of specific concern, is the potential for agency harm and litigation that can result when employee relations are not able to be addressed in a timely manner due to lack of adequate FTE. The requested FTE would bring the HR Division's total capacity to 61.67 percent. Ostensibly, the services in the areas of employee relations, mandatory training and first point of contact for HR would increase by 50 percent by adding 3.0 FTE and would reduce the service area per Analyst from an average of 667 employees to an average of 444 employees, increasing focused attention and services for each district.

HR workload metrics are influenced by employee turnover, specifically related to the time it takes to process a retirement/separation and to develop and post job descriptions. As of May 2022, the average turnover rate for the Judicial Branch was approximately 14 percent. In FY 2021-22, the HR Division processed 502 retirement/separations, excluding contracts, judges, and law clerks who are generally expected to leave after one year. Additionally, the Colorado Equal Pay for Equal Work Act requires thorough analysis of each pay change and new hire salary offer, which is critical to avoid potential litigation. There are 2.5 FTE who do this analysis, one of which is a Total Compensation Manager who is responsible for leading half of the HR Division's day-to-day functions, including payroll, benefits, and compensation.

It is important to note that, while the above data is specific to organizational turnover and vacancies, it is not reflective of additional responsibilities of the HR Division. In addition to supporting the SCAO in hiring and onboarding new employees, it is also responsible for SCAO Total Compensation and Business Analysis. A portion of the 31.0 FTE identified above are responsible for these functions, which include payroll and legal support.

Finally, while the Judicial Department is not subject to the COWINS Partnership Agreement and uses a system maintenance plan and methodology independent of the Executive Branch, ensuring that disparity is not created within the State of Colorado will require an in-depth analysis of Judicial Department total compensation for each employee. To accomplish this for those in the classified system, the Department of Personnel has requested 26.0 FTE. Judicial salary analysis will begin in January 2023 and with a similar ratio would require an additional 4.0 FTE. While the 7.0 FTE requested in the Department's R2 budget request is not specific to the upcoming total compensation salary analysis, it is essential for increasing the HR Division capacity from the current 51.66 percent.

Contract and Vendor Management

As the Department addresses the lack of overall administrative functions and capacity, the need to appropriately engage and manage vendors continues. The Department believes that the actions of the last few years to increase this capacity have been valuable, but there is still more needed to adequately uphold the operational and fiduciary responsibilities in these areas.

The Contracts Management Unit (CMU) addresses the full range of contracting needs for the SCAO and the 22 Judicial Districts. This includes drafting more than 800 contracts annually, in addition to providing other compliance and support services. The CMU is still very early in its development and assessing the total contracts needed for the Department. There is a substantial unmet need for contracts resulting from the high volume of vendors the Department uses across the state. In addition to the current annual contract load, the CMU has identified an additional 680 vendors with 1,500 existing relationships that are operating without an agreement and require a contract as soon as possible. The CMU is applying new efficiency measures and contractual approaches to manage the impact of this currently unmet contract demand. While these changes will mitigate some of the impacts of this additional demand, additional drafting resources are needed. The two additional drafting-focused Contracts Specialist (CS) positions will increase the number of these roles from four to six. The two additional CS2 positions will most directly respond to the work associated with these additional contracts.

As the Contracts Management Unit has increased its capacity to create contracts, it has become apparent to the Department that there is a need for better coordination and collaboration with its vendors. Specifically, there are approximately 1,000 vendors used by the Department to provide services to probationers and other services for individuals in the court system. There are basic administrative aspects associated with the vendor relationship that are critical to procuring, contracting and managing these vendors. There are currently no staff dedicated to these functions within the Department. Instead, the function has fallen on administrative staff, Chief Probation officers, Deputy Chief Probation Officers, Court Executives, SCAO Division Directors and Managers and various other staff. These staff have other functions that make up their full-time work and none are trained or experienced in contract and vendor management. The four purchasing staff will perform several aspects of working with the Department's vendor community in an effort to ensure efficient and excellent services are provided to stakeholders. In addition, the new staff will focus on collecting and monitoring insurance, certifications, background checks and the requirements of the contract itself. These are critical elements of vendor management that have been fully implemented.

8. [Rep. Bird]* Please discuss the Courts' intentions to create a judicial ombudsman position, role, or office.

Organizational ombuds are employed by both public and private sector organizations across the United States to provide a safe place for employees to navigate workplace challenges and to assist the leadership of the organization in identifying trends in the workplace and recommend systematic improvements. Currently, no state court system in the country employs an organizational ombuds. Within Colorado, the University of Colorado, Colorado State University, and the Denver Public Schools employ organizational ombuds.

A report prepared by Investigations Law Group found that a disproportionately high number of employees did not feel comfortable reporting complaints of discrimination, harassment, or retaliation. In response to this information, the State Court Administrator's Office (SCAO) engaged three national ombuds experts to discuss the benefit of providing an ombuds service to the organization's employees. Organizational ombuds function independently, impartially, informally, and confidentially. Unlike independent ombuds, organizational ombuds are not mandatory reporters, meaning that employees can discuss matters confidentially with the ombuds and then the employee decides the best path to move forward. After consultation with these national experts, it was determined an organizational ombuds is the only appropriate model for navigating Judicial Department employee-to-employee issues. An organizational ombuds serves employees and the organization most effectively when it is housed within the organization it serves. By providing a safe place for employees to discuss concerns and consider options, the national experts say that the organizational ombuds will bolster the formal reporting structures and provide leadership of the organization a better understanding of the concerns facing workers across the state.

The Judicial Organizational Ombuds will report to the State Court Administrator and will be supported by an advisory committee made up of a cross section of Judicial Department leaders from around the state. The responsibilities of the Judicial Organization Ombuds will be defined in a charter and include being available to serve staff in courts, probation, and the SCAO. The Judicial Organizational Ombuds will:

- In accordance with statute, refer all matters involving Judicial Officers directly to the Commission on Judicial Discipline;
- Listen to employees and work to understand issues while remaining neutral with respect to the facts;
- Assist employees in navigating issues and developing and helping individuals evaluate options;
- Guide or coach individuals to deal directly with other parties, including the use of formal resolution resources of the organization;
- Refer individuals to appropriate resolution resources;
- Assist in elevating issues to formal resolution channels;
- Facilitate informal resolution processes; and
- Identify new issues and opportunities for systemic change in the organization.

The organizational ombuds will not do the following:

- Participate in formal investigations or play any role in a formal issue resolution process;
- Serve in any other organizational role that would compromise the neutrality of the ombuds role;
- Receive notice for the organization; or
- Make binding decisions or mandate policies.

An important tool utilized by the Judicial Organizational Ombuds is the Safe Reporting System. The Safe Reporting System is a vendor-developed system that will provide an alternative method for Judicial Department employees to report concerns about the behavior of other Judicial Department employees. It will also allow the staff at the SCAO to receive, track, and report on complaints in a systemic manner that will support the goals of the workplace culture and organizational development investment. In addition to providing another reporting mechanism for employees, the system would collect key data indicators on types, frequency, and location of concerns that will be analyzed to identify trends and areas of focus to ensure a healthy and safe workplace environment. The central repository of complaints, facilitated by the software system, would also create the opportunity to analyze longitudinal data trends and demonstrate progress of the efforts of the office.

9. [Rep. Bird] Please provide an overview of the Problem-solving Courts, including history, experience, results or outcomes, and future initiatives.

Problem-Solving Courts (PSCs) are specialized court dockets heard by judicial officers that attempt to address issues like substance addiction and untreated mental health challenges in order to reduce recidivism rates. Problem-Solving Courts (PSCs) integrate treatment and community resources with case processing. Using multidisciplinary teams, PSCs streamline court dockets, integrate wrap-around services, and improve social determinants of health¹ for participants. PSCs are substantially more resource intense than the traditional approach to docket management.

The State Court Administrator's Office (SCAO) Problem-Solving Court (PSC) Unit (the Unit) currently supports over 700 team members from approximately 80 programs and specialty dockets across 20 judicial districts, which actively serve approximately 3,500 participants.² The programs include criminal and civil courts with specializations of adult and juvenile, DUI, mental health, veterans, domestic violence, family treatment (dependency and neglect), and truancy.

History

The first PSC in Colorado was implemented in Denver in 1994. Since then, Colorado PSCs have grown exponentially. The first family treatment court (FTC) began operating in 2003 and the first veterans' treatment court (VTC) in 2009. Each of Colorado's PSCs started and continue to be sustained through grassroots efforts and strong local leadership using existing resources and limited involvement from state government.

Statewide coordination of PSCs started in approximately 2007. The PSC Advisory Committee was established by the Supreme Court on April 9, 2008 and charged with the task of developing effective procedures and strategies for implementing evidence-based practices in Colorado Problem Solving Courts. Since its inception, committee members have met on a quarterly basis under the direction of the Committee Chair.

In 2009, Colorado was the recipient of a two-million-dollar American Recovery and Reinvestment Act grant. This grant provided the first statewide funding stream specifically dedicated to PSCs. The Colorado Judicial Department requested and successfully obtained permanent state funding for PSCs in 2011.

Experience of a PSC for Participant

Colorado's PSCs use a variety of operational procedures based on location. Participants are identified and referred from a variety of referral sources including attorney representation, probation, treatment, law enforcement, child welfare, and self-referral. PSC programs use validated risk assessments, such as Level of Supervision Inventory (LSI), to identify which participants are at risk for committing new crimes or failing standard probation.³ After a referral

¹ Social Determinants of Health \(SDOH\)

² Point in time data from July 1 – September 30, 2021 shows 3,511 participants in that quarter is received by the program the potential participant is screened using objective program eligibility criteria. PSC participants have a variety of needs related to housing, employment, and education substantiated by statewide program data.

³ NADCP Best Practices Manual, Volume 1, page 5.

Many participants have extensive criminal history, a history of non-compliance on probation, a diagnosed substance use disorder, or previous child welfare involvement. Once referred and accepted, a participant can expect a sentence to the PSC program as a condition of probation or their adjudicated in a civil matter. On average, criminal PSC programs are 12-24 months in duration, and probation may be extended. Due to the strict and swift timeline requirements of the Adoption and Safe Families Act (ASFA), family treatment courts average closer to 12 months in duration.

PSCs use American Society of Addiction Medicine's (ASAM) criteria to determine treatment level of care.⁴ Participants are referred to local treatment providers for services based on their assessed ASAM level of care and their individual treatment plan. Treatment can include, but is not limited to, Inpatient or Residential, Enhanced Outpatient, Intensive Outpatient, group counseling, and individual counseling. The majority of Colorado's PSC Participants (89.7 percent, N=1375) are in outpatient treatment with the remaining in residential treatment (5.4 percent) or inpatient (4.9 percent).

At the start of the program, participants meet with their probation officer or case manager at least every other week and attend court at least two times a month. For every participant, substance testing occurs at a minimum of two times per week on a random schedule, including weekends and holidays. Throughout the program, PSC Teams use behavior modification techniques through sanctions, incentives, and therapeutic adjustments to respond to participant behavior.

As participants progress in the program, they gain stability in the community by securing housing and employment and in their recovery. Participants move closer to program completion, and they attend court and meet with their probation officer or case manager less frequently (once per month). They continue substance use testing at a minimum of two times per week. When a participant completes the program phases and requirements, they celebrate with the PSC team through a graduation ceremony.

In a statewide evaluation of Colorado's PSC programs, NPC Research found that while cost per participant varies widely across our PSC programs, program participation results in reduced use of prison resources, including fewer days in prison.⁵ Additionally, NPC's study found that drug court graduates are less likely to reoffend. Compared to the control population after 1 year, they are:

- 9 percent less likely to be rearrested for any offense and
- 4 percent less likely to be rearrested for a drug offense
- Cost per day in a problem-solving court is three times less than the cost per day of incarceration.

⁴ ASAM Criteria

⁵ NPC - CO Statewide Evaluation 2020 of PSCs

Nationally, PSCs result in up to a 58 percent reduction in recidivism.⁶ In a multistate evaluation, the National Institute of Justice (NIJ) found that PSC participants reported less engagement in criminal activity and fewer rearrests than a comparison group. The evaluation also found that PSC participants had lower levels substance use and were less likely to test positive for substances in substance screening tests. While treatment costs were high, PSCs saved an average of $6,000 per participant.⁷ In a 2022 review of research, the National Drug Court Resource Center (NDCRC) stated that PSC "programs have been consistently linked to positive outcomes such as decreased recidivism, substance use, and cost to the community."⁸

Priorities and Initiatives

The Unit is focused on six statewide technical assistance (TA) priorities to adequately support district-level operations, enhance participant outcomes, and guide future initiatives:

1. Accreditation Program and Certification Process
 - Colorado is 1 of 10 states nationally that certifies programs through a process that evaluates and ensures compliance with research-based standards.⁹
 - The Unit reviews program operations, provides coaching, and leads application reviews with the Statewide Advisory Committee.
 - Through a Bureau of Justice Assistance FY22 grant, the Unit will ensure accreditation or reaccreditation of 85 percent of Colorado's problem-solving courts (50 total).
2. Equitable Access to Programs, Treatments, and Services
 - The Unit is at the forefront nationally in developing Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (DEI) Standards that comply with National Association of Drug Court Professionals (NADCP) best practice standard II. DEI training opportunities are provided to teams statewide. The goal of the DEI standards is to provide PSC teams guidance in understanding how their programs are performing through an equity lens.
 - In year two of the Equity Mentor Courts (EMC) program, the Unit provides training and program improvement support to participating district teams. Two teams (1st and 2nd JD) are the current EMC cohort. Two DUI courts (2nd and 5th JD) completed EMC last year and continue to support the new cohort. The expansion of EMC curriculum to other programs through on-demand training and expanded live trainings is anticipated over the next several years.
3. Statewide Training Plan
 - The Unit assesses training needs for the state, districts, and programs and customizes training to include annual conferences, in-person, virtual, and hybrid statewide and local trainings, and on-demand via Learning Management Systems (LMS).
 - The Unit implements a multi-tiered statewide training and technical assistance (TTA) program that assists PSC practitioners around the state in acquiring the education, skills, and support they need to adhere to evidence-based best practices shown to improve participant outcomes and reduce recidivism.
4. Program Data Visibility, Evaluation, and Quality Improvement
 - From 2008 to June 30, 2021, PSC Data Drives Dollars (PSC3D) was used as a data collection and analysis tool. In 2018, a grant was awarded to purchase a robust

⁶ Drug-Court-Fact-Sheet-2020.pdf (nadcp.org)

⁷ Drug-Court-Fact-Sheet-2020.pdf (nadcp.org) and Drug Courts (ojp.gov)

⁸ View of Fall 2022: Equity and Inclusion (ndcrc.org)

⁹ Best Practice Standards provide courts with consistent, measurable, and predictable guidelines and operational practices that research establishes as effective and impacting positive participant outcomes for the problem-solving court model.

management information system (MIS), and NPC Research created a temporary MIS (which has been used from July 1, 2021 to present). The procurement process for the new system is complete and will begin the build phase this year.

- To sustain program evaluation, the Unit is collaborating with institutions of higher education and developing an aggregate, live data dashboard.
- Through BJA FY20 grant, a performance measurement tool is in production. The tool will measure compliance and increase PSC adherence with Best Practice Standards.

5. Peer Specialist Site Funding and Support

- A grant awarded to the Unit in 2020 allowed six judicial districts to implement peer specialist programs, including direct peer support, mentoring, and alumni peer coach training, which enhance recovery and aftercare.¹⁰ The Unit is collecting and analyzing the outcomes of their implementation. This information will be essential to the continuation and sustainability of peer programs at the local level.
- The Unit collaborates with American University on a study of the state's veterans' peer mentor services. When funding was awarded in 2018, this was a first-of-its-kind study.

6. Resource Development and Mapping

- The Unit reduces barriers to multidisciplinary team member participation in dedicated PSC dockets by developing solutions to address workload and availability concerns.
- Using focus groups, the Unit identified statewide programmatic needs and collaborates with district-level staff to develop community partnerships, establish alumni and recovery events, and increase availability of and modalities used for training.
- Through BJA FY20, the Unit will continue to build partnerships with institutions of higher education by creating regional Centers of Excellence (COE). Each COE will work with the Unit and stakeholders in their area to address the resource needs of PSCs in their region.

10. [Rep. Bockenfeld] How many rejected community corrections diversion placements ended up on probation, as opposed to incarcerated? How do pre-COVID data compare to current data?

The Judicial Department does not collect data regarding local community corrections board screening outcomes and the degree to which those outcomes impact judges' sentencing decisions. The Judicial Department is only able to report on how many community corrections screens occur but do not know the outcome or purpose of those screening referrals, whether for revocation or for new sentence considerations. Additionally, the Office of Community Corrections in the Division of Criminal Justice (DCJ) collects aggregate information about the number of screenings that are done and which of those are accepted or rejected. This information may be available through the Department of Public Safety or in the Community Corrections Annual Report. Due to those factors and some variation at the local level for community corrections screening boards (e.g., screenings may be done presentence, post-sentence, or upon revocation as part of a re-sentence), we can neither report nor estimate with any reliability the degree to which rejected cases are sentenced to probation (in lieu of prison).

11. [Sen. Zenzinger] Please discuss recent trends in restitution payments, especially child support.

The Judicial Department does not collect child support payments. Pursuant to Title 26, payments for child support and maintenance are handled through the Family Support Registry within the Department of Human Services.

¹⁰ The Mission Educate grant supports funding and technical assistance for the 1st, 4th, 16th, 17th, 20th, and 22nd Judicial Districts.

The Collections Program in the Judicial Department is a statewide, cash funded program focused on the collection of revenue and restitution. Over the last four fiscal years, the Department has collected an average of approximately $35 million per year in restitution for victims.

The chart below shows total restitution principal and interest collected for FY 2018-19 through November 30, 2022. During the COVID-19 pandemic, collections decreased slightly during FY 2019-20 but have since returned to pre-pandemic levels. While the chart shows a slight decrease in restitution collections in FY 2021-22, collections in FY 2020-21 included a one-time, lump sum restitution payment of $3.4 million for a single case.

Restitution collections in FY 2022-23 are on pace to exceed FY 2021-22, largely due to intercepts of the TABOR refund authorized by S.B. 22-233 (TABOR Refund Mechanism for FY 2021-22 Only). As of November 30, 2022, the Department has already collected a total of over $24 million in restitution principal and interest.

The Department is currently in the process of implementing the Office of Restitution Services created by S.B. 22-043 (Restitution Services for Victims). This Office will further assist victims in navigating the entire judicial system to recover restitution due to them by:

- Receiving requests from victims regarding semi-annual statements of their restitution;
- Answering questions and providing assistance to victims with case-specific questions related to court-ordered restitution;
- Creating and maintaining a web page on the Judicial Department website with resources and information;
- Assisting with training related to the administration of restitution; and
- Collaborating with victim advocacy programs.

12. [Sen. Bridges] Please explain how Probation measures recidivism, including any recent changes. Also, please update the Committee on any recent efforts to align definitions for recidivism across multiple departments (Judicial, Corrections, Public Safety).

Colorado probation has conducted an annual recidivism study since 1996. In reports published from 1996 through 2020, probation measured and reported on pre- and post-release recidivism.

Pre-release recidivism was defined as termination from probation for a new felony or misdemeanor criminal act or technical violations, and post-release recidivism was defined as a new misdemeanor or felony filing within one year of successful termination from probation. This definition was consistent with the one used by DCJ to measure recidivism in Community Corrections. In 2019, the Colorado State Legislature passed S.B. 19-108 creating a Juvenile Justice Reform Committee tasked with implementing comprehensive juvenile justice reform throughout the state. One of those reform elements was the creation of a common definition of recidivism for juvenile justice agencies. The Juvenile Justice Reform Committee decided to adopt the definition of recidivism used by the Division of Youth Services (DYS), which necessitated a change in the definition of recidivism used by the Division of Probation Services for juvenile probationers. To maintain consistency in how Colorado reports recidivism for probationers, the definition of recidivism for adult probationers was also changed to that required by the implementation of S.B. 19-108. The new definitions for juvenile pre- and post-release recidivism were implemented in 2021: Pre-release recidivism is defined as a new deferred agreement, adjudication, or conviction while under probation supervision. Post-release recidivism is defined as a new deferred agreement, adjudication, or conviction one, two, and three-years post-release from probation regardless of whether that release is considered successful.

This definition is a departure from previous definitions in several ways. First, pre-release recidivism is now defined by a new deferred agreement, adjudication, or conviction rather than a termination from probation for a new criminal act or technical violations. It is not uncommon for a probationer to have some new criminal activity and still successfully complete probation. This change allows us to identify criminal behavior separate from the ultimate resolution of the probation sentence. Second, the post-release portion of the definition moves away from the filing of charges to a finding of guilt on the case. The use of a conviction (or an adjudication for juveniles or the presence of a deferred agreement for adults and juveniles) is consistent with criminal justice reform practices that emphasize the importance of admissions or findings of guilt and not relying solely on the filing of charges (that may be dismissed or have not reached guilty findings) to make assumptions about continued criminal conduct. Finally, the new definition is not limited to those probationers who have successfully completed probation. Capturing long-term outcomes for individuals regardless of how they ended their time on probation provides a more complete picture of the outcomes of individuals sentenced to probation. Table 1, below, compares the two definitions. While this shift in definition may generate slight changes in the recidivism rates reported, general trends in probation outcomes should remain consistent.

Table 1: Comparison of 1997 to 2021 Definition of Recidivism

Comparison of Recidivism Definitions
	Previous Definition (1996-2020)		Current Definition (2021-Current)
	Pre-Release	Post-Release	Pre-Release	Post-Release
Who?	All negative probation terminations-no lifetime SO	All successful terminations	All probation terminations-all probationers	All probation terminations-all probationers

What?	An adjudication or conviction for a felony or misdemeanor, or a technical violation relating to a criminal offense	New filing for a felony or misdemeanor	New deferred agreement, adjudication, or conviction for a felony or misdemeanor	New deferred agreement, adjudication, or conviction for a felony or misdemeanor
When?	Based on probation termination status	Within 1 year of successful termination	During probation supervision—from initial sentence date to termination date	Post termination from probation for 1, 2, and 3 years

Currently, Probation, the Division of Youth Services (DYS), and Diversion have a common definition. Of note, in the last year, Denver County has agreed to share conviction data with Judicial that can, in turn, be shared with other criminal justice agencies for recidivism study purposes. DCJ continues to use criminal filings post-release for Community Corrections cases and, according to the Colorado Department of Corrections website, parole defines recidivism as “a return to prison or offender status in Colorado within three years of release for new criminal activity or a technical violation of parole, probation, or non-department community placement.”

ADMIN SERVICES FOR INDEPENDENT AGENCIES

13. [Staff] Please provide the Courts' perspective on creating an administrative services unit for independent agencies.

The Department supports the creation of the Administrative Services for Independent Agencies office as a solution for the human resources and financial-related functions needed by the independent agencies. Over the years, the creation of independent agencies has produced additional workload that was absorbed by the State Court Administrators Office (SCAO). There is currently an existing gap between the administrative capacity of the Department and the needs of the Judicial Branch. This issue is magnified when combined with the administrative needs of the independent agencies.

BRIDGES PROGRAM RFI

14. [Staff] Please discuss the Bridges Program RFI and staff's issue brief to better inform the Committee's understanding of the RFI recommendation.

Establishing Bridges as an independent agency facilitates the growth needed to most effectively serve participants, courts, and communities. While the program is successful in meeting the overall mission in its current location within the State Court Administrator's Office, independence supports the role of the court liaison to fully meet all statutory obligations.

Located in the Judicial Branch, the Bridges Program carries an inherent tension for court liaisons between maintaining judicial neutrality in a case and meeting legislative expectations to effect equitable and positive outcomes for participants. Courts — and by extension the Bridges Program in its current location — are expected to maintain a neutral position regarding legal decision making. Court liaisons hold neutrality regarding the behavioral health best interests of participants. However, advocacy for the behavioral health best interests of the participant has the potential to effect outcomes in key decision-making points in a case. Information provided to the courts frequently points to a specific legal outcome, such as dismissal, sentencing, custody status, or whether to issue a warrant for arrest. The program would therefore function better as an independent agency clearly guided by the legislative directives to promote positive outcomes for participants and to ensure fair and humane treatment within the criminal justice system.¹¹

As the program has matured, the role of the court liaison has become more defined, with liaisons functioning as court appointed mental health advocates both in and out of the courtroom. As outlined above, Judicial officers depend on information provided by liaisons to make critical and complex case decisions. Liaisons also work as advocates in the community, both challenging and collaborating with systems to ensure the participant's mental health needs are met and stability factors are addressed. Sometimes the mental health needs of a participant necessitate that the liaison facilitate second opinions or make recommendations to the court that differ from a course of action occurring with a third party (often within the behavioral health system). Often, court liaisons identify barriers within systems that they or the court help to address. The Bridges Program therefore needs the ability to advocate for any appropriate resource that is in the best behavioral health interests of the participant and is best positioned as an independent agency to fulfill this role.

RECOMMENDATION

Expand the program to meet the administrative and infrastructure requirements of becoming an independent agency and fully meet the competency need in the State of Colorado by adding 7 administrative staff and 16 court liaisons to the program in FY24, 33 liaisons in FY25, and 18 liaisons in FY26, bringing the total to 96 court liaisons by June 30, 2026.

Creating an independent office will require at least seven administrative staff to include: executive director, staff assistant, legal program director, clinical program director, director of administrative services,

DEI program director and an office manager. The executive director position is the only position that will require funding for the entire fiscal year. The remaining positions will need partial funding as they will be hiring in the second or third quarter of the year.

With the program at full capacity, the existing 29 court liaisons are only meeting 35 percent of the competency need. Annually, this leaves approximately 4,400 new competency cases unserved each year. Proposed expansion would enable the program to fully meet the competency need in the state. Expansion also enables the program to serve more non-competency cases, enhancing the ability of the Bridges Program to divert individuals from the competency process altogether by providing earlier intervention.

As the program experiences success in its service to courts and participants (refer to Annual Report for detailed outcomes), demand for services continues to increase exponentially. In FY22, liaisons were appointed to approximately 2,000 new competency cases (not including the previous year's carryover) and another 800 non-competency cases. In addition to providing direct service to participants, liaisons file approximately 6,000 reports to the court and make almost 8,000 court appearances annually.

These numbers represent a 107 percent increase in participants over the previous two years. Many liaisons carry upwards of 60 participants on their caseloads at any one point in time. Participants are also considered high acuity in terms of their mental health needs. In the previous fiscal year, court liaisons collaborated in 93 mental health crisis interventions and facilitated cross-agency responses that resulted in 45 successful suicide interventions.

¹¹ The General Assembly, in SB 18-251, stated as its legislative intent that, "Colorado must make a commitment to ensure that all individuals within the criminal justice system are treated fairly and humanely, regardless of their behavioral health history or mental state," and directed that the program, "promote positive outcomes for individuals living with mental health or co-occurring behavioral health conditions."

Expansion of service capacity would enable the Bridges Program to bring the benefits of the program to more defendants, thereby supporting long-term stability for participants and positive outcomes for both individuals and communities.

RECOMMENDATION

Over three years, increase the annual budget to $14 million for the Bridges Program to fully support individuals engaged in the competency system and expand services to create universal access within the criminal justice system to the Bridges Program. Add 67 additional court liaisons. Create and sustain a participant services fund of $500,000 annually. And provide the necessary administrative and infrastructure support for the program.

The Bridges Program recommends a phased expansion over four years as follows:

	Current	FY24	FY25	FY26	FY27
Liaisons	29	45	78	96	96
Supervisors	1	14	14	14	14
Admin Staff	2	7	9	9	9
Participant Capacity	2393	3690	6396	7872	7872
New Case Capacity	2838	4410	7644	9408	9408
Service Fund	$0	$0	$500K	$500K	$500K
Annual Budget	$2.77M	$4.93M	$10.48M	$13.55M	$14.02M

Supporting participants successfully out of custody and into community-based services represents potentially significant cost avoidance across systems. The target population served by Bridges is most costly in terms of services provided in custody, in the competency evaluation and restoration process, and in terms of recidivism. Creating alternative interventions, particularly those designed to address long-term stability, can avoid each of the above-listed costs.

Regarding custody-related cost avoidance alone, according to a report by Vera Institute of Justice, in 2015 it cost $39,303 annually to jail one person in Colorado (which breaks down to $108 per day). Competency cases have an average case length of more than 450 days. For each Bridges competency participant who is released from custody, there is a jail cost avoidance of $108/day, totaling $48,600 over 450 days. Compared to an average Bridges Program cost of $3/day ($1,350 for 450 days), rough estimates show a potential jail cost avoidance upwards of $47,000 per competency participant who is released from custody.

At current service levels and rate of release from custody (35 percent), the program supports approximately 350 competency participants to transition out of custody each year, projecting jail cost avoidance at upwards of $13 million annually, as compared to the current program cost of $2.8 million. It is expected that the program would see a proportionate increase in cost benefits with expansion and that the initial investment in the program would more than pay for itself by reducing process and cost burdens on jails and on the court and competency systems.

COUNTIES SPECIAL FUNDING REQUEST FOR 23RD JD

- [Staff]* Please provide as much detail as possible, by fiscal year and task, on the Judicial Department's expenditures and anticipated expenditures related to the transition for the creation of the 23rd Judicial District. To the extent possible, please provide context to the special funding request submitted by the counties as it relates to all anticipated state expenditures by the Judicial Department. Are there items in their request that will be addressed by the Judicial Department? Based on the traditional split of responsibility for funding in the state court system, in the Judicial Department's opinion, which items included in the special request might be considered for additional state funding? If the

State were to provide additional funding for the counties for any portion of the transition through a bill, please describe the possible appropriation or funding mechanisms for providing additional funding to the counties and district attorney's offices.

House Bill 20-1026 removes Douglas, Elbert, and Lincoln Counties from the 18th Judicial District and creates a 23rd Judicial District composed of those counties beginning in 2025. The Judicial Department is required to submit a report with its annual budget request detailing the implementation costs of the creation of the 23rd Judicial District. Section 13-5-123.2 C.R.S. (b) states:

(b) For state fiscal years 2020-21 to 2024-25, a part of its annual budget request to the Joint Budget Committee of the General Assembly, the judicial Department shall include details about any budget requests related to the preparation for and creation of the twenty-third Judicial District.

The Department is complying complied with statute and has submitted or will submit this report in its annual budget submission for FY 2020-21 through FY 2023-24.

The costs incurred in FY 2022-23 and FY 202-24 are for alterations required in the numerous computer systems (over 50) including the court case management system.

In FY 2024-25 the costs shift from programming to staffing in anticipation of the 23rd Judicial District starting on January 7, 2025. The creation of a new district requires numerous positions including a Court Executive, a Chief Probation Officer and support staff for those positions as well as an additional Judicial Officer. The Department's FY 2024-25 budget submission will include a detail listing and cost of all new positions required for the new District.

The chart below summarizes the cost estimates for implementation.

23rd Judicial District Judicial Department Costs
	FY23	FY24	FY25	FY26
IT Transition Costs	$740,000	$1,100,000	$200,000	$0
Staffing/Administrative Cost	$0	$0	$1,200,000	$1,200,000
New Judge and Associated Costs	$0	$0	$400,000	$500,000
Total Costs:	$740,000	$1,100,000	$1,400,000	$1,200,000
Total FTE			12.1	14.5

The numbers listed above and identified in the fiscal note for HB20-1026 do NOT include any costs anticipated to be incurred by the counties for implementation of the 23rd Judicial District. However, the Department did submit with its budget request a report prepared by the counties with an estimate of costs to be incurred by them for creation of the 23rd Judicial District.

The counties report identified an estimated $10.3 million cost primarily to split the District Attorney's Office into two separate ones for the 18th and the new 23rd Judicial Districts. The chart below comes from this report:

Summary of Funding Requested for FY 2023-24
Arapahoe, Douglas, Elbert and Lincoln Counties and the 18th JD District Attorney Office
1. IT – Infrastructure, equipment, software, implementation costs, domain creation, integration and modification, data preservation, data separation, data migration, transition staffing (not recurring)	$3,600,000
2. Consultant Fee	$193,600

3. Transition Contractor/ Project management	$475,000
4. Forensic Accounting	$200,000
5. Casefiles and Records	$1,850,000
6. HR Staffing for Transition	$60,000
7. Finance Staffing for Transition	$60,000
8. Targeted DA Office Personnel	$1,175,000
9. Personnel Benefits	$2,000,000
10. DA Personnel – Retention bonuses	$400,000 - $640,000
11 and 12. Additional IT, HR, Finance and personnel costs related to transition, dependent on implementation decisions.	Unknown
Total Funds	$10,013,600 - $10,253,600

The decision concerning funding the above identified expenditures, which by statute are traditionally borne by the counties, is within the purview of the General Assembly. If the State were to provide funding for any of these costs, the Department would recommend an appropriation to the proposed Administrative Services Unit discussed at the briefing.

JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT –COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE
FY 2023-24 JOINT BUDGET COMMITTEE HEARING AGENDA

Thursday, December 15, 2022
9:00 am – 2:30 pm

COMMON QUESTIONS FOR DISCUSSION AT DEPARTMENT HEARINGS

Please describe the implementation plan for new programs added to the Department from one-time stimulus funds (such as the CARES Act, ARPA, and one-time General Fund), as well as any challenges or delays to program implementation.

As part of SB22-201, the Commission and the Office of Judicial Discipline were budgeted a limited amount of funds through the General Fund for Information Technology set up, furniture purchases, etc. The Commission is using these funds as intended and to purchase hardware to support the implementation of an electronic case management system. The Commission also had to unexpectedly arrange for on-going IT support through an outside vendor (rather than through the Department as contemplated through § 13-5.3-103(3), C.R.S.). Challenges to this program implementation have included identifying vendors and verifying the terms of contracts. The Commission has found cost savings in implementing this electronic case management system by working directly with the software provider. In addition, through a referral by Legislative Staff, the Commission is implementing a new website with significant cost savings through the State Internet Portal Authority (SIPA).

Please identify how many rules you have promulgated in the past year (FY 2021-22). With respect to these rules, have you done any cost-benefit analyses pursuant to Section 24-4-103 (2.5), C.R.S., regulatory analyses pursuant to Section 24-4-103 (4.5), C.R.S., or any other similar analysis? Have you conducted a cost-benefit analysis of the Department’s rules as a whole? If so, please provide an overview of each analysis.

The authority to promulgate rules is a current issue in the discussion of pending legislation. Under Colo. Const. Art. VI, § 23(3)(h): “The supreme court shall by rule provide for procedures before the commission on judicial discipline, the masters, and the supreme court.” Colo. RJD 11 further provides authority for the Commission to petition the Colorado Supreme Court to amend the Rules of Judicial Discipline “as may be necessary to implement the Commission’s Constitutional mandate.” Under Colo. RJD 4(f), “The Commission may adopt administrative policies, procedural rules, or forms for its internal operation or proceedings that do not conflict with the provisions of these Rules.” Enacted through SB 22-201, § 13-5.3-107, C.R.S. now requires the supreme court to provide the Commission with reasonable notice of proposed rule changes, to negotiate differences over these proposed changes in good faith, and to adopt any changed rules through a public notice and comment process. It is in this context that the Commission is requesting funding to consult with nationally recognized organizations to propose overall revisions to the Colorado Rules of Judicial Discipline. As part of the Colorado Supreme Court’s pending proposal to add a rule governing the court’s own recusal, the Commission has responded with its own proposal. Other than presenting this proposal and raising objections, however, the Commission has not promulgated any rules in the past year. Because of the structure currently provided through Colo. Const. Art. VI, § 23(3)(h), the Committee’s questions above are generally inapplicable to the Commission.

How many temporary FTE has the Department been appropriated funding in each of the following fiscal years: FY 2019-20, FY 2020-21, FY 2021-22, and FY 2022-23? For how many of the temporary FTE was the appropriation made in the Long Bill? In other legislation? Please indicate the amount of funding that was appropriated. What is the department's strategy related to ensuring the short term nature of these positions? Does the department intend to make the positions permanent in the future?

The Commission and Office first received legislative funding in FY 2022-23. As part of that budget, 4.0 FTE were approved. All of these FTE are permanent positions created in conjunction with SB 22-201 and with 100% of the funding being appropriated.

Please provide a description, calculation, and the assumptions for the fiscal impact of implementing the provisions of the Partnership Agreement, including but not limited to changes in annual leave accrual, holiday pay, and paid family and medical leave. If your department includes employees who are exempt from the Partnership Agreement, please indicate whether or not you intend to implement similar benefit changes as those required for covered employees. Please provide a breakdown of the fiscal impact of implementing the provisions of the Partnership Agreement for: a) employees who are subject to the Agreement, and b) employees who are exempt from the Agreement.

The Commission understands that these questions are generally inapplicable to the Judicial Department and, by extension, to the Commission.

REQUESTS

[Staff] Please describe and explain the Agency's request items.

When the Office of Judicial Discipline was created earlier in 2022, the expectation was that it would have the same resources available to it as previously provided to the Commission through the Colorado Supreme Court's allocation of attorney registration fee funding and other support provided through the Colorado Supreme Court's Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel. The Commission's funding request for FY 2021-23 was based upon assumptions that the salary levels for its special counsel and office manager positions were equivalent to similar positions and the level of representation previously provided through the Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel. After receiving additional information, the Commission now recognizes that salary adjustments are necessary to reflect the gravity and nature of the work involved and to both recruit and retain qualified staff. The Commission's budget request reflects setting the salary for its special counsel as equivalent to that of a county court judge, which is also equivalent to the salaries paid to the Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel's senior staff attorneys. The adjustment requested for the Commission's office manager position makes it equivalent to the salary allocated for the Commission's investigator. Ultimately, the Commission is merely requesting the same resources that were previously provided to it through direct funding from the Colorado Supreme Court and resources shared by the Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel.

In addition to its core request for salary adjustments, the Commission has requested a $25,000 appropriation to allow it to review and propose overall revisions to the Colorado Rules of Judicial Discipline, as recommended through consultation with a nationally recognized organization. Finally, the Commission has requested $25,000 to continue its transition to independent IT services and infrastructure.

ADMIN SERVICES FOR INDEPENDENT AGENCIES

[Staff] Please provide the Agency's perspective on creating an administrative services unit for independent agencies. Please provide additional context related to the Agency's need for administrative services support after June 30, 2023.

The Commission is supportive of the proposal for creating an independent administrative services unit to support the Commission as well as other independent agencies affiliated with the Judicial Department. Because of the Commission's critical role as a regulator of judicial conduct, independence from the judges and justices subject to its oversight is essential for the Commission to perform its Constitutional mandate.

The incomplete nature of the Commission's current independence and autonomy is evident through the yet to be fulfilled expectations of SB 22-201. § 13-5.3-103(3), C.R.S. recognizes that the Department and the Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel have concurrent obligations to provide the Commission with administrative support equivalent to that provided to the Colorado judicial performance commissions through June 30, 2023. Although a draft memorandum of understanding has been circulated, the Commission does not have a current agreement defining the support provided to it. Similarly, even though § 13-5.3-103(3), C.R.S. requires that the Judicial Department house the Commission in the Ralph L. Carr Judicial Center indefinitely, the Department has not yet presented the Commission with a lease or other agreement ensuring the stability of its current office location and access to other facilities. The Colorado Supreme Court has further announced a rule change to Colorado Rule of Civil Procedure 227 (effective December 1, 2022) that removes the Commission as a beneficiary of attorney registration fees (either directly or through assistance provided through the Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel).

Within this context, the Commission expects to submit a budget amendment requesting the addition of 4 FTE (an Accountant II, a HR Analyst II, an IT Support Tech I, and a Payroll Analyst). The cost of the budget amendment is estimated to be $339,073. The Commission recognizes the absurdity of having to create an administrative staff that would be the same size as the Office of Judicial Discipline, itself. The creation of the proposed independent administrative services unit would address the same needs and allow support for other similarly situated agencies, including a prospective judicial discipline / human resources ombudsman office that is independent from the Judicial Department (as was proposed before the Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline).

Regardless of whether the Commission's administrative support occurs through a newly created administrative services unit or the funding of additional FTEs within the Commission itself, there is a need for a legislative provision requiring continuing administrative support through the Department until the unit or positions can be filled and operational.

Appendix 27(u)

Brian D. Boatright, State of the Judiciary
Address, 2023 Colo. House Journal, pp. 78-88
(January 13, 2023);

1 Pursuant to House Rule 26(f), the House stood in recess to allow the
2 following former House members to speak on the resolution: Senators
3 Buckner, Fields, Exum, and Coleman.

4

5

6

House in recess for Joint Session.

7

8

9

10

JOINT SESSION

11

12

13

14

15

16

17

18 19 20

21

22

23

24

25

26

27

28

29

30

31

32

33

34

35

36

37

38

39

40

41

42

43

44

45

46

47

48

49

50

51

52

53

54

55

56

Pursuant to House Rule 26(f), the House stood in recess to allow the following former House members to speak on the resolution: Senators Buckner, Fields, Exum, and Coleman.

House in recess for Joint Session.

JOINT SESSION

The Joint Session was called to order by the Speaker of the House, Julie McCluskie.

On motion of Senate Majority Leader Moreno, the morning roll call of the Senate was made the roll call of the Joint Session.

Present--32.

Excused--3.

On motion of House Majority Leader Duran, the morning roll call of the House was made the roll call of the Joint Session.

Present--62.

Excused--2.

Vacant--1.

The Speaker declared a quorum present and as is customary presented the gavel to the President of the Senate to preside over the Joint Session.

President Fenberg requested the Joint Committee, composed of Senators Marchman, Chair, and Gardner, and Representatives Daugherty, Chair, Mabrey, and Evans to escort the Honorable Brian D. Boatright to the rostrum.

Chief Sergeant-at-Arms Jon Judson announced the arrival of the Honorable Brian D. Boatright, Chief Justice of the State of Colorado.

The Joint Committee escorted the Chief Justice to the rostrum where he addressed the Joint Session.

ADDRESS BY THE HONORABLE Chief Justice Brian D. Boatright

Each year in September, judicial officers from around the state – magistrates, county court judges, district court judges, appellate judges, and even some tribal judges – come together for three days to receive training and to exchange ideas. During this year’s conference, I had the opportunity to address all of the judicial officers in the state. I asked them to think back to when they first decided they wanted to become judicial officers. I asked them why. Why did you want to become a judicial officer? We had the ability to immediately look at their responses. The top answer was to help people, followed by the desire to make a difference, and third, to serve the community. While there were a lot of ways to express their why, the overarching themes reflect a genuine desire to serve our communities because they care about people who come into their court.

1 Every day around the state, in every court, our judicial officers take the bench
2 committed to uphold the rule of law. We handle over a half million cases every 3 year in 70 courthouses. Throughout the state, we have approximately 400 trial
4 court judges and magistrates presiding over small claims to first degree murder
5 cases. The criminal cases make up about 50% of the cases and garner most of 6 the headlines. But from my experience as a trial court judge, every day our 7 judges make decisions about families, children, our elderly, small businesses,
8 and the important topic of water. Every case we handle affects people, and 9 that's why having judges who care and want to serve is critical.

10

11 In my two years as chief justice, I have received calls and letters asking me to 12 intervene in cases. Parties to cases and even members of the public want me to 13 tell a judge how to handle a specific case, to remove a judge from a case, or to 14 undo a judge's ruling. They forget or don't understand that our judges are 15 independent constitutional officers, just like you all are. In other words, I do not 16 have any authority over a specific case until it comes to our court on appeal, and 17 I do not have any control over a judge's docket or case management decisions.

18

19 But let me tell you about how we are organized. The supreme court, as the head 20 of the judicial branch, has authority over the practice of law. We also have 21 administrative authority over the branch, which includes approximately 4,000
22 employees. Our judges are appointed by a merit selection system. Briefly, each 23 judicial district, of which there are 22 and soon to be 23, has a nominating 24 commission of seven people, four of which are non-lawyers. When we have a 25 judicial opening, the nominating commission reviews applications, conducts 26 interviews, and then selects two or three applicants to send to the Governor for 27 his selection. Political affiliation is not disclosed in the application process, and,
28 in my experience, it is not a consideration for the nominating commissions. The 29 Governor then has 15 days to appoint one of the candidates nominated by the 30 commission. A judge appointed by the Governor then stands for an initial 31 retention election after serving two years and retention elections for each 32 subsequent term, which varies in length from four years to ten years depending 33 on the court. Our system of selecting, evaluating, and retaining judges is the 34 best in the country. I will give you two examples why. First, when we have a 35 vacancy in our trial courts or appellate courts, our constitution requires that it
36 be filled within 45 days. In the federal system, vacancies are sometimes not 37 filled for months or even years due to the politics inherent in that system.
38 Second, of the current seven justices on the supreme court, three of us were 39 appointed by a republican governor to the trial court, and then the three of us
40 were later appointed by a democrat governor to the supreme court. As you can 41 see, one goal of merit selection is to de-politicize the judiciary and I think that 42 demonstrates its success.

43

44 I now want to turn to a topic that I dedicated much time to in my last State of 45 the Judiciary Address. Two years ago, I stood before you at a time when our 46 branch was the subject of public allegations of misconduct. At that time I, on 47 behalf of the supreme court and the entire Branch, committed to thorough and 48 transparent investigations. We have lived up to those commitments. In so doing, 49 we asked for the help of several of you here today and members of the 50 Executive Branch in selecting not only the investigators for the allegations but 51 also defining the scope of the investigations. The investigations were completed 52 last summer, and the results are posted in their entirety on the court's website.
53 If you have not read them, I urge you to do so. But today, I do not want to dwell 54 on the past. Instead of treading back through history, I want to tell you what we 55 learned and what we are doing in the future.

56

1 As I stand before you today, I am excited and energized by the meeting of the 2 minds and hearts of the Judicial Branch. We are reflecting, learning, acting, and 3 committing to a future that supports our conviction to assure the Branch is a 4 great place for our employees to work, provides the best service to the state of 5 Colorado, and maintains systems to enhance public trust.

6
7 As a result of the engaged participation with the Branch's leadership and staff,
8 we have three strategic priorities for our emerging future. First, we are 9 improving our operations to better serve Colorado. We are building operational 10 excellence and strong oversight into our business operations. As such, the 11 public and you will have confidence in our business-related decisions. Second,
12 we are empowering our employees. We commit to making the Branch a place 13 where employees and staff feel engaged and empowered. We recognize the 14 importance of having a sense of deep connection to our organization's purpose, 15 and having employees know their contributions are making a difference to those 16 we serve; and third, we are listening to all stakeholders. We continue to have 17 our ears wide open and are building a continuous, welcoming, and safe
18 feedback loop with our staff and stakeholders. To our staff, to you, we hear you, 19 and we are taking your feedback and communication seriously.

20
21 In the spirit of looking forward and improving our workplace and operations, 22 we asked the investigators to make concrete recommendations for improving
23 our operations and our culture.

24
25 Former U.S. Attorney Bob Troyer was the lead on the first investigation.
26 Following the investigation, his group had recommendations for improving our 27 operations. The Troyer report contained recommendations for strengthening the 28 Branch's fiscal rules, ensuring that the leadership receives adequate support and 29 training, and improving transparency in decision-making and communication.
30 Consistent with the recommendations, the Branch is revising its rules, better 31 defining leadership roles, improving training, and emphasizing more detailed 32 ethical expectations. To that end, in our budget request you will see a request 33 for additional resources for training. These training resources will be used to 34 help staff and judges.

35
36 Investigations Law Group, led by Liz Rita, conducted the second investigation.
37 A large part of that investigation scrutinized the Branch's workplace culture.
38 ILG found that the Judicial Department has a positive workplace culture and,
39 by and large, our employees are proud to work for us. ILG, however, also found
40 areas for improvement. Women make up about 77% of our non-judge work
41 force and about 44% of our judge population. But overall, women were less 42 positive about our culture. Most upsetting to me was learning that some of our 43 employees did not feel comfortable reporting unacceptable behavior or 44 workplace concerns for fear of retaliation or because they didn't believe it
45 would be taken seriously. That is not acceptable, and we will do better. One 46 step we are taking to address that concern is contained in our budget request.
47 We are asking for an Organizational Ombudsperson. Our Organizational 48 Ombudsperson would provide a safe place for our employees to get assistance, 49 support, and resources for workplace issues involving non-judge staff, while 50 maintaining an independent complaint and investigation process for the Office
51 of Judicial Discipline when a complaint concerns a judicial officer. That 52 Organizational Ombudsperson would act as a guide for our employees when 53 they have concerns.

54
55

1 A second step is to bring our HR Department up to modern standards. If you
2 read the ILG report, you will see references to an Office of People and Culture.
3 In my view, what that is recommending is the modernization of our HR
4 practices and increased support resources for our employees and judges. In a
5 nutshell, we want our new Office of People and Culture to be proactive, not 6 reactive. We want an office that can help recruit, onboard efficiently and 7 effectively, train our new employees, and provide continuous training for all 8 employees. And importantly, proactive work around diversity, equity, and 9 inclusion will be a significant priority of this office. We are moving forward 10 with this office not simply to implement a recommendation, but because we 11 believe that it is the right thing to do. How we treat our employees is of critical 12 importance to how we best serve the public.

13
14 At an even higher level, we are re-examining our mission, vision, and values as 15 an organization, both internally and to the public we serve. This will help us
16 move forward together and ensure that our work is tethered to what we value
17 as an organization. In sum, we want to empower our employees and truly make 18 the Branch an excellent place to work and one where employees will see our 19 work as a career and not just a job. This will allow us to best serve the public.

20
21 Implementation of these recommendations is not just an exercise in checking
22 boxes. What we have learned from the investigators, from other courts, and 23 from experts in organizational change management, is that true organizational 24 change cannot be mandated. When change comes in the form of a top-down
25 policy or mandate, it will fail. We need every judge and employee to understand 26 our strengths and our deficiencies, our goals, and to have a voice in how we 27 move forward. We want engagement from all employees around the state.

28
29 With that goal in mind, the seven justices decided that we needed to go to each 30 of our courthouses and talk with our 4,000 employees and 300 plus judges, and 31 we needed to do that in person. So, we did. From September through the end of 32 December we divided up the state amongst the seven of us and, many times
33 accompanied by a Court of Appeals judge, hit the road with the goal of meeting
34 and hearing from every judicial branch employee. And while we didn't count 35 heads for attendance, we were largely successful. Our goals were to listen to the 36 concerns and issues that are important to our employees and judges and 37 hopefully convey that we sincerely care about each and every one of them.

38
39 In these discussions, we heard certain themes: Compensation is a real issue for 40 our employees. Many of our employees are really struggling financially. We 41 have a large number of employees working two jobs to make ends meet. As one 42 probation officer put it, I supervise sex offenders by day and wait tables by 43 night. This is also true for many of our judicial assistants. The branch has 44 employees in every county of the state, and these compensation issues are 45 compounded by the extremely high cost of living in many of our communities.
46 Because we are required to have courthouses and court operations in every 47 county, we cannot just say it is too expensive to do business in certain parts of 48 the state. For instance, our courthouse in Pitkin County has been understaffed 49 by 40% for the last two years.

50
51 Suffice it to say that in many parts of the state we are simply not paying a 52 livable wage. We are losing good employees everyday to higher paying jobs.
53 Staff turnover and training were discussed extensively. We need to do a better 54 job of onboarding and training our staff. Failing to properly support our 55 employees right from the start and provide continuous training can lead to 56 frustration, performance issues, and more turnover. In the simplest of terms:

1 frequent turnover leads to training issues and inadequate training leads to
2 turnover. Frankly, we heard that it is difficult to have a shared mission and a 3 culture of excellence when staff are constantly turning over.

4
5 Interestingly, the investigations were not an important topic to most Branch
6 employees. While the supreme court has been significantly involved with the 7 investigations for the last two years, our employees have just been doing their 8 jobs while confronting COVID, inflation, remote hearings, turnover, increased 9 demands, understaffed human resources support, and trying to make ends meet.
10 We heard from many of our employees that what happened over 3 years ago
11 involving people who are no longer with the branch was not important to them,
12 and they have confidence that the right steps are being taken for our future.

13
14 On the positive side, in our listening sessions, we also found that employees all 15 around the state are deeply committed to doing the work of the Judicial Branch.
16 I could not be prouder of our employees. The branch survived some trying times
17 during COVID. The courts managed to stay open and avoided large outbreaks 18 of COVID, and we are continuing to emerge from the backlog of jury trials. Our 19 judicial officers, court executives, clerks of court, court staff, and probation 20 officers are front line heroes. They innovated, they collaborated, and they 21 should be commended.

22
23 I want to touch on two legislative matters that have been important to the 24 Judicial Branch and our operations. I earlier referenced that we will soon have 25 a 23rd judicial district. In 2020, a new law was enacted that split the current 26 18th Judicial District in two. Beginning in 2025, Arapahoe County will be the 27 18th Judicial District, and Douglas, Elbert, and Lincoln Counties will comprise 28 the new 23rd Judicial District. The law created some uncertainties in how 29 judges from the 18th would be assigned to the new 23rd. Thankfully, with the 30 help of Representative Weissman, Senator Gardner, Senator Fields, Senator
31 Van Winkle, and Representative Kennedy, the legislature passed a concurrent
32 resolution to clarify the mechanics of the judge assignments. The voters 33 overwhelmingly approved Amendment D this past November, and this will 34 ensure a smooth transition and no disruption in services for the courts in the 35 new 23rd Judicial District. Thank you all.

36
37 This past summer, the legislature convened an interim committee to look at 38 possible legislative and constitutional changes to the disciplinary process for 39 judges in Colorado. At the end of a thorough and lengthy process, the 40 Committee proposed one legislative bill and one concurrent resolution to amend
41 the constitution to change the judicial discipline process. The proposed changes 42 improve transparency of the process, ensure due process for judges, and bring 43 Colorado in line with modern judicial discipline systems. The legislation 44 reflects a true bipartisan effort and are good, common-sense changes. I want to 45 thank Representative Mike Weissman and former Representative Terri Carver 46 for chairing the interim committee and, through their leadership, ensuring that 47 the process was not politicized. I also want to thank the other Committee 48 members for their hard work and dedication during this process.

49
50 I will now move to something that is frequently misunderstood and overlooked
51 —the work of our probation departments. I served as the liaison justice to our 52 probation departments for many years, and I was always bothered by the false
53 assumptions about the work of probation. I want our probation staff to know
54 that they are not overlooked by me or by our court, and I want to clear up any 55 misimpressions that the public may have about the mission, work, and values
56 of our probation officers. Our probation officers are the unsung heroes of not

1 only the Judicial Branch, but of the entire criminal justice system. Probation
2 remains the most cost-effective method for supervising offenders. This fiscal 3 year an offender incarcerated in the Department of Corrections will cost the 4 state approximately $57,000, an offender in the Community Corrections
5 program approximately $14,000, and an offender on parole approximately 6 $7,700. An offender on probation, by contrast, will cost the state about $1,900
7 – a fraction of the cost of any of the alternatives. And when you consider that 8 at any given time throughout the year that the probation department is 9 supervising approximately 70,000 people, you can clearly understand the 10 monetary value of our probation officers. But what they do to help their clients 11 is much more important than the monetary cost of supervision. I want to 12 emphasize that probation is not punitive. Probation is intended to rehabilitate 13 an offender, reintegrate them into the community, and to provide tools to help
14 the offender successfully complete a probation sentence. From my 30-plus
15 years of working in the criminal justice system, I know that our probation 16 officers want their probation clients to succeed.

17
18 I have three stories to share that speak to the human side of probation. This fall
19 in the Westminster Office of the 17th Judicial District in Adams County,
20 probation officer Bill Benson was entering the men's restroom and found a man
21 on the floor unconscious and not breathing. Bill saw drug paraphernalia on the 22 floor. He asked the front office to call 911. He returned to the bathroom and 23 administered one dose of Narcan to the man. The man did not respond, and Bill
24 began chest compressions. Shawn Doyle next responded. The man remained 25 unconscious. Bill then administered a second dose of Narcan. Bill continued
26 compressions and Shawn (utilizing a shield from an emergency bag) began 27 rescue breaths. Shane Stockley arrived and immediately retrieved the 28 Automated External Defibrillator (AED). Shane and Dmitri Medoff applied the 29 AED. The AED located a pulse, instructed responders to continue CPR and 30 advised against emergency shock. Bill, Shawn, Shane, and Dmitri positioned 31 the man on his side as instructed by the AED. The man began taking periodic 32 breaths but was still unresponsive. Paramedics arrived and soon thereafter, and 33 the man regained consciousness. It was determined that he was a probationer 34 who had overdosed on fentanyl in the restroom. The client was transported by 35 ambulance and survived. This group adhered to the Narcan and First Aid/CPR 36 training protocol and their textbook response was exemplary. Simply stated, the 37 heroic actions of these individuals saved that man's life.

38
39 In Douglas County, the 18th Judicial District, Probation Officer Miranda
40 Shepherd went to the waiting room of the probation department and discovered
41 one of her clients seemingly asleep. She was not able to wake him by calling his 42 name. After touching his arm, she got him to wake up and gave him some 43 water. She then realized that the client was in distress. She notified her
44 supervisor, Kathy Krick, of the situation. They called for help, and the client
45 was transported to the hospital. On the way to the hospital, paramedics
46 administered two doses of Narcan to save his life. It is not difficult to think 47 what would have happened if Miranda and Kathy had waited even a few 48 minutes to act. By Miranda and Kathy's keen observation and quick actions, 49 they too saved that client's life. Everyone involved in these two situations are 50 heroes.

51
52 The final probation story is about a woman I will call Sara and her probation
53 officer, Cassie Korse. Sara grew up in a tumultuous family and began using 54 drugs with her mother at a young age. In 2018, she was sentenced for felony
55 drug possession. When she was placed on probation, she was using illegal drugs
56 and alcohol. She had a young son and was in an abusive relationship with her

1 husband. Initially, she tried outpatient treatment, but she continued to use illegal
2 drugs. She was then referred to a short-term intensive residential treatment
3 program. She was discharged, however, because she was suicidal. The situation
4 with her husband continued to escalate and Human Services became involved.
5 Her son was eventually placed in foster care. Her probation officer and human 6 services then worked together to get Sara back on track. Despite the team effort,
7 Sara's probation was revoked and regranted, meaning that she was given
8 another chance to succeed on probation instead of going to prison. This was the 9 third time she was granted probation. Her Probation Officer and caseworker
10 were then able to get her into Sobriety House where she was prescribed and 11 regularly took her mental health medication, received medically assisted 12 treatment called suboxone, and became involved in Narcotic Anonymous
13 meetings. Sara finally had a positive support system around her. Despite that,
14 she continued to have positive drug tests, and she was discharged from Sobriety
15 House. Nevertheless, Cassie, her probation officer, did not give up on her.
16 Cassie was able to get her into a sober living house called David's House,
17 which was paid for by probation. Sara continued her treatment, and something
18 clicked for her. She eventually became the house manager. She got her son 19 back. She stayed sober and her probation was successfully terminated. She is 20 now a Peer Support Specialist at a treatment provider. Recently, she wrote her 21 probation officer: "Hi Cassie! Not sure if you remember me but this is Sara. I
22 am working as a Peer Support Specialist and working with a problem-solving
23 court. I am still sober, 3 1/2 years!!! I have my son back and I am doing
24 fantastic. I really just wanted to say thank you. I really think that you went 25 above and beyond for me and it seriously changed my life. Between you and 26 Child Protective Services, you saved my life. I will be four years clean on May 27 20th. I could not be more thrilled with how my life has turned around. I now get 28 to help others in their addictions and really get to spread the word that recovery 29 is possible. "

30
31 I share this story with the hope that it dispels any idea that probation is anxious 32 to revoke probation and jail their clients. Sara repeatedly violated her probation,
33 but her probation officer did not give up on her. Hopefully this story 34 demonstrates how our probation officers are deeply committed to their clients' 35 success.

36
37 I asked Bill Benson, Shawn Doyle, Shane Stockley, Dmitri Medoff, Miranda
38 Shepherd, Kathy Krick, and Cassie Korse to join us here today so that I could 39 publicly thank them for their heroism. I ask you to join me in thanking them all 40 for their service to their public, their dedication, and their commitment.

41
42 These stories are examples of the extraordinary work of our probation officers.
43 And I can assure you that if we had the time, I could recount story after story of 44 our probation officers in each and every judicial district in the state going above 45 and beyond. I am extremely proud to have the probation department as part of 46 the Judicial Branch, and we should all be thankful for the work that they do.

47
48 We have been working extremely hard as a branch to diversify our bench. Our 49 efforts have caused other judicial departments around the nation to look to us
50 for guidance. As a result, Justice Márquez was invited to speak to congress. As 51 Justice Márquez testified at a Congressional hearing in 2021, "Property, 52 livelihoods, reputations, family relationships, or even life and liberty can be on 53 the line [for the litigants]. A litigant who has confidence that the judge deciding 54 her case has some sense of her life experience eases some of that stress and 55 enhances her trust that the decision rendered will be fair—even if the judge 56 ultimately rules against her."

1 As we head into the third year of our judicial diversity outreach program, we are 2 seeing its positive impact. As I mentioned at the beginning, we gathered in 3 person for Judicial Conference last fall. It was the first time since 2019. The 4 room looked and felt different; we saw more women and more diverse
5 colleagues among us. As I look out today and see a legislature that has more
6 women than men and is so diverse, I imagine you all know that feeling that I am
7 describing. Diverse law students entering the legal profession have shared with 8 us how inspiring it is to see judges who look like them. Today, 17% of judges
9 on the Colorado state court bench are judges of color, whereas we only had 10%
10 judges of color four years ago. More strikingly, in 2018, we had just one Black
11 District Court judge serving our state. Today, we have 15 Black judges—19
12 including Denver County Court—taking the bench each day.

13
14 This progress has been possible through the collective efforts of many. Thanks
15 to the efforts of our broader legal community, the diligence of our citizen
16 judicial nominating commissions, and the thoughtful appointments by Governor 17 Polis (who has now appointed more than 40% of all state court judges in 18 Colorado), our bench today better reflects the many diverse communities across 19 the state that we serve. Initiatives such as the Dream Team 2.0 Coaching
20 Program and the Colorado Hispanic Bar Association’s Judicial Task Force help
21 develop viable candidates for judicial vacancies and provide invaluable
22 resources to diverse and first-time judicial applicants. Our pipeline efforts 23 extend to college and law students, who will be tomorrow’s lawyers and judges.
24 Many of our judges serve as mentors in the Law School Yes We Can program
25 (led by Executive Director Dr. Kimberle Jackson-Butler), which helps diverse 26 college students prepare for law school through networking opportunities,
27 leadership training, and LSAT preparation. We provide experiential learning
28 opportunities for diverse law students through our Judge Lorenzo Márquez 29 internship program and offer networking opportunities with our judges through 30 our popular “virtual coffeehouse” called Java with Judges. We are also 31 encouraging diverse law students to consider legal opportunities in parts of 32 greater Colorado through a new summer externship program. We are able to 33 invest in these important programs because you (the legislature) recognized the 34 need and empowered us to do more. Thank you again for creating a judicial 35 diversity program that is the first of its kind in the nation. It is making a 36 difference. And so do you. I want to recognize that this legislature is the second 37 in the nation to have a majority of women in the legislature.

38
39 This work is so important, and our work continues. Now we must accelerate the 40 work of fostering inclusion and well-being in the workplace to ensure that all 41 of our employees – judges and staff – have the training and support they need
42 to flourish. To solidify the foundational work we have done, we are now asking 43 the legislature to help us create a lasting legacy with true transformational 44 change.

45
46 I started out talking about our judges’ why. To me that is the most fundamental 47 question of who we are as judges. I want to share with you all the justices’
48 whys. I think it is important for you all to know who we are and why we are 49 going to see the changes that we have started through to completion. I will start 50 with our most senior justice and our next chief justice.

51
52 Justice Monica Márquez’s family roots lie in the San Luis Valley. She grew up 53 on the western slope and graduated from Grand Junction High School. All her
54 life, she has felt called to serve. After college, she joined the Jesuit Volunteer
55 Corps, where she worked as teacher and community organizer in Camden, NJ
56 and West Philadelphia. Her multi-year immersion experience as a Jesuit

1 Volunteer exposed her to the complexities of urban poverty and inspired her to
2 go to law school. Early in her legal career, that same call to service drew her
3 to the Colorado Attorney General’s Office, where she worked under Ken
4 Salazar and John Suthers, both of whom cultivated in her a deep respect for the 5 workings of state government and the Colorado state court system. Over time, 6 she discovered that what she loved most about her work was figuring out the 7 “right” answer to a legal issue – the answer that reflected commitment to the 8 rule of law, not a particular outcome in a given case. Her call to serve has 9 continued in her role as a justice. She loves the work of solving complex legal 10 issues, she is devoted to state government, and each day for her is both a gift
11 and an opportunity to serve all of the people of Colorado and its many diverse 12 communities.

13
14 After spending many years pounding his fist on both sides of the aisle as a trial
15 lawyer in civil and criminal cases, Justice Hood was drawn to the idea of 16 becoming the neutral in the courtroom. He describes himself as a devoted “law 17 nerd,” who has always enjoyed legal research and writing more than just 18 arguing facts. Becoming a trial judge in Denver gave him an opportunity to be 19 a neutral law nerd focused on getting to what seemed to be the correct answers
20 to legal problems, rather than simply arguing one side or the other. He likes the 21 view of the capitol from our courthouse across the street because it reminds him 22 of how those of us in state government work together to give life to the rule of 23 law, which he sees as the glue that binds our society together. He values and 24 respects the role you play as our elected representatives in creating laws that the 25 governor’s executive agencies then work hard to implement and enforce. He 26 enjoys being part of a non-partisan judiciary that strives to resolve disputes by 27 honoring legislative intent and constitutional requirements.

28
29 Justice Gabriel is of the first generation in his family to go to college, and 30 growing up, money was always a struggle for his family. He did not think that 31 he would be able to afford to attend any top-flight schools, but he was blessed 32 with great teachers who encouraged him. They told him that good schools
33 would offer support to students who needed it, and they pushed him to dream
34 big. Fortunately, he listened, and he attended very good schools, with the help 35 of massive financial aid.

36
37 After graduating from law school and clerking for a federal judge, he began his 38 career working for large, prestigious law firms, first in New York and then in 39 Denver. He never forgot, however, where he came from, and because he 40 received so much from his practice of law, he always felt a strong moral 41 obligation to give back. So, throughout his time in practice, he served on many 42 nonprofit boards and as a municipal prosecutor, and he provided hundreds of 43 hours of pro bono service, representing abused and neglected children for 44 almost 20 years, an Oklahoma death row inmate for 9 years, prison inmates
45 referred to him by the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals, and civil rights litigants
46 referred to him by the ACLU, among others. It was this sense of obligation to 47 give back that ultimately led him to the bench, his thought being that there can 48 be no higher calling for a trial lawyer, and no greater way to give back, than to 49 be a judge. And so, he applied and was fortunate enough to be appointed first 50 to the Colorado Court of Appeals and then to his current court. It has been, and 51 continues to be, the honor and privilege of his life to get to serve the people of 52 Colorado as a judicial officer.

53
54 Justice Hart has been passionate about civil access to justice – making the legal 55 system accessible, understandable, and fair for civil litigants regardless of their 56 economic status – for as long as she has been a lawyer. She realized (in part

1 through teaching legal ethics for two decades) that state supreme courts have a 2 central role in protecting and promoting access to justice through regulation of 3 the legal system and the practice of law. She decided that she wanted to be a 4 member of the Colorado Supreme Court, if given the opportunity, so that she 5 could advocate for a focus on the needs of poor people in the civil justice 6 system and the importance of making the system work for those who have to 7 navigate the law without lawyers.

8
9 She loves the parts of the job that involve studying hard legal questions and 10 providing clear answers through written opinions – the black robe parts of the 11 job. But what inspired her to seek out this role was the behind-the-scenes 12 administration of the courts with the aim of best serving the public.

13
14 Justice Samour was born and raised in El Salvador. He and his family fled El 15 Salvador when he was 13 years old during a time of political upheaval. Years 16 earlier, Justice Samour’s father had been ousted from his judicial position and 17 their family home had been riddled with bullets because he stood by his 18 conviction to faithfully apply the law in a murder case, despite pressure from 19 a high-ranking military official to do otherwise. When the family received an 20 anonymous death threat, they immediately packed what they could fit in their 21 van and left for the capital to apply for visas to come to the U.S. A week later, 22 with all the necessary paperwork in hand, they made the five-day journey to 23 Colorado. When they arrived here, they slept on a relative’s basement floor
24 until they could find housing. They could not speak English, were in culture
25 shock, and did not have access to most of their possessions or savings. Because 26 the situation in El Salvador deteriorated, they decided to apply for, and later 27 obtained, their permanent residency and eventually their citizenship.

28
29 This ordeal taught Justice Samour firsthand about the perils that ensue when the 30 judiciary is improperly used as a vehicle for personal or political gain and left
31 him with a profound respect for the rule of law and the sacred role that a fair,
32 impartial, and independent judiciary plays in a democratic society. His family’s 33 unplanned departure from El Salvador, along with his father’s heroism, inspired 34 Justice Samour to become a judicial officer and to fight for a system of equal 35 and impartial justice.

36
37 Justice Berkenkotter knew she wanted to be a judge from the time she was in 38 third grade, which is a little unusual because her family didn’t know any 39 lawyers or judges. They also didn’t have a TV, so it is hard to know where she 40 got the idea or what she even thought it meant to be a judge.

41
42 As time passed and she grew to understand that trial court judges help people
43 resolve their disputes—she was hooked. After being appointed to the Boulder
44 District Court in 2006, she was delighted and more than a little relieved to learn
45 that her third-grade self had set her on a path to the best and hardest job she’d 46 ever had.

47
48 During her time as a trial court judge and chief judge in Boulder, Justice
49 Berkenkotter had the opportunity to work with her colleagues and stakeholders
50 in the 20th JD to modernize and streamline many of the court’s practices. There 51 are many reasons why Maria wanted to join our court: to preserve the rule of 52 law, to serve the entire state in the midst of the turmoil caused by the pandemic, 53 and to work with our court and staff and judges from across the state to 54 modernize the branch. She knew from her time as a chief judge that effecting 55 certain statewide changes could help not only the people who work in our 56 courts, but also the many people we serve. For the past six months, that has

1 meant working with her colleagues to examine the needs of the districts in order
2 to intentionally shape our priorities and directing the implementation of the 3 various recommendations in the ILG and Troyer reports.

4
5 As for myself, I have shared this before, but it is my why. I have always known
6 that I wanted to be a lawyer. My dad was a lawyer, and I wanted to follow in his 7 footsteps. Being a judge was never the plan. That changed when I was a young 8 lawyer. I was trying a serious case, and I had a judge treat me very 9 intemperately. I remember thinking that even if the judge was right on the law,
10 there was a better way to handle that situation. That was the first day I thought
11 of becoming a judge. A few years later, I had another experience that cemented
12 that desire. I prosecuted a murder case that dragged on for about two years due
13 to the defendant's significant mental health issues. Ultimately, the jury
14 convicted the defendant of first-degree murder. As a result, the only sentencing
15 option available to the judge was life in prison. I should note that this took place 16 before the Victim's Rights Act was enacted. When I asked the judge if the 17 victim's family could speak prior to sentencing, the judge – who happened to 18 be an excellent judge – unfortunately denied the request, announcing that the 19 court did not have any discretion regarding the sentencing. I will never forget 20 the faces of the victim's family. They had waited two years to talk about the 21 victim, and they never got the chance. That day, I decided that I wanted to 22 become a judge, and I promised myself that if that ever happened, I would do
23 everything in my power to let people know that I cared and that I truly listened.
24 A few years later, I was appointed to the district court in Jefferson County. That 25 was twenty-three years ago. And treating everyone with dignity and respect to 26 the very best of my ability has been the cornerstone of my judicial philosophy, 27 and becoming Chief Justice didn't change that.

28
29 I thought it was important for you all to hear about the seven of us. I am proud
30 to serve with each of them. While we frequently disagree on the difficult legal 31 issues that come before us, we are of one mind in our dedication to the branch.
32 We are the leaders of the branch, and we are all committing to our emerging 33 future. And we are lucky to have a partner in our State Court Administrator –
34 Steven Vasconcellos. Steven is the right person at the right time. He is a 35 transformational leader, and he is committed to our vision. It is a shared vision.

36
37 I am not here today to declare mission accomplished, but I am here to say that 38 we have a vision and a plan. Let me remind you of our strategic priorities:

39
40 We are improving our operations to better serve Colorado;
41 We are empowering our employees;
42 And we are listening to all stakeholders.

43
44 There remains work to be done. But we have a path forward to which we are 45 committed. Two years ago, I committed to the idea that we would “think anew 46 and act anew.” We have lived up to that commitment. With your help we will 47 continue our work.

48
49 The last two years have not been easy. But it has also been a time where 50 leadership has been presented with an opportunity. Honestly, the difficulties
51 have allowed us to really examine how we work and who we are. We are in a 52 much better place than we were two years ago at this time, and because of the 53 lessons learned our future is bright.

54
55 Thank you for the opportunity to talk with you today.

56

Appendix 27(v)

Transcript of *Hearing before the J. Judiciary
Comm.*, Colo. Leg., February 1, 2023
(SMART Act presentations of Colo. Jud.
Dep't and Colo. Comm'n on Jud. Discipline);

Colorado Legislature Joint Judiciary Committee— SMART Act Hearing February 1, 2023

1 Sen. Gonzales

2 At this point, we are right on time. And I want to shift our attention now. We are joined by the Chief
3 Justice of the Supreme Court and our State Court Administrator. And so, we want to give them a few
4 moments to get set up. Looks like we're going to change seats, get a PowerPoint pulled up, and get some 5 information out to members. So, we will take a few minutes here to let folks get situated.

6

7 Sen. Gonzales

8 The Joint Judiciary Committee will come back to order. Colleagues, we are having a bit of technical 9 difficulties in pulling up the presentation. But I do want to extend my appreciation to the State Court
10 Administrator, Mr. Vasconcellos, for giving members of the Committee hard copies of the presentation
11 that we will be reviewing and walking through today. And I also, for members of the public who are 12 listening in, you can go to leg.colorado.gov, click on the committee's tab, scroll down to either the 13 House or Senate Judiciary Committee, and then click on SMART Act, the orange SMART Act button, 14 and that will take you to the materials associated with today's presentation. Those have been posted and 15 available so that you can follow along if you're listening in as a member of the public as well. With that, 16 I'll turn it over to Chief Justice Boatright. Thank you for joining us this afternoon. Please proceed.

17

18 Chief Justice Boatright

19 Thank you, Madam Chair. appreciate everybody's time and attention here today. I want to introduce 20 myself. I'm Brian Boatright. I'm currently the Chief Justice of the Court. Been with the Court since
21 2011. And I've been a judge since 1999. Seated next to me is Mr. Vasconcellos. He's our State Court
22 Administrator. And Mr. Vasconcellos really grew up in the Judicial Branch. I think he said he's 27 years
23 now in started as a, we didn't call them CJAs at the time, but he started in a clerk's office and has worked 24 his way up. Also with us is Justice Monica Márquez, who's seated behind me, Justice Márquez is here,
25 because she has some subject matter expertise if we get into some questions, number one, and number
26 two, she is going to be the next Chief Justice. So, we want to let her know what she's in for. So, with 27 that, we've got a number of topics that we want to cover today. If you look at page two, it kind of lays 28 out our little roadmap. I don't need to go through that in detail.

29

30 But I do want to spend some time on the next slide which talks about the Colorado Judicial Districts,
31 because I think it's important for people to understand that the breadth really of what we do, we are in 32 every county in in the state. We have 22 Judicial Districts. We have 64 counties, we have over 4,000
33 employees and 337 judges. A lot of people don't realize this, but Denver County Court is not a part of 34 the Judicial Department. It's its own constitutional entity. Although we do have their Chief Judge sit on 35 our Chief Judge Council to participate. Each Chief Judge or each Judicial District has a Chief Judge that 36 has the administrative authority over his or her District. Our Court along with the State Court

1 Administrator have administrative authority over the Judicial Department as a whole. At times, it's
2 talked about as judicial leadership. And there's been a suggestion that the Office of Attorney Regulation
3 or as it's known as OARC, is part of the Department leadership on administrative matters, and that
4 simply is not accurate. OARC is an independent office that's tasked with regulating the practice of law.
5 While it serves a very vital function in ensuring attorneys' competence, compliance with continuing 6 education requirements and mandating a robust disciplinary process for attorneys, it does not have
7 administrative authority over the Branch. We set the budget for OARC, but OARC's day-to-day
8 operations are entirely independent of the Supreme Court and the State Court Administrator's Office.
9 And this is important because matters that come before OARC could end up before the Supreme Court
10 so we don't have any control over their day-to-day operations.

11
12 Turning to the next page, one of the highlights that I talked about at the state of the judiciary has been 13 our efforts to diversify Colorado's bench. If you look at the slide that's titled Diversifying Colorado's
14 Bench. You'll see that starting in 2019, we had a judge bill that was passed that gave us a diversity
15 outreach coordinator. And that program has made great progress obviously There's still work to be done.
16 But interestingly, of the 99 judges appointed in the past three years, through June 30, of 2020, 12 had 17 been African American. But, and this is an area that we need to continue to work on, just 11 had been 18 Latin X or Hispanic. And by the way, during that same period of time, 57 of those 99 judges have been 19 female. And now females represent more than 42% of the bench statewide. At this time, I want to give a 20 shout out to the Hispanic Bar Association, they've been an excellent partner with us in working towards 21 recruiting and providing good candidates for the bench that can address that deficit as compared to the 22 Colorado population. We have a number of programs I talked about at the State of the Judiciary, Java
23 with Judges, we have what's called a Dream Team. We have the Judge Lorenzo Márquez diversity 24 internship program to try and bring diverse students into the into the building so that they can get 25 familiar, because a lot of what we're realizing is this is not just something that we can go out and and fix
26 overnight. It's really a pipeline problem that we are committed to in the long term. But I think we are 27 really pleased with the progress we've made over the last three years. Now, I'll turn it over to Mr.
28 Vasconcellos with regard to the staff demographics.

29

30 Sen. Gonzales

31 Thank you. Mr. Vasconcellos. Please proceed.

32

33 Steven Vasconcellos

34 Thank you, Madam Chair. We also had to provide some similar information to what the Chief just 35 provided about our bench, about our employee population at large. And currently, our our trial court,
36 appellate court and probation staff are approximately 68% White, 23% Hispanic or Latin x, 3%. Black,
37 with the remaining percentage made up of folks of Asian descent, Native Americans, or folks who 38 identify with more than one race.

39

40

1 Chief Justice Boatright

2 If I may proceed, madam.

3

4 Sen. Gonzales

5 Please proceed.

6

7 Chief Justice Boatright

8 I waited till you took a bite. So, thank you. The next slide, you'll see just basically our caseload, we are a
9 busy entity, we have 548,000 cases every year. And again, as I said, at the State of the Judiciary, I think
10 criminal gets a lot of attention, as it should. There's 122,000 criminal cases. But I think what frequently 11 is overlooked is that we have approximately 50,000 cases that involve domestic and probate, which are 12 really our children and most vulnerable people in our population. And at any given time, we have 13 somewhere between 68 and 70,000 probationers that we are currently, that we are supervising. We're 14 going to talk about probation here in a moment. But again, I want to emphasize that probation is not is 15 not viewed as a punitive sanction. Rather, it's designed for community safety, and rehabilitation. And 16 we'll get into some of those statistics here in a moment. And I'll hand off again to Mr. Vasconcellos, 17 with the Chair's permission.

18

19 Sen. Gonzales

20 Mr. Vasconcellos.

21

22 Steven Vasconcellos

23 Thank you, Madam Chair, I'd like to move on to a discussion of changes that we've experienced in the 24 Judicial Department. And of course, it probably goes without saying the past four years have been a time
25 of great change for the Colorado Judicial Department. And we'd like to highlight a couple of key areas
26 of change that we believe would be of interest to the Committee. I'm on slide number seven currently.
27 And I'd like to start by highlighting some administrative changes. When I was selected to be the State
28 Court Administrator in October of 2019. There were several areas of organizational policy and 29 procedure that required attention. And these changes have ranged from anything like curtailing the use 30 of non-disclosure agreements in employee settlements, completely reworking our procurement rules 31 from scratch, bringing ourselves into parallel with executive branch procurement rules, focusing 32 specifically on restricting the use of sole source contracting, providing other strengthened fiscal controls,
33 amending state policies on administrative leave. Several of these issues emanated from November 2020
34 Performance Audit that the State Auditor's Office conducted of our Office that started at the beginning
35 of my tenure. Additionally, recently, the Supreme Court amended the Judicial Code of Conduct 36 expressly prohibiting harassment, retaliation, and other inappropriate forms of behavior by judicial 37 officers. So, really, right out of the gate, during my tenure, it has been really focused on what I like to 38 think of as the plumbing and electric of the organization, basic policies, basic controls, and oversights.

39

40

1 Sen. Gonzales

2 Thank you for that. I want to pause here and see if there are questions thus far from members of the 3 committee. Seeing none, please proceed. Chief Justice, please proceed.

4

5 Chief Justice Boatright

6 Thank you. I next want to turn to the issue of judicial discipline. During this Summer, there was an
7 interim committee that was put together to look at changes for judicial discipline. I know that we have a
8 number of the committee members here today. I want to start out by thanking former Senator Lee and 9 Representative Weissman, for their bi-partisan approach to setting the interim committee, it was set up
10 with an even number of Republicans and Democrats. And that's appreciated because de-politicizing 11 anything around the Judiciary is greatly appreciated. And echoing what I said at the State of the 12 Judiciary, I also want to thank Representative Weissman again, and former Representative Carver for 13 their leadership and making sure that this was a bi-partisan bill. It was a thorough and lengthy process,
14 the Commission came to some common-sense changes that improve transparency, and ensure due 15 process for judges and brought Colorado in-line with the modern judicial discipline. And we are 16 supportive of the changes that have been made.

17

18 We also, aside from that have made some additional changes, we adopted what's called Rule 41, which 19 is a recusal rule for the Court in the event that the entire court needs to recuse if a former Justice or 20 current Justice, or a staff member or family member was a witness a complainant or subject of the 21 judicial discipline, we set up a procedure by which the court can recuse and we can appoint members of 22 the Court of Appeals to act as an interim Supreme Court to preside over that matter. In doing that we 23 really mirrored what the Interim Committee did. As you probably know, the changes that are being 24 recommended, some of them are constitutional changes, that can't take place at the very earliest until late
25 2024. And we wanted to make sure that there was an interim solution to that problem should it arise in 26 the interim. And as I said, we just felt like mirroring what the Interim Committee did. It didn't make 27 sense to us to have one process for the next two years, and then shift to a different process starting in 28 2025.

29

30 In addition, we also amended Rule 227. That was the rule that provided for funding to judicial 31 discipline. As you may recall, last year, the Legislature provided for independence of the Commission,
32 provided for independent funding. And we eliminated any type of confusion around potential funding
33 that the Branch might provide. We supported the independence of the judicial discipline to have their 34 own funding. And I will say that during this budget process, I think judicial discipline recognized that.
35 They didn't submit any budget line items to us. And it really became superfluous. So, we've eliminated
36 that from the Rule. Also in line with the legislation that was passed last year, and Mr. Vasconcellos can 37 talk to this a little bit more in detail, we've been providing support to judicial discipline, as you probably 38 are aware, judicial discipline will be standing on its own effective June of 2023, because of the 39 legislation, and we've been tasked with providing interim administrative support, I will venture to guess
40 that there will be some grumbling about the services that have been provided. I don't think it's surprising

1 to us because we are short-staffed. And we've been providing services, I think, to the best of our ability,
2 trying to balance the needs of 4,000 employees with the needs of judicial discipline. And I'll turn it over 3 to Mr. Vasconcellos, because he's been really spearheading that.

4
5 Sen. Gonzales

6 Mr. Vasconcellos.

7
8 Steven Vasconcellos

9 Thank you, Madam Chair. I would just say briefly that the Chief and I recognize how important a good
10 clean launch for a new agency is, particularly in agencies such as the Office of Judicial Discipline, and 11 so I'm personally committed to providing the support needed while they're in this sort of takeoff phase in 12 creating their Office from scratch. As the Chief mentioned, we are struggling to meet our Judicial 13 Districts' administrative needs, whether that's IT, HR, other areas, finance, and you'll see in our 2024
14 budget request some of those needs reflected. We have at times put aside the needs of our Judicial 15 Districts to help support the Office of Judicial Discipline. Because it is so important that they have a 16 successful launch. And I remain committed to this successful transition period. And even supporting 17 them as needed beyond the statutory timeline, I don't want any sort of surprise and you sort of light
18 switch moment where things drop. We are committed to a successful launch for the Office.

19
20 Sen. Gonzales

21 Thank you. Colleagues, questions thus far? I see two, I'll go to Representative Woodrow.

22
23 Rep. Woodrow

24 Thank you, Madam Chair. And thank you both so much for being here. Chief Justice Boatright, I
25 appreciate so much of the work that the Department has done with respect to the Interim Committee to 26 make right you know, a lot of the issues that had been highlighted publicly. And I think that speaks to 27 your leadership, and also just the tremendous strides we're trying to take to ensure that the public has 28 faith in our Judiciary. And, so, I just want to say thank you for that. I do want to note that in my read of,
29 of sort of where things went sideways, one of the main issues was that when it came to judicial 30 discipline, ultimate decision making was vested in the hands of a very small group of people who were 31 then able to use that or leverage that authority in ways that, you know, were counterproductive. You've 32 mentioned that the changes being proposed, both legislative and constitutional, will lead to transparency
33 and greater due process. And that sounds great. I just want to be sure. Do you feel that the proposals
34 being put forward address the root underlying issues that were highlighted in the Department and that 35 we can be confident going forward? And when we talk to our constituents, that this is the right way to 36 do this? And these are the answers?

37
38 Sen. Gonzales

39 Chief Justice Boatright.

40

1 Chief Justice Boatright

2 Thank you, Mr. Woodrow, for that question. Yeah, I do believe and I think in conjunction with the 3 legislative changes that were made last year, where judicial discipline was set up as an independent
4 office and provided independent funding. As part of the changes, we've gone from eliminating judges as 5 being the Special Masters to go to a judge, a lawyer and a citizen to be the ultimate decision makers on 6 that. And then the Supreme Court would sit as just an appellate body without any of the final say with 7 regard to that. So, I do think that we've decentralized that for lack of a better phrase. And I do think that 8 these are really productive changes that have been suggested. Thanks so much.

9

10 Sen. Gonzales

11 Mr. Vice Chair.

12

13 Rep. Weissman

14 Thank you and colleagues, just to the point that the Chief Justice mentioned. House Members may 15 already know this, because they're starting in the House, but the Interim Committee that a lot of us were 16 involved with, did vote forward one concurrent resolution, one bill. We will all first in the House, then
17 in the Senate, deal with these in the due course it's HCR 1001 and HB 1019, which represents the work
18 of the interim committee. So, we'll grapple with that as it comes up to the subjects, then, that both the 19 Chief and the State Court Administrator have been speaking to, and you largely covered it. But I did
20 want to ask and, in transparency, I will ask the Commission the same question. Interested to sort of hear
21 what you know what is working, what is not working? We're well into the transition timeline, we have a
22 few months left in terms of the launch Mr. Vasconcellos, as you called it, and then I would also like to 23 hear how things are going as to another substantive element of HB, sorry, SB 201. Last year, the 24 information sharing in Section 106 of that new article laid down again, what's what's working, what's 25 what's maybe stuck from your perspective?

26

27 Sen. Gonzales

28 Chief Justice Boatright

29

30 Chief Justice Boatright

31 Thank you, Representative Weissman, for that question. I do think that the information flow is going
32 very well. I've not received any feedback that judicial discipline has not been receiving the documents
33 that they've requested. It's my understanding that they've been given all of the documents that were 34 provided to the independent investigators. We've also consented to the release of the Office of Attorney
35 Regulation Counsel report that came out. I've not seen it because it is confidential, but we have 36 authorized the release of that to judicial discipline. So, we're trying to be as forthcoming as we possibly 37 can in all of this. I have not received any information that people are dissatisfied with the flow of 38 information. That's not risen to me at this point. With regard to sort of the administrative piece, Mr.
39 Vasconcellos, I think probably is better to address that.

40

1 Sen. Gonzales
2 Mr. Vasconcellos.

3
4 Steven Vasconcellos

5 Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you, Representative Weissman, I think in terms of what's working
6 well, on the administrative front, I have made it a priority to basically have, I mean this virtually, but an
7 open door for Mr. Gregory and his concerns. And, you know, he is able to he has contact information,
8 including personal cell phones for most of my Division Directors. So, we're trying to help put him in a
9 position where he doesn't have to navigate a staff of 250 when he has questions, when he has a particular
10 need that needs to be addressed. He can work with me directly or can work with my senior team. So, I
11 think that line of communication that access to us is working well. And I think anytime you stand-up a
12 new independent entity, there are growing pains. I think there's a pain period for new any new agency. I
13 don't know that this is any better or any worse. I don't really have a ton of personal experience. I will 14 admit that Mr. Gregory and I don't always agree on solutions. But I remain committed to working with 15 him and collaborating on solutions so that he can be successful.

16
17 Sen. Gonzales
18 Seeing no further questions.

19
20 Chief Justice Boatright
21 Can I just add one thing?

22
23 Sen. Gonzales
24 Please proceed.

25
26 Chief Justice Boatright
27 One additional thing, Representative Weissman, just looking at my notes, is we've also given them
28 permission to talk to the investigators Liz Rita and Bob Troyer. So, like I said we're trying to be as 29 forthcoming. I think they've also been provided with all of the documents. I think it gets lost in in sort of 30 the history of all of this that the State Auditor also did an investigation with regard to the contract. That 31 took a period of time and we provided them with all the information that we provided to the State
32 Auditor as well.

33
34 Sen. Gonzales
35 Seeing no further questions at this time, we will go ahead and proceed. Chief Justice Boatright. Mr.
36 Vasconcellos, please.

37
38 Steven Vasconcellos
39 If you don't mind. I'll take it from here. Continuing on with the broad theme of change. And I'm on slide
40 number nine at this point. And I think while we've discussed some of this before, we really cannot

1 overstate the impact to both court and probation operations from the COVID-19 pandemic. You know,
2 in the span of a few short weeks, we in the spring of 2020, we went from what we used to know as 3 business as usual, with in person business, to empty courthouses to conducting the majority of our 4 business virtually. And while our judges and staff did display tremendous resilience, and adapted
5 quickly, it was not without challenges. And of course, now that we are doing this on paper and not with 6 the presentation, I can't make the I am not a cat joke, but that's what you see on number 10. We did not
7 have that level of challenge in Colorado. Some of you may remember the "I am not a cat: incident in a
8 Texas courtroom. Where an attorney had a filter over their face accidentally that was a kitty cat. So, 9 moving right along. I do want to talk about the.

10
11 Sen. Gonzales

12 Now the problem, Mr. Vasconcellos is that we are not on a screen. So, it's all good. Please proceed.

13
14 Steven Vasconcellos

15 Thank you, Madam Chair. Moving to slide 11. I want to give a sense of scale when we're talking about 16 virtual proceedings. How big is this? How is this proliferating? What does this look like? To give you a 17 sense of size in calendar year 2020, the Judicial Department was averaging about 17,500 events on 18 WebEx, which is the platform we use every month. And across those 17,000 plus events. We had 19 125,000 participants every month. The majority of those were court hearings. But some of those were 20 also probate, virtual probation visits, and the like. Virtual hearings were a tremendous boon for us
21 during a very difficult period where it was just simply not safe to have business in person. They've been 22 a tremendous convenience to citizens. It has also been an increase in workload for our staff. We have 23 about two years of experience now, with virtual proceedings. We've learned quite a bit. We've learned
24 what seems to work well in the virtual environment. We've seen certain types of proceedings that don't 25 work well. And it doesn't always cut across specific types of cases. Sometimes it's down to the 26 circumstance of an individual case. But I think it goes without saying that we've reached a point where 27 we realize that it's in the best interest to promote standardized practice for virtual proceedings. We have 28 a virtual proceedings committee that has been meeting regularly. And they are right now focused on 29 considering two separate but related policy issues. One, recommendations on uniformity for 30 broadcasting hearings online. And two, when should participants be allowed to participate virtually?
31 Drafts of these policies, we hope, will be ready for comment by both internal and external stakeholders
32 within the month. And we hope that the General Assembly will agree that it's best for a policy like this 33 to be managed by the courts. Virtual proceedings are an extension of courtroom operations, a space that 34 is the responsibility of judges, judges have a duty to ensure fair and impartial proceedings. And that can 35 often be done virtually, I've mentioned this before to this committee, we are at a space where virtual
36 proceedings are here to stay, there's so much merit, I don't see us going backwards. It's a tremendous 37 tool in the toolbox. Just to give a brief example, if you've got a 15-minute status conference in the case,
38 some of our Judicial Districts, as you well know, from your own experience, some of our Judicial 39 Districts are geographically very large, sometimes with very geographically interesting features that 40 make travel challenging. Having folks travel 90 minutes, two hours, one way for a 15-minute status

1 conference makes no sense. This is this is where the benefit to the citizenry, I think, is felt the greatest.
2 There are other types of cases and sometimes, again, not by case, but sometimes the circumstances of 3 the case lends itself better to an in-person processing. We want our policies to have space for judges to 4 have discretion to make decisions about how to conduct hearings, based on each individual case.
5

6 Sen. Gonzales

7 Excellent. Colleagues, any questions in regards to this aspect? Senator Gardner.
8

9 Sen. Gardner

10 Thank you, Madam Chair, um, with respect to the virtual courtroom, and the two different aspects. I, as 11 you can imagine, have certainly used the the new technology and participating as counsel in proceedings
12 and that, I think, in its own way has progressed through the years and judges, and court personnel, and 13 parties and their counsel are, are getting there, if you will. The thing that I think we in the General
14 Assembly have heard from citizens is that they really like the ability to sit in on a proceeding, if you
15 will, by going on WebEx and, and watching and listening. And I know there's a committee meeting and 16 my own Chief Judge is working. I think they're working diligently. But I really do want to ask here
17 today, whether we're making progress, do you feel like we're making progress? And is there general
18 agreement in the judiciary that the presumption should start with all court proceedings should be open
19 and available? And yes, there are going to be many, many exceptions with respect to juveniles and 20 victims and sequestration of witnesses, but but the starting point ought to be that we have the technology
21 and any citizen ought to be able to sign on and observe that proceeding without going to the courthouse
22 and going through security and so forth. So, please, I invite your thoughts and appreciate the work that's 23 being done there.
24

25 Sen. Gonzales

26 Chief Justice Boatright.
27

28 Chief Justice Boatright

29 Thank you, Senator Gardner for that question. I do think progress is being made. I think that where I 30 would say that we all are in agreement in is that the more that people can watch what happens in our 31 courtrooms, the more confidence they'll have in our process. I think, because I as a trial court judge
32 presided well over 100 jury trials, and every time I talked to the jury, it was almost uniform that they
33 walked out thinking that the system was way better than what they thought when they walked in. So, I
34 do think that it is very much a positive. I will say that we have differing degrees of comfort level with 35 technology amongst our judges, to be honest with you, because we have 337 judges and I mean, we 36 were accused of shambolic chaos at one point with regard to different uses, but we are trying to come up
37 with the standardized practice, but we, as you just touched on something, we want to be really sensitive 38 to victims, to sequestration issues. We want to make sure that we can have as open a process as we can 39 have in our courtrooms without jeopardizing due process. And, so, I do think you what you touched on 40 was exactly right. There are going to be exceptions. And hopefully the judges, because we have some

1 judges right now that are doing in broadcasting them, they're very comfortable with them. We have
2 some judges that are very resistant to it. But we are looking at putting together a Chief Justice Directive,
3 that's going to start out with the presumption that we do have broadcasting and then looking at what
4 works with exceptions. But I also want to emphasize that we want to talk to our stakeholders with regard
5 to this, because there's going to be some victims' groups, I think that are going to be able to bring some 6 insight to this. I think the DAs is in conjunction with that. The defense attorneys may have a perspective
7 on some of these. But I do think we want to take all into account when we're trying to identify those 8 exceptions, and be able to give courts factors to look at in deciding whether to make something
9 broadcast or not. So again, to that leads to consistency, if that makes sense. Thank you. Thank you.

10
11 Sen. Gonzales

12 Excellent. Representative Epps.

13
14 Rep. Epps

15 Thank you, Madam Chair. I have a few questions. Can you orient us, remind us? When did our 16 Colorado, our District Courts start using WebEx?

17
18 Sen. Gonzales

19 Mr. Vasconcellos?

20
21 Steven Vasconcellos

22 Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you, Representative Epps. It was in the Spring of 2020. Probably the 23 very first pilot locations, late April, early May.

24
25 Sen. Gonzales

26 Representative Epps.

27
28 Rep. Epps

29 Sir, what? What I want to know is how many of our courtrooms are already operating on a default of 30 having the WebEx on and broadcasting on? So, whether that's a percentage or whether that's a number
31 of the Judicial Districts. What's your understanding right now? I feel it's weird to ask for a percent. But 32 what's your understanding of out of the then or now 22 Judicial Districts? How many of them? It's the 33 default to have it on? And then within those, how many of the judges just. What's your understanding of 34 that?

35
36 Sen. Gonzales

37 Mr. Vasconcellos?

1 Steven Vasconcellos

2 Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you, Representative Epps. I don't have that data at hand, I'd be happy
3 to work with my staff to get the best information on both at a district level and by judge level if we have 4 it and share that with you and the committee.

5

6 Sen. Gonzales

7 Representative Epps.

8

9 Rep. Epps

10 I can offer that I'd be glad to share it with you too, if we can connect offline. I heard, and I'm sorry, I
11 looked away. So, I missed which speaker said this, but I heard one of you say directly looking at a Chief
12 Justice Directive. And I wanted to clarify by way of what sort of policy you may enact. How certain are 13 you that it would be a Chief Justice Directive versus some other sort of policy? What do we mean when 14 we say looking at?

15

16 Sen. Gonzales

17 Chief Justice Boatright.

18

19 Chief Justice Boatright

20 Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you, Representative Epps. We're in the process of developing it right
21 now. But I think I'm fairly confident that we will have a Chief Justice Directive around virtual 22 proceedings and broadcasting. I just don't know, right now what. We're trying to flesh out and we also 23 want to get stakeholder input before we make a final decision on what that looks like. But I do think that 24 to avoid vast inconsistencies, it's better to have a Chief Justice Directive. With that said, again, we have 25 independent constitutional officers and I can't fire them if they don't. But I do think that I think we all of 26 a mindset that this is as Mr. Vasconcellos said, this is what we're going to have for the future. And we're 27 committed to doing it. But I'll give you a small example. One of the things that we are looking at is FED
28 hearings. And, so, we did a survey of the County Court judges and the County Court magistrates who 29 are doing FED hearings, and the disparity of kind of how they handle things with regard to people
30 saying please don't make them all virtual because we have a really good diversion program. And if 31 people don't come in, then it's going to affect our diversion program. So, we want to have some 32 flexibility for our judges to be able to implement things that are really best practices, because different 33 judges run their courtrooms differently and have different technology, have different capabilities. But 34 I'm confident in saying that we will have a Chief Justice Directive around broadcasting and around 35 virtual proceedings.

36

37 Sen. Gonzales

38 Representative Epps.

39

40

1 Rep. Epps

2 I think I just have two more questions, sir. One is, again, just appreciating clarification on the phrase
3 within the month and likely within the month. Are you? Will it be within the month that we will see the 4 Chief Justice Directive, as in February?

5

6 Sen. Gonzales

7 Mr. Vasconcellos?

8

9 Steven Vasconcellos

10 Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you, Representative Epps. The best information I have available right
11 now is within the month, the committee is working hard. This is primarily a committee of judges, they're 12 meeting before work, they're meeting after work, and they're meeting regularly. This is an 13 extraordinarily high priority that the Chief Justice has identified for them. So, folks are working 14 diligently, I don't think a month is going to turn into nine months. That would be ridiculous. Might a 15 month be five weeks? It might, it might. The folks are working very hard. And the goal is within a 16 month.

17

18 Sen. Gonzales

19 Representative Epps.

20

21 Rep. Epps

22 So, I'm at two and a half more. But that will be it. Thank you for that, sir. With apologies for just being 23 a straight up legal question. I really want to understand what do you all understand to be the legal basis
24 that sets the foundation for the expectation of open court? Is it just constitutional? Is it the federal 25 Constitution? Is it the state Constitution? Not asking for a cite, but what do you understand to be the 26 basis of open court?

27

28 Sen. Gonzales

29 Chief Justice Boatright.

30

31 Chief Justice Boatright

32 We've written a number of cases on court closure and it's a federal constitutional right.

33

34 Sen. Gonzales

35 Representative Epps.

36

37 Rep. Epps

38 Thank you. With regard to the, I mean, I'm sure other people are super excited to read the Chief Justice
39 Directive coming out in a month. And I mean that not sarcastically very seriously. For those of us who 40 are looking forward to it, will you consider, I'm just asking you to consider that those two policies might

1 not need to roll out at the same time. One of them seems to me to be much more straightforward than the
2 other. And trying to quickly turn it into a question versus a statement, Madam Chair, but what would it
3 take for us to be sure that working out the nuances of exceptions around when folks can appear doesn't 4 hold up the process of issuing a policy and a directive around virtual court access for non-participants?
5

6 Sen. Gonzales

7 Chief Justice Boatright.
8

9 Chief Justice Boatright

10 Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you, Representative Epps. Yeah, we're not going to let the pursuit of 11 perfection out do good. So, if we are able to put something together with and I don't know that one
12 would get ahead of the other, you kind of said that. It can't remember what you said broadcasting may 13 get ahead of virtual proceedings are virtual appearances. I'm not sure which gets out in front of the other.
14 But I think that they are interrelated, but they are not completely dependent on each other. And if we're 15 able to come up with a Chief Justice Directive on one or the other and roll it out, we'll do that.
16

17 Rep. Epps

18 Thank you.
19

20 Sen. Gonzales

21 Thank you, Representative Epps. Colleagues, any further questions on this point? Representative
22 Sharbini.
23

24 Rep. Sharbini

25 So, I just want a little bit of clarification. Thank you, Chair. And thank you guys for being here. So,
26 you're saying that you think a Chief Justice Directive would be more effective at getting courts to 27 broadcast and then eventually allow virtual appearances permanently versus anything that we do here?
28

29 Sen. Gonzales

30 Chief Justice Boatright.
31

32 Chief Justice Boatright

33 Thank you, Representative Sharbini, I appreciate the question. I do because it's going to be an internal 34 thing. It's going to come from us. And I think that we're going to have a lot less pushback from some of 35 our judges who are very strong and believing in the separation of powers. So, I do think that if it is 36 something that comes from internally, that there is a percentage of people that will be more responsive 37 to that than a legislative mandate, to be just really direct with you.
38

39 Sen. Gonzales

40 Seeing no further questions, let us proceed.

1 Steven Vasconcellos

2 Thank you, Madam Chair. Moving on to discussing performance measures in courts. I'm on slide 13
3 now. I want to start with another area that was tremendously impacted by the COVID 19 pandemic and
4 that was jury trials. The chart which is probably in the handout, tragically small, outlines trial activity
5 and trial volume since from just prior to the start of the pandemic, through the end of last calendar year.
6 And what you'll see just briefly from a narrative fashion is, in January of 2020, jury trials are cooking
7 along at historically normal levels. And then you see that draw down to zero in the spring of 2020
8 through the summer, with some fits and starts through the fall of 2020. And then we start building what 9 I, we don't have enough trend information to call this the new reality. But it's starting to look that way.
10 Where we have a different kind of seasonality to trials than we used to. So, for example, last calendar
11 year in in 2022, we are back to and actually slightly above historic norms on trial volumes. So, we're 12 doing we did more jury trials in 2022, than we did in 2019. So, we're back up to just beyond historic 13 norms. But the Chief Justice can talk a little bit about this, from his own experience as a trial judge. But 14 the seasonality is different in each of the last two years. I don't have data yet for January of 2023. But in 15 each of the last two years because of COVID spikes, and it being unsafe to bring in jurors, that post-
16 holiday season, January-February timeframe, which is usually a very busy time historically, for jury
17 trials has been almost fallow very few trials, almost no, no trials, some locations, no trials, because it
18 hasn't been saved because of COVID outbreaks. So overall, we are back to normal in volume and a little 19 higher even. But the way they're spread out over the year is looking different than they used to. I don't 20 know, Chief if you want to talk about that.

21

22 Sen. Gonzales

23 Chief Justice, please proceed.

24

25 Chief Justice Boatright

26 Thank you. Yeah, just anecdotally, as a trial court judge, I found that we did most of our trials from 27 September through Thanksgiving, and then right after the first of the year to Memorial Day. And that 28 was true for my time as a trial lawyer and as a trial judge. And now we're seeing just because of people
29 getting inside and being internal that January is not is one of our slower months again, just for safety 30 reasons.

31

32 Steven Vasconcellos

33 Thank you, Madam Chair. Moving on to slide 14 and related to jury trials, we wanted to take a moment
34 to thank the General Assembly for the passage of House Bill 21 1309, which allowed continuances for 35 jury trials during the period of COVID. That legislation expired in April of 22. But it allowed courts to 36 delay criminal trials up to six months for with in cases with defendants that were out of custody three 37 months for cases with defendants that are in custody without creating permanent impacts to speedy trial
38 issues. Again, that legislation expired in April of last year. We believe that legislation made a difference
39 not just in providing more space to conduct trials, but also gave our trial courts different tools to hold
40 parties accountable in cases. In felony criminal cases, only approximately one and a half to 2% of cases

1 actually go to trial, the overwhelming majority settle. Sometimes parties need a little extra motivation to 2 settle. Certainty of trial dates helps promote that settlement. The COVID Continuance Bill helped 3 provide flexibility. And flexibility and certainty were needed so that trial court business could be done.
4 So, we just wanted to take a moment to thank you, from a data perspective we're required to report out
5 on the volume, and there were 262 COVID continuances ordered statewide, under House Bill 1309.
6 Little over half of those were in misdemeanor cases, the remaining and felony cases. Madam Chair, I'm 7 just going to continue to roll unless the committee has questions.

8
9 Sen. Gonzales

10 Please proceed. Thank you.

11
12 Steven Vasconcellos

13 Moving on to slide 15. On our trial court performance measures. We have reported on these same
14 measures annually for many years now. This is these are measures that are established under Chief
15 Justice Directive 08-05. What you see on slide 15 are the performance of our district courts in the major
16 case areas. Just briefly how to read that, if you look at civil the target at 90% means we want 90% of our 17 active civil cases less than a year old. Currently we are at 81% Another example criminal we'd like to 18 see 95% of our active felony criminal cases less than a year old. Currently we have 91 percent.
19 Timeliness is an area that's been impacted by the pandemic. Prior to the pandemic, we are substantially
20 compliant with all of the standards both in district court and in County Court. Those timeliness measures
21 took a fairly large hit, not only the jury trials, pretty much dried down to nothing. During the spring of 22 2020, most court business overall, particularly while we were transitioning and standing up our ability to 23 do virtual proceedings, nothing much was happening for several for a handful of months. On any type of 24 case, are 2022 data that you'll see in the handout represents an improvement over 21, we still have a
25 little work to do. But I'd like to highlight that we are either really close, or they're in many important 26 areas, including juvenile delinquency, dependency and neglect cases, domestic relations cases, etc.

27
28 Sen. Gonzales

29 Chief Justice.

30
31 Chief Justice Boatright

32 Thank you, Madam Chair. And I think one of the things that I would highlight here is civil is continuing 33 to lag because unfortunately, they took a little bit of a backseat to the need to get the criminal trials done.
34 But going back really to what Representative Epps was talking about with regard to virtual proceedings,
35 you'll see domestic is very much right on track, because that's one that lends itself very nicely to virtual
36 proceedings, the D&Ns the same way, and the expedited permanency permanent placement cases all 37 lend themselves nicely to, to the virtual proceedings. And, so, we're very close to being on target with 38 those.

1 Sen. Gonzales
2 Mr. Vasconcellos.

3
4 Steven Vasconcellos

5 Thank you. Thank you, Madam Chair. On slide 16, you'll see similar information for our County Courts,
6 principally same issues there. I don't intend to belabor unless the committee has questions. Moving on to 7 the next slide on our court user survey. Once upon a time, when I was line-staff, I got to be part of a
8 team that helped implement this project. And for almost 20 years, we went on site to our courts around 9 the state, trying to hit every location every other year, and do on site user surveys to get feedback from 10 court users on the quality of their experience. As you can imagine, this is an area that COVID 11 interrupted, it's also been an opportunity for us to revamp this survey, and change our service delivery
12 approach. And we are now actively piloting an online survey that folks can either access on site through 13 QR codes that are posted throughout the courthouse, or through an email link that they're provided with 14 after their proceeding. But we're doing that in five locations. Right now, the plan is to expand that to the 15 entire state, that approach will replace our old in person survey approach. The single biggest reason why
16 we wanted to replace it is we, if we do a little math based on the pilot locations, we're getting five times
17 the number of survey responses through the QR codes and through the email length than we were 18 getting in person. And more information in our mind is better in this regard. And so hopefully, fingers
19 crossed next year at the presentation, if I'm lucky enough to join you, I'll be talking about some more
20 detailed information from the pilot locations. We also have kind of a star rating, we're getting an average
21 of four out of five stars on procedural fairness and service quality, which I like to think is not too bad,
22 given the adversarial nature of many of our cases. And, so, I think historically, our data has been strong.
23 I think there's a tendency for folks to think that courts are going to get poor feedback, because in many 24 cases, there's a sense of a winner and a loser. And if you think about the concept of procedural fairness,
25 what's really most important is that we provide that neutral opportunity for folks to be heard. And I think
26 what other jurisdictions outside of Colorado have struggled with is that when that perception isn't there,
27 that's when you get more negative feedback. We have historically gotten really positive feedback on our 28 on our user surveys, and it appears to be continuing under our new pilot approach, hopefully more 29 complete data next year. Moving on.

30
31 Sen. Gonzales

32 We do have a question, Mr. Vasconcellos, from Representative Soper.

33
34 Rep. Soper

35 Thank you, Madam Chairman. Thank you, Mr. Vasconcellos. So, on this, I just want to ask a two-part
36 question. Is this for both civil and criminal cases? And then is it tied into the judicial performance 37 evaluations as well?

38
39 Sen. Gonzales

40 Mr. Vasconcellos.

1 Steven Vasconcellos

2 Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you Representative Soper. The feedback is agnostic to case type. You
3 could be there for any type of case. You could be there at the courthouse, because you thought that's 4 where sometimes you would get your driver's license. We're asking everybody who's coming in the 5 door, even if they ended up in the wrong location. So, all types of cases, all civil, all criminal. And in 6 terms of a tie to judicial performance evaluation, there isn't one, because we're not asking questions at a
7 granular by Judge level, we're asking about more globally about their experience in that court location,
8 not necessarily their experience in front of Judge X, although their experience in front of Judge X might 9 be driving their feedback. We're not asking for that level of detail.

10

11 Sen. Gonzales

12 Representative Sharbini.

13

14 Rep. Sharbini

15 Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you, gentlemen. I've just been trying to go in my mind about these.
16 You called them continuances ordered because of COVID. And stuff we've done here. I was working at 17 the Public Defender's Office when COVID hit. We didn't call them continuances. They gave us
18 mistrials. They literally told us, we don't care about your defendant's rights. We're going to keep pushing 19 you back because we don't think it's safe. No efforts were ever taken to see if there was anything safe we 20 can do or anything like that. And, so, I guess my question to you is, you know, what sort of things did 21 you guys discuss as far as defendant-side dealing with mistrials and what you call continuances?

22

23 Sen. Gonzales

24 Chief Justice.

25

26 Chief Justice Boatright

27 Thank you Representative Sharbini. I want to push back a little bit. I think we explored every possible
28 way from having plexiglass in the courtroom to considering having trials in county fair locations. You
29 know, I think that we really explored a wide variety. Some of it was just set up, depending on the nature
30 of the courthouse, some some courthouses didn't have a jury room large enough to have a jury venire
31 come in, that could separate safely. You know, for example, in Pueblo, we had one case where they 32 went to whatever their convention center is, and helped select a jury. So, I think that really, this was kind
33 of a last gasp effort for us. I think, all of us were very, very mindful of the delay that this was causing for 34 everybody in trying not to tread on people's rights. But recognizing that it was an incredibly difficult
35 situation at the time. But I want to say, and I said this at the State of the Judiciary, our Chief Judges were 36 incredibly creative about plexiglass and how they set up their courtrooms and how they met weekly to 37 prioritize trials. And, you know, one of the things that I'm most proud of during all of this is we didn't 38 have a major outbreak in any of our courthouses, which I mean, we had a number of cases where 39 somebody tested positive and there was an actual mistrial caused. But, you're right, there were some that

1 we just couldn't get the trial heard. And they called it a mistrial because they couldn't safely bring in a
2 jury. So, but I do think that we were very, very mindful of it. And you know, did our absolute best.

3
4 Sen. Gonzales

5 Representative Sharbini.

6
7 Rep. Sharbini

8 Just a follow up comment. Thank you for that. I appreciate that. I mentioned I was up in Weld County,
9 and it felt like they didn't really do anything. So, it's nice to hear that there were other places that people
10 tried to do things. So, I appreciate that.

11
12 Sen. Gonzales

13 Let's go ahead and proceed Seeing no further questions from members of the committee. Mr.
14 Vasconcellos.

15
16 Steven Vasconcellos

17 Thank you, Madam Chair. I am moving on to probation performance measures starting on slide 19. I
18 want to give it just a sense of probation population size. Chief Justice Boatright mentioned it at the head 19 of the presentation. But we have nearly 70,000 folks on probation as a daily population, which is 20 substantially larger than any other component of the criminal justice system. In Colorado, we also 21 represent the least expensive option for supervision in Colorado. An offender for a year in the 22 Department of Corrections costs approximately $57,000 to the state and offender in community
23 correction, corrections $14,000 and offender on parole about $7,700. An offender on probation, by 24 contrast, costs the state on average about $1,900 per year. Our adult population in probation is 20 times
25 larger than community corrections, four times larger than DOC, five times larger than parole. Moving on 26 to slide 20. This shows success rates over the last decade, and this is all probationers, adults and 27 juveniles combined. Over the last handful of years, the probation successful completion rate has been 28 stable. It is slightly lower today than it was 10 years ago. The last 10-year period also represents a period
29 of large public policy change in the criminal justice arena, particularly around around charging around 30 sentencing. And I think the overall stability over the last 10 years is relatively impressive given the span
31 of change in policy that we've seen that impacts probation. Moving on to the next slide and focusing on 32 juvenile probation for a moment, are the chart on slide 21 focuses on the size of the juvenile probation 33 population over the last decade, which 10 years ago, was just north of 4,000 juveniles, and today is 34 approximately 1,500 juveniles so that population has decreased dramatically over the years. Again, I
35 think it's reflective of the cumulative cumulative policy changes, both at a state and local level as it
36 relates to juvenile justice. Moving on to recidivism, pardon me on the next slide, this is normally would 37 be the point where I would have a 10-year chart focusing on recidivism rates historically. But thanks to 38 some legislation from the General Assembly, specifically Senate Bill 19-108, we have changed our 39 recidivism definitions. You may recall that Senate Bill 19-108 focused on juvenile justice specifically.
40 And it tasked a juvenile justice committee to come up with a unified definition of recidivism that all

1 state criminal justice entities would use, because unfortunately, everybody had a different definition,
2 which made our collaborative work together difficult. And as policymakers I can only imagine would be
3 extremely frustrating for all of you. So, in the last year, we now have a unified definition for recidivism
4 for juveniles. We have also adopted that same definition for adults so that we have a single recidivism
5 definition. And on the top of the slide, the definitions laid out, if an offender gets a new deferred
6 agreement, new adjudication or conviction, while under court supervision within one year of release
7 from probation, then they are determined to have recidivated. The big difference for us in our old
8 version of the definition between that and today is previously just receiving a new charge would count
9 against recidivism. Even if you were found subsequently the case was dismissed. You were found
10 innocent at trial. And so that is no longer an artifact of the statewide shared definition. I don't have 11 historic information. We only have the most recent year now using the new definitions. Adult post-
12 release recidivism is just under 6%. Juvenile post release recidivism is at about 8%.

13

14 Sen. Gonzales

15 Thank you, Mr. Vasconcellos. Can you give me that stat, the legislative bill number that you referenced 16 in regards to that common definition of recidivism?

17

18 Steven Vasconcellos

19 Madam Chair, it's Senate Bill 19-108. Now, the bill itself did not have the definition in it. What it asked
20 to do, what the bill directed, was to have the Juvenile Justice Reform Committee come up with a shared
21 unified definition. That work took some time it took a little over, took over well over a year. But once 22 they developed the new definition, of course, we adopted it as contemplated by the law.

23

24 Sen. Gonzales

25 Thank you. And and so now, given that statute and the working groups work, there is a common
26 definition as it does that pertain both to juveniles and adults are solely juveniles? Mr. Vasconcellos.

27

28 Steven Vasconcellos

29 Thank you. Thank you, Madam Chair. It only pertains to juveniles, Senate Bill 108, focused on juvenile 30 justice specifically. And so the juvenile justice reform commission's work was just juvenile related. We 31 think the definition developed by the JJRC is a good definition not just for juveniles, but for adults as 32 well. I think the same concepts and principles and considerations are underlying so we have chosen to 33 adopt it for adults as well. Plus, it didn't make sense for us to have two separate recidivism definitions
34 within the organization. So that's the direction we have chosen. So, we have uniformity on the juvenile 35 side, and admittedly, the adult side still there are different definitions across different agencies and we 36 are supportive for what it's worth to have a unified definition.

37

38 Sen. Gonzales

39 May I ask, in regards to the agencies that worked on the juvenile definition was that only? Well, perhaps 40 we can find time, outside of the context of this meeting to dig a little bit deeper there. Because I have

1 seen in a number of different policies that we consider, certainly over the context of these hearings,
2 different agencies that have presented different definitions. So, would love to just dig in a bit more about
3 that. But I'm appreciative of sort of the further explanation of how 19-108 translated into what you're 4 presenting on today. Please proceed, Mr. Vasconcellos.

5
6 Steven Vasconcellos

7 Thank you, Madam Chair, and parenthetically, always happy to make time to meet. I'd like to go ahead
8 and proceed into a discussion of the Department's fiscal year 2024 budget request. And the Chief Justice
9 will talk about our first initiative.

10
11 Sen. Gonzales

12 Chief Justice Boatright.

13
14 Chief Justice Boatright

15 Thank you, Madam Chair. I talked about this at the State of the Judiciary, we went out and visited all of 16 the employees around the State. And I think we were largely successful in communicating with almost 17 everybody that was there, we would spend days in a district breaking it up into small groups. And 18 having the opportunity to talk with our employees, we made sure our employees were separated from 19 the supervisors and from the administration. So, we can try to get as candidate of feedback as possible.
20 And I will say that the number one issue that everybody talked about with salaries, we are not paying a 21 livable wage for a number of our people in several of our districts. We have more than one district where 22 the judges have set up a food pantry for probation officers and for their CJAs. It is not part of our budget
23 request, because we could not justify it in terms of a market survey. But we are in supportive of the 24 governor's request for a 5% salary increase for all of the employees around the state. This is incredibly 25 important to you know, we talk about our mission vision values, we talk about continuity, we talk about 26 service, we're losing one of every five employees this year. And it's because we're losing them to fast
27 food restaurants and to different places. So, the staff salaries was absolutely the number one concern for 28 our employees. I know you're not the Joint Budget Committee, but it is something that we heard loud 29 and clear from all of our employees over and over again, from all of our meetings.

30
31 Sen. Gonzales

32 Senator Gardner.

33
34 Sen. Gardner

35 Thank you. And Chief Justice, Mr. Vasconcellos. This is a matter of concern, I think, to all of us in state
36 government. Do you have any sense as these employees leave. Is it about pay? Is it about working 37 conditions? Are they are they just leaving the workforce? This is a conundrum for for all of us, even in 38 the commercial sector? For sure. And maybe it's just anecdotal. But I'm, I'm interested in knowing what 39 you do know yourself.

1 Sen. Gardner

2 Chief Justice Boatright.

3

4 Chief Justice Boatright

5 Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you, Senator Gardner. If I have the magic answer for that it would be
6 it would be monumental, but I will say in talking to our employees, we had a number of long-term
7 employees who said they just couldn't afford to stay. The municipalities were paying more, private 8 agencies were paying more, private industry was paying more. So, we were we not only have sort of the 9 short-term churn of our new people, which I think is part of sort of the great resignation. But we're
10 losing long term people. And again, I go back to my time as a former trial court judge, one of the things
11 that was alarming, shocking, amazing to me, was how many division clerks that when I called them that 12 that worked directly with the judges had been there for four to five months. I mean, those were always 13 the people that had been in the courthouse for seven, eight, ten, twelve years. But now they're there at 14 five or six months because of just the turnover. But I think what I will say is, in part of our budget
15 requests, we're asking for additional resources for training, because the turnover creates training issues
16 and training issues creates turnover, because of the stress and we're asking our returning veterans to do
17 more. And so those that have the ability to retire, I think are taking advantage of that. And so we're 18 losing a lot of experienced people. But the answer your question is yes. I mean, it goes across a broad
19 spectrum. But, you know, when I took the privilege of going back out to Jeffco, where I was a district
20 court judge, and we had a woman that had been there, from the time that I was a district court judge for a
21 number of years, just in tears, sobbing that she just couldn't afford to stay. And she'd been with the 22 Branch for 20 years, she couldn't retire. But she said, I just can't do it. I can't work two jobs for my 23 family. I just, I've got I loved what I do here. But it just got to do this for my family.

24

25 Sen. Gardner

26 Thank you.

27

28 Sen. Gonzales

29 Thank you for for providing that perspective. It's something that I think across the board, I think we're 30 all collectively navigating and appreciate that insight. Seeing no further questions, Mr. Vasconcellos.

31

32 Steven Vasconcellos

33 Thank you, Madam Chair. Moving on to our next item. We're asking for six FTE to bolster our HR
34 department in judicial three new positions that would be regional staff placed out in the districts. We 35 currently have six, supporting approximately 4000 people. We're way off industry norms in terms of the 36 number of HR generalists. These are these are the kind of the first line folks that staff are talking to 37 about a whole range of HR related issues. And our service turnaround times are just not acceptable. As 38 noted in our decision item, we have about 50%. In this particular area of our service delivery. On 39 employee relations, we have about 50% of the staff that industry standards would recommend. So, we're 40 asking for three regional HR generalists. We're also asking for three positions regarding class and

1 compensation. With an organization our size, there's a lot of individual compensation and classification
2 requests, whether that's new hires, whether that's promotions, whether that's other salary increases under
3 our personnel rules, and it is a huge, huge bottleneck, it's taking 6, 8, 10 weeks for folks, 12 weeks for 4 folks to get responses. It's not acceptable. And at some level, it is also driven some of the turnover that
5 the Chief has referred to because even folks who are in line for promotion, we can't get the class and 6 compensation work done in a timely fashion. We currently have one designated FTE for this in our 7 office, we are pulling people from other areas within HR to help out. But you know, this is a little like
8 the elephant eating itself. When we pull from one area to help out in HR, we're suffering in another area,
9 so six FTE overall to improve our services to the entire department in HR. On slide 26, we have a
10 request around an investment in the culture of the judicial department. This has several components,
11 which I'll go over. But given what we've learned, given just my lived experience in the Department,
12 given what I've learned, since I've been in this position, given the information that we've taken from a 13 whole host and variety of investigations, there's just a different sort of ongoing investment that we need
14 to make in the health of the Judicial Department. And that's what this request represents. That includes
15 modernizing HR, that includes having an institutional infrastructure around inclusion, diversity, equity
16 and access. That includes overhauling training in several ways as the Chief Justice referred to already.
17 And it also includes something that I will be honest, that two years ago, I didn't even know what it was,
18 but I feel passionately about now. And that's an organizational ombudsman. There's been a lot of 19 discussion about this between ourselves and stakeholders between ourselves and members of the 20 General Assembly. Representative Bacon has been an excellent partner in these discussions throughout.
21 But the notion that there be a place a safe, neutral place where staff can go to understand what their
22 options are, what their formal options are. When they're faced with what they perceived to be an HR
23 issue, and have that place be informal, so that they understand options before them before they get into a
24 formal process. I'm kind of expecting some questions on this. So why don't we just go ahead and pause 25 there.

26

27 Sen. Gonzales

28 Mr. Vice Chair.

29

30 Rep. Weissman

31 Thank you. And, you know, channeling the spirit of my good colleague, Rep. Bacon. Honestly, I think 32 this is the most important subject of the entire afternoon, at least in terms of what is approximately 33 before us or soon to be approximately before us and the General Assembly. I appreciate the branch
34 wanting to try to right the ship from within. I think there is a threshold design question, if you will, as 35 between what is variously called an organizational ombuds, or an internal ombuds on the one hand, and 36 an external ombuds, on the other hand. And I feel like the the ombuds aspect of all of what we talked 37 about all summer, is the prong that probably arose relatively latest in the game, and unfortunately, had 38 the benefit of least discussion as against the many issues that rolled up into the resolution and the bill.
39 But nonetheless, I feel like the center of gravity around all of that was around the external conversation.
40 I think all of us, as members of the committees of reference need to grapple with the seriousness of that

1 design choice, what one loses in one or the other, particularly the idea that there is an option of an
2 informal process, it is consistent with our processes around here, that arose after some matters that this
3 institution had to deal with in 18. And some of the same organizations that testified to and informed the 4 discussions over the summer, we're very involved in that process work around here, organizations that
5 advocate for survivors, I think the option of informality is, is pretty key to have a survivor centric
6 system. And I also think that there has to be, you know, a more serious path if that's what's indicated.
7 And that's what what the survivor wants. And I think, another key tension point, and then I'll shut up and
8 I'll hand it over to Madame Vice Chair, and she can add to this. We have a constitutional requirement for 9 certain things to happen when information becomes known to the commission. And, you know,
10 whatever else we are doing. In the resolution, and the bill, we're not changing that, if anything, we're 11 trying to fortify that. So how the idea of informality with an internal ombuds squares with what would 12 remain what is now on what would remain in the Constitution as an independent body charged with 13 oversight. To me that is a profound tension that has not begun to be grappled with, at least not by those 14 of us up here. So, I would invite your response, maybe after Madame Vice Chair has her chance to add
15 what she would add again, as before, I would like us to talk about that here as time allows. And I'll 16 invite the folks on the commission to go on to the same thing.

17

18 Sen. Gonzales

19 Representative Bacon.

20

21 Rep. Bacon

22 Sorry. And yes, I apologize for having to step out. And please forgive me if any of this is duplicative.
23 But just to add, you know, I think we've all been in ongoing conversations. Since this summer, you all
24 saw drafts of the bill. That quite honestly, I think we're still planning to continue to run. And I think
25 what, you know, first, generally it did have a question on, if I'm looking at the presentation, just what are 26 some of the critical issues that still need to be worked out? So sorry, if you shared that already. And 27 then, you know, it's my understanding that you may need some shifts and some rules to execute the 28 ombuds as proposed, you know, from the branch to work, and to pick up also on kind of like the 29 survivor centric system. I recognize that the way my bill and the bill comes from myself and 30 Representative Lynch, we were the ones tasked to look into this. It may not have created an ombuds in 31 either a traditional space, but the importance of it was to figure out how now that the issue is in front of 32 the legislature how we can support in building back this confidence that we spent a summer listening to,
33 quite quite honestly, had been shattered in some ways. One of the comments that I made during 34 committee was that we are now on the third Chief Justice in talking about the span of the issues from 35 when they went back to the investigation from the Troyer report and the ILG report. We've been talking
36 about amount of time to get some of these things resolved. And we've been talking about, what does it
37 mean to have to allow the solution to kind of be derived in the space that had the challenges, and is there
38 a need for an external space to help not only bridge that trust, but to be sure the culture shifts in the way
39 that you want to go. And so to be, to be fair, the things that you have shared with us by way of the steps
40 that you are taking to make the changes are strong, and they're moving in the right direction. But the

1 truth is, now that the Legislature even had to have a committee kind of feels like we're in the space of,
2 you know, fool me once. Okay. But fool me twice, we are in the fool me twice space as the Legislature.
3 And, so, we have been asked by survivors, and quite frankly, from people who have had similar
4 experiences, to say we need a space separate from the place that has caused harm, to be able to trust that
5 the issue will be resolved. And that is where we are coming from. The other thing that I want to 6 understand is the relationship between your Office and the Commission, and how we can find stronger
7 assurances that complaints will be transferred or initiated or sent to the Commission. And any sort of 8 step that would relax that, quite frankly, causes a little bit of anxiety, because right now, we only have 9 one constitutional place to take on these issues. And, so, I'm curious if you have any thoughts on that, if 10 that is part of your consideration for an internal ombuds role. But again, allowing the place that caused 11 harm to be the creator of the solution does in and of itself, create additional anxiety, right. And, so, we 12 want to be a part of we are all invested in all of our branches of government. For the people that we 13 serve here across the state, even if it is, and this is the last thing I'll say, for just a few years, because we 14 put that on the table, by all accounts takes two or three years to not only shift culture, but for people to 15 believe that there has been a shift in culture. And so even if we're talking about a short period of time, 16 we need to figure out how do we confront that tension of the place that causes anxiety, being the being
17 able to find its own solution. So that was a little bit of a of a soliloquy, if you will, again, just stepping
18 back into it. But there were a few things in there that I thought, you know, might, you might want to 19 either respond to you or have some answers for as well.

20

21 Sen. Gonzales

22 Mr. Vasconcellos.

23

24 Steven Vasconcellos

25 Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you, Representative Bacon. And I did want to start by acknowledging
26 what a thoughtful partner you've been in these discussions, I do appreciate it. Even when we don't 27 always agree. I've appreciated the collaboration. You know, speaking to the tension of us being at the 28 helm of the solution, I think there's a couple of issues at play there. One, I feel it's important for the 29 organization to take direct responsibility for their own organization for the health of their organization,
30 and, and for the care of their employees. And I also think it's most appropriate for a separate branch of 31 government to be given the opportunity to demonstrate that responsibility. Or, you know, I want to 32 gently push back about the notion of, you know, fool you twice. The incidents themselves, I can 33 appreciate why you say fool me once. But my direct experience in this role, my direct experience
34 working for the Supreme Court has there's been nothing but focused effort on making this an exemplary
35 workplace. There are arguably different paths to get there and reasonable minds can disagree. But I don't 36 think this is a situation where we tried, failed spectacularly. And now you're coming in saying, I don't 37 think you guys can handle it. And now we need to step in. I think we'd love to be given that opportunity 38 to have responsibility ourselves. Candidly, we looked to the General Assembly and the solutions that 39 they created for themselves, you solved your own problem. You created your office, you structured it
40 within your organization. From that perspective, now, the details of an organizational ombuds. And what

1 we're proposing are in many key areas different it's not a kind of a copy and paste of the of the General
2 Assembly's employment office. But we did wrestle with that tension, and what's most appropriate. And
3 some of our thoughts are based in how the General Assembly addressed their own challenges on this
4 issue. You know, in terms of and I'm happy to answer any other structural questions you might have. In 5 terms of, you know, the relationship between our office, the Department generally, and the Commission,
6 you know, I mentioned briefly sort of on the administrative front, the relationship between myself as 7 State Court Administrator and Mr. Gregory, as Director of the Office of Judicial Discipline, on the 8 whole, I think, is a positive working relationship. We don't always agree. But as I mentioned to the 9 committee earlier, I'm absolutely because if, at the most sort of base selfish level, it's the right thing to 10 do. If I don't take that relation seriously, where am I going to be here in front of you, explaining why I
11 did strange things, why I put up roadblocks or what have you, I have no interest in that. I've dedicated 12 my entire career to public service. I want to do the right thing. Mr. Gregory and I don't always agree on 13 matters of administrative support for his office. But we have thus far been able to productively work
14 through those issues. So, there is a base of working well together. And at the same time, I would be 15 foolish not to acknowledge a fair amount of tension between the Commission that oversees Mr.
16 Gregory's Office and Leadership of the Department. It's there, it's the relationship is not where we would 17 prefer to be, frankly, we'd be even open to mediation, to help invest in a different kind of relationship
18 moving forward, because of the importance of the work that the Commission on Judicial Discipline
19 does. Because of the importance of the work that the Judicial Department does, we need to have a high-
20 functioning business relationship. I'm not talking about friendship. That's not what's the issue here. I'm 21 talking about a high functioning business relationship. We are working toward that. I'm hoping that my 22 engagement with Mr. Gregory can help start building bridges in that regard. But that's sort of the current 23 state of that relationship. Chief.

24

25 Sen. Gonzales

26 Chief Justice.

27

28 Chief Justice Boatright

29 Thank you, Madam Chair. And thank you, Representative Bacon. What's important to understand about 30 the organizational ombudsman is we're not talking about judicial complaints. We're talking about staff
31 on staff. And, so, we're not looking for any kind of an end round around filing judicial complaints. What 32 we're looking for is a safe place for people to go and be able to report staff on staff and you think just 33 mathematically, we have 4,000 employees, and we have 350 judges, it's going to be much more related 34 to staff on staff. And so that's what the organizational ombuds is really focused on. It's not an attempt to 35 do an end run, I think that we would have to have conversations with the ombudsman, with judicial 36 discipline, to discuss how we handle if someone inadvertently comes to the organizational ombudsman
37 and reports judicial discipline, we're not going to do anything without consulting with judicial discipline
38 themselves with regard to how that would function. You have that, my commitment on that we are 39 looking at a place. Again, in talking to going out and doing our listening tours. People just feel it felt like 40 it didn't do any good to complain. And we had a 20% rate of people who feared retaliation, that was not

1 about judicial retaliation, that was about supervisory staff or somebody higher up. So, we're trying to 2 address that staff-on-staff complaint with this organizational ombudsman.

3
4 Sen. Gonzales

5 Representative Bacon.

6
7 Rep. Bacon

8 Thank you for that explanation. You know, I am curious about the critical issues and from what you just 9 shared, you know, the commitment to consulting with the judicial with the Commission, I think is 10 critical because I just want to be sure that two things are understood but not inadvertently overlooked.
11 By potentially even relaxing any rules in regards to reporting to the Commission. The first thing is, you
12 know, your department is unique because and you've heard me say this before, because the judges are 13 managers, and they manage the supervisors in a lot of ways. Some of the issues that we saw in the 14 reports were about even stated, you know, the supervisor's manager was the judge who didn't think this 15 kind of behavior or was supported in this kind of behavior, or was complicit in this kind of behavior, 16 some of those themes popped up. And that's, that's what I'm curious about, given the structure of your 17 organization where those lines are between supervisor behavior, and then their managers if they are 18 judges who, you know, judge the I'm sorry, manage the judicial districts. I think part of the challenge
19 when we wrestled with this challenge over the summer, right. And we became we came to call it the 20 culture issues. Went so far as to say judges need better training on how to be managers and investments
21 there. And so that blur is actually a critical space. Because what I think where we came to the conclusion
22 was the people who work in the department see the judges as the leadership. Right. And unfortunately,
23 there was a culture in the department where critical mass of people felt like they can't make these 24 reports. And I just, I, we just have not been shaken away from this notion as to who allows this culture
25 to permeate. If particularly we look, as the judges of the leader of the organization, you know, if branch,
26 right was an organization, I think the second thing too, is running the risk of not being able to look
27 deeply if the staff-on-staff issues actually do come from, you know, a judge. And then where will we 28 find the importance of looking into that? And then again, where does that line come? Right? And, so, it's 29 one thing about the culture, it's another on what could we understand from you by way of the 30 investigator? How deep would you go into an investigation to understand where some of this behavior
31 comes from, particularly given judges as managers, and the way that we're seeing this right now, you
32 know, for that to live in the department, that is where the concern comes from, just to be sure, there
33 aren't biases there, whether they're implicit or not, on understanding about the culture and where it may 34 come from. If it's an internal space, at the end of the day, a lot of things might stop with the ombuds
35 person that's still within department that may not see the light of day, and we don't want to run that risk.
36 And, so, I just want to say briefly to to your point, you know, I don't, I'm not saying you fooled us twice,
37 per se. But what I do hope that you can understand is that we cannot, we have to find the assurances, and 38 this is what I said in July to that we, we cannot be in a place where it does happen again. And even 39 though different departments or branches may have taken on some of these issues, I think what's unique 40 about this, is that the issue from your department has now found its way in a whole different branch of

1 government, for particularly that to be able to find the assurances that is what we have been asked to do, 2 as the legislature with this with this issue. So, I'll stop there, you know, please, any responses again, I'll 3 just raise the critical issues just because I didn't hear them. And again, your thoughts on relaxing some 4 of these rules to be able to be sure complaints are investigated?
5

6 Sen. Gonzales

7 Mr. Vasconcellos.
8

9 Steven Vasconcellos

10 Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you, Representative Bacon. You know, you'd mentioned that there are,
11 you would be concerned about things going to an ombuds that might never see the light of day. In fact,
12 an ombuds role is not an advocate, it is not an investigator, an ombuds role is not a prosecutor. And 13 when we take agency away from survivors, when you walk into that room, and you say, anything you
14 tell me has to go forward. My concern for my staff across the state right now is where is that safe place
15 they can go that's not a formal structure. Our HR team is exemplary. They do a fantastic job with a tiny
16 staff. But that's a formal structure. And if staff goes to process their options on a say they're receiving ill
17 treatment from a non judge supervisor. If they go to that formal structure for guidance on options, the 18 HR team has an obligation to move forward. That's agency taken away from the survivor. The whole 19 beauty of the ombuds space is that it is informal, it is confidential. It's an opportunity for that person to 20 be educated, you've got some pathways ahead of you. These are the pathways you could choose, as 21 Chief mentioned previously, we're not looking to, I realize it can get complicated. But the overwhelming
22 when we're talking about volume, the overwhelming volume of issues are coworkers, and a staff
23 member and their first line non judge supervisor. If it turns out that, you know, they go to an ombuds.
24 And that situation, let's say it's a staff member and a non judge supervisor, and they go to the ombuds.
25 They understand what their options are, they choose to file a complaint with HR against their supervisor,
26 through HR's investigation, it becomes revealed, it's actually not the supervisor, it's a judge. That's an 27 immediate statutory trigger to report to the Commission on Judicial Discipline. The entire department, 28 every single employee in the department has a very clear obligation around reporting under the statute.
29 And so it's there, there may be actually some things that come to the ombudsman, that don't see the light
30 of the day, because that is the choice of the survivor. And I want to honor those survivors' choices, we 31 want to educate, we want to make sure that they are comfortable with the options that are in front of 32 them, but it should be them who select the option. You know, we're not talking about if we were 33 successful in gaining a resource for an organizational ombuds, we're not talking about a huge span of 34 changes, it would be an exception under the current statute for one position. And that would be the 35 ombuds themselves, because everyone else from the line staff person who started down the street in the 36 Denver District Court today, all the way up to my position. All the way to my boss next to me, we're all 37 mandatory reporters, every single member by statute of the judicial department is a mandatory reporter
38 on allegations of judicial discipline. So, if we bring an ombuds on with no change, they are a mandatory
39 reporter to judicial discipline, that, in my opinion, and based on feedback, I have been in the position
40 now to have some outreach from some survivors, and specifically survivors on judicial discipline

1 incidents and gain some feedback from them about the process. And the notion that there's no safe space
2 to inquire about options before they go into a formal process is chilling for folks. And I don't want us to
3 create inadvertently with the best of intent, a system that chills reporting. And I think if we are able to 4 have an organizational ombuds or even if the ombuds is outside, and it's under a model that you've
5 been contemplating, and that ombuds is a mandatory reporter. I'm not sure you're gonna get all the folks
6 coming to that ombuds that we would hope.

7

8 Sen. Gonzales

9 Chief Justice.

10

11 Chief Justice Boatright

12 Thank you, excuse me, Representative Bacon. The final thing I'll say about this is I hope we can have an 13 ongoing conversation. We're not making this up, it this is a model based on national experts are telling 14 us that this is the model that works best and gives the opportunity for people to safely come forward.
15 That, you know, we can talk about the reports, but the the statistic that stood out to me was the people
16 who felt like reporting wouldn't do any good. And this is the answer to that, to that complaint, so to 17 speak, no pun intended. But I just hope that we can have an ongoing conversation around this and, and 18 we can give you access to the same people that we talk to. I'm not an ombudsman expert. But that's what 19 that's what the model is that we're basing this on is the only thing. I'd say, I know we're over time. So,
20 thank you.

21

22 Sen. Gonzales

23 Representative Bacon, did you have a . . .

24

25 Rep. Bacon

26 Yeah, I would just say thank you, you know, I don't necessarily want to litigate the legislation. But I just 27 wanted to put on the table that we are not having, we're having this conversation with very particular 28 context. And while we think about solutions solutions may need to be molded towards that context,
29 which even includes the role of the ombuds person, you know, many of us were on the interim
30 committee. We know what the report says we did have questions about some incidents not being 31 reported to the Commission given mandatory report. And, so, what I will end by saying I think we all 32 share the same interest by in providing that security to your employees. And I think though, that if we 33 have the ability to, try to find the flexibilities, even if it means to do something differently to prepare it
34 provide as much of that security as we can than we should. And it just may come in a form that either
35 maybe you might not like or or I might not, but always willing, I'm going to all the conversations and 36 talking to all the people. But hopefully we can have, again, this discussion more broadly, because I think 37 we're on the other side now of being more solution oriented than discovering what the issues were. So, 38 thank you for your time.

39

40

1 Sen. Gonzales

2 Thank you, for that conversation, very appreciative of it. And I think for those of us who did serve on 3 the interim committee, these conversations are ongoing, but for those members who did not serve on that 4 committee over the summer, this gives you but a preview of the work ahead. I want to in being
5 cognizant of time, I want to ensure that we have the ability to move through the rest of this presentation.
6 And, so, I'm going to turn it back to Mr. Vasconcellos to proceed.

7

8 Steven Vasconcellos

9 Thank you, Madam Chair. My intent if it pleases the committee, is to just briefly go over the remaining
10 issues at a high level. I'm more than happy to slow down if there are questions. But I just want to touch
11 on some other key elements briefly of our budget request, legislative initiatives. I think there's possibly 12 one or two more required SMART Act reporting elements in there that I'm happy to skip and follow up 13 if the committee has questions if that approach works for you, Madam Chair.

14

15 Sen. Gonzales

16 Let us proceed quickly and then we will see what questions remain from members of the committee.

17

18 Steven Vasconcellos

19 Thank you, Madam Chair. We are asking for a $10 per hour rate increase for our language contract
20 language access interpreters. Recently, the Denver County Court which the Chief mentioned at the 21 beginning of the presentation is a constitutionally distinct entity raised their rates by $10 at the 22 beginning of this year, they were good partners. They were very communicative us this did not surprise
23 us. However, we have basic market competitiveness problems. And not just our world moving to virtual 24 proceedings, but many industries moving to virtual proceedings, the medical industry, other industries,
25 there is a greater demand on language access interpreters than there was prior to the pandemic and the 26 pressures are different. As we sit here today, we are not competitive with the Denver County Court we're 27 not asking to have a higher rate than them. We just are asking to match that rate. We are also asking for 28 two additional staff to make a greater investment in our judicial education programs, specifically 29 education for judges. Judge education is essential to upholding public trust and confidence. And we've 30 spent a lot of time and effort in judicial education. Chief Justice Boatright is still the liaison to our 31 judicial education committee. We haven't asked for additional resources in judicial education in over 15
32 years. And as even just some snippets of prior topics coming up, we have great education needs. Moving
33 on slide 31. Now, weekend bond hearings. Members may remember that in 2021, the General Assembly
34 passed House Bill 1280, which required defendants to receive a bond hearing within 48 hours of arrest.
35 This essentially pushed bond hearings into a weekend activity as well. We received some resources at 36 the time this bill was passed. We created two regional bond hearing offices one based out of Sterling one
37 based out of Steamboat to conduct the weekend bond hearings for the locations primarily rural, that 38 were eligible under the statute. We got the estimates of the anticipated caseload wrong. And we are in a
39 position where we are working staff seven days a week. We feel this has been a successful endeavor
40 overall. But I am concerned about sustainability. I cannot continue to ask folks to work seven days a

1 week to support this program. The request would stand up a third region. We also have a judicial district
2 that is statutorily eligible. It has six counties and is statutorily eligible to join the program and I have no
3 capacity. So, this would help relieve that pressure as well. And moving briefly to our legislative agenda.
4 The Chief Justice will talk to you about licensed legal paraprofessionals.

5
6 Sen. Gonzales

7 Chief Justice Boatright.

8
9 Chief Justice Boatright

10 Thank you, Madam Chair. I'll be very brief. We're asking for some small changes to allow for licensed
11 legal paraprofessionals. As you probably are aware, our domestic area has about 75% pro se parties 12 representing and we're looking at licensing paraprofessionals to be able to assist people in bringing these 13 cases to the court, not not representing them in court. But we do need some statutory changes. We're 14 we're in the process of doing some pilot programs. But we do need some statutory changes to get that 15 up. This is really a key part of access to justice.

16
17 Steven Vasconcellos

18 Madam Chair, if I may.

19
20 Sen. Gonzales

21 Mr. Vasconcellos.

22
23 Steven Vasconcellos

24 Moving on to the final legislative initiative I would mention and that is creating an independent office
25 for our Bridges Liaison Program. Our Bridges staff serve as court liaisons, and they advocate for the 26 best interest of the mental health of defendants in criminal cases. That program has grown tremendously
27 over the last five years with the generous support of the General Assembly. But they have grown to the 28 point and their interests given that they are advocating for defendants, it no longer makes sense for them
29 to be part of the judicial department, which is tasked with being a neutral entity. And, so, we are seeking 30 legislation to create the Bridges Program as an independent agency. Within the Judicial Department. I
31 would mention briefly we are making on time and making good progress in the creation of the 23rd
32 Judicial District which is slated to go which would be our newest Judicial District, taking the South
33 Metropolitan Area, 18th Judicial District: Arapahoe Douglas Elbert Lincoln Counties and keeping 34 Arapahoe County as the 18th and the remaining counties becoming the 23rd. We are meeting all of our 35 development timelines. In our budget requests this year, you will see a request for money from the 36 counties themselves not for state costs, but for the county-based costs related to the creation of the 37 district. So, we've included that in our budget request as a courtesy. Moving through here, quickly.

1 Steven Vasconcellos

2 I think I'll end this afternoon with extreme risk protection orders one of our required reporting elements
3 under for this SMART act. This is the last slide informational slide on page 39. You'll see the volume
4 since programmings. Since inception of extreme risk protection orders, which was mid fiscal year 2020.
5 This is our fiscal year 22 was our second full year, and we've reached a relatively stable place in terms
6 of volume in terms of number of requests, number of temporary extreme risk protection orders granted,
7 number denied permanent extreme risk protection orders granted, etc. And with that, Madam Chair,
8 unless there are specific questions, happy to wrap it up.

9

10 Sen. Gonzales

11 Colleagues questions? Mr. Vice Chair.

12

13 Rep. Weissman

14 Thank you. And thanks, Mr. Vasconcellos. For, you know racing through in the interest of time, I did
15 want to rewind briefly to what a slide 38 In the handout and the deck on automated record sealing. I
16 obviously have a strong interest in this having been one of the prime movers with Rep. Bacon of 1214
17 and was about as involved in 099 as one can be without being on the front of the bill. There were new 18 demands made of the Department; we're not going to hide that. And you know, when this Legislature
19 makes demands of agencies with implementation of duties, you know, we want to have a clear
20 understanding of resources needed for that. And if there are hiccups and burdens and whatnot. There 21 were deliberately phase timelines there was, you know, some runway provided would just appreciate
22 briefly hearing how you feel that the necessary basically IT and other systems work to effectuate those 23 policy statements, how that work is going and then I guess just an open invitation if if there are 24 problems, all of us here would like to hear about that sooner rather than later so that we may grapple
25 with them and so that all of this may happen for all the reasons for the most bills.

26

27 Sen. Gonzales

28 Mr. Vasconcelos.

29

30 Steven Vasconcellos

31 Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you, Representative Weissman. I think within the confines of Senate
32 Bill 99. We're on track and we have no concerns about meeting the timelines. Bigger picture, I think we 33 might be interested in a conversation there are many flavors of sealing and we asked a lot of staff have 34 to know the different pathways and different flavors of sealing. If there are any efforts that could be 35 made to simplify, not just, of course, it's important that this process be simplified for the participants
36 themselves. I have an interest in trying to simplify it for the staff around the state as well. And there are 37 enough flavors of sealing right now that we are asking a lot of folks be open to a conversation about 38 what my simplification could look like in the future on our side.

39

40

1 Sen. Gonzales

2 Mr. Vice Chair.

3

4 Rep. Weissman

5 Thank you, you know, Mr. Vasconcellos, I appreciate that point. It is a complicated statute. That is, to 6 some extent, a result of the very tough conversations that have been had around here and in this room,
7 on the subject in terms of waiting periods in eligibility and being very, very surgical about which 8 offenses are eligible and which are not and how the process goes. I will just say for myself, I'm very 9 open to that conversation. And maybe one of the things that happens after sine die. But I continue to 10 think about the subject and I would invite some, I don't need a response now, in the interest of time. But 11 we I think one operational challenge here is not being a unified registry state. There was model
12 legislation proposed out of the Uniform Law Commission by the wonderful acronym of the UCRA, 13 Uniform Criminal Records Accuracy Act, which we have not adopted here that had various sort of 14 procedural rights. But I think, in relevant part here called for a unified registry. This would be an IT
15 capital project of not insignificant nature. But I do think if we and CBI and others could get over the 16 hump, it would amount to smoother pavement going forward. So, let's pin that as well. And Madam
17 Chair, just want to raise my hand a third time, I will just say in closing here appreciate both of you and 18 Justice Márquez and Mr. Scanlon being here and taking time to talk with us about these things. There's 19 never enough time in SMART hearings, but you know, we've at least dropped a few pins for follow up.
20 Thank you.

21

22 Sen. Gonzales

23 Thanks. Thank you, Mr. Vice Chair. Mr. Vasconcellos. Care to respond?

24

25 Steven Vasconcellos

26 No, ma'am.

27

28 Sen. Gonzales

29 Representative Snyder.

30

31 Rep. Snyder

32 Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you both for being here. On your slide 39, you have a total statewide
33 ERPO protection orders. I want to you have that broken down by county. And if you do if you'd be 34 willing to send that after the meeting to the committee.

35

36 Sen. Gonzales

37 Mr. Vasconcellos.

38

39

40

1 Steven Vasconcellos

2 Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you, Representative, we'd be happy to provide more detailed
3 information on the locations of the data that you see in the in the chart. I'll have staff put that together
4 and share it with the Committee.

5

6 Sen. Gonzales

7 Thank you. Seeing no further questions. I do want to extend our appreciation for you joining us this
8 afternoon. And talking us through the myriad issues that your department is navigating. I'm sure that this 9 conversation will continue over the course of this legislative session. But thanks, again, for your time.

10

11 Rep. Snyder

12 Thank you.

13

14 Steven Vasconcellos

15 Thank you committee.

16

17 Sen. Gonzales

18 All right. We do at this point before we shift over to our next presentation from the Commission on 19 Judicial Discipline. I do want to open this up for public testimony. And we do have a few individuals
20 who have signed up to testify. So, I want to welcome your comments and thoughts. I will invite 21 members of the public to testify for three minutes. I will invite you to state your name any organization
22 you represent. If you do pertain to an organization if not, that's cool. And then proceed to testimony. For 23 individuals who are participating either in person or remotely. You will see that on the witness desk
24 there is a little black box that has a green light, a yellow light and a red light. Green means go, yellow
25 means you have about 30 seconds remaining, and the red blinking light is your invitation to wrap up
26 your comments. We will go ahead and hear from the, I believe, two individuals who have signed up to 27 testify thus far and will open up for questions from members of the committee after we've heard from 28 both witnesses. And, so, with that, I'd like to welcome Dennis Jan followed by Jessalyn Houk.

29

30 Sen. Gonzales

31 Welcome, sir, to the joint judiciary committee meeting if you can please state your name and the 32 organization you represent and proceed. There. I'm sorry, sir. There is a little gray button right at the 33 base of the microphone that'll turn it on so that folks listening online can hear.

34

35 Sen. Gonzales

36 Can you hear me now.

37

38 Sen. Gonzales

39 We can, go right ahead.

40

1 Dennis Jan

2 My name is Dennis Jan, and I'm representing myself. Let me start by saying that I am a participant of 3 the PRA pension retirement fund, of which I contributed 32 years of service. In 2010, I was served with 4 a divorce. And at that time, I had very poor legal counsel. And at the time, they instructed me that I
5 needed to sign the divorce decree because it was as good as it was going to get. And, so, I did and come
6 to find out the paperwork was not filled out properly. So, I went back to court to try to get it straightened
7 out. And I went with a different lawyer this time. And the court was not very understanding about the 8 PERA rules or the changes that were allowed. And, so, nothing was changed. And in the meantime, my 9 ex-spouse had remarried. So, I went back to court a second time with a different attorney. But I got the 10 same magistrate. And same situation occurred, only this time there was two extensions to the hearing.
11 And when we reconvened the plan had been explained to the magistrate by the PERA organization
12 during a recess phone call. But there again, it was the same thing it was that you signed the divorce
13 decree, it is what it is, and I'm not going to allow any changes. So, I found a another lawyer that was 14 going to take the case of malpractice, but come to find out that during the extension of the second
15 hearing, I missed malpractice lawsuit to the first lawyer by three days, I had two years to reopen the 16 case, but it was two years and three days, and the lawyer would not accept the case because it was over 17 extended. PERA benefits, I'm sorry, and divorce rule book states that and all the appropriate boxes of 18 the forms must be completed. This is in regards to the DR or domestic relations orders. And in the 19 domestic relation order, it says that the alternative payee was named as the participant's co-beneficiary at 20 the time of retirement, the participant is allowed to change or delete the code beneficiary and that box is 21 blank. In the PERA handbook for changing code beneficiary and benefit option. Under divorce, it says
22 you are ordered or allowed via District Court to the jurisdiction under the divorce action to remove your 23 former spouse as co-beneficiary.

24

25 Sen. Gonzales

26 Mr. Jan, if you'd like to wrap up your your testimony, please thank you.

27

28 Dennis Jan

29 I'm asking for the legislature to adopt the rules and regulations of one of the biggest employers the 30 United States Government Department of Defense all the military's people. And let me quote, As a
31 general rule of former military spouse remarries is not eligible for survivors' pensions under the VA
32 rules. And their rules of the PERA changes. It says, remember, that the Colorado legislature sets benefits 33 and periods to execute the rules and implement these benefits. Can I interject one more thing?

34

35 Sen. Gonzales

36 Sir, I'd be happy to accept any written materials that you have in regards to your individual situation.
37 And I would also be happy to follow up with you directly offline. Because this testimony is, it pertains
38 to the Judicial Branch overview. And I want to make sure that you're able to get the the the assistance
39 and the support that you need in your individual case. But I invite you to conclude your your testimony 40 here, sir.

1 Dennis Jan

2 I appreciate your time.

3

4 Sen. Gonzales

5 Thank you very much. Colleagues, I want to see if you have any questions for Mr. Jan. Thank you very 6 much. Sorry. Thank you very much. Mr. Jan, will follow up directly,

7

8 Dennis Jan

9 I appreciate it.

10

11 Sen. Gonzales

12 Thank you. Our next individual who's going to sign up to testify is Jessalyn Hauk.

13

14 Sen. Gonzales

15 Please state your name and the organization you represent and proceed to testimony, you'll have three 16 minutes

17

18 Jessalyn Hauk

19 My name is Jessalyn Hauk, and I'm just here for myself. I apologize. I'm nervous. And I'm gonna read
20 my speech mostly off my I want to first thank you for taking the time to afford us this opportunity. I
21 haven't had a voice in a long time. And, so, it's nice to get at least three minutes. I'm here today because 22 for almost two years, I've been living this experience that quite frankly, is suffocating. This experience is 23 an allocation of parental responsibilities case through the Colorado family courts. It's currently ongoing.
24 So, I won't be getting into the specifics of my case, I'm just going to speak broadly on a few things I
25 believe need to be addressed. The ability for a former spouse to use the courts as an extension of their 26 prior abuse, once a relationship has ended, needs to really be looked into. It's especially dangerous when 27 children are involved because they too may be used by that same parent for abuse by proxy. There's no
28 statutory language surrounding this and I really believe there needs to be. Abusing the legal system, also 29 is just flooding the courts with frivolous findings against their former spouse and it isn't in the best
30 interest of anybody. These tactics tie up the courts, its administrative staff, and it comes out of 31 considerable cost to the courts and the respondent in terms of time and money. And it ultimately delays
32 the resolution and obscures the facts of the case. And tragically, sometimes overly broad judicial 33 discretion that judges possess in family courts sometimes facilitates this abuse. The consequences. bog
34 down the system even more parents have to fight even harder to have their constitutional rights
35 recognized. We have to find opportunities to reduce that discretion in order to improve the process
36 and/or outcome for families. I've witnessed an APR case allocation of parental responsibilities be 37 initiated through an emergency motion to restrict parenting time, where the petitioner testified and 38 presented evidence for the entirety of the hearing against the multiple objections from counsel for 39 respondent. Respondent was not able to present evidence, testimony, witnesses, or conduct cross
40 examination. The outcome of that hearing was heartbreaking for the respondent. Sorry. Alongside that,

1 statutory language requiring proof of precedent for person to claim psychological parent needs to be
2 raised. Testimony from the non biological parent and judicial discretion, discretion alone should not be
3 enough. Additionally, the ability for a judge to deny a party especially respondent, a family investigator
4 is negligent, negligent and not in the best interest for the child. The language and that statute needs to be
5 changed for me to shall. That being said, a family investigator is not a substitute for due process. They're 6 the equivalent of a public defender in family court. They're overworked, underpaid. Which brings me to 7 my next point, judges can and do look at domestic relation parties and say 20 minutes each sum it up.
8 The gross violations of due process in family court is just inhumane. I mean, the whole world will stop
9 and watch Amber Herd and Johnny Depp hash it out for four weeks straight. But when it comes to a
10 family's fighting for our children, this is what we get. We need to ask ourselves where our priorities lie. I
11 know that Chief Justice touched briefly on this point earlier with the pilot program to help pro se parties
12 in domestic relations cases. However, I don't see it as enough. In criminal matters, you're guaranteed the 13 right to counsel of found indigent. We don't get that in family court. You're just thrown to the wolves
14 You, somebody can go in and massacre an entire elementary school and they should have someone in 15 their corner. But so should we.

16

17 Sen. Gonzales

18 Ms. Houck, I invite you to conclude your comments, thank you.

19

20 Jessalyn Hauk

21 I'm here, I will continue to be here. But I shouldn't be. I should be at home with my kids making their 22 lunch, painting with them cleaning up their mess, not this one. Thank you.

23

24 Sen. Gonzales

25 Thank you, Ms. Hauk. Colleagues. I see that Mr. Vice Chair has a question.

26

27 Rep. Weissman

28 Yes, thank you. And thank you for being here. It's clearly not easy to be here. Understanding there's an 29 ongoing matter, there's going to be limits on what you you can speak to. I'm curious if this APR matter,
30 involved a child family investigator and or a parental responsibility evaluator? And if so, what you 31 would say, as a general matter, about the role of those two types of individuals that are statute permits to 32 have a role in family court.

33

34 Sen. Gonzales

35 Ms. Hauk.

36

37 Jessalyn Hauk

38 I'm sorry, can you say that one more time?

39

40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Yeah. So, there are entities and they become involved in APR matters, sometimes a CFI?

3

4 Jessalyn Hauk

5 You mean the investigators.

6

7 Rep. Weissman

8 Yeah, a child and family investigator or CFI. And/or a PRE parental responsibility evaluator. I'm 9 wondering if either of those sorts of individuals were involved in the situation you're speaking of and 10 anyway.

11

12 Jessalyn Hauk

13 They were denied multiple times until after an appeal was filed.

14

15 Rep. Weissman

16 Okay, thank you.

17

18 Jessalyn Hauk

19 Did you have a second part to that original question I thought I heard?

20

21 Rep. Weissman

22 Well, yeah, sorry, and I don't want to press you to say more than you're comfortable with here. But we 23 hear a lot about those two types of individuals. There's been legislation sometimes, and there's been,
24 frankly, some pretty prominent articles in the press about somethings going wrong. And others. I wonder
25 if I'm just inviting you to speak to your experience having those individuals in your in the situation
26 you're speaking of if you're comfortable to do.

27

28 Sen. Gonzales

29 Ms. Hauk.

30

31 Jessalyn Hauk

32 Speaking generally, and hypothetically. One is involved, there is no conclusion. But I know before, it's 33 even over that. They don't have the time and the resources, because I would just--to properly evaluate 34 my case. And it could be hypothetically said that they stated that themselves. And it's not enough. A
35 CFI, a PRE, it's not enough, their training isn't enough. Their time allotment is not enough. It's just not 36 enough. None of it. This is enough.

37

38

39

40

1 Sen. Gonzales

2 Seeing no further questions, I want to thank you. I want to thank you both for coming in sharing your 3 perspectives with our joint judiciary committee, as we continue to address these issues around the 4 Judicial Branch. Thank you.

5

6 Jessalyn Hauk

7 That concludes I would like to know, I do know there's someone else here who would like to testify. He 8 signed up online.

9

10 Sen. Gonzales

11 Excellent. That was gonna be my next question. That concludes the list of individuals I have signed up 12 to testify. But if there's anyone in the audience or online who wishes to testify here regarding the 13 Judicial Branch, please proceed. Are you by chance Jordan Scott? Yes, I am. Excellent. I wasn't sure
14 whether you had signed up on this one or the next one. Welcome. Please state your name and proceed.
15 You will have three minutes.

16

17 Jordan Scott

18 I did both. Thank you.

19

20 Sen. Gonzales

21 Got it.

22

23 Jordan Scott

24 I've been in family court for about five years now. Apparently on one family of 30,000 per year. So it's 25 pretty big numbers that are happening here. I've have had a CFI appointed in my case, the CFI broke the 26 rules. I filed a complaint. The judge said the CFI did a good job. The complaint went to the court
27 administrator they were found to have had bias and for the court administrator to actually find a
28 problem. It's a pretty significant problem. So now that PREs are also supervised by the court
29 administrator. I don't see any actual solution to CFI or PRE improvement. There is a 20% turnover rate
30 in the in the courthouses because not salary. It's the toxic workplace. It's the fear of reporting. I report a
31 judge. The judge gets to just keep doing what he's doing, there's no there's no accountability, there's no
32 responsibility. I report an attorney violating the rules. The judge ignores the attorney violating the rules.
33 I've seen an attorney actually not show up to a hearing they were ordered to attend. I pointed it out and 34 the judge was like, oh, well, that's okay. But if I don't show up, I get a bench warrant. There is that 35 paraprofessional approach. We don't need that we just need judges to do their job and to hold people
36 accountable. If the judges aren't being held accountable, I don't I don't know what to do with that. The 37 guy before me said I can't fire them if they don't want to follow the CJDs. That's not leadership, that's 38 not oversight. And he said, believe in the separation of powers. Cool, except the law is what the judges
39 should be following. Right? I don't understand why he would have said that. But it leads to the culture of 40 they do what they want. They're making money. They're making money off of families, they're taking

1 hundreds of thousands of dollars from the 30,000 families a year we're talking a million and billion
2 dollar industry. There's racketeering, so the court charges to get transcripts, they don't want to put them
3 online because then people don't have to pay for transcripts. The court appoints mediators, who are then
4 hiring their attorney friends as the mediators, the court appoints experts like PCDMs, CFIs, and PREs,
5 who are then caught with fraud and bias and cheating and just breaking rules. And there's no
6 accountability. It's to the point of I want to say there's 1000 complaints on CFIs. As a year, maybe 90 get
7 investigated, maybe three have some sort of discipline. That's not a discipline process. That's not a
8 process with oversight at all. So, I think it's like a mafia, to be honest. I think our family court system is 9 a mafia. And I'm asking that we really evaluate how to kind of improve that.

10
11 Sen. Gonzales

12 Mr. Scott, thank you for your testimony. Colleagues, do you have any questions for this witness? Seeing 13 none, I want to thank you for joining us and sharing your perspective today. I do just want to state to 14 everyone who offered their public comment this afternoon, that I hope that you all recognize that we 15 heard your testimony. And we also heard the comments from both the State Court Administrator and the 16 Chief Justice and that yours carry for us and in this body as the joint judiciary, equal weight. And so, I
17 just really want to extend our appreciation to members of the public for coming and joining and sharing
18 your your comments with this body this afternoon. With that, it is 4:15 And I want to welcome our third
19 presentation this afternoon. We will welcome the Commission on Judicial Discipline presentation 20 pursuant to the SMART Act hearing. We'll give Judge Prince and Mr. Gregory an opportunity to get set 21 up.

22
23 Sen. Gonzales

24 Judge Prince.

25
26 David Prince

27 Good afternoon. Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you to all the members of the Joint Committee for 28 having us here today. My name is David Prince and I am the Vice Chair of the Colorado Commission on 29 Judicial Discipline. With me is Mr. Gregory who is our Executive Director. First, I just want to note that 30 our Chair, Ms. Espinosa Krupa, sends her apologies that she's not the person talking to you, but she's 31 tied up defending someone in a murder trial out on the Western Slope. So, I think she has a good excuse
32 for not being here, but she sends her apologies. We also want to thank you for the opportunity to talk
33 with you. Many of you know that this is only our second time appearing before the SMART committee.
34 Last year was our first experience. And at the time, frankly, the future for judicial discipline looked 35 fairly dark, fairly bleak. And because of the questions asked by this body and the work of the General
36 Assembly after that, what a difference a year makes. It is certainly a much more optimistic view of the 37 future of truly neutral and independent judicial ethics oversight in Colorado. So, first, I just want to try 38 and orient some of you who may be new to the Commission with where we come from and what our 39 role is. We were created in the middle of the 20th century, along with merit selection system. That was 40 when there was a major reform to the way state court systems were populated and overseen. Our system

1 was adopted hand in hand with the merit selection system. At that time, Colorado set aside the idea of 2 accountability for judges using political elections, and instead adopted merit selection for appointing
3 judges. And, then, for their review. Hand in hand with that, though, they had to create a system of 4 ethical accountability for judges. And that's the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline. And that 5 is our role, it is to provide that outside independent review and accountability for judicial ethics. The 6 whole idea was to end the practice of internal, purely internal self policing of judicial ethics. That's why
7 we have the commission movement, I understand that you have hard copies of the slides we're going 8 through, I'm moving. . . Oh, it's actually up now. Well, that makes life a lot easier.

9
10 So I've moved on to Slide three at this point to give you just an overview of the membership of the 11 Commission. These are the Commission members. As you can see, we divide them into three categories,
12 our members, our citizens from the community, attorney, members, and judge members as well. Each 13 and every one is a busy professional, who volunteers their time for this public service to serve on the 14 Commission.

15
16 I want to give you an overview of our process? Last year, we spent a lot of detail on this, and we won't
17 put you through that, again. In the big picture scheme, we operate much like a grand jury. Our role is to 18 receive allegations of judicial misconduct, then to provide that neutral and independent examination of 19 those. There's a screening process. If they survive the screening process, we then go to an investigatory
20 phase, where we actually do factual development. If the case or the complaint is viable, it actually has to 21 meet the standard of proof by preponderance, in other words, the standard for winning a case in the civil 22 system. If and only if that standard is met, we then file a case. And those are called formal proceedings
23 in our world. Formal proceedings go forward. It's a lot like a trial. And then you have appellate review
24 and final decision. And under the traditional system that we have, it's the Supreme Court who ultimately 25 makes the final decision. They don't exactly play an appellate role. And as you've heard, that's likely to 26 change under the reforms created by the Interim Committee.

27
28 In terms of our staffing historically, we've had 1.5 FTE, to do the job of the Commission. An Executive 29 Director and a half time administrative assistant. In 2022, thanks to the work of again, this joint 30 committee. Under the reforms of Senate Bill 22-201, we were able to increase that staffing, we now
31 have hired an in-house attorney to act as our Special Counsel. We have been authorized an investigator 32 and getting ready to hire that investigative position. And then we were able to bring the administrative 33 position up to a full-time person.

34
35 I want to talk to you a little bit about the caseload that the judicial discipline commission handles
36 historically, because the numbers most easily available go through 2021. Historically, with 1.5
37 administrative people we handled over the last 20 years, just under 4,000 complaints, we call them
38 RFEs. There was some discussion during the interim committee about sort of the level in suggesting that 39 there are very few complaints against judges. Well, under the same timeframe that was discussed the 40 ILG report, the numbers actually is just under 4,000. Of that 4,000 RFEs, in the last 20 years, just under

1 400 proceeded to the next stage of factual investigation and workup. So that's about 90% go away in
2 screening and only 10% move on to further investigation. That number, that ratio is very consistent with 3 the numbers from commissions across the United States. So that's pretty much an industry standard. It's 4 usually 90%, up to 95% that gets screened out. Because on their face, they're not a valid complaint.
5 Usually, it's because it's an appellate challenge, say I don't like the judge's ruling. And we're not the 6 place that handles those kinds of things. In terms of the cases that we get, so those 400 are just under 7 400 cases. You see that approximately 70 of those cases, when the judge has been facing an 8 investigation or review of an ethics complaint, about 70 stepped away from their judicial duties. Some of 9 those stepped away voluntarily some of those stepped away involuntarily. And of those just under 400
10 cases, there are about 250 cases during that period of time, where we issued what we call corrective 11 action. In other words, we've taken some corrective action with the judge, who was the subject of the 12 disciplinary complaint. What we're seeing today, in 2022, is an increase in the raw number of those 13 complaints, again, what we call RFEs. We've seen about a 25% jump in the last year. So, we've closed
14 out the calendar year with 250 RFEs, recent averages for those other categories of the actions that we 15 take, I've also seen an increase, we're now taking, on average, seven corrective actions involving a judge
16 every year. And we're seeing two judges step aside on an average basis each year when they're faced
17 with a an ethics complaint. So, as you've heard talked about, and many of you already know, there was a 18 pretty significant event in the last year, there was a joint Interim Committee. Oh, excuse me, I'm sorry,
19 I've skipped ahead of myself. So, what I wanted to move on to was not only, because the raw number of 20 RFPs and raw number of complaints, I honestly don't think it tells you a whole lot. There's been some 21 variation, it's been more in the press, maybe that has something to do with the raw number going up.
22 That's not the critical part. Their critical part is that what we've been seeing is an increase in the serious 23 allegations, an increase in the cases that we have to actually work up because they're credible when 24 they're presented. And that's actually a much larger increase than you see just in the RFEs. I'll give you
25 an idea of it. In the past. What should I say, in the past. If we look at the historical rate, we used to 26 measure the number of formal proceedings that's that essentially trial proceeding, we used to measure
27 the number of years between filings of those cases. Now, we measure the number of cases per year. In 28 the last 12 months, we've had to file as many formal proceedings, as we did at the historic rate over 12
29 years. In other words, that's more than a 10-fold increase we've seen just in the last year. So, like I say, 30 we're having a significant increase more than that 25% in those serious and credible complaints, not just 31 the raw complaints that come from the public. So, I think that's a pretty important number to have in 32 mind, you got to think about that for a moment, the same number in 12 months as in 12 years under the 33 old standard. Okay.

34

35 Now, let's turn to the reforms that occurred last year. So as a result of the work of this committee, again,
36 that we greatly appreciate, Senate Bill 22-201 was enacted, I don't really know that we need to go
37 through each and every one of the reforms that were adopted. This slide also doesn't go through each 38 one of them, but it does hit the highlights. Most importantly, when we came before you last year, we 39 were being told that we were about to be cut off from our traditional source of funding. And as you'll 40 recall, that was all tied up in a particular investigation and the events as they unfolded from that.

1 Happily, the General Assembly decided to provide us with substitute funding. And that went into effect
2 in July. We greatly appreciate that. And that's what allowed us to hire those internal staff, and do some 3 other things.

4
5 One of the most important reforms that's already been adopted was creation of this duty of disclosure
6 that actually requires the Judiciary in Colorado to report to the discipline commission, allegations of 7 judicial misconduct. As far as we can tell, Colorado is a leader in the country on that, because at the 8 time, we looked and checked with some of the national experts to see if anybody else had ever done that,
9 and we couldn't find an example. So, Colorado, you folks led the way by creating, as far as we can tell,
10 the first statutory definition of that duty of disclosure. Now, we were actually already ahead of the head
11 of the curve, because we had that same duty of disclosure in place by a contractual arrangement that was 12 more than a decade old. But we had found that that was ineffective and was not being followed. And so
13 that's the reason it was codified. Colorado also banned the use of non-disclosure agreements entered by 14 the judiciary as a means of avoiding that disclosure obligation. And it also bars the assertion of various 15 types of confidentiality and privilege claims to avoid those disclosures. And Colorado can do that 16 because we have constitutional level confidentiality for the judicial discipline process. So that disclosure
17 to the discipline commission does not eliminate that confidentiality at those early stages. You also 18 authorized information sharing because at that time, the major components of Colorado's judicial 19 oversight: the nomination commission process, the performance commission process, and the discipline
20 commission process, were all very separate silos. And, so, you gave us authority for those three entities 21 to work more collaboratively together and share their information.

22
23 And then, of course, what's been the topic of discussion today, you also created an Interim Committee
24 that spent the summer looking specifically at the judicial discipline process, and how Colorado could do
25 a better job with it. So, let's move on to the Interim Committee, because that's what's going to be 26 important for this session, I think. It was a robust discussion through the summer, a lot of good evidence
27 taken. We were hearty advocates of the process and active participants throughout, let's talk about some 28 of the things that we learned through that process. We, oh, I'm sorry, generally, we support the. My 29 attention is divided between trying to decide whether to look at my notes or look at the screen, and I
30 really just need to choose one. So first and foremost, we at the discipline commission fully support the 31 draft legislation that came out of the Interim Committee, we think there are some very important
32 advancements that are being proposed and support them. We do have some suggestions for some ways 33 to tweak and improve certain aspects of it now give you a brief overview of that today, knowing that 34 there'll be future hearings where those really get reviewed.

35
36 But let's turn our attention for a moment to the lessons that we learned about the functioning of the 37 judicial discipline system in Colorado, based on what was testified to the to the Interim Committee. The 38 sad truth of the matter is that what we learned is the judicial ethics oversight system in Colorado has not 39 been working. If you read the Troyer Report and the ILG Report together, what you learn is that there's 40 been a toxic environment. That's the phrase that used a lot. Troyer talked to us about these non-

1 disclosure agreements that were being used, employees even being compensated for not telling about
2 misconduct allegations and keeping them secret. From the ILG Report, they looked at a selection of six
3 sample allegations of judicial misconduct spread over a 20-year period. And one of the important things
4 that seems to get overlooked is that what they found was that none of those were fully disclosed or fully 5 submitted to Colorado's system of judicial ethics oversight, independent judicial ethics oversight. Of 6 those six examples, one and only one was reported. And they acknowledged that it was only half
7 reported to the discipline process. The discipline commission actually did issue a sanction in that one
8 case. But the other examples were not identified as having been reported or submitted to that process.

9
10 One of the big problems is that cultural piece of it. Because think about it for a moment, the whole
11 purpose half a century ago of creating the discipline commission, whether it's in Colorado, or any of 12 those created all across the country, was to get neutral and independent oversight, independent review
13 and evaluation of an allegation of judicial misconduct--to end that we handle this in house, we keep it
14 within the family, we follow self-policing. That was the whole point of the process. But yet, we see that 15 for that 20-year history where it was looked at. That was continuing commonly. The part that's 16 disturbing is that the ILG report, the investigator hired by the Judiciary presents in their Report that 17 that's appropriate. That that's the way the system is supposed to work, that these complaints are handled
18 in-house and not submitted to the judicial discipline commission. That is a fundamental problem. That's 19 not the system design. That's not what was intended. The whole purpose is to assure the public that there
20 is credible, independent, neutral, impartial review of those judicial misconduct allegations. Not that self 21 policing decided there wasn't anything there. And of course, we also saw that of the six examples that 22 were presented for ILG to examine, in two of those, the Judiciary itself said you can't look into these 23 involving sitting members of the Supreme Court. Said these two, even though the independent panel
24 assigned these cases to be examined, they were held to be off limits. Another aspect that was a little bit
25 concerning was that the independent panel, many of you may recall that those investigators were hired
26 with the help of an independent panel to decide who would be hired and decide what would be the scope
27 of their examination. That independent panel called for the investigators to look at the last five years of 28 all discrimination and harassment complaints and whether they were submitted to the judicial discipline
29 commission or not. And we've never heard the results of that examination. We at the Commission know 30 that while the six examples show that many cases, more than 83% of the examples that were presented,
31 don't show as having been submitted to the discipline commission. There are other cases that have not 32 been submitted to the discipline commission that we've ended up learning about. But they end up
33 coming through a different route or something like that. And we find out during our investigation that 34 judicial knew about them, but didn't pass them along. And that's not ancient history. That's as recently as 35 2022. That's as recently as last year that that continues to happen. So, it's a continuing problem. It's not 36 old history.

37
38 Let's move on to the reforms. So, the proposed reforms fall into some broad categories. First, there's the 39 draft bills include structural reform. We, as you heard earlier, we change what happens when the 40 Supreme Court or a member of the Supreme Court is somehow involved in the allegations of judicial

1 misconduct, we follow the ABA model, which the commission has been advocating for some time. And
2 that's create a separate, special tribunal / special Supreme Court basically, to hear and oversee that case.
3 There's also structural reform to more formally separate the investigative phase from the adjudicated
4 phase from the appellate phase, the Supreme Court is no longer going to be the final decision maker.
5 Instead, they will play a traditional appellate role and really play not much more than that role. There
6 are, on a structural level, there's also a change, very big change, in when confidentiality ends in these 7 systems. And the reforms would bring us into alignment with majority position in the United States.
8 There's also some changes to the way rulemaking is handled. And we'll come back to that in just a
9 moment. There's new data reporting requirements so that there's a little more transparency, a little better
10 ability to track what's happening with these complaints. And the people who are raising concerns. The 11 current Rules actually do not authorize someone to make an anonymous complaint. There's a 12 workaround, so anonymous complaints can be made. But if you're a layperson, just reading the Rules,
13 trying to figure out can I make an anonymous complaint because I'm afraid of retaliation. The Rules tell
14 you can't do that, says you have to sign your name to it. So, part of the reform is that anonymous
15 complaint systems will be put in place and authorized. And still in progress, the ombuds bill that you've 16 already heard some discussion about, and we'll come back to, we talked at the Interim Committee about 17 the repeal of the criminal penalty on confidentiality, because we've seen some abuses of that in the past
18 as a way of suppressing or intimidating people who might seek to raise misconduct complaints against a 19 judge. And then codification of the subpoena power. Those were the major issues as I saw them anyway.

20
21 So, let's move on to the issues where we are suggesting some targeted amendments to the draft
22 legislation. First on our list is rulemaking authority. HCR 1001 divides a case into two different parts for 23 purposes of rulemaking. It creates two rulemaking schemes. It basically says when you're at the 24 investigatory phase, we'll have a committee structure of the main stakeholders, which is the Supreme 25 Court and the Commission. And they will propose rules and then the Supreme Court gets to decide if 26 they adopt them or not. And then when you move to the actual case, there's a different rulemaking
27 scheme. And that's similar to what we have right now, which is the Supreme Court has plenary
28 rulemaking authority. Our suggestion is that that be changed and instead you create one rulemaking
29 system. A singular rulemaking system is more consistent with, as far as I know, every other approach to 30 rulemaking for a process or a case. And our suggestion is that you should not give one of the participants
31 one of the parties and groups sole rulemaking authority. Instead, it should be you know, I heard praise
32 earlier, and I joined in it for the Interim Committee having been bi-partisan. Well, let's do the equivalent
33 of a bi-partisan committee for the rulemaking process. In this case, it's tri-partisan, because you have the 34 investigatory organization, you have the adjudicatory organization and the appellate organization. So,
35 let's make a rulemaking committee that's made up of those three. That way, no single entity dominates it.
36 No single entity can control the outcome. And that's going to facilitate compromise, collaboration, and 37 frankly, better quality.

38
39 Next, we're suggesting a change in the way that the Special Tribunal, that special Supreme Court is 40 created. We had been discussing this with the Supreme Court prior to the interim committee. We'd been

1 in negotiations with them before the Interim Committee got started. And what we were advocating for
2 was that'd be drawn from a large pool. So, it minimizes the risk that we see that exercise of undue
3 influence that there's been some history of. And, so, we call on it to be a pool of all statewide judges.
4 The Supreme Court preferred to narrow that pool and remove County Court judges. So, it would only 5 the district court judges, and appellate court judges, and we were okay with that we negotiated that 6 compromise with them, we still stand by that compromise. And we think that's what you ought to do.
7 We can talk in more detail if you want about why there are problems that carry over from the old
8 system, if you keep it to this narrow, small group of the Court of Appeals, as the pool. That's what I call 9 it, the pool from which the special tribunal is drawn. Okay.

10
11 Next, this, I don't remember this actually being discussed during the Interim Committee, but it is in the 12 final legislation. And I'm just not sure how intentional it was. It created a right of appeal, but it only 13 allows the judge who is, we call them the respondent judge, the judge who is accused of misconduct,
14 only they have a right of appeal from the adjudication phase. We don't think that's appropriate, we think
15 you should authorize appeals from both sides. The Commission side is really the victim side, the victim
16 should be given a right of appeal. It's only fair, frankly, it's unfair to say only one side gets a right of 17 appeal. And, so, we're proposing that that be bilateral.

18
19 Next, something that's been talked about an awful lot today is the ombuds. We are fully supportive of 20 the idea of the ombuds. Candidly, I will tell you, if a truly independent ombuds gets created, it's an 21 incredible practical check on the ability to screen out allegations against judges of misconduct before
22 they ever reach the discipline commission. And, so, it kind of solves some of those other issues that we 23 talked about. At the Interim Committee, for example, we're a lot less worried about the fact that right
24 now, while there is an obligation, a duty of disclosure by the Judiciary to the discipline commission,
25 there's no enforcement mechanism. And even since that law has been enacted, we've run into challenges
26 for the lack of an enforcement mechanism. But if we have the ombuds, that's a practical check in the 27 classic sense of American history of checks and balances in government. That's a very practical check
28 that really limits someone's ability to control that flow of information. And, so, I'm not as worried about 29 the fact that we don't have an enforcement mechanism for the existing duty if we have an ombuds. But 30 what we want to emphasize to you is that it's critical that the ombuds be genuinely independent. If the 31 ombuds is under the control, direct or indirect, of Judicial Leadership, the truth of matter is past is 32 prologue, we're probably going to recreate exactly the HR system that we had before, where we had a
33 handful of people who, as the ILG report tells us, for 20 years, received complaints and didn't forward
34 them on to discipline commission. It'll just be by a different name. So, let's not make the same mistake
35 again. So those are the major amendments that we propose. Those are the major things I wanted to talk
36 with you about. I'm now going to unless you want to pause here for questions on those. I'll turn it over to 37 Mr. Gregory to talk about the budget side.

1 Sen. Gonzales

2 Thank you, Judge Prince for your presentation and walking members who did not serve on the Interim
3 Committee, sort of through what we tackled over the summer. Colleagues, questions? Mr. Vice Chair.

4

5 Rep. Weissman

6 Thank you. And just a parallel line of questioning earlier this afternoon, you've already spoken to the 7 last of them, I would invite you to comment a bit more briefly on how two of the charges set up in 201
8 are proceeding. One is sort of provision of support upstream of the pivot, middle of this year to a more
9 fully independent structure for the office as codified in the bill. And then you did speak to this next one
10 a bit. But flow of information is obviously critical to the whole mechanism working if you could speak
11 to that. I just want everyone here to hear, you know, a little bit from both sides. So, I'm putting the 12 questions to as well, as I said that I would and I think the third one was going to be the ombuds structure
13 question, but you've spoken to that. So, thank you, Judge.

14

15 Sen. Gonzales

16 Judge Prince.

17

18 David Prince

19 Thank you, Madam Chair. And thank you, Mr. Vice Chair for the questions and the opportunity to 20 respond to the same issues that were addressed by the Judiciary earlier. I'll try to take them in the order 21 you provided.

22

23 The first question is about support. The Senate Bill 22-201 did provide us with our own independent
24 funding for the future. Impossible really to have that happen like that? I think I heard earlier the phrase
25 to turn the switch on or turn the switch off, so one of the things we negotiated with the judiciary and that 26 the General Assembly passed was a one-year period through this summer of transition. I think I would 27 agree with the State Court Administrator's description earlier that there there are a lot of successes to 28 point to. There's also some friction and some problems that have occurred in that support. I would say
29 that there are some examples of some really great work that the State Court Administrator's Office has 30 done in trying to help us with that transition. I'm thinking of the example see, we've been on their 31 computer system through OARC in the past, and the State Court Administrator's IT system has been 32 working with us, as babes in the woods, trying to understand what kind of software do we need? What 33 kind of hardware do we need? How are we going to handle all the confidential, you know, all kinds of 34 issues that you never would think about setting up your home or even an office system, and they've been 35 just fabulous working with us. And we're still in that process. It's not done yet, but I can't even 36 remember really a hiccup on that one. There have been other areas where there have been some some 37 disagreements. But there have been some some real challenges as well. Candidly, the Troyer Report
38 talked to us a lot about the toxic environment at the Judiciary, we experienced that on occasion with 39 some of this stuff, because some monkey wrenches get thrown at us that, really we're able to deal with 40 we're able to get around. But for example, the Governor signed this Bill into law in May. 21-days later,

1 the Supreme Court's Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel announced to us without prior warning, they
2 were providing no more attorney or investigator support, effective immediately. We literally were in the 3 midst of cases. And they just announced one day, we're dropping everything. And frankly, we then had 4 to kind of fight with them to get our own litigation file in one of those cases, near in a case at that time.
5 And, so, we've had some challenges.

6
7 That takes me into the information sharing. We were in a pretty bad position when we were in front of 8 you a year ago. When we were with you a year ago. There was one particular case that ended up getting 9 talked about. The Chief Justice at that time said that the investigators were being provided with 10 unfettered access. And I think to information, I think we can all agree that that is absolutely the goal for 11 something as important as judicial ethics oversight. That the Judiciary itself should be providing 12 unfettered access to information so that we can have credible review of any allegations of misconduct.
13 Unfortunately, we weren't even close to that last year, not trying to avoid characterizations, let's work
14 with real numbers. The Judiciary itself had assembled 12,000 documents they considered relevant on 15 one of the examinations we were doing. At the end of 2021, they had given us about a dozen. By the 16 time we got to the SMART hearing, they'd given us about 1,000. So, a little less than 10%. The 17 Legislature then signed into law Senate Bill 22 201, and actually required them to provide us with 18 records. And it took a while, but we got a lot of that. So, I'd say the ratio now is more like 80/20, we 19 probably have 80% of the information we seek. There is probably 20%. And it's hard to come up with a
20 number on this one because I don't have a control set where I can compare the numbers, or I could a year
21 ago or eventually after I got the numbers from Troyer, could last summer. So, at this bit of an estimate, 22 but an overwhelmingly better position. Still a lot of information on various cases that we asked for and 23 we don't get. I'll tell you one of those files that we got when the Supreme Court's OARC stopped doing
24 work on our cases. One of the files we got we found that they had not disclosed to us additional 25 allegations of misconduct against the judge in an ongoing matter and had not disclosed to us some 26 evidence of those allegations. They were serious, they resulted in sanction. And, so, those are not 27 ancient history. That's 2022. That's the last 12 months, but we're in an infinitely better position than we 28 were in about a year ago. Let's see. I think that's flow of information.

29
30 And then the ombuds I think you're right, I think I probably addressed that. So, I don't think there's 31 anything else to add there. We just focus on gotta be independent.

32
33 Sen. Gonzales

34 Thank you, Judge Prince for that overview. I see a question from Representative Snyder.

35
36 Rep. Snyder

37 Thank you, Madam Chair. And thank you both for being here. And thank you Judge Prince for your 38 service on the Commission and for making the trip up from El Paso County today to present to the joint 39 committee. I've had one, one clarification. We talked about the ombuds. I think it's very clear why it
40 could not be housed in Judicial. So, I think we'd be looking for another home for it. But how about the

1 Commission? The Commission is doing some great work, you've disciplined three judges? Is that not an
2 option for perhaps where we could locate an ombuds?
3

4 Sen. Gonzales

5 Judge Prince.
6

7 David Prince

8 Thank you, Madam Chair. And thank you, Representative Snyder. Thank you all. So, for making the 9 drive up from El Paso County. Representative Bacon, as you've heard other people say, has been an 10 excellent negotiating partner or discussion. Negotiating is probably the wrong one on this one, because 11 we're not negotiating this one. We're just involved in the discussions occasionally. But Representative
12 Bacon and I had exactly that discussion, probably in July, I think, I forget when it was, at some length.
13 Yeah, there is a challenge, where to put it? And there are options. And I, my personal opinion, is that the 14 Commission may not be the best place for it, because you want somebody who is, it's like housing the 15 victim advocate with the police. That can work. But sometimes they might be seen as part of the police.
16 And, so, someone might be nervous about it. We have told everyone that we're happy to have it housed
17 with us and do think that can work if, if you can't find a good place for it. That's fine. But I can see, I can 18 see someone thinking, you're like the policeman. And so I'm not sure I really want to go to a place that's 19 housed with you. But, that's just my personal opinion.
20

21 Rep. Snyder

22 Thank you.
23

24 Sen. Gonzales

25 Senator Gardner.
26

27 Sen. Gardner

28 Thank you, Madam Chair. And, again, thank you both for being here. And Judge Prince. Good to see 29 you again. And thanks for making the trip and drive safely home.
30

31 Sen. Gonzales

32 It's an El Paso County love fest.
33

34 Sen. Gardner

35 Well, we're so lonely here. Madam Chair. When we we see one of our own, we're just ecstatic. I was 36 struck early in the presentation by the information you provided about the numbers of serious, credible
37 complaints being as many in the past 12 months as the previous 12 years. And I have asked questions
38 like this for and sort of asking for impression because I don't think you've probably done a study. But 39 what do we attribute that to? Is it because things are now being reported? Is it because we have more and 40 more misconduct? Is it more serious? Is the public more aware of the process? It's really alarming unless

1 there's some context that says maybe we're doing something right. I don't know. I'm just asking either of 2 you.

3

4 Sen. Gonzales

5 Judge Prince.

6

7 David Prince

8 Well, thank you, Madam Chair. And thank you, Senator Gardner for the question. I've thought quite a 9 lot about that too. And and also, good luck in your drive home.

10

11 Sen. Gardner

12 Mine's on Friday Judge Prince.

13

14 David Prince

15 Oh, ok. No, we haven't done a study. So, I can't give you any scientific answer. And keep in mind that 16 the numbers are pretty small, still. For the one you're talking about the last 12 months, in the last 12
17 years. And so that that percentage can end up looking very, very dramatic. And it's still an important
18 number to look at and consider. But the raw number is still relatively modest. You know, it used to be 19 we did one case every three, three and a third years. And now we've done I think it's 4 cases in the last 20 12 months, 3 cases last calendar year. We have seen more serious allegations, I think. I don't think 21 there's a backlog. I mean, there actually is a case that that's from quite a while ago, where people within 22 the judiciary had made a decision not to report it. And it ended up getting to us anyway. And so that's 23 that's a bit of just backlog, I'll call it. But it doesn't really apply to the others. They are current. And I
24 suspect it's more reporting. I suspect that's primarily it. I see no reason to think that judges are suddenly
25 misbehaving at a higher level than they did in the past. So, I'm tending to think that there's better
26 reporting. I tend to think it's a little early to say that it's attributable to Senate Bill 22-201. I would love
27 to give the Legislature credit for that. I'm sure that's part of it. But I also think part of it is a heightened
28 awareness of some of the publicity. In other words, really the issues that you just mentioned. I think
29 those are factors altogether that probably cause it. I think there's a heightened awareness of the discipline
30 commission itself. I don't mean to be disrespectful to anybody, but I suspect two and a half years ago, a
31 much smaller percentage of the members of the General Assembly knew that the discipline commission 32 existed than know today, much less the general public.

33

34 Sen. Gardner

35 Thank you.

36

37 Sen. Gonzales

38 I will just speak from my own experience. That is correct, sir. Representative Bacon.

39

40

1 Rep. Bacon

2 Thank you, I want to switch over quickly to just ask about the data you collect, and you report out. We
3 know every year you create kind of like an annual report. And I'm curious if you keep cumulative data,
4 particularly on judges, to understand the types of complaints that are brought to them. And if there are 5 any barriers, quite honestly, to making that information, a little bit more transparent, I think. Well, when 6 we hear people come to us, this is another question, but maybe not we mostly hear about troubles with 7 rulings, right. But I will say that I tend to hear a theme on which courts sometimes that these come from,
8 and so it'd be helpful to understand not only what is made transparent but where you feel like there
9 might be some room to increase that transparency, with any sort of reference to rule would be helpful as 10 well.

11
12 Sen. Gonzales

13 Judge Prince.

14
15 David Prince

16 Thank you, Madam Chair. And thank you Representative Bacon. I wasn't smart enough to bring my 17 Rules with me for a rule reference, but there is a Rule. It was number, Mr. Gregory will know and tell
18 you in a moment, because he's that kind of person. Probably where we are required to present an annual 19 report. And we provide statistical information. You're right, though it's it's it's somewhat opaque to the 20 public, because they're posted as glorified hardcopy documents, obviously, they're PDFs, but they're 21 posted as hardcopy documents, and there actually is data available, but it's not cumulative. So frankly,
22 one of the discussions Mr. Gregory and I've been having, as well as the rest of the Commission, has 23 been implementing the new reporting requirements under Senate Bill 22-201, which we fully embraced,
24 adopted, and recommended. And part of that is to make it more accessible, part of the specific request
25 we were getting from members of this joint committee was to make it downloadable, and in a digitally
26 manipulatable form, if that's that phrase. And that is our plan, probably not going to happen for year 22,
27 because we're just getting underway. But frankly, the earlier slide where I gave you cumulative for the 28 last 20 years, 2001 to the present, that is the period for which we have Annual Reports. And I personally
29 went through and just calculated those and built my little Excel spreadsheet, and did cumulative totals,
30 one of the requests that you were centering on was, it would be helpful if I could see the types of 31 complaints as well as where the complaints geographically in the State are coming from or the courts,
32 and actually all that is in our Annual Report. It's just not that accessible. And, so, one of the things that 33 they did very early on in those Annual Reports, the first ones, excuse me, they would actually give 34 cumulative numbers. And we kind of fell away from that practice. I don't know why we did, it happened
35 a long time ago. But we kind of fell away from that practice. And one of the things Mr. Gregory and I
36 have been talking about is we'll go back to that practice. And, so, we will prepare some cumulative
37 things, whether that's going to be for 2022, I don't know. And we'll have it in a downloadable format in 38 the future. One of the things that you have in your packet is the new, at least as best we could do it, the 39 new demographic type statistics, which you didn't specifically mention, but I know you have in mind.
40 And, so, we don't have those historically, because that data was not collected. And there's just no way

1 for us to go back and create it, at this point. So, that'll be from this point going forward. And we're
2 frankly, still transitioning our system. So, we don't really have the systems in place to truly track it
3 today. But we're going to have them in place fairly soon. And, so, I can turn it over to Mr. Gregory to 4 see if he has some additional comments on the stats, because he's really our statistician.
5

6 Sen. Gonzales

7 Mr. Gregory.
8

9 Christopher Gregory

10 The statute that's involved is of course 13-5.3-108, which was part of Senate Bill 22-201. There we go.
11 That's better. And I did try to go through and meet each one of those elements that were listed in the 12 statute with the handout that you have before you. Given, you know, you had brought up this idea, I
13 think, as part of the Interim Committee process, in our Annual Report from 2022, we did make an effort
14 to go through those statistics and break them down District by District to try and show if there was a 15 cultural problem in a particular geography. And, hopefully, that's helpful. That will go into our Annual 16 Report for 22, which should be released in a much sooner course of things than it was last year. And that 17 was just largely because of some of the transition that was going on with the agency. But I think as part 18 of your question, you'd also asked for kind of that breakdown on what the type of complaint was, and as 19 it has been testified to. The vast majority of the things we get relate to disputed rulings. And that number
20 shows up here, there were 110 out of the roughly 249 total RFEs that we got that all related to a disputed
21 ruling. And these statistics, if you take it even further, it breaks it down to an additional 21 35(c) post
22 conviction relief, disputed rulings that that added into that. So, that's always going to be a pretty 23 significant statistic in what our reports are.
24

25 Sen. Gonzales

26 Excellent. Colleagues, any additional questions? Seeing none, let's go ahead and proceed.
27

28 Christopher Gregory

29 So, the one final part of this is just to give you a general overview of sort of what we have requested for 30 our budget for fiscal year 24. And in our original budget, it was very limited, it was just asking for salary
31 adjustments, that would put the commission sort of in line with where it was before this funding shift
32 had happened. We would have salaries that were equivalent to the resources that we had before we were 33 legislatively funded. And as I understand, that's now moving his way through the joint budget process.
34

35 After we had submitted that, however, it came to our attention that there was perhaps greater ambiguity
36 over this interim support that we were receiving under the statutes, 13-5.3-103(3). This notion that the 37 Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel and the State Court Administrator's Office would be providing 38 administrative support to the Commission through this fiscal year, it was our understanding that some of 39 that would have continued indefinitely. And with different events that happened, all of a sudden, we had 40 greater worry that that funding was going to cease at the end of this fiscal year. And, so, we updated our

1 budget to request that administrative support. And as it's presented, it's 4.0 FTE to handle different tasks,
2 HR, IT, payroll, those sorts of things. In all candor, that budget request is seeking, a great deal of 3 redundancy that I don't think the Commission feels is necessary. And in that context, we're actually
4 much much more supportive of a proposal through JBC Staff to set up an independent administrative 5 unit that would be able to serve the Commission, but also other similarly situated small entities that are 6 affiliated with the Judicial Department. So, that we could have that benefit of an independent resourcing,
7 but yet not have to double the size of our Office to really support something that wouldn't require full-
8 time staffing. I think one of the huge advantages of that administrative unit that's being proposed is also 9 this notion of an external ombudsman. When it was originally proposed to be with the Commission, we 10 would have had to provide all that administrative support. If there's an independent administrative unit
11 to do this, that ombudsman could stand on its own. This essentially, is where it would be housed, it
12 would have the administrative unit support, and really make something possible that wasn't really there I
13 think when we were having these discussions before the Interim Committee.

14
15 Finally, as it would relate to budgetary issues in House Bill 23 1019. There is this proposal for more
16 dynamic statistical reporting, more contact between complainants that we have that have serious cases
17 before the Commission, and our Staff so that we can better explain how that process is proceeding. That 18 they really have more input and, also, more information available to them. But in order to do that, it's 19 our perception that we would need to add an additional staff member to provide that support as well as 20 to reinforce some of the paralegal needs that we have in our Office. So, that in total, is essentially what 21 we're asking for, for a budget.

22
23 Just one additional note, though, as I think Judge Prince alluded to, we are in the process of 24 implementing a lot of things. And with the monies that were provided to us through the last budget
25 cycle, some of those things are we have hired our internal Special Counsel, we now have a full-time
26 Office Manager, we're still looking to fill and, are making progress and doing this, to have an internal 27 investigator. But our IT infrastructure is also growing. And we're in the process of purchasing a server,
28 developing a case management software program that would allow us to track a lot of this data in a
29 much more dimensional way. You can note how many complaints come in, based on different bases. We 30 would be able to look at some of these demographics, and just have a more organized approach to 31 things. But all of those things are in process. I think it's going to take a bit of time, but we really are 32 using the State's resource to improve what we're doing. And, hopefully, that will show itself in the next 33 fiscal year.

34
35 Sen. Gonzales

36 Thank you so much, Mr. Gregory. I wanted to see if colleagues have questions regarding any of the 37 information that we have heard thus far. Seeing none, I want to thank you so much for walking us
38 through the issues that you all have been navigating over the past year, as well as some of the budgetary 39 items that we'll be navigating, as well here in the Legislature. Thank you again.

40

1 David Prince

2 Thank you, Madam Chair. And thank you to all members of the Joint Committee.

3

4 Sen. Gonzales

5 Thank you.

6

7 Sen. Gonzales

8 Okay. At this point, we are going to shift over to public comment and testimony. So close there, so
9 close. And I want to welcome. I believe we have three people who have signed up to testify. And I want
10 to welcome Mr. Jordan Scott. We'll follow the same process as we did earlier this afternoon. We 11 welcome any member of the public to come and share their comments. We'll invite you to testify for 12 three minutes. If you could please state, your name, any organization you represent, and then proceed to 13 testimony. We will go ahead and welcome your comments and then we will open it up for questions.

14

15 Jordan Scott

16 Yeah, I'm Jordan Scott. I represent myself. The one thing I didn't hear in that presentation was that there
17 is a professional code of conduct for attorneys and a Colorado code of judicial conduct. And the term
18 misconduct doesn't mean serious case. So, there's a lot of smaller misconduct that's kind of fallen
19 through the cracks. Some examples of that is a judge told me that they don't need to follow the judicial 20 ethics advisory board's opinions. And, so, for a judge to not have to follow ethics advisory board
21 opinions is terrible. I had a judge tell me that an attorney hiring her client as a paralegal when she was in 22 $70,000 of debt to the attorney wasn't a conflict of interest. So, there's a significant misunderstanding of 23 what conflict of interest means in any other any in any other industry that would have been like, whoa,
24 red flag. I had a judge tell me that they won't report attorney misconduct. But when I call to file a 25 complaint against an attorney, the complaint process tells me that they only really investigate complaints
26 if they come from a judge. So, the misconduct isn't necessarily judges getting drunk and going 27 downtown and getting in fights. It's judges not doing what they're supposed to be doing. I had an 28 attorney make fun of my autism in a courtroom. The judge ignored it and then penalized me for having a
29 disability. So, it's gotten a little crazy. I found out that a judge rented his commercial real estate property
30 to a law firm practicing in the county that he was a judge in. I don't know how that's okay. And I even 31 had a judge retire. And I don't think they're retiring because they're innocent. I think they're retiring so 32 they can keep their pensions. That's all I have to say. Thank you.

33

34 Sen. Gonzales

35 Thank you, Mr. Scott, for sharing your your perspective. Colleagues, do we have any questions for this 36 witness? Mr. Vice Chair.

37

38 Rep. Weissman

39 Thank you, sir. More of a comment in response to some of what you said than a question. A lot of what
40 we've been talking about the last hour plus here was a specific Interim Committee that we had that had a

1 specific charge about the judicial discipline process. The scope of that committee, the back half of which
2 I chaired and was very involved in, were Senator Gardner, Rep. Bacon, and Senator Gonzales. It simply
3 did not, was not authorized to get into the attorney half of the equation, it was only looking at the judge
4 half of the equation. That said, some folks did reach out and contact us about issues of attorney
5 misconduct. Historically, that's been something that's been handled internally at the Judicial Branch. I
6 happen to think, it's a matter within the ability of the General Assembly to say something about if we 7 decide that we need to, again, that's separate from the legislation that we've talked about here. And 8 judges are a little bit unique in that they are still attorneys, and they're also judges, and they're actually
9 subject to both of those functions, attorney discipline and judge discipline. So, we happen to be a lot 10 farther down the road of looking at the system for resolving complaints against judicial officers than 11 complaints against attorneys writ large. Because that's what events have sort of brought us to in the last 12 number of years. But I just want to say, we hear what you're saying, I think all of us on the Judiciary
13 Committees in particular, probably get more of that sort of thing than our colleagues on other 14 committees, because people know, it's under the committee that we we serve on or at least it might be.
15 And just speaking for myself. I mean, so I am an attorney, I keep my license active, even though I don't 16 practice right now, because I'm a full-time legislator. Those kinds of things bother me because I think as 17 in any profession that wants to hold itself to a high standard, we need to police our own. And frankly, 18 sometimes we don't always succeed in that. I'll leave it there. But thank you.

19

20 Sen. Gonzales

21 Seeing no further questions, I want to thank you again for sharing your perspectives with us. Our next 22 witness or I'm sorry, our next person who will be testifying is Chris Forsyth.

23

24 Sen. Gonzales

25 Welcome, please state your name the organization you represent and proceed. You'll have three minutes.

26

27 Chris Forsyth

28 Thank you. My name is Chris Forsyth. I'm an attorney whose practiced 30 years in Colorado. I formed
29 the Judicial Integrity Project. We've been formed for about 12 years now, when we started speaking out
30 12 years ago, if you had adopted our recommendations, there would be no judicial scandal. When we 31 started about 12 years ago, there hadn't been a published case of judicial discipline in 24 years. Two 32 years after we started banging the drum published cases of judicial discipline started appearing. And 33 they have increased to the point that we've recently seen. I have such little time, I want to point you to 34 one of the glaring conflicts of interest that shows everything that's wrong, and it was right before you all
35 along today. That was when Mr. Vasconcellos was in this chair right here. And Justice Boatright was in 36 this chair that I'm sitting in right beside each other, appearing together a joint team. The legislation that's 37 being proposed for the discipline commission would have Mr. Vasconcellos select the panel that would 38 adjudicate Justice Boatright. I think anyone with a single, one intelligence cell in their body can see the 39 conflict of interest in that proposal. That's what's written currently written into the legislation. One of the 40 problems in the Judicial Branch is that the State Court Administrator is not separated from the Judicial

1 Branch. That was the genesis of the judicial scandal, along with the hiding of information. If there's one
2 thing that the scandal should have taught us, it's that the hiding of information is more dangerous than 3 disclosing the information. So, if you look at the judicial scandal, your first question should be well, 4 why are we hiding any information surrounding judicial discipline? I have yet to see anyone asked that 5 question, let alone have an answer. There is no reason to hide any complaint regarding a judge on 6 judicial discipline. The functions of the State Court Administrator and the judicial functions should be 7 separated, that would also correct a lot of the staffing issues you're talking about, because the staff
8 would work for the State Court Administrator, not the judge, it'd be like an old-fashioned secretarial
9 pool. My time is very limited. So, I will end with a couple things that are in this proposed legislation.
10 One, is that when they have the panels that are going to select the judges, or are going to adjudicate the 11 judges, twice this legislation does it. It says that the adjudicators cannot have any disciplinary history.
12 So, there's a huge hypocrisy in that because you're saying, well, when they adjudicate judges, they can't 13 have a disciplinary history. But when your constituents go before a judge, they're going before judges
14 that have disciplinary histories, and they don't know it. So, you're treating judges better than you're 15 treating your constituents. And you have to remember your constituents are the people in your district
16 that elected you, even when you're on Judiciary Committee, your constituents do not become judges.
17 And the last question I want to pose for you is how does it benefit your constituents to have criminalized
18 speech in Colorado? How does it benefit your constituents that if any one of them files a complaint with 19 a Commission, and then releases that fact to the newspapers, that that person can be, you know,
20 convicted of a misdemeanor? It doesn't benefit your constituents. And the current legislation, as written 21 does not correct that. It leaves in place, the criminal penalty for speech in Colorado, we have a very 22 troubled system and this legislation does not correct it. The Interim Committee, struggled at a minimum
23 to address what is wrong with judicial discipline in Colorado.

24

25 Sen. Gonzales

26 Thank you. Mr. Forsyth. Colleagues, any questions for this witness? Mr. Vice Chair.

27

28 Rep. Weissman

29 Thank you, not a question for the witness but kind of a comment for the record. There is a provision 30 that's been long in our statutes that provides for misdemeanor criminal penalty where the requirement of 31 confidentiality as to judicial discipline proceedings is violated. I do happen to believe that that is 32 problematic on the authority of the 10th Circuit Case, interpreting not that particular statute but a pretty 33 similar provision in another section of Colorado law, I also believe that the provision on the books is 34 pretty likely unconstitutional for the First Amendment reasons that were stated. I think members of this 35 committee know any Interim Committee is authorized for a certain number of meetings and a certain 36 amount of time, and we face legislative deadlines upstream of going to Legislative Council, and so on.
37 We did kind of run out of time, I think to fully wrestle all of the issues to the ground that were raised
38 over the course of the Summer and Fall, this issue being one of them. The thing about Interim
39 Committee legislation is the conclusion of the Interim Committee is really only, maybe it's the end of 40 the beginning. And as I've noted, we have both of the measures now before us first in the House, then in

1 the Senate. These are bills, or in one case a resolution, subject to amendment, like anything else that we
2 do here for further improvement of the the work started by those of us who were grappling with it in the 3 interim, and I would just suggest that this question remains worthy of our attention.

4

5 Sen. Gonzales

6 Seeing no further questions, thank you, Mr. Forsyth, for your testimony. Our next witness is Jacob
7 Belinsky, who I believe is online. Although I do not believe he is here with us on the internet at this
8 time. Given that I want to see is there anyone else in the audience or online who wishes to testify at this 9 point? Seeing none, we will go ahead and close out that phase of public comment.

Appendix 27(w)

Hearing on HCR 23-1001, HB 23-1019, and
HB 23-1205 before the H. Judiciary Comm.,
Colo. Leg., March 15, 2023:

Appendix 27(w)(i)

Transcript;

House Judiciary Committee Hearing—March 15, 2023:
HCR 23-1001, HB 23-1019, and HB 23-1205

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Okay, the House Judiciary Committee will come to order on the 15th of March, Wednesday. Mr. Pogue, 3 kindly call the roll.

4

5 Staff Pogue

6 Representatives. Armagost.

7

8 Rep. Armagost

9 Here.

10

11 Staff Pogue

12 Daugherty.

13

14 Rep. Weissman

15 Excused. Nope.

16

17 Staff Pogue

18 Daugherty.

19

20 Rep. Daugherty

21 Here.

22

23 Staff Pogue

24 Epps.

25

26 Rep. Epps

27 Here.

28

29 Staff Pogue

30 Evans.

31

32 Rep. Evans

33 Here.

34

35 Staff Pogue

36 Garcia

1 Rep. Bacon
2 Excused.
3
4 Staff Pogue
5 Lynch
6
7 Rep. Lynch
8 Here.
9
10 Staff Pogue
11 Marshall
12
13 Rep. Marshall
14 Here.
15
16 Staff Pogue
17 Sharbini.
18
19 Rep. Sharbini
20 Here.
21
22 Staff Pogue
23 Snyder.
24
25 Rep. Snyder
26 Here.
27
28 Staff Pogue
29 Soper.
30
31 Rep. Soper
32 Here.
33
34 Staff Pogue
35 Woodrow.
36
37 Rep. Weissman
38 Excused.
39
40

1 Staff Pogue

2 Bacon

3

4 Rep. Bacon

5 Here.

6

7 Staff Pogue

8 Mr. Chair.

9

10 Rep. Weissman

11 Here

12

13 Rep. Weissman

14 All right. Quorum is present. Everyone, today we have three items on our agenda. In this order, they are 15 House Concurrent Resolution 1001 followed by House Bill 1019, finally, House Bill 1205. I will be co-
16 presenting the first two measures with Rep. Lynch, Mr. Minority Leader. So, I'm going to give the gavel
17 over to Madam Vice Chair to preside over the first two thirds of our hearing.

18

19 Rep. Bacon

20 Okay, we will go ahead and get started. Mr. Chair.

21

22 Rep. Weissman

23 All right, thank you, Madam Chair and committee. I should make this close enough. Thank you for 24 hearing House Concurrent Resolution 1001 today. This is half of the work of last summer's Interim
25 Committee on Judicial Discipline, of which Minority Leader Lynch and I were both members and, of 26 course, colleagues. The Vice Chair was part of this journey as well with us. Just to provide a little bit of 27 groundwork, and because not everybody was part of that, the prior phases of the journey that lead us to 28 where we are today, I thought I'd say just a little bit about it, and then we'll make some comments that 29 are more directly to the measure. Excuse me, really, I wanted to start briefly with a bill that the 30 legislature passed last spring, House Bill, or rather, I'm sorry, Senate Bill 22-201. Among other things,
31 that measure, for the first time, codified in statute the Commission on Judicial discipline and the Office
32 of Judicial Discipline. Previously, those had existed in court rule. They specified information sharing
33 responsibilities between what were in that Bill called judicial discipline agencies, so the Commission
34 and things like Attorney Regulation Counsel and otherwise. Because we knew that there would be some 35 even bigger changes to have to grapple with, including changes of the constitutional nature that we 36 really couldn't deal with in the last weeks of session, part of that bill last year created the interim
37 committee that begat the legislation that we're here to talk about today. I want to note that 201, was 38 bipartisan and bicameral. I was one of the four sponsors of that and it passed. The final recorded votes in 39 both chambers by a combined vote of 94 to 6. Moving then to the Interim Committee, I wanted to 40 observe a little bit about how that was set up, and intentionally so. It could have been a majoritarian

1 interim committee. Those happen sometimes. Senator Lee and I last year decided that this particular
2 committee should not be majoritarian, because what we're talking about here is even bigger than party
3 identities. We drew inspiration from HB 21-1325 that set up an evenly 4-4, so 2 each House Dems,
4 Senate Republicans interim committee to grapple with school finance, which is also a big question, that
5 is something else that doesn't need to be purely party line. So, Senator Lee began chairing. I then took 6 over Chairship midway. And Rep. Carver, who is not with us, because she was term limited, was Vice 7 Chair. And she was a great partner to work with throughout the summer. I wanted to note that, because 8 it's not every interim committee that is like that, and that was an integral part of all of our work, the 9 legislation, and you can see the list if you'd like at 13-5.3-110(7), the legislation charged the interim
10 committee to study 17 specific areas or aspects of judicial discipline. We took testimony over the course
11 of multiple hearings from a variety of folks, bar associations, heavily the Colorado Bar Association and 12 the Colorado Women's Bar Association, variety of outside organizations, and I want to specifically
13 acknowledge the National Center for State Courts, which as an entity that kind of studies judicial branch
14 operations across the 50 states, survivor advocacy organizations, and I want to specifically mention
15 CCASA (the Colorado Coalition Against Sexual Assault) and various members of the public. Process
16 wise, in talking with Rep. Carver near the end of our work, we decided to try to operate in a consensus
17 way. Sometimes, what will happen in an interim committee is both sides might go to their respective 18 corners. The blue team will draft over here, the red team will draft over here. You'll see what happens.
19 What I proposed to Vice Chair Carver was that we not do that. Was that we bring forward one set of 20 measures that we could agree to. And ultimately we did. Measure A, which was the parlance from the 21 interim, is now this concurrent resolution. Measure B from the interim is the companion bill that we'll 22 turn to next. And of course, Mr. Minority Leader and Madam Vice Chair will speak about the ombuds
23 aspect, which is the third and last thing on our docket. With that setup, I'm going to turn it over to 24 Minority Leader Lynch.

25

26 Rep. Bacon

27 Minority Leader Lynch.

28

29 Rep. Lynch

30 Thank you, Madam Chair. And thank you, Mr. Chair, for all of your work that you did on this. For those 31 of you that are new, the fun can continue into the Summer, just so you know, and this is one of those 32 opportunities where you can get back together, get the gang back together with your judicial friends that 33 you've made over the first session. So, I hope that that you all take advantage that. As representative
34 Weissman discussed, this is good legislation because it really did occur not in a partisan way. This was 35 folks that really rolled up their sleeves and got serious about some serious issues that ran into kind of 36 this, oftentimes, the separation of powers, issues that go along with us trying to tell another Branch or 37 give them guidance. But over the course of the Summer that got dealt with and we really did dig into 38 this. I will tell you that of all the legislation I've been involved in, very rarely have I seen something that 39 has been as well stakeholded this was done. I will say painfully, stakeholded at some points. And the 40 discussions and the deliberations that primarily occurred with my former colleague, Representative

1 Carver and Representative Weissman, was arduous, to say the least, and I'm glad that I was not involved
2 in all of those conversations. Because I did have other things to do this Summer. So, please feel free to 3 dig into this all you want, but I will tell you this has been gone over as, no pun intended, judiciously as it
4 as could be. And I believe this is good legislation. So, thank you.
5

6 Rep. Bacon

7 Mr. Chair.
8

9 Rep. Weissman

10 Thank you. And Rep. Lynch, I think you should take credit for that pun, and you should call it intended.
11 So, members, Mr. Pogue is passing out at my request, just a few things. I'm not going to go through the 12 handouts in much detail at all, but just to kind of say what they are, there's a stapled packet here. The 13 first page of that is a really simple side by side, kind of element by element comparison that was 14 prepared by nonpartisan staff to just try to summarize the work that we did. The next couple of pages,
15 starting with the heading Committee Charge were taken from the report, again by nonpartisan staff about 16 the work of this Interim Committee. Members may know when an interim committee wraps up, our 17 nonpartisan staff put together a report just sort of saying what was done, how it was done, who was 18 heard from, and so forth. The whole thing is more than I wanted to spend paper reproducing, but I did
19 pull just the relevant couple of pages out of it, if you care to look through that. Then, at the end of the 20 packet was actually something that Vice Chair Carver and I did together. This is just a simple sort of op
21 ed that the Denver Post was nice enough to run for us, setting forth the what and the why. I'm also 22 handing out L.001 which we intend to move when the time comes. As Rep. Lynch said, we grappled 23 arduously with every line and every word, because when we are inviting the voters to update our 24 Constitution, it matters to be that careful. We did sort of run out of runway. You know, every interim
25 committee is set up for a specific amount of time. And we thought that there are a few more things to 26 grapple with just a bit further. So that's what L.001 is about. We'll get there later. I just wanted to sort of,
27 with all that wind up, walk briefly through the measure itself to hit some highlights. So, we are in the 28 Colorado Constitution. Here we are in specifically Article VI, Section 23(3). That's what we're working 29 in here.
30

31 On page 4 of the measure, in C.5, which spans most of that page. This is where we set up the new 32 judicial discipline, adjudicative board. In the course of this hearing, we might just refer to it as the 33 adjudicative board, or the board for short. This is to start to bifurcate what we'll call the investigative 34 phase, or the informal aspect, and the adjudicative phase, or the more formal aspect. This is really 35 modern best practice, and what we have from the 60s is a bit of an outlier, and then it's all combined
36 together. I guess I'll note that as we move through the different letter subsections of (3), we're roughly 37 tracking the process through the system. From informal to formal and appeal and so forth. So that may 38 be a helpful architecture to sort of arrange the substance in one's mind.
39

1 In (e), we're updating the language about how the formal proceedings go. Here we see the role for the 2 adjudicative board that we just set up that replaces what the current law calls special masters, which are 3 appointed by the Court.

4
5 Moving on to (f), this discusses how an appeal goes from the adjudicative board panel, typically by the 6 Supreme Court. On page 7 now in that (II), part of what we grappled with is what happens if there are 7 facts present that create the appearance of conflict. Need to conflict out the Supreme Court at the very 8 top of this sort of pyramid. How does that go? That's what (II) is about.

9
10 Moving on to (g), which begins on page 8 and goes beyond that. This is another really important aspect
11 that we grappled with, because since the last time we laid this down in our Constitution, almost 60 years
12 ago, we've kind of gotten out of sync. What (g) is grappling with is, is confidentiality, and where is the 13 line between the public's right to know what's going on and the fact that before things are substantiated,
14 you know, there is, if you are the respondent here, there is an interest in due process and not everything
15 being all the way out there in the light of day, impacting one's name and reputation before it is 16 adequately proven. So, what we set forth here, which is really kind of the majority rule around the 17 country, is that confidentiality ceases when formal proceedings commence. In other words, when we 18 have gone from the phase that is handled, or would be handled with the changes we propose here, by the 19 judicial discipline commission over to the adjudicative board. The board is sort of acting like a court
20 here. And as we know, with limited exceptions, proceedings of courts are open because there's a public
21 interest in that. Couple of other key things that we set forth in (g) and the confidentiality language are a 22 constitutional textual basis for sharing of information with complainants, with those who believe they 23 have been aggrieved by a judicial discipline matter. This is a pretty sore lacking that we have right now.
24 We're all familiar with the VRA, the Victim Rights Amendment, or the act that effectuates it, that 25 doesn't apply to judicial discipline. And some of what we heard over the summer was very troubling in 26 terms of what it feels like to be a complainant and how you are treated, what you don't know and when 27 you don't know it. So, in statute, we create some VRA like mechanisms, and we update those in the bill, 28 but we need to make sure there's a crystal clear foundation under that that's part of what's going on in 29 (g). Likewise, in (g), we want to provide for the sharing of some aggregated information. Consistently 30 with individual confidentiality, but there's a public interest in knowing sort of aggregated data about 31 what's going on, and that's fleshed out a bit more in the companion bill as well.

32
33 Finally, in (k), we're on page 10, almost at the end of the measure now. We update the rulemaking
34 provisions. Right now, rules for handling judicial discipline proceedings are really just handled by the 35 Supreme Court. What the Interim Committee came up with was a different way of doing that. And the 36 most substantial and important thing, I think, that is addressed in L.001 is a little bit of a revision to that 37 process to integrate it and unify it a bit. It's possible that some witnesses will speak to that, and we'll 38 speak more to it when the time comes for amendments. But with that, I will stop, and we'll invite 39 questions.

40

1 Rep. Bacon

2 Members. Actually first, let's note that Representative Woodrow has joined us, and members, do you
3 have any questions for the sponsors. Okay, no questions. All right, we will now move on to the witness
4 phase. Was there a particular order?
5

6 Rep. Weissman

7 Thanks for asking Madam Chair. Don't think so. I mean, I'm not aware that anybody has any particular 8 time constraint, but if there is, let's try to honor that.
9

10 Rep. Bacon

11 Okay, I will call who I see first on the list, Chris Forsyth, Terry Scanlon, Jared Scurlock, and Jenny
12 Trujillo. If you are in person, please come up to the table and we'll check to see if anyone's online. I see 13 one person might be remote.
14

15 Rep. Bacon

16 Okay, I'll just take a moment. Is there anyone online? Okay. Let's see is Elizabeth Newman? Elizabeth, 17 are you here? Yeah, come on up. Since you're in person, we'll have in person. Every other witness is 18 supposed to be remote, so when we get a chance to check online. Okay, thank you all so much for 19 coming to testify today. You have three minutes to share your testimony. I think most of us have been 20 here before, and I will go ahead and get started with who's first on the list. Mr. Forsyth.
21

22 Chris Forsyth

23 My name is Chris Forsyth. I'm an attorney who's practiced for 30 years in Colorado. I'm with the 24 Judicial Integrity Project. We urge a no vote on this measure. The first mistake it makes is to keep the 25 current Commission on Judicial Discipline. The Commission has been ineffective for many years, and 26 continues to be ineffective. For 28 straight years, the Commission failed to publicly discipline any judge.
27 We started banging the drum in 2012. In 2014, a published case of discipline finally appeared. The 28 Commission has been in existence for more than 50 years, but only recently realized it did not have 29 sufficient subpoena power. It requested documents from the Supreme Court and has not received all the 30 requested documents. The Code of Judicial Conduct requires the cooperation of the justices. It would 31 appear the Supreme Court's actions are not consistent with the Code, but the Commission has failed to 32 file a formal complaint against any justice. Why? The Supreme Court uses its rulemaking power over
33 the Commission to ensure complaints against judges are not prosecuted. This will not change with this 34 proposal. The Supreme Court is still in charge of the rules. Granted, I don't have whatever amendment
35 has been shown. So, I cannot address that. We have a rule that distinguishes misconduct from error.
36 Arizona actually got rid of such a rule in 2001. Only 13 states, including Colorado, even have a rule on 37 the topic of errors in rulings. It's an unnecessary rule. A violation of the Code of Judicial Conduct is a 38 violation of the Code period. The rule, however, strongly encourages that if the alleged violation of the 39 Code filed with the discipline commission has anything to do with a case in court, then the complaint
40 must be dismissed. It's been 38 years since we've had a published case of judicial discipline related to a

1 case in court. Colorado is the only state in the country where the discipline commission must determine
2 a complaint is supported by preponderance of the evidence to file a formal complaint. Preponderance of 3 the evidence is a burden of proof at the end of a civil action. It has to be proven before even the filing of 4 a formal complaint. It's an unfairly high standard that benefits bad judges. Indeed, there are 10 states
5 where an ultimate violation of the Code of Judicial Conduct only has to be proven by a preponderance of 6 the evidence. Who should be telling you this? The Commission on Judicial Discipline. But they're not.
7 They're not doing their job. Most states have one commission that investigates and adjudicates. Such a
8 system reduces potential conflicts of interest. Colorado should maintain such a system, just with a
9 commission that works. The adjudicatory panels are unnecessary bureaucracy that insert more conflicts
10 of interest into the process. More judges judging judges is not what Colorado needs. When it comes to 11 the adjudicatory panels and the Court of Appeals panels, the measure requires the judges to have no
12 disciplinary history and no current disciplinary investigation. When judges are to be judged, they don't 13 want there to be any disciplinary history. But when people are to be judged by judges, judges don't want 14 people to be aware of a judge's discipline history, it's a hypocrisy that undermines the humility we 15 rightfully expect from the Judiciary.

16

17 Rep. Bacon

18 Thank you. I will move next to Mr. Scanlon.

19

20 Terry Scanlon

21 Thank you, Madam Chair. My name is Terry Scanlon, on the legislative liaison for the Judicial 22 Department. That's our state court system. As Chief Justice Boatright said two months ago, in the State
23 of the Judiciary, we support the constitutional amendment that is referred by the judicial discipline
24 interim committee. As representative Weissman indicated it was indeed a thorough process. Many 25 stakeholders were heard. We were among those who were heard. We had many discussions with the bill
26 sponsors. Bipartisanship is often a goal of legislation. It's often a goal across an issue type down here,
27 and I understand why. It's really sort of extra important that measures that change the structure of state
28 courts be done in a manner that is not partisan. We see this unfold occasionally in other states, and it can 29 undermine confidence in the judiciary. And the willingness and sort of the importance that the bill
30 sponsors, Senator Lee, Representative Weissman, Representative Carver. If you're listening, thank you
31 to all of you for the work that you did. And I don't mean to leave out other members of interim
32 committee or the other bill sponsor. Thank you for keeping this something that is above partisanship.
33 You know during the interim committee process, it really quickly became pretty clear that our process of 34 judicial discipline is outdated, and this effort, this measure, will help make us more consistent with more
35 current practices that are occurring in other states. It will help ensure that we have appropriate
36 independence for every entity that is involved in the disciplinary process. We will have separate 37 prosecutorial, adjudicative, and appellate bodies. The changes will help promote public confidence by 38 ensuring that judges who violate their ethical obligations are held accountable. And the changes also 39 ensure greater due process for judges subject to these complaints. In addition, the changes improve 40 transparency in the discipline process, so the public can more easily see and appreciate how our system

1 works. There's been some reference about an amendment L.001 that was shared with us yesterday
2 afternoon. We're reviewing that. We don't have thoughts on that today, but we'll be sharing that with the 3 committee and the bill sponsors going forward. Thank you.

4
5 Rep. Bacon

6 Thank you. Elizabeth Newman, please share your testimony.

7
8 Elizabeth Newman

9 Thank you. Thank you to the members of the committee and Vice Chair Bacon. I'm Elizabeth Newman.
10 I'm the Public Policy Director with the Colorado Coalition Against Sexual Assault. CCASA was invited
11 to be a part of the Interim Committee's work, and I really want to thank the Interim Committee members
12 and the Commission and Department for their collaboration with us on this process. CCASA remains
13 neutral on all three of these bills, but I would like to make some general comments about them, and then
14 I am available to answer questions on the other bills. The Colorado Coalition Against Sexual Assault
15 works to prevent and end sexual violence in the state, including sexual harassment. Sexual harassment is 16 incredibly pervasive. Up to 85% of women have experienced sexual harassment in their lifetimes, and 17 black women are the most likely of all groups to have filed a sexual harassment charge, often reporting
18 racial discrimination as well. Sexual harassment is detrimental to an employee's performance, to their 19 professional advancement, and to their physical and mental well-being. And it's also incredibly harmful
20 to employers. They face turnover, decreased victim and work group productivity, reputational damage,
21 and sometimes direct payouts or settlements. I really want to highlight some of the issues that we shared
22 with the Interim Committee related to the specific factors in the Judicial Branch that are risk factors for 23 sexual harassment and other workplace misconduct. There are incredibly significant power disparities
24 within the Judicial Branch, and that is one of the top contributors to any form of sexual violence, but 25 particularly sexual harassment. Studies find that when these power imbalances are also gendered, there's 26 even greater harassment that may occur. And with these extreme power imbalances, without clear
27 protections and accountability measures, this really disempowers victims. There's also control over 28 careers, so you have fear of actual or just the fear of job repercussions for employees to leave a field and 29 that leads them to conclude that reporting is probably not the best course. And I also, you know, want to 30 highlight that a lot of lawyers start out in the court system as an intern, as a clerk, which really has a lot
31 of control over their future. Attorneys may also fear hostility, negative bias or unfair rulings. And then 32 also in the Judicial Branch, we have decentralized workplaces. So, if there's limited communication or 33 supervision between organizational levels that can also allow harassment to go unchecked. Overall, we 34 feel that these bills are a step in the right direction. They are making progress on this issue. However,
35 culture change takes time. And as it was noted by one of the previous witnesses, there are significant 36 challenges in our current systems. And CCASA has felt that there's just not enough here to really make 37 the change that we need to see. We are pleased to see stronger protections and more resources for those 38 who do report. But what we heard both in the testimony and in the reports, is there's an incredible fear of 39 retaliation, fear of coming forward and without strong and enforceable protections that will continue.
40 There's also a need for timely and independent investigations. And lastly, we really urge the Judicial

1 Branch to consider how they are prioritizing prevention, to prevent this from happening in the future.
2 Thank you so much for your time. I'm happy to answer any questions.

3

4 Rep. Bacon

5 Thank you, members. Are there any questions for this panel. Representative Epps.

6

7 Rep. Epps

8 Ms. Newman, I was wondering if you could just clarify why it is that you are neutral. Is it because of a 9 distance from your usual work, or is because the bill doesn't go far enough? Or I'll stop putting words in 10 your mouth.

11

12 Rep. Bacon

13 Ms. Newman.

14

15 Elizabeth Newman

16 Thank you and thank you, Representative Epps. I will clarify two points. One is that CCASA has many 17 priorities, and the number of survivors of sexual violence in the State have many needs. And so we wear
18 a lot of hats. We're in a lot of different committees, and we're in this committee on a lot of different
19 topics. So just bandwidth is one issue. The second thing is, though, that we don't feel it has gone far
20 enough. And I think that's really, both what we hope to see the Judicial Branch bring forward in their 21 internal work and what they've been promising to be working on. But, also, in the bills that have come
22 forward. There's a real need to change overall the judicial branch in many ways. And these are steps to 23 get there, but not the significant change that we had hoped to see.

24

25 Rep. Bacon

26 Are there any additional questions for this panel? Okay, seeing none, we will excuse you. Thank you all 27 so much for testifying today. We do have additional witnesses who signed up to testify remotely. Do we 28 see anyone online? No one online? Okay, I'll call the names just in case. I'm sorry. Okay, so I have Jared
29 Scurlock, Jenny Trujillo, Ariana Busby. Come on up. Alison Connaughty, MJ Coleman Jackson, online?
30 Okay, great. Who's online? Okay. Okay, we will start with our witnesses here in front of us. Who would 31 like to start? Okay, thank you. You have three minutes.

32

33 Alison Connaughty

34 Thank you members of the committee. Thank you so much for the opportunity to be to provide 35 testimony to you all today. I'm Allison Connaughty. I'm here in my capacity as the Vice President of the 36 Colorado Women's Bar Association, and with me is Arianna Busby, who is the Co-Chair of the Public
37 Policy Committee with the CWBA. We are an organization of over 1500 attorneys and legal 38 professionals with chapters across the state, and our mission is to promote women in the legal profession
39 and the interests of women generally. And our members include judges, law clerks, members of the 40 Judicial Branch, staff within the Colorado Judicial Branch, and even a few legislators. Each year, the

1 CWBA actively engages with the General Assembly and advocates for legislation that will further the
2 interests of our organization. This summer, we had the privilege of working with Representative
3 Weissman, Representative Bacon and Representative Lynch. Over the course of the judicial discipline
4 interim committee. We submitted research and presented recommendations that were ultimately 5 condensed into the three bills that you all will be hearing today. And we want to extend our gratitude to 6 the Interim Committee for allowing us to be a part of that process and for their work on this difficult
7 issue and their receptiveness to our recommendations. HCR 23-1001 is an important step in modernizing
8 our judicial discipline processes. First, this constitutional amendment would establish an independent 9 adjudicatory board for formal disciplinary hearings or to appeal from informal disciplinary actions of the 10 Commission. This is important because it separates the investigative and the adjudicatory functions of 11 the judicial discipline process, and this is consistent with the majority of other states and also with the 12 recommendations of the Institute for the Advancement of the American Legal System. Additionally, a 13 panel of appellate judges is established to hear recommendations from the adjudicatory board of appeals
14 if they involve a Supreme Court justice as a party or witness. This is also consistent with other states'
15 systems, and removes any actual or appearance of conflicts that exist under the current system where the 16 Supreme Court is the last stop. This constitutional amendment also makes crucial changes for 17 transparency and communication. This amendment brings Colorado in line with the majority of other 18 states to make judicial discipline complaint information public when formal charges are commenced.
19 Current law keeps this confidential until the conclusion of the case. There's also language that specifies
20 that a victim or complainant in a case can be kept updated on the case while it is in the confidential
21 investigative stage. We've also received the proposed amendment related to HCR 1001 to unify the 22 rulemaking process, expand the pool for replacement judges and provide parity and appellate 23 opportunities. And we support these amendments. Thank you.

24

25 Rep. Bacon

26 Thank you. Go ahead.

27

28 Ariana Busby

29 I would just reiterate our gratitude to the sponsors, to the Interim Committee, and this committee here
30 today. We're available if you have any questions.

31

32 Rep. Bacon

33 Great. Thank you. I'm going to next go to our witness online. Ms. Coleman Jackson. You have three 34 minutes to share your testimony.

35

36 MJ Coleman Jackson

37 Hello. Good afternoon, Chair and members of the committee. Thank you for the opportunity to speak
38 with you today as yet another independent citizen just out here doing her thing, trying to make things
39 right for the future. A couple of things about this bill. I'm a I'm a 75% yes, not necessarily 100% yes,
40 only because of the Commission on Judicial Discipline. So, things are heavily involved. I personally had

1 issues with them before where I have submitted complaints on a judge and they simply denied it without
2 even pulling an audio file or even speaking to another one of the court staffs or anything like that. So
3 that's number one for me. That's a huge chunk. However, the 75% yes comes from this independent
4 board that would be appointed. You know, we are held accountable behind our vehicles every day when
5 we get behind that car. You know, every so often we got to go back up there. We got to get our license
6 renewed, things like that. You know, we get a ticket. It goes on our public record. I feel like you know,
7 as a judge, someone that's driving the wheels of the law should be held to those same standards. Where,
8 if something has happened, a questionable situation has occurred, not only should the public be aware of 9 it, but it should be readily available knowledge. You know, I can't count the amount of people and calls
10 that I got during this last election season, when people were going through the judges that were on that 11 list, because a lot of people are like, I don't vote before judges. I don't get in trouble. So, but they also 12 don't know who to vote for. And, so, when they go online to read the information or get the information
13 necessary, it's not readily made available to them, and all it says is, yes, this judge has been disciplined
14 before, or no, the judge has not. And yes, you can go through and submit the surveys but are the surveys
15 falling on deaf ears? Because the surveys are going right to the same commission that's supposed to be 16 listening to people that isn't even conducting proper investigation. You know, one of the biggest things
17 for me on this bill, though, is the transparency. No, it's not everything that I'd love to see, but it is a huge
18 step in that transparency, so that the voters of Colorado can continue to have an educated, well-rounded
19 opinion of the elected officials that they are choosing to put in these chairs, in these seats that are driving
20 the law. You know, we've already seen how the Supreme Court of United States has already put the 21 integrity of being a judge in question, and this bill will help restore that integrity for the judges that we 22 elect here in Colorado. So, for that, I will urge a strong Yes, and I'm here if you have any questions,
23 thank you.

24

25 Rep. Bacon

26 Thank you, members. Do we have any questions for this panel? Representative Snyder.

27

28 Rep. Snyder

29 Thank you, Madam Vice Chair, thank you both, all three of you, for being here today. Ms. Connaughty, 30 I had a question. Maybe I misheard you, but seemed like you indicated that all three of the bills were 31 hearing today were referred out of the Interim Committee, and maybe I misheard you.

32

33 Rep. Bacon

34 Ms. Connaughty.

35

36 Alison Connaughty

37 Thank you. Representative Bacon. Thank you, Representative Snyder. I misspoke. My apologies. Two 38 of the three.

39

40

1 Rep. Snyder
2 Okay. Thank you.

3
4 Alison Connaughty
5 Thank you.

6
7 Rep. Bacon
8 Thank you. Members, are there additional questions? Representative Epps.

9
10 Rep. Epps
11 I had a similar question for the representatives of the Women's Bar. Do you think that this first bill, goes 12 far enough, and if not, where would be the priority places that you would want to see expansion?

13
14 Rep. Bacon
15 Ms. Connaughty.

16
17 Alison Connaughty
18 Thank you very much, Representative Bacon. That is an excellent question. We submitted several 19 examples from other states in our draft comments to the interim committee. The states that we pointed 20 out are. . . We're on a spectrum of removing the confidentiality provisions. And if you could just give 21 me just a moment to refer to the states that we modeled. Perfect. Okay, yeah, we provided examples
22 from. . . So, Colorado was in a group of 13 states in their confidentiality protections that they afforded
23 prior to this interim committee and the proposed amendments to the constitutional provisions. And this 24 would bring Colorado in line with the majority of other states. With the 23 other states that we surveyed.
25 We liked the language from, I'm not finding my notes, but Massachusetts, New York, California. And 26 this is not exactly modeled after those states, but it's close enough. And we think, let's not let perfect be 27 the enemy of the good.

28
29 Rep. Bacon
30 Representative Epps.

31
32 Rep. Epps
33 I'm not going to press you too much further, because I'm going to let y'all be the excellent lawyers that 34 you are. But I went to a big, fancy, overpriced law school, and I know when it was time to apply for 35 clerkships, we were sat down and told which judges to not apply for because we might get picked. And,
36 I mean, there were very blunt conversations about that. And, so, I'm really just leaning here on both, not 37 just us in Colorado but in relation to other states, right? Because we should always want to be first in the 38 good rankings of things. So not just where we are in relation to those but just wondering if, if you think 39 that what we're doing with this resolution goes far enough.

40

1 Rep. Bacon

2 Ms. Busby.

3

4 Ariana Busby

5 So yes, I think there's always room to do better. I think that we with this resolution, we find ourselves in 6 a much, much better place than what we have been. It is much needed modernization to our 7 Constitution, particularly as it relates to confidentiality. It's really about a balance of weighing, your
8 victim centric approach and also public transparency. And, so, I think that this strikes a nice balance. I
9 would also note, I represent healthcare providers. I spent a lot of time working in the Department of 10 Regulatory Agencies, and it's really similar to something like this. For those types of complaints, they're 11 confidential until there's a disciplinary action decided or a notice of charges is filed. So, formal
12 disciplinary proceedings are pursued. And, so, for me, when I when I saw this. It brings it in line with so
13 many other professions. It seems like a very, very nice next step for us

14

15 Rep. Bacon

16 Ms. Connaughty.

17

18 Alison Connaughty

19 May I add one, one other thought that I had while Ms. Busby was speaking. Thank you, Representative 20 Bacon. One other consideration that we were balancing when we were making our suggestions to the 21 interim committee was not going so far that these amendments could become a vehicle that would harm 22 judges and that would have a disproportionate impact on judges who could be targeted by reports as 23 well. So, we were thinking . . .

24

25 Ariana Busby

26 Female judges.

27

28 Alison Connaughty

29 Yes, female judges, judges of color, judges that could be targeted by complaints, and so we thought this 30 was a middle ground that addressed some of the issues that we're trying to address.

31

32 Rep. Epps

33 That additional context was really very helpful. Thank you both.

34

35 Ariana Busby

36 Thank you.

37

38 Rep. Bacon

39 Members. Are there additional questions for this panel? Wonderful. Thank you all for testifying today.
40 We'll see you back soon. Thank you online as well to Ms. Coleman Jackson. Are there any additional

1 witnesses that weren't able to sign up? Okay. Please come forward to the table, and then here at the
2 table, while I do know your names, please share your names and any additional info. We'll also be sure
3 to actually circle back around to get you all signed up. Okay, who would like to begin you have three 4 minutes. Thank you. Please go ahead.

5
6 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

7 Thank you, Madam Vice Chair.

8
9 Rep. Bacon

10 One second, I think the microphone is off, so right in front of you that little box, there we go. Thank 11 you. Go ahead.

12
13 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

14 Mr. Chair. Madam Vice Chair, members of the committee. My name is Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa. I am
15 the chair of the Commission on Judicial Discipline. With me today is Vice Chair, his Honorable District
16 Court Judge David Prince from El Paso County. We're honored to be invited to speak to the committee
17 on the bills. I will provide brief testimony, and we've prepared a longer letter that we would appreciate
18 being included in the record. As you know, the Commission on Judicial Discipline is responsible for 19 investigating and making recommendations for discipline of judges. We're part of the system of judicial 20 selection, evaluation, and discipline that was established in the 1960s. Our Commission is made up of 21 four judges, two attorneys, and four citizen members that all serve voluntarily. I think it's fair to say that 22 the Commission operated in relative obscurity for decades, until very recently. I also think it's fair to say
23 that most of us on the Commission had no idea what we'd be dealing with in recent years, including 24 significant systemic and procedural reforms, legislative testimony, state budgets, and SMART hearings.
25 These are all new experiences for the Commission, and we appreciate the support of this committee, the 26 entire legislature, as we work through these critical issues and changes. We also are grateful to the JBC
27 staff and the staff of this committee for their guidance and support. We also appreciate the Legislature 28 through statute and practice supporting the frank and full exchange of views and perspectives free from 29 reprisal. As you're undoubtedly aware, our testimony at the joint SMART committee elicited a response
30 that we believe to potentially punish honest testimony. A move that we and others strongly reject.
31 Events of the past several months have made it clear that Colorado's half century old system for 32 independent oversight of judicial ethics was falling short of fulfilling its purpose and needed to be 33 updated. Last year, the legislature enacted some important changes, and the interim committee, over the 34 summer, with significant involvement from a myriad of stakeholders proposed some additional reforms
35 that are before you today. The Commission on Judicial Discipline fully supports the proposed 36 legislation, the resolution, and recommendations that have been presented by the interim committee. We 37 believe that some narrowly focused refinements to the legislation as currently drafted are appropriate. It
38 would make the reforms even stronger. The Commission supports, we haven't seen all of the 39 amendments, but we do support simplifying the dual path, the dual authority making structure to a single 40 rule making committee whose members are representative of the major system stakeholders. Expanding

1 the pool from which the Special Court is drawn to provide a statewide as well as rural court perspective,
2 which can be done by implementing the pool to include District Court judges. To clarify that both 3 parties to a judicial misconduct case, both complainant and judge have the right to appeal, not just 4 respondent judges. And to repeal the Constitutionally suspect section 402 that established criminal
5 penalties for breaching confidentiality. And to amend CRS 13-5.3-105(3) to clarify that once requested
6 by the Commission, records held by an oversight agency related to a claim of judicial misconduct are to 7 be provided. The Commission strongly supports the interim committee recommendation that a judicial 8 misconduct ombuds office be established to provide complainants a safe place for reporting judicial 9 misconduct. We emphasize the need for the judicial misconduct ombuds to be fully independent. As I
10 mentioned, we have presented more of a detailed discussion in our letter. The Colorado system for 11 selecting, evaluating, and, where necessary, disciplining judges is absolutely critical to ensuring public 12 confidence in our judicial system.

13

14 Rep. Bacon

15 Sorry, I'm going to ask you to wrap up shortly.

16

17 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

18 Thank you again to the members of the committee for your service and your support in this process.

19 Judge Prince, and I are happy to answer any questions that you have.

20

21 Rep. Bacon

22 Thank you so much. Who would like to go next? Judge Prince, thank you.

23

24 David Prince

25 Thank you, Madam Chair, or temporary Chair, I'm not sure how to refer to you. My name is David

26 Prince. I am Vice Chair on the Commission, and I serve on the District Court bench. I'm one of the 27 judge members of the Commission, and I'm here to help answer questions. So that's all I had to say.

28

29 Rep. Bacon

30 Please share your testimony.

31

32 Jessica Yates

33 Hi, my name is Jessica Yates. I'm Attorney Regulation Counsel. I did sign up, but apparently I didn't 34 quite make the cut. So, sorry that I didn't get on that list. I really just wanted to introduce myself to you.

35 I don't really show up at these hearings, because the way our office is structured, we're an independent

36 office within the Judicial Branch. Mr. Scanlon, you heard from him today. You've heard from other

37 individuals from SCAO. We're not within SCAO, so I wanted to make sure that you knew who I was 38 and that I'm available. If you have questions or concerns, please let me know. We are not a black box.

39 There's a lot that we do that is confidential, but there's a lot of information that I can share about the way

40 we operate, sometimes even about specific cases. If it has come to a public stage or some public

1 information that I can provide. We have an annual report online that describes what we do. I also wanted
2 to let you know that we are not providing any services at this time to the Commission on Judicial
3 Discipline relating to investigations or any of their legal work. And, so, I have just a completely neutral
4 position on the legislation that is being discussed today. We do have some administrative services that 5 we continue to provide, and we also are providing at this point some office space. So, at some time in 6 the future when resource discussions come up, that is relevant to the stuff that we do. Again, I just 7 wanted to make sure that you knew who I was, that I am independent from the Judicial Department. I
8 operate independently from the Supreme Court. Sometimes when there are questions about records. Are 9 we getting records? I'm the custodian of records for our Office, and so those questions need to be 10 directed to me. I've tried to encourage the Commission to direct those questions to me. Thank you so 11 much for allowing me to testify today.

12

13 Rep. Bacon

14 Thank you so much. Members. Are there any questions for this panel? Okay, seeing none. Thank you 15 for testifying here today. Like I said. I'm sure we'll see you a little bit later, as well. Thank you so much.
16 I will ask again, if there's anyone in the room who was unable to sign up to testify, who would like to. Is 17 there anyone additionally online? Nope, okay. Thank you for coming in today and before or as you get 18 started, can you just share your name? You have three minutes to testify. Let's just be sure the 19 microphone is on before you start. It will help you out. There you go. Okay. All right, go ahead.

20

21 Megan Augustine

22 Thank you. Hello, members of the committee. My name is Megan Augustine, and I was born and raised
23 in Colorado. Today I encourage you to vote no on HCR 23-1001, HB 23-1019, and HB 23-1205. The 24 Adams County Courthouse needs to rename their name to the Adams County Injustice Center. When I
25 was 20 years old in 2004 I met a guy named Damian Gallegos, and he lied about his age and having 26 kids. Then I found out that he had four kids, and one of his daughters is deceased. Damian's daughter,
27 Amanda Gallegos, was killed in 2001 and one of her sisters almost shared the same fate. Amanda's case
28 is still open and unresolved. I know in my heart that Amanda's dad killed her and hasn't seen a day in 29 jail. So just know this, that the Adams County Courthouse is quicker to sentence people to jail for traffic
30 violations and let some people who sexually abuse their children walk freely. I took one of my traffic
31 cases to trial at the Adams County Courthouse, and when I subpoenaed the detective in on my case that 32 was working on Amanda's case, I was ignored. I was trying to explain why I was doing what I was 33 doing. We got two Senate bills passed that go after institutions that cover up child sexual abuse. Thank 34 you.

35

36 Rep. Bacon

37 Thank you for coming in today. I'll ask quickly members, are there any questions for our witness?
38 Representative Marshall.

39

40

1 Rep. Marshall

2 I understand your stories, but I'm a little confused then why you would be against all three of the bills
3 we're looking at today and the resolution.

4

5 Megan Augustine

6 I just want them just like, look into like the courthouse is what the judge is doing. Because, like, there's a 7 lot of like, the judges ignore, like, some of the stuff that comes up in front of them, and just they 8 shouldn't ignore it like they we should be heard in the courthouse.

9

10 Rep. Bacon

11 Do we have any? Is that good for now? Okay, are there any additional questions for the witness? Okay,
12 thank you very much for coming in today. Your testimony is noted here and put on our record. Thank 13 you. All right, I'll ask again, are there any additional witnesses, any online? Great. Okay, members, 14 we're going to now close the witness phase and move into the amendment phase. We'll invite the 15 sponsors back up to the table.

16

17 Rep. Bacon

18 Okay, Mr. Chair.

19

20 Rep. Weissman

21 Thank you, Madam Chair. Hopefully everyone already has L.001 via Mr. Pogue a little bit ago. If 22 everyone has it, I move L.001 and I ask for a second, and then I'm happy to walk through it.

23

24 Rep. Bacon

25 I'm gonna go with the sponsor, as it is tradition. Okay, all right, L.001 has been moved by 26 Representative Weissman and seconded by Representative Lynch. To the amendment, please.

27

28 Rep. Weissman

29 All right, so members, I'll go through this in a bit of detail. I guess, moving down from the top,
30 beginning of page 6 of this is a small thing that just tries to create a little bit more parity, or bilaterality,
31 if that's a word in how an appeal might go from up to the court or the replacement court, the next 32 number of lines really from line 3 to line 8 of the amendment are to make some changes to broaden the 33 pool of the replacement court. If you want to call it that again. The process here is, you go to the 34 Commission, there may then be a hearing before a panel of the Adjudicative Board. There is a right of 35 appeal, as we are used to in an adversarial process. In most cases, to the Supreme Court on a now more 36 limited standard of review that you can read on page 6.

37

38 In cases that are set forth in pages 7 to 8, we need the Supreme Court to not sit as the final reviewing 39 authority. We have this kind of replacement court. The question then is, how is that constituted? The 40 judgment of this part of the amendment is that we should broaden that a little bit. There should be a little

1 bit more diversity of perspective, including geographic diversity. I mean what is justice might mean a
2 different thing in, say, Montezuma County versus Denver County versus elsewhere in the Front Range
3 area. One thing I would note is that district judges do, it may depend on their docket, are not entirely
4 without appellate experience. You know, you might take an appeal from County Court. Honestly, this
5 conflict court, I hope, is invoked maybe once a decade. You know, if we really think about how well this 6 goes, but it does matter how it is constituted, when it is invoked. And we think it's appropriate to 7 broaden it a little bit.

8

9 The rest of the amendment down, at least down to line 22 is, I really think, the most important part,
10 which is to unify how rulemaking goes. Right now we think of the Rules of Criminal Procedure, the 11 Rules of Evidence, the Rules of Civil Procedure, other rules. The Supreme Court is the ultimate 12 authority for those they pull together these committees, various folks from the legal community advise,
13 the rules are promulgated by authority of the Supreme Court, backing up on the Constitution, itself.
14 Here, we have a process that is possibly a little bit adversarial with members of the Judiciary. So, the 15 judgment of the interim committee, which we now seek to polish a little bit, is that there should be 16 different rulemaking processes. Where we landed in the interim was really two separate lanes. We have 17 one lane for Commission rules, one lane for Adjudicative Board rules. They really need to fit together.
18 By rough analogy, imagine if you had one group setting forth the Rules of Criminal Procedure, one
19 group setting forth the Rules of Evidence. There needs to be some cognizance of the other half there. So,
20 what we do here is propose an integrated rulemaking body that has appointments by the Commission
21 and by the Board and by the Supreme Court, itself. I want to be clear, we don't mean, and I don't,
22 personally don't think it should be the case that five people from the Commission are going to become 23 the Commission appointees onto the rulemaking committee. They get five picks, and maybe they mean
24 judges. Maybe they mean retired judges. Maybe they mean a professor of law at one of our law schools.
25 Maybe they mean somebody at a place like the National Center for State Courts. Maybe they mean a
26 very long-standing attorney on 17th Street. They get to make those picks, but this rulemaking committee
27 will then be responsible for the rules for both the Commission and the Adjudicative Board, so that they 28 fit together. Lines 20, I'm sorry, 19 through 22 are really conforming.

29

30 The last part is just something that arose in post introduction or really post interim discussion. It's just to 31 provide a date certain for the application of rules that are set up about the Adjudicative Board. Again, 32 the Adjudicative Board doesn't exist right now. We are hoping the voters will allow it to come into 33 being. The reason we pick April 1, 2025, if the voters approve this, we hope they do. The governor
34 issues a proclamation that sort of makes it official. That's about December of 24 then there's a couple of 35 months for the Board to convene and start this process. And for the sake of certainty, for everybody
36 involved down the road, it makes sense for there to be a specific date for those rules. So, that's the last 37 part of L.001. I'm happy to take questions and ask for the committee's support.

38

39

40

1 Rep. Bacon

2 Members, are there any questions on L.001? Are there any objections to L.001? Okay, L.001 is passed.
3 Sponsors, do you have additional amendments? Members, do you have additional amendments? Okay,
4 we will close the amendment phase. Onto our closing statements from sponsors. Representative, I'm 5 sorry, Mr. Minority Leader.

6
7 Rep. Lynch

8 Thank you, Madam Chair, once again, it's hard to wrap up what went on over a whole lot of work here
9 that went into this. This is good. This is good work. One amendment, which will be refreshing after you
10 get through the rest of this day. But this is good. This is this is good work. I would strongly encourage a 11 yes vote. Thank you.

12
13 Rep. Bacon

14 Mr. Chair.

15
16 Rep. Weissman

17 I was going to sound a similar note, and I think that's because we had a very similar experience over the 18 Summer. The process of going through this was probably the most intensive process that I've had in 19 preparing legislation. And when we're talking about something this fundamental, that is constitutional in 20 nature. You know, it probably should have been. I appreciate those who've come here today. The brief
21 testimony. Just take our word for it that there was a whole lot more over many, many, many months.
22 But we're grateful for folks who were here today and who were very, very involved in the interim, as 23 well. We speak sometimes of the three-legged stool of how public confidence in our judiciary is 24 sustained. I am personally glad that we do not elect judges in this state. I would not want to live in a
25 state where civil and criminal justice are on the other end of electoral processes. Instead, we have the 26 judicial nominating process, and we have the judicial performance process, and then we have the 27 judicial discipline process. Again, experience has shown that that third, last leg needs some updating,
28 needs some strengthening. In the nearly 60 years that have passed since we first put this language on the 29 books and since a lot of other states did. You know we weren't acting uniquely at that time. I think when 30 the chips are really down around here, I think about how our power and authority as elected officials,
31 however much of that we think that we have, ultimately flows from the public's trust and confidence in 32 us. Okay, and approximately maybe it flows from Article V of the Constitution and from the election
33 certificates that the Secretary of State issues. But really, at the end of the day, it is about public trust and 34 confidence in who we are and what we do. That is what this work is about, is shoring up public trust and 35 confidence in our Judicial Branch of government by having a more modern, robust process for resolving 36 these allegations if they arise. I think this is one of the more important things this committee will do all 37 year, and we're asking for your support.

38

39

40

1 Rep. Bacon
2 Thank you. Members, do we have any closing comments? Okay, great job. Members, the motion is to 3 send the resolution to appropriations. Can we entertain a motion? Mr. Minority Leader.

4
5 Rep. Lynch
6 Thank you, Madam Chair, I would like to move House Concurrent Resolution 23-1001, as amended to 7 appropriations.

8
9 Rep. Bacon
10 Thank you.

11
12 Rep. Weissman
13 Second.

14
15 Rep. Bacon
16 Okay, it has been moved by Representative Lynch, seconded by Representative Weissman. Mr. Pogue.

17
18 Staff Pogue
19 Representatives, Armagost.

20
21 Rep. Armagost
22 Yes.

23
24 Staff Pogue
25 Daughtery.

26
27 Rep. Daugherty
28 Yes.

29
30 Staff Pogue
31 Epps.

32
33 Rep. Epps
34 Yes.

35
36 Staff Pogue
37 Evans.

38
39 Rep. Evans
40 Yes.

1 Staff Pogue
2 Garcia.
3
4 Rep Garcia
5 Yes.
6
7 Staff Pogue
8 Lynch
9
10 Rep. Lynch
11 Yes.
12
13 Staff Pogue
14 Marshall
15
16 Rep. Marshall
17 Yes.
18
19 Staff Pogue
20 Sharbini.
21
22 Rep. Sharbini
23 Yes.
24
25 Staff Pogue
26 Snyder.
27
28 Rep. Snyder
29 Yes.
30
31 Staff Pogue
32 Soper.
33
34 Rep. Soper
35 Yes.
36
37 Staff Pogue
38 Woodrow.
39
40

1 Rep. Woodrow

2 Yes.

3

4 Staff Pogue

5 Weissman.

6

7 Rep. Weissman

8 Yes.

9

10 Staff Pogue

11 Madam Chair.

12

13 Rep. Bacon

14 Yes.

15

16 Rep. Bacon

17 The resolution passes, 10 to 0. Sorry, was it 10?

18

19 Staff Pogue

20 Thirteen.

21

22 Rep. Bacon

23 I was way off. Sorry, 13 to 0. So I'm like, wait a minute, 123. All right, thank you so much. Sponsors, I
24 do believe you have the next one. Let us know if you need a minute or two. Okay, we're getting your 25 amendments passed out. Okay, Mr. Chair, you want to get us started?

26

27 Rep. Weissman

28 Yes, thank you. All right, committee Act Two of the three act, I would say play, but that understates the 29 seriousness of what we're dealing with here today. Anyway, second of our three items on the agenda,
30 House Bill 1019, is the companion statutory enactment that rides along with the concurrent resolution
31 that we just discussed. It became pretty clear to us early in the work of the interim committee that we 32 would be grappling with issues that needed to be dealt with in the Constitution. And that was the CR just 33 now and, then, issues that could be and were more appropriately dealt with as a statutory matter. 1019,
34 is, I think, the easier of the two of these things to grapple with, just to walk through it briefly. And I
35 should say, by way of a note, we are in 13, sorry, Title 13, Article 5.3, here. That's the whole framework
36 that was laid down by the bill. I started out by talking about. Senate Bill 201 of the 2022 Session
37 codified the Commission and the Office, set up how it operated, talked about funding, provided some 38 things about flow of information. So, we are in that place, amending it and adding some new things now.

39

1 Section 1, we simply set forth some definitions. Again, there hasn't been, to this point, a judicial 2 discipline adjudicative board or panels of it, so we need to say what that means.

3
4 Section 2 is really kind of conforming or enabling, maybe is better language, about the rulemaking
5 process that we spoke of. And one of the amendments you'll see relates to that.

6
7 Section 3 makes some enhancements to the surfacing of data about these processes in connection with 8 SMART Act hearings. This sort of fits together with the provision of Article VI Sec. 23(3)(g) about 9 confidentiality that we spoke of. We'll protect confidentiality at the individual level up to the point of 10 formal proceedings, but we have provision for aggregate data to be made public.

11
12 Section 4 just repeals the Interim Committee now that it has wrapped up its work.

13
14 Section 5 is just to provide a little bit more of a clear directive about online reporting as a way in which 15 what's called an RFE, or request for evaluation. We might think of that as a complaint, but the proper
16 term in the process and the rules is an RFE. To make clear that, you know, it's 2023. We want that to be 17 able to happen online.

18
19 Section 6 sets forth VRA-like responsibilities. These are duties for a complainant or one who files an 20 RFE to be informed what's going on. You know, this is core stuff that we grapple with in the criminal
21 justice process here. The lack of it was really made manifest to us over the Summer, so we've grappled 22 with that and that's what we set forth here.

23
24 Finally, Section 7 is really sort of logistical support. When a panel of the Adjudicative Board is 25 convened to do what it may be called to do, there's the question, Who or what is going to support its 26 work? We talked about this a fair bit over the Summer. Where we landed was the idea that any judge has 27 a fair bit of staff support to do what they do in our court system. Where a judge who is part of the 28 adjudicative board and has been tapped for a panel. Where that judge is tapped for this duty, he or she 29 has some support that could be invoked for that purpose. It's probably not going to be such a big lift as 30 to get too much in the way of the rest of the judge's docket and duties. So that's Section 7, and then our 31 standard petition clause, Madam Chair, if you'd like, we could get a little bit into the amendments, or we 32 could save that.

33
34 Rep. Bacon

35 You can give us an overview.

36
37 Rep. Weissman

38 Okay, so the committee should have L.001 and L.002. L.001 really does one thing and the rest is 39 technical. This was grappled with a lot over the Summer. We didn't land in a specific place. Further 40 thought, I think has just kind of clarified that. What you see here, what struck through 24-72-401 and

1 402 is existing statutory language we have creating misdemeanor penalties if you basically talk about
2 what's been going on in the Commission. This language is decades old. Two problems with it, very
3 fundamental problems. One, there is a chilling effect on complainants. One of the first meetings that I
4 personally took over the summer when the interim committee was getting going, was with a young
5 woman who was a survivor of something that happened in this process. And at some point, when she 6 was being talked to about how all that was going was, was hit with this prospect of criminal sanction.
7 This is somebody who was going through law school, you know, in her younger 20s. That's a lot to get 8 hit with. We don't want that kind of chilling effect on people going through these experiences, which are 9 already hard enough. The other fundamental problem is that these sections are very likely 10 unconstitutional. In 2022, I think August. There was a case handed down by the 10th Circuit, Peck v.
11 McCann that dealt with pretty similar provisions. We have somewhere in our child welfare reporting
12 code language that creates a misdemeanor penalty for divulging certain information. That was 13 challenged on First Amendment grounds. You cannot criminalize with misdemeanor sanction what 14 amounts to speech. And the 10th Circuit struck that down. On that authority, which I think is very, very 15 close to what's going on here, I am, personally of the opinion that if these sections were squarely
16 challenged, they would not stand up. That's the second reason. From line 30 to 36, that's really just a
17 conforming amendment that LLS supplied. And, then, the very bottom lines were kind of just writing in 18 the correct number for the resolution. This is one of these things that gets introduced. It's not numbered.
19 We have to fill that in. So that's L.001. L.002 is really just to conform with the changes we made to the 20 rulemaking process in the statute, 13-5.3-107, it's the part of that framework that talks about how the 21 rules go. We laid down certain things in the bill last year. The committee proposes the changes that are 22 in the introduced. To make this match what we just did in the CR, we need to do the changes that are in 23 L.002. So, those are the amendments. Madam Chair.

24

25 Rep. Bacon

26 Thank you. Members, are there any questions for the sponsors? Okay, we don't see any questions, so
27 we'll move into the witness phase. Okay. All right, so I think we have, we can have a few panels. So, for 28 the first witnesses, we will call up Mr. Chris Forsyth, Terry Scanlon, Jessica Yates, Jenny Dees, and MJ
29 Coleman Jackson. We also have Elizabeth Newman present for questions only. So, if we have any 30 questions of CCASA, we'll include it in this panel. Okay, again, so Mr. Forsyth, Mr. Scanlon, Ms.
31 Coleman Jackson, Ms. Yates, Ms. Jenny Dees, and questions only. Is Ms. Yates still present? She's not.
32 Okay, all right. Everyone again, welcome back. You'll have three minutes. I will start with Mr. Forsyth.
33 Are you ready to proceed? Would you like me to . . .

34

35 Chris Forsyth

36 Not at this . . . I'm looking at, I was not provided a copy of the amendments.

37

38 Rep. Bacon

39 Okay.

40

1 Chris Forsyth

2 And its important to what I want to say.

3

4 Rep. Bacon

5 Sure. I'll go to other witnesses. Is that okay? All right, Mr. Scanlon, are you ready to proceed?

6

7 Terry Scanlon

8 I am indeed.

9

10 Rep. Bacon

11 Okay. Thank you. Go ahead, 12

13 Terry Scanlon

14 Madam Chair, members of the committee again. I'm Terry Scanlon. I'm here on behalf of Colorado
15 Courts. Everything that I said on the first bill applies to this one. It was a really productive process at the 16 Interim Committee. We had the opportunity to engage on this. This supports the constitutional 17 amendment. We support the introduced version of this bill. We received the amendments yesterday.
18 We're reviewing them. We'll provide feedback to the bill sponsors and the committee here in the coming 19 days.

20

21 Rep. Bacon

22 Thank you. I will go next to Ms. Copeland. I'm sorry. Ms. Coleman Jackson, are you ready to testify?

23

24 MJ Coleman Jackson

25 I can be ready.

26

27 Rep. Bacon

28 Thank you so much. It would be helpful.

29

30 MJ Coleman Jackson

31 Not a problem, alrighty. Well again, good afternoon, Chair, members of the committee. I'm Ms Coleman
32 Jackson, just another independent citizen here, native to Colorado. A couple of things about 23-1019, 33 that I support are number one is getting the people involved. The public commentary to the Supreme 34 Court is huge for me, because this will actually make people feel like they actually do have a voice.
35 Because right now, I'm sure that most of the people that are present here, that can hear me and see me,
36 know that, you know, there's a declining involvement in the political and judiciary system. So, people 37 being able to go in there and voice their opinions or voice similar things would also be helpful in getting 38 these things out, because a lot of these things, they do go unnoticed, and they do go unrecorded because 39 people do not know their rights. Which brings me to my second point, which is the informative piece, 40 and having the Commission on Judicial Discipline, inform people on that process, and have that

1 engagement with them so that they, it won't feel so one sided. They won't feel like, you know, this
2 person's just going to run back and tell this judge on me. Which brings me to my third point, being able
3 to submit anonymously and privately. You know, if you have got an open case going with a judge, and 4 this judge has maybe made an inappropriate comment, as I've seen, personally to other defendants in the 5 courtroom, or towards staff, anything that might be inappropriate. You know, a lot of the time counsel
6 will tell you not to. Roscoe. Sorry, my dog thinks its play time. A lot of judiciary staff or lawyers and 7 counsel will tell you to wait until your case is closed before you pursue any of that to avoid retaliation.
8 Now, for a person that sits, that's an elected person that sits on their feet, that's expected to be fair and 9 impartial. I should not be afraid to report them for something that I deem is inappropriate to have them
10 sit under investigation, because the same thing would happen to me in my place of employment, or if I
11 committed a crime in the city. Also, I do have to say, and the final thing is being able to finally submit a
12 complaint in my own words. You know, I've submitted complaints twice to this Office. And no
13 disrespect to the sweet lady that answers the phone. She is socially, very helpful, but she sounds like she 14 has been there since the Commission was started 60 years ago. And you know. So, I'm wondering if you 15 know just, you know, just me being able to only orally submit that over the phone, if the true emotion of 16 what I'm feeling and how I feel is being portrayed effectively. So being able to email or send that even 17 by mail, I think, is extremely helpful. So, you know, for those four reasons, I urge a yes on House Bill, 18 23-1019, and I'll stick around for any questions. Thank you.

19

20 Rep. Bacon

21 Thank you so much. Thank you for helping us out, too. I really appreciate it. Okay, I'm gonna make one 22 more call to see if Ms. Jenny Dees is online. Nope. Okay. Okay, Mr. Forsyth, are you ready to testify?
23 Okay, go ahead. Thank you.

24

25 Chris Forsyth

26 My name is Chris Forsyth, an attorney who's practiced 30 years. I'm part of the Judicial Integrity
27 Project. We urge a no vote on this measure. The adjudicative panels that are mentioned in the bill come 28 from the previous matter we addressed, and the panels are an unnecessary bureaucracy that add more
29 conflicts of interest in the judicial discipline process. Most states do not have this bifurcated system.
30 Most states have one panel that adjudicates and disciplines. The rulemaking section in this bill is 31 confusing. The rulemaking committee's rules can be accepted or rejected by the Supreme Court, but you
32 wouldn't know that by reading the section. That's in the Constitution, the Supreme Court would continue
33 to control the rules regarding judicial discipline, which is a conflict of interest the Supreme Court has 34 continuously exploited. The reporting requirements in section three of the bill don't really do anything.
35 All of this information is already provided in annual reports of the discipline commission. The section
36 references requests for evaluation. The phrase was coined by the judicial discipline commission in an 37 attempt to make it look like it doesn't dismiss as many complaints as it does. We thought the language
38 was eliminated when the legislature adopted a definition of complaint, which became effective in May 39 of 2022. The definition is stated in 13-5.3-101 which says complaint means any information in any form
40 from any source that alleges or from which a reasonable inference can be drawn that a judge committed

1 misconduct or is incapacitated. The use of the phrase request for evaluation is inconsistent with that
2 definition. Members of the public file complaints. The Commission decides whether to file a formal
3 complaint, the RFE or request for evaluation language is not consistent with the law and is the 4 Commission's disregard for the law. The searchable format is misleading. The only information that
5 would be available in general numerical information is that already provided in the annual reports. Other
6 states have searchable databases where discipline can be researched by typing in a judge's name. This
7 section states that cannot be done. This section is a disingenuous attempt for the commission to claim it
8 has a searchable database when the database is not searchable in the manner anyone would suspect. It
9 would allow the Commission and the Judicial Branch to claim it has something that it really doesn't.
10 And then the criminal section was my last portion of the bill. It is finally a relief to see an amendment.
11 We've been asking for the amendment. I asked for amendments from representative Weissman. He 12 would not accept them from me, which was the general tenor of the judicial Interim Commission. The 13 Interim Commission was bipartisan in the membership of Republicans and Democrats. It was not 14 bipartisan in the manner of what judges want. The Interim Committee listened to a ton of people. 85 to 15 90% was judges, groups that have judges, groups that want to appease judges. 85 to 90%. They would 16 not listen to a contrary point of view. Combine that with the criminal penalty. He already admitted, the 17 criminal penalty has a chilling event on people's voices. People won't speak up. Did not speak up during 18 the Interim Committee because of the criminal penalty. People are scared, so your actions here today are 19 dubious under a cloud of uncertainty, because this criminal penalty exists right now, right here, as we're 20 all talking to you, people are afraid to talk to you because the criminal appeal exists regarding disclosing
21 proceedings before the discipline commission. And see my times about up. So, I would encourage a no
22 vote. I would encourage on the floor you reconsider the resolution. Everything you're doing is about as 23 valid as Vladimir Putin saying, let's put a war on Ukraine. Because he outlaws speech against the war in 24 Russia.

25

26 Rep. Bacon

27 Thank you.

28

29 Chris Forsyth

30 It's the same thing, just a different matter.

31

32 Rep. Bacon

33 Thank you for sharing your testimony and your thoughts. Members, are there any questions for this 34 panel? I would also note that we will have available, if we have questions for her, Ms. Newman from 35 CCASA. If there are any questions? Okay, thank you. We'll call up our second panel of witnesses. I'd 36 also like to note that I was on the Committee, and I certainly had intent to hear from anyone who 37 presented to us. So, I will call up our second panel. First, we have the Honorable Judge David Prince,
38 Dr. Malia Reddick, if you're in the room, Arianna Busby, Alison Connaughty, and I believe that's it. Do
39 we have anyone else online? Okay, great. Thank you. So, if you are in the room, please come up to the

1 table. I'm sure we're all familiar at this point, it's been a long time since we've seen you. And I will get
2 us started. I will start with Judge Prince. You have three minutes. Thank you.

3
4 David Prince

5 Good afternoon again, Madam Chair. Thank you for the opportunity to speak with the committee. Our 6 chair, Ms. Krupa, actually already gave the overview on all three bills, and so I'm really here just to 7 answer any questions. So, that was less than three minutes.

8
9 Rep. Bacon

10 That was well worth the wait. No, I'm kidding. Thank you so much. I'll move next to Dr. Reddick.

11
12 Malia Reddick

13 Madam Vice Chair Bacon, members of the committee, thank you for the opportunity to speak to you
14 today. My name is Malia Reddick, and I'm the Director of Research at the Office of Respondent Parents'
15 Counsel. Before joining the ORPC, I spent much of my career working for court improvement
16 organizations to develop and implement recommendations for selecting, evaluating, and disciplining
17 judges who are highly qualified and impartial and who inspire public trust in the Judiciary. I'm here to 18 support this bill. In Federalist Number 78, Alexander Hamilton wrote that the judiciary has no influence
19 over either the sword or the purse. What he meant was that courts and judges lack the authority to 20 enforce their own decisions. For acceptance of and compliance with those decisions, they rely on the 21 public's trust in their legitimacy and integrity. Colorado's judiciary has come under the microscope in the 22 last few years, and I think it's fair to say that public faith in our state courts has been compromised. The 23 bills this committee is considering today come at just the right time. Members of the public and 24 especially individual litigants need to know that judges are held to the highest ethical standards, that the 25 process for doing so is impartial, and that they can participate in the process in a way that feels safe to 26 them. HB, 23-1019 addresses these needs. In particular, it brings significantly more transparency to the 27 process for investigating complaints of judicial misconduct. This increased transparency will enhance 28 the public's confidence in the impartiality and integrity of the process. It is for this reason that the ORPC
29 urges the committee to vote yes on 1019. The ORPC also supports HCR 23-1001, especially the recent 30 amendment that vests rulemaking authority for the judicial discipline process in a committee, rather than 31 in the state Supreme Court. This brings Colorado in line with 22 other states, many of which are our 32 Western neighbors. We would like to make one suggestion regarding the jurisdictional scope of the 33 Commission on Judicial Discipline. From the ORPC's perspective, including magistrates in the 34 Commission's jurisdiction would provide more consistency in enforcing judicial ethics rules. This is 35 relevant to our organization, because magistrates often hear dependency and neglect cases. Thank you 36 for your time today, members of the committee. I'm happy to answer any questions.

37
38 Rep. Bacon

39 Thank you so much. We'll move next to Ms. Busby.

40

1 Ariana Busby

2 Thank you, Madam Chair. Do you mind if I pass my testimony over to Alison midway through?

3

4 Rep. Soper

5 Please, go ahead.

6

7 Ariana Busby

8 Okay, thank you all. Wonderful to see you again. My name is Arianna Busby with the Women's Bar
9 Association. I've got Alison Connaughty here with me as well. We support House Bill 23-1019. This is 10 another bill that came out of the interim committee process and provide some key modernizations to our 11 judicial discipline process, such as allowing an individual to file a complaint online and to proceed
12 throughout the complaint process anonymously. Additionally, this bill brings us in line with states like 13 New York, which do have online, searchable databases for information related to judicial misconduct.
14 This also brings us in line with, as I mentioned, many other professions that we have in our state here.
15 For example, the Department of Regulatory Agencies maintains a database of discipline, and you can
16 look up actions on individuals' licenses if they are regulated by the Department of Regulatory Agencies.
17 And so, we see this as a very positive step forward on that front.

18

19 Rep. Bacon

20 Thank you.

21

22 Alison Connaughty

23 One thing that we heard throughout the interim committee process was a lack of complainant
24 understanding about the process and a lack of communication after a complaint was filed. And this bill
25 would require the Commission to provide information about the process to a complainant upon receipt 26 of a complaint, and then again, the anonymity and assigning a point person to any complainant for 27 regular status updates on their case and to provide an explanation to a complainant if their case is 28 dismissed due to lack of jurisdiction. This was important to the CWBA because of the profound impact 29 that suffering judicial misconduct or sexual harassment in the workplace has on the individuals that 30 report judicial misconduct. And it's our understanding that the sponsors will also be amending the bill
31 today to remove that misdemeanor penalty for violating confidentiality. We support this amendment as 32 well, and we believe that 23-1019 greatly improves access to the Commission and a potential
33 complainant's comfort with utilizing the Commission and with reporting. It also improves transparency 34 that hopefully will restore justice in the judicial system. And paired with the ombudsman proposed in 35 HB 23-1205, we are thrilled as an organization to see a proposal that's so victim centered, while also 36 being geared towards public access and transparency. Thank you to the sponsors into the committee.
37 And we are available for questions.

38

39

40

1 Rep. Bacon

2 Thank you all for your testimony today and your availability for questions. Members, do we have any
3 questions for this panel? Okay, I will see you again in five minutes. Sorry, family. Thank you so much
4 for testifying today. Okay, is there anyone in the room who would like to testify that wasn't able to sign
5 up? Is there anybody online? No one online. Okay, all right. Thank you everyone again for signing up as 6 witnesses. We will close the witness phase. Okay. And so, thank you for sharing about your 7 amendments earlier as we move into the amendment phase, who would like to move your amendments?
8 Mr. Minority Leader.

9

10 Rep. Lynch

11 Thank you, Madam Chair, I'd like to move L.001 to House Bill, 1019.

12

13 Rep. Weissman

14 Second.

15

16 Rep. Bacon

17 I saw that look over your shoulder. L.001 has been moved by Representative Lynch and seconded by 18 Representative Weissman. Is there anything else you'd like to share about the amendment? Mr. Chair.

19

20 Rep. Weissman

21 Not to repeat everything from earlier. This is important. You know, you just heard in witness testimony
22 the chilling effect. I really wish I could more fully reproduce the nearly two-hour conversation I had 23 with somebody who went through exactly this over the summer. But for confidentiality reasons, I
24 cannot. It's important that we get that misdemeanor penalty out of there. So, thank you.

25

26 Rep. Bacon

27 Thank you. Members. Do you have any questions on L.001? Questions or comments on L.001?
28 Representative Epps.

29

30 Rep. Epps

31 I had one comment related to the misdemeanor provision. I just wanted to raise and to have it on the 32 record that not dismissing anyone's reflections on the chilling effect, but that there are others of us who 33 just don't think it's appropriate to criminalize this specific sort of behavior, period. So, I'm glad that it's 34 removed, but that's it.

35

36 Rep. Bacon

37 Any other questions or comments on L.001? Are there any objections to L.001? Seeing none, L.001 is 38 adopted. Mr. Minority Leader.

39

40

1 Rep. Lynch

2 Thank you, Madam Chair. I'd like to move amendment L.002, to House Bill 1019.

3

4 Rep. Weissman

5 Second.

6

7 Rep. Bacon

8 L.002 is moved by Representative Lynch, I'm so sorry. And seconded by Representative Weissman.

9 Sponsors, do you have anything you'd like to share on L.002? Mr. Chair.

10

11 Rep. Weissman

12 Again, just to summarize, this is essentially conforming with the change. To rules that we we made in

13 the CR a few minutes ago, section 107, of the article we're talking about here is the article that wraps

14 around the rulemaking. It just needs to stay in sync with what we've just done.

15

16 Rep. Bacon

17 Thank you, members. Are there any questions or comments on L.002? Is there any objection to L.002?

18 Seeing none, L.002 is passed. Members, and actually, well, sponsors, do you have any additional 19 amendments? Members, do we have any additional amendments? Okay, the amendment phase is closed.

20 Sponsors, do you have any closing statements? Mr. Minority Leader.

21

22 Rep. Lynch

23 Thank you, Madam Chair. I feel it's my job as the non-lawyer in the room here to explain some of what

24 we've heard. But basically this, assuming that the voters see favor to this, this is really the how it's going

25 to get done. And I would just like to reiterate that the work that went into this caused words like panel to

26 be discussed for quite some time, comments about adjudicative board, which got really beat up well and

27 was very well pounded out. So once again, this, this did not come without a lot of work. And I think it's,

28 once again, good work. And I would encourage a yes vote.

29

30 Rep. Bacon

31 Thank you, Mr. Chair.

32

33 Rep. Weissman

34 Thank you. You know, I can confirm there were probably some weeks where I spent 10 or 20 hours on

35 the phone over the course of several days with Vice Chair Carver, but it was important to get us here. I

36 also want to note there were a lot of other folks, and some of them are in the room today, who also spent

37 a ton of time participating in these discussions. And you know, we're here. We're elected to do this

38 work. Some of these other folks who have been involved also have full time jobs, and then they

39 somehow carved out time to do this in addition. And I just want to say we appreciate that. We ask for 40 your support of 1019.

1 Rep. Bacon

2 Thank you, sponsors. Members. Are there any closing comments? Okay, Mr. Pogue, oh, sorry. I will 3 entertain a motion that this be sent to appropriations. Mr. Minority Leader.

4

5 Rep. Lynch

6 Thank you, Madam Chair, I'd like to move house. Bill 23-1019 to the Appropriations Committee with a 7 favorable recommendation, as amended.

8

9 Rep. Weissman

10 Second.

11

12 Rep. Bacon

13 Okay, the Bill has been moved by Representative Lynch and seconded by Representative Weissman.
14 Mr. Pogue.

15

16 Staff Pogue

17 Representatives. Armagost.

18

19 Rep. Armagost

20 Yes.

21

22 Staff Pogue

23 Daugherty.

24

25 Rep. Daugherty

26 Yes.

27

28 Staff Pogue

29 Epps.

30

31 Rep. Epps

32 Yes.

33

34 Staff Pogue

35 Evans.

36

37 Rep. Evans

38 Yes.

39

40

1 Staff Pogue
2 Garcia.
3
4 Rep Garcia
5 Yes.
6
7 Staff Pogue
8 Lynch.
9
10 Rep. Lynch
11 Yes.
12
13 Staff Pogue
14 Marshall.
15
16 Rep. Marshall
17 Yes.
18
19 Staff Pogue
20 Sharbini.
21
22 Rep. Sharbini
23 Yes.
24
25 Staff Pogue
26 Snyder.
27
28 Rep. Snyder
29 Yes.
30
31 Staff Pogue
32 Soper.
33
34 Rep. Soper
35 Yes.
36
37 Staff Pogue
38 Woodrow.
39
40

1 Rep. Woodrow

2 Yes.

3

4 Staff Pogue

5 Weissman.

6

7 Rep. Weissman

8 Yes.

9

10 Staff Pogue

11 Madam Chair.

12

13 Rep. Bacon

14 Yes.

15

16 Rep. Bacon

17 The bill passes unanimously. Not sure of that number. No, I'm kidding. All right, thank you so much.

18 Okay, we will get set up for our next bill.

19

20 Rep. Weissman

21 All right, we will give Mr. Minority Leader Lynch and Madam Vice Chair a few minutes to get set up.

22 We are coming up for the last part of the Rep. Lynch, Interim / 23 Regular Session hat trick.

23

24 Rep. Weissman

25 All right, we've been getting some amendments handed around in advance for when we come to that
26 phase of House Bill 1205 that when they're ready to get going. And we will invite Madam Vice Chair
27 and Mr. Minority Leader to begin their opening presentation for 1205 who'd like to start? Mr. Minority 28 Leader Lynch, go ahead.

29

30 Rep. Lynch

31 Thank you, Mr. Chair. So, reflecting back on how these summer committees work for those that are 32 new, this is what happens when you don't pay enough attention in the committee, and then as they're 33 wrapping up, they volunteer somebody to take on yet another bill. All joking aside, this is a serious
34 component, I think, to how you make really the rubber meet the road with the implementation of this.
35 And really I don't know that this committee went into our meetings thinking that we are going to need
36 something like this, but it became pretty evident pretty quickly when we started seeing the complaints
37 and where needs were not met by folks that had complaints that we needed to come up with a real world
38 solution for folks to be able to not feel threatened, not feel like they were going to have repercussions for 39 simply asking a question, to be honest with you. Some of these folks may not have had a legitimate issue 40 that could have turned into a legitimate issue simply because of the process they went through to

1 discover if they had an issue. I don't know if that makes sense. But that led to the discovery in my world
2 of what an ombudsman is. And I thought it was maybe somebody that wore a funny cloak and a funny
3 hat and went around with a staff or something. But I quickly figured out that that is not the case, and an 4 ombudsman office was I think exactly what was appropriate for this scenario, and the intent behind this
5 is that we have an impartial, really, to simplify it, a gatekeeper that will say, this complaint should
6 potentially go to HR or this should be moved up the chain. The goal is not for this person to do anything
7 beyond advise on a very confidential matter. So, if you were to approach this office and have a concern,
8 it could be taken care of in that office one way or another, but you didn't leave that office with legal 9 counsel right behind you, paperwork helping you out, but you knew the direction to go. And it truly felt 10 as a safe place, as a place that you could go and not feel that you would be made to feel stupid for asking
11 a question that may not have even been relevant to what's going on here, or that you were elevating an 12 issue that needed further action. That sounds like a fairly simple thing to craft, but as we discovered, it
13 was not. It was, once again, a lot of work to figure out what that looks like, how we can really create that 14 impartiality. A lot of discussion, and we'll discuss this more in the amendments is, where do you put 15 this? How do you have somebody that's impartial, that reports to that actual department, that their 16 livelihood, their funding for that department, their paycheck, all comes from, from the department of 17 which they're complaining. That is a tough, tough debate that we went through. We tried a bunch of 18 different things. A bunch of different places that this office should potentially be housed, who should 19 fund it, how it should go about doing its job of truly being the gatekeeper that will either say go this 20 direction up to judicial discipline, or this is maybe an issue that you should take somewhere else. Once
21 again, this took a lot of work. This happened. At the end of that committee is really when we really
22 determined that this is a direction we should go. And so this bill is technically not one of the product
23 from that committee, but I will tell you, its impetus comes from the conversations that were had during 24 that committee, and the stakeholding that went on from there. And then it led to more conversation and 25 work with my co-prime, who did an awesome job of filling in the blanks when I wasn't able to. And I
26 really appreciate her helping this. This is a kind of a tricky deal. I mean, we, we just discussed changing
27 the Constitution of the State of Colorado, because this issue is so important. And we want to make sure 28 that that is taken seriously, and that we are providing the tools necessary for those very serious steps to 29 be taken and made effective, and for us to move forward without having the sort of issues that we've 30 seen from Judiciary moving forward. So, this is a great bill.

31

32 Rep. Weissman

33 All right, thank you. Madam Vice Chair.

34

35 Rep. Bacon

36 Thank you. And I would like to thank my co-prime sponsor. We love the word voluntold, but it was 37 worth it. You know, having spent time in committee, one of the things that popped up was, how do we 38 as the legislature now because the issue had been moved into our hands, really support our community
39 and building back culture and trust within the Judicial Department. And, so, I want to share a few things

1 with you to build the context for why we have this office, but also a little bit more on what an ombuds
2 does.

3
4 So, we are bringing this bill to address the culture of trust and safety within the Judicial Department.
5 And I do want to start off by saying, the Legislature is a different branch of government than the 6 Judiciary, and we're different from the Executive. However, we do want to be able to have these 7 conversations in a way where we're not furthering the indictments, if you will, of Judiciary, but rather 8 putting on the record what it is that we heard from our neighbors and community members and how we 9 all have been able to norm on the notion that there is work to do, and that we're all committed to doing 10 that work.

11
12 And for those of us who were around in 2021 you know, many of us heard then from our Supreme Court
13 Justice Boatright a vow to reform the state's Judicial Branch in the wake of the allegations that had been 14 brought forth by the Denver Post. And, so, some of those allegations were about judicial misconduct, but 15 they were also about a culture, unfortunately, of sexism and harassment. And then there was also an 16 issue in regards to a very highly paid contract that went out to a single person in a manner which was 17 single provider, kind of procurement policies. And so around then, a couple of years ago, Judicial, you'll 18 hear from them if they'd like to share, put out requests for proposals to have someone independent
19 investigate the issue around the contract, as well as the issues in workplace culture. And, so, we also 20 noted as well that then Chief Boatright's commitment is to really look into and determine if there is 21 wrongdoing, to address it.

22
23 So, the independent investigation, there were a few. The independent investigation done by the 24 Investigation Law Group, or ILG, this is what they were looking into. They were looking into 25 allegations, 16 separate misconduct allegations, general allegations of hostile work environment for 26 women, and an allegation related to the procurement of a contract for services awarded to the former 27 Chief of Staff that was in total of $2.5 million or $532,000 a year. We also had a report done by the 28 Troyer law firm, but they went on to describe why the investigation was important. And again, that is 29 context. "The Department's mission is to provide a fair and impartial system of justice as such, its 30 greatest asset is its credibility. The collective trust of the Colorado residents is premised on our belief
31 that the courts and the Department as a whole are administered with fairness in the public good as their 32 highest goals. Thus, while allegations of corruption, self-dealing, and cover up are problematic in any 33 organ of government, they are particularly damaging when they arise from the Department." And, so, we 34 lay that out to help us understand why it's important to not only investigate this, but to re-foster that 35 sense of trust.

36
37 And, so, the Troyer Report did not expressly find that the Chief Justice was responsible for issuing a 38 contract as a cover up. However, they also found in their conclusions. First, the internal culture of the 39 State Court Administrator's Office was characterized by toxic relationships, factionalism, and a lack of 40 accountability for key leaders. Second, the Department's procurement rules were overly permissive and

1 did not sufficiently deter procurement misconduct, including the unethical behavior demonstrated in the 2 approval of that large contract. And, then, third, several Department leaders made critical errors in 3 judgment or engaged in outright misconduct. So, we want to be sure, again, that we're addressing that.

4
5 So, what does an ombuds do? Well, if you didn't know, it is a Swedish word, and according to the 6 International Ombuds Association, it literally means representative. So, an ombudsperson assists
7 individuals or groups in the resolution of conflicts or concerns. They have four different types, and the 8 type that we're going to propose today, it might be something that people are familiar with or not. We do
9 believe there are particular guardrails, because we're talking about an additional branch of government.
10 And to not go into the separation of powers, we did not direct this ombuds to direct judicial staff to do
11 anything, and they do not necessarily have investigative powers, which means they could go into a space
12 and demand information or files. But rather, as my co-prime said, the ombuds is in this space a 13 representative and someone who can help anyone with questions or concerns navigate what they are 14 experiencing. Whether it should be reported to the Commission, whether it should go to HR, or whether 15 someone should file a lawsuit. And, so, we note that in this practice, again, if you have not heard about 16 ombudspersons, according to the International Association, a reason to have one, amongst others, is to 17 build and improve workplace culture. To provide informal and confidential space to identify and address
18 issues. To support efforts to mitigate social injustices. To support those impacted by harassment. To 19 prevent bias and harassment issues from escalating. And to uncover and address systemic issues to 20 create healthier organizations.

21
22 And, so, what this bill does, is it creates an ombuds office that is externally managed. And, so, when we 23 say external, while it will be also an independent office, it will be housed in the Judicial Department.
24 However, it will be functionally independent in that they have their own budget line item and their own
25 infrastructure. They will not also be managed by anyone in the Judicial Department, but instead, they'll 26 be managed by a board of five. If you have not seen them elsewhere, there are independent offices. We 27 talk a lot, for example, the Child Protection Ombuds Office is an independent office within the Secretary
28 of State. The Commission is an independent office within the Judiciary. The ombudsperson also, again
29 I'll repeat, is not directing staff to do anything, but much of the language in the bill is how they are to 30 support those who come in with claims, not only helping represent them anonymously, if they'd like to,
31 by being a stand in, but also to direct people to resources, to direct people to help and support and then,
32 of course, to direct people who can help resolve their problem.

33
34 The scope of this ombuds office is not only between personnel who would like to report on judicial 35 misconduct and therefore, ultimately be able to provide insight in cases to the Commission, but also on 36 employee-to-employee issues. And this may be a point of difference between some of us. However, I
37 read to you earlier why we're bringing this forward, if you all did not follow the reports, the issues
38 around the large contract being issued to a single person, included people in the report and testifying,
39 who said, as a clerk, as someone in the procurement office, or even as an attorney, we did not feel like
40 we had anyone to talk to stop this contract from going out. And that includes, because HR was involved

1 in creating this contract. And, so, we're creating this space in which people can come externally to ask
2 about or to raise any concerns and be supported through that. Again, what's important about this too is 3 that the ombudsperson, as you read and as we have amendments for, is supposed to be led by the 4 complainant.

5
6 But, more importantly, what they're also going to be able to do is report back to us through SMART, as 7 well as the Commission, and the Judicial Department, what we call an aggregated data on what kind of 8 complaints that they're getting. So that we can understand, have that curtain lifted up, what is going on 9 as a matter of culture and culture change within the Department. What this bill will also do is be sure 10 that those who come into the ombuds office are protected by way of their information and 11 confidentiality.

12
13 And lastly, we are talking about this Department as being external, perhaps for a fixed amount of time so 14 that the Judicial Department can strengthen their culture. By all accounts, there are many articles in 15 organizational behavior. It takes, unfortunately, anywhere between two to five years to change a culture
16 of an organization. One that can be trusted by the employees. And, so, while we do not think that this 17 office should probably exist into perpetuity, we do know that they need time to train, as one of the 18 recommendations from these reports did mention how judges are also managers, and they need to train
19 and figure out how to be better administrators. So, while they are doing that, we are creating an external 20 space that can provide on its face safety, that people can come to as that culture shifts within the 21 Department. And, so, I'll stop there, because there's a lot more to talk about, but hopefully that provides 22 a clear overview of why we're bringing this bill and how we have structured it to be able to meet those 23 concerns.

24
25 Rep. Weissman

26 Thank you. Rep. Lynch.

27
28 Rep. Lynch

29 Thank you, Mr. Chair. And to follow on that excellent recount of where we came from. Here it is, it is 30 truly the intent of this to be a tool to be utilized by judiciary than not, not a tool for any for us to beat
31 them up with this. This really is intended for a tool that will be taken up to solve the problems that we've 32 seen in the past. And we'll also discuss that a little more in amendments. But I just want to make that 33 point really clear, that this is not the one branch overseeing the other. This is truly helping and aiding 34 and providing as best we can within our lane, a tool that that we hope will be utilized by the Judiciary.

35
36 Rep. Weissman

37 All right, thank you. Committee, questions for our sponsors? Seeing none, all right, sponsors, we have 38 about a dozen witnesses, one against, several amends, several for, one questions only. How would you
39 like to proceed? Okay, looks like most folks are in person. I'll just go in order, perhaps. All right, Mr.

1 Forsyth, Mr. Prince, Ms. Krupa. And okay, we'll stop there, and then we'll do another panel. Thank you
2 for sticking with us. Whoever would like to start. Mr. Forsyth.

3
4 Chris Forsyth

5 My name is Chris Forsyth, attorney, Judicial Integrity Project. We urge a no vote on this. When the 6 Commission on Judicial Discipline is so bad that we need an ombudsman, then the better course of 7 action is to change the Commission and make it more accessible, rather than to create more bureaucracy
8 with an ombudsman. It's difficult to understand that if an ombudsman is necessary, why wouldn't 9 everyone have access to the ombudsman, as opposed to just Judicial Branch employees, lawyers and 10 other legal professionals rightfully fear retaliation from judges and would benefit from an ombudsman
11 as much as judicial branch employees. Lawyers aren't employees of the Judicial Branch, but we are 12 subject to oversight by the Judicial Branch. It's a similar relationship, and I have a hard time telling you
13 that countless attorneys contact me and tell us we're doing what's right. They have told me they don't file
14 discipline complaints anymore because they know they won't be prosecuted. They fear retaliation. They 15 won't come speak up for reform. So, the ombudsman, if it's necessary, would help attorneys as much as 16 employees. We do not doubt the sincerity behind this measure. It's not like the other two measures on 17 today's docket. This measure at least admits that we have a problem in the process. The measure, 18 however, is ill advised, because the appropriate action is to correct the discipline commission and the 19 discipline process. If conflicts of interest are moved from the discipline process and there is more
20 transparency, then the argument for the ombudsman evaporates. The judicial scandal involved Mindy
21 Masias, who worked in Human Resources, it was just referenced, for the Judicial Branch. She basically 22 played the role of an ombudsman in a very informal manner. According to the investigation, she was 23 referred to as the fixer, because complaints against judges wouldn't make it past her. She apparently kept
24 the information to herself. Indeed, it allegedly became the basis for her to attempt to extort $2.5 million
25 under the guise of a contract. This proposal would be a codification of something that is already 26 backfired. It's naive. Finally, I would like to say we've been at this for 11 years, moving for reform. The 27 first thing on our agenda was making judicial discipline proceedings more transparent and removing the 28 criminal penalty for those who speak out regarding reforms. So, this is not an unsuccessful day for us.
29 We've achieved the primary two first objectives in the legislation that you're trying to move forward.
30 The problem is we've realized that more needs to be done. Hopefully, when I'm back here 11 years from 31 now, you'll be up to speed with where we are now, but I appreciate your time today. Thank you.

32
33 Rep. Weissman

34 Thank you, Mr. Forsyth, whoever would like to go next.

35
36 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

37 Thank you. As I indicated previously in my remarks, the Commission does support this bill. Two of the 38 things that I think we have highlighted and discussed at most is one, that it truly be independent. And 39 just for those reasons that we all uncovered over the Summer, and over the testimony, and hearing
40 people that have been victims of conduct by judges, of that of that power dynamic. It's very different

1 than just your normal boss, when it's somebody wearing a robe and somebody with the power that they
2 have and the lack of transparency that existed previously. So, our appreciation for that independent drive
3 and initiative in this bill. The second is reporting. We came here, and how we got here was really the 4 lack of the Commission being able to be independent, and the lack of reporting to the Commission, even 5 though there was an agreement to do so. So, we do emphasize that reporting to the Commission and 6 understanding that victims should have a central role in whether or not they want things to move
7 forward or where they want to go, that that reporting really needs to stay consistent in terms of the 8 codification of reporting to the Commission. And we're here for any questions you might have. Thank 9 you.

10

11 Rep. Weissman

12 All right. Thank you, Mr. Prince.

13

14 David Prince

15 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Again, I'm David Prince. I'm the Vice Chair of the discipline commission.

16 Primarily, I appreciate the opportunity you give us to talk on each of the bills. I'm thinking ahead to the 17 amendments and, candidly, I know the amendments are evolving, and so we haven't really had a chance 18 to fully study all of them.

19

20 I want to echo the second point that Ms. Krupa made on the confidentiality issue. We're very supportive
21 of the bill as it currently exists with respect to the confidentiality issue. Some of the discussion that was 22 had during the interim committee process identified kind of three categories of how things could get 23 passed on to the discipline commission from an ombuds. It could be confidential reporting, that's where 24 the person has to tell us their name and the information and trust us that it'll be kept confidential. There's 25 some, clearly, some problems with that, and it requires an awful lot of trust.

26

27 Next is anonymous reporting, that's where the ombuds can facilitate that we get information, but the 28 person's identity is held back so that they can be genuinely secure. But the third option is no reporting.
29 And, so, what we're concerned about is codifying a system that would tie the hands of the ombuds so
30 that there would be no reporting, and in fact, they would be prevented from reporting. So, our strong 31 preference is that middle path, which is what's drafted here, which is an anonymous reporting process.
32 Our concern from that is something that was discussed in the Interim Committee, and that is, in our 33 experience, when there is a judge who is engaged in misconduct, and it's the kind of misconduct where 34 there is a victim. It's not an isolated incident, in our experience. There are other victims. There are other 35 incidents. And in our experience, one person comes to us, only one person comes to us, and we find out
36 what's going on, we start our investigation, and that investigation then leads to finding out that there are 37 other victims out there. And, so, I would worry about a system of confidentiality that so tied the hands of 38 the ombuds that they weren't able to let the Commission know there's an issue, and this is the kind of 39 conduct where there are likely to be other victims, so we need to look at it. So, the Commission needs to 40 know about it, so they can investigate. My concern is that if we say that Ms. Krupa, for example, makes

1 a complaint to the ombuds and says, but I'm nervous and I don't want the Commission to know about
2 this yet. I just want the conduct to end. Well, that's not taking into account the other victims that are 3 likely out there, again in our experience.

4
5 And so, if there is going to be a change, and I don't know if there will be, but if there's going to be a
6 change in the confidentiality, please, you're setting up a process to get a good, independent ombuds.
7 Trust the ombuds. Give them some discretion to decide whether it's the kind of thing that needs to be 8 passed along anonymously, but passed along so that we make sure there aren't other victims. Thank you.

9
10 Rep. Weissman

11 Okay, thank you. Committee questions for those panel witnesses? Rep. Epps.

12
13 Rep. Epps

14 I have a question each for two of the witnesses. Ms. Krupa. I think the way that makes the most sense
15 for me to frame this is I want to share with you something that is my observation and the question is to 16 invite you to comment on it if you agree, disagree, or the reflections resonate. Does that make some 17 sense?

18
19 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

20 Yes, ma'am.

21
22 Rep. Epps

23 So, there's been testimony. The bills are running together. There's been testimony this afternoon, lots of 24 mentions of retaliation, and the context in which it's been shared has been framed as if a reporting party,
25 maybe a clerk or a lawyer may make a complaint about their own experience, or an employee, and that 26 the retaliation would be to that person. Perhaps something, you know, some impediment to their 27 progression with their job, but something related to their work experience. I have considered that there's 28 been times where I didn't report something, and that my concern was much more about my clients. I
29 mean, I cared about myself, too. But it was much more thinking about how will the next client be 30 received if I complain that this client was misgendered or that I fill in the blank. So that's my comment,
31 and just being familiar somewhat with your work outside of this important work, I just wonder if you
32 have any reflections on if that. If what I'm thinking is isolated, or if that's valid, or if others might share 33 it.

34
35 Rep. Weissman

36 Ms. Krupa.

37
38 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

39 Thank you, Mr. Chair and Representative Epps. I understand and I appreciate your question. I'm a 40 criminal defense attorney by practice, and not often in the same position you know, of agreeing with a

1 judge or necessarily receiving treatment that perhaps is appropriate. What I can tell you is, at least in my
2 experience from serving with the Commission, an employee that works at a courthouse, or a law clerk or 3 division clerk, whatever the position may be, there is that fear of retaliation, and sometimes the chief
4 judges of the district get involved and say, okay, yeah, we can try to move them. We can do this. We can
5 do that. There is a lot of work with the chief judges to be able to try to make sure that people coming
6 forward are kept safe. Through the experiences that the Commission has had in the past several years,
7 really trying to make sure that there is a more victim centered approach, very similar to the VRA type of 8 compliance that's codified. I do think that there will be, and continue to be, again, as I mentioned before,
9 just from the power dynamic, a concern of retaliation. And that is something that the Commission looks
10 at. It's something that Commission has seen and takes very seriously. We work very hard to keep that 11 from happening. If there's anything that we can do about it, or that the district can do about it. It's harder
12 in rural areas where there's fewer staff, fewer places to put people. There's not a big courthouse, things
13 like that. But we have tried that. As far as attorneys that are concerned about appearing in front of that 14 judge or even in that judge or even in that district, if that's where they tend to practice. That is a concern.
15 And there are plenty of attorneys that have to make that choice. You know, I hear Mr. Forsyth say there
16 should be an ability for the ombuds to have complaints from lawyers or outside of the Judicial 17 Department. There are lawyers that do make complaints. We have received letters from multiple lawyers
18 that wish to remain anonymous in their complaints, and there is a process for doing so. However, it's 19 hard if you're pulling records and asking questions. It's going to identify the victim sometimes. We are 20 cognizant of that as a Commission, and we are working very hard to make sure that we do everything
21 that we can to protect any confidentiality when it's requested of us. But I do think that those are valid
22 questions. I do think the ombuds would provide a lot of help with that. Also, just because I don't know
23 that the districts so far, even if we do get the chief judges involved, have resources. And the 24 Commission itself, we don't, we don't always, we can't tell somebody. Well, if this is what you're going
25 through, you should seek this kind of counseling, or you should. These are the people that you could talk
26 to. And the hope would be that the ombuds would have a little bit more in terms of resources available
27 through HR, other ways to try to help people that feel that they need a little bit more assistance than just 28 telling somebody about their complaint.

29

30 Rep. Weissman

31 Rep. Epps good for now?

32

33 Rep. Epps

34 Thank you for that. Judge Prince. This is me working to be my most delicate in trying to think of the 35 phrasing. I wonder, given that you and your colleagues have faced some criticism related to the exercise
36 of this responsibility that you've taken on. I'm including, perhaps, suggestions about allegedly unethical
37 behavior or related to the testimony and things like that. What I wonder is, and I acknowledge that 38 making assumptions about what I have perceived about you, that if with the relative power and privilege 39 that you have, whether it's demographically, educationally, financially, these ways that you are relatively 40 positioned within the community, I wonder if you have any reflections on how, as compared to you and

1 your colleagues, recipients in certain letters, you all being able to withstand this criticism. How that may 2 invite us to consider how someone with significantly less privilege, comparatively, may be able to
3 navigate challenges in the judicial system, specifically connected to how what this bill is proposing may 4 or may not help someone who's within the system. I not trying to say you're the king of privilege, but 5 within the system, you may be the king of privilege. So, within the system, someone who has less
6 privilege, there, right? Is there a way in which this bill may afford greater opportunities for them? I 7 wonder if you have any comments on that.

8

9 Rep. Weissman

10 Mr. Prince.

11

12 David Prince

13 Thank you, Mr. Chair, and thank you Representative Epps for the question. As you can imagine, this is 14 something. You don't know me, and I agree. I am a person that has had the luxury of many privileges in 15 our society. Of course, my own insecurity requires me to say, but not the ultimate levels of privilege.
16 But I am privileged in many ways, and had a leg up in many ways to have a very successful career and 17 come to where I am, and I'm aware of that. And I've been involved in my career in implicit bias training.
18 Giving it, I mean, not receiving it, and addressing procedural fairness issues. I feel like I have been 19 cognizant of those issues throughout my career, and I'm very proud of that. But to understand it on an 20 intellectual level is one thing. To have close contact with folks who are going through service on the 21 discipline Commission has me in close contact with people who are in great fear, and that helps you
22 understand better what their experience is like. And you are accurately describing that I and the other
23 members of the Commission who received the letter you're referencing, who all have law licenses. We're 24 among the most privileged in our society. We're all lawyers, whether we're judges or not. That's a highly 25 privileged position, as you yourself know, and so gives us a sophistication for dealing with issues. A lot
26 of the people we're dealing with on the Commission obviously don't have that experience. I'm fumbling
27 around because I don't really know how to answer your question other than to say that it is a significant 28 challenge and what. And I have a better understanding, having now gone through it, of what it's really 29 like.

30

31 And one of the things you can look at that was produced in the interim committee process is the CCASA
32 survivor letter. That person was, as far as I can tell from the letter, pushed to the brink of suicide. By the 33 way they were treated. You also see the involvement of the same personnel that were involved in that 34 that were involved in our letter, that were involved in what happened with Senator Lee. There's a pattern
35 here, and something like the ombuds can help with that. And, with despite all my privilege and all my 36 ability to fight and the fact that I have a statutory privilege for testimony that others don't have in 37 whatever they're doing. Despite all of that, when I received that letter, my wife's in tears for a couple of 38 nights, my blood pressure hit a 15-year high. I had some other health issues. Went and saw my doctor. I
39 feared for my career. I effectively have to give up what were my plans for retirement because of the way 40 things have gone.

1 Because we came forward and testified, and it's not just me, it was every lawyer on the Commission.
2 And these are, as I think you can understand, volunteers who are doing their best. Nobody asked to be
3 on the discipline commission. I've never heard of anyone who asked to be on the discipline commission.
4 We get recruited. We get asked to do it. We know it's an incredibly important task, and it's an incredibly 5 difficult one, because you are dealing with holding accountable the most powerful people and privileged 6 people in our society, judges. And, so, you know it's going to be difficult when you go in, but you have 7 no idea that you're going to be under this constant onslaught that we've been under for the last two years.

8
9 So yes, if someone is privileged as us, is affected as deeply as we are. And then you look and see what 10 happened with the CCASA survivor, and then you look and see what happened with Senator Lee. And 11 then I know, because people come up to me, just like Mr. Forsyth was saying, frankly, people come up
12 to me, and I know cases and people say, thank you for what you're doing. What shocks me is the number
13 of people who do that, who are judges. And at Judicial Conference, I couldn't go anywhere at conference
14 without judges coming up saying that, but it was always in a quiet hallway near a dark corner, in a
15 whispered voice. I made a joke at one point with my wife. They became urinal conversations. I couldn't 16 go to the bathroom without people coming up to me in a quiet place telling me how much they 17 appreciate what we did. And I've also had judges contact me, and other commission members have, too.
18 Judges, again, the most privileged people in our society, to explain I've been the victim of harassment,
19 abuse, unethical conduct by another judge. And I thank you that you're talking because I wasn't able, I
20 wasn't willing to come forward on mine. I've had more than one judge who's a retired judge, tell me I
21 stepped down, one of these people, particularly I was shocked, because I knew they're standing and 22 could never imagine, and you've heard this story if you're in the world of sexual harassment at all, I
23 could never imagine that person being victimized in any way. Because they are so powerful, so strong.
24 And they explained to me, you know, I actually left the bench early because of the level of harassment I
25 was getting from leadership, and I was ready to come down and testify last fall, not last fall, last spring,
26 in the General Assembly session like this. And I got a friendly warning that it was too dangerous for me
27 to do it and not to do it. They told me this after it had happened and had other people talking to me about 28 other judges talking about deciding whether to come forward, who ultimately did not.

29
30 All I have to do is look at that CCASA victim. What bravery. But in terms of a system, that CCASA
31 victim said I cannot testify and give my name. Is that really the third branch of government that we 32 want? That that Branch, according to Troyer and ILG, has a 20-year history of essentially suppressing
33 these complaints. And it's not ancient history. The examples I've given are all 2022 and 2023 and I'm not 34 allowed to talk about cases, but if I could talk about cases, I could start giving you lots of examples of 35 lawyers, of lawyers who are under what I would think would be inappropriate pressure right now, 36 because they came forward about a judge.

37
38 So yes, your question is very well focused. I, David Prince have the luxury of great privilege, great 39 resources. Senator Lee had to pay for his own lawyer. I don't have to pay for my own lawyer. I got lucky
40 because the Legislature created a fund last year for the Commission who could pay for a lawyer for me

1 and my colleagues, every lawyer member of the Commission, to defend us. Other people in the system
2 don't have that. And this is where I think CCASA talked earlier about, we wish this went further, in 3 response to one of your questions. And part of that further, it would be nice to have some legal 4 representation that would be available to these folks. So, I've rambled a little bit. I apologize for that, but 5 I hadn't really thought through what to say. I suppose, in hindsight, I should have. But I honestly didn't 6 really think this would come up today, so I apologize for rambling a bit.

7

8 Rep. Weissman

9 Rep. Epps, good for now? Committee, other questions of this panel. All right, thank you all for speaking 10 with us.

11

12 Rep. Weissman

13 Okay, next panel, Mr. Scanlon, Ms. Busby and Ms. Newman, please.

14

15 Rep. Weissman

16 All right, whoever would like to start us off. Mr. Scanlon.

17

18 Terry Scanlon

19 Mr. Chair and members of the committee. My name is Terry Scanlon, here again, here again, on behalf
20 of Colorado Courts. Mr. Chair, with your indulgence, may I go a little bit beyond the three minutes 21 today, or is the three minutes pretty tight?

22

23 Rep. Weissman

24 Start off, and we'll see how we do. Mr. Scanlon.

25

26 Terry Scanlon

27 I appreciate that. We have a lot of concerns, we have a lot of questions, and there's a lot of confusion
28 from what I've heard and from what I see in the bill. And about two o'clock today, I was given eight
29 amendments that amend the bill, and I've been trying to get an understanding of that as the committee
30 has the discussion on the other two bills. We're in an amend position because we believe very strongly 31 that there's an opportunity to make significant changes to the bill that would create a resource for the 32 staff. I want to say a couple things that I don't want to lose sight of early on.

33

34 This creates an independent agency. It is an expansion of state government to create an agency that is 35 unprecedented in Colorado. There is no independent agency that second guesses the work of another
36 state agency. And I know I just said second guesses the work, because the bill does not limit it to the 37 things I heard described. It is broader than that, and maybe the language gets cleaned up. I don't see that 38 entirely in the eight amendments that are drafted today. And I may be wrong, because I've been trying to 39 piece that together. It is an independent agency that, for the first time, would second guess the work of

1 another state agency. There's no precedent in Colorado. There's no precedent for another state court
2 system in the country.

3
4 We're advocates for a proposal for something called an organizational ombuds. And this is a good point
5 to say, the ombuds is a term that means very different roles in state government across the country and 6 in Colorado. And my friend, Representative Lynch has I think. I'm sorry, Representative Bacon has been
7 reading the work of Chuck Howard, the leader in this area, with the reference to the Swedish term. I'm 8 pleased to hear that. The International Association of Ombuds has a model for an organizational 9 ombuds. It has a standards of practice and code of ethics for an approach that has been proven to work in 10 other states. The language in this bill is something that is unique and has not been tested anywhere.
11 We're committed to eventually having an organizational ombuds that's consistent with the model
12 advocated by the International Association of Ombuds.

13
14 So, a lot of language in this bill that isn't very clear. That we hope you'll pay attention to the definition of 15 Department, it is probably not what is intended by the bill sponsors. The definition of Department refers
16 to a section that I would be unable to accurately characterize as I sit here. The definition of judicial 17 personnel lists a number of different folks who work in and around a courthouse, and it says, but not 18 limited to. So, it is actually everybody. The bill gives them authority to initiate a request for a resolution,
19 whatever that might be. It gives the ombudsman authority to respond to questions or concerns from 20 judicial personnel. That term is unlimited, so it's not just staff, as we might think personnel means. To 21 respond to questions or concerns about misconduct within the Department, not limiting that to 22 misconduct of judges, but misconduct. So, this is potentially something that might be attempting to 23 second guess the decision of a supervisor of clerks in the courthouse. It might be something that is 24 designed to address concerns about litigants who are unhappy with how they're treated when they're in 25 the courthouse. Because, again, the people who can go to this ombudsman are not limited. So, it could 26 be someone who goes to the courthouse is unhappy with their experience there, which is more than half
27 of the people who go to the courthouse on any given day. Because these are really, everything that 28 comes before the courthouse is a really significant deal in someone's life. And at least half of the people
29 leave with great anxiety about how things have turned out. So, it's not uncommon to have people, to 30 have people express concern and complaints about how they're treated at the courthouse, or how things
31 were, how things turned out.

32
33 I'm past my time, and I just want to ask the members of the committee who were in the room ask me as 34 many questions as you can think of related to everything that has been said here today. I hope you will 35 ask me about everything uncomfortable, every accusation, the definitions in the bill, all aspects of 36 language of the bill and our proposal on an organizational ombuds. I'm happy to have that conversation, 37 and I look forward to it.

38
39 Rep. Weissman

40 All right. Thank you. Whoever would like to go next.

1 Ariana Busby

2 Hello again. We are excited to talk to you guys today about House Bill 1205, regarding the judicial
3 discipline ombudsman. As you're aware, the concept of an ombudsman for judicial discipline and even 4 for employee-to-employee type issues came up this summer, this last summer, over the Interim
5 Committee. We were so grateful to work with Representative Bacon and Representative Lynch to 6 develop much of the concept that you see in the introduced bill, today. However, this bill didn't succeed
7 in the interim committee, and so our work with the stakeholders on this topic, notably the Commission
8 and with Judicial. With CCASA, who you see here today, as well. It continued, and it still continues.
9 First and foremost, I think it's important for us to set a baseline about what the purpose is for this 10 ombudsman. And the way that we see this is an ombudsman should be an independent and safe place for 11 someone to turn for information about a complaint process, to receive referrals to community resources
12 like low-cost attorneys or pro bono attorneys that are willing to assist in this area, or mental health
13 resources. And for assistance in filing an anonymous complaint. This office therefore cannot be a 14 mandatory reporter, as contemplated in the introduced language. It's our understanding that the 15 committee is going to be offering amendments to establish the ombudsman as an independent office
16 under the umbrella of judicial and to remove the mandatory reporting requirement. We support these 17 amendments. It's also our understanding that amendments are forthcoming regarding a core exemption, 18 or to clarify that exemption and to include a concept regarding sun setting this ombuds. We are 19 supportive of the core exemption, and we also support the concept of a sunset on this bill. However,
20 we've heard that the timeframe is around five years, and we would ask the committee and the sponsors
21 to consider adjusting this to at least seven years to allow for sufficient data collection. Returning to our 22 work with the stakeholders on this bill, we've had conversations with the sponsors of the bill about an 23 alternative amendment to House Bill 1205, and we'll present this to you broadly today. This proposal is 24 a marriage of sorts of the introduced bill, the amendments proposed by the sponsor today. And a strike
25 below that Terry just described to you and has circulated to at least some of you guys. In that sense, after 26 workshopping some language and these concepts with both the Commission and Judicial we make the 27 following proposals, and I know I'm running up on time. I'm happy to pass it to Alison, if you'd like.

28

29 Rep. Weissman

30 Maybe take another minute. And well, because this is the bill that had the least discussion in the interim,
31 we know that it is the one that there's been most ongoing discussion about we let Mr. Scanlon go over.
32 I'll be a little bit more flexible here. I do think it's important that the committee grapple with this. So 33 please go ahead and have another minute or so.

34

35 Ariana Busby

36 I appreciate it, Mr. Chair, thank you. So, in essence, what we're looking at is first, the inclusion of 37 definitions of judge, justice, and judicial misconduct. Citing back to the definitions that were utilized in 38 Senate Bill 22-201, to provide additional clarity on the scope of what the ombudsman does and the types
39 of people that it is meant to service. Second, we would advocate for limiting the scope of the judicial 40 discipline ombudsman to matters involving concerns related to judicial misconduct, and not to include

1 employee to employee concerns. I'll touch on this a little later. We're not saying those shouldn't be
2 addressed. By limiting the scope, we offer that the judicial discipline ombudsman could be available for
3 any person to access if they had concerns about judicial misconduct. Finally, we support Judicial's 4 concept to bring forth an organizational ombuds as proposed, with that individual being independent of 5 the Judicial Department and responsible to an advisory board.

6
7 We've worked with Judicial to modify their proposed language to specify that a direct referral will be 8 made to the judicial discipline ombudsman if there was any indication a judge was involved in the 9 concern, and to provide the concerned individual with information about the Commission. We believe,
10 however, that Judicial has taken reasonable steps to ensure that the independence and efficacy of an 11 organizational ombuds for workplace issues not involving a judge. We understand there's been concerns
12 raised and some confusion for potential complainants having two ombudsman and with housing 13 employee complaints within an organizational ombuds.

14
15 First, we would remind the committee that the purpose of the ombuds is to educate and be a resource of 16 information for individuals. We would offer that there's no harm in allowing people access to more 17 information.

18
19 Second, for concerns about efficacy, if judicial is housing an organizational ombuds, we would note that 20 like the ombuds contemplated in the introduced bill, the organizational ombuds is independent,
21 appointed by and answers to an advisory board, who will have to report to the Legislature on the success
22 or lack thereof each year at SMART hearings. Additionally, if an individual does not feel they receive 23 the information they need from the organizational ombuds, nothing in our proposal would limit that 24 individual from seeking the advice and assistance from the judicial discipline ombuds. And I believe we 25 would know about that quickly if employees were refusing to utilize our organizational ombuds, or if 26 they were reporting issues to the other available ombudsman and could reevaluate with legislative 27 changes, if that were necessary.

28
29 We deeply appreciate your work on this issue, your time and your consideration. We are available for 30 questions.

31
32 Rep. Weissman

33 Okay, thank you. Who would like to go next?

34
35 Alison Connaughty

36 I donated my three minutes to Ms. Newman.

37
38 Rep. Weissman

39 Okay, Ms. Newman, over to you.

40

1 Elizabeth Newman

2 Good afternoon, Mr. Chair and committee members. I was here in questions only availability, but I did
3 want to just make a few comments and response. The ombuds concept is probably the one that CCASA
4 finds most significant in the importance of changing the culture within the Judicial Branch. And that's
5 partly because the people that we heard from, both in the reports and the articles, as well as the victim
6 we heard from, had a lot of fear and had nowhere to turn to get information, to get support. The most 7 critical thing, I think, in trying to reform this culture is to provide that safe space where confidential
8 conversations can be had about what the options look like, what can be done, where they can seek 9 resources. We don't expect Judicial to provide, you know, everything. But in an ideal world, we'd love
10 for people who have experienced misconduct to be able to be supported with legal advice. Right?
11 Because they're often those who are most vulnerable in lower income positions, in workplace or 12 students, volunteers, those such lower status and lower income roles. And I want to also say that, in my 13 personal opinion, having two different directions for people to go is confusing and will dilute the 14 effectiveness of such an ombuds role. And, so, I really do appreciate the consideration that 15 Representative Bacon and Lynch put into creating a space, a single place for people to go and get 16 support and information and then be directed in the appropriate direction, whether that's to the judicial 17 commission, discipline commission to HR, any other place. So, I think those were just all the comments
18 I wanted to make. But I am also available for questions. Thank you.

19

20 Rep. Weissman

21 All right, thank you. Now committee, we will go to questions. Rep. Marshall, do I see a question
22 forming up? Rep. Marshall.

23

24 Rep. Marshall

25 Mr. Scanlon, you pointed out several deficiencies in the bill itself, but have you brought any 26 amendments in particular to the sponsors to limit those issues?

27

28 Rep. Weissman

29 Mr. Scanlon.

30

31 Terry Scanlon

32 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Representative Marshall. So, the deficiencies were highlighted in an email and 33 some conversations with one of the sponsors, and I haven't really had conversations with the other 34 sponsors about them. I have talked to a number, many of the members of the committee, about an 35 alternative proposal we have, which, by the way, I was delinquent in my initial remarks. I want to thank 36 the Women's Bar Association for working on helping find some common ground on this bill. They've 37 been really open minded to the things we've been working on, and especially thank you to Ms. Busby.
38 You know, we've been offering to many of the members of the committee this proposal for an 39 organizational ombuds. The organizational ombuds is a term that's defined by the International 40 Association of Ombuds. You know, there's several models, several roles, for what this can be. Their

1 website talks about it. One of the bill sponsors was referencing that. Really the work of their site, sort of
2 promotes and advocates for this organizational, ombuds. It's got four tenets to this idea. One is that it's
3 confidential, it's independent, it's impartial, and it's informal. And they've got a standards of practice.
4 They've got a code of ethics that are defined and that sort of guide the work of these organizational
5 ombuds. I've called the executive director of that association and talked to Chuck Howard, the leading 6 expert on this in the country, who's written the two books on what an organizational ombuds is and what 7 they do and what they don't do. We talked to the organizational ombuds who works at CU Boulder, the 8 one who works at Colorado State University, and one of the two organizational ombuds who works for 9 Denver Public Schools. They all advocate that when the organizational ombuds adheres closely to those 10 principles, that it bolsters morale, it helps the organization as a whole, suss out issues. More importantly,
11 it provides, and this is truly our leading reason, a safe place for employees to go and talk about any 12 issue, and they all say definitively that having that place for people to go when they have concerns and 13 they don't know who to turn to, very often, those folks end up being people who go to the formal 14 reporting route when they went into the office of the organizational ombuds, unsure of what to do or 15 inclined not to do that because they had some fear or misconception about the process. I sort of went 16 beyond the scope of your question to get a little speech in. So I let you.

17

18 Rep. Weissman

19 Rep. Marshall.

20

21 Rep. Marshall

22 You mentioned in your response a key, one of the four key parts, being independent. Why would not 23 being an external agency be an absolute key part of being independent?

24

25 Rep. Weissman

26 Mr. Scanlon.

27

28 Terry Scanlon

29 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Representative Marshall. I will agree that an external agency would be 30 independent. It's also fundamentally going to be more likely to be adversarial when it's outside of the 31 organization. The organizational ombuds, the model that's promoted by the national folks, say that it
32 should be sort of at the highest level of authority within the organization that is reasonable. So, in the 33 private sector, they'll talk about it's someone who would report to, say, the CEO. At CU it's a position
34 that reports to a triumvirate, CU Boulder, the president, the chancellor, and another high ranking official,
35 three folks. Three high ranking officials in the organization. We initially, when we first shared this idea
36 with the stakeholders, and I think sponsors was we were talking about it's something our highest-ranking
37 authority is Colorado, Supreme Court, and that wouldn't be appropriate.

38

39 We talked about having it at the State Court Administrator's Office, and the reaction that we got was 40 predictable. If we'd been more thoughtful about this, was that the State Court Administrator, not the

1 current one, but his predecessor, was at the center of the contract that initiated all of this. And
2 Representative Bacon is accurate that the Troyer Report highlighted that there was a toxic culture in the 3 State Court Administrator's Office, that's the office where I work, and that the three senior staff who
4 were at the center of that contract were part of that toxic culture. And that toxic culture, by the way, is is
5 gone. It's been gone for three or four years, however, long since those three folks resigned and we had a
6 change in leadership. I was there before and during the transition, and of course, I still work there.
7 Having it at the State Court Administrator, having an organizational ombuds that would report to that 8 person, proved to be an initial misstep, because the previous State Court Administrator was involved in 9 that contract.

10
11 And the idea is, is that the employees in the Branch need to have confidence that if they go to this person
12 and talk about an issue, it's going to be something really sensitive. It might not be high level like 13 discrimination, harassment, or retaliation, but it's going to be something that's a really big deal to this 14 person, that's unresolved, that has them uncomfortable in their workplace. And if they go to this person,
15 they have to have confidence that they're not talking to HR, they're not talking to judicial discipline,
16 they're not making a commitment about how they're going to proceed. They're going there so they can 17 have a conversation about what their options are.

18
19 Currently, at Judicial after last year's Bill 201 passed, every employee of the Department is a mandatory
20 reporter. So, if someone whispers in my ear in the committee room that you know Judge Joe Jones did
21 something unethical, I have an obligation under the statute to go report it to the discipline commission.
22 If one of my colleagues tells me that a judge or a justice is involved in something unethical. We've got 23 an obligation, so we're all mandatory reporters of these discipline systems. Not everything that's going
24 on in the workplace involves a judge. The conversations can lead to a judge. People could be concerned
25 about, you know, they could be unsure about whether it would be something that leads mandatory. This 26 creates an option for them to have a conversation where they can do it in a safe space.

27
28 And one last thought about the independence. So, we created this, in our proposal, this advisory 29 committee that would hire and oversee to the extent that their supervision of this position, and it would 30 help this person understand how to navigate the organization in a system in whatever way they need. We 31 would have a charter that would define the work of the ombuds and hopefully provide a greater degree
32 of protection for that job. It's more structure and more independence than the response that the 33 Legislature had to its workplace issues five or six years ago. The Office of Workplace Relations was 34 created in the General Assembly after the episode that involved the Representative from Adams County
35 who was expelled. And the General Assembly created this Office of Workplace Relations that doesn't 36 have protections for the person who serves in that role, in the statute or in any sort of rule. But everyone
37 who works in this workplace, if I understand this properly, can go to that person and talk about anything
38 that goes on here, any concern, without it necessarily creating a formal action. So, the General Assembly
39 created for the people in this workplace a safe place for people to go. That's essentially what we're trying

1 to create in Judicial but with more guardrails to ensure that that person works without pressure from the 2 leadership of the organization. Thank you.

3

4 Rep. Weissman

5 Rep. Marshall.

6

7 Rep. Marshall

8 In 30 seconds or less, can you tell me what would stop the Judiciary at this point from basically having 9 its own internal HR ombudsman and to carry out this and increase their culture of accountability already 10 so it makes it less likely anyone would want to go to the external agency?

11

12 Rep. Weissman

13 Mr. Scanlon.

14

15 Terry Scanlon

16 Absolutely. So, I mean, we could theoretically create a position. But we wouldn't be able to do the part
17 where the person is exempt from being a mandatory reporter without the General Assembly changing
18 the statute. And that's really a critical part of creating that safe place for an employee to go, the one
19 person in the organization, where they could go and have a conversation without committing a reporting
20 violation. 24 seconds. Thanks.

21

22 Rep. Weissman

23 All right, committee. Other questions?

24

25 Rep. Weissman

26 I have one. And I'll ask each of you, or maybe Ms. Connaughty or Ms. Busby one of you can speak for 27 the Women's Bar. I think the key thing here, as we grapple with structure and how this fits with the 28 Commission, which, of course, is constitutional in nature. And you know, before we started talking 29 about this, a friend of mine who is deep in the survivor space as a professional matter, pointed me in the 30 direction of Mr. Charles Howard before I heard of him in these conversations. So, he is legitimate in that 31 space. I trust in that. However, my suspicion is, my belief is that in most of the context in which we 32 speak of an ombuds there is not this other thing out here, which is a constitutionally created body
33 charged with its own function, an oversight function, a disciplined function. That, I mean frankly, we 34 spoke to measures ago of the three-legged stool. The three-legged stool replaces elections. I mean, thank 35 God judges are not elected, but they're accountable to the discipline commission because they're not 36 accountable to an electorate like we all are. Is how I think about it, speaking for nobody but myself. So,
37 this question of, on the one hand I understand it to be integral to the ombuds concept, that the person
38 coming to the ombuds, complainant, survivor, whatever word we're going to use, has to be in control of 39 what happens. And then if we have a requirement of mandatory report out, we're departing from that 40 concept. On the other hand, depending on how we structure this, the lack of mandatory report onward to

1 the Commission, for example, is potentially a real problem in my mind, given you know what, I'm now
2 four and a half years into. I would invite each of you to speak to that from your respective perspective.
3 Ms. Newman, I know you have a time constraint. Maybe I'll let you start.

4
5 Elizabeth Newman

6 Thank you, Mr. Chair, and thank you for that question and for really highlighting the importance of a
7 survivor, a complainant, having a choice in what happens. And I think the other piece that was not
8 mentioned but is really the importance of establishing trust in the process. As it relates to protecting the 9 office from mandatory reporting, I think that there are examples in other places of where an ombuds, or 10 you know someone in a sort of supportive role, could provide information that there was another 11 complaint, right, against a similar person or in a similar place, without sharing details that disclose who 12 they are or violate confidentiality. But to allow someone who may want to then choose and give them
13 information that might take them from an informal complaint to a formal complaint, and thereby
14 initiating those other investigatory processes. So, there are recommendations within what the federal 15 judiciary was considering in a similar situation to this that did suggest that the sort of neutral party, this 16 independent party, be allowed to provide information should there be kind of multiple complaints
17 against a single person. The other issue is, I think some of the amendment language will speak to some 18 concerns around imminent physical threat or harms that may need to then override that limit on 19 mandatory reporting.

20
21 Rep. Weissman

22 Okay, thank you.

23
24 Ariana Busby

25 I agree with everything that was just said. I would add, if you consider for our friends, for example, in 26 more rural districts, even if you consider Mesa County, if there was a mandatory report that had to be 27 made by this ombudsman because they received information from someone, even providing that 28 anonymously, you may not be able to do that in such a way where you're not identifying who that person
29 is. We have very, very rural courts in the state with very few staff, very few attorneys practicing in that 30 area, very few people coming through the door. And, so, while it might not be easy to identify in Denver
31 or in Jeffco or in an Adams County Court, in many of our court systems, it could be. And so that 32 becomes complicated. If you were to require that person to report, even if it was anonymously, things
33 that came through the door. One thing that we've been kicking around, and we've heard the 34 Commission's concerns. You know, sometimes you find out, you discover a bigger issue, because one 35 person came to talk to you about something, and if that person doesn't actually report, what do we do?
36 And you know, I think that's something that we need to continue having conversations about. And 37 Alison and I kind of informally between meetings yesterday, trying to figure this out. We're 38 contemplating whether or not there should be a mechanism for this ombudsman. Specifically, if you
39 have a second person come in with a similar complaint against a similar person, informing that person
40 that a similar complaint or a similar concern has been raised. Maybe you're reaching out to that previous

1 person, seeing if they filed a complaint, seeing if they would like to be connected with this person.
2 Would they like to share their identity? Do they want to share contact information? And then you've got
3 allies to move forward. And you know, particularly now that there's no misdemeanor penalty, that's 4 something that could happen. So, I think it's essential to build trust. I think as somebody that is
5 potentially you know about to embark on one of the most difficult decisions of their life, of their career,
6 to file a complaint against their employer, a very powerful judge. I think it's important to have autonomy
7 and not feel forced upon them, for them to be able to take it in their own time, and maybe they come
8 back to that ombudsman after they've sought out the community resources that were provided to them,
9 and they then choose to make that report. But that's why we feel that the mandatory report is a little,
10 that's difficult for us.

11

12 Rep. Weissman

13 Appreciate that. And Mr. Scanlon, I'm going to invite you to respond to the same thing in a moment.
14 What's interesting to me is that both of your organizations, the Women's Bar and CCASA have been 15 about as involved in this whole thing as anybody's been able to be. And I'm hearing some differences,
16 and I appreciate that. Ms. Busby, an analogy. So, there was a statutory duty of confidentiality running
17 between our Office of Legislative Legal Services and each of us individually in the drafting process,
18 until a bill gets to where it is introduced. It sometimes happens that, let's say I'm working on a bill on 19 cats. I always use silly examples, and Rep. Garcia is also doing a bill on cats, and the drafters kind of 20 figure out, hey, we're going to introduce the same bill. They're going to step on each other. It's kind of a 21 mess. There's this process we have around here where drafters have to obtain bilateral permission, but 22 then we consistently with or as a limited and consented to exception to that duty of drafting
23 confidentiality. That's a chance for us to sort of sort things out. That sounds like a little bit like that last 24 point that you made, and it strikes me maybe there's something in there that we could all continue to 25 grapple with. I know that Ms. Newman had to leave, but that last part about what are the fact
26 circumstances. A repeat complaint, imminent danger. You know, there could be others, that would work
27 an exception to the exception to mandatory reporting. That seems like a really key thing for us all to 28 continue to grapple with. I'm not going to claim to have an answer, but I just want to underline that. Mr.
29 Scanlon, if you'd care to speak to the same thing.

30

31 Terry Scanlon

32 Yes, thank you, Mr. Chairman, I appreciate another opportunity. Just a couple things. The proposal that 33 we envision about an organizational ombuds would, of course, include some exception for. If a visitor, 34 it's the term of art in the organizational ombuds field. If a visitor mentions something about harm to 35 themselves or others that doesn't stay confidential, that gets addressed. And I should have said that. The 36 other thing is if a visitor mentioned something, and this would be unique to us. If a visitor mentioned
37 something that gets close to, suggests, or could be related to misconduct regarding a judge, the ombuds
38 that we propose would be obligated, by statute, to notify the visitor about the judicial discipline
39 commission, help them understand who to contact, how to contact them, how that process works,
40 stopping short of doing that on their behalf. So those two things.

1 Another really interesting thing that has come out in this process. You know, someone mentioned
2 earlier, I think it was one of the bill sponsors about the contract and the senior staff. And you know that
3 really hits close to home for me, because I knew all three people and was friendly with one of them. And
4 I mentioned this to check out in conversation with him, and I joked that I might be, you know, calling
5 him about my own supervisor, and he might be listening, and I'm joking about that, by the way, guys.
6 But I might call him about my own supervisor. And he said, you know, what we often get is people who 7 are sort of in a senior staff position, who aren't sure where to go in the organization, but they know that 8 there's something really important, there's an important tension, friction that needs to be addressed, and 9 they can't figure out how to navigate it. And the ombuds will help them figure out how to have a
10 conversation, how to mediate an issue. They do a lot more than deal with these sort of high profile issues 11 of harassment, discrimination and retaliation, and they would do a lot more than stuff that's related to 12 judges. And if we had had this position, you know, six, eight years ago, the ombuds, the organizational 13 ombuds and judicial, would have been busy with complaints because of the toxic culture part. They 14 would have been busy with sort of senior staff contacting them saying, we got a problem. We got a 15 problem. And a good organizational, ombuds finds a way to elevate that issue to the leadership of the 16 organization and say you've got a problem. I don't want to violate the confidentiality. I don't want to tell
17 you who brought this to me, and I'm not going to tell you exactly who they're talking about, but you've 18 got a problem.

19
20 In a leading example that Chuck Howard uses is a private sector company that had an employee who did
21 expense reports for a supervisor, and the supervisor, a high ranking VP in the company, would ask the 22 employee to submit fraudulent expense reports so he could benefit financially. And she didn't want to 23 continue to do that, but she didn't want to report him to anybody, because she would be outed as a rat in 24 the organization. So she goes to the ombuds, and the ombuds goes to the CEO of the organization and 25 says, I need you to audit the expense reports of all your VPs. Didn't say who we're looking at. Didn't say
26 which VP. The CEO does that, audits the expense reports of all the VPs. Three VPs were filing
27 fraudulent reports and three VPs were dismissed because of that. They identified a systemic problem.
28 The employee who raised the concern had her concerns addressed and she wasn't outed as somebody
29 who was telling on her supervisor, or sort of the myriad of things that someone might have go through 30 their head that would cause them to have pause. It can really serve to help the organization, as well as 31 the employees.

32
33 Rep. Weissman

34 All right, committee, we are closing in on the 40-minute mark here. Any other burning questions of this 35 panel? All right, seeing none. Thank you all for being with us. Okay, Melanie Jordan and Melissa 36 Thompson, please. And is there anyone else physically present who wanted to speak to 1205? Mr.
37 Stevens, anyone online? Okay, all right, thanks for being patient with us. Whoever would like to start 38 off.

39
40

1 Melanie Jordan

2 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Thank you, members of the committee. My name is Melanie Jordan. I'm
3 testifying on behalf of the Office of Respondent Parents' Counsel in support of 1205. I want to highlight
4 the role, some of the issues that our agency has faced with regards to judicial discipline, and how I think
5 this bill would help. In the last five years, juvenile practitioners have been uniquely impacted by some of 6 the judicial misconduct that I think this committee is likely aware of. Judge Kamada and Weld County
7 was primarily a juvenile judge, and in addition to leaking news of a warrant to his friend, he also texted
8 friends inappropriate comments about litigants in his courtroom, including parents in dependency and 9 neglect cases. Then, in 2021 during the midst of the pandemic, Judge Natalie Chase admitted to using a 10 racial slur in a conversation with a black judicial employee, but she also made earlier actions that are 11 highlighted in the statement of charges that a judicial employee could have come forward with, and 12 perhaps highlighted some of the issues that were happening in her courtroom in a way that families
13 would have been less impacted. So, one of the things was that in 2019 she asked people who were 14 appearing in front of her who had written unfavorable reviews of her on her judicial performance
15 reviews. The situation with Judge Chase resulted in over 20 parents having limited remands and cost our 16 office hundreds of thousands of dollars. But more importantly, we had parents who were wondering
17 whether the court terminated their parental rights because Judge Chase was biased against them based 18 on their race or the race of their attorneys. No family should live with that worry. We have lost multiple 19 contractors, particularly women of color who practiced in that courtroom, who stopped taking 20 appointments, who stopped representing parents as a result of the toxic nature of that courtroom.
21 Attorneys practicing in toxic environments like the one that was present in Judge Chase's courtroom had 22 to make difficult decisions about whether to file for recusal, make a judicial discipline complaint, or 23 continue on their case to avoid angering someone whose behavior was unpredictable and vindictive. We 24 might avoid the harm to some families and the harm to attorneys who sacrifice a great deal to represent 25 parents and families in these cases, if we empower employees and contractors to be able to come
26 forward to an independent, neutral agency ombuds with their concerns. Things might be addressed
27 before they blow up into the types of harms caused by former Judge Kamada and Judge Chase. Judges
28 hold a unique level of power in our system and our democracy depends on all of us trusting that judges
29 are impartial and agreeing to follow their orders. This is a time to err on the side of transparency, not a 30 time to protect those with so much power from scrutiny. We urge a yes vote.

31
32 Rep. Weissman

33 All right, thank you, and please hold for questions. Ms. Thompson, please go ahead.
34

35 Melissa Thompson

36 Thank you, Mr. Chair and members of the committee. My name is Melissa Thompson. I'm the Director
37 of the Office of Respondent Parents' Counsel. I'm an attorney, and part of why I'm an attorney is because 38 20 years ago, I was a victim of sexual harassment in the workplace. I complained to the owner of the 39 company I worked for, and I was fired. I hired a lawyer to help me, and he did a poor job. I ultimately 40 received a settlement. But I decided that point that I was never going to let another client feel like I felt.

1 Where I was unheard, didn't know what was happening. He didn't return my calls, and so I have
2 committed my career to ensure that people, especially poor folks, have access to excellent counsel. And
3 in my role, I oversee nearly 200 lawyers across the State of Colorado, I have the opportunity to meet
4 with Chief Judges across the entire state when my lawyers raise concerns. And I'll tell you that my 5 lawyers are concerned. And that they are fearful of what it would mean for them to make a complaint.
6 I've had lawyers cry in my office. Lawyers explain the impact to their mental health, and it really, really
7 matters to me. It really matters to me, because when I was a trial attorney, a friend of mine in my office,
8 also a trial attorney, lost a trial. During that trial, the judge was awful to her, and she went to the bar
9 afterwards, and then she went home and she killed herself. So, this. You need to get this right. People
10 need access to a place that is safe, where they can ask questions like, Is this my fault? Am I doing
11 something wrong? Because when I was in my early 20s, those are questions I had. Like, have I done 12 something wrong? Is this my fault? And I had nowhere to go. And we cannot put employees in the 13 judicial system in the same position when we have the opportunity to do better. And when I hear some 14 things like a sunset on the ombudsman, I want to laugh out loud, because the idea that culture is good in 15 seven years, and we're done here is naive. Because culture changes. Culture changes with leadership
16 changes. And judges are changing and personnel changes, and culture is in a constant state of flux. I
17 know that because I oversee so many lawyers in an office, and culture is something that I care about and 18 I ask about, and I've seen it change in the seven years I've been in this role. Don't dilute this bill with 19 amendments that make it weaker, that lessen the independence an ombudsman can offer, and that would 20 ever create an opportunity for someone who's fearful of a judge to make a phone call and say, Hey, I'm 21 fearful of the judge. Can I talk this through with you? We need that access for people in the court,
22 including the contractors from my office. We need that safe place. And I'd ask for you to support this 23 bill.

24

25 Rep. Weissman

26 Thank you. Committee questions for either witness? Seeing none. Thank you for sharing. All right, last
27 call for witnesses wanting to speak to House Bill 1205. All right, seeing none. We'll close the witness
28 phase. Sorry, Mr. Stevens, confirming one last time, nobody online. Okay, we'll close the witness phase.
29 We will give the sponsors a minute to come back up to the table. All right, Committee, Mr. Pogue was 30 hard at work earlier. I want to confirm everybody has 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, & 8. Sponsors, so we have 1
31 through 8 sequentially. Do you intend for us to have anything else? Rep Lynch? Okay, all right. So
32 committee what's happening here? L.002 is being superseded at the request of the sponsors. It is a
33 corrected 2, so it's still numbered 2 up top. So just crumple up your existing 2 and make sure you're 34 looking at the right one a minute from now. Alright, sponsors will give it just a sec for that updated 2 to 35 get around. Sponsors, however you'd like to proceed, we could go in number order. We could go in 36 some other order. Just in the interest of clarity, you'll have both of the motion and the second. Mr.
37 Minority Leader Lynch. There will be ample opportunity Rep. Garcia. Rep. Lynch.

38

39 Rep. Lynch

40 Thank you. Mr. Chair, I'd like to move amendment L.001, to House Bill 1205.

1 Rep. Bacon

2 Second.

3

4 Rep. Weissman

5 All right, L.001 is moved by Rep Lynch, seconded by Madam Vice Chair Bacon. It looks like some of 6 these are somewhat brief, but we'll certainly give you a moment to sort of walk us through what each is 7 doing and the why, if you like. Rep Lynch.

8

9 Rep. Lynch

10 Thank you, Mr. Chair. This is a response to a lot of the concerns that you heard here earlier from 11 testimony and that was evolving even as we were sitting there. So, I just want to say that before we get 12 going here. But L.001, if you will turn to page 4, strikes out that we're not requesting data from this 13 Commission. This Commission has no particular data gathering function, and so we wanted to get that 14 out of the bill so that we understood that we would just be wanting data from the actual ombudsman 15 itself.

16

17 Rep. Weissman

18 Okay, thank you. Madam Vice Chair, if you wanted to add anything. No, okay. Committee, questions or 19 discussion to L.001. Objection to L.001? L.001 is passed. Rep. Lynch or Madam Vice Chair.

20

21 Rep. Bacon

22 Okay, I move L.002.

23

24 Rep. Weissman

25 All righty, L.002 has been moved by Madam Vice Chair, seconded by the ever-eager Rep. Woodrow.
26 All right, Madame Vice Chair to speak about L.002.

27

28 Rep. Bacon

29 The first portion of this just clearly states in the legislative dec, the purpose of the Ombuds Office. We 30 just again want to be clear. You know, it does take on different functions that we may have seen in 31 different places. So, we wanted to lay out what they do. The second part of it just makes clear. Again, 32 you'll see a few amendments about the ombudsperson not being a mandatory reporter or being bound to 33 any other laws in which they have to kind of share information. And what this does is say the Ombuds
34 Office has the discretion over whether or not they'll engage with other agencies. Not anything pursuant 35 to statute. And again, you'll see other language through the amendments to conform to that.

36

37 Rep. Bacon

38 All right, thank you. Committee, questions or discussion on L.002. Objection to L.002. Oh sorry, Rep.
39 Lynch.

40

1 Rep. Lynch

2 Thank you, Mr. Chair. I also just wanted to add in there, this is a direct result of stakeholding where this 3 language came directly from the International Ombudsman information that we received from 4 stakeholders in an attempt for us to include whatever we could, to make this as compliant, if you will,
5 with the desire of the Judicial Branch.

6

7 Rep. Weissman

8 Thank you. Committee, questions or discussion.

9

10 Rep. Weissman

11 Is there objection to L.002? Seeing none, L.002 is passed. Okay. Next, amendments. Rep Lynch.

12

13 Rep. Lynch

14 Thank you, Mr. Chair. I would like to move amendment L.003, to House Bill 1205.

15

16 Rep. Bacon

17 Second.

18

19 Rep. Weissman

20 L.003 is moved by Mr. Minority Leader Lynch, seconded by the Vice Chair. Rep. Lynch.

21

22 Rep. Lynch

23 So, this is in response to. I mean, one of the biggest things we heard in committee on this is that this 24 must be separate. The folks were just not comfortable with this Department falling directly in line with 25 that model that we heard about earlier in testimony, where, you know, they report directly to the CEO.
26 Well, the CEO is the person that potentially they're complaining about. So, this bounced back and forth 27 and came with a great bit of work to figure out where we actually would put this office. And this was 28 also stakeholded. I would say, very well. It also clarified the Department of Personnel. If you look on 29 page 5, lines 4 and 5, Department of Personnel. And instead of letting there be some vague language
30 with just the word Department.

31

32 Rep. Weissman

33 Okay, Madam Vice Chair.

34

35 Rep. Bacon

36 So, this is where we pull the Office out of Department of Personnel. We will put it back as an
37 independent office under Judiciary. But the bottom part, we made a note, and this came from some folks
38 who came to talk to us who were victims, and saying, even though it will be an independent office
39 within Judiciary, we do not want the office in the same building. And that is so that people are not seen 40 walking into the Ombuds Office as a matter of preventing retaliation.

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Okay, thank you. So, sponsors, you know we've heard of the separation of powers concern. DPA is in 3 the Executive Branch. You're creating a new independent office, but still within the Judicial Branch. So
4 hopefully that that settles that concern. All right.

5
6 Rep. Lynch

7 Yes, that was one of the places this was parked. Or there was a bunch of different options. And really, I
8 mean, the second part of this amendment, really was the crucial part, is that it not physically exist in that
9 Building. Because people would know what that office was. They'd see people walking in there. And I
10 think we figured out a way to at least meet our stakeholders from the Judiciary halfway on this and be 11 able to say it's still in this Department, but not physically in the building.

12
13 Rep. Lynch

14 Okay, Rep. Snyder.

15
16 Rep. Snyder

17 Thank you, Mr. Chair. And I understand the reasoning. I fully support that, but just give me a brief
18 outline how the process will go, who will make the decision, where the Office is going to be located, and 19 when (as we go through the process outlined in this bill), when will that Office be expected to be stood 20 up.

21
22 Rep. Snyder

23 Madam Vice Chair.

24
25 Rep. Bacon

26 So, we also expect the Managing Board to be a part of this conversation, to make the recommendation
27 after the hire. So, the Board is the manager of the independent office, so that'll be part of their purview.
28 In addition to managing their budget and managing the ombudsperson. So, we have not set a particular 29 date by which they need to find an office, but we have said that that they need to have that to operate.
30 So, before they can set up shop, they need to have this figured out. We do expect conversations with the 31 JBC, as well, as how to manage that. You may have heard from Alfredo Kemm about other small offices
32 and needing to find efficiencies. So, we imagine that the conversation would happen there as well. But 33 because we are setting this up as independent, we're also expecting an independent line item on budget.
34 And, therefore, they would have conversations with our budget staff as well.

35
36 Rep. Snyder

37 Thank you.

38

39

40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Okay. Committee, other questions or discussion for L.003? Any objection to L.003? L.003 is passed.

3 Okay, next amendment. Madam Vice Chair.

4

5 Rep. Bacon

6 I'd like to move L.004.

7

8 Rep. Lynch

9 Second.

10

11 Rep. Weissman

12 L.004 is moved by Madam Vice Chair, seconded by Rep. Lynch. Go ahead.

13

14 Rep. Bacon

15 Members, L.004 restructures the Managing Board. It makes it from seven to five. And then, therefore,
16 we needed to restate who appoints the members of the Board. So that is what this amendment does. We 17 say the Governor has an appointment. The Senate and the House have the ability to appoint members of 18 this Board, and we also name what kind of experiences they should have, those board members should 19 have. So personnel management, human resources, any professional experience as an ombuds person,
20 we thought should at least be the baseline of the people who are selected to be on the Board.

21

22 Rep. Lynch

23 I would also like to highlight that this is a selection board and doesn't have really much purview outside
24 of making sure that we get the appropriate person in that ombuds office. It's not they're not making
25 decisions, they're not directing traffic. They are purely there for the selection of the ombuds.

26

27 Rep. Weissman

28 Okay, committee questions or discussion on L.004? Rep. Garcia.

29

30 Rep Garcia

31 Thank you, Mr. Chair. My question here is on lines 8 and 9 and 10, line 10, really, where it requests that 32 the Colorado judge, or former Colorado judge, is in good standing. And so my question there is more,
33 mostly about process that I'm not fully familiar with. And so I understand that if there's a complaint
34 brought forward against a judge and it's not found, or no matter how many complaints and they're not 35 found, they're still considered in good standing. Is that correct?

36

37 Rep. Weissman

38 Madam Vice Chair.

39

40

1 Rep. Bacon

2 I believe so. I think there needs to be found, and I'm not. There might be witnesses in this room who can
3 answer that. I think what we were trying to say is that they had not been publicly admonished, nor had 4 their licenses removed from them, if they were an attorney or anything else from judicial discipline that
5 was formal, but if there's someone. I do believe that was the case, I'd be happy to phone a friend, if I 6 have any.

7

8 Rep. Weissman

9 And sponsors, I might just note for discussion, we struggled a little bit with this aspect in the CR and the 10 formulation that we landed on, for example, who's eligible to be appointed to the independent 11 adjudicative board, we say judges without any judicial or attorney disciplinary history, was the 12 formulation there. So, we later, after today, we might, we might consider that kind of parlance. Rep.
13 Soper.

14

15 Rep. Soper

16 Thank you, Mr. Chair, and I actually had this same question with the retired Colorado judge, and former 17 Colorado judge in good standing. Just because the way I read that, I mean, I understand why you put 18 former Colorado judge, because you could have been a judge, say, for four years, decided it's not for 19 you, but you didn't retire, per se. But it does seem like you really ought to have some sort of language
20 that does link good standing to both. Because the way I would read this is the only the former judge
21 would need to be in good standing. And I think that Mr. Chair made a really good point that there's a
22 better way to phrase that. Otherwise, you do kind of get into a position where it's like, I guess if you 23 served your 20 years as a judge, you probably had a good history. But it's good to make it clear.

24

25 Rep. Weissman

26 Rep. Soper, appreciate that point. You're capably channeling the spirit of Rep. Luck today. I actually
27 didn't have that concern, but you're right. You could read it either way. Here, the words good standing, I
28 think, are meant to apply to a retired Colorado judge or a former Colorado judge. Then there's a separate 29 question, is that to Rep. Garcia's point. Is that the formulation that we want to use, or do we want to 30 express it in some other ways? I'm personally not so concerned about this amendment right now, but 31 maybe we should just pin this so it's something to be further considered and polished subsequently.
32 Madam Vice Chair.

33

34 Rep. Bacon

35 Oh sorry, we'd welcome that. I guess I was looking for the language if it was small enough to 36 conceptually do, but if not, we'd certainly be willing to rewrite this formally. The remainder of the 37 amendment does shrink that Board, but would very much welcome suggested language. We'd be happy 38 to clarify and to add it.

39

40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Okay, Rep. Garcia.

3

4 Rep Garcia

5 Thank you, Mr. Chair, and thank you both for your consideration of looking at this further. The concern,
6 just to state for the record that I have with the term good standing, is knowing all the testimony that 7 we've heard today that the system doesn't work. There's judges that have not acted in good faith. And 8 that doesn't necessarily mean that they have gone through the disciplinary process, and that doesn't 9 necessarily mean that they haven't been acting in harassing behavior. And, so, I just want to make sure
10 that we're not inadvertently selecting a judge who does not stand to what I assume all of us on this 11 committee would consider good standing.

12

13 Rep. Weissman

14 Madam Vice Chair.

15

16 Rep. Bacon

17 Thank you for that insight. I really appreciate it. I think the only thing we would add is that we were 18 trying to find a way to still include, given the feedback that we've heard, that judges aren't a part of this,
19 we were trying to find a judge who, to your point, right, doesn't have that record, but still would include
20 a judicial voice. So again, I'd like to state if at least that spirit makes sense. We're open and willing to 21 rewriting it to make it clear to your point, because we do need this Board to have a pinnacle 22 understanding of safe space.

23

24 Rep. Weissman

25 Rep. Epps, question?

26

27 Rep. Epps

28 Yes, I just liked where it was one step back. In terms of good standing, I would not want us to rely on 29 the definition that you suggested, sir. Like someone having had judicial discipline is not something I
30 would want to preclude them. That doesn't mean they should be picked, but I don't think it having 31 occurred, especially given how we know, in every single context, everywhere, in any way, certain 32 groups are more likely to be disciplined. I don't want to blanket exclude anyone who's had it.

33

34 Rep. Weissman

35 Understood. Rep. Epps, I hear the point you're making, and that's, I think, a bit of a different point than 36 was just made a minute ago, which is totally fine. I'm personally comfortable, you know, adopting this 37 amendment in furtherance of what the sponsors are trying to do today, with the understanding we have 38 many opportunities for members of this committee and the sponsors and others to continue to grapple
39 with this subject. And procedurally, there are many opportunities to polish this language as soon as the 40 next committee, certainly second reading in the House. Madam Vice Chair.

1 Rep. Bacon
2 Yeah, we will certainly do that. I want to repeat back perhaps what I heard. We're not necessarily saying
3 a complaint is a preclusion, but I think we will need to further define what good standing is by way of 4 informal or formal findings, if that makes sense. So, it's not necessarily having gone through it. It's just 5 clear on what the findings were on those issues. The question before, when I said phone to friend was to 6 be sure we did also understand what good standing means, and we could further define that by way of 7 findings, but not necessarily saying that no one has never had a question. If that makes sense, so our 8 commitment is to get to the bottom of that and to circle back with all of you. I think to Rep. Soper, we 9 figured out how to address your concern. And I think we can figure out how to address or how to clearly 10 state what we're trying to accomplish.

11
12 Rep. Weissman
13 Okay, thank you. Committee, further discussion on L.004 at this point? Is there objection to L.004?
14 L.004 is passed. All right. Next amendment, sponsors.

15
16 Rep. Lynch
17 Thank you, Mr. Chair. I would like to move amendment L.005, to House Bill 1205.

18
19 Rep. Soper
20 Second.

21
22 Rep. Bacon
23 Oh.

24
25 Rep. Weissman
26 L.005 moved by Rep. Lynch, will give a second to Madam Vice Chair Bacon. Chivalry prevails. All
27 right, the record may reflect that Rep. Bacon has the second. Rep. Lynch, if you wanted to, or Madam
28 Vice Chair if you want to speak to the amendment. Rep Lynch.

29
30 Rep. Lynch
31 Thank you, Mr. Chair. This simply takes care of the mandatory reporting that we brought that was 32 brought up in testimony and was of concern.

33
34 Rep. Weissman
35 Okay, committee questions or discussion on L.005? Is there objection to L.005? Seeing none, L.005 is 36 passed. Next amendment, sponsors. Madam Vice Chair.

37
38 Rep. Bacon
39 I'd like to move L.006.

40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Second.

3

4 Rep. Weissman

5 All right. Motion for L.006 by Madam Vice Chair, second by Rep. Lynch.

6

7 Rep. Bacon

8 Thank you. We just wanted to be sure in this section. Again, we want to be able to name what kind of 9 communication is happening for this portion. So, we went to be clear and say between the 10 ombudsperson and the complainant, there were just questions on who is the ombuds talking to? Again,
11 this is part of the language further down the line that is being able to center the victim and centering
12 power around the complainant and to just to be clear and where the communication lies.

13

14 Rep. Weissman

15 All right. Thank you. Committee questions or discussion concerning L.006? Seeing none, is there 16 objection to L.006? L.006 is passed. All right, Rep. Lynch.

17

18 Rep. Lynch

19 Thank you, Mr. Chair, I would like to move amendment L.007 to House Bill 1205.

20

21 Rep. Bacon

22 Second.

23

24 Rep. Weissman

25 All right. L.007 has been moved by Rep. Lynch, seconded by Madam Vice Chair Bacon.

26

27 Rep. Weissman

28 Rep Lynch.

29

30 Rep. Lynch

31 Yes, so this just clarifies and expands that who the ombudsman shall be available to, and just add some 32 more clarity to that.

33

34 Rep. Bacon

35 We heard earlier about, there's another section of the bill where we define personnel. You heard their 36 conversation about this being open to anyone, and it's not. The way that we define it is particularly that 37 people who work with the judicial system. And so that may include, we want to be sure that people
38 understand personnel is not just State Court, Administrative Staff. It could also be attorneys, volunteers,
39 interns, bailiffs in that section. And so, here, this helps us define the scope of the Ombuds Office that it 40 is available to taking complaints related to other staff, not just related to judges.

1 Rep. Weissman

2 All right, thank you. Now I'm going to try to channel the grammatical ghost of Rep. Luck here, looking
3 back at the definition on page 4, I think I see the concern that was stated previously by Mr. Scanlon, but 4 I'm hearing sponsors your statement of contrary intent. So, in the middle of that definition, we see 5 persons who work with judicial employees, and includes, which could be equivalent to including, but
6 not limited to bailiffs, litigating attorneys, interns, and volunteers. So, you intend the kind of the last part 7 of that definition to be illustrative of persons who work with judicial employees and staff, but still 8 limited by it. Is that fair? Madam Vice Chair.

9

10 Rep. Bacon

11 I'm going to say it a different way, but I'm not sure if this addresses your question. The part that we are 12 looking at for the definition of judicial personnel. It says, and persons who work with judicial employees
13 and staff. So that's what we wanted to limit personnel to. Then when it comes to complaints, what we're 14 saying is, if an attorney has an issue with the bailiff, if the HR person has an issue with someone in 15 procurement, that the ombuds person is open to taking complaints or to helping people through 16 navigating those issues. The ombuds's scope is not only limited to navigating issues solely of judicial 17 misconduct, but rather of also personnel misconduct. In the issue that we saw in the Troyer Report, for 18 example, the issues lied between attorneys and people in the procurement team with the Chief of HR and 19 the State Court of Administrator. There was not a judge involved with that. And, so, we wanted to say,
20 you are open to coming to talk to us about complaints, if you are a clerk, or if you're like, even someone
21 who's doing administrative work, and you have an issue with your clerk, you are open to coming to talk 22 to the ombuds about that, as well.

23

24 Rep. Weissman

25 Thank you. Committee, other questions or discussion concerning L.007? Any objection to L.007? L.007
26 is adopted. All right. Last one, sponsors. Rep. Lynch.

27

28 Rep. Lynch

29 Thank you, Mr. Chair. We are going to not ask that we move L.008.

30

31 Rep. Weissman

32 Okay. So, with that sponsors, any other amendments that you intend at this point?

33

34 Rep. Lynch

35 We have L.009.

36

37 Rep. Weissman

38 Madam Vice Chair.

39

40

1 Rep. Bacon

2 I'm going to move L.009.

3

4 Rep. Weissman

5 I think we need L.009 up here.

6

7 Rep. Bacon

8 Wait a minute, we're not going to move L.009.

9

10 Rep. Weissman

11 Okay, very good.

12

13 Rep. Bacon

14 Never mind.

15

16 Rep. Weissman

17 All right, so sponsors that's it? That's it for now?

18

19 Rep. Bacon

20 Yes.

21

22 Rep. Weissman

23 Okay, committee amendments at this point? Rep. Epps.

24

25 Rep. Epps

26 Actually, seriously like. This is really important to me. I do want to move L.008. Can I?

27

28 Rep. Weissman

29 Strictly speaking, you may. Okay, L.008 has been moved. Is there a second?

30

31 Rep. Epps

32 You can get on the record, just don't second it.

33

34 Rep. Weissman

35 Is there a second?

36

37 Rep. Evans

38 Second.

39

40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 All right, so sponsors go ahead and respond.

3

4 Rep. Bacon

5 Was it seconded?

6

7 Rep. Weissman

8 Yeah, we've had, there's a proper motion and a, let me get this. We've had a motion and a second for 9 L.008. Madam Vice Chair.

10

11 Rep. Bacon

12 We drafted L.008 as a repeal, you know, often called a sunset. We heard testimony today that perhaps,
13 you know, some people are opposed to that. We also heard from the Women's Bar that they think it
14 should be seven to 10 years out. So, we thought we would continue to work on it. We wanted to offer it
15 for a notion to saying, okay, if there's a road to rebuilding culture, we could pull it off the table. But 16 that's why we decided to not offer it today. I just would just be curious to see where the vote goes. But 17 for what it's worth, we just wanted to be able to share with you why we decided to pull it today.

18

19 Rep. Weissman

20 Rep. Lynch.

21

22 Rep. Lynch

23 Thank you, Mr. Chair. I would also like to add that that that came from conversations with our sponsors
24 in the Senate, as well. Where there was more passion for that amendment than we might have had. So, I
25 would let the Senate do some work if they really feel that that's necessary.

26

27 Rep. Weissman

28 Madam Vice Chair.

29

30 Rep. Bacon

31 I have an actual question. We thought we would see if the Senate can, if we can work this out by the 32 Senate. It was brought up by one of our Senate sponsors. I just curious, if we vote it down today. That 33 doesn't settle anything? Okay.

34

35 Rep. Weissman

36 And for that matter, if it were to get approved, it still could be amended in the Senate later. All right, so 37 members, there's been a, you've heard. Sorry, Rep. Soper.

38

39

40

1 Rep. Soper

2 Thank you, Mr. Chair. And I mean, can we have comments today after phasing it in the form of a 3 question?

4

5 Rep. Weissman

6 I guess I'll allow comments on this.

7

8 Rep. Soper

9 Thank you. Actually, I quite like this. I feel like it's good to be able to go back and look at legislation
10 from time to time. And in five years, it is long enough out to make sure that what we're doing here is the 11 right path. It's something that will force the legislature to come back and look at it. So, I certainly do like 12 the sunset piece, and I appreciate that that you were bringing it. So, I was a little bit disappointed when I 13 heard you say you were withdrawing it, and was excited again when it came back.

14

15 Rep. Weissman

16 All right, Rep. Snyder.

17

18 Rep. Snyder

19 Thank you, Mr. Chair. And I kind of like this, too. I actually thought it was too short a time. And so I
20 understand and I have full confidence in our wonderful colleagues in the Senate, but I just don't like 21 having this left open ended. So, I just wanted to tell you that.

22

23 Rep. Weissman

24 Thank you. Rep. Epps, Rep. Marshall.

25

26 Rep. Epps

27 So, I'm extremely comfortable deferring to what the sponsors ultimately want on this. I was excited,
28 excited is a strong word for an amendment. I was really pleased and relieved to see it in flipping through 29 the packet. I tend to think it's a little bit too long. Three to four is plenty, but I just want to name why.
30 The reservations that I had about this bill, that were not things that are going to be things that were likely
31 to make me a no, are deeply embedded in the fact that the system writ large, is really good at replicating
32 its worst parts. Right? We call it a new thing. We move it out, we do something else that it's just further
33 entrenching something that might not be working. And so having an end date made me much more
34 optimistic. Not because I want it to be wrapped up, but because we're not just committing to something
35 that we don't know. Are folks really more comfortable going to another place? Like, are we seeing better
36 outcomes, whatever the ways it is measured? So, I think this is really, really important with respect to 37 our colleagues in the Senate or seconds, or whatever. I just would really ask that you would think about 38 it, if not now, then seconds or something. But to me, it's a huge deal. My discomfort with the bill is 39 totally wrapped up in the fact that if the idea was having an end date on it.

40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Madam Chair.

3

4 Rep. Bacon

5 Members, thank you for the conversation. I'm okay with entertaining the motion. I will also add, you
6 know, to your point of efficacy. We made it a point that for the first two years of this Office, they 7 actually report back to us on how it's working and any data, as well as any insights on how to make it
8 better. So, between that, between the urgency and between what we may hear from Judicial, right, and 9 being able to make some of the adjustments. That's also why we were okay with the time limit. So, for 10 what it's worth, I don't entirely find this to be hostile. So, I'd entertain a vote on it. I might vote for it 11 myself. So, I just want to put it out there.

12

13 Rep. Weissman

14 Rep. Marshall.

15

16 Rep. Marshall

17 I wouldn't normally have said something, but since we have such a unanimity that at least in comments,
18 that it would be a good idea to put a sunset, I'd have to be the contrarian on that for an independent body
19 to have a sunset on it. That it just is going to the credibility of the organization, that it's ephemeral. If 20 this body is doing its responsibilities, we will always be looking at the possibility of revising or revoking
21 some agency's powers. Or existence, if necessary. I know that may be, you know, Mr. Smith Goes to 22 Washington view of the world, but I think it does undermine the credibility from the get go of the 23 organization, if you put a sunset on it.

24

25 Rep. Weissman

26 Thank you, committee. Other comments? You know, Rep. Marshall, I sort of find myself agreeing with 27 your last point. Every regular session of this General Assembly is a chance to sunset something.
28 Personally, I don't know. I think that putting the time period aside, there are arguments on both sides.
29 I'm going to be voting no on the amendment, because I think between what I've heard the sponsor say
30 and what I've heard folks who engage in this professionally say, and what I've observed over many,
31 many, many years now, and frankly, countless hundreds of hours of time spent on the subject, we are 32 talking about organizational culture change. And that is slow, and I don't know if five years is the right
33 amount of time for that to happen. Absolutely, this is a subject within the subject worthy of continued
34 conversation. I don't favor the five-year time limit at this point in this first committee's work. Rep.
35 Snyder.

36

37 Rep. Snyder

38 Thank you, Mr. Chair. But to be clear, if this amendment were to pass, it could be amended in the 39 Senate or at a later stage.

40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Procedurally, yes. Rep. Snyder, I mean anything this committee does is subject to further amendment if
3 the votes are there in a later committee, or the floor of the House, or the floor of the Senate? It's more, in 4 my view, anyway, what message that we are sending by what all we do here. As this committee, in
5 particular, the strict scrutiny committee of the General Assembly, if I may. All right, committee, if there
6 are no further comments, there's been objection. Okay, Mr. Pogue. So, members, the question is the 7 adoption of L.008 which has the five-year repeal?

8

9 Staff Pogue

10 Representatives, Armagost.

11

12 Rep. Armagost

13 Yes.

14

15 Staff Pogue

16 Daugherty.

17

18 Rep. Daugherty

19 No.

20

21 Staff Pogue

22 Epps.

23

24 Rep. Epps

25 Yes.

26

27 Staff Pogue

28 Evans.

29

30 Rep. Evans

31 Yes.

32

33 Staff Pogue

34 Garcia.

35

36 Rep Garcia

37 No.

38

39 Staff Pogue

40 Lynch.

1 Rep. Lynch

2 Yes.

3

4 Staff Pogue

5 Marshall.

6

7 Rep. Marshall

8 No.

9

10 Staff Pogue

11 Sharbini.

12

13 Rep. Sharbini

14 No.

15

16 Staff Pogue

17 Snyder,Snyder.

18

19 Rep. Snyder

20 Yes.

21

22 Staff Pogue

23 Soper.

24

25 Rep. Soper

26 Yes.

27

28 Staff Pogue

29 Woodrow.

30

31 Rep. Woodrow

32 No.

33

34 Staff Pogue

35 Bacon.

36

37 Rep. Bacon

38 Can I go yes for today? I mean, I don't even know what the count is, but sure.

39

40

1 Staff Pogue

2 Mr. Chair.

3

4 Rep. Weissman

5 No.

6

7 Rep. Bacon

8 Did it fail?

9

10 Rep. Weissman

11 The vote is six to seven, fails.

12

13 Rep. Weissman

14 All right, committee, are there any other amendments?

15

16 Rep. Bacon

17 I am grateful for the discussion.

18

19 Rep. Weissman

20 I am closing the amendment phase. Sponsors, wrap up comments please.

21

22 Rep. Bacon

23 Oh, sorry. All seriousness, thank you. I just want to say we are family. I love everybody on this
24 committee. I learned something new every day. God bless America. Okay, so members, thank you again 25 for listening today.

26

27 I'll bring us back to the point of this bill. I really also want to say thank you to those who came to testify.
28 You know, I just wanted to point out that I do believe an organization in pursuing its health is an 29 ongoing process, but somebody actually mentioned the case in Arapahoe. And for what it's worth, that 30 censure came down in 2021. That wasn't like eight years ago. But part of the things that we also learned
31 about that from just reading through the paperwork, as well as talking to people who were around it. I
32 just want to share with you some insights we got from the experience of going through that process. You
33 know, all of this isn't necessarily about a Supreme Court judge, right? And all of this isn't necessarily 34 about, because I'm sure we won't see someone get another $5 million contract, you know, over a couple
35 of years. But I want to talk about that experience in the process that that folks really saw. You know, the 36 report in regards to the judge in Arapahoe actually had enough information that it could identify the 37 person who made the complaint. People who go through these processes don't also know what to expect
38 in these processes. Some people could be talked to one time and not heard from again until the censure
39 comes out. Some people could be talked to multiple times, but not having someone there to help
40 someone navigate that issue is what we're talking about here. The issue again is not just about something

1 happening at the highest level. It is about 20-some-odd Districts who have different Chiefs. To be sure
2 that that we can find some unifying practices and unifying access, to be able to help all the staff not only
3 make a complaint, know how to get resources, have someone stand in for them if they want to feel
4 protected, be able to have some sort of anonymity where someone would stand in their place, and so
5 much more. And so again, the fact that this issue is before the Legislature only goes to show how many 6 hurdles that community and neighbors had to go through to have somebody say, We need to figure out
7 what is going on behind the curtain.

8
9 Again, the fact that we are talking about it as the Legislature, means that these issues became so
10 notorious that people turned to the folks that they publicly elect every couple of years to say, Hey, help
11 us get to a place in which we can rebuild our confidence. We're not going to say that we don't have 12 confidence in the Branch in working on this too, as they have received the same scrutiny and, in fact,
13 more pointedly so. But we do need to step in to be sure we have somebody who is not paid by, not
14 managed by the agency to report to us and the Commission and the Department what kind of trends
15 they're seeing. We did build this in a way that is victim centered. And we do know that the ombuds
16 people will advise people about their anonymity in reporting. But we also know this ombuds would be 17 able to collect the data and actually hear what's going on through the complaints, if they're reported or 18 not, and report that back to us, as well as the Commission, as well as the Department.

19
20 So members, this may not be the traditional ombuds office. What is required, from what we heard as a 21 definition of a traditional ombuds office would mean we would need to relax laws that someone within 22 the Department who is again either managed or paid by it, may or may not report cases to the 23 Commission, and that is exactly what we were trying to stop. And so, while we may have different
24 facets, we are not precluded from creating them. Again, we have made this office that can operate within 25 the scope of separations of power. Again, it's not investigating and it's not directing the Judicial 26 Department to do anything which you might find in a traditional ombuds role but would be precluded
27 because of separation issues.

28
29 So again, thank you for listening. Thank you for coming on this journey with us. Again, we have been 30 talking about it since the Summer. I think we're all going to learn about stakeholdering, for what it's 31 worth, my out of office is, if you have an amendment, but it's after 24 hours, I'm not taking it. But that 32 being said, we just want to be sure that everybody knows how willing we are to have these 33 conversations, to include the voices from our stakeholders, and to be able to make the changes so that 34 this can work. We just hope that we continue to have these conversations in a way that is urgent, but also 35 in a way that is clear and concise, so that by the time we get to vote on this, because when it leaves our 36 chamber, if it comes back, we are all in a solid place. So, thank you for listening. Thank you for your 37 help. Thank you for your discussions.

38
39 Rep. Weissman

40 Thank you. Mr. Minority Leader, for closing comments.

1 Rep. Lynch

2 Thank you, Mr. Chair, and I'd like to thank the committee for helping us write that bill. No, this is such
3 an important issue and such a touchy issue, and so it was really weird to be on that interim because here
4 we are looking across to another branch, and that that feels wrong, and, you know, maybe a little dirty,
5 that we're, are we doing the right thing here? But the conclusion I came to is that if we in some way, are 6 contributors to there being a lack of faith in our Judiciary, shame on us. That is an essential part of the 7 success of our government, and this work that we did, I believe, helps shore that up, for what it's worth.
8 And not everybody likes this process necessarily, but that's what I kept centering back on, is that if what 9 we're doing is going to restore some faith in this State, in our Judiciary, then we've done good work.
10 And thank you so much for your time today. And I can't match my co-prime's, eloquent words, but 11 please vote yes.

12

13 Rep. Weissman

14 Alright. Thank you. Committee closing comments? Rep. Marshall.

15

16 Rep. Marshall

17 Yeah, I apologize for keeping us here longer, but I was just going to emphasize to some of our 18 witnesses, especially Mr. Scanlon, since I know he's so passionate. Again, it may not seem like it, but 19 this is meant to help the Judiciary. In fighting this external versus internal is going to be a losing battle, I
20 think, and you need to you know as I've expressed to you before, that's a non-starter. This will be 21 external, but I would be totally open to you molding that external agency to make it as good as possible.
22 And again, it does not stop the Judiciary from doing their own internal processes so that the culture
23 improves and people are not going to the external agency. So again, just to emphasize those points.

24

25 Rep. Weissman

26 All right, thank you. Committee, any other closing comments? Just, sponsors, thank you. You know for 27 this, this was kind of the last of the three core subject areas that arose in our considerable work last Fall.
28 Madam Vice Chair, I seem to remember voluntolding you specifically on this. Very grateful for the 29 work that you both put in last Summer and have continued to put in. And again, thank you to everybody
30 else who has leaned in and contributed a lot of ideas and brainstorming and hours that are not plentiful
31 in life. You know, understanding that discussion is going on about this, I do believe that it is an 32 important adjunct to the other work that we've talked about and have approved of earlier in this 33 afternoon. I think it helps to be informed by what are core ombuds concepts from professional 34 organizations like the one that we've heard about. This is this is a bit different, though, I think. So, I am
35 personally not going to be dissuaded from forming what I think is the best structure here and to grapple
36 with the circumstances that have been handed to us as the people's branch of government, even if that 37 does look a little bit different than sort of what is canonical in the ombuds space. So, I'm again, thank 38 you for your work, and I'm certainly supportive today. We're going to the Appropriations Committee.
39 Motion, and second are yours to make.

40

1 Rep. Bacon
2 I move House Bill 1205, as amended, to the Appropriations Committee.

3
4 Rep. Lynch
5 Second.

6
7 Rep. Weissman
8 All right, good motion by Madam Vice Chair. Second by Mr. Minority Leader, Lynch. Mr. Pogue.

9
10 Staff Pogue
11 Representatives, Armagost.

12
13 Rep. Armagost
14 Yes.

15
16 Staff Pogue
17 Daugherty.

18
19 Rep. Daugherty
20 Yes.

21
22 Staff Pogue
23 Epps.

24
25 Rep. Epps
26 Yes.

27
28 Staff Pogue
29 Evans.

30
31 Rep. Evans
32 Yes.

33
34 Staff Pogue
35 Garcia.

36
37 Rep Garcia
38 Yes.

39
40

1 Staff Pogue
2 Lynch.
3
4 Rep. Lynch
5 Yes.
6
7 Staff Pogue
8 Marshall.
9
10 Rep. Marshall
11 Yes.
12
13 Staff Pogue
14 Sharbini.
15
16 Rep. Sharbini
17 Yes.
18
19 Staff Pogue
20 Snyder.
21
22 Rep. Snyder
23 I'd like to say yes.
24
25 Staff Pogue
26 Soper.
27
28 Rep. Soper
29 Yes.
30
31 Staff Pogue
32 Woodrow.
33
34 Rep. Woodrow
35 Yes.
36
37 Staff Pogue
38 Bacon.
39
40 Rep. Bacon

1 No. I'm kidding, yes.

2

3 Staff Pogue

4 Mr. Chair.

5

6 Rep. Weissman

7 Yes.

8

9 Rep. Weissman

10 All right, the vote is 13 to 0. Thank you and congratulations, sponsors. Okay, committee that concludes 11 our work for the day and the week. Thank you. We have quite a calendar in front of us next week, so 12 bring the coffee. Until next week. Judiciary is adjourned.

Appendix 27(w)(ii)

Exhibits and Hearing Materials:

Appendix 27(w)(ii)(1)

Letter from Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa to Michael Weissman with summary,
March 14, 2023;

COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

March 14, 2023

Rep. Mike Weissman, Chair
House Judiciary Committee
200 East Colfax Avenue
Denver, CO 80203

Re: March 15th Hearing on HCR23-1001, HB 23-1019, and LLS 23-0724

Dear Mr. Chairman:

I am writing as the chair of the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline to provide our input on the legislation proposed by the Legislative Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline. The Commission commends the Interim Committee for its extensive work and fully supports adoption of the legislation the Interim Committee Proposed along with LLS 23-0724. The Commission proposes narrow refinements as discussed at the SMART hearing and discussed below.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The purpose of Colorado's constitutional system of judicial discipline is to ensure that allegations of ethical misconduct against a judge are investigated and addressed by impartial representatives of the community and to assure the public that Colorado has an ethical and professional judiciary. All states have some discipline process; Colorado's was adopted in the 1960s as part of a broad effort to change how judges are selected, evaluated and, as necessary, disciplined. In 2022, for the first time in years, the legislature enacted changes to the judicial discipline process, and formed the Interim Committee to dig deeper into issues raised and to recommend, as appropriate, additional changes. The information presented to the Interim Committee revealed that Colorado's judicial discipline system is falling short of fulfilling its purpose. The Interim Committee prepared draft legislation and recommendations to improve our system of judicial discipline.

The Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline supports the Interim Committee's proposals and recommendations. They provide for greater transparency of the discipline system, greater independence from influence by the judiciary of the adjudication of discipline cases, and a narrowed role for the Colorado Supreme Court limited to a more traditional appellate function.

The draft legislation provides greater information to complainants and an express anonymous reporting option as well as provides a conflict free system for addressing misconduct claims that involve the Supreme Court. While a specific bill has not yet been drafted, the recommendations include creation of an independent ombuds to provide a robust system of safe reporting for complaints of judicial misconduct.

The Commission supports passage of the draft legislation with narrow amendments simplifying rulemaking, broadening the “pool” for the special tribunal, confirming victim appellate rights, and assisting victims. The Commission also supports the establishment of the recommended ombuds and emphasizes the need for the ombuds office to have the independence from the Judicial Department it will require to serve its function of facilitating the presentation of judicial misconduct complaints to Colorado’s judicial discipline system.

INTERIM COMMITTEE PROPOSALS/RECOMMENDATIONS

The Interim Committee prepared two draft bills and made recommendations for one or more additional pieces of legislation. A broad summary of the proposed reforms is as follows:

- Structural Reform While the overall design of the current system is not changed, the structure of two of its components will be revised.
 - Trials The trial or “adjudicative phase” of the discipline system is currently controlled by the judiciary with judges who are selected by other judges primarily making the decisions. Under the proposed legislation, the trials would be held before a three person panel with citizen, lawyer, and judge members. By this change, the legislation creates a new and more independent adjudicative entity that handles the trial phase of discipline cases.
 - Supreme Court Review Under the current system, the Supreme Court has the role of final decision-maker after a trial is conducted by judges the Supreme Court itself selects. Under the proposed legislation, the Supreme Court will be limited to a traditional role of appellate review. As with criminal and civil trials, the trial “court” will make the decision and that decision will govern unless found legally invalid on appeal.
 - The Commission fully supports these proposed changes.
- Confidentiality Colorado has an unusually high level of confidentiality in its current system. The proposed legislation has Colorado join the majority of states and make the trial phase of judicial discipline public to allow greater public accountability.
 - Related to confidentiality, the proposed legislation includes other measures to enhance transparency including data reporting requirements and information sharing with complainants.

- The Commission fully supports the proposed changes to provide for greater transparency and public oversight of the discipline process.
- Rulemaking Authority Colorado’s current system assigns rulemaking authority to the Supreme Court. The proposed legislation creates a rulemaking committee with appointees from the Supreme Court and the Discipline Commission. The current proposal has the new committee draft rules only for the initial phase of the discipline process, the “investigative phase.” For the rest of the system, such as the portion handled by the new adjudicative body, the current draft assigns rulemaking authority to the Supreme Court. Thus, the current draft legislation divides the rulemaking authority for a single case among two different systems.
 - The Commission proposes that this portion of the bill be amended. The draft system is overly complicated and is likely to cause friction between the two rulemaking paths by splitting the rulemaking authority in the middle of a case.
 - Additionally, the judiciary is given rulemaking authority over courtroom litigation such as civil and criminal cases because it is a neutral in those proceedings. In the judicial discipline system, the judges are the defendants. The judiciary is a partisan in the judicial discipline system rather than a neutral. By way of analogy, assigning the judiciary rulemaking authority is like assigning the criminal defense bar rulemaking authority in criminal cases or the plaintiff’s personal injury bar rulemaking authority in civil cases.
 - The Commission proposes that rulemaking authority be held by a single neutral entity, as in other areas and in 23 other states. The Commission proposes that rulemaking be handled by a committee comprised of membership representative of the process stakeholders. That mix will facilitate collaboration and compromise since no single stakeholder can dictate terms to the others. Giving a single non-neutral stakeholder final authority over rulemaking is not conducive to collaboration or compromise.
- Conflict-Free Final Review Colorado’s current system has no mechanism for handling a case on a conflict free basis when a member of the supreme court’s conduct is at issue or conflicts otherwise arise at that level. The proposed legislation implements the mechanism recommended by the ABA Model Rules for Judicial Disciplinary Enforcement for addressing this situation. The proposed legislation defines a collective approach to disqualification standards and provides for a substitute supreme court to be created for a discipline case when the justices are disqualified.

- The Commission has supported this model from the outset of this process and strongly supports the proposed legislation.
 - The current draft of the legislation draws the replacement judges from the Court of Appeals. The Commission supports amending the definition of this “pool” for substitute judges to a statewide “pool.” This can be done by simply including district and county court judges.
 - Understanding the difference between large urban courts and lightly resourced rural courts is a critical perspective in judicial discipline. Drawing exclusively from the Court of Appeals eliminates perspectives from most of Colorado and from rural courts.
 - Additionally, drawing judges solely from the Court of Appeals does not fully address the conflict issues experienced in the past and anticipated in the future.
 - The Commission and the Supreme Court negotiated the definition of this “pool” in July and reached a compromise. While the Commission had proposed that substitute judges be drawn from all conflict-free judges in the state, the Supreme Court proposed that county court judges be excluded from the “pool.” The Commission accepted this compromise so that substitute judges would be drawn from a broad, statewide “pool” of Court of Appeals and District Court judges.¹ The Commission continues to support the compromise negotiated with the Judiciary. This compromise pool would still adequately address the conflict issues this overall model is designed to address.
- Victims’ Rights At the request of the Commission, an early version of SB 22-201 that enacted initial reforms in the discipline system included a form of “victim’s rights act” for the discipline process. This was stricken from the final bill. The Interim Committee’s proposed legislation includes a new set of authorizations and requirements to assist and inform judicial misconduct complainants and victims.
 - The Commission fully supports the proposed legislation.
 - The Commission also supports repeal of C.R.S. 24-72-402. This statute purports to impose a criminal penalty on any person, including victims of judicial misconduct, breaching the confidentiality of discipline proceedings. Recent case law has cast doubt on the constitutionality of this statute.
 - SB22-201 Disclosure Issue Last year, the General Assembly enacted initial reforms of the discipline process that included information sharing among agencies found, in part, at C.R.S. 13-5.3-105. An issue has arisen with the wording of Subsection (3). The intent was to create a system that did not require OARC to make immediate disclosure of all potential cases to the Commission and, instead, identify allegations but not produce materials unless asked to do so. However, the wording of the statute “the Commission may request further material.” Because the statute does not go on to state that the requested material will be provided, a disagreement has arisen as to whether the statute authorizes anything more than a request. The Commission proposes the language be amended to implement the original intent that responsive materials need not be automatically disclosed but must be disclosed when requested.

¹ The pool was to be further limited to judges that had been retained at least one time and that had not been the subject of a disciplinary proceeding.

- Judicial Misconduct Ombuds The Colorado Coalition Against Sexual Assault (“CCASA”), the Institute for the Improvement of the American Legal System (“IAALS”), and the ILG report recommended to the Interim Committee that an independent ombuds be established to provide a “robust system of safe reporting options” for victims of judicial misconduct to find help and information as well as interact with the judicial discipline system. The judicial misconduct ombuds would also facilitate anonymous reporting of judicial misconduct allegations for the protection of whistleblowers and victims. This judicial misconduct ombuds is separate and distinct from the internal ombuds office being contemplated by the Judicial Department to address personnel issues that do not involve judicial officers. The Interim Committee did not complete a draft bill for the judicial misconduct ombuds, but one is expected during the general session.
 - The Commission fully supports the creation of a judicial misconduct ombuds that will facilitate judicial misconduct complaints and assist complainants as they work their way through the system.
 - The Commission wishes to emphasize that the judicial misconduct ombuds office must be fully independent of the Judicial Department. To create a judicial misconduct ombuds that is answerable, directly or indirectly, to the judiciary recreates the dangers of abuse in our current system illustrated by the victim letter that CCASA read or the information suppression tactics reported by RCT, both described below.
 - The Commission also supports the creation of the judicial misconduct ombuds as a practical means of addressing another problem. As noted below, the public ILG report illustrated that the Judicial Department has not been submitting misconduct complaints to the discipline system. The reforms enacted by SB 22-201 included a duty of disclosure imposed on the Judicial Department. However, that duty has no enforcement mechanism and the Commission continues to encounter difficulties obtaining compliance with that duty. If a truly independent and trusted judicial misconduct ombuds is created, this will limit the ability of the Judicial Department to prevent misconduct complaints from being submitted to the discipline process.

CONCLUSION

The Interim Committee process revealed that Colorado's half-century old system for independent oversight of judicial ethics is falling short of fulfilling its purpose and needs to be updated. The Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline fully supports the proposed legislation and recommendations that have been presented by the Interim Committee. The Commission proposes only the narrowly focused refinements to the legislation as currently drafted.

Please do not hesitate to contact any member of the Commission's legislative subcommittee if we can provide any additional information or insights. The members are Liz Espinosa Krupa (krupae@live.com), Jim Carpenter (jimcarpenter.colorado@gmail.com), Chris Gregory (c.gregory@jd.state.co.us), or David Prince (david.prince@judicial.state.co.us).

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa
Chair, Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline

COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

House Judiciary Committee 3/15/23 Hearing Re: HCR23-1001, HB23-1019, and LLS23-0724

- The Commission supports passage of the Interim Committee’s draft legislation.
- The Commission proposes the following narrow amendments:
 - Simplify the dual path, dual authority rulemaking structure to a single rulemaking committee whose members are representative of the major system stakeholders.
 - If rulemaking is amended, the prior focus on codifying subpoena power is of less importance.
 - Expand the “pool” from which the special court is drawn to provide a statewide as well as rural court perspective. This can be done by implementing the compromise negotiated between the Commission and the Supreme Court to include district court judges.
 - Clarify that both parties to a judicial misconduct case (complainant and judge) have rights of appeal, not just the respondent judge.
 - Repeal the constitutionally suspect C.R.S. 24-72-402 that established criminal penalties for breaching confidentiality.
 - Amend C.R.S. 13-5.3-105(3) to clarify that, once requested by the Commission, records held by an oversight agency related to a claim of judicial misconduct are to be provided to the Commission.
- The Commission strongly supports the Interim Committee’s recommendation that a judicial misconduct ombuds office be established to provide complainants a safe space for reporting judicial misconduct and support through the process. The Commission emphasizes the need for the judicial misconduct ombuds to be fully independent of the Judicial Department to serve its purpose.

Appendix 27(w)(ii)(2)

HCR 23-1001, Amend. L.001;

HCR1001_L.001

HOUSE COMMITTEE OF REFERENCE AMENDMENT

Committee on Judiciary.

HCR23-1001 be amended as follows:

1 Amend printed resolution, page 6, line 5, strike "DISMISSAL," and
2 substitute "DISMISSAL OR DISCIPLINARY ORDER,".

3 Page 7, line 4, strike "COURT OF APPEALS JUDGES" and substitute "JUDGES
4 OF THE COURT OF APPEALS AND DISTRICT COURT".

5 Page 7, line 10, after "ALL" insert "DISTRICT JUDGES AND".

6 Page 7, line 15, after the period insert "A TRIBUNAL MUST NOT INCLUDE
7 MORE THAN ONE MEMBER WHO IS A COURT OF APPEALS JUDGE AND NOT 8 MORE THAN ONE DISTRICT JUDGE FROM ANY ONE JUDICIAL DISTRICT.".

9 Page 10, strike lines 15 through 24 and substitute:

10 "(k) (I) THERE IS CREATED A RULE-MAKING COMMITTEE TO ADOPT
11 RULES FOR THE JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE PROCESS. THE RULE-MAKING
12 COMMITTEE CONSISTS OF THREE MEMBERS APPOINTED BY THE SUPREME 13 COURT, FIVE MEMBERS APPOINTED BY THE ADJUDICATIVE BOARD, AND 14 FIVE MEMBERS APPOINTED BY THE COMMISSION. MEMBERS SERVE AT THE 15 PLEASURE OF THEIR APPOINTING AUTHORITY. THE RULE-MAKING
16 COMMITTEE SHALL ELECT A CHAIR WHO IS A MEMBER OF THE COMMITTEE
17 AND COMMISSION. THE RULES MUST INCLUDE THE STANDARDS AND 18 DEGREE OF PROOF TO BE APPLIED IN JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE".

19 Page 11, line 2, strike "SUPREME COURT" and substitute "RULE-MAKING
20 COMMITTEE".

21 Page 11, line 6, strike "SUPREME COURT" and substitute "RULE-MAKING
22 COMMITTEE".

23 Page 11, line 7, after the period add "RULES PROMULGATED PURSUANT TO 24 THIS SUBSECTION (3)(k)(II) APPLY TO FORMAL PROCEEDINGS INITIATED ON 25 OR AFTER APRIL 1, 2025.".

** *** ** *** **

Appendix 27(x)

Transcript of Hearing on HCR 23-1001, HB 23-1019, and HB 23-1205 before the H. Appropriations Comm., Colo. Leg., March 24, 2023;

House Appropriations Committee—March 24, 2023 Hearing:
HCR 23-1001, HB 23-1019, and HB 23-1205

1 Rep. Sirota

2 We are all here. Thank you for joining us this morning. We have four bills on our agenda. We will start
3 with House Bill 1019, with Representative Weissman and Minority Leader Lynch. Thank you so much
4 for joining us. Members, do you have any questions for bill sponsors? All right, seeing none. Sponsors,
5 do you have any amendments? Okay. Madam Vice Chair.

6

7 Rep. Bird

8 I move amendment, J.001.

9

10 Rep. Velasco

11 Second.

12

13 Rep. Sirota

14 Seconded by Representative Velasco. Any questions, any objection? Seeing none. J.001, is adopted.
15 Committee, any further amendments? Seeing none. The amendment phase is closed. Madam Vice Chair.

16

17 Rep. Bird

18 I move House Bill 1019, as amended, to the Committee of the Whole with a favorable recommendation.

19

20 Rep. Velasco

21 Second

22

23 Rep. Sirota

24 Seconded by Representative Velasco. Any discussion? Seeing none. Mr. Brakke, please call the roll.

25

26 Justin Brakke

27 Representatives, Amabile.

28

29 Rep. Amabile

30 Yes.

31

32 Justin Brakke

33 Bottoms.

34

35 Justin Brakke

36 Bradley.

1
2 Rep. Bockenfeld
3 Yes.
4
5 Justin Brakke
6 Frizell.
7
8 Justin Brakke
9 Boesenecker.
10
11 Rep. Boesenecker
12 Yes.
13
14 Rep. Frizell
15 Yes.
16
17 Justin Brakke
18 Bockenfeld.
19 20 Rep. Bottoms
21 Yes.
22
23 Justin Brakke
24 Herod.
25
26 Rep. Herod
27 Yes.
28
29 Justin Brakke
30 Jodeh.
31
32 Rep. Jodeh
33 Yes.
34
35 Rep. Bradley
36 Yes.
37
38 Justin Brakke
39 Velasco.
40

1 Rep. Velasco

2 Yes.

3

4 Justin Brakke

5 Madam Vice Chair.

6

7 Rep. Bird

8 Yes.

9

10 Justin Brakke

11 Madam Chair.

12

13 Rep. Sirota

14 Yes.

15

16 Rep. Sirota

17 That passes unanimously. You're headed to the Committee of the Whole. I wonder, while we are on this 18 same subject, we might proceed out of order to HCR 23-1001. Since we have the same sponsors here.

19 I'll just give you a second to look at your packet, if you need to rearrange. Members, any questions for 20 the bill sponsors? All right, seeing none. Bill sponsors, any amendments? All right, seeing none.

21 Committee, any amendments? Seeing none. The amendment phase is closed. Madam Vice Chair.

22

23 Rep. Bird

24 I move HCR 1001, to the Committee of the Whole with a favorable recommendation.

25

26 Rep. Sirota

27 I don't know who seconded that. Jodeh, you. She's seconded by Representative Jodeh. Committee, any 28 discussion? All right, seeing none. Mr. Brakke, please call the roll.

29

30 Justin Brakke

31 Representatives, Amabile.

32

33 Rep. Amabile

34 Yes.

35

36 Justin Brakke

37 Boesenecker.

38

39 Rep. Boesenecker

40 Yes.

1
2 Justin Brakke
3 Bottoms.
4
5 Rep. Bottoms
6 Yes.
7
8 Justin Brakke
9 Bradley.
10
11 Rep. Bradley
12 Yes.
13
14 Justin Brakke
15 Frizell.
16
17 Rep. Frizell
18 Yes.
19
20 Justin Brakke
21 Herod.
22
23 Rep. Herod
24 Yes.
25
26 Justin Brakke
27 Jodeh.
28
29 Rep. Jodeh
30 Yes.
31
32 Justin Brakke
33 Velasco.
34
35 Rep. Velasco
36 Yes.
37
38 Justin Brakke
39 Madam Vice Chair.
40

1 Rep. Bird

2 Yes.

3

4 Justin Brakke

5 Madam Chair.

6

7 Rep. Sirota

8 That passes unanimously. That, too, is headed to the Committee of the Whole. Thank you, very much. I

9 think next up we've got House Bill 1205 with minority leader Lynch and Representative Bacon. Though

10 I do not see Representative Bacon. Are you? You're good?

11

12 Rep. Sirota

13 Yes.

14

15 Rep. Lynch

16 I'm good.

17

18 Rep. Sirota

19 Okay. All right. Questions for our bill sponsor, committee? All right. Seeing none. Minority Leader

20 Lynch, do you have any amendments?

21

22 Rep. Lynch

23 No, Madam Chair.

24

25 Rep. Sirota

26 All right. Madam Vice Chair.

27

28 Rep. Bird

29 I move amendment J.001.

30

31 Rep. Amabile

32 Second.

33

34 Rep. Sirota

35 Seconded by Representative Amabile. Any discussion? Any objection? J.001, is adopted. Any further 36 amendments, Committee? Seeing none. The amendment phase is closed. Madam Vice Chair.

37

38 Rep. Bird

39 I move House Bill 1205, as amended, to the Committee of the Whole with a favorable recommendation.

40

1 Rep. Jodeh

2 Second.

3

4 Rep. Sirota

5 Seconded by Representative Jodeh. Committee, any discussion? All right, seeing none. Mr. Brakke, 6 please poll the committee.

7

8 Rep. Amabile

9 Yes.

10

11 Justin Brakke

12 Bockenfeld.

13

14 Justin Brakke

15 Representatives, Amabile.

16

17 Rep. Bockenfeld

18 Yes.

19

20 Justin Brakke

21 Boesenecker.

22

23 Rep. Boesenecker

24 Yes.

25

26 Justin Brakke

27 Bottoms.

28

29 Rep. Bottoms

30 Yes.

31

32 Justin Brakke

33 Bradley.

34

35 Rep. Bradley

36 Yes.

37

38 Justin Brakke

39 Frizell.

40

1 Rep. Frizell

2 Yes.

3

4 Justin Brakke

5 Herod.

6

7 Rep. Herod

8 Yes.

9

10 Justin Brakke

11 Jodeh.

12

13 Rep. Jodeh

14 Yes.

15

16 Justin Brakke

17 Velasco.

18

19 Rep. Velasco

20 Yes.

21

22 Justin Brakke

23 Madam Vice Chair.

24

25 Rep. Bird

26 Yes.

27

28 Justin Brakke

29 Madam Chair.

30

31 Rep. Sirota

32 Yes.

33

34 Rep. Sirota

35 That passes 10 to 1. You are headed to the Committee of the Whole.

36

37 Rep. Lynch

38 Thank you. Madam Chair. Thank you, committee.

39

40

- 1 Rep. Sirota
- 2 Thank you.
- 3

Appendix 27(y)
Hearing on HCR 23-1001, HB 23-1019, and
HB 23-1205 before the S. Judiciary Comm.,
Colo. Leg., April 19, 2023:

Appendix 27(y)(i)

Transcript re: HCR 23-1001
and HB 23-1019;

Senate Judiciary Committee Hearing—April 19,
2023: HCR 23-1001 and HB 23-1019

1 Sen. Gonzales

2 Buenos tardes, good afternoon, everyone. The Senate Judiciary Committee, the friendly, intimate
3 version, will come to order. Ms. Jensen, will you please take attendance?

4

5 Juliann Jenson

6 Senators, Gardner.

7

8 Sen. Roberts

9 Here.

10

11 Juliann Jenson

12 Roberts.

13

14 Sen. Gardner

15 Here.

16

17 Juliann Jenson

18 Van Winkle.

19

20 Sen. Van Winkle

21 Here.

22

23 Juliann Jenson

24 Rodriguez.

25

26 Sen. Gonzales

27 Excused.

28

29 Juliann Jenson

30 Madam Chair.

31

32 Sen. Gonzales

33 Present.

34

35 Sen. Gonzales

36 We do have a number of bills under consideration today, and I will state at the onset that we have gotten 37 to that point in session where we may have members popping in and out to present policies in other

1 committees, and so please do not take that as a sign of our lack of interest or disrespect. It is just that
2 time of year. We do have a number of policies on our calendar for consideration today, and a couple of 3 changes. And, so, we'll first be hearing HCR 23-1001, which is the referred measure. Then, we'll hear
4 House Bill 1019. Then we'll hear House Bill 1205. Then we will hear Senate Bill 282, Jury Appreciation
5 Day. And House Bill 1192 which was on your calendar for action only, I'm gonna lay that guy over one
6 more time to Monday. Ms. Jenson, I appreciate your patience. Thank you for that. So, with that, we're
7 now joined by Senator Rodriguez, Vice Chair. We do have a number of witnesses who will be joining us
8 on this policy and so we will begin. I'll turn over the gavel to Mr. Vice Chair as we're starting with 1001
9 first. So, with that, I will turn it over to Mr. Vice Chair to chair this hearing.

10
11 Sen. Rodriguez

12 Thank you. It's nice not to have a microphone, except for we're always live. So, we're here to hear House 13 Bill 1001 Senator Gonzales, Senator Gardner, who would like to start? Senator Gardner.

14
15 Sen. Gardner

16 Thank you, Mr. Chair. I don't want to take too too long in the introduction of this bill. We have a
17 number of witnesses and policy issues to consider. This bill is the food, if you will, of an interim
18 committee concerning the judicial discipline process in Colorado. It is a concurrent resolution to amend
19 Section 23 of Article VI of the Constitution relating to judicial discipline. Existing law is such that the 20 Commission on Judicial Discipline investigates compliance of judicial conduct, conducts the 21 proceedings and proceedings from there dismiss, impose sanctions, or recommend the Supreme Court
22 impose informal sanctions, or recommend that the Court impose formal sanctions. There's a special
23 master proceeding currently. The resolution starts, excuse me, with clarifying that the Commission's 24 authority, it does have authority to dismiss complaints. Repeals the authority of the Commission to 25 conduct formal judicial disciplinary proceedings, and revises or changes the special masters process that 26 we currently have. It creates an independent adjudicative board to conduct formal proceedings and hear 27 appeals of the Commission's orders on informal sanctions. Significantly, this board is going to be 28 comprised of four judges, four attorneys, four citizens. It prohibits a member of the Commission from 29 being appointed to the board and prohibits a member of the board from being appointed the 30 Commission. The resolution sets standards of review to be used by the Supreme Court when it reviews a
31 panel decision. The resolution also requires a tribunal of seven randomly selected Court of Appeals
32 judges and, as amended, District Court judges to review the panel's decision when the proceeding
33 involves complaint against a Colorado Supreme Court justice. Another significant thing dealt with here
34 is that under existing law, commission proceedings are confidential until the Commission files
35 recommendations with the Supreme Court. The resolution makes those proceedings public at the 36 commencement of formal proceedings and clarifies that appeals to the board of informal remedial
37 sanctions are confidential. That's just kind of a thumbnail sets resolution creates a rulemaking committee
38 to propose rules and notes that the rules of evidence, the Colorado Rules of Evidence and the Rules of 39 Civil Procedure apply to those proceedings. There is, while it is not overly long, there's a lot here to

1 digest, and I'm sure the witnesses will have comment about them, so I'll stop there. Look to my co-prime 2 sponsor for any further comment, and we'll answer questions and proceed on to testimony.

3
4 Sen. Rodriguez

5 Senator Gonzales.

6
7 Sen. Gonzales

8 Thank you, Mr. Chair, and thank you colleagues for your consideration of this concurrent resolution to 9 submit this to the voters of this state. I think we've all seen the headlines. We will recall the bill that was 10 passed last year to establish the judicial discipline interim committee. And many of us were up to our 11 eyeballs in that work over the course of some of the Summer. To really dig in on how best do we update
12 and modify our practices and procedures. And, as a result of that work, we have before us this afternoon, 13 a concurrent resolution and two statutory policies in order to restore trust and ensure that that every 14 Coloradoan, when they come to court, can have a fair day and that everybody is treated with dignity and 15 respect in our Judicial Branch. And so that's the work. And I'm appreciative to my colleague and co-
16 prime, Senator Gardner, for walking through the contours of the concurrent resolution. And think that 17 we have a number of witnesses here who bring a variety of perspectives, having been steeped in this 18 work now for not days, not weeks, not months, but years at this point. And, so, I'm grateful for their 19 service, for their insight, for their perspectives, and want to certainly respond to members of the 20 committee, should you have questions, but also know and recognize that the folks who are here to testify
21 and offer their perspectives will be able to respond quite well to the questions that this committee may 22 have, as well. So, thank you, Mr. Chair.

23
24 Sen. Rodriguez

25 Thank you. Colleagues. Are there any questions for the bill sponsors? I have an order from the sponsors
26 of witnesses to call. The first two I'm going to call up is Chief Justice Boatright and Justice Marquez.
27 Welcome to our little cozy room. It's not quite as formalized. Should we go in order of seniority? Mr.
28 Chief Justice, you're up.

29
30 Chief Justice Boatright

31 All right. Thank you. Thank you both or thank you all for having us. We are here to testify on the House
32 Bill 1001, as you mentioned, and as Senator Gardner said, they're both products of the summer
33 minimum committee. The committee process was robust, included testimony and perspectives of local 34 and national experts, and we are grateful to have a voice in that process. And I believe that we were able 35 to offer constructive suggestions to the Interim Committee. And I'm here to state that we are in support
36 of House Bill, 1001. The concurrent resolution brings us in line with other states. I think we came to 37 realize that we were an outlier with regard to transparency and maybe some of the other procedures. And 38 I think the move to the two-tier discipline structure more clearly defines the prosecutorial function, the 39 hearing function, and the appellate function in the judicial discipline proceedings. We appreciate the 40 work of the Interim Committee. And as I stated at the State of the Judiciary and at the SMART Act

1 hearing, these are just good, common-sense changes to the disciplinary process. And again, we are in
2 support. The House adopted a couple of amendments to the concurrent resolution, and with a couple of 3 modifications, we understand that may be proposed as amendments L.002 and L.003, we are in support
4 of the concurrent resolution. We are in favor of the amendments. One of them is to make the rulemaking
5 committee more balanced. And I think that that is just, again, good common sense. The way that the 6 amendment was made is we would have five people from judicial discipline, which is the equivalent of 7 the prosecution community. There would be three from the tribunal board and three from the Supreme 8 Court. And I don't think that we would set up any type of a committee, rulemaking committee like that,
9 because, first of all, there's not anybody that would be from the defense community or representing the 10 respondent judges. And I think that those need to be added. And I also think just a balance of people on 11 that committee is a good common-sense change. And then the second is, when the Supreme Court
12 recuses. There was an amendment to include District Court judges, which we completely support. We 13 think that that makes sense. The way it's set up right now is it would restrict to one per Judicial District,
14 and I think that just becomes a weighted way of doing it. It should just be truly random. So, we're in 15 support of that amendment, but overall we're in support of this resolution. Thank you for your time. I'm 16 happy to answer any questions.

17

18 Sen. Rodriguez

19 Thank you. Justice Marquez.

20

21 Justice Marquez

22 I have nothing to add on this Bill.

23

24 Sen. Rodriguez

25 Even easier. Welcome to our little, cozy, little committee room. Colleagues, do we have any questions 26 or anything for the judges?

27

28 Sen. Gonzales

29 I want to thank you both for joining us and offering that perspective.

30

31 Sen. Rodriguez

32 It's been nice to have you in the Supreme Court chambers. Senator Gardner.

33

34 Sen. Gardner

35 Thank you. Justice Boatright, Chief Justice Boatright, Justice Marquez. Thank you very much for being 36 here today. Thank you to the Court for what has been a long, arduous, at times for all of us, painful
37 process. I think that's just the nature of something that is this broad in its scope. But I think we're in a
38 very good place. I do just for the Committee's edification, I have the two amendments that Chief Justice
39 referred to, and I think we'll leave it at that. Thank you very much. Appreciate your work, and thank you 40 for what you do on behalf of the people of Colorado.

1 Chief Justice Boatright

2 Thank you.

3

4 Justice Marquez

5 Thank you.

6

7 Sen. Rodriguez

8 All right, next I have up Joe Dawson and Jim Browksi. They're both online. Just Browksi? Okay.

9

10 Sen. Rodriguez

11 Mr. Browksi, if you can hear us, you need to accept the promotion to testify.

12

13 Mr. Browksi

14 Yeah, sorry, I stepped away again. I can hear you. Thanks for calling on me. I appreciate it. Can you 15 please tell me how long you have?

16

17 Mr. Browksi

18 Oh, three minutes. Okay, I better get going. I appreciate everyone here spending the time on this issue.
19 The reason I'm here today is because I've seen the case of a loved one in the family court go just 20 completely sideways. And I think one of the issues here is, I'd say, pretty much no one in their right
21 mind would file a complaint against the judge that's presiding over their case, simply because that judge
22 is in a position to retaliate against them. So I've got a suggestion, or a couple suggestions here. So one
23 would be is I kind of think about the appeals court serving it as a natural kind of check on the district
24 courts. I think one idea you know whereby you could start to investigate you know potential misconduct,
25 would be if a judge has X number of appeals against him in any given year, I think that that should 26 initiate an investigation into him, him or her, and whether or not they're fit to serve as a judge. That way,
27 you know, it's not the person in their court filing a complaint against them. You would then have, you
28 know, experts who are on the appeals court that have actually looked at what the judge did, kind of 29 serving to kick the process off. And, then, also a couple other quick points. I noticed on the makeup of 30 the COJD, you got two district court judges, two county court judges, two attorneys, and four citizens. I
31 think the number of judges on the panel's a bit high. As everyone in the room knows, judges run in the 32 same circles. They're friends with each other. I find a little bit unlikely that they're going to want to fully 33 investigate their colleagues. So, I think there should be more citizens and more attorneys on board. Same
34 thing with the adjudicator board. And then on, let's see, on kind of the appeals review panel board, I
35 notice it's comprised of seven judges, randomly selected. I think if the defendant in the proceeding is a
36 District Court judge, then the process should be set up such that a majority of the judges presiding over
37 the appeal are appeal judges, and then vice versa. I think that you all have done good work, but there are 38 a couple of things you could potentially do to iron out some of the inherent conflicts of interest. I think it 39 would be naive to think the judges are going to be hard on each other. That's all I have. Thanks for the 40 chance.

1 Sen. Rodriguez

2 Three minutes.

3

4 Sen. Rodriguez

5 Thank you, colleagues. Is there any questions for this gentleman? Any comments? Thank you for being
6 here and thank you for your testimony. Next up, I have in person. I have three people. I'm going to call
7 them up. Emma Garrison, David Prince, and Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa. All right, guys who would like 8 to go first? You have three minutes.

9

10 Emma Garrison

11 Thank you. Mr. Chair, members of the committee. My name is Emma Garrison, and I am the President
12 Elect of the Colorado Women's Bar Association. She was not called up with this panel, but one of my 13 colleagues is logging in on zoom from Pueblo. That's Ariana Busby, who's the Co-Chair of our Public
14 Policy Committee. She's been heavily immersed in the specific language of the Bills and conversations
15 with stakeholders, and I'm hoping to have her on hand as phone a friend if there are questions that I may 16 not be able to answer. The CWBA is an organization of over 1500 attorneys and legal professionals with 17 chapters across the state. Our mission is to promote women in the legal profession and the interests of 18 women generally. Our members include judges, judicial law clerks, and staff within the Colorado State
19 Judicial Branch. About 10% of our membership is employed by the Judicial Branch, and hundreds of 20 our members practice before Colorado state courts. We even have a few legislators in our membership.
21 Every year, our Public Policy Committee actively engages with the General Assembly, and we advocate
22 for legislation that promotes and protects the interests of women and children. We are also actively 23 engaged in the Governor's judicial appointment process and conduct due diligence on every short-listed
24 candidate and present endorsement recommendations that take into account the goals of advancing 25 justice, creating a diverse bench, and ensuring fair treatment of women, people of color and other
26 historically marginalized groups. We also create programs and initiatives that support diversity, equity, 27 and inclusion within the legal profession. This Summer, we had the privilege of working closely with 28 Senators Gardner and Gonzales on the judicial discipline interim committee. We submitted research and 29 proposed recommendations that were ultimately condensed into the three bills you will be hearing today.
30 We again want to extend our gratitude for your receptiveness to our recommendations. HCR 23-1001 is 31 an important step in modernizing our judicial discipline process. First, this constitutional amendment 32 would establish an independent adjudicatory board for formal disciplinary hearings or to appeal from 33 informal disciplinary actions of the Commission. This is important because it separates the investigative 34 and the adjudicatory functions of the judicial discipline process. This is consistent with the majority of 35 other states and with the recommendations by IAALS. Additionally, the panel of appellate judges is 36 established to hear recommendations from the Adjudicatory Board of Appeals if they involve Supreme 37 Court justices as a party or witness, and this removes the actual or appearance of any conflicts. The 38 constitutional amendment also makes crucial changes for transparency and communication, and brings 39 Colorado in line with other states to make judicial complaint information public when formal charges
40 commence. Currently, that information is confidential until the conclusion of the case. There's also

1 language that specifies that a victim in a case can be kept updated while the confidential investigation is
2 going on. I see my time is up. I am available for any questions. Thank you again.

3
4 Sen. Rodriguez

5 Thank you. Ms. Espinosa Krupa.

6
7 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

8 Yes, thank you. Good afternoon. My name is Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa. I'm an attorney licensed in the 9 State of Colorado and the Chair of the Commission on Judicial Discipline. We fully support the bill. We 10 have not seen any amendments, so I can't speak to those. I can tell you that we got here from an 11 unprecedented conflict. We have appreciated all of the Interim Committee's time, everyone that's 12 listened to the Commission and the opportunity for a full review of the Commission to help our process
13 be stronger and more transparent, as well. We are very appreciative of the support that we've received 14 and fully support the bill. I will defer any questions on amendments when I know what exactly those are.
15 Thank you.

16
17 Sen. Rodriguez

18 Judge Prince.

19
20 David Prince

21 My name is David Prince. I'm one of the judicial members of the discipline commission, and I serve
22 currently as the Vice Chair. I echo what the two preceding me said about the quality of the interim
23 committee process, the amount of work that's gone into 1001. We on the Commission fully support it. I
24 heard some discussion again, we haven't actually seen amendments. The first I heard the amendments
25 was when Judiciary talked about it a couple of minutes ago. I heard some discussion about the 26 rulemaking body. So, I thought I would just clarify. I think the membership was a little off. There are 27 five members that are appointed by the judiciary. There are five members that are appointed, excuse me,
28 I said that wrong. So, I just said it off. There are five members that are appointed by the adjudicatory
29 board, the new adjudicatory entity. There are five members that are appointed by the Commission, and 30 then there are three members that are appointed by the Judiciary through the Supreme Court. So, that's 31 the mix that is in the existing bill, and I believe that was chosen to make sure that the judges did have 32 representation. So, our understanding is the reason those three members of the Judiciary are on there is 33 to provide that representation of what was called respondent judges a moment ago. The other issue that I
34 heard talked about, again, I'm not familiar with the amendment, but what I heard talked about was in the 35 selection of the judges who serve on the special tribunal. That's the one that kicks in when there's a
36 conflict for the Supreme Court. What I understood was the pending request is that, right now, it's a 37 requirement that no more than one member of that seven-member special tribunal comes from an 38 individual district. And the request was that it be just an open lottery, instead. What are the reasons for 39 the design that it currently has? One, it is an open lottery. It's a random selection, but the limitation of 40 one per district is to try and make sure that there's going to be statewide representation. Because you

1 find in judicial discipline, a very important distinction is that perspective between an urban area and a
2 rural area. And the numbers alone just tell us, if we just do an open lottery with no parameters on it, the 3 odds are it's going to be heavily stacked with large jurisdiction perspective. And we're not likely to see
4 an urban jurisdiction perspective on the court, on the special tribunal. So that's the reasoning for it.
5

6 Sen. Rodriguez

7 Colleagues. Is there any questions? Senator Van Winkle.
8

9 Sen. Van Winkle

10 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Thank you so much for being here today. I'm having flashbacks to last Summer.
11 But I know this is a somewhat of a compromise bill to make everyone mostly happy. If you could just 12 wave a magic wand and get whatever amendment you wanted. Is there one that you have in mind?
13

14 Sen. Rodriguez

15 Anybody you are directing that to?
16

17 Sen. Van Winkle

18 No, no. Would anybody like to answer that?
19

20 Sen. Rodriguez

21 You don't have to.
22

23 David Prince

24 I'm willing to answer. It is excellent, and it is a compromise bill. And would there be differences if we 25 were starting from scratch and I got to draft it myself, or the Commission itself got to draft it? Yeah,
26 there probably would be. The one that strikes me that's the most important is the challenge that the judge
27 members of the Commission are appointed by the Supreme Court. That appointment power is a
28 challenge, and so in my ideal world, you would change that appointment authority. In fact, there was a
29 draft that existed a year ago that had a different approach to that appointment authority. Reason for that 30 is it's a little bit different. Let's say the Governor appoints Ms. Krupa as a member of the Commission.
31 Well, frankly, the Governor has no continuing influence over Ms. Krupa once she's appointed. She's not 32 an employee of the Governor. She doesn't work for some administrative agency that's influenced by the 33 Governor. The judge member's relationship with their appointing authority the Supreme Court is a lot
34 different. They have continuing authority over us, they have authority over dockets. They have authority
35 over staff. They have authority and influence over the performance commission process. They have 36 authority, one of the authorities we saw in the last several months, was that authority over our licenses.
37 They have authority and the ability to influence whether judges get what are considered perquisites in 38 terms of desirable committee assignments and those kinds of things. So, there's a lot of opportunities to 39 apply pressure to a judge member. One of the issues. Actually, I didn't look back at this, but my memory
40 for the judge appointments on the adjudicatory board, remember if this is the final or if it was just one

1 that was considered. But it was actually broken up so that the different groups appointed different
2 categories. So, it wasn't just judges appointing judges. Again, I can't move that's the final, we talked
3 about it. It would be the Judiciary would appoint a citizen, a lawyer and a judge and the Governor's
4 office, I suppose, but a representative, maybe of the legislative branch would appoint a citizen, a judge, a
5 lawyer, a representative of the Executive Branch would appoint not just executive folks. I'm winding
6 down and getting a little confused at this point. But if I could wave my magic wand, the one thing I
7 would do would improve the appointment authority, so that you insulate the members of the 8 Commission from undue pressure or undue influence. And I think we have seen some history of that, so 9 it's not just an academic issue.

10
11 Sen. Van Winkle

12 Thank you very much, and I appreciate that.

13
14 Sen. Rodriguez

15 Thank you. Colleagues, any other questions for this panel? Thank you guys for the work you did.
16 Senator Garner.

17
18 Sen. Gardner

19 Thank you, not a question, but just in the same way, I want to thank the Commission, Judge Prince, Ms.
20 Krupa, Mr. Gregory, all of you members, as well as the Women's Bar, for your participation and going 21 down the road with us, if you will, in this process. And I think, as I said, I think it's been long, it's been 22 arduous. It's been very important. It has been painful for all of us, at times, all of us. And I think that's 23 just the nature of change in the process. I don't think there's anything. What I mean by that, other than so
24 many times when we do things that are that are hard work, and make tough choices, tough decisions it
25 requires a great deal of reflection. So thank you very much, and we appreciate it, and whatever minor
26 refinements we do or don't do. I think we've got a great product here and it's because of everyone's 27 participation. Thank you.

28
29 Sen. Rodriguez

30 Thank you guys for your work on the panel and for being here. All right, next I'm going to call up. I 31 have two more, Ariana Busby and Alison Connaughty. They're both remote.

32
33 Emma Garrison

34 So, Alison is actually not here. She signed up to tag me out in case this hearing ended up going well into 35 the evening.

36
37 Sen. Rodriguez

38 But we have Ms. Busby. It's all you Ms. Busby.

39
40

1 Ariana Busby

2 Hi Senators. Thank you for having me. Ariana Busby on behalf of the Women's Bar Association. Alison
3 Connaughty, is also on behalf of the women's Bar Association, and we're just available for questions.

4

5 Sen. Rodriguez

6 Great. Any questions? Shows all the work you guys did in the Interim. Thank you for being here. We 7 have no questions. Is there anybody in online or in the audience that would like to testify on the bill?
8 Please proceed up here.

9

10 Sen. Rodriguez

11 Good afternoon.

12

13 Sen. Rodriguez

14 Come on down. You'll have three minutes. Introduce yourself.

15

16 Deborah Carroll

17 It's really hard to hear when there's no microphone in here. So, it's difficult to be able to catch everybody 18 who's not speaking clearly.

19

20 Sen. Gardner

21 The microphone is that little green light in front of you.

22

23 Deborah Carroll

24 This one here?

25

26 Deborah Carroll

27 Okay, well, they weren't sitting there. All right. My name is Deborah Carroll. I testified two times to the 28 Interim Committee, and my message is really, you know, I keep being told by everybody, focus on the 29 bill. Focus on the bill. But I don't think focusing on the bill is the point. I think focusing on the culture
30 and the protections that the Supreme Court has woven around itself in its own writing, of its own 31 support, in its bills and all of its judicial officials coming forward to support what they're doing is the 32 real issue. I think the State is hiding a lot of secrets. And I want to let you know that I presented to the 33 legislative hearing committee about four or five years ago. I'm old. I'm still working. I still go to court. I
34 should have gone to a court hearing today for a mom whose four-year-old daughter told the principal
35 that her mother slapped her 20 times in the face. And the kid can't even count to 20. Let that sink in. And 36 they took more pictures. And she has a hearing today for pretrial, and she's never been arraigned. She's 37 never been told she has a right to a jury. There's serious problems with our system of governance. And 38 in that hearing that I presented, I handed the memorandum of procedures commissioned by this 39 Colorado Supreme Court, which pays for the all the Guardians ad litem in their Office of the Child

1 whatever. The memorandum of procedures returns a child to a parent with history of sexual abuse
2 against the child, if the parent admits to it.

3

4 Sen. Rodriguez

5 Yes.

6

7 Sen. Rodriguez

8 Ma'am, you need to address the bill.

9

10 Deborah Carroll

11 Yeah, right. Let's worry about proper procedure. I don't know if you people have hearts or souls, if you
12 are going to stand up for this. This is more protection for judges. I've got to put my glasses on so I can 13 read my notes. They're disciplined in private. They control the investigations. They control the privilege.
14 They don't give subpoenas. They use the laws to protect themselves. That's all I really have to say. I 15 don't need any more time.

16

17 Sen. Rodriguez

18 Thank you for your testimony. Does anybody have any questions? Alright, please come up. I don't know 19 if we got you the link, but we do need you to sign up so we have your names on record for the 20 testimony.

21

22 Halina Topa

23 I took a picture, and I'm 69. I'm a baby boomer, and I still use the rotary dial, you know. Have some 24 mercy. Thank you. My name is Helena Topa, Excuse me, I have to have some water. Four children died
25 last year, and hundreds are suffering. Nazi Germany is not the time and a place, but attitude and 26 experience. Both of my parents were Nazi fighters. My mother was shot by Nazis on three different 27 occasions, and one occasion, a Nazi officer saved her life. My daughter recently was asked by United 28 Nations to be a leader in global development of resilience, the certification from Desert and 29 infrastructure. So kudos to me, because in the end, is how your mother raised us. My son mutilated
30 himself in his father's custody, there's no place to go. Jeff Timlin, Judge. KJ Moore, Chris Bassinet,
31 Doris Waters, there's nobody. There is nobody here. Okay, I being Polish. I heard a lot of Polish jokes,
32 and the only thing I can come up to, because I recently went to Poland that that I'm dumbfounded, not 33 dumb. Okay, this is what is happening in this country when it comes to children. There's no trial for 34 divorces. There's no trial for CPS, trial by jury for CPS and for parents accused of child abuse. There's 35 no. One doesn't have to be stupid. One has to be evil in order not to understand that in a in a contest of 36 intimate relationship, it's a breeding ground for human trafficking. Human trafficking is to enticing
37 somebody. So there are gold diggers. In case of women. In my case, there was a gold digger and baby
38 chaser. I was sexually assaulted. Littleton police, your only just a woman. I'm not just a woman, the 39 whole, the whole Constitution of United States, by the way, I graduated from Ivy League sort of high
40 school, and I knew Polish Constitution, which American Constitution was fashioned after the Polish

1 Constitution. This is kind of my story. But this is a shame. This is, this is not stupid. This is not
2 oversight. You have judges, and they're flying monkeys. Like, why is Jeff Timlin still working when my
3 son have self mutilated himself in the father's fathers? You know, we don't call them fathers. They are
4 rapists and there are fathers, okay, there's a difference. But I don't think that so Rice is still working. I
5 read a little poem, America, the beautiful. In America, a country that is great. You've got it made my 6 dearest mate for everything here is for sale. You can even steal a child. If you are a male, find a girl and 7 love you pretend, tell him some stories of honorable intent. There was a little, you know, but I'm not
8 going to say that we actually it was, do not ask you for logic, for this is no China. Just say you
9 accidentally fall into her vagina. To have honor, courage, responsibility, you don't have to bother for 10 whatever you do or don't. They'll call your father. This is America. You are free to choose. You can 11 indulge in all kinds of abuse, financially, physically, physically, sexually and legally. Don't worry, you
12 will not be judged criminally. And you know for sure that you are a master if you and you know for 13 sure, you are a master. If you put her in position.

14
15 Sen. Rodriguez
16 You need to kind of wrap up, you have exceeded your three minutes.

17
18 Halina Topa
19 Okay, it's another five minutes, and you're gonna get a point. That's about the point, right? Okay, I'm 20 sorry, yes, okay, whether she stays or go with you, for the life she has to choose is the life of hardship or 21 life of abuse. And if you want to be really cute. You can throw a custody suit. American police and 22 American tribute Tribunal will not bring to justice the criminal. For they say you had the relation,
23 therefore they pretend not to see the experimentation, to comfortably bring the victim home and hide
24 these crimes under domestic problems down. They take Nazi favor or crime, but for you Auschwitz, you
25 get no dime. Shame on us all, there are children suffering. And here's my goal for all of you.

26
27 Sen. Rodriguez
28 Thank you. We'll put it in the record. Is there any questions?

29
30 Halina Topa
31 Let's put it to the heart, because we are just below caveman.

32
33 Sen. Rodriguez
34 Thank you for your testimony. Is there anybody else online or here would like to testify? Seeing none, 35 the testimony phase is concluded. Sponsors, are there any amendments? Senator Gonzales.

36
37 Sen. Gonzales
38 Thank you, Mr. Chair. I think the testimony that we've heard today, I think demonstrates the breadth and 39 the breadth of perspectives, and also the result of a lot of work that this committee has taken over the 40 course of many, many months, I understand that there are amendments that have been drafted. But

1 because I do want to make sure that all parties have the opportunity to review the amendments. And
2 because I do see these, I think we see these as a package, as well. It's our intent today to lay over the 3 bills, hear testimony, and then make sure that everyone is able to review the proposed amendments. So
4 that prior to us voting on what this what these amendments may be, so that as they head to the floor, that
5 all parties have had the opportunity. We're in a different room, and so it's a little different for all of us.
6 So that's all. Mr. Chair.

7

8 Sen. Rodriguez

9 So, there are no amendments?

10

11 Sen. Gonzales

12 Mr. Chair, we're gonna lay the bill over.

13

14 Sen. Gardner

15 We would request you lay the bill over until Monday's meeting of the Judiciary Committee.

16

17 Mr. Browski

18 What is that date?

19

20 Juliann Jenson

21 The 24th.

22

23 Sen. Rodriguez

24 The 24th. Okay, the bill, as requested by the sponsor, will be laid over till the 24th, on Monday. All 25 right, sorry, I got sidetracked with the technology.

26

27 Sen. Gonzales

28 Thank you.

29

30 Sen. Rodriguez

31 So, the next bill we have up is our concurrent resolution. No, no, that's what we just did. House Bill 32 1019. Senator Gardner or Senator Gonzales, who would like to start?

33

34 Sen. Gonzales

35 Thank you, Mr. Chair. So, the first policy that we considered is a concurrent resolution that would 36 submit a constitutional amendment to the voters of the State of Colorado. House Bill 1019, makes the 37 accompanying statutory changes to the policy. I'm sorry, that accompany, I guess I should say, the 38 concurrent resolution. And let me just state that this is also the result of the Interim Committee's work
39 that requires the rulemaking committee to propose rules for the Commission on Judicial Discipline and 40 promulgates another set of rules, as well. This is, as you can see, the result of iterative, multiple

1 conversations. And I will also note that for the record, our colleagues in the House, even following that 2 work, made amendments. Because we are trying to, again, be thoughtful and intentional as we are
3 bringing forward this policy for this committee's consideration today. I'll turn it over to my co-prime 4 sponsor to add on any additional comments that he wishes to share at this point.

5
6 Sen. Rodriguez

7 Senator Gardner.

8
9 Sen. Gardner

10 Thank you, Mr. Chair and members of the committee. As Madam Chair has stated, this is the companion
11 statutory component of the House Concurrent Resolution. It is an implementing bill in that sense. It sets
12 up a process for the rulemaking surrounding the judicial discipline process. It establishes a committee to 13 propose rules to the Commission and Judicial Discipline Adjudicative Board. And, as was mentioned,
14 there were some refinements in the House, but it still closely tracks what came out of the Interim
15 Committee. I do not know of any amendments to House Bill 1019, at this time, and it seems that the 16 implementing bill has less concern or less disagreement remaining. So, we ask for an aye vote on House
17 Bill 1019.

18
19 Sen. Rodriguez

20 Senators, questions for the sponsor? Senator Van Winkle.

21
22 Sen. Van Winkle

23 Yes, Mr. Chair. And I am very familiar with the bill that came out of the interim committee. Did the 24 house make any dramatic changes or belts and suspenders?

25
26 Sen. Gardner

27 I'm trying to remember the sequencing of this. That it did end up with a combined rulemaking process. I
28 don't know that that's dramatic. But I think it's fair to say that when we finished the interim committee,
29 we had some things that we all knew needed refinement and further discussion. But I wouldn't say 30 there's anything dramatic.

31
32 Sen. Van Winkle

33 Thank you.

34
35 Sen. Gonzales

36 Thank you, Mr. Chair. I agree with Senator Gardner's perspective on the amendments that the House
37 Judiciary Committee made. They appear to me to be refinement, as opposed to a dramatic departure 38 from the work of our interim committee. Certainly would welcome from anyone who's here to testify, if 39 their perspective departs from our impressions as the sponsors of the policy. But I think we've all been 40 really trying to ensure that this is practicable and workable for all parties involved. I will also just state

1 for the record that we are joined by the Chief Justice and Justice Marquez, who have not signed up to
2 testify but are in support of the policy. And at this point, if there are no further questions from members
3 of the committee, we welcome the testimony portion of the hearing.

4
5 Sen. Rodriguez

6 Any other questions for the sponsors, colleagues? All right, seeing none. I've got a few remote. I'll call
7 up smaller groups based on the seating arrangement in here. But I have one person, in person, Wendy
8 Sellers. And then I have 1,2,3 online, which are Jenny Dees, Kelly Havilland and Andrew Lip. They are 9 online.

10
11 Sen. Rodriguez

12 Is Wendy Sellers?

13
14 Juliann Jenson

15 No. No Andrew lip.

16
17 Sen. Rodriguez

18 No Andrew Lip. Wendy Sellers, in here, in person? No Wendy Sellers, all right. Jenny Dees, do we have 19 Jenny Dees? There we go. Ms. Dees, can you hear us? Nope you're muted.

20
21 Jenny Dees

22 Okay, can you hear me?

23
24 Sen. Rodriguez

25 We can hear you. Please introduce yourself and who you represent. You have three minutes of 26 testimony.

27
28 Jenny Dees

29 Okay. I'm Jennifer Dees, and I'm here representing myself and many other parents that have dealt with 30 the Judiciary. Each of you have received an email, each of you representatives have received an email
31 with the transcripts that I highlighted and a copy of the emails from the Commission on Judicial 32 discipline. So each of you should have these already. I have learned that. There is no oversight in the 33 Colorado courts whatsoever. Every complaint that is filed with the Attorney Regulation Commission or 34 the Commission on Judicial Discipline is closed without investigation. And I have multiple cases that I
35 can show you. In March 2022, Jeffco Judge Sergeant tampered with my jury for protection order
36 violation for sending an email about my child to a court ordered email address. On a protection order
37 that was never served, and all the court records proved this. Judge Sargent felt appropriate to answer the 38 jury's questions during jury deliberations without the defense or the prosecution or myself there, as the 39 law demands. Judge Sargent answered all the jury's questions and never turned in the written jury
40 questions for the record, for the appeal. Judge Sargent was arrogant enough to admit to tampering with

1 the jury the next day, on the record, after the jury came back guilty. This is because every judge in
2 Colorado knows they can commit fines and violate our rights at will, and no one, absolutely no one will
3 hold them accountable, especially our legislature. Right after my complaints were closed by the 4 Commission on Judicial Discipline, Judge Sergeant put in for retirement, but not before staying on my 5 case to tamper with my jury. In the same the same sentence where he refused to recuse off my case, he
6 admitted he had hostility for me, and that's in your transcript, when I filed a complaint for tampering
7 with the jury with the Commission with all the transcripts. The judicial commission sent this back to me,
8 and it says, Mr. Gregory, Executive Director of the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline mailed
9 you a letter in January of 2022. Mr. William Campbell, who was the prior director, issued your letter
10 March of 21. There will be no further action taken on your request, your cases is considered closed by 11 our office. They didn't care to investigate, and I just listened to Justice Boatright claim that they want
12 transparency, yet he's covering for William Hood, who is a Justice on the Colorado Supreme Court with 13 him, who has been bartering and pandering to you legislators personally to get these laws passed. Justice
14 Hood is controlling all the judges on the lower court like a puppet. He is coming to you to protect 15 himself. There are motions in the appellate court right now on Hood's orders where he kidnaps my child
16 under color of law. All these judges continue to cover for him. In 10 years, they not granted one hearing,
17 not one. Every motion I file in the Denver Court has been similarly denied, even when my ex doesn't 18 respond. These judges have violated my due process and my children's due process, and to have the 19 Supreme Court part of any of these commissions is going to be a failure. I have already served Justice
20 Hood and the State and other judges with data preservation litigation notices and notice of claims.
21 They've all been served. They know this is going federal. And I think that the representatives you all to 22 start looking into this more and investigate.

23

24 Sen. Rodriguez

25 Ms. Dees, I need you to wrap up.

26

27 Jenny Dees

28 Well, I was just about done when you cut me off. But thank you. None of you have been willing to reach
29 out, even though I've sent multiple emails. I have called your offices. The only one that would reach out
30 was Lynch, so I appreciate him. But none of the rest of you are willing to talk to your constituents at all 31 about this, and that's why this will continue until you do.

32

33 Sen. Rodriguez

34 Thank you for your testimony. Colleagues, do we have any questions for Ms. Dees? Seeing none, thank 35 you Ms. Dees for being here and for your testimony. Ms. Havilland, can you hear us?

36

37 Kelly Havilland

38 I can, thank you.

39

40

1 Sen. Rodriguez

2 Please introduce yourself. You have three minutes please proceed to testimony.

3

4 Kelly Havilland

5 Hello. I'm Kelly Havilland. I am the grandmother of a child in Colorado. We've been involved with 6 court, and as you can tell from a lot of the parents, there's been a lot of harm done, a lot. And I will tell
7 you that when I read this and testified previously, I can see that there's been edits which don't meet
8 people friendly on 23-1205, it says that only judicial personnel can report to the judicial ombudsman. So
9 I'm not sure where the disconnect happens, but it needs to happen for everybody. I also would like to see
10 a timeframe included into these actions. There is a very small window of when you need help from some 11 judicial misconduct or whatever is happening. You need help by sending there. It's not something that 12 you can just let it slide and the child get removed for no reason or for an age event or anything, and the 13 child get harmed. The relation gets behind. And then parents are put into situations where they can't 14 afford to file and wait five years and hire for a state case or an appeals case. Like people just cannot 15 afford that. I will tell you that in my personal case, I was vetted by Natalie Chase in 2017 and 18. In 16 2020, Arapahoe County lied to Natalie Chase. Those are all kinds of stories. Lied about what my 17 TRAILS report consisted of. Natalie Chase ignored me. Natalie Chase, was removed off of her chair,
18 and she was an attorney. I called Natalie Chase, and she says, Oh, my God, you actually had a copy of 19 the CPS report that has all of that information. Well, yes, why do you think I intervened like my rights 20 were completely, completely decimated, and there was no way, no way to stop what was happening.
21 And you know, it is now a part of a class action lawsuit against Colorado Department of Human or 22 Arapahoe County Department of Human Services. Like just the fraud happening, the people need a way
23 to stop it in its tracks. Ask for help. Get the help. Whatever that help consists of, it needs to be able to 24 happen right then and there. Not five years down road. Thank you so much, and I appreciate every one 25 of you.

26

27 Sen. Rodriguez

28 Thank you. Colleagues. Is there any questions for Ms. Havilland? Seeing none, thank you both for your 29 testimony.

30

31 Sen. Rodriguez

32 Is there anybody else that wants to speak in amend or opposition to the bill online or in person? Alright,
33 I am moving. I'm getting to that now. And the way I messed up last time is to separate you. I'm just 34 gonna try to keep you a group. So, I'm going to call up Judge David Prince and Elizabeth Espinosa 35 Krupa. Who would like to start?

36

37 David Prince

38 Apparently, I'm starting. I introduced myself a moment ago. David Prince, Vice Chair of the Colorado
39 Commission on Judicial Discipline. I just reiterate that the interim process was thorough. The House
40 Judiciary Committee hearing was also very thorough and extensive. I agree with the characterization

1 that there were a few iterations, a few refinements, I think is the word I was looking for. A few
2 refinements. Other than that, we fully support 1019, and are here to answer any questions.

3
4 Sen. Van Winkle

5 Ms. Espinosa Krupa.

6
7 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

8 I would just say ditto.

9
10 Sen. Rodriguez

11 Colleagues, do we have any questions for this panel on the process? Sen. Gonzales.

12
13 Sen. Gonzales

14 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Not a question, just an expression of gratitude for all of your participation and 15 diligence over this very long process. Thank you.

16
17 David Prince

18 I appreciate all your work too.

19
20 Sen. Rodriguez

21 Okay, trying not to make the mistake I made on the last panel. I have Emma Garrison, Ariana Busby
22 online. And is Alison Connaughty not here again?

23
24 Emma Garrison

25 Alison's not here.

26
27 Sen. Rodriguez

28 Okay, so if you and Ms. Busby. Try to pair it up correctly,

29
30 Emma Garrison

31 Thank you so much for your attention to that detail. Again. I'm Emma Garrison. I am the president elect 32 of the Colorado Women's Bar Association. And HB 23-1019 is another bill that we were fortunate to 33 work on in the interim process this Summer. This bill allows an individual to submit a judicial discipline
34 complaint online and also to file a complaint anonymously. It really modernizes our judicial discipline
35 process. This bill also brings us in line with states like New York that have searchable online data
36 available regarding judicial discipline and. Sorry, and in line with other licensed professionals like we 37 have for attorneys with Attorney Regulation and healthcare providers through the Department of 38 Regulatory Agencies. One thing that we heard throughout the interim committee process was that 39 complainants did not always understand how the process worked and that there was a lack of 40 communication once a complaint was filed. So, this bill would require that the Commission provide

1 information about the process to a complainant, including the ability to make their complaint
2 anonymous, to assign to point person for regular status updates on their case, and to provide an
3 explanation if their case is dismissed due to lack of jurisdiction. That last part can be particularly helpful
4 for complainants, because we know from the data that's available that many complaints received are non 5 jurisdictional and are related to things like disappointment over a judge's findings. And explaining 6 something like this to a complainant who may be a pro se party, enables them to understand their other
7 options, like filing an appeal. So we believe that this bill greatly improves access to the Commission and 8 a potential complainant's comfort when engaging in the process. Paired with the ombudsman bill, which 9 is proposed in the next bill we'll be discussing, we're thrilled to see a proposal that's so victim centric
10 while also being geared towards public access and transparency. We thank you again, and we're 11 available for any questions.

12

13 Sen. Rodriguez

14 Thank you. Ms. Busby, can you hear us?

15

16 Ariana Busby

17 Yes, I can hear you.

18

19 Sen. Rodriguez

20 You're up.

21

22 Ariana Busby

23 Hi again. Thank you so much for having us. Ariana Busby on behalf of the Women's' Bar Association.
24 We have Emma there in person. I am here for any questions. So, ask away if there's anything that comes 25 up.

26

27 Sen. Rodriguez

28 Thank you very much. Colleagues, is there any questions for this panel? Seeing none, thank you guys
29 for being here. We'll probably see you on the next bill. All right, I think I have Dr. Malia Reddick.

30

31 Malia Reddick

32 Malia.

33

34 Sen. Rodriguez

35 Malia, sorry. Welcome to the Judiciary Committee. Please introduce yourself, who you represent, and 36 you will have three minutes.

37

38 Malia Reddick

39 Mr. Chair, members of the committee, thank you for the opportunity to testify before you today. My 40 name is Malia Reddick, and I'm the Director of Research at the Office of Respondent Parents' Counsel.

1 I'm here to support HB 23-1019, and I also want to make a few comments on HCR 23-1001. In 2 Federalist Number 78, Alexander Hamilton wrote that the judiciary has no influence over either the 3 sword or the purse. What he meant was that courts and judges lack the authority to enforce their own
4 decisions. For acceptance of and compliance with those decisions, they rely on the public's trust in their
5 legitimacy and integrity. Colorado's Judiciary has come under the microscope in the last few years, and I
6 think it's fair to say that public faith in our state courts has been compromised. The bills this committee
7 is considering today come at just the right time. Members of the public, and especially individual
8 litigants, need to know that judges are held to the highest ethical standards, that the process for doing so
9 is impartial, and that they can participate in the process in a way that feels safe to them. HB 23-1019
10 addresses these needs. In particular, it brings significantly more transparency to the process for 11 investigating complaints of judicial misconduct. This increased transparency will enhance the public's 12 confidence in the impartiality and integrity of the process. It is for this reason that the ORPC urges the 13 committee to vote yes on 1019. The ORPC supports HCR 23-1001, as well. And in particular, the 14 amendment made by the House of Representatives that vests rulemaking authority for the judicial 15 discipline process in a committee, rather than solely in the state Supreme Court. This would bring 16 Colorado in line with 22 other states, many of which are our Western neighbors. We would make two 17 suggestions regarding the jurisdictional scope of the Commission on Judicial Discipline and the 18 selection of its members. From the ORPC's perspective, including magistrates in the Commission's 19 jurisdiction would provide more consistency in enforcing judicial ethics rules. This is relevant to our 20 agency, because magistrates often hear dependency and neglect cases, and we believe ethical standards
21 for these judges should be consistently enforced. In addition, as Judge Prince mentioned, vesting the 22 selection of the judge members of the judicial discipline commission in entities other than the Supreme 23 Court would enhance the integrity and impartiality of the judicial discipline process in the eyes of the 24 public. There are 18 states that use a different selection process for the judge members of the 25 commission than we currently do in Colorado. There are 13 states, including Wyoming and Washington, 26 where the Supreme Court has no involvement in selecting the judge members or any members of the 27 Judicial Discipline Commission. Thank you for your time today, members of the committee, I'm happy 28 to answer any questions.

29

30 Sen. Rodriguez

31 Thank you. Colleagues, do we have any questions on this testimony? Thank you for your testimony.

32

33 Malia Reddick

34 Thank you so much.

35

36 Sen. Rodriguez

37 I believe that concludes who I have signed up to testify. Or is there anybody online? Nobody online?
38 Anybody in the audience who would like to testify? That concludes the testimony phase. Sponsors or 39 Senator Gonzalez.

40

1 Sen. Gonzales

2 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Again, because we think that this, these policies should be considered as a
3 package of bills. We would request that this bill be laid over to Monday, as well, along with the other 4 bill.

5
6 Sen. Rodriguez

7 Senator Gardner.

8
9 Sen. Gardner

10 Thank you, Mr. Chair. And before you do, and I assume you will. In light of the testimony today, I 11 wanted to make some comments before we lay it over. First of all, the judges and lawyers who have 12 appeared before us today have belied the myth that lawyers are verbose. I think it's only lawyer
13 legislators that are verbose because they have been brief and to the point with their testimony.

14
15 Sen. Van Winkle

16 You should be like them.

17
18 Sen. Gardner

19 I do want to say that having appeared in the courts of the state and before the judges and Senator Roberts
20 is the other among us who has that privilege. I leave the courthouse sometimes very happy with the 21 outcome that I get. I leave the court sometimes very unhappy with the outcome that I've gotten. As often 22 as not, I leave it with mixed feelings. Turns out, it's not a lot different than leaving committee here in the 23 Colorado Legislature. But in my professional career, I have universally believed and see that our 24 Judiciary in Colorado is of the highest quality.

25
26 Halina Topa

27 Please, please. I need to leave.

28
29 Sen. Gardner

30 Withstanding the testimony. Again, whether I agree with the particular ruling and so forth. That we have 31 a Judiciary that is characterized by its honesty, its integrity, its forthrightness and its willingness to rule
32 according to the law and in accord with due process. Again, I don't purport that they're perfect. I don't 33 purport that out of the, I think 300 plus, that they're just as with any other institution or legislator, that 34 there may be some outliers. But I have been in the past several weeks, grateful, as a Coloradoan that we 35 have the judiciary we have appointed with a process that is not subject to politics, is not subject to the 36 whims of the day. And our efforts and the efforts of the bench and the Commission on Judicial 37 Discipline, I think all of us has been to ensure that same kind of culture going forward. I think we have 38 work to do. What has impressed me is that the bench itself, as has the Commission, has been committed 39 to that work and committed to that discussion. So with that, I renew our request to lay the bill over, and 40 then we'll go to the more difficult bill in that process. Thank you. For your indulgence, Mr. Chair.

1

2 Sen. Rodriguez

3 Thank you. At the sponsor's request, the bill will be laid over to match the concurrent resolution. So, the 4 next bill is 1205. Sponsors.

5

6 Sen. Gonzales

7 Yes, for this one, it might make sense to ping the Majority Leader as a co-sponsor? Yes, we'll stand in a 8 brief senatorial five in order to.

9

10 Sen. Gardner

11 Retrieve the Majority Leader.

12

13 Sen. Gonzales

14 Yeah, our prime sponsor.

Appendix 27(y)(ii)

Transcript re: HB 23-1205;

Senate Judiciary Committee Hearing—April 19, 2023: HB 23-1205

1 Sen. Gonzales

2 Following our senatorial 90 seconds, we will come back. And at this point, we'll take up the third bill on 3 our docket today, House Bill 1205, the Office of Judicial Ombudsman. This is a policy that also was 4 initially contemplated, although was not a referred policy from our judicial discipline interim committee
5 process. And with that, I will turn it over to Senator Gardner to tell us about this bill, as it stands now 6 here today.

7
8 Sen. Gardner

9 Thank you, Madam Chair, it's not often that the Majority Leader says you can proceed without me,
10 Senator Gardner.

11
12 Sen. Gonzales

13 You've got to take the joy we you can.

14
15 Sen. Gardner

16 I'm going to run with it. So, House Bill 1205, as Madam Chair noted, did not as a product come out of 17 the Interim Committee. Rather, it was a concept. And I think that that reflected the fact that everyone on 18 the committee believed that there was a good deal more work to be done on this concept of the Office of 19 Judicial Ombudsman, as an independent office in the Commission. But it's here now. The whole bill, to 20 some extent, is a work in progress. And if you look at the summary, it's somewhat different than the bill
21 as it's gone through the process. The Ombudsman is going to be an independent, impartial, neutral,
22 confidential resource for the organization. The bill creates that office, and I guess I would say right now,
23 the Office of the Ombudsman means the Office of the Judicial Discipline Ombudsman. And the process
24 is that the independent Office of the Judicial Discipline Ombudsman is an independent agency for 25 purpose of ensuring the greatest protections for judicial personnel. I think there's some controversy 26 around how we scope out the duties or the purview of the office. But it will act independently and 27 neutrally. And there should be, there's a memorandum of understanding and appointments of various 28 people. Because it is a work in progress, I think I'll stop right there. Rather than put stakes in the ground,
29 to be quite honest with you, and take any questions about the concept as I understand it. And I will say
30 the Majority Leader may have different notions, as well. I know Madam Chair and I have had 31 discussions about it, and we opted to take testimony to get a sense of what our constituents in the public
32 feel about the bill. As well as the most certainly the Judicial Department and the Commission on Judicial 33 Discipline. So, I'll stop right there. If it seems somewhat tentative in my remarks, it's because that that 34 reflects where we are with this bill.

35
36 Sen. Gonzales

37 Thank you, Senator Gardner, colleagues. Do you have questions for our bill sponsor about the policy? I
38 think Senator Gardner, I will step back and recall my time, prior to my service in the Legislature, as a

1 paralegal. When people, either in my life or in the course of my work at the law office, would ask me,
2 Hey, I want to tell you about this situation that happened. And as a paralegal, like I'm not an attorney,
3 I'm not going to give anybody legal advice as to what they can or should do, or what they can or cannot
4 do, right? It was, Oh, here is the resource if you want to go and lodge a complaint. Here is where you
5 would go and do that, or here is where you would go and navigate this process, or here is this resource.
6 Whether you go and do that, that is your decision. That is one approach. Another approach would be to 7 say, here is the resource. Now, what is your name, and when did the incident happen? And how can I
8 help you to navigate and fill out this complaint? And then, you know, work alongside you as that 9 process unfolds. Be the decision in the case adjudicated as it may be, I am here to accompany you
10 through this process. I am curious for your perspective because I think the language of the bill. I read it
11 to be not entirely clear as to which process this Office would seek to establish. And I'm curious for your 12 thoughts, or if you have any direction or guidance, and what it should be.

13

14 Sen. Gardner

15 Thank you, Madam Chair. Well, my own thought about the Office of Judicial. And I'm a little troubled
16 by the use of the wording that comes to us from the House of "judicial discipline ombudsman." I think 17 it's more like "judicial ombudsman," because it seems to imply that this has to do with the Commission, 18 when in fact, the rest of the language in the bill is talking about protections for judicial personnel. Those 19 of us on the committee are familiar with the Office of Legislative Workplace Harassment, which is our 20 own, not really an HR function, but I may have said that wrong. The Office of Legislative Workplace
21 Relations. That provided an independent office, as independent as it could be, but within our Branch, for 22 legislators, staff, partisan staff, nonpartisan staff, aides, interns, for that matter, anyone who encounters
23 folks within the Legislative Branch to go and say that they have a potential complaint, they have a
24 concern. The structure of that Office is such that they take compliance about both workplace
25 harassment, discrimination, and so forth, as well as under a different set of rules and guidelines. Simple 26 civility in the workplace. I shouldn't say simple but straightforward, people not being courteous. They 27 may be discourteous on an equal opportunity basis, but that's not a good place to work. I have always 28 conceived of this as something along those lines, rather than something along the lines of being a part of 29 the judicial discipline process. Because within the Judicial Department, it may be a judge. But given the 30 raw numbers of people, it could just as likely be a probation supervisor, a court administrator, a 31 supervising clerk, any number of people who might be the subject of a complaint, or, for that matter, that 32 the person who has a concern. One of the areas of disagreement about this bill has been where this 33 would be housed. The bill right now, as I understand, where we are coming out of the House, is that it
34 will be an independent office in the Judicial Branch. I have been strongly opposed, since you asked and 35 we're talking, And transparency being the rule of the day, we'll just talk about it right here. I have been 36 opposed to the notion that it would be in some Executive Branch Agency. I think that presents both 37 separation of powers issues as well as a simple institutional organizational adoption and buy in of the 38 process. Judicial has expressed to me support for an ombudsman of some sort. And I think a lot of the 39 discussion that we've had and the back and forth has been about the location of the ombudsman. The one 40 thing I would like to accomplish here in in our chamber, is a better definition around what the Office is,

1 and be clear that it's. And I think there will be those that disagree, and so I invite this testimony. I think
2 there are some who would like an ombudsman that would help people navigate the judicial discipline
3 process. I think that's a different thing and a different question about whether or not a citizen, and we've 4 had some testify today who have concerns about judges and wanted assistance in navigating the process
5 for judicial discipline. Whether there's a role for someone. But from the outset, in the Interim
6 Committee, I think there's been this difficulty in getting people to focus on those two functions. One, an 7 organizational function of ombudsman regarding the Judicial Department. And then this other thing of 8 who, who is going to assist citizens, or should we do that? I think that's a discussion different day with 9 the Commission on Judicial Discipline about what would that look like, and how we do that, and should 10 we fund that position? I don't think it takes a constitutional amendment for the Commission on Judicial 11 Discipline to have that kind of an office. Every time we talk about these however, the question then 12 comes to what is its independence? That's enough stream of consciousness for the moment, but I 13 appreciate the conversation, Madam Chair.

14

15 Sen. Gonzales

16 Senator Gardner. I very much appreciate this as well, because in the scenario that I proposed, both of the 17 scenarios were external participants. Actors were coming to the courts to navigate some issue what have 18 you. And the question was, how? Was it just guidance of like, Hi, here are your options. Or assistance to 19 navigate the process, and thank you for also naming that the question that I think that this bill is also 20 trying to grapple with is for actors within, employees within the Judicial Branch itself. How do they 21 participate or navigate or have a neutral space to understand what their options may be? So, thank you
22 for that. I think that I'd like to see if there are questions from members of the committee. And seeing 23 none, I want to shift over now to our witness list. And with that, I want to just say here at the onset that 24 we welcome your testimony. We invite you to share your comments for three minutes. You'll see both
25 online and here in the room, the little black box with three lights. Green means go. Yellow means you
26 got 30 seconds left, and red is an invitation to conclude your remarks. Usually, we bring folks up in 27 panels of four. But given the cozy little circumstances today in this fun room, I'll call folks up one at a 28 time and see if members of the committee have questions. And, then, we will go from there. We'll begin.
29 I'm going to also speak in this semi artificially loud voice in a hope that folks at the back of the room
30 can hear me. And with that, I will welcome up Melissa Thompson. Thank you for joining us. If you 31 could please state your name, any organization you may represent, and then proceed to testimony.
32 Thanks for being here.

33

34 Melissa Thompson

35 My name is Melissa Thompson. I'm the Director of the Office of Respondent Parents' Counsel, an 36 independent agency housed within the Judicial Branch. I'm also an attorney. And 20 years ago, I worked 37 for an employer. I was sexually harassed. I complained and I was fired. I hired a lawyer to represent me
38 in that lawsuit, and he wasn't a great lawyer. He didn't return my calls. I was very confused about the 39 process, what was happening, and, ultimately, I did receive a settlement. And decided that I would go to 40 law school and dedicate my career to ensuring that no one feels like I did. In making sure that people

1 have access to excellent counsel. In that capacity, I'm now overseeing nearly 200 lawyers across the 2 entire State of Colorado, in every single Judicial District. I'm hearing from them that they are 3 experiencing issues, going through mental health crises, and they're scared to tell anyone, because they
4 don't necessarily want to hurt their clients. And these are professionals who are fearful to talk about
5 what's going on in our courthouses across the state. This matters to me, because when I was a trial
6 attorney, a friend in my office went to trial. The judge was awful to her. That night, she went to the bar,
7 she sat next to my husband. In the way that we did at that time, going through how bad the day was. And 8 that night, she committed suicide. And I wonder what could have happened if there had been a safe
9 place for her to go to say, I'm experiencing something in the courthouse that I shouldn't be experiencing.
10 What do I do? How do I get help? I think that judicial employees, litigating attorneys, deserve that safe
11 space in our State, and it is our obligation to give it to them through a system. To ask questions like I
12 thought when I was in my early 20s, Is this my fault? Is what's happening wrong? How do I handle it? I
13 don't know. An Ombudsman can serve that role and be a resource for people who may not know where 14 to go and what to do. Don't dilute this bill with amendments that make it less independent, that make it
15 less available to litigating attorneys, and thus attorneys that I serve as the Director of my agency.
16 Because I believe that there are amendments on the table that could do that. I would ask for your support
17 of this bill. Thank you.

18

19 Sen. Gonzales

20 Thank you, Ms. Thompson for your testimony and in also sharing for us, your perspective and how these 21 things have changed over time. I'm curious, colleagues, if you have any questions? Senator Gardner.

22

23 Sen. Gardner

24 Thank you. Ms. Thompson, I think, as you gathered from my discussion with Chair Gonzales, I think
25 one of the things around this bill has been, what is the scope of its responsibility. I hear you talking 26 about an internal agency responsibility, although not one, let me hasten to add, not one, perhaps that is 27 within the agency, but we're talking about judicial personnel, not necessarily members of the general
28 public. And if you followed my earlier remarks, do you have thoughts on what the scope of the judicial 29 ombudsman ought to be in terms of who it serves?

30

31 Sen. Gonzales

32 Ms. Thompson.

33

34 Melissa Thompson

35 Thank you, Madam Chair. And thank you. Yes, I have thoughts I usually do. So, I think that it's really 36 important that judicial employees and currently under the definition of the bill judicial personnel,
37 includes litigating attorneys, interns, and volunteers. I think that that is essential. I am a little concerned
38 about opening it up to members of the public. I think that perhaps the Commission should be handling
39 those because I don't want to take what at this point is one potential small agency with a small staff and 40 hand them the public. Because I worry that it will dilute their impact and ability to serve this group of

1 people. Because if you throw in the public, you're going to hear a lot of things that probably aren't
2 relevant to what the ombudsman does. A complaint about, I don't like a ruling. You know, I think that if
3 those people, members of the public, have those concerns, typically, they're going to have a lawyer who
4 can also raise those concerns. And legal means, motions to recuse the court in that way. So, I don't think
5 that members of the public. Currently, I don't believe that it covers those according to the definition of 6 judicial personnel. And I just think that it's too broad.

7

8 Sen. Gardner

9 Okay, thank you. Thank you very much.

10

11 Sen. Gonzales

12 Thank you. Seeing no further questions, I want to thank you so much for joining us and sharing your 13 perspectives with us today. Thank you. Next, I'd like to welcome Emma Garrison. Welcome back, Ms.
14 Garrison. Please state your name, the organization you represent, and proceed to testimony. Thanks for 15 being here.

16

17 Emma Garrison

18 Thank you, Madam Chair and members of the committee. Again, I'm Emma Garrison, President Elect of 19 the Colorado Women's Bar Association. We're very excited to be here today to talk about HB 1205, 20 regarding the judicial discipline ombudsman. As you're aware and has been discussed, this concept of an 21 ombudsman for judicial discipline issues and even employee to employee complaints, came up during 22 the interim process last summer. We were grateful to work with Senator Gardner, along with 23 Representatives Bacon and Lynch to develop much of the concept that has made it into the bill.
24 However, this bill did not succeed in the Interim Committee, so our work with stakeholders on this topic 25 has continued and still continues.

26

27 First and foremost, it's important to be clear about the purpose of the ombudsman. It's our vision that the 28 ombudsman be independent and be a safe place that someone can turn to for information about the 29 complaint process, referrals to community resources, and for assistance in filing anonymous complaints.
30 We believe that the judicial ombudsman's scope should be limited to matters involving concerns related
31 to judicial misconduct and not include employee to employee concerns. By limiting the scope, we offer 32 that the judicial discipline ombudsman should be available for any person to access if they have 33 concerns about judicial misconduct.

34

35 Finally, I believe there is an amendment that is in the works. We support the Judicial Department's 36 Proposal for an organizational ombudsman as well. We've been working with Judicial to specify that a 37 direct referral should be made to the judicial discipline ombudsman if there's any indication that a judge 38 is involved in the concern, and to provide the concerned individual with the information about the 39 Judicial Discipline Commission. We believe that Judicial has taken reasonable steps to ensure the 40 independence and efficacy of an organizational ombudsman for workplace issues that are not involving

1 a judge. We understand that there's been some concerns and confusion about having two ombudsman, an
2 external and an internal. We just want to remind the committee that the purpose of an ombudsman is to 3 educate and serve as a resource, and we believe there's no harm in having more resources available to 4 potential complainants, multiple avenues for information and support may be better.

5

6 I'm going to defer to my colleague, Ariana Busby, on sort of more details about the internal process and 7 our position on them, but I'm happy to take any questions.

8

9 Sen. Gonzales

10 Thank you so much. Ms. Garrison. Colleagues, do we have questions for Ms. Garrison? Senator
11 Gardner.

12

13 Sen. Gardner

14 Yes, thank you, Madam Chair. And Ms. Garrison, just so I'm clear. The Women's Bar conception of the 15 ombudsman is not only an external ombudsman, but the one that focuses on judicial officer misconduct.
16 Do I have that right?

17

18 Emma Garrison

19 Yes.

20

21 Sen. Gardner

22 And would that be judicial officer misconduct that is toward a judicial employee? Or judicial officer
23 misconduct toward the public generally? Or both of those? Or how does that work in your mind?

24

25 Emma Garrison

26 Yeah, I mean, I would, and Ariana can correct me if I get anything wrong. But yes, I think if it is a
27 judicial officer with disciplinary issues, whoever the complainant is, I think the external ombudsman is 28 the place for them. Or that's how I see the external office working.

29

30 Sen. Gardner

31 If I may, Madam Chair.

32

33 Sen. Gonzales

34 Please dialog.

35

36 Sen. Gardner

37 Okay, from the beginning of this process on the HCR and the whole judicial process, one of the 38 discussions I have had, I think, along with colleagues at the Judicial Department was, Okay, how do we 39 deal with judicial misconduct once the Department receives knowledge of that. I think there was pretty
40 strong agreement at this point. I don't know that that was true a year ago or two years ago. I just don't

1 know. That the appropriate thing to do if someone in the Judicial Department, whether it be from an
2 email from one of the citizens who appears that says a judge did something grossly wrong, sexually
3 harassing, made a comment from the bench that was inappropriate, or approached me in the hallway and
4 made an inappropriate advancement. That it was the responsibility of the Judicial Department to just 5 simply want to make sure that person felt safe and so forth. But that was to be referred to the 6 Commission on Judicial Discipline then and there, immediately. Even if it was an internal situation of a
7 clerk versus a judicial officer. I guess where I'm going with that is that it would seem as if the judicial 8 officer issue of how to then navigate that situation is a function for the Commission on Judicial 9 Discipline. To have someone that might tell a citizen or a judicial employee, how to navigate the 10 process. I mean, do you see that person as being and that office as being something different than that?
11 Because it seems to me that it invokes the judicial discipline process immediately. And I don't know, ask 12 me a question. If you're wondering what I'm asking, there's a lot there to unpack.

13

14 Sen. Gonzales

15 Senator Gardner, I am curious because Ms. Garrison had spoke that Ms Busby might be interested in 16 responding as well. Would that be okay? Oh, sure, absolutely, okay. We'll go ahead and bring up Ms.
17 Ariana Busby, who is participating remotely. Just in case, so that we're having like a conversation
18 between the three of y'all, just to not miss anything. And, so, with that, Ms. Busby, if you'd like to weigh 19 in on this at any point, just raise your hand, and then I'll acknowledge you. At this point, I'll turn it back 20 over to Ms. Garrison to respond to the question.

21

22 Emma Garrison

23 Sure, I guess I'm a little confused as to what the harm is, and having this independent office that's 24 separate from the Branch and separate from the Commission for someone who's confused about the 25 process and just kind of wants to talk through and understand options. I mean that is what we see as the 26 role of the ombuds. It's just to be a safe space and to help make it a more victim centered approach.

27

28 Sen. Gardner

29 Ms. Garrison, I don't mean to imply that there's any harm whatsoever. I'm just trying to understand. To 30 be quite honest with you, I'm just really trying to understand where the Colorado Women's Bar
31 Association concept of this ombuds or two ombudsmen or whatever. How it differs from others that 32 people discuss. And, so, I'm just trying to get the parameters around it. Because it seems to me that if 33 we're talking about the function of assisting those who may have complaints against judicial officers, 34 whether they be an employee, or whether they be a litigant, or just someone who encounters a judge in 35 the community. Because that's potentially there, too. I don't know whether that should be independent of 36 the Commission, or whether that could be within the Commission, but independent. My perception of 37 the Commission is that it doesn't turn away complaints. It screens complaints and doesn't screen them
38 out necessarily. But I mean they run as you know, and as I know. And as prior witnesses said, they run
39 from I'm unhappy about the ruling to something was said from the bench that indicated a bias. So again,

1 then you talk about a departmental ombudsperson. Now, is that something for which you advocate, or 2 just something that which the Women's Bar says is okay by them?

3
4 Emma Garrison

5 Yeah, I mean, we care very much about the external one, and we think the internal one doesn't, in no
6 way conflicts with our goals, with the external one. And as I said, more avenues may be better.

7
8 Sen. Gonzales

9 I do also see. Thank you, Ms. Garrison. I do also see Ms Busby has her hand raised, and so I'll invite 10 you, welcome you to the conversation, and invite you to respond.

11
12 Ariana Busby

13 Thank you, and thank you, Senator Gardner, for those questions. We support the ombuds as it's currently 14 written, where it would enable employee to employee type complaints and, also, complaints by judicial 15 officers to this external ombuds. However, Judicial has been working on this proposal for an internal 16 ombuds within their Office of People and Culture, and we've spent many, many months with them since 17 kind of hearing about their concept and working with them to develop what this would look like moving
18 forward. And we, at this point, we have a lot of faith that their internal ombuds concept could work.

19 And, so, what we are advocating for here is, you know, if you pass the bill on this form today, we're 20 super pleased. We're super thankful for all the work that happened, and we're thankful that people will 21 have an outlet to be able to receive information and resources about these types of complaints. But we 22 would also support adding an internal ombuds office within the Judicial Department specifically tailored 23 for those employees to employee type complaints, because that does. Well, it'd be an independent
24 ombuds that is more of an HR role, and by doing that, that would enable you to open up that external
25 ombuds to really be available to anyone that is interacting with the judge. Rather than just this narrow,
26 not narrow, but a narrow definition of judicial personnel that's currently in the bill. And, so, by opening
27 it up, you could have, for example, complaining litigants upset about a ruling, they can go to this
28 ombuds, you know, receive information and find out. You know, maybe a complaint to the Commission
29 isn't the right avenue for me, but here's information about filing an interlocutory appeal. And, so, we see 30 that as a way to really help streamline the processes in the Commission, and also weed out some of those 31 complaints that are non-jurisdictional. Thank you.

32
33 Sen. Gardner

34 Thank you.

35
36 Sen. Gonzales

37 Thank you for that response, Ms. Busby. And I'm curious if there are any further questions for Ms.
38 Busby or for Ms. Garrison. Ms Busby, I brought you up in sort of a backwards order in that I usually 39 would invite you to share your testimony and comments, and so at this time, I'll invite you to do so. See 40 if there are any further questions.

1 Ariana Busby

2 Thank you, Senator. Ms. Garrison read all of her comments today, and so I'm just here for additional 3 questions.

4

5 Sen. Gonzales

6 Ah, sweet, Here we go. Are there any further questions for either Ms. Garrison or for Ms. Busby?

7 Seeing none. I want to thank you both for helping us to understand where the Women's Bar Association
8 is at in regards to this policy and sort of the intent behind this concept. Thank you.

9

10 Emma Garrison

11 Thank you.

12

13 Sen. Gonzales

14 Next, I will welcome Judge Prince. Welcome back. You know the drill. Please state your name, the 15 organization you represent, and proceed.

16

17 David Prince

18 My name is David Prince. I'm Vice Chair of the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline. In a
19 sense, we came somewhat late to the ombuds idea. It was during the interim committee that it first arose
20 on our radar screen. We embraced it quite immediately. Once we saw it, we could really see the value.
21 Don't know that it's much worth talking about today, but part of that value just some of the practical
22 issues that were occurring with what is now 1019, and creation of a safe space for complainants to go or 23 people seeking information related to judicial misconduct, particularly resolves a lot of the practical
24 issues that we were dealing with at the time. We support the ombuds. As you heard an earlier person
25 testify, our point of view is that the independence of that ombuds is critical, and it's to create that safe
26 space. The whole point is to create a safe space. We have said in the past, and we'll reiterate today, that 27 we think that creating multiple ombuds where they're in different lanes is probably more confusing to 28 people than helpful. Because you already have, let's say it's a judge. Do I go to OARC because it's a 29 magistrate? Do I go to the Denver County because it's a Denver County judge? Do I go to the judicial 30 discipline commission, which most of them never heard of. Do I go to the Judicial Department? Do I go
31 to the District Administrator? It's really quite confusing. To have one place that can be easily marketed
32 so that people can become aware of it and go to that place to find out what they need to do and where to 33 go would be extremely helpful. I'd like to talk about some of the amendments, but I'll sort of leave those 34 for questions. In listening to some of the discussion, I think one of the issues that may have gotten 35 overlooked a little bit is if we're talking about a task where you want to make sure that a member of the 36 public. So, not a member of the Judiciary, a member of the public has information about the discipline
37 commission process. And that's part of what I've heard we want to achieve. We already actually have 38 that. That's in 1019, it's 13-5.3-112, point of contact. So, one of the things that we are now creating, and 39 I don't understand that to be the least bit controversial, is that the discipline commission itself will have 40 what I'll call a public information officer who will already be doing that very simple task of just telling

1 people, this is how it works, this is what happened in your case. I mean no offense when I say, and hold
2 their hand through the process so that they can advise them of it. So, that part is addressed. The ombuds
3 does something more in terms of the two paradigms that the Chair laid out. It's really the second
4 paradigm. They do a bit more than just, I am your Google substitute to tell you what's going on. I see my 5 time is up, so I will address questions.

6

7 Sen. Gonzales

8 Thank you, Judge Prince. Senator Gardner.

9

10 Sen. Gardner

11 Thank you. Thank you, Judge Prince. Thanks for making the trip again today. Always good to see you.
12 Maybe it's just I'm the only one in the room that's struggling with this, but the bill right now is pretty 13 well confined for the ombuds to provide services to judicial personnel. Judges, magistrates, clerks,
14 probation officers, all the staff, clerks, deputy clerks, everybody there. For that branch, a good deal, like
15 our Office of Legislative Workplace Relations. What I hear, a sense or a flavor of is that this ombuds
16 ought to be a person to whom members of the public could go and say, I didn't like the way I was treated
17 at the courthouse. The clerk was rude to me, and I asked a simple question, and got thrown aside. That 18 that ought to be included in the ombuds office. And I mean, that's one way to do it. And then there's this 19 thing of is the ombudsperson supposed to be ombudsperson for the Commission on Judicial Discipline?
20 And you say there's already something created in 1019, that that does some of that. So, I'm just looking 21 for your views about all of those things and those pieces. And maybe I ought to have a white board and 22 draw them out. But we don't usually do that in committee. We've had enough conversations. I imagine 23 you can unpack that.

24

25 Sen. Gonzales

26 Judge Prince, I'll invite you to the dialog.

27

28 David Prince

29 I will try to unpack as best I can. I wish I'd taken notes now. First and foremost, the Commission
30 supports the bill as drafted. We think a great deal of work went into it, as many people in the room
31 know, in the interim committee it wasn't quite ready for prime time when we got to the end, and that's in 32 part because the idea came up as we went along. I don't think there were very many that were 33 considering it before the interim committee process started, and so it didn't quite have the chance for 34 people to cogitate on it by the end of the interim committee process that the other bills did, but it was the 35 primary focus, though, like today, of the House committee meetings, and there were some very good
36 insights offered on its role in some of these issues, and I think they've done an excellent job of balancing
37 them in terms of, should the Ombuds office be open to the public? The Commission's very neutral on 38 that. It would be fine with us if it were open to the public. I'm not so worried about them being 39 overwhelmed as others. My personal opinion would be that it's probably better to start with the current 40 definition of scope and then see what the volume is there, see how well it's working before opening it up

1 to the public. And there is an interim solution in place, which is, there's a point of contact. They're not an
2 ombuds. That's why they're not they're not called an ombuds, but there's at least a point of contact for 3 anybody in the general public. So, I would suggest you take an initial step and focus on the members of 4 the judicial department, and then lawyers are also involved. And that really comes from looking at the 5 statistics that we've seen to the extent we have them, and at least the anecdotal, anecdotal experience of 6 the Commission, which is most of the judicial discipline issues, the judicial misconduct issues that arise
7 that really need that safe space, are complied comprised of potential complainants who are members of 8 the judiciary, usually judicial personnel, clerks and such, and sometimes lawyers, and that's a large
9 majority of those where it appears that there really is a need for safe space. And so that's why that part of 10 it is so important and so important to get launched. But that's also why it's so important that you have 11 that independence piece, and that's where I'm concerned about several of the amendments. It didn't get 12 talked about too much yet, and you didn't exactly raise this in your dialog, but I'll press forward unless 13 you want me to please come back to what you've already asked. I don't know if I answered your 14 question.

15

16 Sen. Gardner

17 You've done a very good job, Judge.

18

19 David Prince

20 Well, I tried, I tried.

21

22 Sen. Gardner

23 I get to ask the questions here, it's kind of fun.

24

25 David Prince

26 Point out anything I didn't cover, because I may have missed something. But the independence part 27 really is quite key. And there you've got to keep in mind that past is prolog. The whole point here is to 28 create a safe space for people who are on the low end of the power dynamic to be able to come forward
29 and get information. One of the scenarios you were raising earlier was, well, if somebody comes 30 forward and makes the complaint, and you were talking about a citizen, but that part, I'll leave it to the 31 side. Somebody makes a complaint within the Judiciary about a judge's conduct. That has to be reported
32 immediately under the reforms from last year. And you're right. The ombuds's role I think, for the most 33 part, is going to come before that report because of the fear and intimidation and uncertainty of the 34 person who's considering do I raise a complaint? I think that's where the role of the ombuds is primarily.
35 It's before that decision is made, and it's probably that large group that haven't been willing to come
36 forward so far. We look back at the, I pulled the page from the ILG report. You know, in one District, 37 they found that there were 53% of the employees that responded that had experienced mistreatment, and 38 they said of those who observed mistreatment. So, whether they were the victim or not. Of those who 39 observed mistreatment, 86% chose not to report it. That's on page 104, of ILG. That's really who we're 40 trying to get at from the Commission's standpoint. And we have a 20-year history of various obstacles

1 put in the way, mechanisms put in place that end up suppressing those complaints and dealing with them
2 separately, and that's what the ILG report and the Troyer Report tell us about in great detail. The 3 experience of the last two years tell us that there are obstacles and pressure points on people who work
4 within the Judiciary or lawyers that make it very intimidating to come forward and raise a complaint
5 against someone in power at the Judiciary, whether they're a judicial officer or otherwise. Just that, the 6 judicial officers are sort of the sexy part that gets talked about so much. So that independence is key, and 7 some of these amendments are saying, Really, let's bring it back in house. Okay, well, we had that in the 8 past. We've had that with the HR Department under Masias. We've had a degree of that under the 9 OARC, as it works. We've seen what that looks like. We've seen what appointees of Carr Building
10 Leadership view their role as and what to do, whether they are facilitating complaints or not. That's 11 what's been happening now. Whether you're talking about the very dramatic testimony we heard from 12 the anonymous complainant that CCASA presented during the interim committee. Whether we're talking 13 about the experiences we've had in the last few months, even if you talk about what happened with the 14 former Chair of this committee, that's what happens under that power structure. So, the House very 15 carefully structured this so that the board who oversees the ombuds is truly independent and will be 16 perceived to be independent. Some of these amendments are saying, well, let's take some of that back,
17 and let's move back towards allowing Judicial Leadership to be appointing board members so that they 18 will have influence over what happens in the process, those kinds of things. Lots of parts of these 19 amendments are really restricting what this ombuds can do. I mean specifically prohibiting them from 20 asking questions, at least in the drafts or the notes I've seen of the amendments. Specifically prohibiting 21 them from offering certain types of help. Those are all concerning. This needs to be genuinely a safe
22 space, and it needs to be perceived as a safe space. So that it needs to be structured, that there's a clear
23 break with the last two decades. And if we simply create a new structure where we are allowing the 24 same influences to create and staff and oversee it, we're likely to get the same result that we're trying to 25 move away from.

26

27 Sen. Gardner

28 Thank you.

29

30 Sen. Gonzales

31 Thank you, Judge Prince. I'd like to see if there are any other questions from members of the committee.
32 I want to thank you for challenging us to think deeply about how we proceed forward. Grateful for your 33 insights and your comments, as always. Thank you.

34

35 David Prince

36 Thank you. Thank you for your time and attention.

37

38 Sen. Gonzales

39 Ms. Espinosa Krupa. For the record, if you could state your name, the organization you represent, and 40 proceed. Thanks for joining us.

1 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

2 Again, Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa, Chair of the Commission on Judicial Discipline. I echo the comments
3 made by Judge Prince. I can add when we discuss perception throughout this process, whether it was the 4 SMART hearing. Most of this began at the Interim Committee meetings, House meetings, or here. You
5 have all heard this perception that the Commission on Judicial Discipline, even now, even with the 6 changes that are proposed, is still protecting judges. The Commission is comprised of judges, lawyers,
7 and non-attorney members. And our non-attorney members have been amazing. They're HR
8 professionals, they're rural community members. But it's also been incredibly valuable to have judges on 9 the Commission. Lawyers appear in front of judges, but we don't always understand when there's a 10 complaint of timeliness, issues with how long a judge is taking the issue an order, or in a parenting case, 11 certain decisions. It's nice to have a judge to be able to provide that background. The perception that the 12 Commission, as long as there's judicial members on it, as long as there's some perception that Supreme 13 Court has some hand in it, is not going to be perceived as being very transparent, or a venue where 14 people that are aggrieved by a judge can go if that judge may be protected somehow. And that 15 perception will continue to exist, unfortunately, until either time passes or the new process demonstrates 16 some different accountability. The perception that an ombudsman within Judicial is just going to do the 17 same thing is valid. The Commission shares a concern that if he ombuds is not external, that nothing's
18 really going to change. Even with the Commission, we didn't have, well known at least, a way to make 19 an anonymous complaint. But it's hard when you're making a complaint about a judge similar to a
20 lawyer, to not identify who the complainant is, particularly if they work for that judge, or if the facts
21 would dictate any information about the complainant and reveal identity. And external ombuds would 22 provide that ability to be anonymous. It would provide somebody to say, you know, I think that's a
23 procedural rule that's been violated, not a judicial rule. I think you have an appellate issue versus a 24 judicial misconduct issue. And I think that would be incredibly valuable for our public and for those 25 employees that really do feel that they are being mistreated. Thank you.

26

27 Sen. Gonzales

28 Thank you, Ms, Espinosa Krupa. Colleagues, questions? I'm sort of instinctually looking towards 29 Senator Gardner.

30

31 Sen. Gardner

32 Thank you, Madam Chair. You heard my dialog with Judge Prince, and you indicated general agreement
33 with that in terms of scope and so forth. Do you have any other comment about that? Again, I think it's 34 probably clear by this time from my comments, I'm really trying to find the scope of the ombudsperson.
35 There are references in the bill that came from the House about the judicial discipline ombudsman, and 36 yet, really it's a Judicial Department, although not a creature of the Department. It's the judicial 37 ombudsman. And it seems to be kind of that name implies that somehow it's involving the Commission
38 on Judicial Discipline. When, in fact, I don't have that sense that that's what we're doing. And I think, if I
39 understand Judge Prince correctly, his suggestion was, we already have this point of contact in the 40 Commission on Judicial Discipline that is a is a good first step on how to navigate judicial discipline

1 complaints. And the ombuds office ought to be something for judicial personnel, at least as a first step.
2 Now, do you have anything, do you disagree with that? Any span, any way that you would vary from 3 that. Because, again, I'm trying to figure out how to amend or not amend this bill so that it works and 4 everybody you know, even if you vote no on it, you walk away and know what it is that is supposed to 5 be doing. And I don't think we're there yet. I think we're close.

6

7 Sen. Gardner

8 Ms. Espinosa Krupa.

9

10 Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa

11 Thank you. Senator Gardner, what I think I would urge you to think about, and all the members to think 12 about, is that you're basically creating something that's new. So, you can write a scope. But I promise
13 you, whether it's SMART hearings or somewhere down the line, there's something about that scope that 14 will need to be amended or changed or reviewed. Just as the Commission on Judicial Discipline in the 15 way Colorado has been doing judicial discipline was ultimately reviewed and being revised. And even 16 some of those changes may need to be made. I think if the scope is really we want to provide, as 17 everybody has said, and I think all of the stakeholders unanimously agree, a safe place for people to go.
18 That is not just judicial discipline. It may be HR personnel issues, it could be anything that somebody
19 has a safe person to talk to that isn't housed within the Judicial Department, is not housed with the 20 Commission, but somebody that is a resource as much as it is a safe place to talk. I think that's the best
21 way. I would encourage you to look at it. As far as you know, there is somebody at the Commission on 22 Judicial Discipline, again, I would just go back to that perception that the Commission, regardless of the 23 changes and even the testimony and some of the history that's been there, is still trying to protect the 24 judges. There's nothing that the Commission can do about that. Our meetings aren't open, as opposed to 25 other commission meetings that are open for a reason. But there are new transparency rules that are 26 going to change some of that and maybe some confidence is built. In the interim, you really do want
27 somebody that can hear these people so that what we've heard throughout the past few years isn't going 28 to continue to occur.

29

30 Sen. Gardner

31 Thank you.

32

33 Sen. Gonzales

34 Thank you for your testimony this afternoon. Next, I welcome Melanie Jordan.

35

36 Melanie Jordan

37 Thank you, Madam Chair members the committee. My name is Melanie Jordan with the Office of 38 Respondent Parents' Counsel, where I'm a staff attorney and the legislative liaison. I am the liaison for 39 two of our districts, Arapahoe and Weld County, that have been uniquely impacted by judicial 40 misconduct in the last five years. I am testifying in support of this bill, because I think this bill would

1 have been helpful in those circumstances to the attorneys that were appearing in those courtrooms. So
2 I'm speaking specifically of former Judge Ryan Kamada in 2018 who held primarily a juvenile docket.
3 I'm sure that everybody on this committee knows that he leaked news of a warrant, and that is why he is 4 no longer on the bench and has been disbarred. But he was also texting with his friends about the 5 litigants that were appearing in his courtroom, and surely a judicial employee and attorney appearing in 6 front of his court, in his courtroom, probably knew that some of those things were happening and was 7 scared to come forward or didn't know how to come forward. And I think the ombudsman's office would
8 assist. And then this committee has already heard today about former Judge Natalie Chase. She resigned
9 in 2021 and of course, most people know that she used racial slurs, and that is why she's no longer a
10 district court judge. She is a municipal court judge again, but she also asked about people who wrote
11 unfavorable reviews about her. Was trying to figure out who was writing unfavorable reviews about her.
12 Was trying to get more information about that process. And again, people knew that was happening, that 13 came out in the investigation, and perhaps if they had a way to access an ombudsman's office earlier on 14 in the process, the 20 families that had their cases remanded because of concerns about bias. Because 15 they were worried that perhaps Judge Chase had terminated their rights because of her bias. Those 16 families wouldn't have been put through that process of wondering, did this judge terminate rights
17 because she didn't like my race or she didn't like the race of my attorney? During that process, we lost
18 three women of color who were respondent parent counsel in Arapahoe County, who will not take 19 respondent parent counsel appointments any longer in that jurisdiction. We have a jurisdiction right now 20 where we've lost five female attorneys because of the culture in that jurisdiction, and it is very 21 challenging as an attorney to figure out how to navigate this process. I have been involved in a judicial 22 discipline investigation. It's a terrifying process. When I was a practicing attorney, I had no idea what 23 that process looked like. It's terrifying to even tell you today that I was involved in that process, and so I
24 think to have an ombudsman's office to be able to talk about what that process would look like before
25 making that complaint. To talk about what other options there are would feel less like flailing. And the 26 last thing that I want to say is that we do have a child protection ombudsman, and that process has been 27 so effective at handling complaints about that system that there's a bill that's going through right now,
28 Senate Bill 210 that is eliminating another grievance process, the individual county grievance processes.
29 Because we don't need them anymore. Because the ombudsman process is working and people are able 30 to access it more easily than those county processes. So, I would urge your support on this bill.

31

32 Sen. Gonzales

33 Thank you so much. Ms. Jordan, for your comments. I'd like to see if there any questions. Senator
34 Gardner.

35

36 Sen. Gardner

37 Thank you. I think I know the answer, but I want to assume this. Are you an employee of the Judicial 38 Department in your position? Even though your agency is independent of the bench? Anyway, I will let 39 you answer.

40

1 Sen. Gonzales

2 Ms. Jordan.

3

4 Melanie Jordan

5 Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you, Senator Gardner. Yes, I am an employee of the Office of 6 Respondent Parents' Counsel, which is an independent judicial agency within the Judicial Branch of the 7 State of Colorado.

8

9 Sen. Gardner

10 So that's what I thought the answer was. But so under the current conception of the bill, your office, 11 your staff, would be people included that could go to the ombuds person and say, How do I navigate this 12 issue? What do I do?

13

14 Sen. Gonzales

15 Ms. Jordan.

16

17 Melanie Jordan

18 Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you Senator Gardner, yes, our Office and our attorney contractors
19 would all be able to access that office. If I could just give a brief example of where I think that would 20 really be helpful. We sometimes have issues that we struggle to know whether it's a judicial complaint,
21 whether it is a motion for recusal. What we should be doing. Our attorneys struggle with that. Often.
22 They feel like if they file motions for recusal or file a judicial discipline complaint, it will be held
23 against their clients. And I think they're right in a lot of circumstances. So, our Office does things like 24 meet with judges, chief judges, juvenile judges and jurisdictions. We do everything we can informally to 25 try to navigate across that process. And I think having that ombudsman would really aid our Office.
26 Would aid attorneys in feeling like that process is less scary, and it would hopefully result in fewer, you
27 know actual judicial discipline processes, because it would allow us to address those problems before 28 they become huge issues.

29

30 Sen. Gardner

31 Thank you very much. Appreciate it.

32

33 Melanie Jordan

34 Thank you.

35

36 Sen. Gonzales

37 Thank you, Senator Gardner. Are there any other questions from members of the committee? Seeing 38 none. Thank you so much for helping us understand your perspectives. It's helpful.

39

40

1 Melanie Jordan

2 Thank you.

3

4 Sen. Gonzales

5 Next, I welcome Alison Connaughty. Not here. Elizabeth Newman. Welcome Ms. Newman, if you can 6 please state your name, any organization you may represent, and proceed to testimony. Thank you for 7 being here.

8

9 Elizabeth Newman

10 Thank you and good afternoon, Madam Chair and committee members. I am Elizabeth Newman, Public
11 Policy Director for the Colorado Coalition Against Sexual Assault. CCASA is a statewide membership
12 organization that works to prevent and end sexual violence in our state, including sexual harassment. We 13 are neutral on this bill, but we were involved in the work of the Interim Committee and providing 14 recommendations, and therefore appreciate the opportunity to speak to you today. Sex based harassment
15 is pervasive, making up nearly half of all harassment complaints received by the EEOC. And 16 approximately 85% of women experience sexual harassment in their lifetime, and 94%, up to 94% do
17 not report it. Sexual harassment is also costly for the victim. There are effects to their work, professional 18 advancement, physical and mental health, and economic stability. And there are costs to their 19 colleagues, who suffer when employees leave, have frequent absences or have declining productivity.
20 There are also costs to the employers in turnover, reputational damage, direct payouts and settlements.
21 Particularly with regard to the Judicial Branch, the ILG and Troyer investigations highlighted a 22 widespread fear of reporting misconduct, facing intimidation and retaliation, and a lack of accountability
23 and transparency. And there are several risk factors that the EEOC has identified for sexual harassment
24 that are present in the Judicial Branch. These include significant power disparities, control over careers,
25 and decentralized workplaces. So, for these reasons, we strongly encourage the Judiciary Committee to 26 maintain the provisions in this bill to allow for the ombudsman office to serve all judicial personnel with 27 concerns about potential misconduct in the Judicial Branch. First, it is confusing for the reporting party 28 to know which ombudsman to bring their concern to if there were both an internal and external
29 ombudsman's office. Secondly, it's also duplicative of efforts and resources. It's two sets of staff to 30 compile information and find services to refer to complainants to. Two office suites and sets of 31 computers. And thirdly, if information about misconduct is being spread across two offices that are not 32 working together, it would seem to allow misconduct to flourish because it would take longer to catch
33 on to and identify those areas where there is a significant issue in a culture or courthouse. The primary
34 request from the interim committee to CCASA was to help inform a victim centered approach to judicial 35 misconduct. We urge the creation of a system for safe reporting, strengthening protections against 36 retaliation, and, related to this bill, providing support through resources for victims that are both internal 37 and external to the Judicial Branch. It is crucial that an ombuds office remain independent, outside of the 38 influence of the State Court Administrator's Office, and available for all in order to correct the culture
39 and restore trust and accountability in the Judicial Branch. And thank you for your time today, and I'm 40 open to any questions you may have.

1 Sen. Gonzales

2 Thank you so much Ms. Newman, for your testimony. Colleagues, do you have any questions that you
3 wish to ask of Ms. Newman? Seeing none, I want to thank you for your perspectives as we continue to 4 navigate this policy. Next, I'll welcome Kelly Havilland. Who is not here with us. I'd like to see, Is there
5 anyone else in the room or online who wishes to testify regarding House Bill 1205? Justice Marquez.
6 Welcome, Justice. If you could state your name, and I guess the organization you represent, and proceed
7 to testimony,

8

9 Justice Marquez

10 Thank you. My name is Monica Marquez. I am a Justice on the Colorado Supreme Court. Let me start
11 by saying that the Court and the Department very much support the idea, the concept of an ombuds.
12 With respect to this bill, I think we are in an amend position. I'd like to walk through some of the 13 reasons for that. But let me provide a little context for my statements today. Being the Senior Associate 14 Justice and I'm also the incoming Chief Justice. And I mentioned those two things for two reasons.

15

16 One, as the Senior Justice on the Court, I've been here 12 and a half years. Longer than any other sitting 17 Justice on the Court at this point. And I've seen extraordinary change across those 12 years, and 18 particularly in the last three. We are currently undergoing a branch-wide, truly generational shift in our 19 workforce. What does that look like? I'm serving now with an entirely different group of Justices than I
20 started with in 2010. I've never seen a more committed group of individuals who are going daily above
21 and beyond their regular duties to implement the recommendations of the Troyer and the ILG Report.
22 We have committed hundreds and hundreds of hours, early mornings, after hours, weekends, road time,
23 crisscrossing the State, talking with our 4,000 employees, and working to implement these 24 recommendations. We have entirely new leadership at SCAO. We have a new State Court
25 Administrator, we have a new HR Director, we have new Division Directors in Financial Services, IT,
26 and Court Services. All of them are excited about these opportunities. Roughly half of our Chief Judges
27 across the State have turned over since 2020. Close to a third of our current judges have come on board
28 since 2020. And roughly 50% of our core workforce has turned over since 2020. I mention these stats
29 because this has actually given us a really wonderful opportunity to do a real, solid, fundamental,
30 transformational reset of the culture in the Branch.

31

32 Second, because I am the incoming Chief, the changes that the Branch and the Court are committed to 33 making and are already making are going to take sustained effort, and that means that this will both a
34 struggle both for a remainder of current Chief Justice Boatright's tenure, but also my time as Chief. I'm 35 going to be responsible for leading and continuing that effort. The Workplace Culture Initiative is well
36 underway. We have had, as I mentioned, the listening sessions. We've amended the Code of Judicial 37 Conduct. We have completely rewritten Personnel Rule 20, which deals with our employee Code of 38 Conduct, anti-harassment, anti-retaliation policies, and so forth. We're undergoing a mission, vision and 39 values process right now that includes employee voices across the Branch. We brought in outside 40 assistance for the four Metro Districts who were called out in the ILG Report. We're overhauling our

1 complaint process to increase the number of avenues for raising concerns, to make that process more
2 transparent. We've requested and received funding from the JBC for FTE to implement all of these
3 recommendations, including with a focus on DEI. We're developing training modules for Chief Judges,
4 our District Leadership. Both nuts and bolts management training, policy, training. And we're ultimately
5 developing a public facing website to communicate all of these changes across the Branch. And the list 6 goes on.

7
8 But the ombuds is a really key component of that overall effort. As you've heard, some key feedback we 9 received from those reports is employees expressed a lack of trust in the complaint process. I also need
10 to pause here and emphasize just how much I personally care about making this a more victim-centric
11 process. One that gives employee voice along the way and employee agency and decision making in that 12 process. I have spoken directly with employees who have been through this process, and I understand 13 directly just how terrifying it can be.

14
15 There's a key piece of that, and this came up in some earlier dialog with you, Senator Gardner and 16 another witness. That there are mandatory reporting obligations pretty much across the Branch. If an 17 employee raises an issue with their direct supervisor, with someone in HR, with a supervising judge, 18 with any other judge, any of those employees has an immediate obligation, assuming that the conduct in 19 question concerns the judicial officer, to relay that to the judicial discipline commission. And, then, all 20 of a sudden, that victim is pulled into that process, whether they're ready for it or not. And that is the 21 value of having an ombuds. It would be a safe place for those individuals to land before they make their 22 next move. To say, here's my concern, here's what I have experienced, what are my options? And have 23 that all laid out for them in a neutral, confidential way, and then allow that person to make an informed
24 decision about how to proceed. I see tremendous value in that concept for our employees.

25
26 And I want to talk about two scope issues that I've heard talked about today. Because I think there are 27 actually two issues around scope. The first scope issue is, who does this serve? And is it just Judicial 28 Branch employees? Is it more broadly Judicial Department employees, so inclusive of the independent
29 agencies. Some of the testimony you've heard from today. Does it include also litigating attorneys? Is it 30 as broad to include everyone in the public? So, that's one scope issue.

31
32 But the second scope issue is, what is the nature of the conduct that we're talking about. And I would say
33 95% of the testimony that I've heard today is really focused on misconduct by judicial officers. And a
34 great deal of the language in the bill reflects what I think at least started out as the heart of the bill, the 35 fact that this position is called the Judicial Discipline Ombudsman, which, by the way, I think is a
36 vestige of the fact that it was originally, in an original draft, it was housed in the discipline commission.
37 So, I think that's where we got that name. But the legislative declaration speaks of promoting the judicial 38 discipline process. It speaks of assisting judicial personnel impacted by judicial misconduct. And on 39 page 10 of the bill, which really gets into the meat of what this ombuds is supposed to do, it talks
40 exclusively about judicial misconduct. It requires the ombuds to collect and report data on the number

1 and allegations of judicial misconduct, the types of judicial misconduct complaints, the demographics of
2 the judges about whom complaints are brought. And then it goes on to say that the ombuds shall explain
3 options for filing the complaint with the judicial discipline commission, and I shall explain the judicial 4 discipline process. So, my concern about the scope here is, as we as a Department have been trying to 5 implement recommendations of the ILG report. We're trying to separate. At least, I'm going to describe
6 conceptually where we have approached this. Separate the concerns about judicial misconduct, and 7 saying those are appropriately external to the to the Department. But when we're talking about ordinary 8 workforce issues, employee on employee, our research, working with the International Association of 9 Ombuds tells us that the organizational ombuds is the appropriate model for that.

10
11 So, when we're talking, when we speak of an internal organizational ombuds, I am speaking about staff-
12 on-staff complaints. Frontline probation officer has a concern about their frontline probation supervisor
13 or court judicial staff having concerns about a Court Executive. If the scope of this bill intends to cover
14 that type of workplace concern, I feel like substantial amendments need to be made to reflect that. That 15 are not currently present in this bill, because there's nothing in the meat of the bill talking about what the 16 ombuds is supposed to do that actually addresses that. It doesn't say how? How is the ombuds supposed
17 to help them navigate the HR process, if, in fact, that is what this is intended to do? So, I feel like I've 18 gone way past my three minutes. I'll pause here and see if I can entertain some questions.

19
20 Sen. Gonzales

21 Thank you, Justice Marquez. Colleagues? Senator, Gardner.

22
23 Sen. Gardner

24 Thank you. Thank you, Justice Marquez. I appreciate that perspective, because I'm still trying to wrap
25 my head around where we need to take this bill. And your perspective seems to be yeah, I think this may 26 well be the case that it started about judicial officers, and yet the Department itself is just like any other
27 employer. I think we experienced this in the legislative workplace when we did all of that. There are 28 legislators who are constitutionally ordained for lack of a better term and work for their constituents.
29 Judicial officers, similarly, are appointed pursuant to the Constitution. And the public often doesn't 30 know they don't work for the Chief Justice.

31
32 Justice Marquez

33 The Chief Justice has no supervisory authority.

34
35 Sen. Gardner

36 The District Court judge is a District Court judge, and they hold their position independent of that. And,
37 so, it seems that you're suggesting. Again, stop me, if I get this all wrong, that maybe there are two 38 things this bill needs to do. I mean, the Women's Bar sort of talked about this as well. That we need to 39 deal with judicial officers and the scope of that. And, then, the Department itself has the same kinds of 40 issues that the Legislative or Executive Branch or corporate America has. And then they need to create

1 that safe space. But that's a different animal, if you will. And I don't know. I think it's the Judicial
2 Department's suggestion that if that's the case, then you need your own ombuds to deal with the clerk
3 who has a supervisor, and that's an internal ombuds situation. Help me understand kind of what, if you
4 were going to draft this bill and you had the power to go down to the drafter as a sponsor and say, I got 5 it all wrong. Let's, let's do it this way. What's that look like?

6

7 Sen. Gonzales

8 Justice Marquez.

9

10 Justice Marquez

11 Thank you, and I apologize for interrupting you.

12

13 Sen. Gardner

14 No, no.

15

16 Justice Marquez

17 Respect the rules of decorum.

18

19 Sen. Gardner

20 It doesn't work quite that way over here. So, it's okay.

21

22 Justice Marquez

23 Let me answer your question by thinking about this sort of outside the legislation from the perspective
24 of trying to implement the recommendations of the Report. So, thinking about what is of most value to 25 our 4000 employees and the workplace concerns that were reflected in the ILG Report, is that 26 organizational ombuds. And after reaching out to the International Association and sort of learning what 27 the key principles are that govern that type of organizational ombuds, what we heard over and over 28 again is that, as its name implies, it's part of the organization. It is inherently internal, and it is also 29 independent. And I want to stress that part too, because this position cannot maintain independence
30 unless it is independent. Does not report to the State Court Administrator, does not report to the Chief
31 Justice, does not report to the head of HR, does not report to the Supreme Court. The oversight for that 32 individual instead resides in an advisory board that is comprised of people who have some knowledge of 33 the workings of the Branch. So, hopefully, it will include probation officers and probation supervisors
34 and court executives and judges along the way. But to understand kind of unique culture we have within 35 the Branch, the fact that life looks very different in Sterling than in Durango, than in the Metro Area. So,
36 the ombuds would report to that advisory board comprised of employees. It would be governed by a 37 charter that sets forth clear lines, ethical duties, the types of information that would be gathered. To the 38 extent that the ombuds is seeing trends, say, in a particular district, that's a type of data, aggregate data,
39 that could be forwarded to people who need to know that information. A Chief Judge in a District, the 40 Chief Justice, him or herself. That kind of information. But we really are focused in that regard on

1 ordinary workplace culture concerns. Inevitably, someone is going to walk in the door and say, I know
2 you're the organizational ombuds, but I have a concern about a judge. Right, that's going to happen.
3 What we would propose in that instance, if a version of this bill were to pass, to have an external
4 ombuds dealing with complaints about judicial officers. Is that the charter for this organizational
5 ombuds will be required to direct that person over to the judicial discipline ombuds, for lack of a better
6 term. I see much value in the CWBA's, the Colorado Women's Bar's concerns that their lawyer
7 constituents could not take advantage of our internal organizational ombuds because they are not
8 employees of Judicial So there does need to be some place for those folks to land. But separating those 9 functions, I think it creates the bright line that avoids the overlap that I'm talking about, and would allow 10 for an immediate cross reference for the person who comes in with a concern about a judge. You've 11 landed in the wrong place, let me send you over to the correct place. But both serve as safe places to 12 land for an individual, whether an employee or a lawyer, or a member of the public to understand their 13 options and then make an informed decision about what happens next. If the person then decides to file a
14 complaint, say, with judicial discipline, you are correct. There are now requirements for the Commission
15 to sort of walk the person through the process, outline, keep them informed as the process unfolds. But 16 the ombuds serves as that landing space before they make that decision.

17

18 Sen. Gonzales

19 Senator Gardner. You all dialog, this has been fascinating.

20

21 Sen. Gardner

22 Doing the dangerous thing, thinking out loud.

23

24 Sen. Gonzales

25 Oh, now it's going to get really interesting.

26

27 Sen. Gardner

28 I mean, it occurs to me that, and this just sort of rewrites the bill a strike below, as we refer to it. But that 29 we might say to the Judicial Department, fine, you want it to have an internal ombuds for your ordinary 30 workplace culture kinds of issues. Whether they be discrimination, harassment, or just people being 31 uncivil, and you know, difficult to work with. That that's within your Department, and that is reporting
32 at a very high level or to an advisory panel that has independence from from the Chief Justice or the 33 State Court Administrator, and so that it's a safe space. And that we then create a different and probably 34 smaller office that is independent within the Department as a place where almost anyone, including 35 litigating attorneys. Almost anyone, could go and say, I appear regularly in front of Judge so and so and 36 he or she says things that indicate that they hold a particular bias or prejudice. I don't know what to do
37 about that. If I file a motion to recuse, I'm kind of done for. But there's stuff on the record that sort of 38 shows that it's not just rulings. Let me stop sort of there. I mean, what about that kind of a concept of 39 two offices? Does that work in your mind, or does it set off warning bills?

40

1 Justice Marquez

2 I think that would work just fine. And in fact, it's my understanding, that the long Bill has allocated a
3 number of FTE for us to implement these Workplace Culture Initiatives. I don't think it would create any 4 fiscal impact to create the internal ombuds, because we would just prioritize one of those FTE for this
5 purpose. I hope that answers your question.

6

7 Sen. Gardner

8 No. that's helpful. At that point, I'm not sure you know, interestingly enough, I'm not sure that we need
9 to tell you how to run your Department. I mean, I kind of have a bias with this, even with respect to the 10 Executive Branch. Sometimes I say, well, we get into the business of trying to micromanage what you
11 do. I mean, I think maybe they say there's someone in Judicial that is the ombudsperson, and maybe we 12 set up the parameters of advisory but you might do that by judicial directive. I don't know what your 13 thoughts are on that.

14

15 Justice Marquez

16 I think the most flexible way to go about it would be to place it, if you're going to mention this in statute,
17 is to just say, go forth and put together a CJD, a Chief Justice Directive to implement this. That provides 18 some flexibility. But I think we feel strongly enough and excited enough about this idea, it's okay if it
19 winds up in statute. The parameters of it, or key components of a charter, or something to that effect. f I
20 could respond to your question by flipping the answer around. What would be potential problems with 21 converging the two concepts or making a single ombuds responsible for both? My concern about that is 22 at least certainly the way this bill is drafted. As I mentioned earlier, the meat of the bill does not lay out
23 what the ombuds is supposed to do for the staff on staff, ordinary workplace concerns. More
24 importantly, the selection board, which I think is technically more of an advisory board, does not contain 25 any appointments on it of persons who have any knowledge of the Branch itself. So, if this ombuds is 26 intended to help the probation officer deal with a concern about a Court Executive or Chief Probation
27 Officer, there's no one on that advisory board who has any idea how Judicial operates. It doesn't contain 28 probation officers or court executives or active district court judges or anything to that effect. So I think 29 if you are going to merge the two at a minimum, this board has got to have some knowledge of how the 30 organization operates. I think the Department's first preference would be to separate the two functions.
31 But if, if that's not feasible for whatever reason, then I think we need to go thoughtfully about this so 32 that that employee workplace piece, which we see such value in for 4000 employees, is fully fleshed out.
33 I hope that makes sense.

34

35 Sen. Gardner

36 No, no, that's helpful. Because I share your concern. I mean, in every organization I've been at. And 37 that's from the United States Military, to corporate America, to the Legislature, if you don't understand 38 the organization and you don't have buy in from the organization, then the program probably just doesn't 39 work. Or it doesn't work the way it's intended to. And so I appreciate that. Is there anything else?

40

1 Justice Marquez

2 If I might just add a sentence or two to that. It's my strong sense that the purpose of the bill is not
3 intended to be adversarial. It's intended to help. It's intended to help. And if that's the case, then you
4 really do need to have, it would be helpful to add language to that effect that this is not an investigative
5 body. This is a body that is intended to be a safe space, simply to help provide information, layout
6 options, help an individual navigate the judicial discipline process, or if these two are converged, the HR
7 process, whatever that looks like. But if you are going to fold them all together, then it's under the 8 standards. This isn't me making this up. This is the International Organization of Ombuds saying the 9 best practice is to make sure that members of the organization are part of that advisory board.

10

11 Sen. Gonzales

12 Thank you, Justice Marquez This was an interesting dialog. Before you go, I want to see if there are any 13 questions from members of the committee for Justice Marquez. And seeing none, I want to thank you 14 again for joining us this afternoon and sharing your perspective.

15

16 Sen. Gardner

17 Thank you.

18

19 Justice Marquez

20 Thank you very much.

21

22 Sen. Gardner

23 Thank you.

24

25 Sen. Gonzales

26 That concludes the list of individuals who had signed up. Is there anyone else, either in the room or 27 online, who wishes to testify regarding House Bill 1205? Seeing none, the witness portion of this 28 hearing is concluded. Senator Gardner or Senator Moreno. Senator Gardner.

29

30 Sen. Gardner

31 Thank you, Madam Chair. Consistent with our treatment of the earlier two bills, I would request that 32 House Bill 1205 be laid over until Monday, April 24. And the meantime, maybe we can get a lot of 33 work done. Hopefully, that's long enough.

34

35 Sen. Gonzales

36 Thank you, at the sponsors' request, that bill will be laid over.

Appendix 27(z)

Hearing on HCR 23-1001, HB 23-1019, and
HB 23-1205 before the S. Judiciary Comm.,
Colo. Leg., April 26, 2023:

Appendix 27(z)(i)

Transcript;

Senate Judiciary Committee Hearing—April 26, 2023:
HCR 23-1001, HB 23-1019, and HB 23-1205

1 Sen. Gonzales

2 We will come back to order. We are taking up House Bill 1019 for action only. We are in the 3 amendment portion of this hearing. With that, I move L.003 to 1019. This amendment is in regards to 4 information sharing between the judicial oversight entities and the Commission and I ask for an aye
5 vote. Senator Gardner.

6
7 Sen. Gardner

8 Thank you, Madam Chair, and you and I have had this discussion. With respect, as your co-prime 9 sponsor, I urge a no vote. And just so I'm clear I'm holding L.003, to 1019. Okay, this is a provision to 10 deal with what is a, I think, a one-time dispute between the Commission on Judicial Discipline and the 11 Court about information sharing between the two entities. Frankly, when we hammered out 1019 back
12 during the Interim Committee, the intent was not to revisit a lot of these issues that we did not revisit.
13 The one that we did have was rulemaking with respect to the HCR, but not so. I think this is an attempt 14 by judicial discipline. I say this with respect, to take another bite at the apple after this bill got 15 formulated in the Interim Committee and went through the House. And it will upset, since I'm talking
16 about apples, it will upset the apple cart a good deal. So, thank you very much, Madam Chair, and let's 17 take a vote.

18
19 Juliann Jenson

20 Ms Jenson.

21
22 Juliann Jenson

23 Senators, Gardner.

24
25 Sen. Gardner

26 No.

27
28 Juliann Jenson

29 Coleman.

30
31 Sen. Coleman

32 Aye.

33
34 Juliann Jenson

35 Van Winkle.

36

37

1 Sen. Van Winkle

2 No.

3

4 Juliann Jenson

5 Rodriguez.

6

7 Sen. Rodriguez

8 Aye.

9

10 Juliann Jenson

11 Madam Chair.

12

13 Sen. Gonzales

14 Aye.

15

16 Sen. Gonzales

17 L.003 to 1019, passes or is adopted. I move L.004 to 1019. L.004, is in regard, it adds to the powers and 18 duties for the Commission on Judicial Discipline, the ability to evaluate potential misconduct by 19 magistrates in the same manner that it would for judicial misconduct by judges. I ask for an aye vote. Is 20 there discussion? Senator Gardner.

21

22 Sen. Gardner

23 Thank you, Madam Chair, again with respect, I actually believe that we need comprehensive reform of 24 the magistrate system, and I've said as much and said so made clear that I thought adding magistrates to 25 the Commission on Judicial Discipline Jurisdiction at this point is premature. Not because it might not
26 eventually need to happen, but rather because we need to deal with that in a separate bill next year, and I
27 would like to do that, and made that clear to the House sponsors as well, and I think that's why it's not in 28 the bill. I am somewhat surprised that the Commission on Judicial Discipline wants to get in the 29 magistrate business. I had always thought they wouldn't want to, but seems like they do. Because I think 30 they requested this amendment, but I asked for a no vote.

31

32 Sen. Gardner

33 I will withdraw L.004.

34

35 Sen. Gonzales

36 I move L.005. L.005, this outlines, and you'll see in a later amendment when we take up 1001, this is the 37 process of nominating. This shifts the process of nominating members to the Commission on Judicial 38 Discipline to. Currently, the way that it's drafted. Or currently the way that the process works is the 39 Supreme Court nominates the judicial members to the Commission on Judicial Discipline. This would 40 shift that to a nominating process that would be convened by the statewide associations of District and

1 County Court judges to determine and lay out a process to nominate these members to the Judicial 2 Discipline Commission. I ask for an aye vote. Senator Gardner.

3

4 Sen. Gardner

5 Okay, thank you.

6

7 Sen. Gardner

8 Not to break the chain, Madam Chair. I suggest a no vote. This was not something that we sought to do.
9 And there's a paired amendment in 1001, that would go with this. The state Supreme Court has made the 10 appointments to the Commission forever. It is not something that in the Interim Committee, we 11 suggested doing and if there is concern that the state Supreme Court should not be appointing members
12 to the Commission on Judicial Discipline, although they have since 1960 or something like that, then I
13 suggest we find another appointing authority. Whether that be a legislative appointing authority or 14 whatever. This suggestion that the statewide association of District and County Court judges, the trial
15 judges association should come up with rules, I think would lead to a scenario where there would be 16 people lobbying within the trial court judges association for the appointment. And that looks an awful
17 lot to me like, at best, a trade association trying to maneuver for places on a task force or working group,
18 and this is the Commission on Judicial Discipline. Again, if the concern continues to be that the 19 Supreme Court shouldn't make the number of appointments there on the Commission, even though, by 20 the way, they appointed the current members of the commission, I would think we ought to look at 21 another solution. An actual governmental, elected official or body that would make this rather than an 22 association. So I, with respect, I urge you no vote.

23

24 Sen. Gonzales

25 Further discussion? Ms. Jenson.

26

27 Juliann Jenson

28 Senators, Gardner.

29

30 Sen. Gardner

31 No.

32

33 Juliann Jenson

34 Coleman.

35

36 Sen. Coleman

37 Aye.

38

39 Juliann Jenson

40 Van Winkle.

1 Sen. Van Winkle

2 No.

3

4 Juliann Jenson

5 Rodriguez.

6

7 Sen. Rodriguez

8 Aye.

9

10 Juliann Jenson

11 Madam Chair.

12

13 Sen. Gonzales

14 Aye.

15

16 Sen. Gonzales

17 L.005 passes on a vote of three to two.

18

19 Sen. Gonzales

20 Any further amendments on 1019? Senator Gardner.

21

22 Sen. Gardner

23 Thank you, Madam Chair, a matter that did actually remain unresolved during our interim committee,
24 and that we talked about was the rulemaking authority. Under HCR 1001 and the re-engrossed version.
25 And this has been in the bill. If you go to page 10, line 21 this is actually language that got changed over 26 in the House. So, it is not as if this was language that came out of the Interim Committee and ought to 27 remain stable. There was a creation of a rulemaking committee, and rather than there being two 28 rulemaking committees, we had a determination over in the House that there ought to be one. Right now,
29 and this is important for other members to understand. Right now, the rule making committee, and this is 30 for the adjudicative process and other things of this judicial discipline process. The committee consists 31 of three members appointed by the Supreme Court, five members appointed by the adjudicative board
32 itself, and five members appointed by the Commission. That because the Supreme Court ultimately is an 33 appellate authority with very limited appeal authority, but nevertheless, an actor in the system, the Court
34 is seeking some balance. I move L.002 and L 002.

35

36 Sen. Gonzales

37 Senator Gardner?

38

39

40

1 Sen. Gardner
2 I'm looking at the wrong. In fact, I think I may be ahead of myself. I'm ahead of myself on the bill.
3 Disregard, never mind, it's late.
4
5 Sen. Gonzales
6 Thank you, Senator Gardner, totally understand.
7
8 Sen. Gardner
9 Nothing else on 1019.
10
11 Sen. Gonzales
12 Are there any further amendments on 1019?
13
14 Sen. Gardner
15 They go together.
16
17 Sen. Gonzales
18 Thank you very much. The amendment portion of the hearing has concluded. Senator Gardner, would 19 you like to make a motion?
20
21 Sen. Gardner
22 Thank you, Madam Chair. I move House Bill 1019, as amended to the Committee of the Whole.
23
24 Sen. Gonzales
25 Appropriations.
26
27 Sen. Gardner
28 Appropriations. Okay, we'll appropriate some money.
29
30 Sen. Gonzales
31 That is a proper motion. Ms, Jenson.
32
33 Juliann Jenson
34 Senators, Gardner.
35
36 Sen. Gardner
37 Aye.
38
39 Juliann Jenson
40 Coleman.

1 Sen. Coleman

2 Aye.

3

4 Juliann Jenson

5 Van Winkle.

6

7 Sen. Van Winkle

8 Aye.

9

10 Juliann Jenson

11 Rodriguez.

12

13 Sen. Rodriguez

14 Aye.

15

16 Juliann Jenson

17 Madam Chair.

18

19 Sen. Gonzales

20 Aye.

21

22 Sen. Gonzales

23 1019 passes on a vote of five to zero. Next, we'll take up 1001, for action only. Senator Gardner.

24

25 Sen. Gardner

26 Thank you. At this time, I'll move L.002. And I'd already started looking at the wrong document, and 27 was reading to you from 1001. This is the question of the rulemaking committee, and this would be part 28 of the Constitution. That is what the Concurrent Resolution is about. And I note to the members of the 29 committee, while it requires only a majority vote here this evening and a majority vote on seconds, it
30 will require two thirds vote at third reading. As I said, this is an attempt to get some balance between the 31 Court, the Adjudicative Board, and the Commission itself, because these are three different actors in the 32 judicial discipline system now. Whereas or will be once the HCR is adopted and passed by the voters.
33 So, what it does is, at page 10, line 21 we strike the five members of the Adjudicative Board and make it
34 three. As I was saying, Madam Chair. So, to back up just a little bit on page 10, line 21. There will be 35 on the rulemaking committee. This amendment would make it three members appointed by the 36 Adjudicative Board, three members appointed by the Commission. That would be three, three and three.
37 And then this would add three attorneys who have experiences respondent counsel in judicial discipline
38 proceedings, and they would be appointed by the Governor and one representative of a victims' right
39 organization appointed by the Governor, because there's some concern there. And then the amendment
40 would. Right now, again, this was new in the House. The rulemaking committee is to elect a chair, but

1 the chair is not only a member of the committee, but the Commission seems to think that it ought to also
2 be a member of the Commission. The Commission is the prosecutorial body here in the new system, not
3 an adjudicative body, and that seems inappropriate. So, we would just let the committee elect its chair
4 from among the members. So, if I haven't moved it, L.002, I move that and ask for an aye vote.
5

6 Sen. Gonzales

7 Thank you, Senator Gardner. Is there any further discussion? Seeing none. Ms. Jenson.
8

9 Juliann Jenson

10 Senators Gardner.
11

12 Sen. Gardner

13 Aye.
14

15 Juliann Jenson

16 Coleman.
17

18 Sen. Coleman

19 Aye.
20

21 Juliann Jenson

22 Van Winkle.
23

24 Sen. Van Winkle

25 Aye.
26

27 Juliann Jenson

28 Rodriguez.
29

30 Sen. Rodriguez

31 Aye.
32

33 Juliann Jenson

34 Madam Chair.
35

36 Sen. Gonzales

37 Aye.
38

39 Sen. Gonzales

40 L.002 to 1001, passes on a 5-0 vote.

1 Sen. Gardner
2 Thank you, Madam Chair. I have no further.

3
4 Sen. Gonzales
5 In that case, I move L.004 to 1001. This amendment, similar to the discussion that we had on 1019,
6 would shift the appointment authority from the Supreme Court to the active district judges and county
7 court judges of the state as provided by law. This would be the accompanying language in the 8 recommendation to the constitutional change, and I ask for an aye vote. Senator Gardner.

9
10 Sen. Gardner
11 Thank you, Madam Chair. Consistent with my position on 1019, I ask for a no vote. I would note that if 12 the provision that was placed in 1019 is to work and be authorized by statute that L.004 would have to 13 pass.

14
15 Sen. Gonzales
16 That is correct. That is correct. Is there any further discussion? Seeing none. Ms. Jenson, please poll the 17 members.

18
19 Juliann Jenson
20 Senators, Gardner.

21
22 Sen. Gardner
23 Aye, or no, no.

24
25 Juliann Jenson
26 Coleman.

27
28 Sen. Coleman
29 Aye.

30
31 Juliann Jenson
32 Van Winkle.

33
34 Sen. Van Winkle
35 No.

36
37 Juliann Jenson
38 Rodriguez.

39
40

1 Sen. Rodriguez

2 Aye.

3

4 Juliann Jenson

5 Madam Chair

6

7 Sen. Gonzales

8 Aye.

9

10 Sen. Gonzales

11 L.004 to 1001, passes on a vote of three to two. Are there any further amendments? Seeing none, the 12 amendment portion of the hearing has concluded. Senator Gardner.

13

14 Sen. Gardner

15 Thank you, Madam Chair. I move HCR 1001 to committee on appropriations. That again.

16

17 Sen. Gonzales

18 Fascinating, that a concurrent resolution would go to the aprobs, but it's fine, we can send them all.

19

20 Sen. Gardner

21 I don't want to go there. I don't want to go there if I don't have to,

22

23 Sen. Gardner

24 Okay, I move HCR 1001 to the Committee on Appropriations.

25

26 Sen. Gonzales

27 That is a proper motion.

28

29 Sen. Gardner

30 As amended.

31

32 Sen. Gonzales

33 As amended. Ms Jenson.

34

35 Juliann Jenson

36 Senators, Gardner.

37

38 Sen. Gardner

39 Aye.

40

1 Juliann Jenson
2 Coleman.
3
4 Sen. Coleman
5 Aye.
6
7 Juliann Jenson
8 Van Winkle.
9
10 Sen. Van Winkle
11 Aye.
12
13 Juliann Jenson
14 Rodriguez.
15
16 Sen. Rodriguez
17 Aye.
18
19 Juliann Jenson
20 Madam Chair.
21
22 Sen. Gonzales
23 Aye.
24
25 Sen. Gonzales
26 That passes on a vote of five to zero.
27
28 Sen. Van Winkle
29 Appropriations on consent vote.
30
31 Sen. Gonzales
32 There you go.
33
34 Sen. Gonzales
35 Senator Moreno.
36
37 Sen. Van Winkle
38 What is happening?
39
40

1 Sen. Gonzales

2 Glad for you to join us.

3

4 Sen. Gonzales

5 Our last bill, our last bill up is House Bill 1205. Senator Gardner.

6

7 Sen. Gardner

8 Thank you, Madam Chair, and I move house bill 1205 to the committee on appropriations. And if we're 9 open for amendments, I will begin moving amendments. By way of explanation, before I start doing
10 this, Madam Chair and I, along with the Majority Leader asked the Women's Bar Association, the 11 Colorado Bar Association, CCASA, the judicial discipline commission, and the Judicial Department to 12 get in a room and deal with the uncertain situation or status of the ombuds bill. That has produced a
13 whole series of amendments, which I am told, and I'll note where otherwise, but I am told are consensus 14 amendments, and that there will be some need, on seconds to do some refinement of these amendments.
15 But having said that, let me start. I move L.015. This is a simple one-word change. Changes the word
16 report to submit. The new language says the ombudsman duties and function includes to submit 17 complaints to the appropriate entity only at the discretion and to consider the complainant rather than to 18 report complaints.

19

20 Sen. Gonzales

21 Is there any further discussion on L.015? Is there opposition to L.015? L.015, is adopted. Senator
22 Gardner.

23

24 Sen. Gardner

25 Thank you. I move L.016. L.016, is a series of changes. At its core, it says the ombuds office needs to be 26 in a building that's not managed by the Judicial Department for independence, the qualifications for the 27 appointing authorities to consider in potential board members for the ombuds office. In other words, its 28 board should include people with experience in employee harassment, experience as an employment
29 attorney, or experience as a victim's right advocate. So, it kind of refines the understanding of who 30 would be the board for the ombuds office, which has the important duty of oversight of the ombudsman,
31 him or herself. I ask for an aye vote.

32

33 Sen. Gonzales

34 Thank you for the overview, Senator. If you want to jump in, Senator Moreno, feel free. Okay, yeah, 35 exactly. Is there any further discussion on L.016? Is there objection to L 016? Seeing none, L.016, is 36 adopted. Senator Gardner.

37

38

39

40

1 Sen. Gardner

2 Thank you, Madam Chair. I move L.021. This is a really important amendment. Right now, in 1205, the 3 Ombuds Office statute. It's enabling statute is in Title 50, which all other Judicial Branch agencies,
4 organizations, and businesses are in Title 13, and that's all it does. I ask for an aye vote.

5

6 Sen. Gonzales

7 Thank you. Is there further discussion on L.021? Is there opposition? Seeing none? L.021 is adopted.
8 Senator Gardner.

9

10 Sen. Gardner

11 Thank you. I move L.025. I jumped all the way to 25. This adds language that encourages the new office
12 to adopt best practices of an organizational ombudsman. This is reference to the standards of practice
13 and code of ethics established by the International Ombuds Association for an organizational 14 ombudsman with four key principles: confidentiality, independence, informality, and impartiality. This 15 was a consensus amendment as well. I ask for an aye vote.

16

17 Sen. Gonzales

18 Is there further discussion? Is there opposition? Seeing none, L.025, is adopted. Senator Gardner.

19

20 Sen. Gardner

21 Thank you, I move L.026. This was some changes designed for the purpose of promoting confidentiality
22 and informality in the Ombuds Office. Lines 1 through 7 of the amendment adds a data reporting section
23 of the bill, and basically says the office shall report any data that could be presented in a manner that 24 would violate confidentiality of anyone, is not to be included in that report. So it's it's a guarantee of 25 confidentiality. Line 10 and 11 of the amendment strike a paragraph from the bill that would have 26 required the ombudsman to report certain information to the discipline commission. Overall, the 27 package has amendments that removes any mandate of reporting to formal discipline bodies and gives 28 the ombudsman the option to do that if the plaintiff, the complaint consents. As Senator Moreno, Mr.
29 Majority Leader and I will recall when we served on the legislative workplace interim committee
30 together, one of the major concerns was when a complainant goes to and in this case, in the legislative it
31 was to that office, the complainant needed to have control over whether their complaint went forward or 32 whether they preferred to have it handled informally, or whatever. This this is the same concept, and I
33 ask for an aye vote.

34

35 Sen. Gonzales

36 Thank you for the overview, Senator Gardner. Colleagues, do we have further discussion? Is there 37 opposition? Seeing none, L 026 is adopted. Senator Gardner.

38

39 Sen. Gardner

40 I move L.028. This This changes the term . .

1 Sen. Gonzales

2 Senator Gardner, did you mean to move L.027?

3

4 Sen. Gardner

5 I do not. Oh, I don't have an explanation for L.027. We're not doing L.027, that's why.

6

7 Sen. Gonzales

8 Senator Gardner.

9

10 Sen. Gardner

11 Thank you. I move L.028. And the bill has the term judicial personnel, is a description of who would be 12 affected, but in fact, that reference ought to be to the complainant in other places in the bill, and that 13 cleans up the language. I ask for an aye vote.

14

15 Sen. Gonzales

16 Thank you for the overview. Is there any discussion? Is there opposition? Seeing none, L.028, is 17 adopted. Senator Gardner.

18

19 Sen. Gardner

20 Thank you. I move L.029. This refines some language about the role of the ombuds to better reflect a
21 shared understanding of the role amongst all those stakeholders. It says that the ombuds facilitates
22 communication, rather than initiating contact with someone or initiating resolution. That's for others to 23 do. The ombuds is to assist the complainant in however they wish to proceed. And as an additional 24 provision concerning confidentiality, I ask for an aye vote.

25

26 Sen. Gonzales

27 Is there any further discussion? Is there opposition? L.029 is adopted. Senator Gardner.

28

29 Sen. Gardner

30 Madam Chair, I move L.030. This amends the legislative declaration to clarify that the ombudsperson In 31 that office is not an investigative office. It's not adversarial. It doesn't replace any investigative body, 32 such as the Commission, but provides resources from complainants to access those bodies. Again, it's,
33 dare I say it's a navigator, among other things. And so I ask for an aye vote on L.030.

34

35 Sen. Gonzales

36 Thank you. Senator Gardner, do you have, is there any discussion? Is there opposition to L.030? Seeing 37 none, L.030 is adopted. Senator Gardner.

38

39

40

1 Sen. Gardner

2 I move L.031. This cleans up the SMART Act obligations in the bill. This was just not bolded on my
3 sheet to ensure that the proper department, the Judicial Department is identified. And the introduced
4 version of the bill included an executive branch department when that department is no longer in the bill,
5 so they will be part of the Judicial like other independent agencies, part of the Judicial SMART Act
6 hearings I ask for an aye vote on L.031.

7

8 Sen. Gonzales

9 Thank you, Senator Gardner. Is there further discussion? Is there opposition? Seeing none, L.031 is 10 adopted. Senator Gardner.

11

12 Sen. Gardner

13 Thank you, Madam Chair. I move L.032, so I can talk about it, first and foremost. This amendment was 14 not a consensus amendment amongst the stakeholders. There's consensus about the concept. But the 15 specific language is kind of in dispute, and I guess, having said that, what it's about, just to acquaint the 16 committee, is about a liaison to serve the office of the ombudsman, and at least one liaison to serve the 17 board. And having said that, I'm going to withdraw L.032 because there's not consensus.

18

19 Sen. Gonzales

20 L.032 is withdrawn. Senator Gardner.

21

22 Sen. Gardner

23 Thank you, Madam Chair, and I need to look at L.033, a moment here. It's also a liaison amendment, 24 and I think it's a different approach to that that I will not offer this evening either.

25

26 Sen. Gonzales

27 L.033 is not moved.

28

29 Sen. Gardner

30 Not moved. And we probably will visit that issue on second reading.

31

32 Sen. Gonzales

33 Thank you, Senator Gardner. Colleagues, are there any further amendments? Going once? Seeing none, 34 the amendment portion of the hearing has concluded. Senator Gardner.

35

36 Sen. Gardner

37 Thank you, Madam Chair. I move House Bill 1205 to the Committee on Appropriations, as amended 38 with favorable recommendation.

39

40

1 Sen. Gonzales
2 That is a proper motion. Colleagues, any discussion?

3
4 Sen. Gardner
5 Offer the majority leader a wrap up.

6
7 Sen. Gonzales
8 Mr. Majority Leader. I will just say that I am grateful to all of the people who have, the stakeholders
9 following the hearing that we had. Just a few days ago, that feels like a very long time ago. And the 10 ways that people have been able to come together and find many points of consensus. There are still 11 points of disagreement, but there are lots of points of consensus, and so I am appreciative of everyone
12 who has been engaged in that work. And thank you, Senator Gardner, for preparing all of those 13 amendments. Ms. Jenson, or Senator Gardner.

14
15 Sen. Gardner
16 Thank you. I just wanted to echo your expression of gratitude to those stakeholders. I think these aren't 17 easy meetings. I think they're stressful. I think people have very entrenched positions, and they have to 18 find their way through that, and when we ask them to do it, I appreciate the fact that they respond and do
19 the really, really hard work that needs to be done here. I do want to thank the Majority Leader for being 20 my co-prime sponsor and helping shepherd this through. We've got work to do on the floor. I understand
21 he has some influence on the floor of the Senate, and with that, thank Madam Chair. And I thank the 22 drafter and the stakeholders for putting together my cheat sheet, frankly, of the amendments they agreed 23 upon and ask for an aye vote.

24
25 Sen. Gardner
26 Ms Jenson.

27
28 Juliann Jenson
29 Senators, Gardner.

30
31 Sen. Gardner
32 Aye.

33
34 Juliann Jenson
35 Coleman.

36
37 Sen. Coleman
38 Aye.

39
40

1 Juliann Jenson

2 Van Winkle.

3

4 Sen. Van Winkle

5 No for today.

6

7 Juliann Jenson

8 Rodriguez.

9

10 Sen. Rodriguez

11 Aye.

12

13 Juliann Jenson

14 Madam Chair.

15

16 Sen. Gonzales

17 Aye.

18

19 Sen. Gonzales

20 That bill passes on a vote of four to one. It wasn't 15 minutes, but it was really, I think, speedy for 21 Judiciary. Thank you all. We stand in adjournment. Get home safe.

Appendix 27(z)(ii)

Exhibits and Hearing Materials:

Appendix 27(z)(ii)(1)

Amendments;

HCR1001_L.002

SENATE COMMITTEE OF REFERENCE AMENDMENT

Committee on Judiciary.

HCR23-1001 be amended as follows:

1 Amend reengrossed resolution, page 10, line 21, strike "FIVE" and 2 substitute "THREE" and strike "AND".

3 Page 10, line 22, strike "FIVE" and substitute "THREE" and strike
4 "COMMISSION." and substitute "COMMISSION, THREE ATTORNEYS WHO
5 HAVE EXPERIENCE AS RESPONDENT COUNSEL IN JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE
6 PROCEEDINGS APPOINTED BY THE GOVERNOR, AND ONE REPRESENTATIVE
7 OF A VICTIMS' RIGHTS ORGANIZATION APPOINTED BY THE GOVERNOR."

8 Page 10, lines 24 and 25, strike "COMMITTEE AND COMMISSION." and 9 substitute "COMMITTEE."

** ** ** ** **

HCR1001_L.004

SENATE COMMITTEE OF REFERENCE AMENDMENT

Committee on Judiciary.

HCR23-1001 be amended as follows:

- 1 Amend rengrossed resolution, page 3, line 14, strike "the supreme court;"
- 2 and substitute "~~the supreme court~~; THE ACTIVE DISTRICT JUDGES AND
- 3 COUNTY COURT JUDGES OF THE STATE, AS PROVIDED IN LAW;".

** *** ** *** **

HB23-1019 be amended as follows:

1 Amend reengrossed bill, page 3, after line 7 insert:

2 "SECTION 2. In Colorado Revised Statutes, 13-5.3-105, amend
3 (3) as follows:

4 13-5.3-105. Information-sharing with judicial oversight
5 entities - legislative declaration. (3) When a judicial oversight entity
6 receives information indicating or alleging potential judicial misconduct,
7 the entity shall share the portion of the complaint alleging judicial 8 misconduct with the commission within a reasonable time. Thereafter, the 9 commission may request further material or information that the oversight
10 entity holds relating to the allegation of judicial misconduct. THE 11 JUDICIAL OVERSIGHT ENTITY SHALL PROVIDE THE REQUESTED MATERIAL
12 OR INFORMATION TO THE COMMISSION WITHIN FOURTEEN CALENDAR DAYS
13 AFTER THE COMMISSION'S REQUEST. THE JUDICIAL OVERSIGHT ENTITY MAY 14 NOT WITHHOLD REQUESTED MATERIAL OR INFORMATION THROUGH A 15 CLAIM OF PRIVILEGE OR CONFIDENTIALITY THAT IT HOLDS OR A CLAIM OF 16 CONTRACTUAL RIGHT OR OBLIGATION ARISING AFTER MAY 20, 2022, NOT 17 TO DISCLOSE, INCLUDING A NON-DISCLOSURE AGREEMENT. Any 18 information or materials received from the entity are subject to the 19 commission's rules of confidentiality."

20 Renumber succeeding sections accordingly.

21 Page 9, line 9, strike "2, and 7" and substitute "3, and 8".

22 Page 9, line 14, strike "2, and 7" and substitute "3, and 8".

** *** ** *** **

SENATE COMMITTEE OF REFERENCE AMENDMENT

Committee on Judiciary.

HB23-1019 be amended as follows:

1 Amend reengrossed bill, page 3, after line 7, insert:

2 "SECTION 2. In Colorado Revised Statutes, 13-5.3-102, amend
3 (2) as follows:

4 13-5.3-102. Commission on judicial discipline - powers and
5 duties. (2) (a) Members of the commission are appointed and serve
6 pursuant to section 23 (3)(a) and (3)(b) of article VI of the Colorado
7 constitution.

8 (b) PURSUANT TO SECTION 23 (3)(a) OF ARTICLE VI OF THE 9 COLORADO CONSTITUTION, THE MEMBERS OF THE COMMISSION WHO ARE 10 JUDGES OF THE DISTRICT COURTS AND JUDGES OF COUNTY COURTS ARE 11 APPOINTED BY THE ACTIVE DISTRICT JUDGES AND COUNTY COURT JUDGES
12 OF THE STATE. THE STATEWIDE ASSOCIATIONS OF DISTRICT AND COUNTY
13 COURT JUDGES SHALL JOINTLY DETERMINE THE PROCESS FOR APPOINTING
14 THE JUDGE MEMBERS OF THE COMMISSION BY THE DISTRICT AND COUNTY
15 COURT JUDGES OF THE STATE AND SHALL JOINTLY ADMINISTER THE 16 APPOINTMENT PROCESS. THE ASSOCIATIONS SHALL REPORT TO THE 17 COMMISSION WHEN A DISTRICT OR COUNTY COURT JUDGE IS APPOINTED TO 18 THE COMMISSION."

19 Renumber succeeding sections accordingly.

20 Page 9, line 9, strike "and 7" and substitute "3, and 8".

** ** ** ** **

Appendix 27(aa)

Hearing on HCR 23-1001, HB 23-1019, and
HB 23-1205 before the Senate Appropriations
Comm., Colo. Leg., April 28, 2023:

Appendix 27(aa)(i)

HCR 23-1001 Transcript;

Senate Appropriations Committee Hearing—April 28, 2023:
HCR 23-1001

1 Sen. Bridges

2 Yes, we're going to do HCR 23-1001, Senator Gardner.

3

4 Sen. Gardner

5 Thank you, Mr. Chair, I move House Concurrent Resolution 23-1001 to the Committee of the Whole.

6 This is our concurrent resolution associated with judicial discipline procedures and confidentiality that

7 came out of the Interim Committee, and I request an aye vote. It will require two-thirds on thirds.

8

9 Sen. Bridges

10 Good to know. Any further discussion? Seeing none. Please poll the committee.

11

12 Comm. Staff

13 Senators, Coleman.

14

15 Sen. Coleman

16 Aye.

17

18 Comm. Staff

19 Gardner.

20

21 Sen. Gardner

22 Aye.

23

24 Comm. Staff

25 Hansen.

26

27 Sen. Hansen

28 Aye.

29

30 Comm. Staff

31 Kirkmeyer.

32

33 Sen. Kirkmeyer

34 Aye.

35

36

1 Comm. Staff

2 Liston.

3

4 Sen. Liston

5 Aye.

6

7 Comm. Staff

8 Madam Vice Chair.

9

10 Sen. Zenzinger

11 Aye.

12

13 Comm. Staff

14 Mr. Chair.

15

16 Sen. Bridges

17 Aye.

18

19 Sen. Bridges

20 That bill passes a vote of 7-0.

Appendix 27(aa)(ii)

HB 23-1019 Transcript;

Senate Appropriations Hearing—April 28, 2023:
HB 23-1019

1 Sen. Bridges

2 Next up is House Bill 1019. Senator Gardner.

3

4 Sen. Gardner

5 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Well, the exception that proves the rule about good things happening, I move
6 House Bill 1019 to the Committee of the Whole.

7

8 Sen. Bridges

9 You're breaking your principle here, just like 10 minutes after you made it. All right. So, any discussion
10 of House Bill 1019? Seeing none, please poll the committee.

11

12 Comm. Staff

13 Senators, Coleman.

14

15 Sen. Coleman

16 Aye.

17

18 Comm. Staff

19 Gardner.

20

21 Sen. Gardner

22 Aye.

23

24 Comm. Staff

25 Hansen.

26

27 Sen. Hansen

28 Aye.

29

30 Comm. Staff

31 Kirkmeyer.

32

33 Sen. Kirkmeyer

34 Aye.

35

36

1 Comm. Staff
2 Liston
3
4 Sen. Liston
5 Aye.
6
7 Comm. Staff
8 Madam Vice Chair
9
10 Sen. Zenzinger
11 Aye.
12
13 Comm. Staff
14 Mr. Chair.
15
16 Sen. Bridges
17 Aye.
18
19 Sen. Bridges
20 That bill passes a vote of seven to zero. Senator Gardner.
21
22 Sen. Gardner
23 No.
24
25 Sen. Bridges
26 No consent calendar.

Appendix 27(aa)(iii)

HB 23-1205 Transcript;

Senate Appropriations Committee Hearing—April 28, 2023:
HB 23-1205

1 Sen. Bridges

2 Next up, we've got House Bill 1205. Senator Gardner.

3

4 Sen. Gardner

5 Thank you, Mr. Chair. I move House Bill 1205, to the Committee of the Whole and there is no 6 amendment.

7

8 Sen. Bridges

9 Is there any discussion? Seeing none, please poll the committee.

10

11 Comm. Staff

12 Senators, Coleman.

13

14 Sen. Bridges

15 Aye.

16

17 Comm. Staff

18 Gardner.

19

20 Sen. Gardner

21 Aye.

22

23 Sen. Hansen

24 Aye.

25

26 Comm. Staff

27 Hansen.

28

29 Comm. Staff

30 Kirkmeyer.

31

32 Sen. Kirkmeyer

33 Aye.

34

35 Comm. Staff

36 Liston.

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18 19 20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28
29
30
31

Sen. Liston

Aye.

Comm. Staff

Madam Vice Chair.

Sen. Zenzinger

Aye.

Comm. Staff

Mr. Chair

Sen. Bridges

Aye.

Sen. Bridges

That bill passes a vote of seven to zero. Is there? Senator Gardner.

Sen. Gardner

No.

Sen. Bridges

Did this pass unanimously out of committee?

Sen. Gardner

Yes, but we have further refinement.

Sen. Bridges

Ah, this will not go on the consent calendar. Trying to figure out how to not make this bounce.

Apologies that that last one was super loud.

Appendix 27(bb)

Hearing on HCR 23-1001 and HB 23-1019 before the J. Colo. Legis. Conf. Comm., Colo. Leg., May 8, 2023:

Appendix 27(bb)(i)

HCR 23-1001 Transcript;

Colorado Legislative Conference Committee on HCR 23-1001—
May 8, 2023

1 Sen. Gardner

2 The first conference committee on House Concurrent Resolution 1001 will come to order. Mr. Pogue, 3 please call the roll.

4

5 Staff Pogue

6 Representative Bacon.

7

8 Rep. Bacon

9 Here.

10

11 Staff Pogue

12 Lynch.

13

14 Rep. Lynch

15 Here.

16

17 Staff Pogue

18 Senators, Moreno.

19

20 Sen. Moreno

21 Here.

22

23 Staff Pogue

24 Senator Gonzales.

25

26 Sen. Gonzales

27 Present.

28

29 Staff Pogue

30 Representative Weissman.

31

32 Rep. Weissman

33 Here.

34

35 Staff Pogue

36 Mr. Chair.

1 Sen. Gardner

2 Here.

3

4 Sen. Gardner

5 We are all present. We just a couple of moments ago, had the conference committee on House Bill 1019,
6 which was the implementing legislation from our interim committee. House Concurrent Resolution
7 1001, again, is the product of a great deal of work, and here at the end, we had questions about how the 8 Rules Committee for the process would be made up. We think we've reached an acceptable compromise
9 on that. As well as doing a corresponding piece with respect to appointment of judges to the 10 Commission on Judicial Discipline. Actually, I'll handle that first. As you know, we created a process in 11 1019, the corollary to that in the HCR, it simply will say that the members of the Commission will be 12 chosen by the Supreme Court as provided by law, and the 1019 provision is the law. With respect to the 13 membership of the Rules Committee for the adjudicative process. We settled on four members
14 appointed by the adjudicative board, four members appointed by the Commission, one victim's
15 advocate, as defined by law or as defined in law, and appointed by the governor. And then we had 4-4-4, 16 as well. And with that, are there questions or questions for Mr. Imel? Representative Weissman.

17

18 Rep. Weissman

19 Thank you, Mr. Chair. No questions. Just on the latter point of the rulemaking committee, I feel that 20 we've landed in an appropriate place. I considered it a bit of unfinished work from the interim process
21 that we had two different rule structures. I think it's important that we've unified them here. I think the 4-
22 4-4 membership is fair and appropriate, glad to see, and I think it was the Senate that first introduced
23 this concept, that we refined just a bit here. I think it makes sense to add the one victim advocate
24 appointed by the Governor. That, first of all, keeps us from having an even number, which we generally
25 don't want to have. And it adds an important perspective. I think we heard throughout the interim and 26 this year, that given that we just didn't think about those considerations dating back decades ago. But we 27 know that we now need to. This is an appropriate way to bring that perspective to the rules that will 28 inform the process that involves complainants or victims, if you will. I think the phrasing here is 29 appropriate, a victim's advocate as defined by law. We already have an existing definition of that in 13-
30 90 that's well understood by the relevant stakeholders, and I think that provides clear direction to the 31 Governor. So, thank you.

32

33 Sen. Gardner

34 Thank you. Anyone else? I want to express my gratitude for everyone's work on HCR 1001, as well as 35 1019, it has not been easy at all. A lot of thought has gone into where we are today and what the 36 compromises are to ensure an accountable and transparent Judicial Branch. I appreciate their joining in 37 that effort and the Commission as well. And with that, I will entertain a motion. Representative 38 Weissman.

39

40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Thank you. I move for the adoption of CL HR 1001.001 draft conference report dated 5/7.

3

4 Sen. Gardner

5 That's a proper motion. Any discussion? Mr. Pogue, please call the roll.

6

7 Staff Pogue

8 Representatives, Bacon.

9

10 Rep. Bacon

11 Yes.

12

13 Staff Pogue

14 Lynch.

15

16 Rep. Lynch

17 Yes.

18

19 Staff Pogue

20 Senators, Moreno.

21

22 Staff Pogue

23 Aye.

24

25 Staff Pogue

26 Gonzales.

27

28 Staff Pogue

29 Aye.

30

31 Staff Pogue

32 Representative Weissman.

33

34 Staff Pogue

35 Yes.

36

37 Staff Pogue

38 Mr. Chair.

39

40

1 Sen. Gardner

2 Aye.

3

4 Sen. Gardner

5 And that passes six zero. Anything further from anyone? With that, saying nothing further, the first 6 conference committee on HCR 23-1001 is adjourned.

Appendix 27(bb)(ii)

HB 23-1019 Transcript;

Colorado Legislative Conference Committee HB 23-1019—
May 8, 2023

1 Rep. Weissman

2 All right, the conference committee for House Bill 1019 will come to order, if Mr. Pogue would kindly 3 start us off by calling the roll.

4

5 Staff Pogue

6 Representative Bacon.

7

8 Rep. Bacon

9 Here.

10

11 Staff Pogue

12 Senator Gonzales.

13

14 Sen. Gonzales

15 Present.

16

17 Staff Pogue

18 Representative Lynch

19

20 Rep. Lynch

21 Here.

22

23 Staff Pogue

24 Senators, Moreno.

25

26 Sen. Moreno

27 Here.

28

29 Staff Pogue

30 Gardner.

31

32 Sen. Gardner

33 Here.

34

35 Staff Pogue

36 Mr. Chair

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Here.

3

4 Rep. Weissman

5 Everyone is present. So, members, this is the companion bill that accompanies the concurrent resolution,
6 which will be the next conference committee. This is the bulk of the work of the judicial discipline
7 interim committee, I think members have the 5/7 draft of CL HB 1019.001. This draft conference
8 committee report rolls up some conversations that a number of us have been having. It closely kind of 9 fits with an amendment that I believe is going to be considered in the next conference committee, but 10 what we have in front of us is some new proposed language to address the question of how judge
11 appointees are made to the Commission. I'll leave off talking about the concurrent resolution, because 12 that's not really before us. But what we have here is essentially a compromise approach that's been 13 worked out. And just to sort of state it briefly for the record, there is a semi-random process by which 14 there will be an administrative or ministerial selection from all of the district judges in the state of 10
15 unless any who may have a disciplinary history, we've used language already used in the concurrent
16 resolution for that purpose. And, then, the Supreme Court will pick two of that 10. Likewise, for the 17 county judge appointments to be made to the Commission, there will be a ministerial random selection
18 of 10 from all serving county judges, again, less those with any disciplinary history. The Supreme Court
19 will pick two. We have language also to make sure that there's only one county judge from any of our 64
20 counties and one district judge from any of our judicial districts. Is there any questions or discussion
21 about the draft conference report? Senator Gonzales.

22

23 Sen. Gonzales

24 Thank you, Mr. Chair. No questions, but just gratitude for the many conversations between us as the 25 conference committee and then also with the many stakeholders that led to this first report, thank you.

26

27 Rep. Weissman

28 Thank you, Senator. A lot of us have put a great deal of time in and appreciate everyone. Senator
29 Gardner.

30

31 Staff Pogue

32 Are you ready for a motion? Yeah, sure. Senator Gardner.

33

34 Sen. Gardner

35 Thank you, Mr. Chair, I move the first report of the first conference committee that's denominated as CL 36 HB 1019.001.

37

38 Rep. Weissman

39 All right, the draft conference committee report has been moved. Members. Any last discussion? Seeing 40 none. Mr. Pogue kindly call the roll on the adoption of the conference committee draft report.

1 Staff Pogue
2 Representative Bacon.

3
4 Rep. Bacon
5 Yes.

6
7 Staff Pogue
8 Senator Gonzales.

9
10 Sen. Gonzales
11 Aye.

12
13 Staff Pogue
14 Representative Lynch.

15
16 Rep. Lynch
17 Yes.

18
19 Staff Pogue
20 Senators, Moreno.

21
22 Sen. Moreno
23 Aye.

24
25 Staff Pogue
26 Gardner.

27
28 Sen. Gardner
29 Aye.

30
31 Staff Pogue
32 Mr. Chair.

33
34 Rep. Weissman
35 Yes.

36
37 Rep. Weissman

38 All right, the draft report is adopted by a vote of six to zero. Members, that concludes our business. Mr.
39 Imel will walk us through signing the report, as we need to. With that, the conference committee on 40 House Bill 1019, will be adjourned.

Appendix 27(cc)

Hearing before the J. Budget Comm., Colo.
Leg., December 18, 2023:

Appendix 27(cc)(i)

ASIA Bd. Presentation Transcript;

Legislative Joint Budget Committee—December 18, 2023 Hearing: Presentation of the Administrative Services for Independent Agencies (ASIA) Board

1 Sen. Zenzinger

2 The Joint Budget Committee will now come back to order. Welcome back from lunch, everyone. We 3 will get right to it and begin our afternoon agenda with a hearing for the Administrative Services for 4 Independent Agencies. And welcome Board Chair. Ms. Villafeurte.

5

6 Stephanie Villafeurte

7 Thank you very much. And members of the committee, it's a pleasure to see you today. I am going to 8 just take the next several minutes to update you on where we are in terms of our progress on the 9 Administrative Services for Independent Agencies Board. As all of you know, last year in Senate Bill
10 23-228, this committee created, if you will, and established the Office of Administrative Services for 11 Independent Entities. The idea was to try to consolidate, really, in terms of cost and efficiency, services 12 that are provided to independent agencies, which tend to be relatively small and or moderate sized 13 compared to its larger state counterparts. The purpose, again, is to provide centralized services and 14 administrative support. I do want to extend my thanks from the Board to Mr. Kemm, as well as to 15 members of this committee for setting this in motion. I believe it's an imperative service that will be 16 offered to all of the agencies involved. I'm going to skip straight to just really the mandates that the 17 statute created for this Board.

18

19 Stephanie Villafeurte

20 Great. Thank you. And it'll be brief. Essentially, there are two statutory requirements for the Board,
21 immediately, if you will. And the first one was to secure a human resource consultant to aid the Board in 22 the development and the recruitment process for an Executive Director for this group. We in fact, did 23 hire that consultant in July of 2023, and that individual is a consultant with Coach Craft, Inc. She also,
24 Ms. Mahlin, has extensive experience, human resource experience with the Judicial Department. In 25 particular, prior to establishing her own consulting business almost a decade ago, I've listed all of the 26 steps that we have gone through with her assistance in helping us recruit the next Executive Director.
27 So, that was our first charge. The second charge was to hire the Executive Director by October of 23 we 28 are in the process of concluding that process now, with final interviews this week. We hope that we will 29 have an Executive Director hired by the end of this month and onboarded by January. There were delays
30 in this process, which, again, I have cited to in my letter. But I am happy to go through those in more 31 detail, if the committee requires. But essentially, where we are today is we are a working Board. We 32 have met over a dozen different times. The Ombudsman Office staff has dedicated countless hours to 33 this process, and we're all hoping for a successful outcome at the end of this month. And I'll be happy to 34 take any questions.

35

1 Sen. Zenzinger

2 And Ms. Villafeurte. Chair Villafuerte, before you go, I want to first check in with the committee, since 3 we only have 15 minutes for this portion of the hearing, and find out as we begin, are there any 4 questions you want to make sure get answered that you thought of that aren't addressed in the written
5 materials and you want to bring up now? Okay, seeing none, we'll carry on with your presentation.

6

7 Stephanie Villafeurte

8 Committee, do we have any questions?

9

10 Sen. Bridges

11 [Inaudible] this week?

12

13 Stephanie Villafeurte

14 Our final interviews are this week, correct.

15

16 Sen. Kirkmeyer

17 Perfect timing for your hearing. That's great. .

18

19 Stephanie Villafeurte

20 Yes, yeah, I wanted some good news for everybody.

21

22 Sen. Zenzinger

23 I'm seeing no questions. I'm bringing it back to you, Chair Villafeurte.

24

25 Stephanie Villafeurte

26 Great. Thank you. That would conclude my presentation at this time. And we can move to our next 27 segments, if that's okay?

28

29 Sen. Zenzinger

30 That sounds great. Okay, so we will move, then, to the Office of the Child Protection Ombudsman, 31 again with Ombudsman Villafeurte.

Appendix 27(cc)(ii)

Colo. Comm'n Jud. Discipline
Presentation Transcript;

Legislative Joint Budget Committee—December 18, 2023: Presentation of the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline

1 Sen. Zenzinger

2 The Joint Budget Committee will now come back to order. I guess we're two minutes earlier than I said I
3 would be. We'll go slow here. Just one member who's missing. Right, it does depend on which clock.
4 We are with the Commission on Judicial Discipline. Welcome, if you would, for the record, please 5 introduce yourself and the floor is yours.

6

7 Christopher Gregory

8 Good afternoon, Madam Chair and committee members. I am Christopher Gregory, Executive Director
9 of the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline. And as presented in our written materials and our 10 responses, the Commission is requesting a continuation of its current funding at fiscal levels for Fiscal 11 Year 2025. At this time, we believe that we have adequate resources to perform our constitutional 12 mandate. And I'm here merely to answer any questions that you may have.

13

14 Sen. Zenzinger

15 That is about the most efficient presentation, ever. Committee members, do we have any questions for 16 Executive Director Gregory? I know, we feel like we have to do something to justify your trip to the 17 committee. I don't know that we do. How are things going? Has anything changed that we should know 18 about? How have you been? Yes, you did. So hopefully things have improved since last year.

19

20 Christopher Gregory

21 Yeah, and I think they have, and largely because of the funding mechanisms this committee had created.
22 I can share. I had gone to some conferences earlier this year with sort of my counterparts from other
23 commissions around the country. And I think, universally, everyone was sort of amazed at what we were 24 able to accomplish. To have essentially a rainy-day fund, or that Special Cash Fund. If any exigency
25 ever arises, that we're able to immediately take action on those sorts of things. I think that that may be a 26 model nationally for what other commissions are going to be doing as they look for funding. The 27 resources that we have gotten, I do appreciate. Also, just information and Mr. Kemm, as part of our last 28 budget request, directed me to communicate with SIPA, the State Internet Portal Authority. And,
29 through that, we were able to redo our website without charge. A great example of how I think 30 efficiencies come out of good government and some of the structures that have come from over here. If 31 there is anything that, I guess, still needs to be done, we continue our conversations with the Judicial 32 Department about our facility. We still don't, after two years, have a lease, sort of confirming where 33 we're at right now. There is a process within the Carr Building to do a space needs assessment. And I'm 34 optimistic that, with the constitutional proposal, we will have a space that will meet both of our needs
35 and the new adjudicatory board that's being proposed to perform one of the functions right now, that's 36 kind of in house. But there's, I guess, creative things that can be done on a capital front to do that. And

1 I'm sure, once those plans are there, we will be back asking for money to build it. But, apart from that,
2 everything has just been going wonderful as far as our resources and our ability to function.

3

4 Sen. Zenzinger

5 That is fantastic news. Senator Bridges.

6

7 Sen. Bridges

8 Thank you, Madam Chair, that's it's great to hear. I know last year there was. It was not quite so rosy a 9 presentation. So, you've got your location squared away. You feel secure about that for the moment?

10

11 Christopher Gregory

12 It would help if we had a lease and we had some of the security concerns that we've raised addressed.

13 But yes, I think with the statute saying they have to keep us there in the Carr Building, somewhat secure, 14 where we're at.

15

16 Sen. Bridges

17 Great.

18

19 Sen. Zenzinger

20 All right. Well, this is wonderful. It's great to have the opportunity to touch base with you. And what a 21 great surprise to hear that things are going well. It's a marked difference from last year. So, very nice to 22 see you again, and thank you for making the time to come and visit with us, as briefly as you did.

23

24 Christopher Gregory

25 Thank you.

26

27 Sen. Zenzinger

28 All right.

29

30 Christopher Gregory

31 I hope everyone has a good afternoon.

32

33 Sen. Zenzinger

34 Thank you, you as well. So, that concludes our hearing for the Commission on Judicial Discipline.

Appendix 27(cc)(iii)

Colo. Jud. Dep't Presentation Transcript;

Legislative Joint Budget Committee—December 18, 2023 Hearing: Presentation of Colorado Judicial Department

1 Rep. Bird

2 The Joint Budget Committee will now come to order. Good morning, everyone. Happy Monday. We
3 have a packed agenda, as usual. And today, we get to begin with Courts and Probation. Just as a
4 housekeeping matter, before we dive into our agenda, I want to call to members attention that our order
5 of the day doesn't break out all of the topics that we'll be discussing. So, I'm going to be letting us know
6 at the beginning of each hearing about the time that has been allotted for each subject. That said, if we 7 have pressing questions, I want to make sure that those get answered. And for our presenters, we 8 definitely want to get through the content of your presentations, but want to make sure members
9 questions get answered that had arisen during the hearings. I think that will add the most value for all of 10 us. So, just judging how things are going, we might prioritize questions. I might check in with members
11 first to see if we have questions, before we dive into the substance of the presentations. And I think that's 12 it. And right now for the Courts and Probation, we are scheduled to be here through 10:30 so we have an 13 hour and a half for this part of the presentation. And with that, who would like to begin? Chief Justice
14 Boatright.

15

16 Chief Justice Boatright

17 Good morning and thank you for having us. I brought this up at the State of the Judiciary speech last 18 year, and the Court went out to all of the jurisdictions in our State. And we're one of the few entities I
19 think, that literally has somebody in every county in the entire State. And the Justices went out really 20 met nose to nose with every employee, and it became very clear that compensation and an opportunity
21 for advancement within the Judicial Branch are the priorities for our employees. I said this in the State
22 of the Judiciary speech, but it's something that really resonated with me. Is, we had one probation officer
23 who said, "I supervise sex offenders by day and wait tables by night." Another story is, and one of my 24 jurisdictions that I went out to was Jefferson County, where I was a trial court judge for 12 years, and 25 had a meeting. And we were talking with the clerks that worked directly with the judges. And one of the 26 clerks broke down and started crying and said, "I've been with my judge for over 10 years." And she 27 said, "I'm leaving, and it's not because I don't love my judge." She said, "I just can't work two jobs and 28 keep this pace up anymore." And she was leaving to go to a municipal court. So, our primary ask, and 29 we are doing this with the blessing of all of our judges around the State. I mean, we have needs with 30 regard to judges, and that's going to be a conversation for another day. Really, a desperate need for 31 judges. For example, our weighted caseload study showed that Arapahoe County needs eight new 32 District Court judges. Colorado Springs said they need 10 new District Court Judges. But all of our 33 judges around the State agreed that we would postpone that request because we want to take care of our 34 employees. And part of that is it leads to dramatic turnover in the Branch. And it's not good for the 35 citizens of the State of Colorado to have people constantly turning over that, then, need to be trained.
36 And, so, our primary ask is around compensation and a step plan. It's very similar to what the Executive

1 Branch is doing through the WINS program. There are some slight variations with regard to when we're
2 looking at an initial bump, albeit smaller than the Executive Branch. We want to do that at year-one and
3 a smaller bump at year-three, I think they have a larger bump, possibly at year-five. And that's because 4 we're losing people. We studied it, and we're losing people at year-one and year-three, primarily our 5 probation officers. And, so, that's our primary ask. That's our number one—compensation. Or, our 6 number one issue is compensation and this step plan. Because we also want to give our employees the 7 feeling and the opportunity to advance within the Branch. I think that's just good business for 8 government and it's best for the citizens. I will turn it over to Mr. Vasconcellos, our State Court
9 Administrator, to address other [issues].

10
11 Rep. Bird

12 Welcome. Mr. Vasconcellos.

13
14 Rep. Bird

15 I think that's perfect.

16
17 Steven Vasconcellos

18 Thank you, Madam Chair. Good morning, committee. My name is Steven Vasconcellos. I'm the State
19 Court Administrator for the Colorado Judicial Department, and, if it pleases the committee, I will dive
20 into our hearing document. Starting on page 1 with the common questions, first question asking us to 21 describe one time state and federal stimulus dollars that are not currently expended, along with plans for 22 expending those funds by December of 24. I think the committee already knows this, but by way of 23 reminder, federal guidance allows ARPA funds to be spent through December of 2026, as long as those 24 funds are encumbered by December of 24. The majority of ARPA funding that was appropriated to the 25 Department has been used, an overwhelming majority has been used in information technology. We've 26 discussed this with the committee previously. The marquee item within information technology has been 27 strengthening and expanding our network infrastructure statewide and also improving local Wi-Fi access
28 in courthouses and probation. There is a detailed list of projects within our written response to other 29 areas. I would highlight from ARPA spending our funding for the Eviction Legal Defense Fund and 30 funding for crime victim services. In order to fully utilize the stimulus funds within the time frames
31 allowed, we will be submitting a supplemental budget request for the current fiscal year and a budget
32 amendment to our FY 25 request for additional spending authority for the same projects. No change, no
33 change in scope, expansion, no new projects, just additional spending authority so that we can spend 34 down the funds by the Federal deadline of December of 26. Madam Chair, I'm just going to continue to 35 roll unless the committee has questions.

36
37 Steven Vasconcellos

38 Moving on to page 2 of our hearing document and Question 2: Describe budget requests that replace 39 one-time general fund or ARPA funding with ongoing appropriations. Our 11 request includes an 40 ongoing request for about $675,000 in cash fund spending authority from the Department's Information

1 Technology Cash Fund for ongoing maintenance costs associated with our software-defined wide area
2 network, SD WAN project. We are essentially done with the initial installation That was a key area of 3 spending with ARPA funding. I believe we're down to a couple of locations where we're working with 4 counties on building permissions. You may remember that the counties are responsible for providing the 5 courthouse space. So, we are guests there, and there's a high level of coordination when we're doing
6 network cabling. We're down to working with the 20th Judicial District--Boulder, and particularly the 7 La Plata County--Durango Location, in the southwest corner of the State. But, essentially, we are done
8 with the SD WAN project. The ongoing funding is for basically maintenance and running the SD WAN
9 system. Moving on to pages 2 and 3 of the agenda.

10
11 Question 3: Describe the impacts of implementing the compensation provisions of the WINS
12 Partnership Agreement. The Chief mentioned this briefly earlier, but the Judicial Department, strictly 13 speaking, is not subject to the partnership agreement. But statute does clearly guide us to take into 14 account the compensation and personnel structure of both the Executive and Legislative Branches, and 15 to match as closely as reasonably possible. It would be foolish for us not to match the compensation
16 approach, in large measure, presented by the other two Branches. We want to be competitive within the 17 state governmental sphere. We are losing folks currently to municipal government, county government,
18 in some cases, service industry. So, you know, in terms of the key provisions of the WINS agreement,
19 3% across the board. Yes, please. And we are also submitting, as the Chief mentioned, our version of a 20 step agreement. And there's a question later in our hearing document, asking for more specifics about 21 that. I'll get to that at that point. I'll just take a quick, deep breath and pause before I move on.

22
23 Rep. Bird

24 Of course, feel free to breathe as you present. [Laughing] of course.
25

26 Steven Vasconcellos

27 I'm still on page 3 of our hearing document. Question number 4: Please provide a list of budget
28 reductions the Department would propose if there were a 10% General Fund reduction. Approximately 29 90% of the Department's General Fund budget goes to personal services. The first dollar reduced in our 30 General Fund budget implicates staff cuts. By way of comparison, the 10% General Fund cut that the 31 Department experienced during the Covid-era budget reduction resulted in a loss of over 200 FTE
32 statewide. And that was including significant cash fund refinancing to keep the number of positions lost
33 that low. I can't say with absolute accuracy, what 10% would mean today. But just a couple of years ago,
34 it was 200 people, likely larger. We don't have the same cash fund posture for refinancing today that we 35 did then. So, it would be a fairly substantial negative impact to Branch operations and statewide.
36 Obviously, if the Joint Budget Committee feels it's necessary to reduce by 10%, we will work as close as 37 possible with the committee and your staff to try to minimize impacts to direct services to citizens
38 statewide. Moving on to the issue around R-2, the Department's case management system. I'm on pages
39 3 and 4 of our hearing document. Representative Taggart, you had asked whether this case management
40 system will be developed internally or by a third-party vendor. You had questions about the accuracy of

1 the cost estimate, and also asked us to discuss broadly timelines and the budget. The Department is
2 requesting funding with a multi-year spending authority to design, develop, and implement a new case
3 management system. Our current system is approximately the same age as my career, about 28 years. It
4 was developed in a language on a platform that folks are no longer trained. It is essentially a dead
5 programming language. Procuring assistance, currently, to make repairs and small changes based on 6 legislative changes, is extraordinarily expensive. The time has come, needless to say. We will not be 7 developing this system in-house. Running a software development shop is not our area of strength, and 8 so we will be going out to bid through, as you might imagine, a robust public procurement process with 9 requests for proposals to select a third-party vendor. The cost estimate, Representative Taggart, we 10 believe is as accurate as we can make it, with an asterisk. We've surveyed the current vendor
11 environment. There are some limits to the level of depth of discussions that we can have with vendors
12 without violating state procurement rules, but we have surveyed the current vendor environment. We've 13 also talked to several peer states around the country who have a similar, roughly similar, court structure
14 statewide as we do. To get their sense of impacts and cost. And, so, this is as best as we can do at the 15 moment, understanding it may change along the way. We have been in, for the last couple of years, 16 regular discussions with the Joint Technology Committee, with your committee about this. We intend to 17 be transparent at every step of the way to minimize surprise, particularly about cost.

18

19 Sen. Zenzinger

20 We do have a question. Senator Bridges.

21

22 Sen. Bridges

23 Thank you, Madam Chair. For a lot of statewide programs. For instance, like sales tax, just income tax,
24 things like that. I've been surprised at how few vendors there are nationally serving these kinds of needs,
25 even HR. So, curious what the landscape looks like for potential vendors on this.

26

27 Sen. Zenzinger

28 Mr. Vasconcellos.

29

30 Steven Vasconcellos

31 Thank you. Senator Zenzinger. Senator Bridges, there are probably half a dozen to eight vendors in this 32 space. So, we are anticipating competitive, robust feedback. There are three, probably two or three 33 marquee names that a lot of folks use. However, there are more than three who are capable of delivering 34 a system. So, we'll see where it all ends up.

35

36 Sen. Bridges

37 Great. Thanks.

38

39

40

1 Steven Vasconcellos

2 Senator Zenzinger. Representative Taggart, in our answer, we laid out in a fair amount of detail the main
3 project steps along with timelines. I will spare you a detailed recitation of that unless you have specific
4 questions. And I'll move forward. I'm on page 5 currently of our hearing document. Senator Kirkmeyer,
5 you had asked us to describe the use and revenue sources for the Judicial IT Cash Fund. Additionally,
6 you asked when the last time fees that support the fund were raised? The purpose of the cash fund, per 7 statute is for expenses related to the Department's information technology needs, broadly. So, that's 8 everything from network infrastructure, hardware costs, software costs, a limited amount of FTE. We've 9 tried to, as much as reasonably possible, keep our staff general funded, but there are some cash funded
10 personnel within that fund. We've provided a table in our answer, highlighting the main areas of use and 11 expenditure out of the fund. The last time. There were couple of areas of fee increases and public access
12 fees were increased by 10% back in 2019. And, then, during the budget downturn, during the pandemic, 13 we raised e-file transaction fees by 50 there was a category of fees that were raised by 50% there were 14 another category of fees that were raised by 100%. You can imagine these transactional fees were not 15 incredibly large to begin with. It's not like we were taking a $500 fee and making it 1,000 it was more 16 like taking a $7 fee and making it $15. But those were the most recent increases to the fees that drive the 17 cash fund.

18

19 Sen. Zenzinger

20 Senator Kirkmeyer.

21

22 Sen. Kirkmeyer

23 Thank you, Madam Chair. I notice we had the State Auditor here week or so ago. And I notice that this 24 is one of the funds that's out of compliance. So, my question would be, are you going to ask for a
25 waiver? I mean, understand, I think we heard even during our briefing, the reason why you're building
26 up our reserve in here. But you do need to ask for a waiver to be in compliance with the statute.

27

28 Sen. Zenzinger

29 Mr. Vasconcellos.

30

31 Steven Vasconcellos

32 Thank you, Senator Zenzinger. Thank you, Senator Kirkmeyer. We, in fact, have already asked the JBC
33 for a waiver. Senator Zenzinger sent a letter to the State Controller indicating that we have a waiver to 34 the end of Fiscal Year 2026. So, as we sit here today, we are in compliance. I can provide staff.

35

36 Sen. Kirkmeyer

37 [Inaudible] the audit committee. Sorry, thank you. It's possible they did.

38

39 Sen. Zenzinger

40 Okay, great. Good to know. Any other questions? All right, Mr. Vasconcellos.

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18 19 20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28
29
30
31
32
33
34
35
36
37
38
39
40

Steven Vasconcellos

Thank you, Senator Zenzinger. I am on pages 5 and 6 of our hearing document. Staff asked us to provide a history of fiscal note impacts in appropriations from the Judicial IT Cash Fund over the last three years. And, specifically, hone in on the impacts from those two possible case management system funding options. Long Bill appropriations for the IT Cash Fund have varied over the past three years. The Fiscal Year 21 cash fund appropriation totaled approximately $16 million. That number increased significantly to almost $25 million when ARPA funding was transferred to the IT Cash Fund and made available for specific projects. We've provided a table for FY 24 for our Long Bill appropriation. In the last three fiscal years, four bills have impacted the cash fund, reducing the amount available that could possibly be used to fund the case management system. Those bills and their impacts are highlighted. I'm happy to go through them in as much detail as the committee would want. But unless there are questions, I will continue to move.

Rep. Bird

We have a question. Representative Taggart.

Rep. Taggart

Thank you, Madam Chair. I apologize. I just want to go back to 2 for a second. I guess I would just encourage another increase in fees this year to avoid having to do those 50 and 100% increases. I realize it's on a small amount of dollars, but those kinds of increases shock people. So, I always encourage folks to try to do it incrementally, so you don't have to hit them again with that large of an increase.

Rep. Bird

Mr. Vasconcellos.

Steven Vasconcellos

Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you, Representative Taggart. It is under the category of lessons learned, even on small dollar amounts. It certainly got folks' attention and raised the ire of some. And we're always in a better position if we're doing ongoing maintenance rather than putting things on a dusty shelf for a while and then having gigantic changes. I appreciate the feedback. All righty. Committee, moving forward, I am on now page 6 of our hearing document and issue related to our request. R-7, the Carr Judicial Center. Question 1: Senator Kirkmeyer, you had asked if this was a request for general fund backfill, also to describe the policy intention and history of General Fund support for the Judicial Center. This request is for restoration of General Fund dollars that were cut from the Department's budget during the FY 21 budget balancing, during Covid The revenue for the Judicial Center Cash Fund consists of fees, filing fees, lease payments from the majority of agencies that occupy the Building. Not every agency receives funding for lease payments and parking fees that are paid by employees and members of the public that use a parking lot on 1255, Lincoln that's next to History Colorado. Per statute, the cash fund is used for expenses related to design, construction, maintenance,

1 and operation of the Building. The big piece there are our COP payments that we make, essentially our
2 mortgage payments for the Center. While not expressly identified in statute, I believe it was the intent of 3 the General Assembly that filing fees and the other revenue sources discussed above would cover all the 4 necessary costs. Unfortunately, in FY 15-16, filing fees did not come through as anticipated. Only about
5 three or four years into the life of the cash fund. And, at that time, the General Assembly gave the 6 Department a General Fund appropriation of approximately half a million dollars. That appropriation
7 was ratcheted down 2% every year subsequently, and replaced by higher lease payments by the other
8 agencies and ourselves within the Building until the Covid budget downturn. At which point, that 9 funding was cut.

10
11 Moving on to page 7 of our agenda, staff asked us to speak to Judicial Center Cash Fund sustainability
12 issues, the history of the cash fund, when the last time fees were increased and by how much, also to 13 provide a 10-year history of revenue and expenditures. To be clear, the filing fees that primarily feed
14 that fund are set by the General Assembly. So, that is not a fee that we can unilaterally raise on our own.
15 The fees that feed that fund have not been changed since the fund was created in 2009. We provided
16 almost three pages of details on the different areas of filing fees that are touched by the Judicial Center
17 Cash Fund. And in terms of sustainability, our next COP payment in March of 2024. We believe we are 18 on track to make without concern. However, the COP payment after that in September of 2024 may be 19 in jeopardy if the General Fund supplement is not restored to pre-Covid levels.

20
21 Committee, moving on to page 10 of our hearing document and Question Number 3. Senator Zenzinger, 22 you had asked us about the need for the request for legislation to repeal the current controlled
23 maintenance reserve in statute, and, additionally, asked us how we seek to address controlled
24 maintenance, in its place. Essentially, what we're asking for this year is a direct appropriation to the 25 Judicial Center Cash Fund line for controlled maintenance. The current Controlled Maintenance Fund no
26 longer receives funding. It originally received funding via the Judicial Center Cash Fund. So, money
27 was taken. There's no independent revenue source for controlled maintenance. It just drew money from 28 the main Judicial Center Cash Fund. And, then, that tie between the two funds was cut during the Covid 29 budget balancing in order to free up some revenue. So, as we sit here today, we do not have an incoming 30 revenue source for controlled maintenance. We have money in controlled maintenance, but we'll be 31 drawing that down until it is fully depleted. So, we're asking to reestablish funding for controlled 32 maintenance and in what we believe, in our opinion, is a slightly more simplified structure.

33
34 Rep. Bird

35 And we have a question, Madam Vice Chair.

36
37 Sen. Zenzinger

38 And are you separate, then from CDC in the existing controlled maintenance categories that we utilize 39 for the rest of the State?

40

1 Rep. Bird
2 Mr. Vasconcellos.

3
4 Steven Vasconcellos

5 Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you, Senator Zenzinger. Statute does require CDC review of our 6 controlled maintenance. There's actually a question later I believe in our document from Senator
7 Kirkmeyer. I'll just kind of jump to that as well. We're more than happy to have a capital development
8 committee review our controlled maintenance request. Nothing is scheduled at this time, but more than 9 happy to go through that. We have required reporting that is intended for the CDC. That shows up in our 10 annual budget request, that we provide. So, happy to go through CDC.

11
12 Rep. Bird
13 Madam Vice Chair.

14
15 Sen. Zenzinger

16 So, if you are a part of it, are you just struggling to get the attention of the committee in order to get your 17 controlled maintenance items prioritized? Or, what's the emphasis for doing a separate request in that 18 ordinary process?

19
20 Rep. Bird
21 Mr. Vasconcellos.

22
23 Steven Vasconcellos

24 Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you, Senator Zenzinger. Here, I think really two things to be candid.
25 One, we've had the good fortune based on the cash fund sources that were created by the General
26 Assembly and the General Fund supplement over the years to be in a really stable position and not need 27 to ask for money with any regularity. So, that's been nice. We are no longer in that process. And I will 28 readily admit that I, speaking for myself, am in a posture of learning more about the CDC process. That 29 has not been my area of expertise. So, I have more to learn.

30
31 Rep. Bird
32 Representative Taggart.

33
34 Steven Vasconcellos

35 Thank you, Madam Chair, maybe this is more a question internally. Do we need to initiate legislation on 36 these fees that haven't been increased in over 10 years?

37
38 Rep. Bird
39 Mr. Vasconcellos.

40

1 Steven Vasconcellos

2 Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you, Representative Taggart. Yep, that would be the General
3 Assembly's purview, to raise those fees. That has not, by observation, been an area of interest for the 4 General Assembly in recent years. But that would be a General Assembly initiated effort. We would be,
5 of course, very desirous of collaboration. Not all fees, as you imagine, are created equally. There are 6 some that are higher value, some that have different impacts to our communities. And we'd be happy to 7 work closely with you and your staff if the JBC is seriously considering fee increases.

8

9 Rep. Bird

10 Follow up Representative Taggart?

11

12 Rep. Taggart

13 No, that's helpful. Thank you.

14

15 Rep. Bird

16 Okay, thank you. Back to you, Mr. Vasconcellos.

17

18 Steven Vasconcellos

19 Thank you, Madam Chair. I am now on to page 11 of our hearing document. I believe we've answered 20 that. Senator Kirkmeyer, that was your question about CDC. I'm going to just breeze through that, unless 21 you have follow up.

22

23 Moving on also to page 11 of our document. Representative Sirota, you had asked us to describe the fees
24 and revenue sources for our Court Security Cash Fund, and to provide a brief description of how the 25 grant program distributes funding statewide. The cash fund consists of revenues from a $5 surcharge that
26 is assessed on a variety of initial docket fees in civil, probate, and water cases, along with a $5 surcharge
27 assessed on criminal convictions, adult criminal convictions and traffic infraction penalties. By statute,
28 there is created a Court Security Cash Fund Commission. That membership is made up of two county
29 commissioners appointed by the Governor, two county sheriffs appointed by the Governor, two Judicial 30 Department personnel appointed by the Chief Justice. It's usually one Court Executive and one Chief 31 Probation Officer. And one member of the general public, also appointed by the Chief Justice. That 32 Commission makes recommendations to the State Court Administrator on annual funding based on 33 requests. Grant funds may be used by counties for security staffing, which is the highest priority 34 identified in statute, also for the purchase of security equipment like magnetometers and structural 35 security improvements. Sometimes, there's some small capital improvements to entryways that can be 36 made under the fund to improve security. While statutorily, all counties in the State do qualify for funds, 37 a series of priority criteria are identified in statute, and money shall go to the counties who make 38 requests that meet the most of the priority, that meet the highest number of the priority criteria. There are 39 four criteria in statute. I won't go over them. They're listed in our answer. I will tell you historically,
40 counties that receive money regularly meet three or all four of the criteria. We're not, for example, not to

1 pick on the city I live in, here in Denver, but we're not providing money to the City and County of 2 Denver. As an example, while they're statutorily eligible, they don't really meet any of the four criteria.
3 So, the more affluent counties are not really receiving, and nor were they really intended to receive,
4 these dollars.

5
6 Okay. Moving on to page 13 of our hearing document. Senator Kirkmeyer, regarding our R-6 security
7 request. You asked, What does $2 million buy in terms of additional security? It's fair to note that 8 requests from eligible counties who meet priority criteria every year far exceed the amount that the fund
9 has to distribute annually. An additional $2 million would go a long way toward funding personnel 10 requests at courthouses and satellite probation offices that either lack security personnel or have 11 inadequate security personnel. And while personnel is the highest priority for funding in statute, it's also 12 our hope that an additional $2 million would make some headway into material cost requests, such as 13 replacement of X-ray machines and magnetometers. Chief?

14
15 Rep. Bird

16 Chief Justice Boatright.

17
18 Chief Justice Boatright

19 Thank you, Madam Chair. One thing that is kind of been moving in this direction is that our probation
20 officers are being moved off site, out of the courthouses. And that's presenting a lot of security issues. I
21 talked at the State of the Judiciary about two different instances where our probation officers had to 22 revive somebody because they had a drug overdose. We've had bathrooms closed because people are 23 bringing drugs into the probation offices. We've had a barricade situation, a situation where a client hid 24 in the bathroom until after hours and then was found sleeping in the office. A probation officer was 25 accosted leaving the probation office, and there wasn't any security around. So, through the last few 26 years, probation has been taking on more and more serious clients. And that's the prerogative of the 27 Legislature. But it is bringing up some additional security concerns for our probation officers who are 28 off-site. And the reluctance of the counties or the inability of the counties to provide adequate security.

29
30 Rep. Bird

31 Mr. Vasconcellos.

32
33 Steven Vasconcellos

34 Thank you, Madam Chair. Moving on to page 14 of our hearing document, JBC staff asked us to 35 summarize the process for and considerations given to the development of our compensation step plan.
36 The step plan, as you may have noticed, is included as part of our larger total compensation request this 37 budget cycle. Prior to the work leading up to this comp request, the Department's compensation system 38 had not received a thorough review or significant updates of any sort in over a decade. The 39 compensation step plan was developed in concert with a private vendor, Siegel Consulting, who we 40 identified through a competitive bid process. Siegel Consulting has national experience on compensation

1 issues with both municipal, state, and federal level court systems. The Department's step plan has some 2 key elements that are very similar to the Executive Branch. For example, trying to reach midpoint in the 3 range at 10 years of service. But as Chief Justice Boatright mentioned in his opening, there are a couple
4 of areas of difference between our proposal and the Executive Branch. The Executive Branch has fewer 5 step movements in their plan, but the individual step movements are much higher than ours. We have 6 more movement, but each individual movement is smaller. And, again, we're really trying, based on our 7 analysis of our turnover data, trying to hone in on where our pain points are for turnover. And it is in 8 early career before folks reach 10 years. And so we're trying to create some incentive for folks to stay.
9 Turnover is incredibly disruptive to operations. It's expensive from a training standpoint, I think there
10 are still a lot of folks who want to make the choice of service, but they don't want the choice of service
11 to also be a vow of poverty. So, we're trying to target those key turnover years with littler bumps.
12 Smaller bumps, I should say, in our plan.

13
14 Committee, I'm now moving on to page 15 of our hearing document. Between the next two questions,
15 staff has asked us to review and describe R-10 main decision items. We've provided written information,
16 written summaries. Obviously, you have the full write ups in our November 1 request. We have distilled
17 summaries in our hearing document. Madam Chair, I don't know that you want me to go through all 10
18 of those in any great detail. I might just highlight a few of them. I'm happy to slow down go through all 19 of them if the committee wishes, take questions on any of them.

20
21 But I will just highlight a few of those and call them out by number as I go through them. I will start
22 with request R-3. That is a request for court resources. I think if we had to sort of drill down the three 23 main spokes of the stool that represents our budget request this year, we've talked about class and 24 compensation. We've talked about addressing our IT debt via a new case management system.

25
26 But the final area I'd like to highlight through this part of the discussion is the need for additional 27 training resources. Since the pandemic era, we have experienced in both courts and probation
28 unprecedented turnover levels. It is just in the last fiscal year that we dropped below 20% annual 29 turnover year to year. We had been above 20% for the previous three, I believe, four years. That has 30 incredible impacts on training. My gray hair may give you some indication of how long ago it was when 31 I started off as an entry level clerk in the trial courts in the 4th Judicial District. But the kind of, sort of 32 what I would describe as training wheels, and ramp up period that I was able to experience as an entry
33 level staff person, simply isn't available today. And some of that is just sort of the evolution and change
34 of the work. But a lot of it in recent years has been the turnover. And we don't have the luxury of 35 bringing folks along. And, so, they are working in higher risk, higher exposure areas. Whether that's 36 supporting a judge in the courtroom on protection orders or criminal sentencing. Whether that's working 37 at the front counter, back in my day. Sorry, for the joke. But back when I was a young man, you were a 38 decade in before you were working face to face at the public counter, because you never know what the 39 next request for services could be. It could be any of the two dozen case areas that the Department is 40 responsible for. Now, we have folks within their first year, sometimes within the first six months, on the

1 public counter, out of necessity. So, our training needs are different than they used to be. Training
2 figures significantly into our staff requests across R-3, R-4, and R-5 for both trial courts and probation.
3 Pardon me, while I take a quick drink of water.

4
5 Rep. Bird

6 Of course.

7
8 Steven Vasconcellos

9 One other request I'd like to highlight across our decision items is request R-10. That is a Department
10 request, but strictly speaking, is not for courts and probation. I am also, for the purposes of R-10, here on 11 behalf of the Office of Judicial Performance Evaluation. They are, and while their budget is part of our 12 budget from an operational standpoint, they are an independent entity. They have a separate commission
13 that oversees their operations. Kent Wagner is their Executive Director. And we provide a certain level
14 of administrative support, including budget support and accounting and financial support for the Office
15 of Judicial Performance Evaluation. So, when they need additional resources, that comes through our 16 request. And I want to make sure I give their request due attention in this discussion. That is request R-
17 10. They're asking for some cash fund spending authority for an additional FTE. They are currently a 18 two-FTE shop. On election years, the main area of focus is preparing information for the Blue Book. In 19 election years and the majority of time in the off years, their time is spent training and educating and 20 supporting the local Judicial District commissioners in each of the 22 soon to be 23 Judicial Districts
21 around the State. They believe that they need, and we support this request on their behalf, an additional 22 training staff person so that they can spend more time training commissioners. There's kind of a constant 23 level of turnover in commission membership statewide. It is a volunteer position. Folks don't necessarily 24 do it for years on end. And, so, they are looking to actually double the amount of training and support
25 with this additional FTE that they are requesting cash fund spending authority for. As I mentioned, 26 Madam Chair. I'm more than happy to spend time on the other six or seven decision items that we have 27 in there, but I believe we've got solid write ups. Happy to answer questions that you may have or follow
28 up questions that may come from the committee via staff down the road. But, unless there are questions
29 right now, I'd like to move to the final issue in our hearing document, and that is the JBC staff
30 presentation at the briefing on competency. And the staff questions regarding kind of the current 31 activities in the trial court and at the State Court Administrator's Office. And, also, for us to comment on 32 JBC staff recommendations on additional resources. Chief, would you like to just kick us off generally?

33
34 Rep. Bird

35 Chief Justice Boatright.

36
37 Chief Justice Boatright

38 Thank you, Madam Chair. I think one of the misleading things or misperceptions is that Judicial drives
39 competency numbers. I was a trial court judge for 12 years, and I can't think of a single time where I was 40 the one who called for a competency evaluation. It's done by the people who know the defendants best.

1 It's the lawyers. And my sense of it is, is this is not a gamesmanship thing. I just think that we have a
2 real mental health crisis that is occurring. I can't imagine that any defense attorney would ever raise
3 competency and kind of put somebody in, drop them into neutral, for the length of time that they are 4 currently being housed in the jail. You know, the jails are not an appropriate place. And in terms of the 5 evaluation that the JBC staff put together, one thing that I would say with absolute confidence, that I
6 agree with, is that the competency procedure is not the place for holistic healing. With regard to our 7 people who are suffering through mental health issues, it is a very narrow focused, get them ready to be
8 able to go to trial and assist their attorney. And it's not a broad ranged, How do we make sure this person
9 stays competent and can function in society? We have a number of Judicial Districts that have created a
10 competency court. It's sort of a specialty court. I talked to Judge Susan Blanco, who's been a leader in 11 this area. She's the Chief Judge up in the 8th, which is Larimer County. She personally has taken
12 responsibility for the competency docket. And the way I would describe it, and she used this phrase, but 13 I think it's true. Is every Thursday morning, it's like a resource fair in her office. They're bringing in 14 people with regard to housing and mental health treatment and substance abuse treatment. But it takes 15 buy in from all of the stakeholders, the DAs and the PDs. Bridges is in the room helping to navigate 16 these things. You know, it's having people on misdemeanor counts being held for competency. Many 17 times, low level stuff is not very functional. And, so, they're trying to find ways to divert those 18 programs. And I would say that we're making a lot of progress in the Districts that are using the 19 competency court, and I think it's a model that is going to see more use throughout the State. Because 20 what we're doing, and I say we as a system, not we as just the courts, isn't working in terms of getting 21 people adequate treatment and getting them competent, at the very least. So, we support the judicial 22 process recommendations, agree to the identification of the need, and are willing partners as we go
23 forward to see how we can improve how we're dealing with our mentally ill people that come into court.
24 We end up being, Mr. Vasconcelos uses this phrase a lot. We end up being the catcher's mitt with regard
25 to where people end up when they have mental health problems. And we're really not set up to be a 26 mental health program for people. So, I do support the opportunity for us to look at how that is being 27 done, and we're willing partners in executing that plan.

28

29 Rep. Bird

30 We have a question. Madam Vice Chair.

31

32 Sen. Zenzinger

33 So, I had asked during the Human Services briefing if I could get a list of where those competency 34 courts are taking place, because I'm curious about geographically, where they're positioned in the State.
35 Are they? Do we have any in the rural areas? Although I understand that the greater drivers are probably 36 in the urban areas. And, so, I'm imagining that it's important to have a number along the Front Range.
37 But I think either you just said it, or they said it, that we have like eight of those competency courts. And 38 I think based on the write up and your last bullet point here about the importance of looking to invest in 39 long term sustainability of this concept, I would just be interested in that. In how we would go about 40 doing that in the next couple of years. Because, from the Human Services side of things, they spoke very

1 highly of it. They think that that is one area that seems to be working with regard to this problem. So,
2 how do you envision unrolling those in the next couple of years, and how do we go about that?

3
4 Rep. Bird

5 Mr. Vasconcellos.

6
7 Steven Vasconcellos

8 Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you, Senator Zenzinger. Of course, this is a much larger societal 9 challenge. We can by no means solve this on our own. But our courts statewide have very much reached
10 a place where doing the same old, same old, we can't expect a better or sustainable outcome. We 11 currently have nine. We are two weeks away from our 10th docket. Those locations are highlighted in 12 our response. However, I think to help with your question about sort of regional reach, we have 13 programs. Well, as of January 1, we will have a program in the 1st Judicial District, Jefferson County.
14 We have current programs here in Denver, the 2nd Judicial District, in Colorado Springs, the 4th
15 Judicial District, in the 5th Judicial District, which is the I-70 mountain corridor, Summit, Lake, Eagle
16 Counties. We have a program, as the Chief mentioned, in the 8th Judicial District, Larimer County, Fort
17 Collins, in the 10th Judicial District, Pueblo, the 12th Judicial District, which encompasses the San Luis 18 Valley, the 16th Judicial District, the Arkansas Valley in southeast Colorado, the 18th Judicial District, 19 South Metro here, and the 19th Judicial District, Weld County. This is really a grassroots effort, and the 20 leadership of our Chief Judges from around the State has been key. Sometimes I feel like the best
21 expression of our Office is when my Office is running to keep up to support the good ideas in the trial
22 courts and probation. And this is another one of those areas. Yes, by in terms of numbers, the volume is 23 here on the Front Range. But the challenges are just as pointed in rural Colorado as they are in urban 24 Colorado. And, so, that's where we're at. We currently are serving about 350 clients. We also have four 25 more Districts beyond those I mentioned, in a planning stage. That would bring us to over half of our 26 Judicial Districts statewide. This was alluded to earlier, but we have sustainability and funding
27 challenges. Sort of the roots of how this is coming up reminds me a lot of where we were 15 years ago
28 with problem solving courts. With us sort of banging our heads against the wall, same old, same old
29 approach. You know, just kind of focusing solely on the four corners of adjudicating cases. We were 30 seeing some of the same folks with substance abuse issues, over and over again. And the courts took the 31 leadership to engage in slightly differently. Yes, we're still going to perform our statutory and 32 constitutional function. But we have to also invest in the folks in front of us differently to help them
33 have a sustainable outcome, and not just a revolving door. We're in a very similar spot here. Which 34 means we're starting with already strapped existing funds, or short-term funding from the fines
35 subcommittee that was established in the federal settlement. And so those monies are not permanent, so 36 we've got a little patchwork of existing funding, fine settlement committee money, none of which is 37 probably sustainable in the long term. But we also are not in a position where we feel it's wise to lose the 38 good in search of the perfect.

1 Rep. Bird

2 And Madam Vice Chair.

3

4 Sen. Zenzinger

5 So, I missed the second and the fourth. I'm not familiar with the numbers and their associated Districts. I 6 was trying to write down very quickly 2nd and the 4th.

7

8 Rep. Bird

9 Mr. Vasconcellos.

10

11 Steven Vasconcellos

12 Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you, Senator Zenzinger. I apologize. I'm also a fast talker. The 2nd
13 Judicial District is here, the City and County of Denver, and the 4th Judicial District is the Pikes Peak
14 region, El Paso County and Teller County.

15

16 Sen. Zenzinger

17 Thank you.

18

19 Rep. Bird

20 I have a question, and this might be in your written documents, and I might have missed it. But is there,
21 it sounds like a lot of what's happening in the competency space, and the innovation is kind of, these are 22 green shoots that are happening pockets of innovation around the state. And is your Office aware of any 23 concerted effort for Districts to collaborate and kind of think about, how do we share best practices and 24 spread this out? Is there a working group, or how is this being coordinated so that more Districts are 25 hearing what's happening and what good ideas there might be?

26

27 Steven Vasconcellos

28 Thank you, Madam Chair, so our Office, the State Court Administrator's Office, also has received
29 funding from the fine subcommittee, and we have short term funding for basically a Program Analyst, a
30 program manager. And to tie together our Chief Judge's Council, which is made up of our Chief Judges
31 from around the State, is a highly engaged, highly collaborative body. They speak at least monthly.
32 There are individual conversations happening almost every day among Chief Judges. So, there is a rich
33 sharing of experience and information. And folks trying to like, here's what I'm struggling with in my 34 part of rural Colorado. Other Chiefs in different areas of rural Colorado, How are you addressing this?
35 So that set of relationships is very beneficial. But we're also getting organized in our Office to tie
36 Districts together, to tie the good ideas together, to start gathering data, too. The problem solving court 37 experience informed us that sometimes the thing that feels good in our gut to do isn't supported by 38 research, always. And, so, learning from that experience, trying to gather good information. We're in the 39 process of seeking out grant funds, this is mentioned in our response. Seeking out grant funds to do
40 some evaluation work up front, so we don't get quite as far down the road maybe as we did in the

1 problem solving court experience, before. We're doing a better job of identifying what the best research-
2 based practices are.

3

4 Rep. Bird

5 Chief Justice Boatright.

6

7 Chief Justice Boatright

8 Thank you, Madam Chair. One additional thing that I would add is I think that the reason that you're 9 seeing it kind of pop up in different areas in the State is because all of our different Judicial Districts
10 have such different resources available. And, so, it's got to be a localized program. I mean, when I came 11 from Jeffco down to the Supreme Court, I was really struck at the different cultures and different amount
12 of resources that were available in different Districts. So, what works in Denver probably isn't going to 13 work in Steamboat, for example. So, it's got to be kind of locally driven. But I think that, you know,
14 having personally started a problem solving court in Jeffco when I was the juvenile judge out there. It
15 takes a local person to have sort of the ability to bring people to the table and have that conversation and 16 to begin to examine what the resources are, to collaborate. You know, the good news is in talking to 17 Judge Blanco, the PD of the year and the DA of the year both came from her competency court. And, so,
18 I think that that is an indication that there's large endorsement. From really two of the primary 19 shareholders, so to speak, with regard to this, are the PDs and the DAs. Without their engagement and 20 cooperation, the competency court is not going to be a successful program.

21

22 Rep. Bird

23 That's really helpful. Senator Kirkmeyer.

24

25 Sen. Kirkmeyer

26 Thank you, Madam Chair. So, can you on page 23 you did start listing there's four items that you're 27 working on. Can you tell us the amount that you're asking for in the grant proposal? I mean, I don't 28 know if you've developed it quite that far yet. And then you say you're also exploring alternative funding
29 sources. Can you give an idea of what those are? Especially, given the comments just made about it 30 needing to be driven locally.

31

32 Rep. Bird

33 Mr. Vasconcellos.

34

35 Steven Vasconcellos

36 Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you, Senator Kirkmeyer. I will check in with my team on the amount
37 we're seeking in the grant proposal. I don't have that information readily with me. I'm not sure if we're 38 developed to that point, yet. But I will follow up and have information provided to Mr. Kemm to share
39 with the committee. And you know, not to sound flip, but other sources. This again, reminds me of my 40 own experience supporting problem solving courts statewide. We're just turning over every rock to find

1 available funding at this point. Because our Districts are taking the leap before they have adequate
2 resources. Because they just can't wait. The impact of competency being what it is on operations in the 3 criminal justice portion of our business. And, so, that's all kinds of. What grant funding is available?
4 Some localities, I will use an example. Just principally, I don't know on the competency front
5 specifically, but some counties, such as Boulder County, have resources that they've been happy to share
6 in other programmatic areas, like problem solving courts. So, exploring those local resource options, as 7 well, is part of this consideration.

8

9 Rep. Bird

10 Senator Kirkmeyer.

11

12 Sen. Kirkmeyer

13 Thank you, Madam Chair. And, if I could follow up then with item number 4 you talk about is that in 14 the Summer of 2024 you're hosting a two-day convening of folks? Is that every Judicial District are they 15 all invited, along with PDs and DAs and everybody else?

16

17 Steven Vasconcellos

18 Key stakeholders.

19

20 Rep. Bird

21 Mr. Vasconcellos.

22

23 Sen. Kirkmeyer

24 Great. Thank you.

25

26 Steven Vasconcellos

27 Sorry, Madam Chair, thank you. Thank you, Representative or Senator Kirkmeyer. Man, I'm getting 28 tired, I put you in the wrong house. Thank you, Senator Kirkmeyer. Yes, all Districts will be invited. It
29 is our and all the key stakeholders from those District teams, which are multidisciplinary. It is fair to say
30 that the number of programs by the time we get there will be different than today. So, it's going to be 31 open to all comers.

32

33 Rep. Bird

34 So, I'm just wondering. So, Mr. Kemm, I think, put together such a nice briefing, and really a great 35 distillation of some of his findings and observations through review of the challenge. Do you see those 36 ideas as complimentary to some of the work that's already happening? You know, as budget writers, I
37 think about, we have limited resources. And would that money? Could that money be best, maybe to 38 fund some of the ideas Mr. Kemm had? Or would it make sense to have more of these resources
39 available for ideas that emerge from, say, your summer convening? Do you expect there to be ideas that 40 could be supported by grant dollars? And are there are efforts already underway that have emerged from

1 the court system, itself. I mean, it seems like it through the grant programs. But just in an era of limited
2 resources, where do you see the most bang for the State's buck? So to speak. Mr. Vasconcellos.

3
4 Steven Vasconcellos

5 Thank you, Madam Chair. This is the art of statewide budgeting, of course. Selfishly, I'm very 6 concerned about sustainability. Again, having lived through the ramp up of problem solving courts
7 statewide, really starting intensely about 13 to 15 years ago. The quality of the programs, the intent to a
8 court was always very good, very high. But without the right resources and without sustainability, 9 sometimes you can do more harm than good. And, so, we would never counsel our Judicial Districts to 10 wait when they have a problem that is right in front of them locally. And we have, again, we've sought
11 money from the fine subcommittee. We are looking at grant opportunities. We are looking at local 12 funding opportunities. At some point, though, I do think the question gets called, is this a statewide
13 policy priority of the General Assembly, and can you provide us with sustainable funding? It's also fair
14 to say that some of the things that we're doing today are probably going to be not things we do 2-3-5
15 years from now, because we will learn through this experience. I'm just again looking back to that 16 problem solving court experience. We will refine our processes. We will learn new ways of engaging
17 successfully. I'm sure the first round of evaluation will provide surprises, some things that we thought
18 were absolutely the best thing were counter indicated. And, instead, pointing us to things that we're not 19 doing. So, this is going to be an evolutionary process, including on the budget front. We are supportive
20 of Mr. Kemm's recommendation for funding, particularly for the programs who have been out there, sort 21 of in that leadership posture, taking those first steps, willing to take the risk, to try to do something
22 better, something different, to provide better outcomes for folks who have mental health challenges. But 23 it's always, this little game of budget chicken that collectively we're playing in what is always a limited
24 resource environment. I don't need to tell the JBC that you guys always, every year, have more
25 meritorious requests across all the agencies than you have funding for. We're just going to try to stitch it
26 together until you please say yes to more sustainable permanent funding. And we will continue to share
27 what we're learning with you and with other agency stakeholders. And continue to refine as we learn.

28
29 Rep. Bird

30 Senator Bridges.

31
32 Sen. Bridges

33 Thank you, Madam Chair. And this is maybe more of like a backup big picture philosophical question
34 about behavioral health care. I know that we have changed a lot in healthcare, to address the behavioral
35 health crisis, we in the Executive Branch created the Behavioral Health Administration. There are a lot
36 of different structural changes we're making across government to address this behavioral healthcare
37 crisis. In part to make sure that people don't end up in the courts and then in our prisons. Both because 38 the cost as a budget committee is very high, but more importantly, the cost to those people is very high.
39 If there's some way to sort of intervene earlier on the front end. So, the question is, given that you are, as 40 you put it, the catcher's mitt for a lot of these things, is there some kind of structural change that's more

1 fundamental that needs to be adopted, sort of across the Judiciary on this? And I know you sort of 2 mentioned this, that it's a budget challenge, maybe it does need to be a statewide solution. Is there some 3 other like way of thinking about how these cases come to you and what the first step is? And is there
4 some kind of sieve to help sort folks into the right areas? I think more importantly, is someone else in
5 the Country getting this right? Has someone else in the Country recognized this? Is putting the resources
6 to it and is really sort of on the right path? That we could at least look to best practices for something 7 like that.

8
9 Rep. Bird

10 Mr. Vasconcellos.

11
12 Steven Vasconcellos

13 Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you, Senator Bridges. Is someone else getting it right? It's arguable.
14 There are definitely jurisdictions that are doing a variety of different things and that have a more mature 15 engagement, a longer term engagement, than we do. And with respect, I'll probably sidestep a little bit of 16 the policy issues. That is generally not our purview as the Judiciary. But there are interesting questions
17 around charging practices. At what point should diversion take place? Is that a pre-filing activity? Is that 18 a post-filing activity? Ultimately, the policy makers of this State will give us the guidance on what 19 works well, there. We have seen everything. I've seen examples. I've had an opportunity to engage with 20 peers in other states. You know, in Cook County in Illinois, there's just been a generalized agreement, 21 for better or for worse, that the Cook County Jail will be the marquee mental health care facility in the 22 County. Because they house the largest number of folks experiencing mental illness in the County.
23 While it's no one's ideal solution, that's just the choice they made. Dade County in Miami, Judge
24 Leifman gets a lot of press nationally. I've been to talks with him, and have met him. Miami is doing
25 some dynamic things that are dramatically different than Cook County. And, so, you know, I think the 26 mindset of what I've experienced in Colorado. We are at our best when we have consensus at a 30,000
27 foot level. This is particularly true in the Judiciary, where we're a loosely coupled organization, the 28 Chief Justice is not the boss of other judges. They don't report to me at the State Court Administrator's
29 Office. The Chief does give a grant of authority and selects Chief Judges for each Judicial District, but 30 they are the administrative authority for their Judicial District. And, as you well know, the resource 31 considerations, the community considerations, are just so different. You just draw a line diagonally from 32 Durango through Denver to Sterling. The solutions, the principles. We are at our best in the Judiciary
33 when we share principles and outcomes, but the path getting there is very unique based on the resources
34 and needs of that community. So, statewide funding solutions make a lot of sense. I like to use an 35 analogy of like drawing a playing field, boundaries. Like this is the playing field that we all want to be 36 in with our shared goals and outcomes. But how you navigate that playing field from Judicial District to 37 Judicial District necessarily needs to be different. What works in Weld County isn't necessarily what's 38 going to work in Mesa or in Denver and Arapahoe County, etc, etc.

1 Sen. Bridges

2 Very helpful. Thank you.

3

4 Rep. Bird

5 Senator Kirkmeyer.

6

7 Sen. Kirkmeyer

8 Thank you, Madam Chair. And just to add on to that, I think you're right on target. There's a very unique
9 relationship and partnership that occurs between the Judicial District, Board of County Commissioners,
10 or boards of County Commissioners, the Sheriff's Office, and the District Attorney's Office. And I've 11 seen a lot of programs in our own Judicial District in Weld County, which is a single county District, 12 which is different than those multi-county Districts. But really a lot of things where they just kind of 13 bubble up from the local level, where the Chief Judge is literally sitting there with the Board of County
14 Commissioners, the Sheriff and the DA going, but if you just gave us this much money, it would impact
15 you over here in the jail this way. It would impact the DA's cases in this way. And we learn this, because 16 Jeffco County has done this, you know, the Judicial District in Jeffco or El Paso, or up in the mountains.
17 And, then, everybody kind of builds on it before we come to a statewide solution. We need to let it
18 bubble up, I think. And merge up from the local level. Everybody's agreed. So, I didn't really have a
19 question. But it's just a comment. Just from my experience being a County Commissioner, it really does 20 work. The Judicial Districts have conferences or meetings or whatever across the State. I mean, I can 21 remember the discussions about drug court and about diversion and about how to improve all of these 22 different things. And they came. Again, somebody in the local level says, Wow, we saw this. It was 23 working there. We want to try it here. Here's what the impacts will be. And you just let it keep working 24 its way up. Till then, maybe there are some guide rails or guardrails or guides that need to be put in from 25 a 30,000 foot view. But it's got to be determined at the local level first and work out all the kinks. And it
26 seems to me that like these four steps that you're taking here that are on page, 23 and 24 are really a
27 good first step on how do we start getting there. And before we just start throwing money at something 28 that we don't know exactly what we're throwing money at. Let's let the locals throw their money at it.

29

30 Rep. Bird

31 Chief Justice Boatright.

32

33 Sen. Kirkmeyer

34 Because they will. And they'll make it work.

35

36 Chief Justice Boatright

37 Thank you, Madam Chair. And Senator Kirkmeyer, thank you for those comments. I agree 100%. And 38 that's how, for example, I referenced the fact that we started a specialty court in Jeffco. We went down
39 to Colorado Springs and stole their idea and we modified it to what resources and what fit our District.
40 But there were basic concepts that we took from them. And I think that's exactly what's happening

1 around the State. Things are kind of popping up in different places. I will say in the Judiciary, politely,
2 we're all about stealing good ideas. So, there's no pride in ownership with regard to that. And I think all
3 of our judicial officers are excited to have and use good ideas to address it. Because I think one
4 unmistakable thing across the State that's a frustration for everybody is how long people are being held
5 in custody and waiting for competency evaluations. We just have to find different ways. There are 6 certainly going to be ones that are dangerous and that's going to be reality. But my sense is, when we're 7 holding people on low-level misdemeanors and waiting for them, there are different ways we can do
8 business. So, I agree. I guess that was long way saying. I agree, 100%.

9
10 Rep. Bird

11 That's great. Mr. Vasconcellos.

12
13 Steven Vasconcellos

14 Madam Chair and committee, unless there are further questions, that completes our formal presentation.

15
16 Rep. Bird

17 Okay, we do have something. Senator Kirkmeyer.

18
19 Sen. Kirkmeyer

20 Thank you, Madam Chair. A month or so ago, a couple of us went with House Minority Leader, 21 Majority Leader, I'm sorry, Representative Duran to a safe house. And, afterwards, we were having the 22 discussion. It was commented that the fees or the fines, I guess, that are, through the courts for Victim
23 Assistance. Are being waived, like in the bill grant area and those types of things. And I'm wondering if 24 you have any insight into that, that you can send to us to let us know. But, I think we promised that we 25 would bring this issue up when we had the Judicial hearing and had you both here. Because, again, it's 26 an issue. We're now getting asked in several areas of public safety, and there's different bills that are 27 being passed to put General Fund into victims' assistance. And part of that is because the federal victim
28 assistance dollars are decreasing. But at the same time, what we heard is that judges are waiving those 29 fines in their courts. And, so, if we could get some information with regard to that, we would greatly 30 appreciate it.

31
32 Rep. Bird

33 Yes, Mr. Vasconcellos.

34
35 Steven Vasconcellos

36 Madam Chair, Senator Kirkmeyer. I'll convene with my team and see what we can provide on that front.

37
38 Sen. Kirkmeyer

39 All right, thank you.

40

1 Rep. Bird

2 Are there any final questions or comments? Seeing none. Gentlemen, thank you so much for your time
3 and your presentation today. This was great. And very illuminating and eye opening for what your team
4 is dealing with. And greatly appreciated. So, thank you.

5

6 Steven Vasconcellos

7 Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you, committee.

8

9 Rep. Bird

10 So, this concludes this portion of today's agenda, which is our hearing with courts and probation.

Appendix 27(dd)

Hearing before the J. Judiciary Comm.,
Colo. Leg., January 12, 2024
(annual SMART Act reports):

Appendix 27(dd)(i)

Transcript of Colo. Jud. Dep't Presentation;

Joint Judiciary Committee—January 12, 2024 Hearing: Colorado Judicial Department Annual SMART Act Reporting

1 Rep. Weissman

2 All right, Chief Justice Boatright, Mr. Vasconcellos. If you're ready to go, however, you'd like to start
3 off. We will try to not keep you here too long. Feel free to compress some parts of the initial 4 presentation, if you'd like. Maybe to the tune of 20-25 minutes. And then, we'll see what questions
5 members have. We'll plan to wrap this segment by three.

6

7 Chief Justice Boatright

8 Thank you, Mr. Chair, you stole my opening line, which was we, in the interest of time will try to 9 condense our presentation. We're not trying to rush through anything. So, if there are questions, please
10 let us know. My name is Brian Boatright. I'm currently the Chief Justice. In July, I'll be rotating out and 11 you guys are gonna get a huge upgrade with Justice Monica Marquez, who will be our next Chief. Let's
12 start out with most recent events. Last week, on a Monday into Tuesday morning, we had a gunman that 13 entered the Ralph Carr Building. Shot through a window. Was able to enter into the Building and set a
14 fire on the seventh floor. And there was extensive damage. The sprinkler system went off and ran for a 15 couple of hours. The one thing I would say is, all the information we have, we are confident that this 16 was a really random act. It had nothing to do with any of our recent court cases that we have had. I told 17 people we could have been a Walmart, and it wouldn't have mattered. They just, that the gentleman just 18 picked that building. I'm going to have Mr. Vasconcellos kind of talk about some of the specifics with 19 regard to that. And I also want to say publicly that Mr. Vasconcellos has been on 24-hour duty since 20 then, basically, our tenant. He's basically the landlord of the Building. Our tenants being everybody from 21 the Attorney General to the PD, to Alternate Defense Counsel. I could list all of them. They have really 22 had a very difficult thing thrown their way. But I'll turn it over to Mr. Vasconcellos to talk a little more 23 of the detail.

24

25 Rep. Weissman

26 Mr. Vasconcellos.

27

28 Steven Vasconcellos

29 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Thank you, committee. Good afternoon. My name is Steven Vasconcellos I'm the 30 State Court Administrator for the Colorado Judicial Department. Just a brief update. And then, of 31 course, happy to entertain any questions you may have about the status at the Carr Center.

32

33 First and most importantly, no one was hurt in the incident and the State Patrol security officer who was 34 confronted at gunpoint is healthy and well. Has had some time away and is getting full support from his 35 team at the State Patrol. We're extraordinarily grateful for our partners at the State Patrol.

36

1 Significant damage to several floors of the Building. The seventh floor where the fire was started and
2 where the sprinkler system went off. Resulting in, when our building engineers were able to gain access
3 to the floor after it was no longer a crime scene, ankle deep water. Which, subsequently, went down all
4 the way to the basement. But the seventh floor, the sixth floor, and the fifth floor will have to be 5 substantially rebuilt from scratch. Significant damage to the third floor. And, then, as you go down from 6 there, there is damage but it's spottier from there.

7
8 As you might imagine, one of our very first phone calls was to our partners in the Executive Branch at 9 Risk Management they have been walking side by side with me at every important decision. They have 10 a whole team of resources that they're able to bring to bear. Including the representative for the 11 insurance companies that the claims will be made through, construction consultants. So, that we can be 12 good consumers of services along the way. Obviously, my procurement team has been implicated along 13 the way.

14
15 The initial damage estimate. And I want to caveat this, because the Building is not dry yet. Where we're 16 at now is major water mitigation, major sort of material mitigation like carpets are up, ceilings are down,
17 drywall is down, just the worst of the worst has been addressed. There will be more demolition. That's 18 necessary. We have industrial hygienists on site assessing like the safety of the air quality, the safety of 19 the just the smoke from the fire, the particulate from the fire department's mitigation efforts. The 20 perpetrator, himself spent some time on several floors with handheld fire extinguishers, unrelated to the 21 fire. Shooting them off. All of that got into the HVAC system and was spread all over the tower side of 22 the complex. So, no one is working in the building. State Risk, understandably will not approve anyone
23 being in there right now. I don't want anyone in there right now. It is a disaster recovery site and not a
24 workplace, at the current moment. Our initial damage estimate is based on what we know so far. This 25 will change. This is not based on a construction estimate that I have. We've got a procurement coming in 26 the next couple of weeks related to planning about the rebuild. But based on the experts from Risk, their 27 experts from the insurance companies, the construction consultants that support the insurance
28 companies, were looking at approximately $35 million. I imagine that with most construction projects,
29 that will change. In terms of timelines to reoccupy the facility. For the floors that were substantially
30 undamaged or lightly damaged, all they require for reoccupation is a substantial cleaning. The carpets
31 need to be vacuumed and deep cleaned, to sort of industrial hygienist level. The walls need to be wiped.
32 Desks, other surfaces need to be wiped, because there is sort of a fine dust of not good stuff on every 33 floor. That's the technical term, the not good stuff. We're anticipating somewhere in the neighborhood of 34 March 1. That's four floors that are lightly or undamaged. For the substantially damaged floors, if 35 everything goes well. And again, this is an initial estimate, we have to figure this will change: 12
36 months. So, the Attorney General on the sixth and seventh floor, and the Office of Attorney Regulation
37 Counsel on the fifth floor, were probably the most impacted. Best case scenario, they're coming back,
38 starting to come back on site. That's not turnkey ready in 12 months. That's starting to come back on site
39 in 12 months. So, you can imagine, this is still, no pun intended, a very fluid situation.

40

1 We're happy to provide updates to the General Assembly, as this project continues to move forward. As
2 we sit here right now, I do not anticipate requesting supplemental dollars from the General Assembly.
3 We are working very closely with our Joint Budget Committee Analyst, we may need to ask for some 4 spending authority related to insurance dollars that will start flowing here very soon. But, that is my 5 quick update. I'll happy to pause for any questions on that matter.

6

7 Rep. Weissman

8 All right, maybe just. I do want to keep up our tempo, members. But this is obviously a unusual segment
9 of the SMART Act presentation. Maybe we'll take one or two questions here, then we'll let the Chief
10 Justice and Mr. Vasconcellos proceed. All right, and this will be it. Madam Vice Chair, Rep. Herod, and 11 Rep. Soper. In that order.

12

13 Sen. Gonzales

14 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Chief Justice, Mr. Vasconcellos. It's great to see you both. Having just driven by 15 and seeing, you know, the construction operators who have I think, like sort of air vents and devices,
16 what have you, to try to air out the building. I guess my question. The number that you shared and the 17 timelines just seems extraordinary. And I am curious about the insurance and whether and how this is 18 going to impact some of the budget requests that had been in process prior to this incident taking place
19 around controlled maintenance. So, I guess it's a two-part. One, just the insurance, like what the policy
20 looks like. And then, two, how this will impact and whether this will impact the controlled maintenance 21 request. Thank you.

22

23 Rep. Weissman

24 Mr. Vasconcellos.

25

26 Steven Vasconcellos

27 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Thank you, Senator Gonzales. At this point, and this is still we're on like, day 10.
28 So, it's still very early. We're not anticipating an impact to our controlled maintenance request or,
29 frankly, to any of our budget requests. At this point. We've had a very strong partnership with State Risk
30 out of the gate. Strong partnership with the State's insurance carriers. They're on site every day. We have 31 daily meetings. I'm also meeting with the tenants, daily, for status updates. State Risk is hopefully going 32 to be either in a position, because we do have some costs related to the initial site mitigation that will 33 start coming in. State risk believes that they will either be in a position to advance us some money that 34 they have continuously appropriated for this purpose. So, we can start paying bills. Or that the insurance
35 company will be able to start paying very quickly. So, again, we're not anticipating a major budget
36 impact as we sit here right now. Obviously, if that changes, our first call is to our Joint Budget 37 Committee Analyst and the JBC members. But I'm cautiously optimistic. I'm looking for something to 38 knock on. But no wood nearby. But I'm cautiously optimistic, as we sit here.

39

40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 All right. Rep. Herod.

3

4 Rep. Herod

5 Thank you, Mr. Chair. And, in the interest of time, I'll just make a quick, quick statement. Which is,
6 thank you for all of the commitment and the work that you both are doing. And so many of you all are 7 doing for Coloradans, especially in this time of heightened threat, danger, and attacks against you all.
8 The incident that happened is quite terrifying, honestly. And I know there was also someone that else in 9 the Building who was just there working or whatnot. And that could be any night any day with many 10 other people in the Building. And, so, I look forward to future conversations about how we can ensure 11 that folks can do their job safely, while also ensuring that we're doing what we need to do for the people.
12 And so, I have a lot of respect for the work that y'all are all doing. And just want to commend your 13 efforts. And if there are other requests that you will need to make around ensuring that y'all are safe. I 14 look forward to having that discussion. So, thank you.

15

16 Rep. Weissman

17 Likewise, and I think there are some slides on that subsequently in the deck. I wasn't sure if you wanted
18 to speak to that? Chief or Mr. Vasconcellos.

19

20 Steven Vasconcellos

21 Mr. Chair. Just one thing I want to emphasize particularly on continuity of services for the public. It was 22 high priority while, on the one hand, that we're managing this mess that we support continuity of 23 services for the appellate courts and for all of the agencies as much as reasonably possible. Particular to 24 our operations. my team at the State Court Administrator's Office has essentially gone to COVID-style
25 remote work, and will be for the next couple of months. But we were able to get, as of Tuesday this 26 week. The court side of the complex has separate electrical, separate HVAC, separate plumbing. We did 27 need to do some system load testing to make sure everything was safe, some air testing, some other
28 material testing, just to make sure it was a safe workplace. But as of Tuesday, this week, we were able to 29 open the court side of the complex on a soft opening to justices, judges, and staff. If all goes to plan, and 30 right now, as I sit here, there are no concerns. On Tuesday next week, to coincide with Supreme Court 31 oral arguments, we will be opening the court side of the facility, only, back open to the public.

32

33 Rep. Weissman

34 Okay. Rep. Soper.

35

36 Rep. Soper

37 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Thank you, Mr. Chief Justice and Mr. Vasconcellos for being here and giving us
38 an update. This is just horrible, what has happened. But the question that I wanted to ask of you, 39 certainly, continuity of workflow is really around data, and computers and files that might have been 40 damaged or lost. Was everything backed up in a remote location, or was there any sort of court records

1 or case files or other work product that might have been damaged in such a way that it hurt cases or hurt
2 the agency's ability, in your case, the tenants' ability, to be able to serve justice?

3
4 Rep. Weissman

5 Mr. Vasconcellos.

6
7 Steven Vasconcellos

8 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Thank you, Representative Soper. The honest answer is it's too early to know. It's 9 too early to know. Our number one priority right now is drying the facility out. That is complicated by 10 our below zero temperatures this weekend. But we're estimating two to three weeks before it is fully dry.
11 And, we should also, that should roughly coincide with some feedback from industrial hygienists about 12 the just the general safety of the environment. So, there has not been a comprehensive for every. Some 13 agencies have a better sense of their own materials. I can tell you that, on behalf of the appellate courts
14 and my Office at the State Court Administrator's Office, there was either no damage or no significant 15 damage to records. That's not going to be the case for some of the tenants, I imagine. I don't want to get 16 too speculative here. But I imagine with everybody operating network-based systems that there was a lot 17 of network-based backup. But the fair answer is it is just too early to know.

18
19 Rep. Soper

20 Thank you.

21
22 Rep. Weissman

23 Okay. We'll invite you to continue with the presentation.

24
25 Chief Justice Boatright

26 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Events over the last few years led the Court to do a couple of things. Number
27 one, is we have and I've talked about this before, we've taken a much more active role in the leadership
28 around the State and what the State Court Administrator's Office. Second thing that it caused us to do, 29 which actually has turned into a tremendous positive, is we've gone out on listening tours in each of the 30 last two years, to all 22 of our Districts. The Justices split the State up and we went out and we called 31 them just our listening tours. And by far, the number one issue that our employees are talking about is 32 pay. We are continually hearing that all across the State. And we are one of the few state agencies that 33 literally have people in every county in the State. But the number one message was we are not paying a 34 livable wage. And, so, our ask this year is going to be around employee pay. We do have a need for 35 judges. We've already done the weighted caseload for the District Court. The County Court is in 36 progress. But, after talking with our judges at Judicial Conference, they all conceded that our number
37 one thing needs to be to take care of our employees, in terms of getting them pay. The quote that stands
38 out for me from one of our probation officers was, "I supervise sex offenders by day and wait tables by 39 night." And we just should not be asking our employees to work two or three jobs. And we'll talk about 40 our budget request here in just a minute.

1 But one of the other things that it caused us to do was to look at our workforce. And I think you'll find it
2 interesting that, in the last four years, 40% of our judges are new, 50% of our staff is new, and 1/3 of our
3 Chief Judges are new. So, we've had tremendous turnover over the past year.

4
5 The other thing that our listening tour caused us to realize, was that we really have 22 individual Judicial 6 Districts with their own distinct culture and values. And that we really didn't have a common mission.
7 And so I asked Justice Marquez and Mr. Vasconcellos, to chair an initiative to look at workplace culture
8 and initiative goals. And this was not something that happened at the Ralph Carr Center. It was 9 something that happened through our employees. That we came up with a set of a mission, vision and 10 values to try and tie a common goal, a common purpose for our employees. Our mission is our day-to-
11 day work. Our vision is our North Star, what we aspire to be. And our values are how we ingrain all of 12 those in our day-to-day operation. And, again, this is part of where we've cut back our presentation.
13 Happy to answer your questions. But we are excited that this has been something that has come out. And 14 the committee that worked on this was over 40 employees from every part of the State, every level of the 15 of the organization. And it was really our employees that came up with these mission, vision and values.
16 And we've launched that. We have a website. And I will leave it at that.

17
18 The next project that we are going to engage in is what I call all things magistrates. The magistrates have 19 kind of been a hidden engine that helps judicial run. It is an immensely challenging job. They handle
20 everything from probate to criminal advisements to preliminary hearings. A lot of domestic relations
21 cases. And, so, I just charged a committee to look at the well-being and support for magistrates. I want 22 to look at how we can have more transparent training, support, and get feedback opportunities for our 23 magistrates. And so, we are creating a committee that's going to be statewide. It's going to have all levels
24 of the Branch involved in it. It's just started. We don't even have the committee formed. But we are 25 going to look at all things magistrate from recruitment to rules to training, evaluation in public records.
26 So, we're excited to be able to assist our magistrates in their well-being in the Branch. This morning, we 27 had our final meeting for a taskforce that the Legislature created to look at judicial education around
28 violence issues involving women. I want to start out by thanking my co-chair Kelly Kissel, from the 29 Department of Public Safety. She was a fantastic co-chair. I could not have done it without her. I don't 30 want to get ahead of the taskforce findings. We had our final meeting this morning. We approved the 31 report that will be provided on time to the Legislature. At this point, I don't think that there's any 32 anticipated legislative changes that we're going to ask for. But we have committed to partnering with a 33 number of our stakeholders to create subcommittees to look at how we're doing training, how we're 34 doing onboarding. With regard to our judges from domestic relations and criminal cases, trauma
35 informed training, training around child abuse issues. And I'm excited about where we're headed with 36 that. It was a lengthy process, but we were able to reach consensus on all of our recommendations. And 37 very proud about that.

38
39 Steven Vasconcellos

40 Mr. Chair, if I may proceed.

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Sure. However, you'd like to divide up and we'll invite you to kind of race through the rest of the deck. I
3 was going to ask that we hold further questions till the end of the opening. Go ahead.

4

5 Steven Vasconcellos

6 I would like to proceed on to discuss our top priorities in our fiscal year 25 budget request. And as Chief
7 Justice Boatright mentioned a moment ago, our marquee request is around salary for the employees of 8 the Department. Really the rank and file, who are the heart of the organization. And the most simple 9 explanation is really what we're asking for are the same tools that already exist in the Executive and 10 Legislative Branches. Particularly, a predictable funded way to move through a job series based on your 11 years of service. Which is a mechanism that we currently don't have, that the other branches do. And 12 that is our number one request in the 25 budget. I would also note that Chief Justice Boatright mentioned
13 our turnover numbers. Which are, although I guess we're all getting used to them in this post-pandemic
14 environment, are still eye popping to me and have had a tremendous impact on operations. And while 15 there is some opportunity on a culture building front with such a young and new workforce, we have 16 huge training needs. And so, one of our other key requests is around training. We spoke some about this 17 last year.

18

19 But I want to mention again that we need to replace our 27-year old case management system. It is in a
20 programming language that is obsolete. And the care and maintenance of this system is no longer either
21 fiscally a good idea, nor is it an operationally sound approach. And, so, we are on the pathway toward 22 procuring a new case management system. Our sort of approach, as you might imagine, over the course 23 of a quarter of a century, toward how we do these things has changed. 27 years ago, we developed in-
24 house our own system. We have no interest in doing that today. My team's expertise is not as a software
25 development shop. There are plenty of entities in the private marketplace who are better suited to doing
26 that. So, this will be a vendor developed system. We are currently in a discovery and planning phase.
27 You might imagine that, again, over 27 years, we've accumulated an enormous amount of data. Some of 28 which is critical to day-to-day operations. Some of it is critical to policy discussions, as we've discussed
29 with both House and Senate Judiciary, in the past. And some of it, frankly, we question the value. So,
30 we are doing a comprehensive, as part of this discovery process. Right now, there's some obvious things
31 like functionality needs. But, also, what data do we bring forward? What data do we need for 32 operations? What data do we need that informs good policy discussions around the State? And what can 33 we let go of, moving forward? And we have a request in our 25 budget to take the next big step in the 34 project.

35

36 Chief Justice Boatright

37 Mr. Chair. Our next item on our legislative agenda are around licensed legal paraprofessionals. And you 38 probably aren't going to be surprised but the number is stark. 76% of our litigants in domestic relations
39 cases are self-represented. And that presents a tremendous strain not only on our system, but really to 40 the Access to Justice for all the people that appear in court. One of the answers that we've tried to come

1 up with is to have licensed legal paraprofessionals They are designed to fit into the type of case that
2 right now is unrepresented. So, those are the lower asset cases, they are designed to have people who
3 have operated generally as paralegals. It's going to be licensed. It's going to be monitored, regulated
4 through our Attorney Regulation. It's been many years in the making. I think we're excited to see where 5 it goes. But we will need some conforming legislation. I don't think it's going to be controversial. It's 6 going to be things to say, "and licensed legal paraprofessionals can do this type of work." It's mostly 7 going to be the front end of filling out forms, making sure that proper documentation is presented. But it,
8 also, is going to have some limited courtroom attendance and participation. But it's something that many 9 states are doing. And we're excited to see if this can help address our self-represented litigation issues.

10
11 Steven Vasconcellos

12 Mr. Chair, I have two other items from our 2024 legislative agenda that I'd like to cover. The first is a
13 change to the language that was passed in Senate Bill 2375, which protects information in court records
14 related to child witnesses, and child victims. And there were some unintended consequences. I think all 15 of the stakeholders involved ourselves included missed the language in its current form. Unfortunately,
16 attorneys lost access to key records that they had access to previously through our electronic filing
17 system. And, so, we are partnering with the Office of the State Public Defender and the Office of 18 Alternative Defense Counsel to find a very narrow, simple fix that honors the original intent of the 19 General Assembly. But gives attorneys access to these cases through our e-filing system, again.

20
21 Rep. Weissman

22 And members before we move off that slide, I'll just note. I've been involved in discussions with SCAO
23 since before Christmas. I know, also, that Senator Gonzales has. Also, Senator Gardner. I think, also,
24 Rep. Soper. Other members are probably aware to different extents. The hope is that a bill to do what the 25 issue that Mr. Vasconcellos spoke to will be introduced next week. Expect that, you know, we may get it
26 as we had the underlying bill. More on that to come. Please continue.

27
28 Steven Vasconcellos

29 Thank you, Mr. Chair. The other legislative item that I'd like to talk about is related to court security.
30 This fiscal year, the General Assembly was generous to give us two additional positions to flesh out our 31 security administration in the Department. Let me be clear, this is not a police force. But our current 32 security administrator is a POST certified position by statute. And they focus primarily in two areas.
33 One, consulting with judges around the State who are facing an ever-increasing tide of credible physical 34 threats to their and their family's safety. And that ultimately led to our request for two additional 35 positions. Because we had more work than one person could drive around the State and reasonably
36 address. Additionally, they will consult with local law enforcement on site security related to high 37 profile cases at county courthouses. So again, this fiscal year, we received two additional positions.
38 Those positions are not POST certified. We would really love those for those positions to be POST
39 certified. It makes a tremendous difference in gaining access to sensitive intelligence for safety and 40 security planning. And, so, that is the last of our 2024 legislative agenda items. There are a couple of

1 other important issues we'd like to cover, including bench diversity, the 23rd Judicial District, and a new
2 website related to appellate court opinions. But I'll pass it over to Chief Justice Boatright for the first 3 topic.

4
5 Chief Justice Boatright

6 Yeah, and I just want to supplement the security question. That's not directly related to recent events.
7 We've had a shooting outside of the courthouse in Colorado Springs. We had another shooting outside of 8 a probation office in Arapahoe County. And we need to simply need to have active shooter training, for 9 example, all around the State so that we're better prepared to deal with these types of things.

10
11 On a more positive note, we continue to see the court, the bench diversifying. And again, thank you to 12 Representative Herod for her work and in getting us a position to be able to reach out and try to increase 13 our pipeline. As the slide will show that we have done much better with our Black and African 14 American communities. We continue to lag behind in the Hispanic Latino group, unfortunately. But, but 15 we are making progress. Unfortunately, our outreach coordinator was so good that the Governor hired 16 her away. And so, we're having to replace her. I know. Let me turn it to Mr. Vasconcellos for the 23rd.

17
18 Steven Vasconcellos

19 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Thank you, committee. As you are aware of back in 2020, House Bill 1026 was 20 passed. That will split as of January one to 2025. But it's currently our most populous Judicial District, 21 the 18th Judicial District. Which is Arapahoe, Douglas, Elbert, and Lincoln Counties into two Judicial 22 Districts. With Douglas, Elbert, and Lincoln becoming the 23rd Judicial District. The Reader's Digest
23 version is that we are on time, on schedule, on budget. And don't anticipate from a Judicial Department
24 perspective, any major hurdles in the opening of the District. Again, all along our goal for the 25 Department. Our goal in collaboration with our county partners, has been a no surprise affair where the 26 citizens of the impacted counties don't have to care what Judicial District number they're in. They get the 27 same services on the Friday before that they receive on the Monday after. And I'm pleased to report that 28 we are on schedule in that endeavor.

29
30 Rep. Weissman

31 And thank you, Mr. Vasconcellos. Quick note for members, you'll see the reference to a bill to make a
32 conforming change. I believe that is House Bill 1013, which has been introduced assigned to House
33 Judiciary. Members, we are anticipating to hear that on the 23rd of this month. So, the week after this 34 coming week. Senate Judiciary, it will likely make its way to you not long thereafter. Please continue.

35
36 Chief Justice Boatright

37 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Next thing I want to talk about is House Bill 22-1091 update. That creates a 38 searchable site for the public for all Supreme Court and Court of Appeals opinions whether they are 39 officially published or not. I want to thank Representative Soper for his work on that. It's scheduled to 40 launch on March 1. We're, again, as Mr. Vasconcellos on time, on budget. As he said.

1 Steven Vasconcellos

2 Mr. Chair, this moves into our final slides on performance measures. We have a more extensive
3 discussion of performance measures in our official SMART Act reporting. I'm going to proceed through 4 these in the interest of time very quickly. Of course, happy to pause for any questions that the committee 5 may have.

6

7 But, in terms of timeliness standards, both in the District Court and the County Court for the age of our 8 active cases. On both benches, there have not been substantial changes in the last year. I think we are 9 still navigating a little bit of a post pandemic hangover in the civil arena. Our criminal arena has largely 10 recovered. There's still work to do. But I think the biggest impacts are in the civil arena, both in District
11 Court and County Court. But our performance has not changed substantially since we spoke to you last 12 year.

13

14 On the probation front, our probation success rate. And the slide that is up is both adults and juveniles
15 combined. Our success rate in probation has been stable for a number of years now. Largely the same
16 since fiscal year 17. Which I would note is remarkable. Simply for the fact that, based on policy 17 changes, the number and type of offenses that have become eligible for probation have evolved and 18 changed. Which has meant we have needed to evolve and change, as well. And so, we're pleased that 19 we've been able to have stability in success rates in that time period. And the last thing I would just note
20 is I don't know if it's the start of a trend or not. But we have had a slight year over year increase in the 21 size of our juvenile probation population. But that, Mr. Chair and Committee, is the end of our formal 22 presentation. Of course, if there are and I know I acknowledge we've gone very quickly today in the 23 interest of time. I am happy to make myself available. Mr. Terry Scanlon, our legislative liaison is happy
24 to make himself available. For any questions of greater depth and to make time to answer any questions 25 the committee may have.

26

27 Rep. Weissman

28 All right. Chief Justice, Mr. Vasconcellos. Thank you for the quick trip through the slide deck members,
29 that and other materials are available in Box. We'll go to questions. I'll start off with a brief one, then I'm 30 going to go in the order that I've seen hands. That will be Rep. Soper, Rep. Garcia, Rep. Mabry, and then 31 Rep. Bacon. Rep. Herod was that a question? Okay, not yet. Concerning the 1091 website and, again,
32 my thanks to Rep. Soper for that work over the years. Will that include appellate opinions not 33 designated for publication per 35(f), or those would not be included? Chief Justice.

34

35 Chief Justice Boatright

36 Yes, yeah. That includes ironically published opinions and unpublished opinions that will be available 37 for search.

38

39

40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Okay. I'm actually very glad to hear that I've often scratched my head about 35(f). I'll take the substance
3 of that offline. With that, Rep. Soper.

4

5 Rep. Soper

6 Thank you, Mr. Chair. I also want to thank you for being on time and on budget. This website is pretty 7 cool and exciting. One, that I know many people have been looking forward to. And, hopefully, when 8 we launch it, so we can do something together. But my question for you is more in terms of just the 9 turnover. I mean, 40% of the judges from 2022 to date have changed. 50% of staff and 1/3 of the 10 Justices is what you had testified to a few moments ago. That's a significant change in personnel. And I
11 wondered what, what sort of reasons have you identified for that change? I could speculate, but I'd love 12 to hear what you believe is the reason.

13

14 Rep. Weissman

15 Mr. Vasconcellos.

16

17 Steven Vasconcellos

18 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Thank you Representative Soper. And of course, it's a complicated matter. But I
19 think as an employer, we are no different than the job market at large. Which has seen some dramatic 20 shifts, including folks making different priority changes about how they want to approach their career. I
21 will say that our salary, particularly for the core of our staff, for clerks, for probation officers, has been a
22 deep challenge and a driver of turnover. So, it is many layered and complicated, and I don't think we're 23 unique, fortunately or unfortunately, in the job market with regard to our turnover.

24

25 Chief Justice Boatright

26 Yeah, as far as the judges. If I said, a third of the Justices have been replaced, I misspoke. It's our Chief
27 Judges. We've had a third of our Chief Judges have been replaced over the last four years. As far as our 28 judge turnover, I think that the demands that we're placing on our judges have become very difficult.
29 And the caseloads have gotten higher. As I indicated, we are in need of new judges. We do want to 30 come to you with specific plans. I would anticipate in the near, not obviously this year, but in the near 31 future. And I will say the other thing that we've noticed is our number of people applying to be judges is 32 significantly down. It's kind of anecdotal. But you know, in Jefferson County where I was a district
33 court judge for 12 years, we would routinely get 25 to 30 people applying for a District Court opening.
34 This last District Court opening, we had seven.

35

36 Rep. Weissman

37 Rep. Soper.

38

39

40

1 Rep. Soper

2 Thank you. And thank you, Mr. Chief Justice. I couldn't agree more with your last comment there. And
3 as you and I both know, I served on the judicial nominating commission when you were an Associate
4 Justice, and you came over to the Western Slope. And some of those interviews only had four or five
5 applicants to become a judge. And we were sending two or three names to the governor. On that same
6 line, what is being done to try to encourage more people to apply to become judges. Because to me, it's 7 just like being a legislator. This is a noble calling. Particularly being a judge, it can be a very long
8 career. But why aren't there more attorneys wanting to make the transition to the Judiciary?
9

10 Rep. Weissman

11 Chief Justice.
12

13 Chief Justice Boatright

14 Mr. Chair, thank you. Thank you, Representative Soper. That's a great question. And if I could pinpoint 15 why, maybe we could cure it. But we are doing a lot of recruitment efforts. The outreach coordinator, for 16 one. Especially in the smaller jurisdictions, will go out and try to advertise the position. We've done kind
17 of town halls to talk about what positions are like. One of the things that I have kept it even since I've 18 become Chief. And I've done it for about the last 15 years. Is do new judge training. And we are really
19 trying to make sure that our new judges know what they're getting into. I mean, the worst-case scenario
20 is someone gets appointed and they say, I didn't realize what the job was. But we're doing a lot of 21 recruiting. We're doing coffees. They call it Java with Justices or Java with Judges to sit down and talk
22 with judges about what the position is like. We're doing townhall meetings when we know we have an 23 opening coming up. We're trying to have the local Judicial District put together a presentation on what 24 the job is. So, we're trying to recruit as best we can. And, as far as the diversification, that continues to 25 be a tremendous pipeline problem that we continue to work with the schools and trying to encourage 26 that, as well. So, we're not very passive about it. I guess I'll be really honest, we are actively recruiting.
27 Especially, when we know we'll have an opening.
28

29 Rep. Weissman

30 All right, we'll go to Rep. Garcia, Rep. Mabry, and then Rep Bacon.
31

32 Rep Garcia

33 Thank you, Mr. Chair. I want to hang on to this topic, actually. And I'm curious if you all are conducting 34 exit interviews with those that do leave. And if you're able to identify any sort of through line. I know
35 that, I understand that it's complicated. Every judge decides to leave on their own, for their own reasons.
36 But just curious what data collection is happening to be able to try and identify commonalities.
37

38 Rep. Weissman

39 Chief Justice.
40

1 Chief Justice Boatright

2 Thank you, Mr. Chair. And thank you for the question, Representative Garcia. We talk with all of the 3 judges when they leave. We don't do a formal, they have to send me a letter. And I've been reaching out
4 to them and talking with them about senior judging. Interestingly, the majority of our judges who leave
5 do asked to become senior judges. So, I think it continues to be an ageing workforce problem for the 6 most part. I do know that there have been other judges who have left, because their kids are just about to 7 get into college, and they've had to go out and make more money, type of things. But I do think that the 8 volume and the demands are impacting the number of people that are applying. And maybe causing 9 some people to think about retiring when they can a little bit earlier.

10

11 Rep. Weissman

12 Rep. Garcia, follow up?

13

14 Rep Garcia

15 Yeah. And I also I just had a question from the very first slide of your presentation discussing workplace
16 culture. You mentioned the words, respect and dignity. And I'm wondering if there is a written and 17 shared definition and understanding amongst your Department of what respect and dignity mean.

18

19 Rep. Weissman

20 Mr. Vasconcellos.

21

22 Steven Vasconcellos

23 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Thank you, Representative Garcia. That sort of engagement where we're at in this 24 process, now. The creation of our mission and vision and values is relatively new. And, so, we're really 25 in that transitional phase and how do we bring this home in a meaningful way, with shared definitions,
26 shared understanding across the entire State. At the Judicial District-level, we have 4,000 employees
27 across every county. As you can imagine, it is a large effort. But that's, what you're describing the need 28 for is where we're at in the process, right now.

29

30 Rep. Weissman

31 Okay. We'll go to Rep. Mabry and then Bacon and then we'll come back to Rep. Soper.

32

33 Rep. Mabry

34 Thank you, Mr. Chair. I do have three questions, but I'll stick to this one topic and then I'll go to the 35 back of the line for the next round. Thank you, Mr. Vasconcellos and Chief Justice Boatright for the 36 presentation. The first thing I want to focus on is to note that there is a conflict between the Chief Justice
37 Directive 23-22 and Colorado Revised Statute 13-1-132 (3.5). That was as enacted in House Bill 23-
38 1182. Which I was one of the House co-prime sponsors on that legislation. Specifically, subsection 3.5
39 of the law requires the live streaming of criminal court proceedings unless one of four exceptions apply.
40 And judges are to make findings about these exceptions on the record. It's my understanding that the

1 directive conflicts in that there are seven factors that judges are allowed to consider and there's no
2 requirement that their decision be made on the record or that they point to which of the factors. So, the 3 directive gives judges more discretion than the law. And I'll also note that it is my understanding that the 4 directive came about in an attempt to avoid the need to pass House Bill 23-1182. So, my question is,
5 what is State Judicial doing to manage this conflict and ensure statewide compliance with the law, as 6 enacted under House Bill 23-1182.

7
8 Rep. Weissman

9 Chief Justice.

10
11 Chief Justice Boatright

12 Thank you, Mr. Chair. And thank you Representative Mabry. We have a committee that helps me put 13 together the Chief Justice Directives. And we're going to take a look. Quite frankly, I wanted to see in 14 practice for a while to see if there was an actual conflict and how it was working. And so, it's something
15 that's on our radar, and we're continuing to look at. And we'll probably have an amended Chief Justice
16 Directive, at some point.

17
18 Rep. Weissman

19 Follow up on the same thing, Rep. Mabry?

20
21 Rep. Mabry

22 Yeah, follow up. One, could you give me a timeline on when that updated Chief Justice Directive will 23 be put out. And, two, is the goal to conform with what explicitly is in the law?

24
25 Rep. Weissman

26 Chief Justice.

27
28 Chief Justice Boatright

29 Thank you, Mr. Chair. And thank you Representative Mabry. I don't have a timeline. Because I do think,
30 again, we want to see a little bit about how things work in practice. It's not going to be a year. But it'll
31 probably be at least a couple of months. Because I think we want to get a little bit of practice and see 32 how things are working. And certainly, we're going to look at conforming to what the statute requires.

33
34 Rep. Weissman

35 Okay, we'll go to Rep. Bacon Then we'll come back to Rep. Soper. Then we'll come back to Rep.
36 Mabry.

37
38 Rep. Bacon

39 Thank you. So sorry, I took a bite. Thank you both for being here. Thank you both for sharing the 40 progress on your goals. I know we've had many conversations over the last couple of years. And I also

1 want to say to you, particularly the Chief Justice, you know, you standing in, and really taking the lead
2 on that. And a lot of the cultural changes that you have shared, that you want to address. I can see over
3 the last couple of years, your dedication to that. As well as, you know, the insights you have gained from 4 it have become very helpful. And I hope that we can continue to do some of this work on transparency
5 and building culture. So, I just want to say this is my fourth time having the opportunity to sit across
6 from you. I know, we've had many conversations, but I want to be able to say that you certainly stepped
7 in, in a challenging time. And I want to thank you before you transition out, you know, for your grace,
8 and really wanting to lead in that space. So, thank you for that. I wanted to kind of ask about. I do have a 9 question, particularly about your case management systems around the conversations that you're having 10 about how to navigate data internally and externally, I do know that there is interest from the public to 11 be able to understand a lot of your data. And you know, just in looking at the slide and kind of the 12 timeline, I am curious of your thoughts and how you're talking about an external facing system. And,
13 then, also just kind of as an aside. We have spent a lot of time, and I know we will hear from judicial 14 discipline. But when I was looking through your presentation and talking about the stakeholder work, I
15 think there was something maybe on judicial education and talking to external folks. I am curious how 16 the Branch might be thinking about getting external data, or external insight from our neighbors on what 17 their interactions are like with the judicial system. For what it's worth, we get a lot of people, and don't 18 get me wrong, it's hard to litigate cases. And it's hard to receive judgments that you don't like. But we 19 get a lot of people sometimes that don't understand how they can navigate the system, whether it's, you 20 know, on the pro se side and trying to figure out everything on how to do an appeal to how do they 21 manage potential, and I'll say conflicts, but not necessarily legal ones that they may have with judges.
22 And, so, this committee has been thinking a lot about different court systems. We talk a lot about family
23 court. But I am curious, your thoughts on what might you see in the future, and how to receive some 24 feedback. Especially in that building the trust component with community on how folks can better
25 access information. Better talk about their experience in the judicial system. Are there any insights there 26 and that you want to share that you might set any potential goals on.

27

28 Rep. Weissman

29 Mr. Vasconcellos.

30

31 Steven Vasconcellos

32 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Thank you, Representative Bacon. A wide-ranging question. So please, if I leave
33 something out, bonk me on the head. I will come back to it. With regard to the case management system, 34 and specifically, stakeholder engagement, when we're thinking about stakeholder engagement, there are 35 some obvious players. But there are also some maybe for some, some less obvious players. And some 36 folks who have lived experience and getting their feedback on what it's been like to engage with on sort
37 of the data side, if you will. Because ultimately, this is still public information. In large measure, there
38 are some areas that are statutorily protected, etc. But the work of the Court is public work. And the 39 information of the Court is largely public. And so having. Of course, we're going to have, you know, the 40 legal community, and law enforcement partners and all the obvious folks. But from the very beginning,

1 we've been planning to have when we get to that stakeholder engagement component of this planning,
2 we want some folks from the public, folks with lived experience, to share what has worked, what hasn't
3 worked? What would you like to see? That is part of our planning for this new case management
4 system? As it relates to getting feedback on the organization. One of the things I think that we've been
5 historically in the vanguard of agencies in Colorado, is going to our customer base directly that we serve
6 every year. And ask them, How are we doing? And that is information that we have consistently put in 7 our SMART Act report. We did a substantial overhaul. It's not in my slide deck today, but it is in the 8 formal submission as part of our performance measure information. We did a substantial overhaul. We 9 were still sort of running our feedback surveys circa 1995, if you will. For a long time doing them in 10 person. Talking to folks outside of courthouses. As you might imagine, the pandemic stopped that and 11 stopped it permanently. And gave us some space to really reimagine a modern way of doing it. And so
12 now, folks are being handed out QR codes in the courthouse. They can do it live right there. They don't 13 have to have an in-person engagement with someone. And what we are. We did a pilot rollout in 14 approximately a dozen Districts, we're getting ready to go statewide. But the early returns. We're getting 15 way higher volume of responses. It has been really positive out of the gate. We share that information
16 with local Judicial District leadership. They take it seriously. And so, we have been committed to getting 17 direct public feedback, we remain committed to getting direct public feedback. And the last note I would 18 add on that issue is, you correctly identified the adversarial nature of our justice system. And even given 19 that, we run mid to upper 60% of satisfied or very satisfied with the experience, overall with the citizens
20 that we serve. Which I think, given the circumstances, as the Chief often says short of adoptions, not 21 many people are excited about their appearance at court. Given the nature of that, I think our feedback
22 continues to be strong. That's not by way of avoiding taking hard looks in the mirror when we need to.
23 But direct public feedback is very important to us.

24
25 And you also talked a little bit I think about accessibility, navigating the process. Whether it is our effort
26 over the years to have self-represented litigant coordinators, colloquially known as Sherlocks, in every 27 Judicial District to help guide folks on procedural matters. Or our own internal access to justice 28 committee to the branch partnering with the statewide access to justice committee to look at where are 29 the meaningful areas? Can we suggest simplified processes? Make forms and instructions in plain 30 language? That work is constant and ongoing. And it's a strong commitment from our organization?

31
32 Rep. Weissman

33 Rep. Bacon, good for now?

34
35 Rep. Bacon

36 Yes. I think it might be helpful. And I'll speak for myself. I do get a lot of outreach from folks. We are 37 the Judiciary Committee. I think a lot of people think that we have separation of branches of 38 government. But I think it might be helpful for us to know if you have anything to share with us on how 39 people can connect, right, provide that feedback. I think for us. I am curious and how you all on the 40 management side, in the organizational culture, really kind of keep track of what some potential. This

1 sounds terrible, but like potentially, if there are the same feedback over and over again, in particular
2 Judicial Districts. If you do have that information, if there's some way or interest in sharing with us. So,
3 we can understand, too. And I think. So, the question overall is just what have you systematized to be 4 able to use, right, for growth? I think that's the asset way of saying that, right? If there's particular
5 themes that come up in particular Districts. Because some of us hear about Districts regularly and it's not 6 just the ones in which we serve the same constituents. But it would also help us in being able to 7 communicate with you to understand what the tools are. And how we can share that feedback. But also 8 know how you're using the feedback, if that makes sense. Thank you.

9
10 Rep. Weissman

11 Mr. Vasconcellos.

12
13 Steven Vasconcellos

14 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Thank you, Representative Bacon. I'd be happy to set aside time and bring some 15 of the experts from my team over to talk about, at a high level, the tools. How we can put you in a 16 position to share the availability of those tools. And, also, to talk to you about high-level themes that we 17 are seeing.

18
19 Rep. Weissman

20 All right, we'll go to Rep. Soper. Then, back to Rep. Mabry.

21
22 Rep. Soper

23 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Thank you very much for answering your questions. To follow up a little bit with 24 what Rep. Bacon was asking with the new case management system. Representative Evans, who's not 25 here anymore, but he wanted me to ask a question of you. In December of 2023, Colorado Politics
26 published an article in which they talked about the cash reserves being an excess of the statutory limits.
27 And several state agencies were listed as having been in excess. One of those is the Judicial Department.
28 And what the article went on to talk about was how $12.8 million, which was set aside for IT in a cash
29 fund, was part of what was in excess of the statutory limits. My question for you is, how is it that you
30 could have, I guess, both a set aside for a new case management system, at the same time that the State
31 Auditor found that it was in excess of the cash reserves and the spending restrictions? And if you could 32 clarify that for us.

33
34 Rep. Weissman

35 Mr. Vasconcellos.

36
37 Steven Vasconcellos

38 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Thank you, Representative Soper. For the committee's edification, we are no
39 longer out of compliance. We were out of compliance for a matter of months, which is not acceptable.
40 But we did the appropriate course. This was part of our case management funding plan. The cash fund in

1 question is not focused simply on the case management system. It is the global IT infrastructure cash
2 fund, which pays for everything from laptops, to routers, to helping. It will not be able to cover the 3 entire cost, but to helping fund the case management system. And approximately three years ago, we
4 started working with our JBC Analyst and the members of the committee to say that we want to start
5 building the reserves up so that we can contribute, if you will, to this cost. And not have it be just a
6 straight general fund ask. So, we did exceed the reserve. We weren't timely in asking for a waiver from 7 the Joint Budget Committee. But that waiver has been secured. It's been in place for almost a year now.
8 The finding is not a new finding, as if we're sitting here right now out of compliance. I've been in 9 compliance for over a year now. The Chair of the Joint Budget Committee wrote the State Controller's
10 Office and said, we have a waiver. And that is in place for a couple of more years. So, I think we're in 11 good stead on that front.

12

13 Rep. Soper

14 Thank you.

15

16 Rep. Weissman

17 Okay, Rep. Mabry. Then, I have a question. Then, back to Rep. Mabry.

18

19 Rep. Mabry

20 Thank you, Mr. Chair. So, as you both know, there has been reform in initial bond hearings over the past
21 few years. In fact, on one of the more recent bills before I was elected, my mother and I testified about 22 the need for 48-hour bond hearings. I am curious if you have an update on out-of-county 48-hour bond
23 hearings, how that process is rolling out, and how close we are to full statewide compliance.

24

25 Rep. Weissman

26 Mr. Vasconcellos.

27

28 Steven Vasconcellos

29 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Thank you, Representative Mabry. I'm probably not in a position to give you a 30 fully fleshed out answer. Other than, our Districts have put in a tremendous amount of work. We have 31 two regionalized locations that handle the overwhelming majority of bond hearings for rural Colorado, 32 including out of county. And then, most of the larger jurisdictions handle their bond hearings for 33 themselves. I am happy to, if you've got detailed questions or want to spend some time offline. I'm more 34 than happy to bring my team who work in this area, share data, answer any questions that you may have 35 at length.

36

37 Rep. Mabry

38 Yeah, great. We'll follow up.

39

40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Okay. Two sort of general statute- type questions, I guess. Mr. Vasconcellos, maybe for you. One is 3 recently the legislature created, it's sort of an odd acronym, ASIA, Administrative Support for 4 Independent Agencies, to achieve some economies of scale and scope and HR and IT functions in the 5 independent offices. I wonder if you could tell us where we are in the arc of that. What's working? What
6 maybe is stuck for whatever reason? Also, last year, Rep Snyder and, also, Rep. Soper here had the bill
7 for the court data sharing taskforce with a pretty quick turnaround. My understanding was that entity
8 was to have wrapped up, actually by this past Monday. So, just days ago. And I wonder if you could tell 9 us what we should expect about the work of that group.

10

11 Steven Vasconcellos

12 Thank you, Mr. Chair. And I apologize. I missed a little bit of the second issue.

13

14 Rep. Weissman

15 Sorry to go on about the question. Number two was, if you could report out on the work of the court data 16 sharing task force pursuant to HB 23-1132. Thanks.

17

18 Steven Vasconcellos

19 Thank you, Mr. Chair. First on ASIA. We have not been directly involved other than as an interested 20 observer. Because of the impact, a positive impact potentially, on the State Court Administrator's Office.
21 I just learned last week that it sounds like our Joint Budget Committee Analyst is going to recommend 22 that the effort be disbanded. They've had some difficulty in hiring an Executive Director. That has not
23 been finalized. But I think that's been the direction. There's been some deep concern from Joint Budget
24 Committee staff, it'd be better for him to speak on his own behalf. But it was relayed to me directly that 25 the recommendation is going to be to disband the effort because it cannot find an Executive Director.
26 And the initial proposal was to give the State Court Administrator's Office the FTE. And I, to be candid,
27 neither Chief Justice Boatright nor myself are in favor of that approach. I can appreciate the difficulty in 28 standing up a new agency, it is never a simple or linear affair. And hiring in this environment sometimes 29 can be very difficult. So, I'm sure it has been challenging. But as we've discussed in other hearings, other
30 venues, it is not simply a workload issue that that drove this. In some cases, I would argue statutorily, it
31 is inappropriate for us to be providing the administrative support for some of these agencies. And so,
32 even if we have all of the proper resources, I don't think it's acceptable. To just to pick an obvious
33 example, for us to be the direct administrative support for the Office of Judicial Discipline. I think that 34 should be separate from us. There are other agencies in a substantially similar posture. And so, you
35 know, I'm happy to do whatever we can. Like I said, we have not, we're not on the ASIA Board. We are 36 interested observers. Happy to do whatever we can to support that effort. We are still, in the interim, 37 providing administrative support to many of the agencies. But if this goes ultimately the direction of 38 undoing ASIA, I think the resources should go to the individual agencies themselves, rather than the 39 Department.

40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Thank you. I will say I'm pretty shocked to hear of this. And I think I agree with you as to the backstop.
3 I also hope that we can try a little bit harder to hew to the original concept. Looks like you might be 4 getting some late news from Mr. Scanlon. So, Mr. Vasconcellos, if you wanted to add more on that or 5 feel free to pivot to court data sharing.

6
7 Steven Vasconcellos

8 Mr. Chair, I want to talk just very briefly about the court data sharing taskforce. I will admit that 9 normally I would have been up to speed but since they just wrapped up their work and the timing related
10 to the hearing. And just, candidly, I've been focused on Carr Center mitigation efforts. That's on me. I
11 apologize. Normally, I'd be prepared for that question, but I'm happy to give an update. I know the work
12 is wrapped up. But I haven't had a chance to circle back. Report is coming. I did want to circle back, if 13 it's okay, to a question from Representative Mabry. And again, this is not to foreshorten any offline
14 conversations that you would like to have. But we were able to confirm with my team while we're sitting 15 up here, that we're fully compliant statewide, on out-of-county warrants.

16
17 Rep. Weissman

18 And understanding when we passed the bill and set the timeline, nobody saw what was going to happen
19 to the Ralph Carr Building. Imagining that there's a report largely done. If you could send it to members
20 of the committee, I think we're interested in where that landed. Okay. Rep. Mabry, was there one more 21 question you had? Go ahead.

22
23 Rep. Mabry

24 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Thank you, Mr. Vasconcellos and Chief Justice Boatright for hanging in there
25 and answering all our questions. My next question has to do with pretrial reform. So, across the country,
26 many states are stepping up to reform a system that I believe is fundamentally inequitable. I think many 27 people in this room would believe that our pretrial system isn't equitable. The poor are unfairly punished
28 and held in jail without facing conviction. Simply because they cannot afford to post bond. I raise this in 29 our conversation with your Office because, in other states, Judicial Departments have engaged in or 30 even led efforts to reform unfair pretrial systems. And so, my question for you is, does State Judicial 31 have plans in engaging in or leading in pretrial reform here in Colorado? And if not, why?

32
33 Rep. Weissman

34 Mr. Vasconcellos

35
36 Steven Vasconcellos

37 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Thank you, Representative Mabry. From my vantage point, we have been 38 important partners and stakeholders in that conversation. So, I think that leadership is very important.
39 Particularly, by Chief Judges at the local level. Chief Judges can get folks in a room, to a table, to 40 discuss matters. I think one of our biggest challenges, and there have been efforts made, so I want to

1 recognize those. But I think one of the biggest challenges on pretrial reform is the availability of pretrial
2 services in most local communities. I think that is a challenging local funding matter that might
3 implicate challenging state funding matters. But our Chief Judges are willing and engaged partners at the 4 table in these discussions. And as always, it is not just the leadership that the Department's showing,
5 there are also some very real access to resource issues, locally.

6
7 Rep. Weissman

8 Okay, members, I know that we have at least one person signed up for public comment. So, I think we'll 9 wrap questions here. Everyone knows where to find Mr. Scanlon for follow up purposes. Chief Justice,
10 thank you for being with us. Good luck. And Mr. Vasconcellos, the real estate problem over there, it's 11 quite grave. We appreciate. You can take leave, and we'll just call through names of folks who might 12 have signed up for public comment, here.

13
14 Chief Justice Boatright

15 Thank you.

16
17 Rep. Weissman

18 Okay. In person, I believe we have Alan Higbie.

19
20 Rep. Weissman

21 All right, Mr. Higbie. Thanks for being patient with us. Let us know your name and any affiliation.
22 Please go ahead.

23
24 Alan Higbie

25 Very well. Thank you. Good afternoon. Is it on? Green is on. Thank you. Good afternoon. And thank 26 you very much for an opportunity. Mr. Chair and Madam Vice Chair. My name is Alan Higbie. I'm from 27 Colorado Springs. And I am not here on behalf of any organization and don't represent anybody, any 28 clients or anything like that. I'm here for myself. I'm here to speak to you about the lessons learned from 29 the, as a Chief Justice just referred to it, the events of the past few years. And I'm talking about the 30 judicial corruption scandal that consumed things for quite a while. The beginning of it I would say was 31 when it first came forward in the media. And I would put the book end on it with the public censure of 32 the former Chief Justice that occurred August of 2023. I'm a retired attorney. I practiced for 42 years. I
33 served for eight years on the judicial performance commission in El Paso County, 4th Judicial District. I
34 retired six years ago. And, so, that's why I have time to look into the events of the past few years.

35
36 I prepared a report, which I've put into the record. I entitled it Preparing for the Next Scandal: Valuable
37 Insights from the 2019 to 2023 Judicial Corruption Scandal. There are lots of lessons to learn, but I'm 38 only going to mention a couple of the bottom line ones that we've gotten. When the scandal first broke,
39 according to news reports, then House Speaker Alec Garnett called for the appointment of a special
40 prosecutor. And the editorial board of The Denver Post also called for the appointment of a special

1 prosecutor. And one wasn't appointed. There were referrals by the Office of State Auditor to law
2 enforcement, but they came too late and very little. There were lots of redactions. And I don't know the 3 details. I haven't seen what was sent over or anything like that. But it appears to me that something, the 4 ball got dropped. There were no prosecutions. In what to me, and this is my opinion, the acts that were 5 alleged to have occurred fit the definition of corruption. And, so, we had what looked like a ball that got 6 dropped. And we also had about 9 or 10 different investigations going on from various agencies. Some 7 were administered by the Judicial Department, itself. Which is probably not a great practice, if the 8 Department is under investigation, for them to manage those. And there are probably differences of 9 opinion about that, but it just didn't have a good look, as far as I was concerned. Anyway, I started to 10 look into the RCT and the ILG reports. Because, if at least those on the interim committee, recall that 11 Judge Maes from Pueblo came and critiqued those quite heavily. I shared that. But as I got through it, I 12 ended up seeing that there was a lot more to it than just those reports. And I've set all that out in my 13 report.

14
15 So, in the interest of time, I'll just get to the bottom line. I think that we should have a. Well, I looked at 16 the idea of in Colorado, do we have a special prosecutor that's easy to access without a lot of friction,
17 and, and so on? And I think that I would propose, I don't have specific legislation. But I would propose
18 an idea that we have something that when the next scandal comes up, and there will be. Not from this 19 Department, probably. I don't know, scandals are inevitable. Corruption is inevitable. I asked myself the 20 question, Are there best practices for investigating and prosecuting and dealing with corruption? And it
21 didn't take long before I came up with the United Nations Office of Drugs and Crime has a set of 22 standards that have been in effect for 20 years. And they've been peer reviewed. They've been used.
23 They're worldwide. So, I would suggest that. Well, what my report did. I went through and compared 24 what we did in this scandal, the totality of all the efforts, how does that compare to the UN
25 recommended best practices? And a lot of these things had been done, looking internally at the agencies
26 re-educating people and so on. But the one thing that failed was the number one best practice, it was 27 prosecutions. We didn't have one. And so, you got to ask yourself, why didn't we? And if the early calls,
28 right, in the very beginning. If early calls for special prosecutor had been enacted or implemented, I
29 think we would have had a more satisfying, more satisfactory result. And it would have been a lot more 30 efficient. There were lots of fragmented efforts all over the place to get to the bottom of this. We didn't,
31 as far as I could tell, anybody with subpoena power to compel the production of documents and 32 testimony and the ability to prosecute where necessary. The timeline on this thing could have been 33 shortened a lot. It would have been a lot more efficient. And I think it could be probably done. I haven't 34 drafted anything. But it looks like we could probably add just something to that. The other fast thing is 35 something that came up during the interim committee. Was the State Auditor's timeline for making the 36 referral to law enforcement? And probably some wording or clarification in that when did they have a 37 duty to make that referral? That was a big problem. But fundamental, was the idea of was the idea of 38 having the investigated agency do the investigation. So, that is all I have.

39
40

1 Rep. Weissman

2 Mr. Higbie. Thank you. I will let you know Mr. Pogue has confirmed to me that your testimony and 3 your report had been uploaded. Members, if you go into your box, there's the Joint Judiciary folder go
4 within that to the testimony sub-folder, you'll see the documents that Mr. Higbie has for us. I think
5 you've probably seen our agenda, sir. The very next presentation that we're gonna proceed right away to 6 is from the Commission on Judicial Discipline. Possibly, they will have some comments that are in the 7 same theme as you've been speaking of. Thanks for coming up here to speak to us on this occasion.

8

9 Alan Higbie

10 And my email addresses is on the bottom front page of the report.

11

12 Rep. Weissman

13 Thank you. So, members, I think that your engagement has been invited by our witness, if you'd like to 14 follow up. Thank you, sir.

15

16 Alan Higbie

17 Thank you.

18

19 Rep. Weissman

20 All right. We're gonna keep marching onward. The next segment is to hear from the Commission on 21 Judicial Discipline. We see that Executive Director Gregory is with us and at least one other individual 22 with the Commission.

Appendix 27(dd)(ii)

Transcript of Colo. Comm'n on Jud.
Discipline Presentation;

Joint Judiciary Committee—January 12, 2024 Hearing: Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline SMART Act Presentation

1 Rep. Weissman

2 All right, Mr. Carpenter. Mr. Gregory, thanks for being with us. However you would like to proceed. I
3 wasn't sure if you need to hook up a laptop for presentation or if you're just gonna be going off notes,
4 whatever you like.

5

6 Jim Carpenter

7 Yeah, we had sent over a PowerPoint. But we can probably proceed without that.

8

9 Rep. Weissman

10 Okay. We are getting hard copies handed out here. We also have your memo of compiled stats.

11

12 Jim Carpenter

13 Great.

14

15 Rep. Weissman

16 However you'd like to proceed.

17

18 Jim Carpenter

19 Perfect. Well, we'll get started.

20

21 Christopher Gregory

22 Maybe just a couple minutes.

23

24 Jim Carpenter

25 They've got them.

26

27 Christopher Gregory

28 Okay.

29

30 Jim Carpenter

31 The committee has them.

32

33 Christopher Gregory

34 I can log into Zoom is what they've said.

35

36

1 Jim Carpenter

2 With that, thank you. My name is Jim Carpenter. I'm Vice Chair of the Colorado Commission on 3 Judicial Discipline. I'm really happy to be here today. Christopher Gregory is the Executive Director of 4 the Commission. And on behalf of all of the other members of the Commission, thank you for inviting
5 us to present today and to have this conversation. I also want to thank the Joint Committee for their great 6 work over the last year in enacting significant and meaningful reforms to the judicial discipline process.
7 This process will be better, fairer, more transparent because of the actions of this Committee and the 8 General Assembly, as a whole. I want to quickly review a couple of things related to our process, and 9 talk about some of the things that we have focused on in the past year. And then, Chris will review our 10 at least preliminary statistics for the cases that we managed over the past year. And then, of course, we 11 will take your questions.

12
13 So, on your first slide, the constitutional and statutory mandates of the Commission. Just as a quick 14 reminder they are to protect the public from improper judicial conduct, preserve the integrity of the 15 process, maintain public confidence in the Judiciary, create greater awareness of judicial behavior, and 16 provide for the fair and expeditious disposition of complaints of judicial misconduct or judicial 17 disabilities. We have a prescribed process through both the Constitution and the statutes that you all 18 have enacted for intake and evaluation, identifying [reasonable] grounds for the proceedings. The 19 complaint and investigation stage. The determination and the preponderance of evidence stage. Formal 20 proceedings, if we get that far. Recommendations and, then, the Supreme Court, or in certain 21 circumstances special tribunal review. Fact finding and legal determinations with the final order. Just as 22 a quick background on sort of how we operate.

23
24 I want to talk a minute about performance measures, but first a couple of things. We've had an incredibly 25 active year, both with our traditional responsibilities and following up on the good work of this 26 committee and the Legislature. We had a record number of inquiries, referrals, we call them RFEs, 27 requests for evaluation, 346 of them in 2023, up from 250 in 2022. And Chris will go through all of the 28 particular stats and data that we have compiled. In the year, we I notably came to a sound resolution in 29 the Coats matter.

30
31 I want to note that we're a very new Commission. We have 4 new members of the 10 in the last six 32 months, there's one current vacancy and only two of us have served more than three years. Chris has 33 been Executive Director two years, now. So again, thanks to the Legislation, we have a full-time staff of 34 three plus adequate and additional resources on an ad needed basis for investigation and research. We 35 are working to transition to the Office of Judicial Discipline which was set up in statute last year. The 36 Executive Director, Special Counsel, Office Manager, investigative services provided through 37 independent contracts, and anticipated hiring of a paralegal or public information officer in 2024 to 38 support our operations and all the complainant notifications under the statute. We have worked very 39 hard on public information, like the improved website, more information sharing and training about

1 what the rules and expectations and our processes are. And then, the Annual Reports which have new 2 requirements. I think for additional statistics and information.

3
4 We've undertaken a rules revision process, both based on the on the statute, and then, in anticipation of
5 the potential approval of the joint resolution passed last year that voters will act on this Fall, and funding
6 approved for FY 23. The Commission is negotiating to consult with the National Center for State Courts
7 to propose some revisions into those rules.

8
9 We have worked very hard to establish the Office of Administrative Support for Independent Agencies,
10 I think there was some conversation about that in the last presentation. We strongly believe that that will 11 help and ensure that the Office of Judicial Discipline and other independent agencies operate more 12 effectively and efficiently.

13
14 And finally, a key goal for us in 2024 is more education for judges about ethics, the discipline process,
15 changes in statute, potential constitutional changes. We really want to be more proactive, focused on 16 heading off issues, while maintaining a robust discipline process when necessary. And with that, I will 17 turn it over to our Executive Director, Christopher Gregory to go through some of the core statistics and 18 data from the past year. Thank you.

19
20 Christopher Gregory

21 Good afternoon, committee members. As our statistics are kind of summarized here, in our presentation, 22 probably the most significant is the greater increase in number of requests for evaluation of judicial 23 conduct that we received in 2023, as compared to any prior year. We had 346 requests for evaluation of 24 Judicial Conduct, which, if you compare it to even 2022, there were 250 that year. So, quite a significant 25 change from what had happened previously. The majority of those requests for evaluation that were 26 dismissed, is typical, however, with prior statistics. It was about 50%. And then, with that, we get 27 probably about 7% of our requests coming from either sovereign citizens or folks that just perceive a
28 generalized conspiracy. And those, of course, are dismissed. That there would need to be a greater 29 showing of bias or discrimination or that sort of thing. 2023 was also unique in the fact that about 20.8%
30 of the requests for evaluation of the cases that we considered arose from 73 cases that are being 31 investigated through the records of the Secretary of State's Office as it would relate to judges' financial 32 disclosures. So, that is sort of an outlying figure here that will later kind of impact some of the 33 demographic statistics and other things that were required as part of our reporting here today, under 34 Section 13-5.3-108 of the Colorado Revised Statutes.

35
36 In addition to just the regular RFEs that we processed, we had 114 jurisdictional denials. These are cases
37 where someone might be complaining about an attorney, they might be complaining about a magistrate,
38 municipal court judge. Things that the Commission just doesn't have any authority to consider. So, that's 39 also significant in addition to the 346 number I provided.

1 There were 84 investigations performed in 2023. And by investigations that includes more in-depth
2 review of public records, court records, that sort of thing, and are inclusive of the cases involving the 3 Secretary of State's records that I've mentioned previously. In 62 cases or approximately 18% of the 4 total requests for evaluation that we received in 2023, they were processed as complaints. And as Mr.
5 Carpenter had explained in his kind of overview of the process, a complaint is recognized when there are 6 reasonable grounds for judicial disciplinary proceedings. So, it's sort of the request for evaluation of the 7 circumstances that pass sort of a frivolousness test. And so, these are the things that are substantial that 8 we've looked at in the last year. In two of those cases, because of our investigation, the complaints were 9 either partially or completely recognized as being unsubstantiated. So, our investigative process was 10 able to find additional information and rule out those complaints that we had processed. Other court
11 statistics include the formal proceedings that we had initiated in two cases. This is essentially filing a 12 statement of charges or complaint with the anticipation that, if necessary, there'd be an adjudicative
13 phase. And indeed, in one of those cases, although it was from a prior year, we did have a formal 14 adjudicatory hearing that was completed earlier this year. So, that's essentially a full trial in the judicial 15 disciplinary world.

16

17 As far as the dispositions and sanctions that were imposed into 2023. Three dismissals with concern or 18 some sort of diversion and deferral agreement were reached. In three cases. We had one private 19 reprimand, two private censures, three public disciplinary opinions, and four cases that resulted in 20 resignations from office. I would caveat all these statistics on being preliminary as we are still 21 completing our annual report for the year. But I do think that they are indicative of just how much our 22 both volume and significance of the cases that we handled in the past year had increased from prior 23 years.

24

25 As far as the different demographic information that was expected through House Bill 23-1019. What 26 we had was subject judges with recognized complaints, that's what these figures would relate to. And 27 I've excluded any consideration of the financial disclosure cases, just because of the size of that number 28 would render the rest of these statistics sort of irrelevant or useless. So, to give you the statistics we had.
29 73% of the cases that were considered involved male subject judges, 27% female subject judges. Of 30 those judges, as a group, 77% were white, non-Hispanic, 9% were black or African American, 18%
31 were Hispanic or Latino, and 1% identified as being part of the LGBTQ plus community. When looking 32 at the statistics of persons that were impacted, on the other side of these cases. 44% were male, 56%
33 were female, 87% were white, non-Hispanic, 4% black or African American, Asian or Hispanic
34 respectively, so 4% 4% 4% And then finally 4% of that group was also identified as being part of the 35 LGBTQ plus community. With that, I'll defer back to Mr. Carpenter on our legislative priorities.

36

37 Rep. Weissman

38 Mr. Carpenter.

39

40

1 Jim Carpenter

2 Thank you, Mr. Chair. Members of committee, we have just a couple of, unlike last year. We have just a
3 couple of items that we wanted to bring to the attention of the committee and the Legislature. Chris has 4 mentioned the personal financial disclosure cases. That has brought up to us a need we see to clarify
5 those obligations. I think that others, members of the bench could speak better to this, but I think there
6 are. There is confusion about requirements. There are some requirements for changes in financial 7 situations or particular incidences, it's not entirely clear. The Secretary of State captures this data, it's not
8 exactly clear what they do with that. It there's just a number of things around that. And we think that it's 9 an important area of investigation, and probably requires a legislative fix.

10

11 The second one is, again, I'm a non-lawyer on the commission. So, I hope I get this language right. But 12 there's the senior judge program for judges who have retired, but who can still actively engage in hearing
13 cases and doing and performing some duties. And that's a significant and important part of the judicial 14 system overall, in a number of areas. There is an absolute prohibition on anyone moving into the senior 15 judge program, who has any discipline history, at all. And our point of view about this is that that ought 16 to be a factor but not a sole determinative factor in moving into the senior judge program. I think 17 particularly in light of some of the things that, you know, we're seeing with the with the financial 18 disclosure issues. And, again, it's an outright prohibition, it ought to be a factor in our view, but not the 19 factor. Chris, do you have anything to add to that?

20

21 Christopher Gregory

22 I think I would just add that part of the reason that we want this statutory change is that judicial 23 discipline is multifaceted. And on one hand, yes, there's a punitive component. On the other hand, 24 however, in the vast majority of cases, you have well-meaning judges who may have made a mistake.
25 And the whole point would be, how can we provide them the rehabilitative resources so that they can 26 continue to make a positive contribution, both to their work and the judicial system, in general. And if 27 we have this categorical bar, it interferes with our ability to do that. It also creates a collateral 28 consequence, as we are trying to negotiate resolutions to these cases where a judge to avoid being 29 excluded from the senior judge program would not consider a stipulation or something of that sort. And 30 it's just highly problematic to our function to have these types of categorical bars.

31

32 Jim Carpenter

33 And with that, our presentation is finished. And we certainly welcome questions.

34

35 Rep. Weissman

36 Thank you. I know there are questions. All right. Rep. Herod, Rep. Bacon, and Vice Chair Gonzales.

37

38 Rep. Herod

39 Thank you, Mr. Chair, and good to see my former boss here. Thanks for not firing me all those years
40 back as the Chief of Staff for Governor Ritter. I have got some concerns about your legislative priorities,

1 however. And particularly around the prohibition against judges with disciplinary histories from serving
2 as senior judges. And I think Mr. Chair and I worked on this years ago, a little bit. There were some
3 conversations around senior judges. And, you know, I think it's really hard when we lean in so heavily
4 on the senior judges more recently, to deal with some of the gaps in delivery or access to say that those 5 senior judges who have discipline actions can then come back and work on the bench as a senior judge.
6 It seems a bit problematic to me. Particularly, as someone who served on the judicial performance
7 commission. A lot of folks don't stand for retention, if they know they're going to get a bad review from 8 the performance commission. And so, then they move over to becoming a senior judge, would be the 9 concern. And so, how do we right that? I guess is the question. In a way that we're not allowing for 10 judges who do have does discipline action against them to then just become senior judges? And then can 11 you give me some specific, very specific incidents so I have a better understanding of who these types of 12 judges are. What types of disciplinary actions they had faced. And why we believe that they should be 13 eligible to be a senior judge now.

14

15 Rep. Weissman

16 I guess whoever like to take that. And then Rep. Herod, while we're on this line of questioning, maybe
17 you could speak to the Commission doesn't have the ability to emit bills. I don't know if you're stating 18 these in a general way if sponsors have been secured. I know you may not be in a position to get away
19 confidences. But, I'm interested in what specifically we should be expecting. And then as far as number
20 two, I mean, I sort of see the point being made. But there's the more minor discipline that's resolved
21 informally, and then there are the more severe things. Where, frankly, maybe there should continue to be 22 a categorical bar. Maybe we could, if we're gonna go forward at all draw a line there. But with that,
23 whoever like to field the question from Rep. Herod.

24

25 Jim Carpenter

26 I'll start. Thank you, Mr. Chair. Representative Herod, I was very pleased that we were able to hire you
27 into the Governor's Office and certainly wouldn't have fired you from the Governor's Office. But thank 28 you very much. I will turn it over to Chris, for an answer as well. And, Mr. Chair, we have not gotten so
29 far as to begin the formal process of requesting legislation. And these are these are just two items that 30 had kind of come up in the Commission's conversations. And I certainly hear the concerns about 31 allowing a judge with some discipline history to become a senior judge. And our concern and point is 32 that it ought to be a factor. So that, and as I understand it, not everybody who wants to be a senior judge
33 can just become a senior judge. They can't automatically move into that position. There is there is some 34 criteria for that there is a process for acceptance into that program. And our point is that, if there's a 35 minor issue, that that shouldn't necessarily be a bar. It could be a factor in the determination, but not the 36 prohibition. I think one of the concerns is, as we work our way through these financial disclosure
37 reports, whereas Chris said, there could have just been a mistake or an oversight, should that 38 automatically bar somebody from that program. We think there's a way to work through those issues.

39

40

1 Christopher Gregory

2 I'd only add, I think if something were developed on the senior judge program side, similar to a
3 nominating commission. Where whomever is applying for that program is vetted in a particular way. A 4 lot of what has happened with the legislation over the last couple of years, has been to improve the 5 ability for information sharing between the judicial oversight entities. And what I would expect here is 6 that, if somebody's applying for the senior judge program, just as occurs right now. We receive a letter
7 asking about their disciplinary history, we respond, yes or no. If there's an issue here, they either have 8 pending discipline, or they don't. They either have a disciplinary past or not. And if more information
9 was requested of us, we would be happy to explain the circumstances of what that prior discipline may 10 have been or, if there was pending discipline, that could also be explained through the judge that would 11 be applying for whatever this position was. But Representative Herod to your question, what types of 12 things are we talking about here? The difficulty is right now that bar is categorical. So, it's anything
13 other than a dismissal with concerns, which isn't recognized as a disciplinary action. And so, what that 14 would incentivize is that everything's going to have to be sort of a diversion agreement, rather than a
15 way of imposing one of these private dispositions that we have, at different levels. At the very base
16 level, there's a private admonition. Which means that a judge, they didn't even violate the Code, which 17 are our ethical standards, but that their actions kind of came to a degree that they just created an 18 appearance of impropriety. We can't impose that level of discipline if there's an interest in the judge
19 serving in the senior judge program. The next level would be a private reprimand, which is conduct that 20 just doesn't meet the minimal requirements of the Code. And that's kind of the middle level. And then 21 the next level would be a private censure where a judge has substantially departed from the standards
22 under the Code. Separate from that, the Commission also has to determine whether or not discipline
23 would be imposed privately or whether we would be proceeding with formal proceedings where you
24 would have a public discipline. And at least in my interpretation, that decision isn't necessarily based 25 upon the severity of the conduct, but more of the nature of it. And if a judge, for instance, had a minor
26 criminal conviction, whether that would be, I guess a first time DUI, it could be, I don't know, trespass
27 or something that wasn't a crime involving moral turpitude. A felony is automatically going to prohibit a
28 judge from serving. But minor things that could be rehabilitative in nature. Having that just be a 29 complete bar from the judges participating in the senior judge program. It really does, you know, create 30 some problems and complexity. Even in the Commission's decision making, as far as what the sanction 31 should be.

32

33 Rep. Weissman

34 Thank you. So, we'll go to Rep. Bacon, and then we'll go to the Vice Chair, and then we'll go to Rep.
35 Garcia, and then members, that may be all the time that we have. Rep Bacon.

36

37 Rep. Bacon

38 I think thank you for sharing your response to Rep Herod's questions. I think, similarly, for me, it was 39 just we've spent a lot of time talking about discipline. What the public has access to, even understanding
40 what some of the histories and records are. And so, I was just curious on how we circumvent that, to be

1 able to support or to be able to consider this proposal. Just given the confidentiality is given the internal
2 versus external facing documents. And just for what it's worth, you know, we spent a lot of time last
3 year just talking about transparency, particularly around judicial discipline. So, there's some curiosities
4 there. And no need to necessarily reply here. I am curious, your thoughts. I did not see much between 5 this presentation in the last about anything around the judicial ombuds program. So, I'm curious if I
6 know, we wrote into the bill to have to present at SMART. However, this is the building year. So, I was 7 just curious, any thoughts or any insights on how the work is going, given the goals of the bill, and kind
8 of like the goals that we set out through legislation? If there's anything that you'd like to share there?
9

10 Rep. Weissman

11 Mr. Gregory

12
13 Christopher Gregory

14 I'm sorry, Mr. Chair. Representative Bacon, I'm uncertain what has happened with the ombuds program, 15 because we were not added as part of their board. And they're in sort of a formative stage, much like the 16 ASIA Office that was mentioned at the end of the last presentation. In that vein, yeah, I would like more
17 information as far as what progress has been made. I do think that that office is absolutely essential,
18 particularly given that this scandal over the last couple of years. Even just the reporting and the 19 investigations that were done, revealed a problem with retaliation and folks being concerned that if they 20 come forward, it's going to be a wall. And the Ombuds Office provides a wonderful facilitation tool, so 21 that those concerns can be brought up in an anonymous way. But the person that's interested, would still,
22 you know, have that information. So, at least from our Office, and our Commission's perspective, we 23 remain 100% committed to the success of that office and are very supportive of it.
24

25 Rep. Weissman

26 Rep Bacon, go ahead.

27
28 Rep. Bacon

29 I'm sorry, I haven't a chance to go back through the website. Just in looking through your investigations.
30 Do you also track which Judicial Districts? If so, that'd be helpful to share? I mentioned it to the Judicial 31 Department. If we can also have a sense, and I can probably search on your website, I do know through 32 the Annual Report. But just any insights you might be able to share, thank you for the demographic 33 breakdown. That is incredible for us to understand, also, you know, on one side to figure out how to 34 mitigate any potential bias and the other for accountability. But I do think it would be interesting for us
35 to hear breakdowns by judicial districts, as well. Just to kind of understand, to be able to give us a high-
36 level picture of potential issues around culture. So, thank you.
37

38 Rep. Weissman

39 Mr. Gregory.
40

1 Christopher Gregory

2 And Representative Bacon, I think you bring up a good point as to one of the things that's still in
3 progress, the statute asks for us to provide this data in a searchable way on our website. What I have 4 been able to do with the website thus far is post the Annual Reports. That District-by-District breakdown
5 is contained, at least in the last two Annual Reports and I think in some of the prior ones. But the 6 technological issues. We are trying to find a better way. I know some of the other commissions
7 nationally. Yeah, they just have a pull down: year, Judicial District, and then it produces a number. But
8 we will continue to work with, I think it's the contractor through the State Internet Portal Authority,
9 Tyler Technologies, that helps with the website, to see what options we have available for that. But the 10 breakdown is in the Annual Reports.

11

12 Rep. Weissman

13 Rep. Bacon good for now. Okay, so we will go to the Vice Chair, then Rep. Garcia.

14

15 Sen. Gonzales

16 Thank you, Mr. Chair, I am very interested in reading that Annual Report, and will look forward to 17 reviewing it once it is released. My first question is, if you have a timeline on when you expect that to be 18 completed? I am appreciative of the statistics that you have prepared and shared with us thus far. My 19 second question actually pertains to ASIA. Because while I was subbing in on the Joint Budget
20 Committee, there was actually a briefing issue on this. On, I don't know how to say it, other than 21 extraordinarily slow walking of the implementation of that. And I want to just ask and better understand
22 whether that has impacted your ability to operate as an office? And if so, how to hear the State Court
23 Administrator say that, potentially, they're just going to. I forget the word he used, but walk back the 24 implementation of the ASIA Board altogether is incredibly concerning. And so, I just want to 25 understand how this is impacting y'all.

26

27 Christopher Gregory

28 If I can respond.

29

30 Rep. Weissman

31 Mr. Gregory.

32

33 Christopher Gregory

34 So as the agency head for the Commission, I'm part of the ASIA Board. And it's, frankly, very troubling
35 that I, you know, that I've learned this information today. I think I can provide you with some context, as 36 to maybe what's going on. That I don't know whether or not it was expressed to the Joint Budget
37 Committee when that briefing had happened. But we did encounter some substantial issues, the ASIA
38 Board, out the gate. We tried to initiate this hiring process as quickly as possible. There were, for 39 whatever reason, disagreements over the composition of the ASIA Board. For some reason, the Attorney
40 General's Office provided an opinion, essentially saying the larger agencies that would just be

1 essentially receiving remora status, for lack of a better description here, where they would have their
2 payroll handled by the ASIA Office. The AG's Office took the opinion that they needed to be part of the 3 governing board for ASIA, which was very troubling to us smaller agencies. Where the way that this
4 legislation was intended, we were supposed to be the priority and, therefore, have the decision-making
5 authority and the ability to control things. That was a very intensive and complicating argument that 6 happened, I think, right at the beginning, when we were trying to form our hiring committee, make some 7 of these decisions. It was resolved when, actually the JBC sent over a memo saying, This is not what
8 was intended. And either these larger agencies can give up their internal FTEs and take the full gambit
9 of what's being offered through the ASIA Office. And, therefore, have a stake in and a say in things. But 10 none of this piecemeal, it's all or nothing. That was resolved. And then after that was resolved, we did
11 get our announcement out for the ASIA Director position. Out of the applicant pool, there were some 12 issues that also created legal questions that we had to resolve before, finally, doing the initial sorting to 13 narrow things down to a panel of finalists. However, what we then experienced, was a number of those 14 finalists dropped out, or had indicated that the pay range that was posted for the position wasn't adequate
15 for what they were looking at. And finally, when we had actually made an offer to have someone come
16 in as the Director, the candidate replied that they were asking for a salary significantly above what that 17 posted range was. The response from the ASIA Board, then, was to file a budget amendment, which is 18 now before the JBC. That is essentially asking to equalize the pay scale of sort of these Director and the 19 equivalent of what SCAO would have as sort of a unit manager or a controller. To equalize those 20 salaries. And there was a significant difference between what had been appropriated for ASIA through 21 the original bill and what SCAO was paying people doing similar jobs. So, out of that, that's kind of the 22 problem. And I don't know where it'll all end up. But we really do need sort of that equal and adequate 23 resource provided through this Office.

24

25 Jim Carpenter

26 If I may.

27

28 Rep. Weissman

29 Mr. Carpenter.

30

31 Jim Carpenter

32 Yes. Mr. Chair, Madam Chair, thank you for that question. I think that the Commission feels very 33 strongly that, despite the challenges in the setting up and the hiccups, this is an incredibly important
34 office for our operations and our independence and our ability to do what we need to do. And so we, you
35 know, are, again, a little surprised to hear this. And hopeful that we can work through this and get it set 36 up, established, and doing what it needs to do, quickly.

37

38 Rep. Weissman

39 Follow up, Madam Vice Chair.

40

1 Sen. Gonzales

2 I very much appreciate all of that information and context. It's incredibly helpful. I did just want to circle
3 back to my initial question in regards to when that annual report will be available, because I will read it
4 with interest. Thank you.

5

6 Rep. Weissman

7 Mr. Gregory.

8

9 Christopher Gregory

10 And I'm sorry, I lost track of the questions there. The Annual Report, I've already started working on it. I
11 had hoped that I would have it out before this hearing, on an annual basis. However, what I've realized
12 this last year, is that we're still in the midst of processing a substantial number of the RFEs that we 13 received at the end of the year. And to be able to finalize those numbers as to what we ultimately 14 recognized as a complaint, what actions kind of came out of that statistical grouping. It may take a 15 couple of weeks into January before we can finalize those numbers. My expectation is that we have our 16 next Commission meeting at the beginning of February. That perhaps after that, in short, short order, we 17 would be able to publish the Annual Report.

18

19 Sen. Gonzales

20 Thank you very much. I very much appreciate all that context.

21

22 Rep. Weissman

23 And Mr. Gregory, when that is available, if you could send to Mr. Pogue and Ms. Jenson. And so, that 24 they can circulate it to all members in both committees. All right. Last question will be to Rep. Garcia, 25 and then we will have to move on to the next segment.

26

27 Rep Garcia

28 Thank you, Mr. Chair. I have one clarifying question, then a question. So, based on your response to 29 Rep. Herod's initial questions to you, when you were talking about the different ways in which an REF
30 can be responded to. What I understood is, that the REF will be filed and then you have these options of 31 how you respond. But all those options are what is categorized under disciplinary history, is that correct?

32

33 Christopher Gregory

34 Yes. So, and I guess there's another response, too. We receive the RFEs. And, you know, that's 35 essentially an evaluation process, where the threshold is whether something in that RFE provides a
36 reasonable ground for the judicial disciplinary proceedings. It's only after that complaint is recognized
37 that you would get into a determination, which is one of the phases that Mr. Carpenter had talked about 38 in our proceedings, where it's then up to the Commission to investigate what was presented in the RFE.
39 One of the commissioners then presents to the whole Commission as to what the recommendations
40 would be. But out of those recommendations, it spans anywhere from, you know, we don't have

1 evidence, and this is appropriate to dismiss. This is something that's problematic, so we're going to
2 dismiss it with concerns or educational language. Or those other options that I mentioned, which are also
3 listed in it's Rules of Judicial Discipline 35 and 36. And it goes anywhere from some sort of diversion-
4 type agreement up to the removal or required retirement of a judge.

5
6 Rep Garcia

7 So, I guess, then my question is, is it the RF the REF that ends up being part of the disciplinary history?
8 Or is it the action that's taken if any findings are found from the evaluation, then that is what becomes a 9 disciplinary history?

10
11 Christopher Gregory

12 Right. And actually, it's an excellent question, they are requests for evaluation. So, RFE is the acronym.
13 But it is only things that happen after that determination stage and it's at that determination stage, if it's 14 going to be private discipline, the standard for evidence is more likely than not, or a preponderance. If 15 it's public discipline that would need clear and convincing evidence. So, it's not as if these outcomes, I 16 guess just happen out of the air. It's some proof that we've developed through our investigations.

17
18 Rep. Weissman

19 Rep. Garcia.

20
21 Rep Garcia

22 So, here's my question. Based on that, I guess my question then is looking at the different categories
23 listed here of what an RFE could be requested. And this might even just be rhetorical. But I'm just 24 curious of all of these which ones you find are appropriate to excuse, to say that a judge could then 25 become a senior judge when they've been found to have acted on these bases?

26
27 Christopher Gregory

28 I'm sorry. I think it would kind of equate to the same like spectrum that you'd look at for criminal 29 conduct or even, you know, tort liability, that it is really sort of the, you know, negligence, kind of that 30 lower level culpability that would kind of fit into these categories. And quite honestly, when we do look 31 at like sort of a delayed ruling, many factors are considered in that situation. And oftentimes, judges
32 have unrealistic workloads, there's a lot of mitigating circumstances in what happens. In one of our 33 cases, a family member has a medical issue and that gets the judge's attention distracted for a period of 34 time, and that is considered in whether or not that would be a diversion type case or something different.
35 But on the other end, if there's retaliation, if there's sexual harassment, if there's discriminatory conduct.
36 Those types of offenses are much more serious and wouldn't provide a basis for the judge to continue 37 into the senior judge program, or at least I would hope not.

38
39 Rep. Weissman

40 Mr. Gregory.

1 Rep. Weissman

2 And as members, I'll note, the website for the Commission may be found at ccjd.colorado.gov and has 3 been redesigned within the last few years a little bit more built out and informative than in prior years.
4 There is a copy of the full Rules of spending 80 Plus pages if anybody wants some light reading this
5 weekend. We will wrap there. Thank you both Mr. Gregory and Mr. Carpenter for being with us. And 6 for presenting the information again. Members, I'm sure e-copy can be found in the box.

Appendix 27(dd)(iii)

Relevant Hearing Materials and Exhibits:

Appendix 27(dd)(iii)(1)

Alan Higbie, PREPARING FOR THE NEXT
SCANDAL: VALUABLE INSIGHTS FROM THE 2019-2023 JUDICIAL CORRUPTION SCANDAL,
January 4, 2024;

Preparing for the Next Scandal: Valuable Insights from the 2019-2023 Judicial Corruption Scandal

Abstract

The Colorado Judicial Department scandal broke in July 2019. It stemmed from multiple allegations of governmental corruption. The scandal was entirely confined to that department.

Since then, various entities have investigated the corruption: its nature; extent; and root causes. A long list of proposed reforms was proposed, with many adopted.

This report compares these responses to the accepted best practices for the investigation and prosecution of governmental corruption, and suggests anti-corruption strategies for the inevitable future corruption scandals (including a discussion of special prosecutor options).

Alan Higbie
alan.higbie@gmail.com

January 4, 2024

What is Corruption?

The Colorado General Assembly's Office of State Auditor summarizes its working definition of corruption as:

"Corruption involves state employees or officials using their influence in a business transaction, contrary to their duty to the State or the rights of another, in order to procure some benefit for themselves or another person.

Common examples include:

Soliciting or accepting a bribe or kickback

Bid rigging

Illegal gratuities

Extorting funds from third parties

Engaging in transactions where a conflict of interest is present." ¹

The United Nations anti-corruption agency defines governmental corruption as the "use of public office for private gain." ^{2 3}

Investigating and Prosecuting Corruption - Best Practices

Nearly 20 years ago, The United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC) adopted and published guidelines and best practices for investigating and prosecuting corruption. The purpose was to assist governments in dealing with corruption.

The United Nations Handbook on Practical Anti-Corruption Measures for Prosecutors and Investigators identifies these four key responses to governmental corruption:

- 1. Criminal or administrative prosecutions, leading to possible imprisonment, fines, restitution orders, or other punishment;*
- 2. Disciplinary actions of an administrative nature, leading to possible employment-related measures such as dismissal or demotion;*

¹ HTTPS://LEG.COLORADO.GOV/AGENCIES/OFFICE-STATE-AUDITOR/WHAT-FRAUD

² UNITED NATIONS HANDBOOK ON PRACTICAL ANTI-CORRUPTION MEASURES FOR PROSECUTORS AND INVESTIGATORS (2004), 23.

³ WORLD BANK GROUP, HELPING COUNTRIES COMBAT CORRUPTION: THE ROLE OF THE WORLD BANK, (ENGLISH)(WASHINGTON, D.C., 1997), 8.

3. Civil proceedings in which those directly affected (or the State) seek to recover the proceeds of corruption or ask for civil damages; and
4. Remedial actions, such as the retraining of individuals or restructuring of operations in ways that reduce or eliminate opportunities for corruption (but without necessarily seeking to discipline those involved).⁴

The UNODC handbook is a compilation of peer-reviewed anti-corruption methodologies.⁵

Basic Facts

Colorado’s court system is administered by the Judicial Department, which is centrally managed by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. To assist the Chief Justice, the Supreme Court appoints the State Court Administrator (SCA). The Department has more than 300 judges and 3,600 support staff members.⁶

We learned in 2022 that the Colorado Judicial Department had, for many years, covered up allegations of judicial misconduct.⁷

Colorado had established the existing system of investigating and resolving allegations in 1966. Judicial misconduct complaints were to be referred to the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline (“CCJD”). The Judicial Department’s systemic failure to do so formed the foundation of this scandal.

This scandal emerged after years of covering up complaints of wrongdoing from within the Judicial Department. For example, of the 6 judicial misconduct complaints referenced in the “Memo” and sampled by the Investigative Law Group, the Department had referred only 1 to the Commission on Judicial Discipline.⁸

⁴ THE UNITED NATIONS HANDBOOK ON PRACTICAL ANTI-CORRUPTION MEASURES FOR PROSECUTORS AND INVESTIGATORS (2004), 45); HTTPS://WWW.UNODC.ORG/DOCUMENTS/TREATIES/CORRUPTION/HANDBOOK.PDF

⁵ PROFESSIONAL PEER REVIEW OF THE UNODC RESEARCH FUNCTION, FINAL REPORT, MAY 2018. HTTPS://WWW.UNODC.ORG/DOCUMENTS/DATA-AND-ANALYSIS/PPR_REPORT.PDF

⁶ ARTICLE VI, COLO. CONST.; JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT, FISCAL YEAR 2024 PERFORMANCE PLAN, NOVEMBER 1, 2023), 3. HTTPS://WWW.COURTS.STATE.CO.US/USERFILES/FILE/ADMINISTRATION/PLANNING_AND_ANALYSIS/SMART%20ACT/FY23-24%20SMART%20ACT%20REPORT.PDF

⁷ ROBERT C. TROYER & NICHOLAS E. MITCHELL, INDEPENDENT INVESTIGATION INTO THE LEADERSHIP SERVICES CONTRACT AWARDED BY THE COLORADO JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT TO THE LEADERSHIP PRACTICE, LLC (2022)[HEREINAFTER TROYER REPORT], 42-43.

⁸ INVESTIGATIONS L. GRP., COLORADO JUDICIAL BRANCH INVESTIGATION REPORT AND ASSESSMENT OF WORKPLACE CULTURE (2022) [HEREINAFTER ILG REPORT], 9. <https://www.courts.state.co.us/userfiles/file/announcements/ILG—Colorado%20Judicial%20Branch%20Final%20Report—7-11-2022.pdf>

The Masias affair

Senior Judicial Department officials withheld those complaints. The senior Department official who became most closely associated in the public mind with withholding the misconduct allegations was the Department's chief of staff, Mindy Masias. She served at the pleasure of the Supreme Court and was slated to be terminated from her chief of staff position "for cause."

She worked in the Department for many years. In early 2019, through another colleague, she approached the supreme court's Chief Justice with a threat and a proposal. They presented the chief justice, in his role as administrative head of the Department, with the threat that the senior employee was prepared to go public with past judicial misconduct allegations and other "dirt" that had been covered up over the years. The document listing examples of past allegations suppressed became known as the "Memo." As an alternative to disclosure, she offered to resign and keep quiet if she was awarded a $2.75 million contract and given additional benefits.

Rather than being terminated for cause as planned before the "Memo" threat, the chief of staff was allowed to quickly resign on her own terms. She signed a nondisclosure agreement promising to keep secret information about her employment, which included the "Memo" topics. They gave her the benefits she requested and assured her of a good recommendation. A short time later, she was also awarded the $2.75 million contract previously requested.

The contract award violated Judicial Department procurement rules. As the state auditor explained, senior Department officials attempted "to influence the [Request for Proposals], sole source contract, and related processes in favor of [the chief of staff], and ultimately resulting in the award of a sole source contract to [the chief of staff]."⁹ While some details remain disputed, even the Department's investigator concluded that the Department's senior leaders entered this contract to silence the chief of staff and buy her happiness.¹⁰

Investigative findings support the notion that the events fit within the definition of "corruption." This is what corruption looks like. We next ask if there was a "cover-up" of this corruption.

Cover-up

A "cover-up" is an attempt, whether or not successful, to conceal evidence of wrongdoing, error, incompetence, or other embarrassing information.¹¹

⁹ COLO. STATE AUDITOR, EXECUTIVE SUMMARY OF FRAUD HOTLINE INVESTIGATION REPORT (FEBRUARY 4, 2022), 5-6; HTTPS://LEG.COLORADO.GOV/SITES/DEFAULT/FILES/IMAGES/LCS/OSA_EXECUTIVE_SUMMARY.PDF; SEE ALSO CHIEF JUSTICE'S LETTER TO JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT PERSONNEL, COLORADO JUDICIAL BRANCH (FEB. 7, 2022), 3.

¹⁰ HEARING BEFORE THE LEGIS. INTERIM COMM. ON JUD. DISCIPLINE HEARING ON JUNE 12, 2022, 73RD GEN. ASSEMB. (COLO. 2022) [HEREINAFTER LEGIS. INTERIM 6/12/22], STATEMENT OF RCT, LTD., AT TIME STAMP 04:43.

¹¹ TIMOTHY KUNDRO, UNDERSTANDING WHEN AND WHY COVER-UPS ARE PUNISHED LESS SEVERELY, 64 ACADEMY OF MANAGEMENT JOURNAL 120 (2021).

A list of classic cover-up methods has been compiled from famous cover-ups such as the Watergate Scandal, Iran-Contra Affair, My Lai Massacre, Pentagon Papers, the cover-up of corruption in New York City under Boss Tweed and the tobacco industry cover-up of the health hazards of smoking.¹²

There is evidence of a long-lasting and extensive practice of covering-up and not reporting instances of misconduct within the Judicial Department. The Department’s own investigators found a culture of not reporting misconduct and gathering “dirt” on people to be used as leverage for personal power and gain at a later time.¹³

It also should come as no surprise that there was evidence of continued cover-ups after the scandal broke into public view in July 2019.

An example of ongoing cover-up: withholding the “Memo”

The “Memo” provides an important focal point.

First, the “Memo” is a smoking gun in the classic sense of the term. It was written by people with personal knowledge of the events it described. And, it documented facts, the disclosure of which formed one side of an alleged quid pro quo scheme. Second, its gradual and grudging disclosure shows how the Judicial Department attempted to cover up its existence, even as details of the scandal unfolded.

The Supreme Court’s seven members comprised a “collegial court” which had a close working relationship among themselves and with the Department’s chief of staff. It is reasonable to infer that, most likely, the justices would have known of her pending termination and her threat to disclose “dirt” about the court itself. Probably this would have been a topic of some discussion. Whether the justices had physically viewed the “memo” they likely had learned of its contents. Ultimately, these inferences were confirmed to be the case.

Table I - The “Memo” Timeline - from Creation to its Disclosure

January 2019	Eric Brown reads “Memo” to Chief Justice Coats (who, eventually, asks him to stop reading). The “Memo” references information Mindy Masias had secretly recorded during meeting and enumerates Masias’s grievances. ¹⁴
Sometime in 2019	Justice Hart was quoted in the media as testifying under oath in 2021 that she and other justices knew about the “Memo” sometime in 2019. ¹⁵

¹² HTTPS://EN.WIKIPEDIA.ORG/WIKI/COVER-UP

¹³ TROYER REPORT, 39.

¹⁴ ILG REPORT, 7.

¹⁵ DAVID MIGOYA, COLORADO SUPREME COURT JUSTICES KNEW ABOUT MEMO ALLEGING MISCONDUCT 2 YEARS BEFORE IT BECAME PUBLIC, THE GAZETTE (DEC. 15, 2021).

July 18, 2019	First media story about Leadership Contract ¹⁶
Nov. or Dec. 2020	Publicly released audit report determined that the contract award violated rules and had an appearance of impropriety. ¹⁷
February 3, 2021	“Memo” mentioned first time in media. Judicial Dept. initially refuses to disclose (claiming privileged as work-product). ¹⁸
February 4, 2021	Judicial Dept. issued cease and desist order re: disclosure of “Memo.” ¹⁹
February 5, 2021	Office of State Auditor publicly asked to include additional contract into the investigation it has been doing for the last 1-1/2 years. Judicial Department refuses to release “Memo.” ²⁰
February 7, 2021	Media reports a litigant will seek production of “Memo” in her ongoing EEOC against Judicial Dept. ²¹
February 8, 2021	“Memo” released to the media. ²²
February 9, 2021	In an email to all Justices, Judges and all Judicial Personnel, the Supreme Court states: “Today, we met as a court and viewed the memo for the first time.” [02-08-2021] ^{23 24}
December 15, 2021	Media reports Justice Hart’s testimony that the justices knew of “Memo” in 2019, contradicting court’s narrative that it only learned of the “Memo” in February 2021. ²⁵

This appears to be an attempt to cover up the Memo’s existence and the allegations which it contained. Throughout this saga there are multiple reported instances of the Judicial Department controlling the investigations, stonewalling requests for information, limiting access to evidence, and causing unexplained delays, i.e. classic tactics of a “cover-up.”

¹⁶ DAVID MIGOYA, COLORADO’S CHIEF COURT ADMINISTRATOR RESIGNS AMID DENVER POST INVESTIGATION INTO CONTRACT, THE DENVER POST (JULY 18, 2019). HTTPS://WWW.DENVERPOST.COM/2019/07/18/COLORADO-JUDICIAL-DEPARTMENT-RESIGNATION/

¹⁷ OFFICE OF STATE AUDITOR, PERFORMANCE AUDIT OF THE STATE COURT ADMINISTRATOR’S OFFICE PERFORMANCE AUDIT, (NOVEMBER 2020), 59

¹⁸ DAVID MIGOYA, COLORADO JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT GAVE $2.5 MILLION CONTRACT TO PREVENT TELL-ALL SEX-DISCRIMINATION LAWSUIT ABOUT JUDGES, THE DENVER POST (FEB.3,2021).

¹⁹ DAVID MIGOYA, COLORADO JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT SAYS CONTRACT-FOR-SILENCE ALLEGATIONS BY FORMER TOP OFFICIAL ARE FALSE - CHRISTOPHER RYAN, FORMER STATE COURT ADMINISTRATOR, STANDS BY HIS STORY, THE DENVER POST (FEB.3, 2021).

²⁰ DAVID MIGOYA, COLORADO AUDITOR TO INVESTIGATE ALLEGATIONS OF CONTRACT FOR SILENCE AT JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT LEGISLATORS CONSIDERING OWN INDEPENDENT INQUIRIES, THE DENVER POST (FEB.5, 2021)

²¹ CHRISTOPHER OSHER, LAWSUIT MAY SHED LIGHT ON MISCONDUCT ALLEGATIONS IN STATE’S JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT, THE GAZETTE (FEB.7, 2021).

²² DAVID MIGOYA, COLORADO SUPREME COURT RELEASES MEMO CITING EXAMPLES OF SEX-DISCRIMINATION, JUDICIAL MISCONDUCT THAT LED TO ALLEGED CONTRACT FOR SILENCE: MEMO BEHIND $2.5 MILLION CONTRACT RELEASED AND HIGH COURT MAINTAINS THERE WAS NO QUID-PRO-QUO, THE DENVER POST (FEB.9, 2021).

²³ BRIAN BOATRIGHT, C.J., SUPREME COURT MESSAGE TO THE DEPARTMENT, COLORADO JUDICIAL BRANCH (FEB.8, 2021);

²⁴ In light of the later disclosure at Justice Hart’s deposition, this statement appears to have been carefully crafted to leave the incorrect impression that the supreme court justices had never heard of the allegations contained in the memo, when they most likely knew of them from the outset, nearly 2 years earlier.

²⁵ See Footnote 14, supra.

Why corruption should be investigated.

The contract for silence allegation represents an issue going to the very heart of judicial integrity and public confidence in our judicial system. As the Chief Justice stated in early 2021, the existence of the allegations caused a “crisis of confidence” in Colorado’s judiciary. In our system, the judiciary is the most trusted branch of government. By the same token, it is also the branch whose effectiveness is most dependent on maintaining that public trust.

Consider the implications: If a sitting supreme court justice does not report a clear extortion attempt regarding a $2.75 million administrative decision, how would the justice respond to a similar attempt if it involved a $2.75 million judicial decision? If the Department covers up for a colleague accused of succumbing to extortion, how is the public to have confidence that our judges are protected from extortion or bribery? Extortion attempts should be reported and dealt with promptly.

Special Prosecutor—suggested at the outset

As the allegations first came to light, there were multiple calls that a special prosecutor be appointed to investigate and prosecute any criminal violations. The Denver Post Editorial Board urged the appointment of a special prosecutor “to get to the bottom” of the contract-for-silence question.²⁶

Similarly, Alec Garnett, Speaker of the Colorado House of Representatives, said: “I support the call for a special prosecutor to look into the specific allegations of inappropriate contracts that were issued with taxpayer money at the Judiciary,”²⁷

Others called for any investigation “to be totally independent of the state’s legal ecosystem.”²⁸

Ultimately, no special prosecutor was appointed to investigate and prosecute potential criminal charges. Unlike our federal system, Colorado does not have a readily available mechanism for a special prosecutor. As a consequence, several separate and uncoordinated investigations each addressed only small portions of this scandal. As events unfolded, the Judiciary kept control of nearly all of these efforts.

The highest profile investigators who looked into this case did so without subpoena power to compel testimony or production of documents. Their much publicized findings and conclusions (about the contract-for-silence allegations) are based on limited information from fewer than all the “key players.” In fact, for the main allegations, they appeared to have been provided only one side of the story.

²⁶ DENVER POST EDITORIAL BOARD, EDITORIAL: HIRE A SPECIAL PROSECUTOR TO ROOT OUT THE BAD APPLES IN THE JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT, THE DENVER POST (FEB. 12, 2021), HTTPS://WWW.DENVERPOST.COM/2021/02/12/COLORADO-JUDICIAL-DEPARTMENT-MEMO-SUPREME-COURT-SCANDAL

²⁷ DAVID MIGOYA, COURT: BRANCHES CAN PICK AUDITORS POSSIBLE INVESTIGATORS WOULD EXPLORE ALLEGED EFFORT TO KEEP JUDICIAL MISCONDUCT QUIET, THE DENVER POST (FEB. 16, 2021).

²⁸ SHELLY BRADBURY, LAWYERS WANT PROBE TO BE MODELED AFTER THE McCLAIN INQUIRY, THE DENVER POST (MARCH 3, 2021).

The most serious misconduct related to the contract occurred from November 2018 through March 2019. No criminal information or indictment was filed before the applicable felony statute of limitations probably ran out in March 2022. The highest profile investigations did not release until after this date.²⁹

Compare how California recently investigated another legal system scandal. That scandal involved a prominent personal injury attorney who had avoided discipline because of an inappropriately special relationship with certain employees within California’s attorney regulatory body. The scandal investigators were “empowered under the [California’s] Business & Professions Code to issue subpoenas, take testimony of witnesses, and compel the production of documents.”³⁰

In Colorado, the target agency controlled the investigations of its own conduct. The corruption allegations were entirely centered within one agency, i.e. the Judicial Department. Thus, it was that agency which was the target of all the investigations.

While, the target agency was the Colorado Judicial Department, confusion is understandable because the Chief Justice of the Colorado Supreme Court oversees that agency. Unlike, say, for example, the Department of Transportation, this agency has a unique aura. We are accustomed to seeing the Supreme Court as incorruptible and as the last word on contested matters. But, in fact, the Supreme Court performs dual roles: both as judicial decision maker and as administrator of the judicial system’s bureaucracy.

Throughout the ensuing investigations, these agency roles were blurred and confused. This probably contributed to the inadequacy of the response to this corruption scandal.

When this scandal was first exposed to the public in July, 2019, the Supreme Court jumped out in front of calls for a special prosecutor and proposed “independent” investigations into the alleged wrongdoing. The Court issued a press release: “[T]he Colorado Supreme Court today announced it has invited the state’s other government branches to select external investigators who will independently examine allegations of sexual harassment and gender discrimination within the Judicial Branch, and of claims that a training services contract was awarded improperly to a former senior administrator.”³¹

²⁹ TROYER REPORT (PUBLISHED ON 06-22-2022); ILG REPORT (PUBLISHED ON 07-11-2022); STATE AUDITOR’S FRAUD HOTLINE EXECUTIVE SUMMARY (PUBLISHED 02-04-2022).

³⁰ HALPERN, MAY, YBARRA, GILBERT LLP, INDEPENDENT INVESTIGATION FOR THE STATE BAR OF CALIFORNIA: REPORT OF INVESTIGATION BY (FEBRUARY 4, 2023) HTTPS://WWW.CALBAR.CA.GOV/PORTALS/0/DOCUMENTS/REPORTS/MAY-REPORT-AND-ADDENDUM-REDACTED.PDF

³¹ COLORADO JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT, PRESS RELEASE: COLORADO SUPREME COURT REQUESTS OUTSIDE PANEL TO SELECT INDEPENDENT INVESTIGATORS (FEB.16, 2021). HTTPS://WWW.COURTS.STATE.CO.US/MEDIA/RELEASE.CFM?ID=1962

The state’s other government branches organized a special panel which then issued a request for investigation proposals. The panel then selected two law firms to conduct investigations into some of the allegations. It is important to note that, these investigations were only independently selected.

The investigators were RCT, Ltd. and ILG. Describing these investigations as “independent” is wrong because they remained under the employing agency, the same agency being investigated. Even though the request for proposals described questions to be investigated, the agency changed the scopes of these investigations; placed certain issues off limits; negotiated and administered the contracts; kept fiscal control; had ultimate and unreviewable control of the information to be provided; failed to enforce important compliance with the RFP; and most importantly, controlled the timing and content of criminal referrals to law enforcement.

Because of the Supreme Court’s dual role, i.e. as final word on privilege claims and as the target agency, it had unreviewable control over the investigators’ access to information. This was a fundamental conflict of interest.

Prior statements by those at the top of the Judicial Department made it clear how the Supreme Court intended the “contract-for-silence” investigation to come out: “The Judicial Department categorically denies that the contract for leadership training was awarded to The Leadership Practice in June 2019 due to blackmail or to keep information about the Department quiet.” (emphasis supplied)³²

This scandal and ensuing calls for investigations broke at the beginning of the 2021 legislative session, when legislators were busy with the usual press of legislative business. When the Judicial Department stepped forward, proposing what sounded like full cooperation and investigations, the public outcry subsided.

The public and the media then focused their attention on the eventual outcome of these investigations. Few realized the degree of control that the subject of the investigation would exert over the investigations.

Various investigations of the scandal

The following table lists and summarizes the various investigations into the Judicial Department scandal. It lists them in the order in which they began and shows the dates when they were active.

³² COLORADO SUPREME COURT, LETTER TO “ALL JUDGES AND COURT PERSONNEL” (FEB.4, 2021).

Table II: Investigations prompted by Judicial Department scandal

Investigating agency	Start Date	End Date	Scope of Investigation	Result
State Auditor Fraud Hotline Investigation	05-29-2019 ³³	02-04-2022	Four (4) instances of occupational fraud	Referred the Judicial Department’s Chief of Staff, head of Human Resources Division and Court Administrator to law enforcement authority.
State Court Administrator	Approx. 04-30-2019	Unknown	Unknown	Referred to by Chief Justice Boatright during testimony at SMART hearing. ³⁴
State Auditor Performance Audit	March 2020 ³⁵	11-18-2020	Performance audit of State Court Administrator’s Office. Started because of the Fraud Hotline report. ³⁶	Many deficiencies noted, including appearances of impropriety in violation of the Judicial Code of Conduct, including a sole source contract.
FBI and US Attorney ³⁷	at least before 09-30-2021	unknown	4 people questioned regarding the contract award.	Unknown
RCT, Ltd.	October 2021	06-22-2022	Whether contract-for-silence	No contract-for-silence on part of Coats, but in testimony RCT said contract given by the Judicial Department for silence ³⁸
Investigations Law Group (ILG)	11-03-2021	07-11-2022	Incidents listed in memo - and institutional culture at Judicial Department.	Mixed - culture was toxic - recommendations

³³ SUPRA AT FN 8, PAGE 1

³⁴ Hearing of Reference (statement of Brian Boatright, Chief Justice of Colo. Sup. Court, January 25, 2022, at time stamp 12:05:20).

³⁵ OFFICE OF STATE AUDITOR, PERFORMANCE AUDIT OF THE STATE COURT ADMINISTRATOR’S OFFICE, NOVEMBER 2020, 6

³⁶ HEARING OF REFERENCE (TESTIMONY OF MICHELLE COLIN, DEPUTY STATE AUDITOR, LEG. INTERIM COMM. 06-14-2022, AT TIME STAMP 05:44-:45)

³⁷ DAVID MIGOYA, FBI STARTS OWN PROBE OF CONTRACT, THE DENVER POST (SEPT. 30, 2021).

³⁸ TROYER REPORT, 43

Denver District Attorney	Approx. 02-04-2022	05-30-2022	Potential criminal charges against SCAO officials arising out of "Leadership Contract"	Declined prosecution - too close to statute of limitations & evidence withheld by Judicial Department. ³⁹
Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline	05-20-2022	12-2022	Consider legislative remedies to restore public confidence in the judicial discipline system	Change funding for judicial discipline commission; Change discipline procedures and reporting obligations. Limit uses of nondisclosure agreements, provide Ombudsman for complainants. Amend state constitution
Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel	Unknown	01-20-2023	Investigated whether former CJ Coats should be professionally disciplined.	Declined to discipline.
Colorado Commission Judicial Discipline	Unknown	05-04-2023	Potential violations of Code of Judicial Conduct by former Chief Justice Coats.	C.J. Coats agreed he violated the Code of Judicial Conduct. He was publicly censured.

Office of State Auditor - Fraud Hotline Investigation

This was the first of the approximately ten (10) investigations spawned by this scandal. Notably, while it began first, it was among the last to finish.

Of the two OSA investigations, this was the first. It was in response to an anonymous tip that carried a statutory mandate to investigate. Under statute, the target agency, in this case the Judicial Department, elected to have the OSA conduct this investigation on behalf of the Department. From the beginning, the Judicial Department knew this audit could result in criminal referrals to law enforcement.

³⁹ SHELLY BRADBURY, NO CRIMINAL CHARGES IN WAKE OF AUDITOR'S REPORT OF FRAUD, MISUSE OF PUBLIC FUNDS BY COLORADO JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT EMPLOYEES: DENVER DA'S OFFICE SAYS IT WAS UNABLE TO ACT ON STATE AUDITOR'S REPORT BEFORE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS EXPIRED, THE DENVER POST (JUNE 1, 2022)

How much time is needed for a complete investigation? The OSA Performance Audit of the State Court Administrator’s Office was completed within 8 months. The “Leadership Contract” investigation by RCT, Ltd. required 8 months. Similarly, the Investigations Law Group, LLC (ILG) investigation, also lasted 8 months.

For further comparison, the OSA Performance Audit evaluated the time to complete the Judicial Department’s nine (9) internal investigations occurring during Fiscal Years 2017 through 2020. They lasted between 27 and 60 days.⁴⁰

Despite the Fraud Hotline investigation beginning shortly after the alleged occupational fraud in March-April 2019, the final report was not completed and sent to law enforcement until just before the 3-year statute of limitations ran, i.e. more than 2-1/2 years. This was over 4 times as long as the 3 other investigations into the same set of circumstances. The auditor’s delay in referring for possible criminal charges to Denver DA was attributable to slow-walking by the Judicial Department, until it was too late for the DA to investigate and file within the statute of limitations.

Office of State Auditor - Performance Audit

The anonymous tip which triggered the OSA Fraud Hotline investigation, which in turn prompted a separate audit (“Performance Audit”) of conduct and practices within the Judicial Department.⁴¹

Unlike the Fraud Hotline investigation, this audit was independent of the agency being audited and was not hindered by confidentiality claims. The investigation began in March 2020 and completed with a public report issued on November 18, 2020.⁴²

Among many other adverse findings, the audit specifically found the $2.75 million sole-source contract award by the Judicial Department had been attended by an “appearance of impropriety.”

There has been no sign that either the Judicial Department or the OSA reported this official audit finding to law enforcement or ethics oversight entities for further investigation or consideration of criminal charges.⁴³

RCT, Ltd—“Contract Investigation”

The Judicial Department tasked RCT investigators to fulfill the RFP that the special panel had issued. However, the firm’s actual contract for its work was negotiated, administered, controlled, and paid by the target agency itself.

⁴⁰ COLO. STATE AUDITOR, PERFORMANCE AUDIT JUDICIAL DEP’T, STATE COURTS ADMIN. OFFICE (2020), 32.
HTTPS://LEG.COLORADO.GOV/SITES/DEFAULT/FILES/DOCUMENTS/AUDITS/2052P_STATE_COURT_ADMINISTRATORS_OFFICE_PERFORMANCE_AUDIT_NOVEMBER_2020.PDF.

⁴¹ SEE FOOTNOTE 35, SUPRA.

⁴² SEE FOOTNOTE 35, SUPRA.

⁴³ ID

A vital part of administering this contract was insuring that the investigators actually answered the question posed by the RFP, i.e.:

(2) Contract Investigation: an independent investigation into circumstances surrounding the award of a contract for leadership services to a former Chief of Staff in the Office of the State Court Administrator, Attachment 2 (the “Leadership Services Contract”), including allegations that the contract was approved in order to keep confidential alleged misconduct in the Judicial Department. Additionally, the Contractor shall make recommendations to the Colorado Supreme Court and State Court Administrator regarding process improvements to its procurement and contracting processes for accountability, fairness, and transparency. (emphasis supplied)⁴⁴

RCT’s report concluded: “We found no credible evidence that [Chief Justice] Coats’s attitude, conduct, or motive was influenced by a desire to hide the alleged misconduct in the Judicial Department.”⁴⁵(emphasis supplied)

But this conclusion addresses only part of the broader question posed by the RFP, i.e. Was the leadership contract approved in order to keep confidential alleged misconduct in the Judicial Department?

During testimony before a legislative committee, the RCT investigators conceded that:

*“ [the Department’s] three most senior and powerful officials were able to engineer this contract for Mindy Masias for their own reasons.
...
There was mismanagement. There was misjudgment. There was misconduct.”⁴⁶*

The Judicial Department’s most senior and powerful civilian official, former State Court Administrator Chris Ryan, stated that the Judicial Department awarded the contract to Masias in order to keep her silent.⁴⁷

⁴⁴ REQUEST FOR PROPOSAL - INDEPENDENT INVESTIGATION SERVICES, EXHIBIT A, SCOPE OF WORK, A-1 (2), PAGE 24.

⁴⁵ TROYER REPORT, 46.

⁴⁶ HEARING BEFORE THE LEGIS. INTERIM COMM. ON JUD. DISCIPLINE HEARING ON JUNE 12, 2022, 73RD GEN. ASSEMB. (COLO. 2022) [HEREINAFTER LEGIS. INTERIM 6/12/22] (STATEMENT OF RCT, LTD., AT TIME STAMP 04:43).

⁴⁷ DAVID MIGOYA, DENVER GAZETTE, WHISTLEBLOWER TESTIFIES OF EFFORT TO “PROTECT ... THOSE WHO WEAR THE ROBES.”(AUGUST 10, 2022)

The assigned question had been whether the contract was awarded to cover up threatened disclosure of misconduct allegations. RCT’s written report sidestepped answering the question, but ultimately, RCT’s oral testimony confirmed that the answer was: Yes. ⁴⁸

Several members of the Interim Committee and other critics viewed RCT’s written conclusion skeptically. Given the limitations of the process and the report, this skepticism was inevitable.

Investigations Law Group (ILG)—relevant findings from its “workplace investigation”

The RFP required the Investigations Law Group (ILG) to perform a fair, objective and neutral investigation into alleged discrimination, sexual harassment and hostile work environment (“Work Environment Investigation”); consider referrals of violations of the code of judicial conduct to the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline and process for such referrals and to develop a comprehensive record of allegations and evidence supporting and refuting the allegations to enable the Colorado Supreme Court and Judicial Department to make informed decisions regarding the matters in the allegations. ⁴⁹

This investigation shall include but not be limited to alleged incidents described in the Memorandum and incidents of alleged discrimination including but limited to, sex discrimination, sexual harassment, and a sexually hostile work environment, alleged to have occurred within the past 5 years as follows:

Sex-based discrimination and harassment—both individual incidents and systemic patterns—pertaining to any judicial district, the Colorado Court of Appeals, the Colorado Supreme court and all employees of the Colorado Judicial Branch. ⁵⁰

The investigation shall consider the following:

1. All allegations from the Memorandum of discrimination including but not limited to sex discrimination, sexual harassment, sexually hostile work environment or other misconduct alleged in recently released documents, even if more than 5 years old, including the extent to which such allegations were reported, known, and/or investigated; . . . ⁵¹

⁴⁸ ID.

⁴⁹ RFP, 25

⁵⁰ RFP, 25

⁵¹ RFP, 25, A-2

ILG made findings regarding the alleged incidents of misconduct against judges. While ILG investigated many other allegations, this report focuses only on those of judicial misconduct. They are:

INCIDENT: Anonymous letter alleging misconduct of then-Chief Justice Rice.

The “Memo” alleged that several members of leadership received a written complaint alleging “potentially unlawful behavior” against the Chief Justice and an IT leader.⁵² It alleged the director of the Human Resources division was instructed not to investigate the allegations. Importantly, the “Memo” also alleged that the HR director was instructed to destroy the complaint.

ILG’s investigation found that, despite several copies of the complaint existing and several of the justices recalling seeing it, no copies (paper or digital) survived. It concluded that the complaint should have been investigated under the Judicial Department’s Anti-Harassment and Anti-Discrimination policy but that it was not.⁵³ ILG found leadership discounted the letter.⁵⁴ Without talking to the HR director, ILG could not determine if the HR director had been instructed to destroy the missing letter.

ILG rightfully takes issue with the failure to investigate this anonymous discrimination complaint. In doing so, ILG quotes from then-subsection (3) of Chief Justice Directive [CJD] 08-06. But, ILG did not refer to that CJD 08-06’s duty to report the allegation to the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline. No such referral appears to have been made.

While ILG’s written report discounted the characterization in the “Memo,” the objective facts discovered by ILG appear to support its allegations that (a) leadership directed that the complaint not be investigated and (b) that the records of the complaint be destroyed.

INCIDENT: Complaint against two supreme court justices

Among other things, ILG was publicly tasked with investigating all the incidents described in the “Memo.” One such incident was the “EEOC Complaint against two Justices.” This referred to what became the case of *Brown and Maikovich v. Colorado Judicial Department*⁵⁵. This was a claim of racial and age discrimination implicating, among others, two sitting Supreme Court justices. “ILG was directed to remove this item from the scope of work because the matter was in current litigation.”⁵⁶ Even though the matter was in litigation at the time the scope of work was defined and when ILG was tasked with investigating it, there should have been some

⁵² ILG REPORT, 10-11

⁵³ ILG REPORT, 15

⁵⁴ ILG REPORT, 15

⁵⁵ 1:16-CV-03362-MEH)(D.COLO.)(FILED 09/17/2018); DISMISSAL AFFIRMED 10TH CIR. CT. OF APPEALS, 22-1065 (07/23/2023).

⁵⁶ ILG REPORT, 8.

attempt to look into this matter. Or, a request to change the Judicial Department’s earlier directive should have been made. Multiple depositions had occurred in this case and would have provided evidence from which to evaluate the allegation.

INCIDENT: Harassment Complaint against Court of Appeals judge, now justice of the Supreme Court

Another of the “Memo’s” allegations was that a court of appeals judge had been accused of sexual harassment by a female member of his staff. Coincidentally, the accused was applying for a position on the Supreme Court. The “Memo” alleged that “per the chief justice,” HR was directed to negotiate a release agreement to protect that judge from negative consequences and particularly to protect him in his application for higher office. Although the Judicial Department’s HR division investigated the staff member’s complaint, ILG determined that the required HR file was incomplete and lacked important documentation.⁵⁷

HR did not refer the allegation against the court of appeals judge to the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline. A nondisclosure agreement was negotiated with the staff member. While three people know what happened, without subpoena power, ILG could only get the accused judge’s version of events.

As with the complaint against the chief justice, the objective facts ILG uncovered appear to support the core allegations that a cover-up occurred here.

ILG not permitted to investigate all incidents of alleged discrimination from the past 5 years.

As the scandal first came to light, the Chief Justice announced the Judicial Department would hire investigators to conduct the investigations defined by the special panel’s scope of work. Request for Proposal No. 21022, Colo. Jud. Dep’t, 25–26 (Apr. 20, 2021) [hereinafter RFP] (on file with the Colo. Jud. Dep’t) (“This investigation shall include . . . incidents of alleged discrimination . . . [which] occurred within the past 5 years . . .”).⁵⁸ However, the Judicial Department does not appear to have allowed all of this part of the promised investigation.

RCT’s report showed that the Department has engaged in suppressing allegations of judicial misconduct for many years. The failure of the Department to implement the special panel’s scope of work with ILG means we do not know the extent of, types of misconduct involved in, or tactics used in that suppression of all complaints.

Despite limitations placed on ILG’s work, its investigation discloses a pattern of protecting those in leadership positions or on the Supreme Court.

⁵⁷ ILG REPORT, 22.

⁵⁸ RFP, 26.

- Denver District Attorney

The Fraud Hotline investigation resulted in a referral of 3 people for possible criminal charges. It made the referral to the Denver DA. However, the Judicial Department withheld from the Denver DA the evidentiary support for the allegations made. The Judicial Department delayed the referral until the eve of the statute of limitations expiration. As a result, the Denver DA could not take action or investigate.⁵⁹

- Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline

Senate Bill 22-201 established clear rules for the Judicial Department to follow in providing information about judicial misconduct complaints to the CCJD. The bill was designed to prevent the withholding of information, and established a separate funding source for the CCJD so the minimize the Judicial Department's influence over the commission.

Additionally, SB22-201 established an Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline to review Colorado's system of judicial discipline. The committee conducted hearings in the Summer and Fall of 2022, and issued a report which proposed legislation and constitutional changes to restructure Colorado's system of judicial discipline.

These legislative proposals have now been enacted as law. A proposed constitutional amendment awaits a vote of the people in November, 2024.

The Interim Committee only considered legislative changes to the judicial discipline system. The Interim Committee was not tasked or empowered to investigate the facts of the Judicial Department's corruption scandal.

- Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel (OARC)

Attorney Regulation Counsel serves at the pleasure of the Colorado Supreme Court.⁶⁰⁶¹The OARC has authority over enforcing the code of ethics for lawyers.

The OARC has been implicated in enabling the ill-fated felony prosecution of Sen. Pete Lee with a false affidavit.⁶² The OARC was also implicated in a series of efforts to block the investigation by the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline including its issuance of written threats of

⁵⁹ DAVID MIGOYA, DENVER GAZETTE, NO CHARGES IN COLORADO JUDICIARY SCANDAL INVESTIGATION; PROSECUTORS CITE DELAYED REPORT, (MAY 26, 2022), HTTPS://DENVERGAZETTE.COM/PREMIUM/NO-CHARGES-IN-COLORADO-JUDICIARY-SCANDAL-INVESTIGATION-PROSECUTORS-CITE-DELAYEDREPORT/ARTICLE_AE2125AC-DAE0-11EC-9D16-E7FD1239AF2E.HTML

⁶⁰ C.R.C.P.251.3(A); IN RE CHESSIN V. OFFICE OF ATTORNEY REGULATION COUNSEL, 19SA118, 2020 CO 9 (FEBRUARY 10, 2020), ¶13.

⁶¹ HTTPS://WWW.COLORADOSUPREMECOURT.COM/ABOUTUS/ABOUTUS.ASP

⁶² HTTPS://WWW.CPR.ORG/2022/10/21/JUDGE-DISMISSES-THE-CASE-ALLEGING-COLORADO-STATE-SEN-PETE-LEE-VOTED-OUTSIDE-THE-DISTRICT-HE-LIVES-IN-AND-REPRESENTED/

sanctions to members of the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline.⁶³ It is difficult to imagine these OARC actions taking place without the foreknowledge and approval of the Chief Justice.

OARC engaged private counsel to investigate a portion of the judicial corruption scandal. Like the Judicial Department, OARC did not relinquish control over the outside investigation. While OARC had authority to examine the conduct of all the lawyers involved, it limited its outside counsel to reviewing just the former chief justice as a lawyer. After finding a violation of lawyer ethics, the outside counsel recommended no action be taken. In addition, the report indicated that two unnamed lawyers also acted unethically.⁶⁴

- Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline (CCJD)

The CCJD has authority over enforcement of judicial ethics. The CCJD pursued an investigation of the judicial corruption scandal. Media reports indicate the Department raised a series of obstacles to the CCJD's work. Many of these appear to be addressed in the reform package approved by the legislature and need not be addressed further here.

Ultimately, a special tribunal of the Colorado Supreme Court publicly sanctioned the former chief justice for failing to "perform judicial and administrative duties competently and diligently," as required by Canon Rule 2.5(A) of the Colorado Code of Judicial Conduct.⁶⁵

- Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI)

The Denver Post reported in September 2021 that the FBI had questioned at least 4 persons regarding the leadership contract award. No further developments have been made public since.

Anti-corruption Best Practices were not followed in this case

Target agency was allowed to control the investigations

Here is a summary of the major investigations. Notes show which agency had control over each, the investigation's scope, and the basic outcome of each.

⁶³ DAVID MIGOYA, DENVER GAZETTE, COLORADO DISCIPLINE COMMISSION ACCUSES LEGAL SYSTEM'S CHIEF OF ILLEGAL INTIMIDATION(MARCH 9, 2023).

⁶⁴ STATEMENT OF THE LEGAL REGULATION COMMITTEE, DATED 1/20/2023.
HTTPS://WWW.COLORADOSUPREMECOURT.COM/PDF/1.20.23%20REV%20STATEMENT%20OF%20THE%20LEGAL%20REGULATION%20COMMITTEE.PDF

⁶⁵ IN THE MATTER OF THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF COLORADO AND NATHAN B. COATS, 2023 CO 44 (AUGUST 7, 2023)

Table III—Summarizing Control, Scope and Outcomes of various investigations

Investigating Agency	Controlled by:	Scope	Outcome
RCT, Ltd.	Supreme Court	Narrow, Coats’s role in contract	Report did not state whether the Judicial Department had traded contract for silence.
Investigations Law Group	Supreme Court	Broad: Memo allegations and departmental culture	Found multiple workplace problems and multiple judicial misconduct allegations unreported to Judicial Discipline Commission
OSA Fraud Hotline	Chief Justice - as head of agency being investigated.	Narrow, Employee Fraud	Found corruption within the Judicial Department and referred to law enforcement, but critical delay by the Department
Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel	Supreme Court	Narrow, Coats’ ethics as a lawyer
Commission on Judicial Discipline	Supreme Court partially, but partially independent	Narrow, Coats’ ethics as a judge	Recommended public censure of Chief Justice Coats.
OSA Performance Audit	Independent	Narrow, financial controls	Found appearance of impropriety surrounding award of contract
Denver Dist. Attorney.	Independent	Narrow, 3 person criminal referral without evidence	Unable to prosecute before statute of limitations because of Judicial Department withholding of information

Piecemeal investigations lacked comprehensive strategy or coordination

There was no strategic coordination of these investigations or anti-corruption measures. They each had limited scope and tools with which to gather information. The department being investigated controlled most of the investigations.

Silencing of critics

The Supreme Court's Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel (OARC) issued a false affidavit which was the basis of felony charges brought against a key legislative critic. Hearings looking into the Supreme Court's corruption scandal were underway when the convening committee's chair, Senator Pete Lee voluntarily withdrew from the committee because of the felony charges. The charges were eventually dismissed but not until after this key critic had been silenced.⁶⁶

The Court's OARC similarly threatened action against attorney and judge members of the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline (CCJD) in response to testimony about the Court's hindering of CCJD's investigation into the scandal.⁶⁷

During the Interim Committee proceedings, the Colorado Coalition Against Sexual Assault presented the written testimony of a victim of judicial sexual harassment. The victim's testimony explained that in 2022, long after the corruption scandal allegations became public, she was subjected to intimidation tactics when she made a complaint against a judge. These tactics, employed by OARC personnel, were so severe the victim reported she contemplated suicide rather than move forward with her complaint against an abusive judge.

Use of Nondisclosure Agreements from Key Witnesses

The Judicial Department routinely procured nondisclosure agreements from employees being terminated.⁶⁸ Such agreements likely impeded the investigators' ability to interview witnesses investigating various aspects of this scandal.

Since this scandal, the use of NDA's by state agencies is now generally prohibited under similar circumstances.⁶⁹

⁶⁶ MARIANNE GOODLAND, INDICTMENT AGAINST STATE SEN. PETE LEE DISMISSED, DENVER GAZETTE (OCT. 21, 2022), HTTPS://DENVERGAZETTE.COM/POLITICS/ELECTIONS/INDICTMENT-AGAINSTSTATE-SEN-PETE-LEE-DISMISSED/ARTICLE_8107E8BB-B15E-55AE-9137546E79CDDDB92.HTML

⁶⁷ DAVID MIGOYA, DENVER GAZETTE, COLORADO DISCIPLINE COMMISSION ACCUSES LEGAL SYSTEM'S DISCIPLINE CHIEF OF ILLEGAL INTIMIDATION, (MAY 9, 2023)

⁶⁸ TROYER REPORT, 39-40.

⁶⁹ SENATE BILL 23-053 (SIGNED INTO LAW JUNE 2, 2023) WHICH ENACTED SECTIONS 22-1-1355, 24-50.5-105.5 AND 29-1-1601, C.R.S.; ILG REPORT, 9.

Slow-Walking the State Auditor’s Fraud Hotline investigation and its referrals to law enforcement

The Judicial Department appears to have “slow-walked” the Office of State Auditor’s Fraud Hotline investigation. Drawn out negotiation over extensive claims of privilege, scope and demands for review and redactions were such that ultimately the referrals for prosecution came with too little too late. An auditor testified before the Interim Committee:

“I would say the [Judicial Department’s] review process extended our investigation time line - quite extensively.”⁷⁰

Michelle Colin, Deputy State Auditor

As listed at Table II, above, the Fraud Hotline Investigation took more than 2 years, 7 months to complete. This was 4 times longer than any of the other investigations. The Judicial Department, reportedly demanded that the final Fraud Hotline Report contain major redactions of certain content—before it could be disclosed to law enforcement.⁷¹

By the time prosecutors got the cases, they could not proceed before the 3-year statute of limitations would run.⁷² Regardless of the Judicial Department’s motivation, its conduct effectively hindered law enforcement investigation and prosecution of the Department’s officials.

Delayed referrals to Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline

The ILG investigation of judicial misconduct allegations revealed that, despite an obligation to do so, the Judicial Department failed to refer complaints to the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline. ILG found that of a sample of 6 complaints, only 1 had been referred to CCJD.

Colorado has time limitations for bringing a judicial misconduct complaint. So, the longer the Judicial Department delayed reporting to CCJD or providing requested discovery materials, the greater the likelihood that the complaint would never see the light of day.

⁷⁰ HEARING BEFORE THE LEGIS. INTERIM COMM. ON JUD. DISCIPLINE HEARING ON JUNE 14, 2022, 73RD GEN. ASSEMB. (COLO. 2022) [HEREINAFTER LEGIS. INTERIM 6/14/22] (STATEMENT OF MICHELLE COLIN, DEPUTY STATE AUDITOR, AT TIME STAMP 15:08).

⁷¹ Shelly Bradbury, No criminal charges in wake of auditor’s report of fraud, misuse of public funds by Colorado Judicial Department employees: Denver DA’s Office says it was unable to act on state auditor’s report before statute of limitations expired, The Denver Post (June 1, 2022)

⁷² DAVID MIGOYA, NO CHARGES IN COLORADO JUDICIARY SCANDAL INVESTIGATION; PROSECUTORS CITE DELAYED REPORT, DENVER GAZETTE (MAY 26, 2022), HTTPS://DENVERGAZETTE.COM/PREMIUM/NO-CHARGES-IN-COLORADO-JUDICIARY-SCANDAL-INVESTIGATION-PROSECUTORS-CITE-DELAYEDREPORT/ARTICLE_AE2125AC-DAE0-11EC-9D16-E7FD1239AF2E.HTML

Mistakes made at start of scandal investigation

- Failure to recognize why the Judicial Department quickly stepped forward with a plan to hire and control its own law firms to investigate its own alleged corruption.
- No one appointed with subpoena power to compel testimony and document production.
- Failure to anticipate that the Judicial Department would ultimately control the flow of information to the investigators.
- Failure to recognize the Supreme Court’s dual role which gave it the final say on what testimony and documents could be investigated. Unlike other state agencies, the Colorado Judicial Department is administered by a judicial officer, the Chief Justice of the Colorado Supreme Court. The Supreme Court also serves in a judicial function which gives it the power to decide disputes over its claims of privilege or scope. Making any decision to withhold evidence unreviewable.
- The Office of State Auditor lacked a deadline for completion of its Fraud Hotline examination. It lacked any mechanism to prevent slow-walking of its investigation by the Judicial Department.
- The Fraud Hotline statute ⁷³does not specify a trigger date for when the OSA must make a law enforcement referral. But the OSA believed it needed to wait until it completed its report and the Judicial Department finally signs off.⁷⁴
- There has been no inquiry into the apparent failure of officials at the Judicial Department to approach law enforcement for investigation and prosecution of governmental corruption. Neither are we aware of any investigation of the obstruction and delay of investigations that occurred after 2021.
- RFP process used to hire the outside investigators (RCT and ILG) was deficient because:
 - It provided no mechanism allowing the retained investigators to compel testimony and document production;
 - There was no restriction upon the Judicial Department being investigated from changing the scope of the investigation;

⁷³ SECTION 2-3-110.5, C.R.S.

⁷⁴ LEGIS. INTERIM 6/14/22] (STATEMENT OF MICHELLE COLIN, DEPUTY STATE AUDITOR)

- There was no mechanism for contesting and resolving Judicial Department objections information requests;
- The investigators were to be paid by the Judicial Department, thereby creating an appearance of dependence;
- The RFP failed to specify the legal relationship between law firm investigators and the Judicial Department, i.e. not attorney-client;
- The RFP failed to require that the investigators cite standards of conduct applicable to the various scandal participants, i.e. Judicial Department employees, attorneys, judicial officers.

Summary of How Anti-corruption Best practices were applied

1. Criminal or administrative prosecutions: No special prosecutor was appointed. No formal criminal investigation or prosecution was instituted. The target agency, i.e. Judicial Department, controlled the timing and scope at critical stages.

2. Disciplinary actions of an administrative nature: The Judicial Department's chief executive head, the Chief Justice, was publicly censured for his involvement in the scandal.

3. Civil proceedings seeking recovery of the corruption proceeds: The leadership contract was unilaterally canceled, without litigation. No public funds were paid under this contract.

4. Remedial actions: The legislature instituted wide-ranging reforms of the judicial discipline system. Multiple investigations recommended wide sweeping reforms at the Judicial Department, which has assured the public that these recommendations have or will be adopted.

Conclusion and Recommendations

Conspicuously absent from this corruption scandal is a criminal prosecution. This is despite multiple indicators of criminal wrongdoing. The State Auditor's Performance Audit found multiple appearances of impropriety in violation of Judicial Code of Conduct, including the procurement of a multimillion dollar sole source contract. The Fraud Hotline investigation made multiple referrals for criminal prosecution.

There has never been closure on the scandal. In February 2021, the Chief Justice acknowledged a "crisis of confidence" in the judiciary. The lack of a complete or credible investigation of the corruption allegations and the cover-up during the investigations themselves have stoked rather than eased that crisis.

Was everyone (all agencies) relying on someone else to get to the bottom of this scandal? i.e. divided uncoordinated response?

This happens when the target agency may control the investigation. From the denials and slow disclosure of the "Memo" throughout the investigative process to the slow-walking of the final Fraud Hotline Report, it appears that cover-ups dominated from beginning to end.

Colorado needs to develop a mechanism capable addressing the next governmental corruption scandal. The mechanism needs to be effective and able to demonstrate its credibility to the People of Colorado. We need to enact a mechanism for appointing a truly independent entity to investigate allegations whether aimed at the judiciary or leadership in any other branch of government. This investigator needs the authority to follow the evidence wherever it leads and have the tools to do so. The investigator also must be authorized to pursue whatever criminal or ethical consequences are warranted.

Colorado currently lacks a standing mechanism for appointing a special prosecutor under circumstances like this.

Special Prosecutors for Public Corruption Cases

The appointment of a special prosecutor at the outset of this scandal would have resulted in a more thorough, quicker, and efficient investigation. Having independent investigators with power to subpoena information and to prosecute where appropriate would have preserved faith in the outcome.

We normally would expect corruption and potential crimes to be investigated and prosecuted by either the attorney general's office or a local district attorney. But in cases of governmental corruption it is not always so simple. For instance, in Colorado the attorney general is "legal counsel and advisor of each department, division, office, board, commission, bureau, and agency of state government . . .”⁷⁵ Therefore, the attorney general would have an inherent conflict of interest in cases involving investigation and prosecution of corruption within state agencies and departments. For example, several lawyers from within the attorney general’s office were witnesses to events at the heart of this recent judicial scandal.

Definition and Authority of Special Prosecutors

A special prosecutor is " [a] lawyer appointed to investigate and, if justified, seek indictments in a particular case."⁷⁶

The need for a special prosecutor may arise because the original "prosecuting attorney is legally precluded from proceeding due to a conflict of interest"; because she or he "is faced with a difficult case beyond [her or] his investigative and legal abilities"; or because there "is corruption within the judicial/governmental system, and public confidence requires an 'uninvolved' outsider to investigate and prosecute."⁷⁷

The need for a special prosecutor may also come from the "common sense realization that the continued integrity of the system demands one."⁷⁸

We usually reserve special prosecutors for rare situations where a law enforcement gap or crisis renders the ordinary process defective.^{79 80}

Depending on state law, a judge, governor, attorney general, or legislature may appoint a special prosecutor.⁸¹

Colorado Special Prosecutor Options

Current Colorado law allows the appointment of a special prosecutor only under limited circumstances. Those are when a judge determines that (1) a district attorney has a conflict of interest or (2) the refuses to prosecute a case without justification.⁸²

⁷⁵ SEE SECTION 24-31-101 (1)(A), C.R.S.

⁷⁶ SPECIAL PROSECUTOR, BLACK'S LAW DICTIONARY (10TH ED. 2014). A TERM SOMETIMES USED INTERCHANGEABLY WITH "SPECIAL PROSECUTOR" IS "INDEPENDENT COUNSEL," WHICH IS DEFINED AS "AN ATTORNEY HIRED TO PROVIDE AN UNBIASED OPINION ABOUT A CASE OR TO CONDUCT AN IMPARTIAL INVESTIGATION." INDEPENDENT COUNSEL, BLACK'S LAW DICTIONARY (10TH ED. 2014).

⁷⁷ 4 WAYNE R. LAFAVE, ET AL. CRIMINAL PROCEDURE, § 13.3(F) (4TH ED. 2015).

⁷⁸ LAWRENCE TAYLOR, A NEEDED SPECIALTY: THE SPECIAL PROSECUTOR, 61 JUDICATURE 220, 223 (1977).

⁷⁹ LAWRENCE T. KURLANDER & VALERIE FRIEDLANDER, PERILOUS EXECUTIVE POWER - PERSPECTIVE ON SPECIAL PROSECUTORS IN NEW YORK, 16 HOFSTRA L. REV. 35, 35(1987).

⁸⁰ SABRINA G. SINGER, EMBRACING FEDERALISM IN SPECIAL PROSECUTION MODELS: AN ANALYSIS OF EXPERIMENTATION IN THE STATES, 51 COLUM. J.L. & SOC. PROBS. 431, 434-435 (2018).

⁸¹ SINGER, 435.

⁸² See, Sections 20-1-107, and 16-5-209, Colo. Revised Statutes.

Neither of these existing options would likely facilitate the investigation, grand jury proceedings or other steps necessary to investigate and prosecute high-level government corruption.

Special Prosecutor Options Available in Other States

For example, New York law provides for the appointment of a special prosecutor by a criminal trial court judge, the legislature, or the governor.⁸³

“As presently codified in section 63 of New York’s Executive Law, the duties of the attorney general identify several specific areas of criminal law enforcement in which the attorney general may have direct involvement. In addition to the prosecutorial power defined under Executive Law section 63(2), they also include several other broad investigative or prosecutorial powers often associated with the office of a so-called state special prosecutor: the power, at gubernatorial or state agency request, to investigate and prosecute criminal offenses which occur within the authority or business of state agencies; the power, also upon gubernatorial direction or approval, to investigate matters involving public peace, public safety, and public justice; and the power to prosecute cases of perjury committed during the course of any such investigations or prosecutions. In addition, under section 63, the attorney general has authority to prosecute offenses in several specifically defined areas of law: the corruption of members of the Legislature and criminal violations of anti-discrimination laws; and to investigate, review complaints, or take civil action in cases involving misappropriation of public funds and fraudulent or illegal business activities.”^{84 85}

In New Jersey, the attorney general has jurisdiction over all criminal matters.⁸⁶ In New Jersey, as in Connecticut and Maine, when the local prosecutor may have a conflict of interest, such as a use-of-force incident involving a police officer, the attorney general may appoint a prosecutor from a different jurisdiction, order a prosecutor's recusal, or take any "other actions as may be needed to ensure the impartiality and independence of the investigation."⁸⁷

Factors Related to Enabling Legislation

The Singer law review article compares various mechanisms for enabling special prosecutor functions at the state level. Although focused on New York, the analysis is instructive.⁸⁸ The author highlights issues that are commonly addressed by enabling legislation. Such factors are:

⁸³ KURLANDER & FRIEDLANDER, 35.

⁸⁴ KURLANDER & FRIEDLANDER, 37-39

⁸⁵ See, NY Exec L § 63 (2022).

⁸⁶ See, N.J.S.A. 52:17B-98.

⁸⁷ N.J. ATT'Y GENERAL SUPPLEMENTAL LAW ENFORCEMENT REGARDING UNIFORM STATEWIDE PROCEDURES AND BEST PRACTICES FOR CONDUCTING POLICE-USE-OF-FORCE INVESTIGATIONS, 4 (JULY 28, 2015), HTTP://WWW.NJDCJ.ORG/AGGUIDE/DIRECTIVES/2006-5_SRT-OIS.PDF [HTTP://PERMA.CC/6W55-YT2S].

⁸⁸ SINGER, 435.

TRIGGERING CONDITION

A request for a special prosecutor may be made by the legislature, the governor, the state's attorney general, a local district attorney or a court. Some states automatically trigger special prosecutor appointments in certain types of cases, for example, police shootings.

APPOINTMENT AND TENURE

The appointing authority should narrowly define the special prosecutor's authority. The options are whether to provide for ad hoc appointments to address specific scandals, versus, permanent special prosecution units with unlimited tenure. Some states such as New York and New Jersey may have more corruption scandals than a smaller state like Colorado - and therefore need a permanent unit for special prosecution. The ad hoc model seems more appropriate for Colorado.

SELECTION

The variables in the selection process are whether to have a pre-approved list of attorneys to act as special prosecutors, as opposed to individuals selected by the appointing authority. Scandals will involve different varieties of subject matter. We should tailor appointments to allow for selecting special prosecutors with appropriate expertise for the particular case. Colorado does not yet have enough need to warrant the maintenance of a pre-approved panel of special prosecutors. Thus, the ad hoc model would seem more appropriate here.

FUNDING

The source of funding for a special prosecutor often depends on which entity made the appointment and whether that entity has its own appropriation available.

ADDITIONAL CONSIDERATIONS

Additional considerations relative to adopting special prosecution mechanisms, include (1) the degree of a special prosecutor's independence from voters; (2) disclosure and transparency, and (3) legal and political feasibility.⁸⁹⁹⁰

⁸⁹ SINGER, 464-468

⁹⁰ ABOUT THE AUTHOR: ALAN HIGBIE RETIRED IN 2017 AFTER 42 YEARS OF PRACTICING LAW. HE SERVED FOR 8 YEARS ON THE 4TH JUDICIAL DISTRICT JUDICIAL PERFORMANCE COMMISSION.

Appendix 27(dd)(iii)(2)

Colo. Comm'n on Jud. Discipline PowerPoint Presentation;

COLORADO

Commission on Judicial Discipline

January 12, 2024 Joint Judiciary Committee State Measurement for Accountable,
Responsive, and Transparent Government (SMART) Act Hearing

Jim Carpenter, CCJD Vice Chair

Christopher Gregory, CCJD Executive Director

COLORADO
Commission on
Judicial Discipline

Constitutional and Statutory Mandates

- Protect the Public from Improper Judicial Conduct
- Preserve the Integrity of the Judicial Process
- Maintain Public Confidence in the Judiciary
- Create Greater Awareness of Proper Judicial Behavior
- Provide for the Fair and Expedient Disposition of Complaints of Judicial Misconduct or Judicial Disabilities

COLORADO
Commission on
Judicial Discipline

Stages of a Judicial Discipline Proceeding & Standards of Proof

- Intake / Evaluation—Reasonable Grounds for Discipline Proceedings
- Complaint / Investigation—Judge’s Response / Evidence Gathering
- Determination—Preponderance of Evidence (Dismissal, Informal Discipline, Decision to Initiate Formal Proceedings)
- Formal Proceedings / Adjudication—Clear and Convincing Evidence
- Recommendation--Agency Review
- Supreme Court / Special Tribunal Review—Fact Finding (Clearly Erroneous Review) / Legal Determinations (De Novo) with a Final Written Disciplinary Order

Performance Measures

- Office of Judicial Discipline Operations
 - Current Employees: Executive Director, Special Counsel, Office Manager
 - Investigation Services are Provided through Independent Contracts
 - Anticipated hiring of a paralegal / public information officer in 2024 to support office operations and expanded compliance with complainant notification requirements under § 13-5.3-112, C.R.S.
- Improved Website
 - RFE Form Available Online--§ 13-5.3-112, C.R.S.
 - Contains the Commission's Annual Reports from 1980-Present with Statistical Information Relevant to the Data Enumerated in § 13-5.3-108, C.R.S.
- Rules Revision Project—In anticipation of the potential approval of HCR23-1001 by Voters and funding approved for FY 23, the Commission is negotiating to consult with the National Center for State Courts to propose revisions to the Colo. RJD

COLORADO
Commission on
Judicial Discipline

Performance Measures (Continued)

- Working to establish the Office of Administrative Support for Independent Agencies (ASIA), which will help the OJD and other independent agencies operate more efficiently and independently.
- Key goal for 2024 is more education for judges about ethics, the discipline process, changes in statute and potential constitutional changes.

Core Statistics for 2023

- 346 RFEs Received (Compared with 250 in 2022)
 - Majority of Dismissed RFEs Involved Disputed Rulings (49.4%)
 - Significant # of RFEs Generalized Conspiracies or Sovereign Citizen Theories (6.9%)
 - 2023 was unique with 20.8% or 73 cases investigated through the Secretary of State's Records of Judges' financial disclosures
- 114 Jurisdictional Denials
- 84 Investigations Performed or in Process
- 62 Cases (or approximately 18% of the total RFEs received in 2023) were processed as Complaints
 - In 2 Cases, complaints were either fully or partially unsubstantiated following investigation

COLORADO

Commission on
Judicial Discipline

Core Statistics for 2023 (Continued)

- Formal Proceedings Initiated in 2 Cases
- 1 Case was fully litigated through a Formal Adjudicatory Hearing
- Dispositions / Sanctions
 - 3 Dismissals with Concern / Deferred Disciplinary Action
 - 1 Private Reprimand
 - 2 Private Censures
 - 3 Public Disciplinary Opinions
 - 4 Cases Resulting in Resignations from Office

Demographic Information

- Subject Judges in Cases with Recognized Complaints (Excluding Financial Disclosure Cases)
 - 73% Male / 27% Female
 - 77% White / Non-Hispanic
 - 9% Black or African-American
 - 18% Hispanic or Latino
 - 1% LGBTQ+
- Directly Impacted Persons
 - 44% Male / 56% Female
 - 87% White/ Non-Hispanic
 - 4% Black or African-American, Asian, or Hispanic (Respectively)
 - 4% LGBTQ+

COLORADO
Commission on
Judicial Discipline

2024 Legislative Priorities

- Clarify Judges' Financial Disclosure Obligations under §§ 24-6-202 and 24-6-203, C.R.S.
- Repeal Categorical Prohibition Against Judges with Disciplinary Histories from Serving in the Senior Judge Program-- § 24-51-1105, C.R.S.

COLORADO
Commission on Judicial Discipline

Questions?

COLORADO

Commission on Judicial Discipline

January 12, 2023

Joint Judiciary Committee SMART Act Hearing

2023 Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline Statistics¹ Compiled According to § 13-5.3-108, C.R.S

Case Data:

Requests for Evaluation (RFEs) of Judicial Conduct Received (inclusive of allegations received in any form under Colo. RJD 12)—346 (As compared to 250 RFEs in 2022)

Breakdown of RFEs Evaluated²:

Abuse of Contempt Powers / Coercion: 3 (0.9%)
Bias / Discrimination: 13 (3.8%)
Conflict of Interest: 9 (2.6%)
Courtroom / Courthouse Management: 3 (0.9%)
Demeanor and Decorum: 6 (1.7%)
Diligence / Delay / Competence: 13 (3.8%)
Disputed Competency Determination: 7 (2.0%)
Disputed Rulings--Legal / Factfinding Error: 163 (47.1%)
Disputed Rulings--Legal / Factfinding Error (Crim. P. 35): 8 (2.3%)
Financial Disclosures: 73 (20.8%)
General Impropriety or Appearance of Impropriety: 5 (1.4%)
Harassment / Inappropriate Behavior: 2 (0.6%)
Intoxication / Substance Abuse: 1 (0.3%)
Judicial Performance Concerns: 3 (0.9%)
Opportunity to be Heard: 1 (0.3%)
Personal / Extra-Judicial Conduct: 3 (0.9%)
Prohibited Expression / Breach of Confidentiality: 3 (0.9%)
Sovereign Citizen / Generalized Conspiracy: 24 (6.9%)
Supervisory Duties: 5 (1.4%)

¹ The Executive Director is in the process of completing the Commission's 2023 Annual Report. Accordingly, the statistics provided here are preliminary and subject to finalization of the Annual Report.

² Some of the RFEs received by the Commission include multiple categories of allegations. The primary category is used for this statistical breakdown.

Jurisdictional Denials—114

Colo. RJD 14 Investigations Performed or in Process—84

Total Financial Disclosure Cases Investigated--73

Cases with Complaint Fully or Partially Unsubstantiated after Investigation—2

Formal Proceedings Initiated (including cases begun in prior years)—2

Cases Litigated Through a Formal Hearing—1

Dispositions / Sanctions:

Dismissals with Concern / Deferred Disciplinary Action (including cases begun in prior years): 3

Private Reprimand: 1

Private Censure (including cases begun in prior years): 2

Public Disciplinary Opinions (including cases begun in prior years): 3

Cases Resulting in Resignations from Office: 4

Total Cases Processed as Complaints (including cases carried over from 2022)—62
(approximately 18% of the total RFEs received in 2023)

Demographic Data (Excluding Financial Disclosure Cases³)—16 Cases:

Subject Judges:

Gender:

Male: 16

Female: 6

³ The Commission is working through issues relating to financial disclosures that could impact a relatively large number of judges. These cases are based upon public records and do not allow for identification of directly impacted persons. Inclusion of these cases would render the demographic data for other cases processed by the Commission irrelevant.

Race/Ethnicity:

White: 17
Black or African-American: 2
American Indian or Alaska Native: 0
Asian: 0
Native Hawaiian or Pacific Islander: 0
Hispanic or Latino: 4

LGBTQ+: 2

Directly Impacted Persons:

Gender:

Male: 10
Female: 13

Race/Ethnicity:

White: 20
Black or African-American: 1
American Indian or Alaska Native: 0
Asian: 1
Native Hawaiian or Pacific Islander: 0
Hispanic or Latino: 1

LGBTQ+: 1

Appendix 27(ee)

Confirmation Hearing for Colo. Comm'n on
Jud. Discipline appointees Ingrid Barrier and Stefanie Trujillo before the S. Judiciary
Comm., Colo. Leg, March 6, 2024:

Appendix 27(ee)(i)

Transcript;

Senate Judiciary Committee—March 6, 2024 Hearing:
Confirmation Hearing for Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline Members Ingrid Barrier and Stefanie Trujillo

1 Sen. Gonzales

2 Are we ready? All right. Buenas tardes. Good afternoon. The Senate Judiciary Committee will come to 3 order this Wednesday, March, the 6th. Ms. Jenson, will you please take attendance?
4

5 Juliann Jenson

6 Senators, Gardner.
7

8 Sen. Gardner

9 Here.
10

11 Juliann Jenson

12 Michaelson Jenet.
13

14 Sen. Michaelson Jenet

15 Present.
16

17 Juliann Jenson

18 Pelton, B.
19

20 Sen. Byron Pelton

21 Present.
22

23 Juliann Jenson

24 Roberts.
25

26 Sen. Gonzales

27 Excused.
28

29 Juliann Jenson

30 Madam Chair.
31

32 Sen. Gonzales

33 Present.
34

1 Sen. Gonzales

2 Senator Roberts, Mr. Vice Chair, is in another committee presenting a bill. Colleagues, it is that time of 3 the year. We have two confirmation hearings for the Commission on Judicial Discipline that we will 4 hear. And, then, we will take up Senate Bill 118. I want to welcome everybody who is here to share their
5 perspectives. And I would invite you, if you are in the room and haven't already signed up, to say hello
6 to Mr. Trujillo, yeah, our Sergeant here in the back. Who can get you signed up to testify, if that is 7 something that you are interested in doing. With that, I'd like to welcome our appointees for the 8 Commission on Judicial Discipline. And would like to bring them up here to the dais. And, then, we can 9 begin that discussion. Excellent. Who would like to get us started today? Mr. Walsh.

10

11 Jeff Walsh

12 Yeah.

13

14 Sen. Gonzales

15 Okay, welcome. Before you begin, if you could please state your name, the organization that you
16 represent, and then proceed. Colleagues, there is at the neck of your microphone a little gray button that 17 I will invite you to press in order to ensure that the folks who are listening in online will be able to hear
18 you. Mr. Walsh, welcome to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

19

20 Jeff Walsh

21 Thank you, Madam Chair. You wanted me to push this button? Testing [laughter]. There we go. Good
22 afternoon, Madam Chair. Thank you for having us here. My name is Jeff Walsh. I am the Interim
23 Executive Director at the Commission on Judicial Discipline. I'm also the Commission's Special
24 Counsel. I've been employed with the Commission for almost 16 months, at this point. Just by way of a
25 quick summary, the Commission on Judicial discipline is charged. Its charter, per the Colorado
26 Constitution, is to investigate and prosecute, when appropriate, allegations of ethical misconduct against 27 state court judges. Our Commission is comprised of 10 individuals, four judges, two lawyers, and four 28 non-lawyers. We frequently refer to them as citizen members. Even though every member of the 29 Commission is, in fact, a citizen. We just refer to them as citizen members, meaning that they're not a 30 judge, they're not a lawyer. Probably the lay person would be the better way to go about saying it. The 31 four judicial members are appointed by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. The two lawyer
32 members and the four non-lawyer members are appointed by the Governor's Office. So, we have today
33 before you for confirmation Ingrid Barrier, who is an attorney, and Stefanie Trujillo, who is a non-34 attorney [but] who never the less works at a law firm. And, so, they're up for confirmation. And they've 35 already been doing work with the Commission. And, so, I'll let them tell you more about themselves and 36 their background. What I will tell you, having worked closely with them so far over the last couple 37 months, is that they, along with all the other members of the Commission, are very engaged, very 38 interested in working hard on behalf of the mandate of the Commission, and have been a great addition 39 so far.

40

1 Sen. Gonzales

2 Thank you, Mr. Walsh. And I would be remiss if I didn't acknowledge that this is your first appearance
3 before this body as the Interim Executive Director. And, so, I also want to acknowledge Mr. Jim
4 Carpenter, who is here with us. Do you have any comments that you'd like to offer to the committee
5 before we get started?
6

7 Jim Carpenter

8 Thank you, Madam Chair. I just wanted to be here today. I'm the Vice Chair of the Commission, and 9 wanted to come with my colleagues and our new Acting Executive Director, and in case you or the 10 committee had any questions that we could answer. So, I appreciate the opportunity. Thank you.
11

12 Sen. Gonzales

13 Thank you so much. I will, at this point, turn it over to our appointees. And, so, I'd like to extend a 14 welcome to Ms. Trujillo and Ms. Barrier. I'd like to get things started by thanking you for stepping up to 15 serve on this critically important board. And, I'm sorry, commission. And would like to understand a 16 little bit about. And Ms. Barrier, we will begin with you. If you can tell us what drew you to apply to the 17 position and how long you've been serving.
18

19 Ingrid Barrier

20 Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you members of the committee here. I'm happy to be here. My name is 21 Ingrid Barrier, and I have been a lawyer since 2000. I'm currently working as the Chief Human 22 Resources Officer at the Colorado Department of Public Safety. I worked after law school for Justice
23 Rebecca Love Kourlis on the Colorado Supreme Court, and she taught me the value and importance of 24 the Judiciary as an institution. And she also taught me that judges have so much power over you know,
25 property, lives, your liberty, interests, your kids, your business. And her ethos was always to push the 26 highest ethical standards, and that's what she expected of judges. That's what she expected of her clerks.
27 And it stuck with me. I was a trial lawyer for many years and spent time in front of a lot of judges across 28 the State. And she's right. We hold judges to somewhat of a higher standard for ethical conduct. And we 29 have a great bench in Colorado. We're lucky. But there has to be a check and a balance. So, you have to 30 have people that are committed to preserving ethics, good behavior, and doing the right thing for the 31 folks that are appointed by the Governor to be judges in Colorado. I had the opportunity to serve on a
32 judicial nominating commission many years ago, and that was fantastic. This is a little bit of the flip side
33 of that work, but extremely important. Both of those roles are really important for preserving good work
34 getting done in Colorado. I'm happy to entertain any questions.
35

36 Sen. Gonzales

37 Thank you so much. And Ms. Trujillo.
38
39
40

1 Stefanie Trujillo

2 Good afternoon, Madam Chair. It is a pleasure to be here. I am a non-attorney appointee of the 3 Commission. And I come with a unique background in that. Well, first, I'm a citizen. And I have served
4 in the legal community for over 20 years, as a paralegal and, also, as a nonprofit executive. I have done a
5 lot of work to advance, you know, the legal community access to justice initiatives. And, so, I have also,
6 you know, sat in many courtrooms throughout my career and understand the importance and impact that
7 judges have on our community. And, so, this is very important to me. I know that the Judiciary is a very
8 critical component to our government. And, as Ms. Barrier said, there has to be checks and balances. So,
9 I'm happy to be here and to have this opportunity to serve in this capacity.

10

11 Sen. Gonzales

12 Thank you, so much, for both of your introductions. I'd like to see if there are questions for either of our 13 nominees from members of the [committee]. Senator Gardner.

14

15 Sen. Gardner

16 Thank you, Madam Chair. And thank you all for being here. And thank you for your willingness to 17 serve. I think it's well known that there has been a. I want to choose my words carefully, but I don't 18 know of any other word other than adversarial atmosphere between the bench and the Commission on 19 Judicial discipline the past few years. I just wonder if the two of you, and Mr. Walsh, Mr. Carpenter, as 20 a serving member as well, wouldn't mind sharing whatever thoughts you have about your role,
21 concerning your independence, that relationship of the of the Commission vis-a-vis the Supreme Court
22 and the rest of the bench and what your responsibilities are to the citizens. And I'll tip you off here a
23 little bit. I have been concerned over these past two or three years that, as we've had testimony about 24 bills to refine the judicial discipline process and so forth, that members of the bench come and testify on 25 one side. From the Commission, the other. And there are disagreements. And to me as a lawyer, they're 26 very interesting. Sometimes they're emotional. And, yet, the public testimony has almost universally not 27 been for one or the other of them. I have described it, and I'm on the record, but I don't mind saying it.
28 That public testimony has been sort of torches and pitchforks for all of us in the legal profession. So, we 29 need to restore confidence. And at the same time, that's a really tough job for you, because you, you
30 have the responsibility to do something that judges. I have learned over the past two or three years,
31 judges are really as sensitive as any of the rest of us about criticism of them and their livelihood and all.
32 I'll just stop there and say comments thoughts about this and your role and all of that? And if you want 33 to decline, that's okay as well. Ms. Trujillo, I'll start with you.

34

35 Stefanie Trujillo

36 Sure. I'd be happy to comment. I am aware of, especially since serving on the [Commission]. I think it
37 starts internally first, right? With this Commission. I know all of us are dedicated to fixing, you know, a
38 multitude of issues that we may or may not have. Right? I'm still fairly new to the Commission, but I'm 39 very confident in my colleagues. I know that just in the short time on serving on this [Commission], that 40 all of us are very committed to restoring that confidence in the in the community and ensuring that we

1 are holding the entire Judiciary to a higher standard. You know, all I can say is, give us six months
2 [laughter]. I am that confident in this Commission.

3

4 Sen. Gardner

5 Thank you. Ms. Barrier.

6

7 Ingrid Barrier

8 I agree. I think that the tone of the Commission is one where we recognize the value of building trusting
9 relationships within the bounds of the confidentiality mandates that we have constitutionally. And I don't 10 think this Commission in its current makeup is interested in any surprises. I think that we're interested in 11 doing the right thing. I think we're interested in getting feedback. The judges that are currently on the 12 Commission are outstanding and are helpful to those of us that aren't judges, about what it's actually like 13 to be a judge, what the pressure is, what it means when the Commission comes knocking at your door to 14 suggest that potentially there's some wrongdoing. And having a trusting, you know, having really a 15 reputation for being competent and dealing with challenging matters fairly and efficiently is where we 16 want to be. And like Ms. Trujillo, I think we can get there. We have outstanding leadership with Mr.
17 Carpenter and Ms. Sooter.

18

19 Sen. Gonzales

20 Senator Gardner.

21

22 Sen. Gardner

23 Mr. Carpenter, you've served for a good while, and you've been through all of this challenging time. Any 24 thoughts on that and where the Commission is today with our new appointees and so forth? I'd 25 appreciate it.

26

27 Sen. Gonzales

28 Mr. Carpenter.

29

30 Jim Carpenter

31 Thank you, Madam Chair. Senator Gardner, appreciate the opportunity. I agree with, with my fellow
32 Commissioners, that, we on the Commission have a very strong commitment to a couple of things. One
33 is to appropriately implementing the changes that this Legislature has put forward in the in the statutes.
34 And the voters have a chance to weigh in this fall. And to implement the new ways that business needs
35 to get done in judicial discipline. So, that's one thing. The second is to really focus on what the 36 individual challenges are and the individual cases that come before us. And, you know, we take very 37 seriously. I mean last year, I think we had almost 350 RFEs, which is requests for evaluation. Which is 38 up significantly from the year before. And which was up from the year before that. So, these have been 39 very challenging times, with the Commission in terms of a workload, in terms of the nature of some of 40 the cases that have come before us. So, what I would say, is that the Commission is just absolutely

1 committed to looking at those individual cases, making the best possible determination that we can on
2 the facts of each of those things. And, as appropriate, holding members of the Judiciary accountable. But
3 at the same time, trying to sort through a lot of chatter, a lot of accusations about judges that just don't
4 rise to a level that means we should impose any kind of discipline on it. So, just in quick summary, I
5 think the Commission is just very committed here to going through the cases that are brought before us
6 and making the best possible determination. And we have a lot of new members. I mean, I think it's no
7 secret that I think there's 6 new members from last year. And everyone's a volunteer here. Everybody
8 has day jobs, at least one. And we are a very cohesive unit at the moment, and doing the good work that 9 that we were assigned to do.

10
11 Sen. Gardner

12 Mr. Walsh, I want to give you a chance.

13
14 Jeff Walsh

15 Sure. Thank you, Senator Gardner. I've had the interesting role of having witnessed much of the period
16 that you described in the last several years of acrimony, if you will, between the Commission and the 17 Judicial Department. I've witnessed both as an outsider, and I've also then witnessed it once hired by the 18 Commission as an insider. And the observation I would make, having been a litigator for 23 years, is 19 that it's not surprising to me that things, at times, became acrimonious, because that is just the nature of 20 litigation. It's an adversarial process. The Commission is an investigatory body. And as you know, as an 21 attorney, the adversarial process is designed to, in theory, develop the truth through the discovery
22 process. And both sides are frequently digging in their heels to protect their interests. And the 23 Commission, I think, deserves a lot of credit for having the backbone during the last several years,
24 which has been very challenging, to zealously pursue the truth, and that can be very uncomfortable at 25 times. On the other hand, the Commission also recognizes, now, that it has a constitutional mandate to 26 do education, to educate judges on the Canons, we have a relatively junior bench of state court judges
27 around the State. And that one of the Commission's main roles is to go out and educate judges on what 28 not to do, so that they can avoid getting into trouble. And the Commission cannot do that without the 29 cooperation of the Judicial Department. So, I will tell you I believe, what I am perceiving is that this 30 Commission and the Judiciary, now, are very much looking to move forward and, frankly, begin a new 31 relationship that is going to be more cooperative. And, so, that the role of the Commission of helping 32 educate judges on the Canons, on the ethics, how to stay out of trouble, how to do their job better, can 33 go forward. And, so, basically, what I would say, what I have observed, is that the Commission. We're 34 very lucky with the folks that we have on the commission right now, they are willing to. They're 35 volunteers, but they're like stepping up and working hard. They're very committed public servants, and 36 we need that. And because there is a lot of work to do. And it's refreshing to see folks, especially the 37 new folks, come in with the eagerness to do good work and to help. But, also, that have the courage to 38 say, hey, if there is ethical misconduct that is serious, that needs to be addressed, that needs to be called 39 out. They have the courage to do it and will do it. They also recognize the other side of the coin, which 40 is, look, we have a job to do, which is to help educate the Judiciary. If we can't get along with the

1 Judicial Department, we can't do our job. And, so, the Commission, in my opinion, is fast approaching,
2 walking that fine line, very successfully.

3

4 Sen. Gonzales

5 Senator Gardner.

6

7 Sen. Gardner

8 Thank you. I appreciate all of your responses. I don't think the task you have is by any means easy, and I
9 wouldn't want my earlier questions or comments to reflect that. I believe that either side of the acrimony
10 is the better word. Mr. Walsh. I appreciate that. That either side was particularly wrong, but it seemed to 11 me that it was damaging to all of us, the bench, the Commission, those of us in the bar, everyone who 12 absolutely relies upon public confidence in the judicial system. Because for those of us who practice
13 law, we're dependent. When we sit in front of our clients and we tell them we're going to court. If they 14 don't have any confidence in the system, it makes our job a lot harder. I don't know if I have any other
15 question. I just appreciate all of your [being] willing to serve. I guess I will. I'll ask Mr. Walsh. You
16 know, 1 in 6 judges in this State weren't filing their personal financial disclosures. And I have to tell
17 you, I do it every year. It's painful. It's required by law. I tend to pull up the last one and say, what's 18 different, and just move on and do it. So, I was kind of astounded. And, yet, I think there were some,
19 well, based on anecdotal things, I think there were some pretty good judges in my experience that were 20 part of that. I was interested to hear you talk about the education aspect of this. And I wonder, I mean, it
21 seems like there's a lot of things going on. I don't want to say a lot, but there are some of these things
22 going on that the press. And I'm not critical of them for doing their job. But the press says, What's going 23 on here? Are you all stepping up your education role? And, if so, how? And how can we help you?

24

25 Jeff Walsh

26 Sure.

27

28 Sen. Gonzales

29 Mr. Walsh.

30

31 Jeff Walsh

32 So, that issue particularly. That is just one example of one of the things that the Commission can do in 33 front of a room of judges. To say, Hey, this is a really simple, everybody read about it last year, you
34 know. This is a really simple thing to do. Don't screw this up. You know, make sure you file on time. It's 35 just like your taxes. It's a pain, but it needs to be done. As far as the Commission's going to address
36 those cases, each and every single one on a case-by-case basis. Because all of them are different. You
37 know, some judges were late by a day. Other judges just sent it to the wrong email addresses. Other 38 judges may have multiple years of non-filings, And, so, the Commission will be addressing and 39 evaluating all those on a case-by-case basis. As far as your last question about what the Commission is 40 doing. We have already begun discussions with the Judicial Department about how we can begin getting

1 out in front of the judges and start an education process. I won't go into a whole lot of detail about that,
2 but those discussions have already begun. And it's been somewhat, I will also say, without revealing too
3 much detail, therapeutic for both sides to get in the same room together and talk it out. And to some 4 degree, acknowledge that everybody has to be an adult. Bygones need to be bygones. We need to learn
5 to work together. And the Commission. It's in everybody's interest that this Judiciary gets well educated,
6 well prepared, and engenders the respect it deserves.

7
8 Sen. Gardner

9 Thank you. Thank you so much. And let me just say once again, thank you all for your willingness to 10 serve and what is a extremely important position for the confidence of citizens in the judicial process
11 and the Judiciary as well. So, thank you very much. Thank you, Madam Chair.

12
13 Sen. Gonzales

14 Thank you, Senator Gardner. I'd like to follow up, actually, on that question in regards to the personal
15 financial disclosures. Because I think for those of us who are elected officials, that is. You do it, you
16 incur a $50 per day fine if you don't. And there are processes that can result in an administrative 17 complaint resulting in civil penalties or criminal sanctions. I'd like for you all as appointees to this 18 Commission. Certainly Mr. Walsh, I understand and respect where it's like, okay, let's navigate this on a 19 case-by-case basis. But also, I'm curious for what your perspectives would be as appointees to serve on 20 this Commission to ensure that judges and members of the Judiciary, along with those of us in the 21 Legislature. Or, I guess, like those of us in the Legislature are comporting with those requirements and 22 obligations. And I guess I will turn first to Ms. Trujillo.

23
24 Stefanie Trujillo

25 Madam Chair. Yes, I'm happy to address that. I think in addition to the educational piece, because I
26 think there are some statutory requirements as well as other rules that kind of might be a little bit
27 conflicting. So, the educational piece is very important. But in addition, I like the idea of, Hey, if you
28 don't get this done, these are the penalties. I'm not opposed to that by any means. And I don't know if we 29 do that by way of legislation, or how do we? I'd be happy to entertain that. So, thank you.

30
31 Sen. Gonzales

32 Ms. Barrier.

33
34 Ingrid Barrier

35 Thank you, Madam Chair. Having a trusted and collaborative relationship doesn't mean that there's not 36 an investigative authority that means business. And the Commission means business. And some of these 37 tasks that maybe folks would say that just seems kind of ministerial. It's not. They, our judges, have an 38 obligation. You know, granted to them via statute, to do this kind of reporting. And our body is the one
39 that needs to make sure it gets done. And, so, I agree a case-by-case examination is important, and 40 education is vital, and us turning these cases around with more speed than has happened in the past.

1 Recent history, from my understanding, is also really important. Because I think it just shows that the 2 Commission is committed to executing on the on the Canons and the expectations for judges around the 3 State.

4

5 Sen. Gonzales

6 Thank you. I do appreciate that. Because, as I have been following. For those of us in the Legislature
7 and in the political sphere, that is an important piece to ensure. It is an important piece of the process in 8 the statute that is, again, not fun to do. But it's important for us to comport with and to adhere to. I want
9 to understand, if you all have any conflicts of interest for which you may need to step aside. Knowing
10 that you are currently facing, if I'm understanding correctly, 350 requests for evaluation. Do you believe 11 that either of you as appointees would have any conflicts of interest that may lead to you needing to step 12 aside in any of those evaluations? Ms. Barrier.

13

14 Ingrid Barrier

15 Thank you, Madam Chair. I have only had the opportunity to attend one regularly scheduled meeting.
16 And before we address any kind of complaint, there is a call for determination of any conflict of interest.
17 And it's a robust discussion where people that, you know, if there's someone that you have a personal 18 relationship with, or you're friendly with, or you have family dinner with, or whatever the case may be.
19 Those are exactly the kind of conflicts. You know, you're appearing in front of a judge in an active
20 proceeding. So, that discussion. And I would have to defer to Mr. Carpenter and Mr. Walsh, but I think 21 that discussion is standard and critical.

22

23 Sen. Gonzales

24 And, so, having participated in one full meeting. Would you feel comfortable disclosing your conflict? If 25 you were to have a conflict, would you feel comfortable disclosing it?

26

27 Ingrid Barrier

28 Absolutely, yes. Madam Chair.

29

30 Sen. Gonzales

31 Thank you, and for you, Ms. Trujillo?

32

33 Stefanie Trujillo

34 Thank you, Madam Chair. As Ms. Barrier mentioned, we do go through a complex check before we 35 address any RFE. It's, you know, an open dialog. We talk as a Commission. There have been certain 36 matters in which some of the Commissioners have to step aside because there is a conflict. And it's 37 never really been an issue. It's a very well thought out process. And that we have also received guidance
38 from the Attorney General's Office on this, as well. So, I'm very confident in that process. And would 39 be, you know, it's the right thing to do if there is a conflict, to step aside. So that we can, you know, look 40 at matters from impartial lens.

1 Sen. Gonzales

2 Certainly. I will say that with 350 RFPs. And it seems like, if to interpret the numbers, to interpret that
3 the numbers are growing. I'm curious for your perspective, do you think that that's encouraging? That
4 the system is working? That you're seeing more requests for evaluation, or is that a sense of growing
5 distrust in the system and in the process? I'm just curious, given the fact that the numbers of requests
6 seem to be increasing pretty dramatically. Ms. Barrier.

7

8 Ingrid Barrier

9 One of the things that we see are requests for an evaluation that are outside our pretty narrowly tailored 10 jurisdiction. Because when you look about how do I disagree with a judge, my loved one got an unfair
11 sentence in a criminal case, you think. We get cases like that, and those are not within our jurisdiction.
12 So, I think while our numbers are enormous, the work that really relates to violations of the Canons is a 13 much, much smaller percentage of the RFEs. And I'd ask Mr. Walsh or Mr. Carpenter to weigh in on 14 that.

15

16 Sen. Gonzales

17 Mr. Carpenter.

18

19 Jim Carpenter

20 Thank you, Madam Chair. Um, yeah. I you know the numbers are, are large. I do think that the attention
21 to the Commission in the legislative process the last few years have, you know, raised the visibility of all
22 of this and have led to some increase in the numbers. Which I think is a good thing. The number of cases
23 that require a deep investigation, and, you know, a lot of staff time and a lot of investigator time. You
24 know, those are also increasing a little bit. You know, we've had more public discipline cases in the last 25 couple of years than had you know happened before. And those certainly take a lot of time and 26 resources. This Legislature, thankfully, has given us, the Commission and the Office of Judicial 27 Discipline additional resources. And additional independent resources that we didn't have before to 28 manage the workload. So, I do think it's a. You know, of course, we get a lot of cases as Ms. Barrier
29 mentioned, of, you know, disagreeing with the judge's ruling. And you know that. And wanting us to be 30 sort of an appeals court. Which is obviously not our role. But I do think that. I do think there's a greater 31 recognition of the Commission and its work. And that has led to at least an increase in visibility and an 32 increase in number of cases. Even, you know, it goes up and down. I mean, it's, you know, there, there
33 was a time last year where we had, I think, two or three sort of public, you know, big, high visibility
34 kinds of cases in trial. And, you know, at this point we don't have that. But, you know, that could change
35 depending on circumstances. So, what we do have now is the flexibility and the resources, I think, to 36 manage the workload as it goes up and down in any given period of time.

37

38 Sen. Gonzales

39 Thank you. I am appreciative of that. Filtering through number of complaints, issues that you can not 40 address versus the narrow, limited issues that you are able to address. What's your perspective in terms

1 of how to navigate? I think, with that inherently sort of adversarial relationship of investigating judges
2 or ensuring that they are following the guidelines of proper conduct. How do you all as non-judges, as a
3 head of a paralegal association? As a former paralegal, myself, shout out and appreciative. And as an 4 attorney, how do you all anticipate your process will be in engaging in these evaluations and 5 investigations?
6

7 Stefanie Trujillo

8 Sure, Madam Chair, thank you. You know, being a paralegal, I have the opportunity and I have the 9 experience of kind of viewing these as I view the cases that come across my desk, right? And so you're 10 looking at allegations, and you're looking at this, at these matters, on an individual basis. From an 11 impartial lens. You know, you have the discovery process, and then you go to trial, right? And, so, I
12 view these types of matters in the same way. As far as kind of going back to your other question, if I
13 may. I think we're kind of living in this era right now of folks really holding people accountable. And we 14 should. And, so, whether that's distrust or whatever it might be, it's critical that we as a Commission,
15 address each and every one of these matters that's within our scope. But as far as myself, I mean, I have 16 amazing fellow, you know, Commissioners who I can have conversations with. We may not agree. We,
17 you know, might agree, you know. So having that collaboration is also very critical to this process, I
18 think, as well. So, did that answer your question?
19

20 Sen. Gonzales

21 Yes. Ms. Barrier.
22

23 Ingrid Barrier

24 I think that's a hard question and hard circumstances. And I know that having the Commission come to a
25 judge's door is not welcome. And I think that, you know, our obligation is to do the right thing. Follow
26 the guidance that we are given. And do a robust, impartial, unbiased and fair investigation without, you
27 know, sort of saying, Oh, how's this going to how's this going to play in the media? How's this going to 28 play here? It's really important that we come with a neutral lens. And that's hard. It's hard when you're,
29 you know, coming to someone's door and potentially impacting their livelihood. But it's a critical
30 function. Because we have to hold judges accountable for compliance with the laws and with the Canons
31 and with the rules of ethics. But I think that coming without bias is our goal. We don't want to have a 32 reputation like, Gotcha. That's not where we want to be.
33

34 Sen. Gonzales

35 No, I very much appreciate that. And I'm curious, because there has been so much scrutiny. And I think 36 we grapple with these issues here in this body, as well. Where there are tensions. And sometimes they 37 are partisan, and sometimes they are not. They're just philosophical or policy rooted and yet, how do we 38 rise? Whether that's rise above or get through it, depends on the day. But how do we, at the end of that 39 remain focused on the work that we're here to do? I have seen in. Certainly, just in the past few months, 40 media reports that call into question. And I think, again, raise up concerns around. I want to be

1 thoughtful about how I phrase this. There have been news reports that I think underscore the importance
2 of an impartial and mission-focused Commission on Judicial Discipline. I, being a representative, a
3 Senator from Denver, read with interest the articles in regards to a judge's behavior, who is not subject
4 to the evaluation from the Commission on Judicial Discipline because he's a Denver judge. The broader
5 public may or may not understand that nuance. But in light of systems and trust being critically
6 important and yet often fraying, how will you all proceed? It's something that we grapple with. Senator
7 Gardner and I grapple with this. Because sometimes we disagree incredibly strongly, and yet we also 8 have to find ways to rise above and do the work. And, so, I'm just curious for your perspectives, given 9 the challenges I think that we're all grappling with. Ms. Barrier.

10
11 Ingrid Barrier

12 Thank you, Madam Chair. One of the things that I think is critical for this Commission is the makeup of 13 the Commission. You have the judges, you have citizen members, and you have lawyers. And this is a 14 group of folks with very different perspectives, very different practices, very different backgrounds. And 15 every single person's perspective is valued and examined and listened to when we talk about these 16 issues. And those Commissions that are sort of built, I guess, in some ways, like your role, right? It's not 17 partisan in away, like we say, you know, politically partisan. But a layperson may have a completely
18 different opinion than a judge. They may have a completely different opinion than a lawyer about the 19 right thing to do. And that's where the work is. That's where the collaboration has to be. And, you know,
20 and I don't know, but I think that one of the goals moving forward is to do everything we can with 21 consensus on the Commission. And I think, you know, I think that that is a lofty goal, I hope that we can 22 make that happen. But in some ways, you try to build consensus. But at some point, if you can't. We're 23 going to have to take a majority rules position. But that being said, my observation of the folks on the 24 Commission is that their perspectives are really meaningful. To look at what a violation might be. Here's 25 the Canon, here's the behavior, and then there's this really interesting input from people with very 26 different lived experience and knowledge about how the process works. So, for me, I think that it brings 27 me a lot of hope that we're going to do stuff thoughtfully and well. Looking at different perspectives.
28 Not everyone's going to be happy all the time. I think that's the reality.

29
30 Sen. Gonzales

31 Same here, same here. Thank you. Ms. Trujillo.

32
33 Stefanie Trujillo

34 Yes. Thank you, Madam Chair, that's an excellent question. I think, ultimately we have to stay grounded
35 with our mission. We, you know, are going to have disagreements. In the best of the world, we would all 36 agree. But that's just not what happens. Especially, in these kinds of matters. But thankfully, we have 37 rules. We have laws that are in place that we have to follow. And I know, just again serving, just in the 38 short amount of time, we are all committed to the mission of this Commission. And, so, when we have 39 those moments, I think sometimes maybe just redirecting each other. Hey, let's get back to what our 40 mission is. That's very critical to this process,

1 Sen. Gonzales

2 If there were to be a lack of consensus within the Commission. You had judges on one side and non-
3 judges, lay people, and attorneys on the other. How would you all proceed? In the case of looking for an 4 evaluation of misconduct for a judge. Hypothetical scenario. How would you proceed forward? Ms.
5 Trujillo.

6

7 Stefanie Trujillo

8 Sure. Thank you, Madam Chair. It would come down to the majority vote, and I think that at the end of 9 the day, even if we don't agree, we have to respect that decision and support the decision. You know you
10 can disagree to disagree. You know, agree to disagree. And sometimes it's just again, going back to what 11 are we here for? You know.

12

13 Sen. Gonzales

14 Thank you. Ms. Barrier.

15

16 Ingrid Barrier

17 Thank you, Madam Chair. I think it's critical that we have that kind of dialog. People say what their 18 position is. No one is going rogue. No one is out, not outside the bounds of what our charge is. And 19 there are times, some group may be on the minority side. But we need to present as a united front. You
20 know, we have a giant confidentiality bubble. And, you know, the worst thing that can happen is to have 21 that pierced, have media interest on squabbling or allegations of rogue behavior. We want to follow our 22 mandate, and we want to do it like pros.

23

24 Sen. Gonzales

25 I appreciate that, because I think that part of. As someone who has been on this committee for several 26 years, and also been engaged in some of the, on many of the conversations around judicial discipline.
27 The interim committee, the discussion around a constitutional amendment, and other statutory policy
28 changes. We've been grappling as well on what the appropriate path forward is. And I echo Senator
29 Gardner in saying that this is no small task. But thank you, and also, we're sorry, for the work that you're 30 going to engage in. And know that this is deeply important. You face no small task. I would be remiss if 31 I didn't take this opportunity to also just make an inquiry of Mr. Walsh, since you are here before us. I
32 am curious on when we can expect the 2023 end of year report. I have been looking forward to that 33 report, and the last time that we had the pleasure of chatting with you all. At the beginning of the 34 legislative session, it was then, now former, Director Gregory, who said that the report was forthcoming.
35 It's my understanding that he is no longer the Director and that you are now the Interim Director. One,
36 do you have any insight that you can offer us in terms of his departure? And, two, that end of session, or 37 that end of year report, when we might be able to review it?

38

39

40

1 Jeff Walsh

2 Sure. So, the end of your report is like on the one yard line. And I expect it to be on the website,
3 probably by Friday, if not sooner. So, and we can email it to you directly, if you'd like. So, that's going
4 to be very soon. That didn't previously fall within my portfolio of responsibility. So, there has been a
5 little bit. You know, I had to take that over. And Mr. Carpenter's been really helpful with that, as well.
6 So we're very, very close. We're going to have that published imminently. As far as Mr. Gregory, there's 7 not much we can say, because it involves a personnel matter, other than to say he's no longer employed
8 by the Commission. His last day was January 19. And other than that, for legal reasons, we can't 9 comment further.

10

11 Sen. Gonzales

12 I respect that. And thank you for the update. I will look forward to reading it with interest. I'd like to see 13 if there's any other questions for either of our nominees. Seeing none. Is there a motion? Senator
14 Gardner.

15

16 Sen. Gardner

17 Thank you, Madam Chair. I think I can do this from memory. Madam Chair, I move for the 18 confirmation of the appointments of Ingrid Barrier and Stephanie Trujillo to the Commission on Judicial 19 Discipline with a favorable recommendation and for consideration of the full Senate.

20

21 Sen. Gonzales

22 That is a proper motion. Thank you, Senator Gardner. I want to thank you again for coming and chatting
23 with us today. And for the service that it sounds like you already have begun. It is incredibly important.
24 And like I said, no small task. And, so, as we continue this work, continue to view us as a resource for 25 the important work ahead. Thank you. Senator Gardner.

26

27 Sen. Gardner

28 Thank you. Let me just endorse the remarks of Madam Chair. Observe that this has been one of the most 29 probing confirmation hearings I've had. But not of you as questioning your commitment or 30 responsibility. But given the importance of the role you have undertaken. And I want to express our 31 appreciation to you for your willingness, and Mr. Carpenter for your service, Mr. Walsh for your work
32 with the Commission. And we are grateful. We're grateful. Thank you.

33

34 Sen. Gonzales

35 Thank you. Ms. Jenson. Will you please poll the members?

36

37 Juliann Jenson

38 Senators, Gardner.

39

40

1 Sen. Gardner

2 Aye.

3

4 Juliann Jenson

5 Michaelson Jenet.

6

7 Sen. Michaelson Jenet

8 Aye.

9

10 Juliann Jenson

11 Pelton, B.

12

13 Sen. Byron Pelton

14 Aye.

15

16 Juliann Jenson

17 Roberts, excused.

18

19 Juliann Jenson

20 Madam Chair.

21

22 Sen. Gonzales

23 Aye.

24

25 Sen. Gonzales

26 Those pass. And congratulations and welcome. You will go on to the full Senate for that confirmation 27 hearing.

28

29 Sen. Gardner

30 Madam Chair, may we put this on the consent calendar?

31

32 Sen. Gonzales

33 Let's go ahead and do that. Thank you very much. We look forward to that full confirmation hearing.

34 Thank you again.

Appendix 27(ee)(ii)

Email from former Committee Chair Pete Lee to Chair Julie Gonzales and Ranking Minority Member Bob Gardner re: topics for inquiry.

Sent: Wednesday, March 6, 2024 6:40 AM
To: julie.gonzales.senate@coleg.gov; dafna.michaelson.jenet.senate@coleg.gov;
dylan.roberts.senate@coleg.gov; bob.gardner.senate@coleg.gov;
kevin.vanwinkle.senate@coleg.gov
Subject: CCJD Nominee Ratifications Questions

Dear Judiciary Committee Members;

I apologize for a lengthy email amidst a busy session, but the gravity of the matter compels it.

I urge you to carefully evaluate the proposed members to the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline who are scheduled for Senate confirmation today. Recent news stories last weekend about obstruction by the Supreme Court to requests for information by the CJD, the non- appointment of Judge Prince and the firing of Director Chris Gregory are concerning indications of a commission that may not zealously carry out its statutory functions to consider judicial misconduct and which may acquiesce to pressures from the Supreme Court. To ensure public trust in the courts and judicial branch, we need a commission which is independent and undeterred in its mission to investigate wrongdoing and ethical violations by judges.

Please consider asking the nominees questions about whether they have any conflicts of interest serving on the CCJD based on their prior employment, and have they disclosed any conflicts prior to their nomination? Are there any conflicts at this time that require disclosure?

What was their role in the dismissal of Director Chris Gregory? Was there any correlation between the decision to dismiss Director gregory and the assertions in the Sunday Gazette editorial by Chief Judge Maes?

What are their views about recent reports of judge's failure to complete mandatory financial disclosure forms and do they plan on initiating any investigations or file any complaints against judges who failed to file those required reports? Do they consider it an ethical violation to fail to file and, if so, what is the appropriate sanction. (In an August 13, 2023 article, the Denver Gazette reported that 1 in 6 judges had failed to submit required annual financial disclosure statements under a statute that makes such non-reporting a misdemeanor. Among the judges listed, the Gazette reported that Commission member 18th Judicial District Court Judge Bonnie McLean had not filed her disclosure statements since 2019.) Is it a conflict of interest for a judge who may be in violation of a financial disclosure requirement to sit on the CCJD charged with assessing judicial misconduct?

Three stories in the Gazette by David Migoya on Sunday March 3, suggested that cases of judicial misconduct are not being expeditiously referred to the CCJD by the Supreme Court . Two of the instances involved retaliation by a judge against an employee and another incident involved the Chief Justice allegedly having knowledge of misconduct but not referring it to the commission. Are you aware of those stories and, if accurate, do you plan to commence an investigation of the alleged misconduct?

Best wishes,
Pete Lee

Appendix 27(ff)

Hearing on the ballot analysis of HCR 23-1001 / Amendment H before the Legis. Council, Colo. Leg., September 4, 2024:

Appendix 27(ff)(i)

Transcript;

Legislative Council Hearing—September 4, 2024: Ballot Analysis for Amendment H / HCR 23-1001

1 Speaker McCluskie

2 Members, we are moving on to Amendment H and Juliann Jenson. Amendment H is the Judicial 3 Discipline Procedures and Confidentiality. Ms. Jenson, please proceed when you're ready.

4

5 Juliann Jenson

6 Thank you, Madam Speaker, Mr. President and members of the committee. I'm Juliann Jenson with 7 Legislative Council staff, and I'm here to present Amendment H, which asks voters about judicial 8 discipline procedures and confidentiality. This amendment is also known as House Concurrent
9 Resolution 23-1001, which I believe is located in the second tab of your binder. And, first, I want to 10 thank my writing team, Aaron Carpenter and Adam Alemzada and review team members, Natalie 11 Castle, Katie Ruedebusch, Jessika Shipley and Erin Reynolds. This truly was a team effort.

12

13 And, now, I'll briefly walk you through our analysis of the measure. Some of you may remember the 14 judicial discipline Interim Committee from 2022. I know Senator Gardner was on the committee and 15 probably remembers it well. The Interim Committee held extensive hearings about judicial discipline
16 with stakeholders, experts, and the public, and recommended three pieces of legislation from it. One bill
17 made statutory changes about complaint filing, reporting and data collection, and another created a
18 judicial ombudsman office in the Judicial Branch to assist Judicial employees with workplace
19 complaints. Both of those measures passed in 2023. The third bill, the amendment before you today,
20 proposes to change Colorado's constitutional provisions on judicial discipline, and that's why it's before
21 you today. The amendment creates an independent adjudicative board to preside over ethical misconduct
22 hearings involving judges, and it allows for increased public access to judicial discipline proceedings
23 and records, earlier. At the time when formal charges are filed, instead of when public sanctions are 24 recommended at the end of the process.

25

26 Continuing on to the Summary and Analysis section, we covered judicial misconduct and discipline
27 generally, including what it is and what the current process is. We also outlined changes that 28 Amendment H makes to judicial discipline. Of course, covering the adjudicative board and the 29 confidentiality issues, we also touched on tribunals, rulemaking, appointments, Supreme Court role, and 30 the appeals process.

31

32 On page three of our analysis, you'll find a table with a side-by-side comparison to better show these 33 differences between the current process and Amendment H. The table goes into greater detail about this 34 complex process and the changes being proposed.

35

1 In the Argument section, you'll find one argument for and one argument against. The argument for
2 focuses on renewing public confidence in the courts and how the new process enhances transparency,
3 integrity, and independence. It also argues in support of removing judges from overseeing themselves. It
4 also notes that this was compromised legislation supported by the Legislature and the Judicial Branch,
5 and was widely supported. The argument against the measure discusses that the current system works. It
6 argues basically for the status quo. Judges understand how to run hearings and make impartial and hard
7 decisions, and they can easily transfer these skills when disciplining one of their own colleagues. We 8 also mention that other checks and balances are in place, such as retention elections and the nomination 9 process.

10
11 And that about wraps up our analysis, and I'm happy to take any questions at this time.

12
13 Speaker McCluskie

14 Members, any questions? Seeing none, we will move on to public testimony. We have several 15 individuals signed up for today. I will invite the following four forward for our first panel. Mr. Chris 16 Forsyth, Mr. Jeff Rupp, Ms. Marilyn Chappell, and Mr. Christopher Gregory, three of which are 17 participating remotely. Great. Mr. Rupp, please introduce yourself. Let us know who you are 18 representing, and you have three minutes for your testimony.

19
20 Jeff Rupp

21 Thank you, Madam Chair. Good morning, everyone. I would like to thank the Joint Legislative Council
22 and the staff for the opportunity to share input about Amendment H. My name is Jeff Rupp. I'm the 23 Executive Director of the Colorado Judicial Institute, or CJI. CJI is an independent, nonpartisan, 24 nonprofit organization with the mission to promote excellence, impartiality, and public trust in 25 Colorado's courts. As part of its work, CJI advocates on behalf of Colorado's Judicial System, and that
26 includes advocating for smart change that makes the system better. And CJI believes that Amendment H
27 is this sort of SMART change. I would like to turn it over to my colleague, Marilyn Chappell, a Denver
28 attorney and board member at CJI, who will share some additional specific input about the amendment
29 H ballot draft. Thank you.

30
31 Speaker McCluskie

32 Mr. Rupp. Does that conclude your testimony?

33
34 Jeff Rupp

35 Yes, it does. Thank you, Madam Chair.

36
37 Speaker McCluskie

38 Thank you. Ms. Marilyn Chappell, please proceed.

1 Marilyn Chappell

2 Thank you, Madam Chair. Thank you Mr. Rupp, and thank you members of the Council and committee.
3 I am here. I'm an attorney in private practice in Denver, but I'm here as a volunteer, as an emeritus board
4 member of CJI. And we are very grateful to be part of this very important process. As Mr. Rupp told
5 you, CJI has really a vital interest in this measure. And CJI also was involved in the Interim Committee
6 process and the legislative process in 2022 on this matter that has become Amendment H. And that is 7 part of a long tradition of CJI being involved in legislative testimony on a number of measures. Our 8 comments on behalf of CJI on Amendment H, have focused on the two main features, as were outlined
9 to you earlier: creating an independent adjudicative board to preside over judicial dispute proceedings
10 and providing public access to the proceedings at an earlier stage. CJI's only comments on the third draft
11 of this measure are on the arguments for Amendment H portion. And respectfully, we submit that CJI
12 comments on that portion of this measure, on Attachment C page 4, really closely adhere to those two 13 main features of this measure, in a neutral manner. And, so, our request on behalf of CJI, would be to 14 delete the first and third sentences of the argument for Amendment H portion of the third draft, again, in 15 the interest of neutrally presenting these issues to Colorado's voters. Thank you very much.

16

17 Speaker McCluskie

18 Thank you. Ms Chappell. Mr. Gregory.

19

20 Christopher Gregory

21 Thank you, Madam Speaker and committee members. My name is Christopher Gregory. I am the former 22 Vice Chair, Chair, and Executive Director of the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline. I appear 23 before you in my individual capacity as a Colorado citizen.

24

25 The importance of Amendment H cannot be understated. Through our existing constitutional structure,
26 the Colorado Supreme Court has plenary authority to appoint judge members to the Colorado
27 Commission on Judicial Discipline, to select and appoint the Special Masters who hear formal judicial 28 discipline proceedings, to adopt both the Colorado Code of Judicial Conduct and the Colorado Rules of 29 Judicial Discipline, and to make the ultimate decisions as to the public discipline of judges. Former 30 Senate Judiciary Committee Chair Pete Lee and the Commission publicly raised concerns about this 31 structure, where the Justices choose the investigators, the prosecutors, the judges who hear formal 32 proceedings, and the appellate panel that ultimately determines sanctions, including as to allegations of 33 the Justices' own misconduct. This structure exists upon the backdrop of the Justices acting as their own
34 legislature or rulemaking body. Amendment H corrects this fundamentally flawed system, and the Blue 35 Book needs to explain the importance of this to voters.

36

37 I acknowledge the excellent job that Legislative Council Staff has done in drafting a concise and 38 understandable ballot analysis, while requesting that this committee adopt some short but critical edits.
39 Although I have provided you with a written explanation and draft language for an amendment, the edits
40 I am requesting can be summarized, as follows.

1 First, the impacts of Amendment H should specifically include explanation that the amendment will
2 reduce the Colorado Supreme Court's control and influence over the judicial disciplinary process.

3
4 Second, the description of what constitutes judicial misconduct should clearly explain that judges are 5 held to a higher standard. Judges must avoid both actual improprieties and even conduct that creates the 6 appearance of impropriety.

7
8 And third, it is important that voters understand the context through which the structural changes in 9 Amendment H are being proposed to them. This includes explaining the robustness of the legislative 10 process followed in drafting Amendment H. Specifically, voters need to know about the bipartisan,
11 bicameral Legislative Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline process, the universal buy-in by the 12 primary stakeholders, and that Amendment H is being referred to them after unanimous votes in both 13 Chambers on Third Reading and all but one Representative approving the final conference committee 14 report for this measure.

15
16 Amendment H is a model for what the legislative process should be and what is necessary to reinforce
17 good government in Colorado. Do not diminish the reasons why voters should approve Amendment H. I 18 ask you to consider the edits I have proposed, and I invite your questions.

19
20 Speaker McCluskie

21 Thank you, Mr. Gregory. Mr. Forsyth. Mr. Forsyth.

22
23 Chris Forsyth

24 All right.

25
26 Speaker McCluskie

27 Nope, there you go. Thank you.

28
29 Chris Forsyth

30 The Draft Analysis presented by Legislative Council Staff is not fair and it is not impartial. I don't have 31 time on the 3 minutes to read all my comments. The word independent is used repeatedly throughout 32 this analysis. Independent is an unnecessary adjective that is not needed for describing this measure. It
33 implies that both the current Commission on Judicial Discipline and this adjudicatory board are 34 independent of the Supreme Court. That is not true. The Supreme Court selects members of the judicial 35 discipline commission at present, and will select members of the adjudicatory board, if it's adopted. The 36 Supreme Court hires the Supreme Court Administrator who would select the panels that hear the cases 37 regarding discipline. The Supreme Court would select members on the rulemaking committee. The 38 Supreme Court would still have an appellate function. The word independent used repeatedly in this 39 measure is misleading and inaccurate, unfair and biased. It should be removed in its entirety. A fair and 40 impartial judge would not allow an attorney, to use the word independent in court in arguing this matter.

1 So, because Legislative Council has to act in a fair and impartial manner, they should not be allowed to 2 use it.

3

4 On page 2, lines 2 through 3 say that formal hearings are conducted by a panel of judges selected by the 5 Supreme Court. Under the current system, the Commission does not have to refer a case to Special
6 Masters to be heard, the Commission can make its own determination. And that's what Amendment H
7 was trying to correct, was that adjudicatory and prosecutorial function is one thing. And that's something
8 this analysis completely fails to convey. Lines 9 through 17 on page 2 are completely misleading
9 because they make it sound like an entire adjudicative board hears the discipline case. That's incorrect.
10 Only a panel of three members. And those three members are selected by the State Court Administrator,
11 the position that behaved corruptly, that caused all the chaos that led to the legislative hearings. This 12 amendment puts that position, the State Court Administrator directly in a position of power over judicial 13 discipline. It's ridiculous.

14

15 The flow chart, it says it's applying the new discipline process. That's our current discipline process. It's 16 completely misleading.

17

18 When you get to the arguments against, the arguments are not arguments against. The argument against 19 should read, Amendment H makes minimal changes to the judicial discipline process when much more
20 substantial change is needed. Having judges in roles on the discipline commission, on adjudicatory
21 panels, and on the rulemaking board leaves too many conflicts of interest in the process.

22

23 The current judicial discipline process does not work, and Amendment H will not make it work. History
24 shows that the procedures in Amendment H affect less than 1% of complaints against judges and are not 25 worthy of a constitutional amendment. If Amendment H passes, it will almost be impossible . . .

26

27 Speaker McCluskie

28 Mr. Forsyth, thank you for your testimony.

29

30 Chris Forsyth

31 for necessary reforms, because legislators will allege they did the job with Amendment H. Empowering 32 the State Court Administrator with a role . . .

33

34 Speaker McCluskie

35 I'll ask you to wrap up your testimony, now.

36

37 Chris Forsyth

38 is a mistake.

39

40

1 Speaker McCluskie

2 Thank you. For the record, could you please introduce yourself and the organization that you're 3 representing today?

4

5 Chris Forsyth

6 I didn't have time. My name is Chris Forsyth. I'm an attorney licensed to practice in Colorado for 30
7 years, and I represent the Judicial Integrity Project, where we're a non-partisan non-biased entity trying 8 to seek improvements in the justice system.

9

10 Speaker McCluskie

11 Thank you, Mr. Forsyth. Members, any questions for our witnesses? Seeing none. Thank you to all of 12 you for your testimony today. Do we have anyone else in the room who is interested in testifying on 13 Amendment H? Seeing none. The public testimony phase is closed. Members. Are there any 14 amendments? Seeing none, the amendment phase is closed. We will now move on to Amendment I.

Appendix 27(ff)(ii)

Exhibits and Hearing Materials:

Appendix 27(ff)(ii)(1)

Ballot Analysis Drafts and Written Submission.

HCR23-1001: Judicial Discipline Procedures and Confidentiality

Placed on the ballot by the legislature • Passes with 55 percent of the vote

1 HCR23-1001 proposes amending the Colorado Constitution to:

- 2 • reduce the Colorado Supreme Court’s role in ethical misconduct cases involving 3 judges; and
- 4 • allow for increased public access to information about judicial discipline
5 proceedings.

6 What Your Vote Means

7 YES

8 A “yes” vote on HCR23-1001 changes how 9 judicial misconduct cases are handled by
10 reducing the Colorado Supreme Court’s
11 involvement in the disciplinary process
12 and allowing for more information to be 13 shared with the public and other judicial 14 oversight agencies.

15 NO

16 A “no” vote on HCR23-1001 means that
17 the Colorado Supreme Court will continue
18 to have a direct role in disciplining judges
19 for misconduct and will keep judicial 20 discipline cases confidential until the final 21 stages of the proceeding.

22 Summary and Analysis of HCR23-1001

23 What is judicial misconduct and discipline?

24 Judicial misconduct occurs when a judge acts unethically or in ways that discredit the courts.
25 Common misconduct complaints include improper demeanor, alcohol and drug use,
26 conflicts of interest, and inappropriate communication, among others. Any person may file a 27 complaint, and judges found to have violated judicial ethics may be disciplined publicly or 28 privately, depending upon the seriousness of the misconduct.

29 How are judicial discipline cases currently handled?

30 The Commission on Judicial Discipline (commission), an independent state agency charged
31 with investigating allegations of misconduct against judges, screens and investigates
32 complaints. The screening process eliminates complaints that ask to review a judge’s ruling 33 or order a new trial. Complaints found to have merit are investigated. Thereafter, the 34 commission either issues a private reprimand, dismisses the complaint, or forwards findings
35 about the more serious cases to the Colorado Supreme Court. The forwarded cases are 36 reviewed further and tried by independent judges appointed by the Colorado Supreme 37 Court. After the trial, the Colorado Supreme Court receives disciplinary recommendations 38 and agrees on a final ruling.

1 Misconduct cases are made public only in the final stage of proceedings when judges are 2 publicly punished. Otherwise, complaints and informal punishments are not shared with the 3 public, the person who filed a complaint, and other judicial oversight agencies, such as 4 nominating and judicial performance commissions that evaluate judges.

5 What changes does HCR23-1001 make to the judicial discipline process?

6 HCR 23-1001 establishes the Independent Judicial Discipline Adjudicative Board (board),
 7 separate from the commission and the Colorado Supreme Court, to decide judicial discipline
 8 cases. The board consists of four district court judges, four attorneys, and four citizens. The 9 new board's decisions are considered final, and the Colorado Supreme Court's role is limited
 10 to appeals. If a case involves a Colorado Supreme Court justice, the appeal is heard by a
 11 tribunal made up of randomly selected appellate and district court judges. The flow chart 12 below summarizes this new process.

13 Figure 1
 14 Judicial Discipline Proceedings Under HCR23-1001

15 In addition to this new hearings process, complaints are made public earlier. The commission 16 may provide status updates to the person who filed the complaint, share information with 17 judicial oversight agencies about public and informal disciplinary actions, and report
 18 aggregate information about trends or patterns in complaints.

19 A summary of the major changes proposed in HCR23-1001 can be found in Table 1 below.

1 Table 1
 2 Current Judicial Discipline Proceedings Under Current Law Compared to HCR23-1001

Current Judicial Discipline	Judicial Discipline Under HCR23-1001
Formal Disciplinary Hearings
The Colorado Supreme Court appoints judges to hear cases and make disciplinary recommendations, and determines sanctions against judges.	The Independent Judicial Discipline Adjudicative Board, made up of an equal number of attorneys, judges, and citizens, conducts judicial discipline hearings and determines sanctions.
Discipline Cases Involving State Colorado Supreme Court Justices
The Colorado Supreme Court justices may discipline their own members.	Seven randomly selected Colorado Court of Appeals and District Court judges review any appeal made by a Colorado Supreme Court justice who has been disciplined.
State Colorado Supreme Court Role
The Colorado Supreme Court is the final arbiter of cases after receiving disciplinary recommendations and makes rules about the process.	Colorado Supreme Court role is limited to appeals. Rules for the process are established by an independent body.
Public Access to Information
Formal judicial disciplinary hearings are held privately until the announcement of public sanctions, and reporting requirements and communication with the person who filed the complaint is limited.	Upon the start of proceedings, the commission may share case information with complainants, judicial oversight agencies, and the general public. Case information may also be included in aggregate data used for required reports on complaints against judges.
Appointments
Colorado Supreme Court nominates members for the Commission on Judicial Discipline and appoints judges to hear discipline cases.	Commission members and the new adjudicative board are appointed by the Supreme Court and the Governor and confirmed by the Senate. The State Court Administrator randomly selects judges for the tribunal.

3 Why is HCR23-1001 on the ballot?

4 In 2023, the Colorado legislature passed three bipartisan bills about judicial discipline
 5 procedures and workplace culture, including HCR23-1001. The other two bills address 6 confidentiality, complaint filing and reporting, and data collection, as well as created a new 7 office to assist judicial employees with workplace and other complaints.

For information on those issue committees that support or oppose the measures on the ballot at the November 5, 2024, election, go to the Colorado Secretary of State's elections center web site hyperlink for ballot and initiative information:

<https://coloradosos.gov/pubs/elections/Initiatives/InitiativesHome.html>

1 Arguments For HCR23-1001

- 2 1) Colorado judges should not have direct influence and oversight over their own discipline.
3 HCR23-1001 aims to enhance the autonomy, transparency, and independence of the 4 judicial discipline process. Historically, judicial discipline has largely been self-regulated,
5 facing challenges in oversight and self-protection. This amendment serves to enhance 6 public confidence and trust in the courts.

7 Arguments Against HCR23-1001

- 8 1) Judges understand how to review cases, hold hearings, and make impartial and hard 9 decisions. As a result, they are well-suited to hear judicial discipline cases. The 10 amendment transfers this authority to attorneys and citizens, who cannot fully 11 understand judicial ethics and the unique challenges of being a judge. The judiciary's 12 existing system of checks and balances, such as nomination and retention elections, 13 ensures only the best become and remain judges.

14 Fiscal Impact of HCR23-1001

- 15 The fiscal impact will be included in the second draft.

Amendment H: Judicial Discipline Procedures and Confidentiality

Placed on the ballot by the legislature • Passes with 55 percent of the vote

1 Amendment H proposes amending the Colorado Constitution to:

- 2 • create an independent board separate from the Colorado Supreme Court to
- 3 preside over ethical misconduct hearings involving judges; and
- 4 • allow for increased public access to information about judicial discipline
- 5 proceedings.

6 What Your Vote Means

7 YES

8 A “yes” vote on Amendment H changes
 9 how judicial discipline cases are handled
 10 by creating an independent board to 11 conduct hearings, reducing the Colorado
 12 Supreme Court’s role in these hearings,
 13 and allowing more information to be
 14 shared earlier with the public.

15 NO

16 A “no” vote on Amendment H means that
 17 the Colorado Supreme Court will continue
 18 to select the judges who preside over
 19 judicial discipline misconduct hearings,
 20 and cases remain confidential unless
 21 punishment is publically issued at the end
 22 of the process.

23 Summary and Analysis of Amendment H

24 What is judicial misconduct and discipline?

25 Colorado judges must follow a code of conduct. Judicial misconduct occurs when a judge
 26 acts unethically or in ways that discredit the courts. Common misconduct complaints include
 27 improper demeanor, alcohol and drug use, conflicts of interest, inappropriate
 28 communication, and mistreatment or harassment of staff. Any person may file a complaint, 29 and judges found to have violated judicial ethics may be disciplined publicly or privately,
 30 depending upon the seriousness of the misconduct.

31 How are judicial discipline cases currently handled?

32 Pursuant to the Colorado Constitution, the Commission on Judicial Discipline (Commission), 33 an independent state agency charged with investigating allegations of misconduct against 34 judges, screens and investigates complaints. Members of the Commission are appointed by 35 the Colorado Supreme Court and the Governor. The screening process eliminates complaints
 36 that ask to review a judge’s ruling or order a new trial, and those found to have merit are 37 investigated. Thereafter, the Commission either issues a private reprimand, dismisses the 38 complaint, or forwards findings about the more serious cases to the Colorado Supreme

1 Court. The forwarded cases are reviewed further and tried by judges appointed by the 2 Colorado Supreme Court. After the trial, the Colorado Supreme Court receives disciplinary 3 recommendations and agrees on a final ruling. Misconduct cases are made public only in 4 the final stage of proceedings when judges are publicly punished.

5 What changes does Amendment H make to the judicial discipline process?

6 Amendment H establishes the Independent Judicial Discipline Adjudicative Board
 7 (independent board) to preside over judicial discipline hearings and make disciplinary 8 recommendations. The independent board consists of four district court judges appointed 9 by the Supreme Court, and four attorneys and four citizens appointed by the Governor. The 10 new independent board's decisions are considered final unless there is proof of a legal or 11 factual error. If a case involves a Colorado Supreme Court justice, the appeal is heard by a 12 tribunal made up of randomly selected appellate and district court judges. Formal charges
 13 against judges are also made public at the beginning of the hearing.

14 The flow chart below summarizes the new discipline process.

15
 16

Figure 1
Judicial Discipline Proceedings Under Amendment H

1 Table 1 compares current practices with those proposed in Amendment H.

2

Table 1

3

Current Judicial Discipline Proceedings Compared to Amendment H

Current Judicial Discipline	Judicial Discipline Under Amendment H
Formal Disciplinary Hearings
The Colorado Supreme Court appoints judges to hear cases, make disciplinary recommendations, and determine sanctions against judges accused of misconduct.	The independent board, made up of an equal number of attorneys, judges, and citizens, conducts judicial discipline hearings and determines sanctions.
Discipline Cases Involving Colorado Supreme Court Justices
A tribunal made up of seven randomly selected Court of Appeals judges hear cases involving Colorado Supreme Court justices. If the proposed sanction recommended by the tribunal is rejected by the accused judge, the Colorado Supreme Court makes the final decision.	The independent board hears discipline cases for Supreme Court justices. Seven randomly selected Colorado Court of Appeals and District Court judges review any appeal made by a Colorado Supreme Court justice who has been disciplined.
Colorado Supreme Court Role
The Colorado Supreme Court is the final arbiter of cases after receiving disciplinary recommendations and makes rules about the process.	Colorado Supreme Court role is limited to appeals. Rules for the process are established by an independent body.
Public Access to Information
Formal judicial disciplinary hearings are held privately until the announcement of public sanctions.	Charges against a judge can be made public upon the start of proceedings
Appointments
Commission members are appointed by the Colorado Supreme Court and the Governor and confirmed by the Senate. Colorado Supreme Court appoints special master judges to hear discipline cases. The State Court Administrator selects judges for the tribunal that hears cases involving Supreme Court justices.	Commission members and the new adjudicative board are appointed by the Colorado Supreme Court and the Governor and confirmed by the Senate. The State Court Administrator randomly selects judges for the tribunal to hear appeals from Supreme Court justices.

4 Why is Amendment H on the ballot?

5

In 2023, the Colorado legislature passed three bipartisan bills about judicial discipline procedures and workplace culture, including Amendment H. The other two bills address confidentiality, complaint filing and reporting, and data collection, as well as created a new office to assist judicial employees with workplace and other complaints.

6

7

8

For information on those issue committees that support or oppose the measures on the ballot at the November 5, 2024, election, go to the Colorado Secretary of State’s elections center web site hyperlink for ballot and initiative information:

<https://coloradosos.gov/pubs/elections/Initiatives/InitiativesHome.html>

1 Arguments For Amendment H

- 2 1) Colorado judges should not have direct influence and oversight over the discipline of
3 their colleagues. Amendment H aims to enhance the autonomy, transparency, integrity,
4 and independence of the judicial discipline process. Historically, judicial discipline has 5 largely been self-regulated, facing challenges in oversight and self-protection. This 6 amendment serves to enhance public confidence and trust in the courts. Finally, this 7 measure is a compromise recommended by nearly all members of the General Assembly
8 and the Judicial Branch.

9 Arguments Against Amendment H

- 10 1) The current system works. Judges understand how to review cases, hold hearings, and 11 make impartial and hard decisions. As a result, they are well-suited to hear judicial 12 discipline cases. The amendment transfers this authority to attorneys and citizens, who 13 cannot fully understand judicial ethics and the unique challenges of being a judge. The 14 judiciary’s existing system of checks and balances, such as nomination and retention
15 elections, ensures only the best become and remain judges.

16 Fiscal Impact of Amendment H

- 17 State spending. The measure will increase state costs by about $50,000 per year. This 18 funding provides compensation and training to members of the newly created judicial 19 discipline board and rulemaking committee.

Amendment H: Judicial Discipline Procedures and Confidentiality

Placed on the ballot by the legislature • Passes with 55 percent of the vote

1 Amendment H proposes amending the Colorado Constitution to:

- 2 • create an independent adjudicative board to preside over ethical misconduct
- 3 hearings involving judges; and
- 4 • allow for increased public access to judicial discipline proceedings and records.

5 What Your Vote Means

6 YES

7 A “yes” vote on Amendment H creates an
8 independent adjudicative board made up
9 of citizens, lawyers, and judges to conduct
10 judicial misconduct hearings and impose
11 disciplinary actions, and allows more
12 information to be shared earlier with the 13 public.

14 NO

15 A “no” vote on Amendment H means that
16 a select panel of judges will continue to
17 conduct judicial misconduct hearings and
18 recommend disciplinary actions, and cases
19 remain confidential unless public
20 sanctions are recommended at the end of 21 the process.

22 Summary and Analysis of Amendment H

23 What is judicial misconduct and discipline?

24 Colorado judges must follow a code of conduct. Judicial misconduct occurs when a judge
25 acts unethically or in ways that diminish public confidence in the integrity of the courts.
26 Misconduct complaints may include improper demeanor, alcohol and drug use, dishonesty, 27 retaliation, conflicts of interest, inappropriate communication, and mistreatment or 28 harassment of staff. Any person may file a complaint, and judges found to have violated 29 their ethical duties may be disciplined publicly or privately, depending upon the nature of 30 the misconduct.

31 How are judicial discipline cases currently handled?

32 Pursuant to the Colorado Constitution, the Commission on Judicial Discipline (commission),
33 an independent judicial agency charged with investigating allegations of misconduct against 34 judges, screens and investigates complaints. Members of the commission are appointed by
35 the Colorado Supreme Court and the Governor. The screening process eliminates complaints
36 that are outside the commission’s jurisdiction, such as those that ask to review a judge’s
37 rulings or order new trials. The commission further investigates complaints when there is 38 sufficient evidence of misconduct.

1 Thereafter, the commission can do one of the following: 1) dismiss the complaint; 2) impose
2 private discipline; 3) hold an informal hearing; or 4) initiate formal hearings. Formal hearings
3 are conducted by a panel of judges selected by the Colorado Supreme Court. When the 4 hearing is over, the commission reviews the panel's findings and forwards disciplinary
5 recommendations to the Colorado Supreme Court for a final determination. Misconduct
6 cases are made public upon the commission filing its recommendations for public discipline.
7 Complaints that result in informal punishments are not disclosed to the general public.

8 What changes does Amendment H make to the judicial discipline process?

9 Amendment H creates the Independent Judicial Discipline Adjudicative Board (adjudicative
10 board), separate from the Colorado Supreme Court and commission, to preside over judicial 11 discipline hearings and impose sanctions. The adjudicative board consists of four district
12 court judges, four attorneys, and four citizens appointed by the Colorado Supreme Court
13 and the Governor. The new board's decisions are considered final unless there is proof of a
14 legal or factual error upon appeal to the Colorado Supreme Court. If an appeal involves a 15 Colorado Supreme Court justice, it is heard by a tribunal made up of randomly selected
16 appellate and district court judges. Formal disciplinary charges against judges are also made 17 public at the beginning of the hearing.

18 Figure 1 below summarizes the new discipline process.

19 20

Figure 1
Judicial Discipline Flow Chart

21 Table 1 compares current practices with those proposed in Amendment H.

1
2

Table 1
Current Judicial Discipline Proceedings Compared to Amendment H

Current Judicial Discipline	Judicial Discipline Under Amendment H
Formal Disciplinary Hearings
Judges selected by the Colorado Supreme Court hear cases and make disciplinary recommendations to the commission, who in turn makes recommendations to the Colorado Supreme Court for a final discipline ruling.	The independent adjudicative board, made up of an equal number of attorneys, judges, and citizens, conducts judicial discipline hearings and makes the final discipline ruling.
Independent Tribunals
In cases involving a Colorado Supreme Court justice, their family members, or staff, the entire Colorado Supreme Court must disqualify themselves and be replaced with a tribunal composed of seven randomly selected Colorado Court of Appeals judges. The tribunal hears the case and is the final decision-maker on sanctions.	The tribunal is composed of randomly selected District and Appeal Court judges representing different districts and only hears cases that involve Colorado Supreme Court justices, their staff or family members, or any other case where two justices have recused themselves. A tribunal will also hear appeals from the independent adjudicative board.
Colorado Supreme Court Role
The Colorado Supreme Court is the final arbiter of cases after receiving disciplinary recommendations and makes rules about the process.	Colorado Supreme Court role is limited to appointments and appeals. Rules for the process are established by an independent committee.
Public Access to Information
Formal judicial disciplinary hearings are held privately until the commission files a formal recommendation for public sanctions with the Colorado Supreme Court.	The proceedings against a judge and the related record become public when formal charges are filed.
Appointments
Commission members are appointed by the Colorado Supreme Court and the Governor with Senate confirmation. Colorado Supreme Court appoints special master judges to hear discipline cases. The State Court Administrator randomly selects judges for the tribunal in cases where the Colorado Supreme Court is disqualified.	Commission members and the new adjudicative board are appointed by the Colorado Supreme Court and the Governor with Senate confirmation. The State Court Administrator randomly selects Court of Appeals and District Court judges for the tribunal to hear Colorado Supreme Court related appeals.

1 Why is Amendment H on the ballot?

2 After extensive hearings involving experts, stakeholders, and the public, the Colorado
3 legislature passed three bipartisan bills in 2023 that change judicial discipline procedures
4 and workplace culture, including Amendment H. Because this amendment would change
5 Colorado's constitutional provisions on judicial discipline, it requires voter approval to
6 become law. The other two bills address confidentiality, complaint filing and reporting, and
7 data collection, as well as creating a new office to assist judicial employees with workplace
8 and other complaints.

For information on those issue committees that support or oppose the measures on the ballot at the November 5, 2024, election, go to the Colorado Secretary of State's elections center web site hyperlink for ballot and initiative information:

<https://coloradosos.gov/pubs/elections/Initiatives/InitiativesHome.html>

9 Argument For Amendment H

10 1) Colorado judges should not have direct influence and oversight over the discipline of 11 their colleagues. Amendment H is an important change that aims to enhance the 12 transparency, integrity, and independence of the judicial discipline process. Historically,
13 judicial discipline has largely been self-regulated, facing challenges in oversight and 14 self-protection. This amendment serves to enhance public confidence and trust in the 15 courts. Finally, this measure is a compromise recommended by nearly all members of the 16 General Assembly and formally by the Judicial Branch.

17 Argument Against Amendment H

18 1) The current system works. Judges understand how to review cases, hold hearings, and 19 make impartial and hard decisions. As a result, they have the experience to hear judicial 20 discipline cases. The amendment transfers this authority to attorneys and citizens, who 21 cannot fully understand judicial ethics and the unique challenges of being a judge. The 22 judiciary's existing system of checks and balances, such as nomination and retention
23 elections, ensures only the best become and remain judges.

24 Fiscal Impact of Amendment H

25 State spending. The measure will increase state costs by about $50,000 per year. This 26 funding provides compensation and training to members of the newly created judicial 27 discipline board and rulemaking committee.

Amendment H: Judicial Discipline Procedures and Confidentiality

Placed on the ballot by the legislature • Passes with 55 percent of the vote

1 Amendment H proposes amending the Colorado Constitution to:

- 2 • create an independent adjudicative board to preside over ethical misconduct
- 3 hearings involving judges; and
- 4 • allow for increased public access to judicial discipline proceedings and records.

5 What Your Vote Means

6 YES

7 A “yes” vote on Amendment H creates an
8 independent adjudicative board made up
9 of citizens, lawyers, and judges to conduct
10 judicial misconduct hearings and impose
11 disciplinary actions, and allows more
12 information to be shared earlier with the 13 public.

14 NO

15 A “no” vote on Amendment H means that
16 a select panel of judges will continue to
17 conduct judicial misconduct hearings and
18 recommend disciplinary actions, and cases
19 remain confidential unless public
20 sanctions are issued at the end of the 21 process.

22 Summary and Analysis of Amendment H

23 What is judicial misconduct and discipline?

24 Colorado judges must follow a code of conduct. Judicial misconduct occurs when a judge
25 acts unethically or in ways that diminish public confidence in the courts. Misconduct
26 complaints may include improper demeanor, alcohol and drug use, conflicts of interest,
27 inappropriate communication, and mistreatment or harassment of staff. Any person may file
28 a complaint, and judges found to have violated their ethical duties may be disciplined
29 publicly or privately, depending upon the nature of the misconduct.

30 How are judicial discipline cases currently handled?

31 Pursuant to the Colorado Constitution, the Commission on Judicial Discipline (commission),
32 an independent judicial agency charged with investigating allegations of misconduct against 33 judges, screens and investigates complaints. Members of the commission are appointed by
34 the Colorado Supreme Court and the Governor. The screening process eliminates complaints
35 that are outside the commission’s jurisdiction, such as those that ask to review a judge’s
36 rulings or order new trials. The commission further investigates complaints when there is 37 sufficient evidence of misconduct.

1 Thereafter, the commission can: dismiss the complaint, impose private discipline, hold an
 2 informal hearing, or recommend formal hearings. The formal hearings are conducted by a
 3 panel of judges selected by the Colorado Supreme Court. When the hearing is over, the 4 commission reviews the panel’s findings and forwards disciplinary recommendations to the
 5 Colorado Supreme Court for a final determination. Misconduct cases are made public only if 6 a judge receives a public punishment order at the end of the process. Complaints and 7 informal punishments may not be shared with the persons who filed the complaints or the 8 general public.

9 What changes does Amendment H make to the judicial discipline process?

10 Amendment H creates the Independent Judicial Discipline Adjudicative Board (adjudicative
 11 board) to preside over judicial discipline hearings and impose sanctions. The adjudicative
 12 board consists of four district court judges, four attorneys, and four citizens appointed by 13 the Colorado Supreme Court and the Governor. The new board’s decisions are considered
 14 final unless there is proof of a legal or factual error upon appeal to the Colorado Supreme
 15 Court. If an appeal involves a Colorado Supreme Court justice, it is heard by a tribunal made
 16 up of randomly selected appellate and district court judges. Formal charges against judges
 17 are also made public at the beginning of the hearing.

18 Figure 1 below summarizes the new discipline process.

19 20

Figure 1
Judicial Discipline Flow Chart

21 Table 1 compares current practices with those proposed in Amendment H.

1
2

Table 1
Current Judicial Discipline Proceedings Compared to Amendment H

Current Judicial Discipline	Judicial Discipline Under Amendment H
Formal Disciplinary Hearings
Judges selected by the Colorado Supreme Court hear cases and make disciplinary recommendations to the Colorado Supreme Court for final discipline ruling.	The independent adjudicative board, made up of an equal number of attorneys, judges, and citizens, conducts judicial discipline hearings and makes final discipline ruling.
Independent Tribunals
In cases involving a Colorado Supreme Court justice, their family members, or staff, the entire Colorado Supreme Court must disqualify themselves and be replaced with a tribunal composed of seven randomly selected Colorado Court of Appeals judges. The tribunal hears the case and is the final decision-maker on sanctions.	The tribunal is composed of randomly selected District and Appeal Court judges representing different districts and only hears Colorado Supreme Court justice-related appeals.
Colorado Supreme Court Role
The Colorado Supreme Court is the final arbiter of cases after receiving disciplinary recommendations and makes rules about the process.	Colorado Supreme Court role is limited to appointments and appeals. Rules for the process are established by an independent committee.
Public Access to Information
Formal judicial disciplinary hearings are held privately until the commission files a formal recommendation for public sanctions with the Colorado Supreme Court.	The proceedings against a judge and the related record become public when formal charges are filed.
Appointments
Commission members are appointed by the Colorado Supreme Court and the Governor with Senate confirmation. Colorado Supreme Court appoints special master judges to hear discipline cases. The State Court Administrator randomly selects judges for the tribunal in cases where the Colorado Supreme Court is disqualified.	Commission members and the new adjudicative board are appointed by the Colorado Supreme Court and the Governor with Senate confirmation. The State Court Administrator randomly selects Court of Appeals and District Court judges for the tribunal to hear Colorado Supreme Court related appeals.

3 Why is Amendment H on the ballot?

4 After extensive hearings about the judicial discipline process, the Colorado legislature
5 passed three bipartisan bills in 2023 that change judicial discipline procedures and

1 workplace culture, including Amendment H. Because this amendment would change
2 Colorado’s constitutional provisions on judicial discipline, it requires voter approval to
3 become law. The other two bills address confidentiality, complaint filing and reporting, and
4 data collection, as well as creating a new office to assist judicial employees with workplace
5 and other complaints.

For information on those issue committees that support or oppose the measures on the ballot at the November 5, 2024, election, go to the Colorado Secretary of State’s elections center web site hyperlink for ballot and initiative information:

<https://coloradosos.gov/pubs/elections/Initiatives/InitiativesHome.html>

6 Argument For Amendment H

7 1) Colorado judges should not have direct influence and oversight over the discipline of
8 their colleagues. Amendment H is an important change that aims to enhance the 9 transparency, integrity, and independence of the judicial discipline process. Historically,
10 judicial discipline has largely been self-regulated, facing challenges in oversight and 11 self-protection. This amendment serves to enhance public confidence and trust in the 12 courts. Finally, this measure is a compromise recommended by nearly all members of the 13 General Assembly and formally by the Judicial Branch.

14 Argument Against Amendment H

15 1) The current system works. Judges understand how to review cases, hold hearings, and 16 make impartial and hard decisions. As a result, they are well suited to hear judicial 17 discipline cases. The amendment transfers this authority to attorneys and citizens, who 18 cannot fully understand judicial ethics and the unique challenges of being a judge. The 19 judiciary’s existing system of checks and balances, such as nomination and retention
20 elections, ensures only the best become and remain judges.

21 Fiscal Impact of Amendment H

22 State spending. The measure will increase state costs by about $50,000 per year. This
23 funding provides compensation and training to members of the newly created judicial
24 discipline board and rulemaking committee.

Last Draft Comments from Interested Parties

Amendment H Judicial Discipline Procedures and Confidentiality

Christopher Forsyth, representing The Judicial Integrity Project:

I am in receipt of the third draft analysis. There is little changed from the previous analysis which was alarmingly insufficient. Therefore, my comments regarding the previous draft are being provided again because they are also pertinent to this draft. I also drafted a better ballot analysis and encourage you to adopt that analysis for the Blue Book. It is attached.

The judicial scandal involved the state court administrator behaving improperly. What does Amendment H do? It increases the state court administrator's power and gives him or her direct power in judicial discipline proceedings. Voters need to know that.

The draft analysis provided by your office fails to provide sincere arguments against Amendment H. It fails to accurately describe the current process or Amendment H. It is confusing and misleading.

It is troubling enough that the judicial branch hoodwinked the legislature into proposing Amendment H. The amendment contains a lot of words but changes very little in the process. It affects less than one percent of complaints filed against judges. Why would you add to that conundrum by putting forth this inaccurate and lazy misleading ballot analysis? I implore you to accurately state the current system and what Amendment H would do.

The attached proposed draft is more accurate and does not mislead the public regarding the current system or what Amendment H would do. I encourage you to adopt it.

Thank you for your time and attention to this matter. The analysis in the Blue Book should be accurate. Voters have the right to expect it to be accurate. The current draft analysis is not accurate. It is not helpful to voters.

Mr. Forsyth also submitted marked-up copy of the analysis with recommended language (Attachment A).

Christopher Gregory, representing himself:

I appreciate legislative staff's efforts to incorporate many of my previous editing suggestions for this ballot analysis. Consistent with the instructions provided in the

Last Draft Comments from Interested Parties

August 12, 2024 letter from Legislative Council, I have included some of my previous requests for edits in the attached document.

Overall, I believe that this draft language is fairly close to what it should be. Consequently, my comments focus on three primary points: 1) the ballot analysis should at least note that this amendment will limit the Colorado Supreme Court's control/influence over the judicial disciplinary process, 2) the description of what constitutes judicial misconduct should be more robust and acknowledge that judges are held to a higher standard (which includes avoiding even the appearance of impropriety), and 3) the explanation of Amendment H being on the ballot should emphasize the robustness of the Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline's process and how the final version of HCR 23-1001 passed unanimously through both houses on its third reading. As I note, I am unaware of other prior constitutional amendment referrals with such a level of universal support.

Although I do not know if it is helpful to the drafters, I was struck by how well Rep. Weissman summarized HCR 23-1001 when it was introduced in the House Judiciary Committee (3/15/23). Rep. Weissman stated:

All right, thank you, Madam Chair and committee. I should make this close enough. Thank you for hearing House Concurrent Resolution 1001 today. This is half of the work of last summer's Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline, of which Minority Leader Lynch and I were both members and, of course, colleagues. The Vice Chair was part of this journey as well with us. Just to provide a little bit of groundwork, and because not everybody was part of that, the prior phases of the journey that lead us to where we are today, I thought I'd say just a little bit about it, and then we'll make some comments that are more directly to the measure. Excuse me, really, I wanted to start briefly with a bill that the legislature passed last spring, House Bill, or rather, I'm sorry, Senate Bill 22-201. Among other things, that measure, for the first time, codified in statute the Commission on Judicial discipline and the Office of Judicial Discipline. Previously, those had existed in court rule. They specified information sharing responsibilities between what were in that Bill called judicial discipline agencies, so the Commission and things like Attorney Regulation Counsel and otherwise. Because we knew that there would be some even bigger changes to have to grapple with, including changes of the constitutional nature that we really couldn't deal with in the last weeks of session, part of that bill last year created the interim committee that begat the legislation that we're here to talk about today. I want to note that 201, was bipartisan and bicameral. I was one of the four sponsors of that and it passed. The final recorded votes in both chambers by a combined vote of 94 to 6. Moving then to the Interim Committee, I wanted to observe a little bit about how that was set up, and intentionally so. It could have been a majoritarian interim committee. Those happen sometimes. Senator Lee and I last year decided that this particular committee should not be majoritarian, because what we're talking about here is even bigger than party identities. We drew inspiration from HB 21-1325 that set up an evenly 4-4, so 2 each House Dems, Senate Republicans interim committee to grapple with school finance, which is also a big question, that is something else that doesn't need to be purely party line. So Senator Lee began chairing. I then took over chairship midway. And Rep. Carver, who is not with us, because she was term limited, was Vice Chair. And she was a great partner to work with throughout the summer. I wanted to note that, because it's not every interim committee that is like that, and that was an integral part of all of our work, the legislation, and you can see the list if you'd like at 13-5.3-110(7), the legislation charged the interim committee to study 17 specific areas or aspects of judicial discipline. We took testimony over the course of multiple hearings from a variety of folks, bar associations, heavily the Colorado Bar Association and the Colorado Women's Bar Association, variety of outside organizations, and I want to specifically acknowledge the National Center for State Courts, which as an entity that kind of studies judicial branch operations across the 50 states, survivor advocacy organizations, and I want to specifically mention CCASA (the Colorado Coalition Against Sexual Assault) and various members of the public. Process wise, in talking with Rep. Carver near the end of our work, we decided to try to operate in a consensus way. Sometimes, what will happen in an interim committee is both sides might go to their respective corners. The blue team will draft over here, the red team will draft over here. You'll see what happens. What I proposed to Vice Chair Carver was that we not do that. Was that we bring forward one set of measures that we could agree to. And ultimately we did. Measure A, which was the parlance from the interim, is now this concurrent resolution. Measure B from the interim is the companion bill that we'll turn to next. And of course, Mr. Minority Leader and Madam Vice Chair will speak about the ombuds aspect, which is the third and last thing on our docket. With that setup, I'm going to turn it over to Minority Leader Lynch.

Last Draft Comments from Interested Parties

In any event, I appreciate all the work that you and other members of legislative staff have put into this. I humbly request further consideration of the additional edits and comments that I am submitting here.

As I have previously explained, my participation in this process has been as an individual without speaking on behalf of any third party or organization.

I hope that you have a pleasant week. If there are any questions about my comments or suggested edits, please do not hesitate to let me know.

Mr. Gregory also submitted a marked-up copy of the analysis with recommended language (Attachment B).

Last Draft Comments from Interested Parties

Jeff Rupp, representing Colorado Judicial Institute:

To the Legislative Council:

I'm writing to submit comments from the Colorado Judicial Institute (CJI) about the 3rd draft ballot analysis for Amendment H – Judicial Discipline Procedures and Confidentiality. See the attached document with our redline edits and comments. The submitters are Marilyn Chappell, emerita board member, CJI; and Jeff Rupp, Executive Director, CJI.

CJI is grateful for the opportunity to provide this input. CJI is an independent, nonpartisan, nonprofit organization, established in 1979. CJI's mission is to promote excellence, equity, impartiality, and public trust in Colorado's courts. As part of its work, CJI advocates on behalf of Colorado's judicial system and that includes advocating for smart change that makes the system better.

Amendment H is vitally important to CJI. It addresses Colorado's judicial discipline process – part of our merit system for selecting, evaluating, and retaining judges, adopted by voters in 1966. CJI participated in 2022 legislative hearings on judicial discipline bills and in the 2022 legislative interim committee process producing what is now Amendment H.

CJI's comments on the Amendment H analysis have emphasized the two main features of the amendment: creating an independent adjudicative board to preside over judicial discipline proceedings, and providing public access to such proceedings at an earlier stage. CJI's current comments on the analysis are based on those two features, and on the importance of reminding voters of the context of Amendment H – a proposed change to Colorado's Constitution that should be thoughtfully undertaken.

CJI plans to participate in the upcoming September 4 hearing. We welcome any further questions or comments. Thank you.

Mr. Rupp also submitted a marked-up copy of the analysis with recommended language (Attachment C).

Terry Scanlon, representing the Judicial Branch:

I have three things I would like to highlight:

1. In Table 1, under "formal disciplinary hearings" the draft says "judges selected by the Supreme Court ... make recommendations." That's a reference to the special masters. But the special masters do not make a recommendation to the Court in the current model. The Special Masters do not make recommendation. The Commission makes a recommendation to the Court.

Last Draft Comments from Interested Parties

It seems it would be more accurate to say: "In cases involving a Colorado Supreme Court justice, their family members, or staff, the entire Colorado Supreme Court must disqualify themselves and be replaced with a tribunal composed of seven randomly selected District Court Judges and Court of Appeals Judges. The tribunal reviews appeals from cases from the independent adjudicative board."

2. The section on independent tribunals under Amendment H, the language says the tribunal "only hears supreme court justice-related appeals." The language could be more clear. The tribunal will serve as the Court instances where a Justice is involved in a case, a family member of a justice, a staff member of a justice, or two or more justices recuse from the case. It might be more fair to say "the tribunal will hear appears on cases that involve justice as a respondent or a witness, or in cases where the justice has a family member or staff member involved in the case, or in cases where two justices have recused."
3. There's a spelling error in the word "discipline" in the header of Figure 1.

Thank you for considering my feedback yet again,

August 14, 2024

Legislative Council
State Capitol
200 East Colfax, Room 29
Denver, CO 80203

Re: Amendment H Draft Analysis

To whom it may concern.

I am in receipt of the third draft analysis. There is little changed from the previous analysis which was alarmingly insufficient. Therefore, my comments regarding the previous draft are being provided again because they are also pertinent to this draft. I also drafted a better ballot analysis and encourage you to adopt that analysis for the Blue Book. It is attached.

The judicial scandal involved the state court administrator behaving improperly. What does Amendment H do? It increases the state court administrator's power and gives him or her direct power in judicial discipline proceedings. Voters need to know that.

The draft analysis provided by your office fails to provide sincere arguments against Amendment H. It fails to accurately describe the current process or Amendment H. It is confusing and misleading.

It is troubling enough that the judicial branch hoodwinked the legislature into proposing Amendment H. The amendment contains a lot of words but changes very little in the process. It affects less than one percent of complaints filed against judges. Why would you add to that conundrum by putting forth this inaccurate and lazily misleading ballot analysis? I implore you to accurately state the current system and what Amendment H would do.

The attached proposed draft is more accurate and does not mislead the public regarding the current system or what Amendment H would do. I encourage you to adopt it.

Thank you for your time and attention to this matter. The analysis in the Blue Book should be accurate. Voters have the right to expect it to be accurate. The current draft analysis is not accurate. It is not helpful to voters.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in blue ink, appearing to read 'Chris Forsyth', with a long horizontal line extending to the right.

Chris Forsyth, Esq.
Executive Director
Phone: 303-892-3894
Email: cforsyth@judicialintegrity.org

July 30 2024

Legislative Council
State Capitol
200 East Colfax, Room 29
Denver, CO 80203

Re: Amendment H Draft Analysis

To whom it may concern.

This letter is to respond to the draft analysis as requested. Overall, the draft analysis is confusing because it fails to effectively communicate how the current process works. Therefore, it also fails to effectively communicate what Amendment H does. This letter provides a critique of the draft analysis. Because the analysis is so problematic, however, a complete draft analysis proposal is also being submitted. It is attached to this letter.

The first section

In the first sentence under “Amendment H Proposes amending the Colorado Constitution to,” “create an independent board separate from the Colorado Supreme Court . . .” This is inaccurate for two reasons. First, the board is not independent of the Colorado Supreme Court. The Supreme Court selects members of the adjudicative board. The state court administrator, who is hired by and works for the Supreme Court, picks the members of an adjudicative panel from the entire board, and the Supreme Court maintains appellate functions over the adjudicative board. Although the resolution passed by the General Assembly which resulted in Amendment H uses the word “independent,” it is nothing more than a catchphrase or a marketing term and Legislative Council should not be using the word in its analysis of the measure.

Second, what Amendment H really does is create a separate panel from the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline to preside over judicial discipline hearings. Lines 2 and 3 of page one of the draft analysis are not correct and mislead the public.

In addition, it must also be noted that a separate panel to adjudicate judicial discipline is nothing new. Under current law, the discipline commission can ask the Supreme Court to appoint three special masters to hear a judicial discipline case. All Amendment H does is require a separate panel if a case actually proceeds to formal proceedings. And Amendment H changes the makeup of the panel. Amendment H also makes the findings of the panel final unless appealed. Under the current system, the findings of the panel aren't final and are a recommendation to the Supreme Court.

In the second bullet under the title, the vagueness of the writing oversells what the measure really does. If formal proceedings are initiated, which historically has happened in less than one percent of cases handled by the commission, the proceedings become public. At present such proceedings are not public unless the proceeding concludes with a finding of misconduct and that recommendation for discipline is submitted to the Supreme Court. It would be much more clear to simply state exactly what Amendment H does: if a judicial misconduct case goes to a formal proceeding, such proceeding shall be public.

The second section

In the “yes” position, it states “creating an independent board.” What does independent mean? The board is not independent of the Colorado Supreme Court as the paragraph implies. The Supreme Court selects members of the adjudicative board. Although the referendum uses the word “independent” in its language, the word is nothing more than a catchphrase or marketing copy. It is inaccurate because the board is not independent of the Supreme Court.

What the referendum does is create a separate – as opposed to independent – panel to hear and decide judicial discipline cases. The current system can have the prosecution and adjudicative functions in the same office if the Commission does not request a panel of special masters. Amendment H changes that by requiring a separate panel.

Under Amendment H, the Supreme Court still selects members of the panel that hears cases. Therefore, the adjudicatory board does not reduce the Supreme Court's role in judicial discipline hearings. So, the “yes” position is inaccurate.

What a “yes” vote does is require a separate adjudicative panel to preside over judicial discipline proceedings. In regard to transparency, the measure will provide more information to the public only if a case proceeds to formal proceedings which, historically, happens in fewer than one percent of complaints with the commission. This statistic comes from the annual reports of the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline.

The “no” position is also inaccurate. If Amendment H is adopted, and in the current system, the Colorado Supreme Court selects judges who preside over judicial discipline hearings. Amendment H does not change that. Amendment H allows the governor to appoint some members of the adjudicatory board who end up on a hearing panel. A “no” vote means a separate adjudicatory panel will only be provided if the Commission requests one. The statement regarding confidentiality is also incorrect. Confidentiality currently ceases when the Commission recommends discipline to the Supreme Court. As it reads, the paragraph state discipline does not become public until the Supreme Court issues discipline. This is not correct.

Under the Summary and Analysis of Amendment H

What is judicial misconduct and discipline?

Lines 25-26 are too vague to be helpful to a voter. Judges can be disciplined if they violate the Code of judicial Conduct. What may seem unethical or what may seem to most people as something that discredits the courts may not actually be a violation of the Code. Line 30 is inaccurate and should be removed. The section should end on line 29 with a period after “privately.” The phrase “depending upon the seriousness of the misconduct” is not an accurate description of the law.

How are judicial discipline cases currently handled?

In line 33, the phrase “independent state agency” is used. It is inaccurate and should not be used by Legislative Council in its analysis. What does “independent” mean? It is misleading. The commission is not independent of the Supreme Court in any way, shape, or form. The Supreme Court selects judges to be on the Commission, writes the rules for the Commission, and ultimately what, if any, discipline is issued. The word “independent” should be removed.

Line 35 on page 1 through line 4 on page 2 are misleading the therefore very problematic. The description of the screening process is inaccurate. The Colorado Constitution does not provide for the screening of complaints as alleged in lines 32-34. Screening is created by a rule promulgated by the Supreme Court. A lot of complaints are dismissed in the controversial screening process of the commission. Often the complaints are dismissed by the executive director without involvement of the entire commission. And the basis used to dismiss complaints in the screening process are much more numerous than those stated. The statement regarding merit in line 36 is also misleading. A complaint can have merit, but if it's in a complaint related to an order or an action in court that could be appealed, it will be dismissed in the screening process. Likewise, the description regarding what the commission does is inaccurate and misleading. Private discipline can take different forms. And the description about what the commission does is grossly inaccurate, especially considering that this is what Amendment H is about. The pertinent section in the constitution reads as follows:

The commission may, after such investigation as it deems necessary, order informal remedial action; order a formal hearing to be held before it concerning the removal, retirement, suspension, censure, reprimand, or other discipline of a justice or a judge; or request the supreme court to appoint three special masters, who shall be justices or judges of courts of record, to hear and take evidence in any such matter and to report thereon to the commission.

Colo. Const., Art. IV, Sec. 23. Para (3)(e).

The same procedure in Amendment H, with a separate adjudicatory panel, can happen under present law. Current law says either the commission can proceed to a formal hearing and make its own ruling, or a separate panel can have a hearing and make the ruling if requested by the commission. In both instances, the Supreme Court appoints members to the adjudicatory panel. Under current law, the determination after hearing, if it recommends discipline, becomes a recommendation to the Supreme Court. Under Amendment H, the determination becomes final unless it is appealed to the Supreme Court. So how different is Amendment H from current law? It simply requires the separate panel, changes the membership of the panel, and requires an appeal to get to the Supreme Court. It's essentially the same system.

The statement that the forwarded cases are reviewed further and tried by judges appointed by the Colorado Supreme Court, on lines 1 and 2 of page 2, is simply not correct. It can happen that way under the current system, but it doesn't always happen that way. At this point, the Colorado Supreme Court can basically do whatever it wants, including dismiss the case. The last sentence of this section is also misleading. Current law is that until the commission files a recommendation with the Supreme Court, the proceedings are confidential. The statement written in the draft on lines 3 and 4 of page 2 is very misleading because it is vague and implies judges receive discipline. The phrase "when judges are publicly punished" is not correct. If it reads in this manner, which it should not, it should read "if" judges are publicly punished. The paragraph as written is very confusing and incorrect.

What changes does Amendment H make to the judicial discipline process?

Lines 6-16 on page 2 are incorrect, misleading, and need to be changed. Again, the word "independent" is used on lines 6, 8, 10, and in the chart in line 16. The word "independent" is a catchphrase or marketing term. The board is not independent of the Supreme Court, which is the improper selling tactic that is being attempted. The word "independent" should be removed from the draft analysis. It is not helpful. Amendment H replaces the current three special masters with an adjudicatory board. Lines 10-11 are incorrect because the Supreme Court reviews legal issues de novo.

This section is also confusing because it fails to describe the two appellate paths. In most instances an appeal of the adjudicatory panel's decision will be heard by the Colorado Supreme Court. If a complaint relates to a Supreme Court Justice, however, then an appeal is heard by a special tribunal comprised of six district court judges and a Court of Appeals judge.

The chart is misleading because it fails to show where the changes are in the system. Furthermore, the first two sections of the chart, from left to right, are not created for or provided for by Amendment H. Those two sections are created by current rules. If it is insisted that this particular chart be used, it should contain a separate circle, possibly half filled, to show that this is the way the system currently works. So, the first figure regarding screening would have a half-filled circle showing that this is currently the process. The second figure regarding full commission review would also have a half-circle. Under both Amendment H and current law the executive director can dismiss cases on his own without full involvement of the commission. The chart is misleading.

The third figure regarding the "independent" board is also allowed under current law. As stated above, the word "independent" should be removed. This third figure should also contain a half-circle. Amendment H requires, as opposed to allows, the separate panel and changes the membership of the panel which is not reflected in the chart. The figures in the 4th column, going left to right, are also misleading. The top box should be the Supreme Court for appeals. Below should be a box relating that a tribunal hears appeals that relate in any way to a Supreme Court Justice. The fifth column again improperly uses the word “independent.” The word should be removed and replaced with “adjudicatory.” Furthermore, the entire board does not hear an appeal. Only the panel of three would hear an appeal.

The current system works as this chart, only the Supreme Court would not remand a case back to a panel under current law. This chart is not helpful. It is misleading because it implies the current system does not work this way.

Page 3

The table on page three is problematic. What is missing from the beginning of this page is glaring. If comparing the current judicial discipline proceedings to Amendment H in this manner, it needs to be stated that complaints are still filed with the Commission on Judicial Discipline where they can be dismissed. Amendment H only changes judicial discipline if there are formal proceedings. Historically, formal proceedings have happened in less than one percent of cases filed with the commission. Actually, it's a fraction of that one percent. So, it needs to be made clear that Amendment H will affect very, very few cases. This should be stated in the first paragraph in this section.

Under the current first paragraph, “Formal Disciplinary Hearings” the Supreme Court appoints judges both currently and under Amendment H. Amendment H simply adds a lawyer and citizen appointed by the governor to a three-person panel. The three-person panel is selected from the entire adjudicatory board. The state court administrator, who is hired by and reports to the Supreme Court, puts the adjudicatory panel together for each case. This section is misleading because it makes it look like the Supreme Court isn't involved in the adjudicatory board or panel when the Supreme Court is still very much involved. The state court administrator is hired by and works for the Supreme Court.

The current second paragraph, “Discipline Cases Involving Colorado Supreme Court Justices” is also confusing and misleading. Under Amendment H the word “independent” is again used. As stated previously, that word is not helpful to voters and is misleading. Therefore, Legislative Council should refrain from using it for the language that ends up in the ballot book. Furthermore, a Supreme Court justice does not have to be the respondent in the judicial discipline hearing for this special tribunal to be used.

The current third paragraph, “Colorado Supreme Court Role,” is misleading and oversells Amendment H. The Colorado Supreme Court's role both currently and under Amendment H is limited to appeals. Under the current system, a judge can accept discipline at any time. Historically 97% of cases against judges are completely dismissed. This statistic is calculated from the annual reports of the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline. Of the remaining 3%, private discipline is most often issued which does not involve the Supreme Court. In other words, the current Commission issues discipline without Supreme Court involvement. Judges accept private and public discipline without the involvement of the Supreme Court.

Under current law, only if there are formal proceedings (the accused judge and the commission don't agree on discipline) which result in a recommendation of discipline does the matter get to the Supreme Court. Stating the Supreme Court is the "final arbiter" makes the Supreme Court sound much more involved in individual cases than it is. The Supreme Court's role under Amendment H is very similar. It has the ability to overturn the commission's finding both currently and under Amendment H. Saying the rules under Amendment H are established by an "independent body" is misleading. The Supreme Court appoints members of the rulemaking board. Again, the word "independent" should not be used. It is not helpful.

The "Public Access to Information" is also incorrect. Under current law, the proceedings become public when a recommendation is filed with the Supreme Court for discipline. Under Amendment H, the proceedings become public when formal disciplinary proceedings are commenced.

Why is Amendment H on the ballot?

This section should not be in the draft analysis. If it is included, it should relate the judicial scandal wherein a state court administrator and chief justice offered a contract to a former employee who was angry she was passed over for the state court administrator position. The employee threatened to expose acts of judges that should have been disciplined. The contract was offered as a way to shut her up. This was exposed and made news all around the state. The legislature felt forced to do something. But unfortunately, the legislature worked closely with the judicial branch. Supreme Court justices actively spoke out to ensure any changes would not harm them. The judicial branch, where judges are not term-limited like legislators, is very skilled and took advantage of legislators. The result is Amendment H along with other measures passed by the General Assembly. That's why H is on the ballot. What is written in the draft analysis does not explain why H is on the ballot, nor is it helpful in understanding what Amendment H does or whether voters should vote for it.

Furthermore, understanding the state court administrator's role as the impetus for Amendment H shows how Amendment H is truly a bad policy. Amendment H puts the state court administrator in control of who is on the adjudicatory panel to determine judicial discipline. The very position that was used corruptly is given more power in the judicial discipline process under Amendment H.

Argument For Amendment H

This paragraph is wrong, misleading, and not fair. It oversells Amendment H with its misleading language. The first sentence improperly leads the reader to believe H removes the direct influence of judges over the discipline process. It does not. It cannot even be argued that it does remove such influence. The Supreme Court appoints judges to the adjudicative board. The Supreme Court appoints members of the rulemaking committee. The Supreme Court appoints judges to the discipline commission. The argument that states what Amendment H aims to do is irrelevant and misleading because Amendment H fails to do what it allegedly aims to do – miserably. There is absolutely nothing in this paragraph related to what Amendment H actually does. It is irrelevant mumbo jumbo. The argument in the paragraph needs to state why the proposals in Amendment H should be adopted. The argument for should be revised to specifically address why the minimal changes proposed in Amendment H are worthy of a constitutional amendment.

Argument Against Amendment H

The current paragraph is not acceptable and is insulting to attorneys and citizens. The nomination and retention process is irrelevant to Amendment H. This paragraph is written to make people vote for Amendment H.

We propose the following argument against:

Amendment H makes minimal changes to the judicial discipline process when much more substantial change is needed. Having judges in roles on the discipline commission, on adjudicatory panels, and on the rulemaking board leaves too many conflicts of interest in the process. The current judicial discipline process does not work, and Amendment H will not make it work. History shows that the procedures in Amendment H affect less than one percent of complaints against judges and are not worthy of a constitutional amendment. If Amendment H passes, it will be almost impossible to obtain necessary reforms because legislators will allege they did the job with Amendment H. Empowering the state court administrator with a role in the judicial discipline process is a mistake.

Conclusion

Thank you for allowing us to comment regarding Amendment H. The draft analysis is so problematic, we are submitting our own analysis which is a rewrite of the draft analysis. It more clearly explains the current process and the effect Amendment H has on the process.

If you have any questions, please feel free to contact me.

Sincerely,

Chris Forsyth, Esq.
Executive Director
Phone: 303-892-3894
Email: cforsyth@judicialintegrity.org

Proposed draft analysis

Amendment H: Judicial Discipline Procedures and Confidentiality

Placed on the ballot by the legislature . Passes with 55 percent of the vote

Amendment H proposes Amending the Colorado Constitution to:

- require a separate panel from the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline to preside over ethical misconduct hearings involving judges: and
- make proceedings public if a judicial misconduct case goes to a formal proceeding.

What Your Vote Means

YES

A “yes” vote on Amendment H requires judicial discipline cases that proceed to a formal proceeding be decided by a panel separate from the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline. The Supreme Court and the governor select members of an adjudicatory board of judges, attorneys, and citizens from which three members are selected to hear a judicial discipline case. Formal proceedings in judicial discipline proceedings become public when they are commenced.

NO

A “no” vote on Amendment H means that the current system remains in place where the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline can preside over formal proceedings in a judicial discipline case or upon the commission’s request, the Supreme Court can select three special masters to determine a judicial discipline case. Formal proceedings in judicial discipline proceedings remain confidential unless a case is referred to the Supreme Court with a discipline recommendation.

Summary and Analysis of Amendment H

What is judicial misconduct and discipline?

Colorado judges must follow the Code of Judicial Conduct which is adopted by the Supreme Court. Judicial misconduct occurs when a judge violates the code. Any person may file a complaint with the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline alleging a judge violated the code. If a violation is found by the commission, the commission may recommend private or public discipline to which the accused judge may agree. If the judge does not agree, then the matter may proceed to formal proceedings.

How are judicial discipline cases currently handled?

The Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline receives complaints regarding judicial misconduct. Members of the commission are appointed by the Colorado Supreme Court and the governor. Pursuant to rule, a screening process is used to dismiss complaints for various reasons. If a case proceeds to the full commission, the commission may dismiss the complaint or proceed with an investigation. The Commission may issue private discipline. If a judge disagrees with the Commission’s stance regarding discipline, the matter may proceed to formal proceedings. Historically, this happens in less than one percent of cases filed with the Commission. The Commission may preside over formal proceedings or request that the Colorado Supreme Court select three special masters to preside over the case. If formal proceedings result in a finding of discipline, the matter is referred to the Supreme Court with a recommendation for discipline. Once a matter is referred to the Supreme Court, it becomes public. Only the supreme Court can discipline a judge against the judge’s will.

What changes does Amendment H make to the judicial discipline process?

If a judicial discipline case proceeds to formal proceedings, Amendment H requires the case to be heard by a panel separate from the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline. The Commission will only prosecute the case. The three-member panel that hears a case is selected by the state court administrator from an adjudicative board comprised of four district court judges appointed by the Supreme Court, and four attorneys and four citizens appointed by the governor. The three-member panel will consist of one judge, one attorney, and one citizen. The determination by the panel is considered final unless an appeal is filed. The Colorado Supreme Court would hear most appeals. If a case relates to a Supreme Court Justice, however, an appeal will be heard by a tribunal comprised of six district court judges, each from a different judicial district, and one Court of Appeals judge. If a judge does not appeal a panel’s determination, then the judge can be disciplined against the judge’s will without Supreme Court involvement.

The flow chart below summarizes how the discipline process would work if Amendment H passes.

Figure 1
Judicial Discipline Proceedings Under Amendment H

- X – This is the same procedure as current law
- O – complaint can be dismissed at these stages
- V – informal punishment can issue at these stages

Table 1Current Judicial Discipline Proceedings Compared to Amendment H

Current Judicial Discipline	Judicial Discipline Under Amendment H
Prior to Any Formal Disciplinary Hearing
Amendment H does not change the procedure before a formal disciplinary hearing. As shown by the annual reports of the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline, the vast majority of complaints (97%) filed with the Commission are dismissed by the Commission either through a screening process or through a vote of the entire commission. Of the remaining 3% of cases, most are resolved with private discipline. Less than one percent of cases filed with the Commission get to the point of formal proceedings. The procedures provided in Amendment H only apply if a case proceeds to formal proceedings.
Formal Disciplinary Hearings
Either the Commission on Judicial Discipline or a panel of three special masters selected by the Colorado Supreme Court preside over formal disciplinary hearings. If discipline is recommended, the recommendation is provided to the Supreme Court and the recommendation can be accepted, modified, or rejected.	A panel of three members (one judge, one lawyer, one citizen) preside over formal disciplinary hearings. The decision is final unless an appeal is filed. Most appeals will be heard by the Supreme Court. If a case relates to a Supreme Court justice, however, a tribunal of six district court judges and one Court of Appeals judge hear the appeal.
Public Access to Information
Judicial discipline proceedings are confidential until a recommendation for discipline is filed with the Supreme Court. Cases sometimes, however, can become public before this point. No publication of papers filed with or proceedings before the commission are privileged in any action for defamation except that the record filed by the Commission in the Supreme Court continues to be privileged.	Judicial discipline proceedings are confidential until the commencement of formal proceedings. Cases sometimes, however, can become public before this point. A person is immune from defamation based on papers filed or testimony given, but no other publication, such as a newspaper, has absolute immunity in any action for defamation filed by a judge.
Appointments
Commission members are appointed by the Colorado Supreme Court and the governor with consent of the Senate. Colorado Supreme Court appoints special master judges to hear discipline cases. The state court administrator selects judges for the panel that hears cases relating to Supreme Court justices.	Commission members and adjudicative board are appointed by the Colorado Supreme Court and the governor with Senate confirmation. The state court administrator selects from adjudicative board the panel members to hear cases. The state court administrator selects judges who serve on appeal panel if case relates to Supreme Court justice.

Rules
Supreme Court makes the rules regarding judicial discipline.	A rulemaking committee comprised of four members appointed by the Supreme Court, four members appointed by the adjudicative board, four members appointed by the Commission, and one victim's advocate appointed by the governor determine the rules regarding judicial discipline.

Arguments For Amendment H

Requiring a separate panel from the discipline commission to decide judicial discipline cases is an important change even though such process is allowed by current law. Allowing an attorney and a citizen to be on an adjudicatory panel along with a judge is an important change. Making the proceedings public when formal proceedings are commenced provides additional and sufficient transparency in the process. Amendment H is approved by the judicial branch and that is important because judges must approve their disciplinary process. The state court administrator should have an important role regarding the selection of who is placed on an adjudicatory panel. Judges should be involved in making the rules for the judicial discipline system.

Arguments Against Amendment H

Amendment H makes minimal changes to the judicial discipline process when much more substantial change is needed. Having judges in roles on the discipline commission, on adjudicatory panels, and on the rulemaking board leaves too many conflicts of interest in the process. The current judicial discipline process does not work, and Amendment H will not make it work. History shows that the procedures in Amendment H affect less than one percent of complaints against judges and are not worthy of a constitutional amendment. If Amendment H passes, it will be almost impossible to obtain necessary reforms because legislators will allege they did the job with Amendment H. Empowering the state court administrator with a role in the judicial discipline process is a mistake.

3rd Draft

Amendment H: Judicial Discipline Procedures and Confidentiality

Placed on the ballot by the legislature • Passes with 55 percent of the vote

1 Amendment H proposes amending the Colorado Constitution to:

- 2 • reduce the Colorado Supreme Court’s role and control over Colorado’s judicial discipline system;
- 23 • create an independent adjudicative board to preside over ethical misconduct
- 34 hearings involving judges; and
- 45 • allow for increased public access to judicial discipline proceedings and records.

56 What Your Vote Means

6 YES

7 A “yes” vote on Amendment H creates an
 8 independent adjudicative board made up
 9 of citizens, lawyers, and judges to conduct
 10 judicial misconduct hearings and impose
 11 disciplinary actions, reduces the Colorado
 Supreme Court’s role in judicial discipline,
 and allows more
 12 information to be shared earlier with the 13 public.

14 NO

15 A “no” vote on Amendment H means that
 16 a select panel of judges will continue to
 17 conduct judicial misconduct hearings and
 18 recommend disciplinary actions, and cases
 19 remain confidential unless public
 20 sanctions are ~~issued~~ recommended at the end of the 21 process.

Commented [CG1]: As reflected in the first draft of this Blue Book statement, the structural changes of Amendment H in reducing the Colorado Supreme Court’s ultimate control of the judicial discipline process and other aspects of it (i.e. absolute authority to appoint members of the Commission on Judicial Discipline and to conduct de novo review of disciplinary recommendations) is a critical part of what Amendment H does. Adding this bullet point seems essential to inform voters of the purpose of Amendment H.

Formatted: Font: Segoe UI

22 Summary and Analysis of Amendment H

23 What is judicial misconduct and discipline?

24 Colorado judges must follow a code of conduct. Judicial misconduct occurs when a judge
 25 acts unethically or in ways that diminish public confidence in the integrity of the courts.
 Misconduct
 26 complaints may include failure to perform judicial duties competently and diligently, abuse of the prestige of judicial office, improper demeanor, alcohol and drug use, conflicts of interest, 27 inappropriate communication, ~~and~~ mistreatment or harassment of staff, criminal or other unlawful conduct, dishonesty, and retaliation. Judges are prohibited from engaging in actual impropriety or even conduct that creates appearances of impropriety. Any person may file 28 a complaint, and judges found to have violated their ethical duties may be disciplined
 29 publicly or privately, depending upon the nature of the misconduct.

Commented [CG2]: The additional suggested language (also suggested as to the second draft) is important. Under the Code of Judicial Conduct, judges are held to a higher standard (i.e. preventing even appearances of impropriety) that is critical to understanding the meaning of “judicial misconduct.” Much of the public criticism raised during the Interim Committee process related to perceptions that judicial discipline should apply to judges’ decision making. In reality, the Code does allow for enforcement of misconduct that compromises a judge’s decisions (i.e. the judge’s failure to perform duties competently and diligently or retaliation that occurs against parties/attorneys).

3rd Draft

30 How are judicial discipline cases currently handled?

31 Pursuant to the Colorado Constitution, the Commission on Judicial Discipline (commission),
32 an independent judicial agency charged with investigating allegations of misconduct against 33 judges, screens and investigates complaints. Members of the commission are appointed by
34 the Colorado Supreme Court and the Governor. The screening process eliminates complaints
35 that are outside the commission's jurisdiction, such as those that ask to review a judge's
36 rulings or order new trials. The commission further investigates complaints when there is 37 sufficient evidence of misconduct.

3rd Draft

1 Thereafter, the commission can: dismiss the complaint, impose private discipline, hold an
 2 informal hearing, or ~~recommend-initiate~~ formal ~~hearingsproceedings~~. ~~The f~~Formal hearings are conducted by a
 3 panel of judges selected by the Colorado Supreme Court. When the hearing is over, the
 4 commission reviews the panel's findings and forwards disciplinary recommendations to the
 5 Colorado Supreme Court for a final determination. Misconduct cases are made public ~~only if~~
 65 ~~a judge receives a public punishment order at the end of the process upon the commission~~
~~filing its recommendation for public discipline and its record of proceedings~~. Complaints
~~and that result in~~
 76 ~~informal punishments may not beare not shared with the persons who filed the complaints~~
~~ordisclosed to~~ the
 87 general public.

Commented [CG3]: This statement is inaccurate. By recommending a public sanction, the commission currently determines whether discipline is made public (regardless of whether the Colorado Supreme Court ultimately rejects the commission's recommendation).

98 What changes does Amendment H make to the judicial discipline process?

109 Amendment H creates the Independent Judicial Discipline Adjudicative Board (adjudicative
 110 board) to preside over judicial discipline hearings and impose sanctions. The adjudicative
 1211 board consists of four district court judges, four attorneys, and four citizens appointed by 1312 the Colorado Supreme Court and the Governor. The new board's decisions are considered
 1413 final unless there is proof of a legal or factual error upon appeal to the Colorado Supreme
 1514 Court. If an appeal involves a Colorado Supreme Court justice, it is heard by a tribunal made
 16 up of randomly selected appellate and district court judges. Formal disciplinary charges against judges will become public upon filing with the disciplinary hearing and other proceedings also open to the public.
 1715 ~~are also made public at the beginning of the hearing.~~

Formatted: Left, Indent: Hanging: 0.42", Line spacing: Exactly 13.2 pt

1816 Figure 1 below summarizes the new discipline process.

1917 Figure 1
 2018 Judicial Discipline Flow Chart

Commented [CG4]: "reviews" should be stricken from the third arrow. The adjudicatory panel (like a trial court) will hear the disciplinary case. The Colorado Supreme Court or the Special Tribunal will "review" the adjudicatory panel's decision on appeal. It is probably simpler to combine the arrows for the CSC / ST appellate review, too. I suggest: "Appellate review by Supreme Court or Special Tribunal"

2119 Table 1 compares current practices with those proposed in Amendment H.

3rd Draft

1
2

Table 1
Current Judicial Discipline Proceedings Compared to Amendment H

Current Judicial Discipline	Judicial Discipline Under Amendment H
Formal Disciplinary Hearings
Judges selected by the Colorado Supreme Court hear cases and make disciplinary recommendations to the Colorado Supreme Court for final discipline ruling.	The independent adjudicative board, made up of an equal number of attorneys, judges, and citizens, conducts judicial discipline hearings and makes the final discipline ruling.
Independent Tribunals
In cases involving a Colorado Supreme Court justice, their family members, or staff, the entire Colorado Supreme Court must disqualify themselves and be replaced with a tribunal composed of seven randomly selected Colorado Court of Appeals judges. The tribunal hears the case and is the final decision-maker on sanctions.	The tribunal is composed of randomly selected District and Appeal Court judges representing different districts and only hears Colorado Supreme Court justice-related appeals.
Colorado Supreme Court Role
The Colorado Supreme Court is the final arbiter of cases after receiving disciplinary recommendations and makes rules about the process.	Colorado Supreme Court role is limited to appointments and appeals. Rules for the process are established by an independent committee.
Public Access to Information
Formal judicial disciplinary hearings are held privately until the commission files a formal recommendation for public sanctions with the Colorado Supreme Court.	The proceedings against a judge and the related record become public when formal charges are filed.
Appointments
Commission members are appointed by the Colorado Supreme Court and the Governor with Senate confirmation. Colorado Supreme Court appoints special master judges to hear discipline cases. The State Court Administrator randomly selects judges for the tribunal in cases where the Colorado Supreme Court is disqualified.	Commission members and the new adjudicative board are appointed by the Colorado Supreme Court and the Governor with Senate confirmation. The State Court Administrator randomly selects Court of Appeals and District Court judges for the tribunal to hear Colorado Supreme Court related appeals.

3 Why is Amendment H on the ballot?

4 Following passage of Senate Bill 22-201, the bi-partisan Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline held a series of public hearings to evaluate and propose reforms to Colorado's judicial disciplinary system. The hearings included extensive engagement with experts,

3rd Draft

~~stakeholders, and the general public. After extensive hearings about the judicial discipline~~
~~With recommendations and draft legislation from the Interim Committee~~ process, the Colorado legislature

5 passed three bipartisan bills in 2023 that change judicial discipline procedures and

Commented [CG5]: The thoroughness and deliberation that occurred through the 2022 Legislative Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline is perhaps the strongest argument for why Amendment H is good legislation and reflects sincere engagement with the public / voters to improve Colorado's governmental systems/structure.

3rd Draft

1 workplace culture, including Amendment H. Because this amendment would change
2 Colorado’s constitutional provisions on judicial discipline, it requires voter approval to
3 become law. The other two bills address confidentiality, complaint filing and reporting, and
4 data collection, as well as creating a new office to assist judicial employees with workplace
5 and other complaints.

For information on those issue committees that support or oppose the measures on the ballot at the November 5, 2024, election, go to the Colorado Secretary of State’s elections center web site hyperlink for ballot and initiative information:

<https://coloradosos.gov/pubs/elections/Initiatives/InitiativesHome.html>

6 Argument For Amendment H

7 1) Colorado judges should not have direct influence and oversight over the discipline of
8 their colleagues. Amendment H is an important change that aims to enhance the 9 transparency, integrity, and independence of the judicial discipline process. Historically,
10 judicial discipline has largely been self-regulated, facing challenges in oversight and 11 self-protection. This amendment serves to enhance public confidence and trust in the 12 courts. Finally, this measure is a compromise recommended ~~by nearly all members~~ ~~of~~ unanimously by the
13 General Assembly and formally by the Judicial Branch.

Commented [CG6]: It is critical to emphasize that HCR 23-1001 passed both Houses unanimously on its Third Reading. I am unaware of other constitutional amendments with similar universal support.

14 Argument Against Amendment H

15 1) The current system works. Judges understand how to review cases, hold hearings, and 16 make impartial and hard decisions. As a result, they are well suited to hear judicial 17 discipline cases. The amendment transfers this authority to attorneys and citizens, who 18 cannot fully understand judicial ethics and the unique challenges of being a judge. The 19 judiciary’s existing system of checks and balances, such as nomination and retention
20 elections, ensures only the best become and remain judges.

21 Fiscal Impact of Amendment H

22 State spending. The measure will increase state costs by about $50,000 per year. This
23 funding provides compensation and training to members of the newly created judicial 24 discipline board and rulemaking committee.

3rd Draft

Amendment H: Judicial Discipline Procedures and Confidentiality

Placed on the ballot by the legislature • Passes with 55 percent of the vote

1 Amendment H proposes amending the Colorado Constitution to:

- 2 • create an independent adjudicative board to preside over ethical misconduct
- 3 hearings involving judges; and
- 4 • allow for increased public access to judicial discipline proceedings and records.

5 What Your Vote Means

6 YES

7 A “yes” vote on Amendment H creates an
8 independent adjudicative board made up
9 of citizens, lawyers, and judges to conduct
10 judicial misconduct hearings and impose
11 disciplinary actions, and allows more
12 information to be shared earlier with the 13 public.

14 NO

15 A “no” vote on Amendment H means that
16 a select panel of judges will continue to
17 conduct judicial misconduct hearings and
18 recommend disciplinary actions, and cases
19 remain confidential unless public
20 sanctions are issued at the end of the 21 process.

22 Summary and Analysis of Amendment H

23 What is judicial misconduct and discipline?

24 Colorado judges must follow a code of conduct. Judicial misconduct occurs when a judge
25 acts unethically or in ways that diminish public confidence in the courts. Misconduct
26 complaints may include improper demeanor, alcohol and drug use, conflicts of interest,
27 inappropriate communication, and mistreatment or harassment of staff. Any person may file
28 a complaint, and judges found to have violated their ethical duties may be disciplined
29 publicly or privately, depending upon the nature of the misconduct.

30 How are judicial discipline cases currently handled?

31 Pursuant to the Colorado Constitution, the Commission on Judicial Discipline (commission),
32 an independent judicial agency charged with investigating allegations of misconduct against 33 judges, screens and investigates complaints. Members of the commission are appointed by
34 the Colorado Supreme Court and the Governor. The screening process eliminates complaints
35 that are outside the commission’s jurisdiction, such as those that ask to review a judge’s
36 rulings or order new trials. The commission further investigates complaints when there is 37 sufficient evidence of misconduct.

3rd Draft

1 Thereafter, the commission can: dismiss the complaint, impose private discipline, hold an
 2 informal hearing, or recommend formal hearings. The formal hearings are conducted by a
 3 panel of judges selected by the Colorado Supreme Court. When the hearing is over, the
 4 commission reviews the panel's findings and forwards disciplinary recommendations to the
 5 Colorado Supreme Court for a final determination. Misconduct cases are made public only if
 6 a judge receives a public punishment order at the end of the process. Complaints and
 7 informal punishments may not be shared with the persons who filed the complaints or the 8 general public.

9 What changes does Amendment H make to the judicial discipline process?

10 Amendment H creates the Independent Judicial Discipline Adjudicative Board (adjudicative
 11 board) to preside over judicial discipline hearings and impose sanctions. The adjudicative
 12 board consists of four district court judges, four attorneys, and four citizens appointed by 13 the Colorado Supreme Court and the Governor. The new board's decisions are considered
 14 final unless there is proof of a legal or factual error upon appeal to the Colorado Supreme
 15 Court. If an appeal involves a Colorado Supreme Court justice, it is heard by a tribunal made
 16 up of randomly selected appellate and district court judges. Formal charges against judges
 17 are also made public at the beginning of the hearing.

18 Figure 1 below summarizes the new discipline process.

19 20

Figure 1
Judicial Discipline Flow Chart

21 Table 1 compares current practices with those proposed in Amendment H.

3rd Draft

1
2

Table 1
Current Judicial Discipline Proceedings Compared to Amendment H

Current Judicial Discipline	Judicial Discipline Under Amendment H
Formal Disciplinary Hearings
Judges selected by the Colorado Supreme Court hear cases and make disciplinary recommendations to the Colorado Supreme Court for final discipline ruling.	The independent adjudicative board, made up of an equal number of attorneys, judges, and citizens, conducts judicial discipline hearings and makes final discipline ruling.
Independent Tribunals
In cases involving a Colorado Supreme Court justice, their family members, or staff, the entire Colorado Supreme Court must disqualify themselves and be replaced with a tribunal composed of seven randomly selected Colorado Court of Appeals judges. The tribunal hears the case and is the final decision-maker on sanctions.	The tribunal is composed of randomly selected District and Appeal Court judges representing different districts and only hears Colorado Supreme Court justice-related appeals.
Colorado Supreme Court Role
The Colorado Supreme Court is the final arbiter of cases after receiving disciplinary recommendations and makes rules about the process.	Colorado Supreme Court role is limited to appointments and appeals. Rules for the process are established by an independent committee.
Public Access to Information
Formal judicial disciplinary hearings are held privately until the commission files a formal recommendation for public sanctions with the Colorado Supreme Court.	The proceedings against a judge and the related record become public when formal charges are filed.
Appointments
Commission members are appointed by the Colorado Supreme Court and the Governor with Senate confirmation. Colorado Supreme Court appoints special master judges to hear discipline cases. The State Court Administrator randomly selects judges for the tribunal in cases where the Colorado Supreme Court is disqualified.	Commission members and the new adjudicative board are appointed by the Colorado Supreme Court and the Governor with Senate confirmation. The State Court Administrator randomly selects Court of Appeals and District Court judges for the tribunal to hear Colorado Supreme Court related appeals.

3
4
5

Why is Amendment H on the ballot?

After extensive hearings about the judicial discipline process, the Colorado legislature passed three bipartisan bills in 2023 that change judicial discipline procedures and

3rd Draft

- 1 workplace culture, including Amendment H. Because this amendment would change
 2 Colorado's constitutional provisions on judicial discipline, it requires voter approval to
 3 become law. The other two bills address confidentiality, complaint filing and reporting, and
 4 data collection, as well as creating a new office to assist judicial employees with workplace
 5 and other complaints.

For information on those issue committees that support or oppose the measures on the ballot at the November 5, 2024, election, go to the Colorado Secretary of State's elections center web site hyperlink for ballot and initiative information:

<https://coloradosos.gov/pubs/elections/Initiatives/InitiativesHome.html>

6 Argument For Amendment H

- 7 1) ~~Colorado judges should not have direct influence and oversight over the discipline of~~
~~8 their colleagues.~~ Amendment H is an important change that aims to enhance the 9 transparency, integrity, and independence of the judicial discipline process by creating an independent adjudicative board to preside over judicial discipline proceedings and increasing information available to the public about judicial discipline proceedings. ~~Historically,~~ ~~10 judicial discipline has largely been self-regulated, facing challenges in oversight and~~
~~11 self-protection.~~ This amendment serves to enhance public confidence and trust in the 12 courts. Finally, this measure is a compromise recommended by nearly all members of the 13 General Assembly and formally by the Judicial Branch.

Formatted: Space Before: 4.3 pt, Line spacing: Exactly 13.85 pt, Tab stops: 0.45", Left + Not at 0.7"

14 Argument Against Amendment H

- 15 1) ~~The current system works.~~ Judges ~~understand how to~~ have experience in reviewing cases, 16 holding hearings, and making impartial and hard decisions. As a result, they ~~are well-suited~~ have the experience needed to hear judicial
 17 discipline cases. The amendment transfers this authority to attorneys and citizens, ~~who~~
~~18 cannot fully understand judicial ethics and the unique challenges of being a judge.~~ The 19 ~~judiciary's~~ existing system of checks and balances, such as nomination and retention
 20 elections, ~~ensures only the best governs who~~ becomes and remains judges. The system has been in place for a long time and is based on the Colorado Constitution. Changing the Constitution is a complex process and cannot easily be undone if the new process does not work as intended.

Commented [MC1]: This recommended change goes back to the primary features of Amendment H – creating an independent adjudicative board and increasing information available to the public.

21 Fiscal Impact of Amendment H

- 22 State spending. The measure will increase state costs by about $50,000 per year. This
 23 funding provides compensation and training to members of the newly created judicial
 24 discipline board and rulemaking committee.

Commented [MC2]: The recommended language emphasizes that voters are being asked to change the Colorado Constitution, which should be thoughtfully undertaken.

Amendment H
Judicial Discipline Procedures and Confidentiality
Contact List

Interested Party	Organization Name	Email Address
Amadia Al-Amin	House Majority	amadia.alamin.house@gmail.com
COLE ANDERSON	Common Sense Institute	cole@csinstitute.org
Joshua Barnett		eoval75@gmail.com
Michael Beasley	5280 Strategies	mike@5280strategies.com
Kaitlin Begin	Colorado House Majority Office	kaitlin.begin.house@gmail.com
Angie Binder		angiebinder@msn.com
Gary and Annette Budd		annettelbudd@gmail.com
Jim Carpenter	Commission on Judicial Discipline	jimcarpenter.colorado@gmail.com
Bronwen Cartwright		bronwen.cartwright.house@gmail.com
Terry Carver		repcarver20@gmail.com
NATALIE CASTLE		natalie.castle@coleg.gov
Marilyn Chappell	Colorado Judicial Institute	mchappell@grsm.com
Onnastasia Cole		onnastasia@ccasa.org
Soledad Diaz	Violence Free Colorado	sdiaz@violencefreeco.org
Mallory Feeney	House Dems	mallory.feeney.house@gmail.com
Luanne Fleming	FACEUS	faceusradio@hotmail.com
Chris Forsyth	The Judicial Integrity Project	cforsyth@judicialintegrity.org
Logan Fry	Brownstein Hyatt Farber Schreck	lfry@bhfs.com
Cory Gaines	CTG	corytgaines@gmail.com
Erik Gamm	Common Sense Institute	erik@csinstitute.org
Bob Gardner	Colorado State Senate	senbobgardner@comcast.net
Christopher Gregory	The Gregory Law Firm, LLC	cspgregory@thegregorylawfirm.net
Kathryn Hallahan		kthhllhn@gmail.com
kimberly hanson		kimberlyjane1603@gmail.com
Kiera Hatton	Cobalt	kiera@cobaltadvocates.org
BallotAccount HCR23-1001		judicialdiscipline2024@coleg.gov
Alex Jordan	Larimer County Government	jordanac@co.larimer.co.us
James Karbach	Office of the Colorado State Public Defender	james.karbach@coloradodefenders.us
Suzanne Keim		suzanne.keim@coleg.gov
Cathy Kipp	Colorado House of Representatives	cathykipp52@gmail.com
Katie Kolupke	LCS	katie.kolupke@coleg.gov
Rebecca Kourlis		rlkourlis@gmail.com
Andrea Kuwik		kuwik@bellpolicy.org
Pete Lee	Retired	PeteLeeColorado@gmail.com
Deborah Lively	LeadingAge Colorado	deborah@leadingagecolorado.org
Meghan MacKillop	Nexus Policy Group	meghan@nexuspolicygroup.com

Amendment H
Judicial Discipline Procedures and Confidentiality
Contact List (Cont.)

Interested Party	Organization Name	Email Address
Anne Mangiardi	Commission on Judicial Discipline	amangiardi@jd.state.co.us
Rich Mauro	Denver Regional Council of Governments	rmpeoplespalate@gmail.com
Sophia Mayott-Guerrero	ACLU-CO	smayott-guerrero@aclu-co.org
Jean McAllister	JGM Consulting, LLC	jeangmcallister@aol.com
N Menten	self on some issues (also a board director for the Taxpayer's Bill of Rights Foundation)	coloradoengaged@gmail.com
Erin Meschke	none	mrs_meschke@hotmail.com
Kurt Morrison	Office of the Attorney General	kurtis.morrison@coag.gov
Josh Murphy	Colorado Office of Public Guardianship	josh.murphy@colorado-opg.org
Elizabeth Newman		elizabeth@ccasa.org
Cynthia Ophaug-Johansen	www.ColoradoJudicialInstitute.org	cynthia@coloradojudicialinstitute.org
chae park		chae@slpublicaffairs.com
Catherine Perrone	League of Women Voters	lwvcovote411@gmail.com
David Prince	Colorado Judiciary and formerly of the Colo Commission on Judicial Discipline	david.prince@judicial.state.co.us
David Prince	Colorado Judiciary and formerly of the Colo Commission on Judicial Discipline	shaunadavid@msn.com
Frances Rinard	Splash 2.0/Na/wab3 blackchane Facebook mata	rinardfrances@yahoo.com
Anaya Robinson	ACLU of CO	arobinson@aclu-co.org
Nancy Rodgers	City and County of Broomfield	nrodgers@broomfield.org
Alec Romero		alec@capitolsuccess.com
Jeff Rupp	Colorado Judicial Institute	jeffrupp66@gmail.com
Jeff Rupp	Colorado Judicial Institute	jeff@coloradojudicialinstitute.org
Sonia Russo	None	soniarusso09@gmail.com
Bennett Rutledge	Colorado by Consent of the Governed	rutledges@peoplepc.com
Stacy Sager	Temu	stacysager80@gmail.com
Feliz Sanchez Garcia	CO House Dems	feliz.sanchezgarcia.house@gmail.com
Paula Sarlls	Paula Sarlls	paulasarlls@comcast.net
Terry Scanlon		terry.scanlon@judicial.state.co.us
David Schultheis	Self	dave@schultheisforcolorado.com
Jeremy Schupbach	Colorado Municipal League	jschupbach@cml.org
Cat Simons		csimons1995@gmail.com
Ken Sparks	HopeChest.org	ken.sparks.co@gmail.com
Kim Sporrer	Colorado Women's Bar Association	execdir@cwba.org
Brett Stewart	City of Loveland	brett.stewart@cityofloveland.org

Amendment H
Judicial Discipline Procedures and Confidentiality
Contact List (Cont.)

Interested Party	Organization Name	Email Address
David Stiver	Team Strategy Inc.	team@teamstrategy.org
Courtney Sutton	COVA	courtney@coloradocrimevictims.org
Mark Turner	Colorado Department of Human Services	mark.turner@state.co.us
Rosemary Van Gorder		rosevango50@gmail.com
Brittany Vessely	Colorado Catholic Conference	bvessely@cocatholic.org
Anne Wallace		anne.wallace@denvergov.org
Jeff Walsh	Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline	j.walsh@jd.state.co.us
Carol Ward	Self	cjward_11@comcast.net
Geoff Withers	League of Women Voters Colorado	geoff@gwithers.com keyonnavolunteerautism@yahoo.com dmvanewsletter@gmail.com conrad.imel@coleg.gov jsamano@aclu-co.org
Ken		ken@dreamofgolf.com

Amendment H Judicial Discipline Procedures and Confidentiality

1 Ballot Title:

2 Shall there be an amendment to the Colorado constitution concerning judicial discipline, and, in connection
3 therewith, establishing an independent judicial discipline adjudicative board, setting standards for judicial review
4 of a discipline case, and clarifying when discipline proceedings become public?

5 Text of Measure:

6 Be It Resolved by the House of Representatives of the Seventy-fourth General Assembly of the State of Colorado, the 7 Senate concurring herein:

8 SECTION 1. At the election held on November 5, 2024, the secretary of state shall submit to the registered
9 electors of the state the ballot title set forth in section 2 for the following amendment to the state constitution:

10 In the constitution of the state of Colorado, section 23 of article VI, amend (3)(a), (3)(e), (3)(f), (3)(g), and (3)(h);
11 and add (3)(c.5) and (3)(k) as follows:

12 Section 23. Retirement and removal of justices and judges. (3) (a) There shall be a commission on judicial 13 discipline. It shall consist of: Two judges of district courts and two judges of county courts, each selected by the 14 supreme court, AS PROVIDED BY LAW; two citizens admitted to practice law in the courts of this state, neither of 15 whom shall be a justice or judge, who shall have practiced in this state for at least ten years and who shall be 16 appointed by the governor, with the consent of the senate; and four citizens, none of whom shall be a justice or 17 judge, active or retired, nor admitted to practice law in the courts of this state, who shall be appointed by the 18 governor, with the consent of the senate. AN APPOINTING AUTHORITY SHALL NOT APPOINT A MEMBER OF THE INDEPENDENT
19 JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE ADJUDICATIVE BOARD ESTABLISHED IN SUBSECTION (3)(c.5) OF THIS SECTION TO THE COMMISSION.

20 (c.5) (I) THERE IS CREATED THE INDEPENDENT JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE ADJUDICATIVE BOARD AS AN INDEPENDENT AGENCY WITHIN THE
21 JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT. THE ADJUDICATIVE BOARD SHALL CONDUCT FORMAL JUDICIAL DISCIPLINARY PROCEEDINGS. THE ADJUDICATIVE
22 BOARD ALSO SHALL HEAR APPEALS OF THE COMMISSION'S ORDERS OF INFORMAL REMEDIAL ACTION. APPEALS TO THE ADJUDICATIVE
23 BOARD ARE CONFIDENTIAL. THE ADJUDICATIVE BOARD CONSISTS OF FOUR DISTRICT COURT JUDGES WITHOUT ANY JUDICIAL OR ATTORNEY
24 DISCIPLINARY HISTORY, APPOINTED BY THE SUPREME COURT; FOUR ATTORNEYS WITHOUT ANY JUDICIAL OR ATTORNEY DISCIPLINARY 25 HISTORY WHO ARE LICENSED TO PRACTICE LAW IN COLORADO AND WHO RESIDE IN COLORADO, APPOINTED BY THE GOVERNOR AND 26 CONFIRMED BY THE SENATE; AND FOUR CITIZENS WHO ARE NOT JUDGES OR ATTORNEYS LICENSED TO PRACTICE LAW IN COLORADO, 27 APPOINTED BY THE GOVERNOR AND CONFIRMED BY THE SENATE. AN APPOINTING AUTHORITY SHALL NOT APPOINT A MEMBER OF THE
28 COMMISSION TO THE ADJUDICATIVE BOARD. FOR THE PURPOSE OF STAGGERING TERMS, WHEN MAKING THE INITIAL APPOINTMENTS TO 29 THE ADJUDICATIVE BOARD, THE APPOINTING AUTHORITY SHALL DESIGNATE TWO MEMBERS FROM EACH CATEGORY TO A FIVE-YEAR TERM
30 AND TWO MEMBERS FROM EACH CATEGORY TO A THREE-YEAR TERM. ALL SUBSEQUENT APPOINTMENTS ARE FOR A TERM OF FIVE YEARS;
31 EXCEPT THAT IN THE EVENT OF A VACANCY ON THE ADJUDICATIVE BOARD, THE ORIGINAL APPOINTING AUTHORITY SHALL APPOINT, IN THE 32 SAME MANNER AS AN ORIGINAL APPOINTMENT, A REPLACEMENT TO SERVE THE REMAINDER OF THE TERM.

33 (II) UPON ORDER OF A FORMAL HEARING PURSUANT TO SUBSECTION (3)(e) OF THIS SECTION, A PANEL OF THE ADJUDICATIVE BOARD
34 SHALL CONVENE TO CONDUCT THE HEARING. A PANEL CONSISTS OF ONE JUDGE, ONE ATTORNEY LICENSED TO PRACTICE LAW IN 35 COLORADO, AND ONE CITIZEN. THE STATE COURT ADMINISTRATOR, OR THE ADMINISTRATOR'S DESIGNEE, SHALL RANDOMLY SELECT THE 36 PANEL FROM AMONG THE ADJUDICATIVE BOARD'S MEMBERSHIP. THE RANDOM SELECTION OF A PANEL IS A PURELY ADMINISTRATIVE 37 FUNCTION.

38 (e) (I) The commission may, after such investigation as it deems necessary, DISMISS A COMPLAINT, order informal
39 remedial action, OR order a formal hearing to be held before ~~it~~ A PANEL OF THE ADJUDICATIVE BOARD concerning the 40 removal, retirement, suspension, censure, reprimand, or other discipline of a justice or a judge. ~~or request the~~
41 ~~supreme court to appoint three special masters, who shall be justices or judges of courts of record, to hear and~~
42 ~~take evidence in any such matter and to report thereon to the commission.~~ THE RESPONDENT JUSTICE OR JUDGE MAY 43 APPEAL THE COMMISSION'S ORDER FOR INFORMAL REMEDIAL ACTION TO A PANEL OF THE ADJUDICATIVE BOARD. THE ADJUDICATIVE PANEL
44 SHALL REVIEW THE COMMISSION'S INFORMAL REMEDIAL ACTION ORDER FOR ABUSE OF DISCRETION. AN APPEAL OF AN INFORMAL
45 REMEDIAL ACTION ORDER IS CONFIDENTIAL CONSISTENT WITH SUBSECTION (3)(g) OF THIS SECTION.

46 (II) After a formal hearing, ~~or after considering the record and report of the masters, if the commission finds good~~
47 ~~cause therefor, it~~ THE ADJUDICATIVE PANEL may DISMISS THE CHARGES BEFORE IT; take informal remedial action; or ~~it may~~ 48 ~~recommend to the supreme court~~ ORDER the removal, retirement, suspension, censure, reprimand, or OTHER
49 discipline, as the case may be, of the justice or judge. The ~~commission~~ ADJUDICATIVE PANEL may also ~~recommend~~
50 ORDER that the costs of ~~its~~ THE investigation and hearing be assessed against such justice or judge. THE JUSTICE OR
51 JUDGE MAY APPEAL AN ADJUDICATIVE PANEL'S DISCIPLINARY ORDER, AND THE COMMISSION MAY APPEAL AN ADJUDICATIVE PANEL'S
52 DISMISSAL OR DISCIPLINARY ORDER, TO THE SUPREME COURT OR, WHEN THE CIRCUMSTANCES DESCRIBED IN SUBSECTION (3)(f)(II) OF 53 THIS SECTION ARE PRESENT, TO THE TRIBUNAL DESCRIBED IN SUBSECTION (3)(f)(II) OF THIS SECTION.

54 (f) (I) ~~Following receipt of a recommendation from the commission, the supreme court shall review the record of~~
55 ~~the proceedings on the law and facts and in its discretion may permit the introduction of additional evidence and~~
56 ~~shall order~~ ON APPEAL OF AN ADJUDICATIVE PANEL'S ORDER FOR removal, retirement, suspension, censure, reprimand, or 57 OTHER discipline, ~~as it finds just and proper, or wholly reject the recommendation~~ OR A PANEL'S DISMISSAL OF CHARGES,
58 THE SUPREME COURT, OR THE TRIBUNAL DESCRIBED IN SUBSECTION (3)(f)(II) OF THIS SECTION IF THE TRIBUNAL IS HEARING THE APPEAL, 59 SHALL REVIEW THE RECORD OF THE PROCEEDINGS ON THE LAW AND FACTS. WHEN REVIEWING THE ADJUDICATIVE PANEL'S DECISION, THE
60 SUPREME COURT SHALL REVIEW MATTERS OF LAW DE NOVO, REVIEW FACTUAL MATTERS TO DETERMINE WHETHER THE ADJUDICATIVE
61 PANEL'S DETERMINATION IS CLEARLY ERRONEOUS, AND REVIEW ANY SANCTIONS IMPOSED BY THE ADJUDICATIVE PANEL FOR ABUSE OF 62 DISCRETION. ~~Upon an order for retirement, the justice or judge shall thereby be retired with the same rights and~~
63 ~~privileges as if he retired pursuant to statute. Upon an order for removal, the justice or judge shall thereby be~~
64 ~~removed from office, and his salary shall cease from the date of such order. On the entry of an order for~~
65 ~~retirement or for removal of a judge, his office shall be deemed vacant.~~

66 (II) IN PROCEEDINGS IN WHICH THE CIRCUMSTANCES DESCRIBED IN THIS SUBSECTION (3)(f)(II) ARE PRESENT, A TRIBUNAL COMPRISED OF 67 SEVEN JUDGES OF THE COURT OF APPEALS AND DISTRICT COURT SHALL REVIEW THE DECISION OF THE ADJUDICATIVE PANEL OR HEAR ANY 68 OTHER APPEAL IN THE SAME MANNER AND USE THE SAME STANDARDS OF REVIEW AS THE SUPREME COURT WHEN IT REVIEWS DECISIONS
69 AND HEARS APPEALS AS DESCRIBED IN SUBSECTION (3)(f)(I) OF THIS SECTION. THE STATE COURT ADMINISTRATOR, OR THE 70 ADMINISTRATOR'S DESIGNEE, SHALL RANDOMLY SELECT MEMBERS OF THE TRIBUNAL FROM AMONG ALL DISTRICT JUDGES AND COURT OF 71 APPEALS JUDGES WHO DO NOT HAVE A CURRENT DISCIPLINARY INVESTIGATION OR PROCEEDING PENDING BEFORE THE COMMISSION OR 72 ADJUDICATIVE BOARD; HAVE NOT RECEIVED A DISCIPLINARY SANCTION FROM THE COMMISSION, ADJUDICATIVE BOARD, OR SUPREME
73 COURT; AND ARE NOT OTHERWISE REQUIRED BY LAW, COURT RULE, OR JUDICIAL CANON TO RECUSE THEMSELVES FROM THE TRIBUNAL. A
74 TRIBUNAL MUST NOT INCLUDE MORE THAN ONE MEMBER WHO IS A COURT OF APPEALS JUDGE AND NOT MORE THAN ONE DISTRICT JUDGE
75 FROM ANY ONE JUDICIAL DISTRICT. THE RANDOM SELECTION OF TRIBUNAL MEMBERS IS A PURELY ADMINISTRATIVE FUNCTION. THE 76 TRIBUNAL SHALL REVIEW DECISIONS AND HEAR ANY OTHER APPEALS IN THE FOLLOWING CIRCUMSTANCES:

77 (A) WHEN THE PROCEEDINGS INVOLVE A COMPLAINT AGAINST A COLORADO SUPREME COURT JUSTICE;

78 (B) WHEN A COLORADO SUPREME COURT JUSTICE IS A COMPLAINANT OR A MATERIAL WITNESS IN THE PROCEEDING;

79 (C) WHEN A STAFF MEMBER TO A COLORADO SUPREME COURT JUSTICE IS A COMPLAINANT OR MATERIAL WITNESS IN THE PROCEEDING;

80 (D) WHEN A FAMILY MEMBER OF A COLORADO SUPREME COURT JUSTICE IS A COMPLAINANT OR MATERIAL WITNESS IN THE PROCEEDING; 81 OR

82 (E) WHEN ANY OTHER CIRCUMSTANCES EXIST DUE TO WHICH MORE THAN TWO COLORADO SUPREME COURT JUSTICES HAVE RECUSED
83 THEMSELVES FROM THE PROCEEDING,

84 (III) UPON A DETERMINATION THAT A SANCTION IMPOSED BY THE ADJUDICATIVE PANEL IS AN ABUSE OF DISCRETION, THE SUPREME COURT
85 OR, IF APPLICABLE, THE TRIBUNAL, SHALL REMAND THE PROCEEDINGS TO THE PANEL THAT IMPOSED THE SANCTION WITH DIRECTIONS THE 86 COURT OR TRIBUNAL DEEMS NECESSARY.

87 (IV) UPON AN ORDER FOR RETIREMENT, THE JUSTICE OR JUDGE IS RETIRED WITH THE SAME RIGHTS AND PRIVILEGES AS IF THE JUSTICE OR
88 JUDGE RETIRED PURSUANT TO STATUTE. UPON AN ORDER FOR REMOVAL, THE JUSTICE OR JUDGE IS REMOVED FROM OFFICE AND THE 89 JUSTICE'S OR JUDGE'S SALARY CEASES FROM THE DATE OF THE ORDER. ON THE ENTRY OF AN ORDER FOR RETIREMENT OR FOR REMOVAL OF 90 A JUSTICE OR JUDGE, THE JUSTICE'S OR JUDGE'S OFFICE IS DEEMED VACANT.

91 (g) (I) ~~Prior to the filing of a recommendation to the supreme court by the commission~~ COMMENCEMENT OF FORMAL
92 DISCIPLINARY PROCEEDINGS against any justice or judge, all papers filed with and proceedings before the commission
93 on judicial discipline ~~or masters appointed by the supreme court, pursuant to this subsection (3), shall be~~ ARE
94 confidential, ~~and the filing of papers with and the giving of testimony before the commission or the masters shall~~
95 ~~be privileged; but no other publication of such papers or proceedings shall be privileged in any action for~~
96 ~~defamation; except that the record filed by the commission in the supreme court continues privileged~~ IS
97 CONFIDENTIAL. A PERSON IS ABSOLUTELY IMMUNE FROM ANY ACTION FOR DEFAMATION BASED ON PAPERS FILED WITH OR TESTIMONY
98 BEFORE THE COMMISSION, THE ADJUDICATIVE BOARD, THE SUPREME COURT, OR THE TRIBUNAL, BUT NO OTHER PUBLICATION OF THE
99 PAPERS OR PROCEEDINGS HAS ABSOLUTE IMMUNITY IN ANY ACTION FOR DEFAMATION and a writing ~~which~~ THAT was privileged 100 prior to its filing with the commission ~~or the masters~~ does not lose such privilege by such filing.

101 (II) NOTWITHSTANDING THE CONFIDENTIALITY REQUIREMENT DESCRIBED IN THIS SUBSECTION (3)(g), THE COMMISSION MAY:

102 (A) RELEASE INFORMATION ABOUT THE STATUS OF AN EVALUATION, INVESTIGATION, OR PROCEEDING TO THE VICTIM OF MISCONDUCT OR 103 THE COMPLAINANT;

104 (B) RELEASE INFORMATION ABOUT A COMPLAINT THAT RESULTED IN INFORMAL REMEDIAL ACTION OR PUBLIC DISCIPLINE OF A JUDGE OR 105 JUSTICE TO THE STATE COURT ADMINISTRATOR AS NECESSARY FOR THE SELECTION OF A TRIBUNAL PURSUANT TO SUBSECTION (3)(f)(II) OF 106 THIS SECTION; ANY RELEVANT COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL PERFORMANCE OR JUDICIAL NOMINATING COMMISSION, THE OFFICE OF 107 ATTORNEY REGULATION COUNSEL, AND THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDING DISCIPLINARY JUDGE, OR SUCCESSORS TO EACH COMMISSION OR 108 OFFICE; THE OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR, FOR THE PURPOSE OF JUDICIAL APPOINTMENTS; THE JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT, FOR THE PURPOSE OF 109 REVIEWING APPLICANTS FOR THE SENIOR JUDGE PROGRAM AND APPOINTMENTS TO THE ADJUDICATIVE BOARD PURSUANT TO SUBSECTION
110 (3)(c.5)(I) OF THIS SECTION; AND OTHER LIMITED RECIPIENTS CONSISTENT WITH THE PURPOSES OF THIS SECTION ALLOWED BY RULE; AND

111 (C) MAKE PUBLICLY AVAILABLE AGGREGATE INFORMATION ABOUT TRENDS OR PATTERNS IN COMPLAINTS MADE TO THE COMMISSION, BUT 112 THE COMMISSION SHALL NOT MAKE PUBLIC ANY INFORMATION THAT IDENTIFIES ANY SPECIFIC PERSON OR COMPLAINT.

113 (III) A RECIPIENT OF CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION PURSUANT TO SUBSECTION (3)(g)(II)(B) OF THIS SECTION SHALL PRESERVE THE 114 CONFIDENTIALITY OF THE INFORMATION SUBJECT TO ANY SANCTIONS FOR VIOLATION OF CONFIDENTIALITY AS MAY BE PROVIDED BY LAW.

115 (IV) THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY MAY PROVIDE BY LAW FOR CONFIDENTIAL REPORTING AND COMPLAINANT RIGHTS CONSISTENT WITH 116 SUBSECTION (3)(g)(II) OF THIS SECTION.

117 (h) ~~The supreme court shall by rule provide for procedures before the commission on judicial discipline, the~~ 118 ~~masters, and the supreme court. The rules shall also provide the standards and degree of proof to be applied by~~

119 ~~the commission in its proceedings.~~ A justice or judge who is a member of the ~~commission~~ COMMISSION,
120 ADJUDICATIVE BOARD, TRIBUNAL, or supreme court shall not participate in any proceedings involving ~~his~~ THE JUSTICE'S OR 121 JUDGE'S own removal or retirement.

122 (k) (I) THERE IS CREATED A RULE-MAKING COMMITTEE TO ADOPT RULES FOR THE JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE PROCESS. THE RULE-MAKING 123 COMMITTEE CONSISTS OF FOUR MEMBERS APPOINTED BY THE SUPREME COURT; FOUR MEMBERS APPOINTED BY THE ADJUDICATIVE BOARD; 124 FOUR MEMBERS APPOINTED BY THE COMMISSION; AND ONE VICTIM'S ADVOCATE, AS DEFINED IN LAW, APPOINTED BY THE GOVERNOR.
125 MEMBERS SERVE AT THE PLEASURE OF THEIR APPOINTING AUTHORITY. THE RULE-MAKING COMMITTEE SHALL ELECT A CHAIR WHO IS A
126 MEMBER OF THE COMMITTEE. THE RULES MUST INCLUDE THE STANDARDS AND DEGREE OF PROOF TO BE APPLIED IN JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE
127 PROCEEDINGS; CONFIDENTIAL REPORTING PROCEDURES; AND COMPLAINANT RIGHTS DURING THE EVALUATION, INVESTIGATION, AND 128 HEARING PROCESS. THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY MAY PROVIDE BY LAW FOR CONFIDENTIAL REPORTING AND COMPLAINANT RIGHTS.

129 (II) THE RULE-MAKING COMMITTEE MAY PROMULGATE SPECIFIC RULES GOVERNING PROCEEDINGS BEFORE A PANEL OF THE ADJUDICATIVE
130 BOARD. THE COLORADO RULES OF EVIDENCE AND COLORADO RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE, AS AMENDED, APPLY TO PROCEEDINGS BEFORE
131 A PANEL OF THE ADJUDICATIVE BOARD UNTIL AND UNLESS THE RULE-MAKING COMMITTEE PROMULGATES RULES GOVERNING PANEL
132 PROCEEDINGS. RULES PROMULGATED PURSUANT TO THIS SUBSECTION (3)(k)(II) APPLY TO FORMAL PROCEEDINGS INITIATED ON OR AFTER 133 APRIL 1, 2025.

134 SECTION 2. Each elector voting at the election may cast a vote either "Yes/For" or "No/Against" on the following 135 ballot title: "Shall there be an amendment to the Colorado constitution concerning judicial discipline, and, in 136 connection therewith, establishing an independent judicial discipline adjudicative board, setting standards for 137 judicial review of a discipline case, and clarifying when discipline proceedings become public?".

138 SECTION 3. Except as otherwise provided in section 1-40-123, Colorado Revised Statutes, if at least fifty-five 139 percent of the electors voting on the ballot title vote "Yes/For", then the amendment will become part of the 140 state constitution.

The Gregory Law Firm, LLC

Christopher S.P. Gregory
Attorney at Law

cspgregory@thegregorylawfirm.net

September 3, 2024

The Legislative Council
Colorado General Assembly
200 E. Colfax Avenue
Denver, CO 80203

Dear Committee Members:

The Blue Book explanations for various ballot measures (including HCR 23-1001 / Amendment H) are scheduled for consideration by the Legislative Council on September 4, 2024. Amendment H corrects some fundamental deficiencies in Colorado's judicial discipline system and is the product of a thorough interim committee process that considered extensive input from stakeholders, experts, and the general public. Ultimately, the reforms proposed through HCR 23-1001 were referred to voters through unanimous votes on Third Reading in both Houses (63-0 in the House and 35-0 in the Senate). Upon closer analysis, I now recognize that after Third Readings, the final conference committee report was unanimously adopted by the Senate and adopted by the House with Representative Bockenfeld casting the sole no vote.

Although I commend and appreciate all of the work that Legislative Staff has put into drafting a concise and understandable ballot analysis, I think that the final published version would benefit from a few additional edits. In particular, I think that it is important to acknowledge that a primary purpose of Amendment H is to reduce the control and influence that the Colorado Supreme Court currently has over the judicial discipline process. Additionally, it seems important to provide the public an accurate explanation as to the scope of what constitutes "judicial misconduct." Specifically, judicial misconduct includes both actual impropriety and conduct that creates the appearance of impropriety. The Legislative Council Draft of the ballot analysis understates the robustness of the interim committee process and does not explain how that process and the reforms adopted through SB 22-201 arose from the novel and unique circumstances presented through Matter of Coats, 2023 CO 44 (i.e., disciplinary issues / conflicts involving multiple Justices of the Colorado Supreme Court). It seems important to explain this context and to emphasize the nearly unanimous support that HCR 23-1001 / Amendment H has in the Legislature.

Earlier today, reporter Bente Birkland of Colorado Public Radio re-published a summary of the various ballot measures for November 2024 that includes the following description of Amendment H:

Lawmakers want to change the rules for how Colorado handles misconduct within the judicial branch. This amendment would set up a new independent judicial discipline board, made up of judges, attorneys and members of the public. The board would conduct disciplinary hearings and hear appeals of informal remedial sanctions handed down by the Commission on Judicial Discipline.

This proposal follows extensive reporting by David Migoya of the Colorado Springs Gazette into a string of scandals in the judicial branch. Those revelations led lawmakers to push for a new way to handle judges accused of wrongdoing independent of the state Supreme Court.

The referred constitutional measure cleared the legislature with only one no vote.

Megan Verlee and Bente Birkeland, Here Are the 14 Questions on Colorado's Ballot this November, CPR NEWS, September 3, 2024.

As recognized by Colorado Public Radio, the context of Matter of Coats and the various subsidiary scandals within the Judicial Branch are relevant to Amendment H, but not mentioned in the current version of the ballot analysis.

Apart from actual edits, I am concerned about how opposition to HCR 23-1001 has been presented. Of those who participated in the drafting process, Chris Forsyth / The Judicial Integrity Project appears to oppose HCR 23-1001 simply because he perceives approval of Amendment H as making it more difficult for him to later argue for his proposals for other reforms that were rejected through the Interim Committee and legislative processes. While presenting his organization as supporting HCR 23-1001, Jeff Rupp of the Colorado Judicial Institute (CJI) requested that the arguments against Amendment H include a statement that: "The system has been in place for a long time and is based on the Colorado Constitution. Changing the Constitution is a complex process and cannot easily be undone if the new process does not work as intended." CJI's position, however, exists in the context of CJI's membership and advocacy revolving around individual judges and justices. Moreover, CJI's previous public statements have expressed unqualified support for Amendment H. <https://coloradojudicialinstitute.org/news-events/newsroom/cji-blog.html/article/2023/01/27/where-does-colorado-s-judicial-discipline-legislation-go-from-here->. Legislative Staff has appropriately rejected proposed language from both Mr. Forsyth and Mr. Rupp.

Amendment H is good public policy and reflective of the best application of full deliberative processes. The ballot analysis, in turn, should fully inform voters as to the primary purposes of Amendment H and the nearly universal support that the measure has from the Legislature and the principal stakeholders. I respectfully request that Legislative Council consider the edits to the ballot analysis that I propose in the accompanying draft amendment.

Sincerely,

Christopher S.P. Gregory
Enclosure

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL AMENDMENT

Legislative Council

The ballot analysis / Legislative Council Draft for Amendment H: Judicial Procedures and Confidentiality be amended as follows:

- 1 Amend Legislative Council Draft, page 1, line 2, add “• reduce the Colorado Supreme Court’s
2 role and control over Colorado’s judicial discipline system;”
- 3 Page 1, line 11, strike “disciplinary actions” and substitute “discipline, reduces the Colorado
4 Supreme Court’s role in judicial discipline,”.
- 5 Page 1, line 26, after “include” add “failure to perform judicial duties competently and diligently,
6 abuse of the prestige of judicial office,”.
- 7 Page 1, line 27, after “communication,” strike “and”.
- 8 Page 1, line 28, after “staff” add “and criminal or other unlawful conduct”.
- 9 Page 1, line 28, after the added “conduct.” add “Judges are prohibited from engaging in actual 10 impropriety or even conduct that creates the appearances of impropriety.”
- 11 Page 2, line 16, after “against judges” strike “are also made public at the beginning of the hearing.”
12 and substitute “will become public upon filing with the disciplinary hearing and other proceedings 13 also, then, open to the public.”
- 14 Page 2, Figure 1, consolidate arrows and strike “Tribunal for Supreme Court Justice Appeals” and 15 “Supreme Court for all other appeals” substitute a single arrow that states “Appellate review by 16 Supreme Court or Special Tribunal”.
- 17 Page 4, line 2, before “After” insert “Following passage of Senate Bill 22-201 (which addressed
18 novel circumstances arising from Matter of Coats, 2023 CO 44), the bi-partisan / bi-cameral
19 Legislative Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline held a series of public hearings to evaluate 20 and propose reforms to Colorado’s judicial discipline system. The hearings included extensive 21 engagement with experts, stakeholders, and the general public.”.
- 22 Page 4, line 2, strike “After extensive hearings involving experts, stakeholders, and the public,” and 23 after the added “general public.” substitute “With recommendations and draft legislation from the 24 Interim Committee,”.
- 25 Page 4, line 15, strike “recommended by nearly all members of” and substitute with “referred to 26 voters by all but one member of the General Assembly”.
- 27 Page 4, line 16, after “formally” add “recommended”.

Appendix 28

Transcripts from the Colorado Supreme Court's Workplace Culture Initiative Videos—
August 22, 2023.

Colorado Supreme Court Workplace Culture Initiative Videos—August 22, 2023

Introduction to the Workplace Culture Initiative

1 Justice Hood

2 All right, we're here to talk about the Workplace Culture Initiative. I'm joined by my colleague, Justice
3 Monica Marquez. Why don't you start by just introducing yourself to people who may not be so familiar 4 with you?

5
6 Justice Marquez

7 Sure. I'm Monica Marquez. I am a justice on the Colorado Supreme Court. I was appointed in 2010 and 8 I love being here. This is a project that I'm very excited about and invested in.

9
10 Justice Hood

11 And my name is Will Hood. I've had the privilege of being your colleague for almost a decade now. So 12 why don't we just dive in with an overview of what the workplace culture initiative is and what the 13 overarching goals are.

14
15 Justice Marquez

16 Sure, so the Chief Justice gave at the State of the Judiciary speech, talked about wanting to foster an 17 exemplary workplace at judicial. And the Workplace Culture Initiative is that effort. It's a statewide
18 effort to bring about branch wide, statewide changes to foster an exemplary workplace. So, our mission 19 is to move forward with shared vision, mission values, shared cultural values, shared priorities, and to 20 emphasize a workplace that obviously does great work for the public but also allows our employees to 21 flourish.

22
23 Justice Hood

24 So even before the court undertook this Workplace Culture Initiative, there were some discrete projects
25 that occurred in advance of it. Can you tell folks about that briefly.

26
27 Justice Marquez

28 Certainly, we had a number of discrete projects that started even before the Workplace Culture Initiative
29 began. For example, we overhauled our procurement rules to bring them more in alignment with the 30 Executive Branch procedures and processes. So, we started there. The Court acted unilaterally to make 31 some changes to the Code of Judicial Conduct to more clearly prohibit harassment and retaliation. So,
32 those are two specific examples of things that we took care of even before we started the workplace 33 culture initiative.

Changes and the Supreme Court

1 Justice Marquez

2 Another major change that the court has undertaken in the last couple of years is transforming the role of 3 the Court as sort of a board of advisors or a board of directors. In the past, we've always had this strong
4 chief model where the Chief Justice alone handled all administrative decisions and the other six justices
5 on the court concerned themselves strictly with case processing, researching and writing opinions and 6 dealing with oral arguments and kind of the everyday day job of being a justice. A major change that 7 we've made is to make sure that each of the justices is involved in some way in the administration of the 8 Branch, and that has, I think, opened lots of new avenues to bringing in new voices. It's given our 9 employees greater access to the Justices than they had before. It's given each of the individual Justices
10 greater insight into all of the many things that happen in the administrative branch, everything from HR
11 to finance to budgeting to it, liaison roles with our Court Execs, liaison roles with our Chief Probation
12 Officers, liaison roles with our Clerks of Court statewide. And it's given the seven of us, I think, greater 13 insight into all of the unique issues that confront the branch. I think it has led to more robust 14 conversations about our priorities and how we make decisions that concern the administration of the 15 branch. And most importantly, as we've also changed to a rotating chief model, I think it has better
16 prepared each of the justices to transition into that role. It's sort of shortened the learning curve, if you
17 will. And in connection with that, we're also developing an official Chief Justice onboarding process that 18 will hopefully assist me as I take over that role about a year from now. So, I'm excited about that.

19

20 Justice Hood

21 Well, now that you've mentioned that, I have to follow up. Do we know exactly when you'll be taking 22 the helm?

23

24 Justice Marquez

25 Yes, we're aiming to do that next summer. So, Summer of 2024

26

27 Justice Hood

28 And your discussion of the Board of Directors model makes me wonder whether the intention is to have 29 the Board of Directors the Court as a whole, somehow replace the Chief Justice as the Chief 30 Administrative Officer for the Branch. Or, if that's not the case, what is the relationship?

31

32 Justice Marquez

33 Sure, it's been an evolving dialog about exactly what that role concerns, but I think where we're headed
34 with this is that the other six Justices function as additional eyes and ears out in the Branch, connections
35 to what's happening on the ground, and filtering that information and bringing it back to the Chief to 36 allow the Chief to make better informed decisions about the administration of the Branch. I think that 37 the more communication, the more input, and the more voices that we hear, the better the decisions that

- 1 come out at the end of that process. So, I see our role in this supporting role to help inform the Chief as
- 2 he makes those decisions.

The Listening Tours

1 Justice Marquez

2 Again, the Workplace Culture Initiative is an outgrowth of our efforts as a Branch to implement the
3 reports that came out of the Troyer Report and the ILG Report, and the first thing the court decided to do
4 in responding to both of those reports was a series of listening sessions, and all seven Justices divided up
5 the State and went to each of our 22 Judicial Districts in person and met individually with judicial 6 officers, with Court Execs, with CPOs, with frontline court staff and probation staff out in each of the 7 Districts and hundreds of hours and 1,000s of road miles crisscrossing the State, some of our 8 jurisdictions, as I know you know, are huge in terms of geography, and so this meant multiple 9 conversations and multiple courthouses across many different counties. That feedback then provided a 10 lot of helpful information and guidance to us. I think overarching themes that came through from those 11 conversations were things like improving compensation for our frontline employees, training just an 12 incredible need for additional training at every level, and then greater communication across the Branch,
13 between Districts, between the Districts and SCAO, just sort of throughout the Branch. And those top
14 three themes then drove the evolution of what we're calling the Workplace Culture Initiative. So, what's 15 the structure of that Workplace Culture Initiative? We have a steering committee that is comprised of a 16 cross section of Chief Judges from around the State, some Court Executives from around the State, and 17 Chief Probation Officers from around the State. That steering committee functions as a sounding board
18 and final check on recommendations that bubble up to the steering committee from our working groups, 19 and it's the individual working groups that craft recommendations for the steering committee. The 20 steering committee vets those recommendations and then passes those on to the Court for final approval.
21 So that's the overarching structure.

22
23 Justice Hood

24 And we'll talk about some of the recommendations. Roughly how many have there been to this point in 25 time?

26
27 Justice Marquez

28 At this point, we've had about a half dozen formal recommendations that have passed through the 29 steering committee. I'm anticipating at least another half dozen to dozen more between now and the end 30 of calendar 2023.

31
32 Justice Hood

33 And has the court embraced the recommendations to this point?

34
35 Justice Marquez

36 Yes, and that's it's been a really valuable process. I think each time we have gone through a layer, either
37 the steering committee or the Court, with additional eyes and ears and thoughtful input, those

1 recommendations have become further refined. But I think we're coming up with really good examples
2 of suggestions that we can implement statewide.

3

4 Justice Hood

5 So, there was a survey that was done in connection with a listening tour as well. Is that right? So, some 6 data collection. Can you tell folks about that?

7

8 Justice Marquez

9 Yeah. So, in connection with the listening tours, we did pre and post surveys of all of our employees.
10 These surveys were anonymous. We wanted to encourage candid feedback for the justices about what 11 what's on employees' minds. What are their needs? What are their concerns? And then we've collected 12 that data in a systematic way to guide the recommendations of the steering committee and also guide the 13 formation of the working groups themselves.

Mission, Vision and Values

1 Justice Hood

2 So, let's talk about some of the particular working groups. There's a mission, vision, values working
3 group. Can you start with that one and tell us about any recommendations that have come from them?
4

5 Justice Hood

6 So, you talked about the 22, soon to be 23, Judicial Districts. I think sometimes people lose track of just 7 how large the overall organization is. Can you talk about that briefly and maybe use that as a way to 8 help people understand why it's important to have mission, vision, values.
9

10 Justice Marquez

11 Certainly. Our mission, vision, values working group is one of our core, foundational keystone groups, if 12 you will. We're working with an outside consultant and employees from across the branch to fashion a 13 vision statement for the branch. This is a statement that says, Where do we want to be if we could be the 14 best Judicial Branch in the country? What would that look like? And, so, we're creating a vision
15 statement to coalesce around that. We're creating then a mission statement, which is, how do we get 16 there to that vision? And then we're creating a series of value statements, what are the core values that 17 bind us as a statewide judicial branch? And what's been really fun and challenging about the value
18 statement in particular is that we are not a centralized culture. We are 22 unique Judicial Districts, about 19 to be 23. Each of those is grounded in their own unique geography, workforce, local culture and so
20 recognizing those unique differences, how do we nonetheless identify common values that bind us as a 21 Branch? So that's been a really wonderful process that has engaged employee voices at every level from 22 all across the State as we coalesce around those three components. We're hoping to wrap that work up at 23 the end of July. It will go before the steering committee at the end of July and ultimately to the Court.
24 The goal from there, once we finalize the vision statement, the mission statement and those value
25 statements, is to come up with specific ways to implement that. To bake those concepts into everything
26 that we do. And, ideally, these will be ways that we recruit employees into the Branch, how we onboard 27 them, how we evaluate their performance, how we execute the work that we do each and every day.
28

29 Justice Marquez

30 Absolutely. We are the third co-equal branch of government. We have 4,000 employees statewide.
31 Roughly 400 of those are judicial officers, but the other 90% are our non-judicial officer employees. So,
32 we work both in courts and probation across the State. We work with civil, domestic, criminal, I mean,
33 across all of these things. So, we touch lives all across the State. I think that those challenges are both 34 opportunities for a lot of potential. How do we leverage our strengths across the State? How do we 35 leverage the unique service mindset that we all have to provide those services to our citizens across
36 Colorado?
37
38

1 Justice Hood

2 And, as you said, ultimately providing a set of unifying principles, even though we exist in local 3 communities that we try to respect the autonomy of, right, but, but we have these principles that serve to 4 bring us together, even as an organization with 4,000 employees.

5

6 Justice Marquez

7 Exactly.

Training

1 Justice Marquez

2 A huge theme that came out of the listening tours was the need for training top to bottom, at every level,
3 on every front. So, nuts and bolts training, onboarding, training for everyday frontline employees.
4 Management training, nuts and bolts training for managers, how to supervise employees. Nuts and Bolts
5 training for our district chiefs. For example, the work that a trial court judge does on the bench looks
6 very different than the work that a chief judge does as an administrator of a specific judicial district. And 7 to date, we really have not had formal training for that nuts and bolts kind of management. So, when we
8 talk about training, we're talking about all of it. Some specific things that we have already begun to roll
9 out that have come before the steering committee.

10

11 Justice Hood

12 It's almost like you anticipated my next question.

13

14 Justice Marquez

15 The first thing that we have done is to launch and roll out online, on demand module training for Code
16 of Conduct and anti-harassment, anti-retaliation. The kind of onboarding training that ought to happen
17 very quickly, and so we've got that now deployed and in place so that every employee who comes in can 18 get that training and be up to speed on those kinds of fundamental workplace requirements,
19 immediately. We're in the process of developing a new Chief Judge training module that's been spread
20 out over 2023 and into the Spring of 2024. We've got some district leadership training plans that will 21 bring district leadership teams together, so Chief Judges, Chief Probation Officers, and Court
22 Executives, as well. We're also again developing onboarding for the incoming Chief Justice. So, as we 23 plan my transition here in early 2024, we're plotting that out right now so that that handoff is as smooth
24 as it can be. But yes, nuts and bolts training all across the board. And one of the things that Justice
25 Berkenkotter has been working on is developing a training group that is thinking about how we deploy
26 that training, whether it is in person in the regions, whether it is online modules, some combination
27 thereof. So, we're really thinking, rethinking training, top to bottom.

28

29 Justice Hood

30 As long as we're giving a shout out to Justice Berkenkotter, I feel we'd be remiss if we didn't at least 31 mention Judge Roman. He's been involved in some of this as well. Is that right?

32

33 Justice Marquez

34 Absolutely. So actually, all of the Justices have been deeply involved in this entire Workplace Culture
35 Initiative, devoting hundreds of hours to this effort. So, I appreciate the work that you've done, and all of 36 our colleagues have done in this space, including Justice. Hart on mission, vision, values, Justice
37 Berkenkotter on the training, Chief Judge Roman from the Court of Appeals, has been instrumental in 38 our training working group. Chief Judge Roman also serves on the steering committee.

1 Justice Hood

2 Good. All right, anything else we should touch on with training?

3

4 Justice Marquez

5 No, stay tuned. We're just very excited about all of the opportunities that we're going to be bringing to 6 our employees. I guess the last thing I would say is that it ties in with our class and comp overhaul.

7 We've been doing some massive restructuring and rewriting of job descriptions top to bottom of our 8 frontline employees, court judicial assistant positions and our probation officer positions. These are 9 things that have not been updated in a long time. And as you can imagine, during the pandemic, job
10 descriptions have changed. I mean, what people are actually doing on the ground doesn't necessarily 11 align with job descriptions, so we're trying to realign that and then rerun market studies that hopefully 12 then better reflect the work that we're actually doing.

Class and Compensation

1 Justice Hood

2 You mentioned that one of the major themes to emerge from the listening tours was compensation, sort
3 of like location, location, location. It's compensation, compensation, compensation. For folks outside the 4 Branch, who may be less familiar with the challenges that we faced with job classification and 5 compensation, can you just give a thumbnail sketch of that and why it's so important to those many 6 employees we've been talking about?

7
8 Justice Marquez

9 Absolutely, I think the Judicial Branch has not been spared some of the challenges that other industries
10 and private corporations have experienced during the pandemic. A great resignation would have a huge 11 amount of turnover in that time. Worse, we're constrained by the kinds of salaries that we can offer by 12 the amount of state funds that are available to pay our employees. So, we have to work within those 13 constraints to be able to provide compensation. So, our compensation structure, I think over time, has 14 limited some of the promotional opportunities and sort of long-term vision that an employee who comes 15 into the Branch can say, I can see myself here in five years, and this is, this would be the promotional 16 path that I can follow. We're trying to reintegrate those kinds of structures to create those promotional 17 opportunities, and, hopefully, then retain the great employees that we have and keep them here for the 18 longer term. To be perfectly honest, we have employees right now across the State who are struggling to 19 make ends meet. During the listening tours, we learned about food pantries that have been set out for 20 some of our frontline employees out in the Districts who cannot otherwise make ends meet. That's a
21 problem that we're working very hard to fix. Obviously, we'll be working with the Legislature as well
22 and requesting certain budget increases to accommodate those changes. But, first step is to align job
23 descriptions with the work that's actually being done. From there, we run market studies so that we can 24 then present data to the legislature and say, this is what our employees ought to be receiving.

25
26 Justice Hood

27 So, I appreciate all that. And of course, the reference to food pantries is alarming. But, and hopefully 28 those instances are more rare, but one of the things that appears to be fairly common among probation
29 officers, court judicial assistants is the need to work more than one job in order to make ends meet. Can 30 you very briefly, just talk about the anecdotes that we heard during the listening tour to that effect?

31
32 Justice Marquez

33 Well, I'm sure you heard some of the same anecdotes that I did, which is exactly that, that you've got 34 wonderfully mission oriented, public service minded people who want to serve the Branch who cannot 35 afford to stay because the salaries are insufficient to make ends meet, and they're doing extra work on 36 nights and weekends just to pay the rent. That's unsustainable, so we really must address that.

DEI, Changes in HR, and the Ombuds

1 Justice Hood

2 You've talked about some of the changes to workplace conduct policies, anti-harassment, anti-retaliation
3 policies, and training associated with that. One of the things I don't believe we've touched on at this 4 point is efforts to promote DEI. Can you can you talk about that as well?

5
6 Justice Marquez

7 Certainly. I mean, a theme that has run through all of this work has been the need to incorporate 8 principles of equity, inclusivity, and diversity across the branch. We have received money from the 9 Legislature for the upcoming fiscal year to hire a couple of people who will be focused on those efforts.
10 We have a number of people that reached out to us during the listening tour, saying, as soon as that 11 launches, let me know they want to be a big part of it. So, we've got a whole small army of folks here in 12 the branch ready to jump as soon as we bring those, those directors on board. But we're hoping to launch
13 this in a really thoughtful way that is both sustainable and ultimately successful. So, stay tuned. That's 14 still a project that's in development.

15
16 Justice Hood

17 So now that you've touched on what I think is referred to as the Office of People and Culture, can you
18 tell us a little bit more about that, the FTE that will be involved in bringing that into existence, and 19 where exactly those folks will live in an institutional sense.

20
21 Justice Marquez

22 Yes, so these are conversations that are happening now. We did receive funding from the Legislature
23 again for some diversity, equity, inclusivity work to help with Sumi Lee, who's our head of Judicial 24 Diversity Outreach, who's been doing terrific work in pipeline building for diverse judicial officers. So,
25 bringing in a person who can help expand the work that Sumi Lee is doing. Someone who will be able to 26 assist with we're setting up with essentially a third party, anonymous reporting system for employees
27 that have workplace concerns. This anonymous reporting system will need someone on our end to sort 28 of manage the data that comes out of that, but that's again, with an eye toward responding to some of the 29 concerns raised in the ILG report, that employees have multiple avenues to raise workplace concerns so
30 an employee doesn't feel comfortable going to their supervisor or going directly to HR, they can then 31 call this anonymous reporting service. So, we needed an FTE to help manage that piece. We'll have, in 32 addition to that, a manager of all of these new positions. And right now it looks like this will be folded
33 into what will be a completely transformed, revamped HR Division that is focused on the employee
34 experience at Judicial. Like thinking focused on employee from the time they come in, through training, 35 through promotional opportunities, but one that is very centered on that employee experience. So that's 36 ultimately the goal.

1 Justice Hood

2 Do these changes to Human Resources at the State Court Administrator's Office in in the Department,
3 replace the Judicial Discipline Commission or the Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel?
4

5 Justice Marquez

6 No, not in any sense. I mean, those obviously remain those own independent agencies. Nothing that 7 we're doing here supplants or transplants any of that work. It hopefully will support that work. We're 8 trying to do this on our own.
9

10 Justice Hood

11 So, if there is a complaint about a judicial officer, for example, and I know that we've been talking about 12 a scheme that envisions dealing with issues well beyond just judicial officers, but if there is a complaint
13 specifically about a judge or magistrate, how does the work that you were just describing internally
14 interface with these other organizations, like the Judicial Discipline Commission and the Office of 15 Attorney Regulation Counsel.
16

17 Justice Marquez

18 So, if an employee has a concern about a judge, obviously they can go to their supervisor. They can go 19 to HR directly. The Judicial Discipline Commission now will have its own anonymous reporting system.
20 So, a system is run by the Commission itself. Our anonymous reporting system would help route those 21 concerns also over to the Judicial Discipline Commission.
22

23 Justice Hood

24 In fact, there's an obligation to funnel that information to the Judicial Discipline Commission.
25

26 Justice Marquez

27 And this is about what I was about to say, which is that every one of those touch points are mandatory
28 reporters. So, if a supervisor hears a concern, they are required to pass that information on to judicial 29 discipline. A judge is as well. There's another route that the legislature passed legislation on this year, 30 which will be an ombuds for the judicial department. This will be an outside ombuds who will serve as a
31 resource to all of our judicial branch employees for workplace concerns across the board. So, it doesn't 32 need to necessarily be a concern about a judge. It could be a concern about a fellow employee or 33 supervisor. It's going to take a minute for that program to get stood up. There are a number of 34 appointments that need to be made for an advisory board, and then the advisory board will hire that 35 ombuds. But I expect to see that office get launched here in the next 12 months or so.

Communications

1 Justice Marquez

2 Can I turn around and throw the interview back to you Justice Hood and talk a little bit about the 3 communications group?
4

5 Justice Hood

6 Well, the communications effort at this point has largely been trying to come up with a website that we
7 can use as a repository for information about different developments and hopefully some information
8 about what's going on in the Districts that will make it of potentially greater interest to employees and 9 maybe to folks across the state. So, we have a platform for the website set up. Drew Alderson, who 10 deserves a shout out as well, is on the other side of this camera is helping us bring this thing to life, and 11 we will be taking things like this interview and putting them on the website. In the interim, we've been 12 doing occasional outreach, primarily through the Chief to send messages about what's been going on.
13 We also have been making other efforts to message through continued visits to the Districts. We'll all be 14 doing, we on the court, will be doing more of that this Summer. And so that's largely it, with respect to 15 communications right now. One of the things that we're hoping to do with the Office of People and 16 Culture is to have one of those FTE assume responsibility for the communications piece. Someone who 17 hopefully has more training and experience with that than we do and so that'll be a big help. Yeah, so 18 what am I overlooking with communication?
19

20 Justice Marquez

21 Oh, I think, and you probably saw this too. Again, a key thing that came out of the listening tours was 22 the need for greater communication.
23

24 Justice Marquez

25 And how do we foster that? There are lots of different places where that communication breaks down,
26 either between SCAO and the field or between districts, or even just at different levels, between staff
27 and management. How do we, and this is something actually, that the mission, vision, values,
28 implementation portion is going to be focused on. How do we come up with a system that that improves 29 that flow of communication across the board?
30

31 Justice Hood

32 And, at the risk of sounding a little sort of self-congratulatory as part of the Court, and I don't mean it to 33 be that, but I do feel like we've made some strides in terms of transparency. And at least my experience
34 on the listening tours that I've conducted has been that people are just grateful to have the opportunity to 35 speak with us directly and feel like their voices are being heard. And it's interesting to me, because in 36 many instances, given, for example, the budget cycles, we can't just make change happen as quickly as 37 we might want to. But there is a lot to be said for just allowing people the opportunity to express their 38 thoughts and feel like they matter so.

1 Justice Hood

2 Right.

3

4 Justice Marquez

5 Absolutely.

6

7 Justice Hood

8 And I feel like some of that's already been happening, and people are grateful for that. They might be 9 more grateful for better income and other things. But the listening tours have been a positive just on 10 their own. I think because of that improved communication and what people perceive, I hope rightly, is 11 greater transparency.

12

13 Justice Marquez

14 I totally agree. And I think one of the most inspiring aspects of this whole Workplace Culture Initiative
15 effort has been the opportunity to hear from employees from all across the State at every level. And we 16 have such an amazing, inspiring group, such a dedicated group of public employees who care so much
17 about doing good work for the people of Colorado. And it makes me proud to be part of this Branch. I'm 18 excited to incorporate those voices into our vision as we move forward.

Judicial Wellbeing

1 Justice Marquez

2 The one other working group that we haven't mentioned is the well-being working group. And well-
3 being, employee well-being is a huge theme that came out as part of our listening tours. I had served in 4 2018 through 2021 as the Chair of the Colorado Task Force on lawyer well-being. That task force
5 resulted in a statewide report that came out in November of 2021. A portion of that report focused on the 6 well-being of judicial officers, and that piece ended up turning into a couple of discrete projects that
7 have now evolved into now a well-being working group. The two pieces that came out of the task force
8 was a creation of our standing committee on judicial well-being, which we've had now up and running a
9 couple of years. It has done some wonderful work. And also the creation of a judicial well-being website
10 that is just chock full of resources, both for judicial officers, but frankly, any employee who might want
11 to take advantage of them. So, we've got those two pieces running. But well-being, as you can imagine,
12 became a hot topic during the pandemic, as we've all been impacted by that in various ways, and just if 13 nothing else, even if you haven't contracted covid, the stress and anxiety that the pandemic has created
14 across the board has been really challenging. So, what are we doing to deal with that? We've created an 15 employee well-being working group that is coming up with some recommendations for the steering
16 committee. The first recommendation that has been already given the green light is on that judicial well-
17 being website, we're now creating a button that will collate all of the employee specific well-being 18 resources in one location. So, for all of our staff, we're about to launch that in July. In connection with 19 that, we're also deploying an icon on everyone's desktop, so everyone will be able to do a one click, one
20 stop shopping for well-being resources that will take them straight to the website. We also did a 21 statewide survey in November asking employees about the status of their mental health and well-being,
22 sort of pre pandemic and post pandemic. We were looking to see what impact the pandemic had, and 23 then also start gleaning some ideas from employees about how we as a branch can work to improve
24 employee well-being. We're about to release a report that gives some overview of the themes of that 25 survey that will go out in July, as well. And then the again, the working group is digging really deep into 26 that data. We had 41% response rates, over 1,600 responses from across the state. Lots of rich narrative
27 data and comments to sort of dig around in and try to discern some themes. But we're coming up with 28 some great ideas for what we can do, branch wide to improve employee well-being. So, stay tuned there.

30 Justice Hood

31 So, certainly our employees can appreciate the significance of these well-being efforts, but for folks 32 outside the branch, can you speak to some of the challenges that our employees face, not just during the 33 pandemic, but even post pandemic, just day to day and beyond the logistics of the courts. For example,
34 secondary trauma issues, things of that sort that folks who don't live this day to day may not appreciate 35 as fully.

1 Justice Marquez

2 Yeah, so secondary or vicarious trauma is just sort of the psychological impact, even if I'm not directly
3 experiencing a traumatic event, I'm witnessing one unfold in front of me. And that can have its own
4 almost PTSD type of impact on folks. And if you think about it, our frontline employees, along with our 5 judges, day after day after day, are seeing and hearing and experiencing traumatic testimony, graphic
6 photographic evidence, say, in a murder case. I mean, you name it, it's sort of the repeat nature of it and 7 the intensely emotional or stressful nature of that experience In the courtroom can have secondary
8 trauma type impact, vicarious trauma impact on both our judicial officers, for sure, and our employees
9 and our probation staff as well.

Probation

1 Justice Marquez

2 Our probation staff actually is working with some ever increasingly challenging populations. There have 3 been some policy decisions made at the legislature that have shifted certain defendant populations away
4 from incarceration and more toward the probation side of things, which is great because they're no
5 longer incarcerated. But it does make for more challenging work for our probation officers. We're also 6 seeing, I heard terrifying stories honestly from our probation officers out in the field who are dealing 7 with fentanyl situations where probationers are using fentanyl, which is obviously dangerous to the 8 probationers. And it can be dangerous to the probation officers, if they come into contact with some of 9 that material. Security concerns for how do you calm down a probationer who is high or in some other
10 ways not in control of themselves. Our probation officers are not armed and so they're just going out 11 there on their own. And these can be really challenging security situations, as well. So, lots of, lots of 12 well-being issues.

13

14 Justice Hood

15 So just to sort of add to the gloomy picture.

16

17 Justice Marquez

18 Yeah, sorry.

19

20 Justice Hood

21 No, no, I'm sure that probation officers appreciate the recognition of the difficult work that they do.
22 Particularly, when they have to do home visits of the sort that you were describing in an environment
23 where more high risk, high need probationers or folks are just, you know, falling under their purview.
24 So, it's very challenging.

Wrap-Up

1 Justice Hood

2 We should also just touch on the growth of the dockets. I know that some jurisdictions are in desperate
3 need of more judges, but those may not be forthcoming in the next legislative cycle, probably not going
4 to be. So, can you speak to that issue a little?

5

6 Justice Marquez

7 Certainly, and of course, all this follows a weighted caseload study. So, these things take time. How do
8 you crunch the data? How do you then, sort of present the data that is necessary to the Joint Budget
9 Committee to say, we need x number of new judicial officers or magistrate positions or staff attorney
10 positions in a given location. So, all of this is a delicate balance budgeting processes, none of which is 11 speedy, so there's always going to be a lag time, and you're never going to be fully staffed in any one 12 location. So, it's just a sort of a chronic understaffing that we experience.

13

14 Justice Hood

15 At the risk of digressing a bit from what we were initially talking about now that we've touched on the 16 issue of additional judges, as I understand it, the court is prioritizing the class and comp work,
17 classification and compensation work in the upcoming budget cycle, but then the year after that, we'll try 18 to prioritize getting additional judges in jurisdictions that most desperately need them. Is that right?

19

20 Justice Marquez

21 I believe that to be true. That's probably a better question answered by Steven who has a better group on 22 the budget process. But one of the things that we're trying to do more proactively is some long-term
23 budget planning so two or three cycles out so that we can lean into this in a more effective way.

24

25 Justice Hood

26 And that's most important with, particularly, when we're talking about new judges, because when you
27 have new judges, then you need a host of other things in order to give those judges a place to do their 28 work, the staff to assist them. New judges also typically mean new DAs, PDs, so there's a ripple effect 29 that requires a lot of advanced planning.

30

31 Justice Marquez

32 Absolutely.

33

34 Justice Hood

35 All right, is there anything else you would like to share before we stop?

36

37

38

1 Justice Marquez

2 I don't think so. I think this is a great program. We're excited to continue this video series as part of the 3 public facing website that we want both of our employees and the public to understand the work that we
4 do. This is an effort toward improving transparency and accountability and hopefully improving public
5 trust in the Judicial Branch.

6

7 Justice Hood

8 Well, thank you for your work with the Workplace Culture Initiative and all the other work you do for 9 the Court.

10

11 Justice Marquez

12 Thank you so much.

Appendix 29

Correspondence re: Responses by Governor
Jared Polis's Office to Colorado Open
Records Act Requests as to Documentation of
Colo. Comm'n on Jud. Discipline
Appointments.

STATE OF COLORADO

OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR

Office of Legal Counsel
121 State Capitol Building
Denver, CO 80203
(303) 866-2471
(303) 866-2003 fax

Jared S. Polis
Governor

VIA EMAIL TO:

September 3, 2024

Dear _____ :

On July 9, 2024, the Governor's Office (the "Office") received your Colorado Open Records Act request seeking records pertaining to the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline, including:

- Communications from third-parties commenting on the applicants;
- Written comments about the applicants by any member of the governor's staff, including those in which staff members recommended whom to appoint;
- Applications reviewed in 2021 from those other than the two applicants who were appointed;
- Communications about the reappointment of Commission members, including any applications they submitted, communications in which they indicated their interest in reappointment, and comments from staff members about the reappointments.

On July 24, 2024, the Office responded to your CORA request with 218 pages of public responsive records. On August 23, 2024, you requested the Office conduct searches to locate additional records responsive to your original request. The searches included:

- "judicial.state.co.us" and "jd.state.co.us";
- The names of the Commissioners who were replaced through the Governor's Office since 2021: Christopher Gregory, Elizabeth Krupa, Bruce Casias, Drucilla Pugh, Yolanda Lyons, Gina Lopez, and Marisa Pacheco;

- Current officers and staff of CCJD: Mindy Sooter (who uses mindy.sooter@whilmerhale.com), James Carpenter, Mariana Vielma, and Jeff Walsh.

The Governor's Office reviewed responsive records generated from the above searches. There are no additional public records responsive to your request.

Sincerely,

/s/ Colleen Morey

Colleen Morey
Deputy Legal Counsel

STATE OF COLORADO

OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR

Office of Legal Counsel
121 State Capitol Building
Denver, CO 80203
(303) 866-2471
(303) 866-2003 fax

Jared S. Polis
Governor

VIA EMAIL TO:

July 24, 2024

Dear _____ :

On July 9, 2024, the Governor's Office (the "Office") received your Colorado Open Records Act request seeking copies of applications and communications pertaining to the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline.

In compliance with C.R.S. § 24-72-203(3)(b), the Office responded to you within three working days of receiving your request. On July 12, 2024, the Office extended the response period by up to seven working days. Today, we are producing 218 pages of public responsive records to your request. As a courtesy, we are providing these documents free of charge.

Sincerely,

/s/ Colleen Morey

Colleen Morey
Deputy Legal Counsel

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Anderson, Jason A		County Denver	Cong. District 1	Senate District 31	House District 6
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Denver		State Colorado	Zip Code 80203
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1979	Gender Male	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Democrat		Ethnicity Caucasian
Present Employer/Title City & County of Denver - Denver District Attorney's Office/Victim Advocate		Business Phone # (720) 913-9208		Home Phone #
		Cell Phone #		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 201 W Colfax Ave #801		City Denver		State Colorado	Zip Code 80202

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Grand Junction Central High School	Grand Junction, CO		1997
College	Metropolitan State College of Denver	Denver, CO		2005	Criminal Justice & Ciminology
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Courtney Johnston	Friend/Colleague	[REDACTED]
Bonnie Benedetti	Mentor	[REDACTED]
Maggie Conboy	Friend/Colleague	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?:Part Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Anderson, Jason A	Denver	1	31	6

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

I feel like given my almost 20 years experience in city and local government/criminal justice work this committee would be a good fit for me.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

Jason A Anderson

Victim Advocate

Employment Experience:

Denver District Attorney's Office

April 2011-Present

Denver, Colorado

Victim Advocate

Specialize in working with victims and the families of victims of domestic violence, organized crime, child abuse, sexual assault and careless driving involving death or serious bodily injury cases in Denver. Assist Deputy & Chief Deputy District Attorneys both inside and outside of the courtroom to help facilitate the prosecution of defendants and the pursuit of justice. Experience with misdemeanor and felony level cases. Interaction with victims includes explanation of process and procedures to help navigate the criminal justice system, outreach to victims for help, support and other resources to community agencies for counseling and other services, face to face support at arraignment, pre-trial and trial hearings. Participate in extensive interaction with victims by many different modes including in person, written, electronic and over the phone contact. Help to ensure that the victims of crimes are treated with fairness, dignity and respect throughout the case and making sure that the Rights that they are afforded under the Colorado Victim's Rights Act are not infringed upon. Worked in multiple units within the office including: County Court Division, Juvenile Unit, Family Violence Unit, District Court & currently the Organized Crime Unit.

Denver City Attorney's Office

February 2005-April 2011

Denver, Colorado

Victim Advocate

Responsible for contacting victims to provide support, explain the criminal justice process, as well as answer questions and address concerns victims may have as it relates to these municipal code violation cases. Help victims by providing information about protection orders, keep them updated on case progression and resolution. Prepare the victims for court appearances in necessary. Participated extensively in the Triage Program which is a multi-agency response program that responds to all cases of Domestic Violence in Denver. The program consists of agencies from the local City & County as well as State agencies and community non-profit organizations to assess and ensure the proper handling of DV cases to determine the best resources for the victim as well as help to make sure there is a successful prosecution of the cases. Hired as a fulltime Victim Advocate in June 2007, prior to that interned/volunteered as a Victim Advocate.

Denver County Court

August 2005-June 2006

Denver, Colorado

Administrative Support Assistant

Worked within the Traffic Division and General Sessions Division of the Clerks Office of the Denver County Court. Main job responsibilities included customer service, processing of payments on tickets, scheduling court dates, maintaining accurate minutes and court records, verification and quality control of data input made by court clerks in multiple courtrooms. Spent significant amount of time on special projects assigned by managers and supervisors in the Traffic Division.

Denver Police Department
Denver, Colorado

May 2004-August 2005

Volunteer

Sole coordinator and producer of specific case related correspondence between the City Attorney's Office and the Denver Police Department's officers related to Municipal Code Violation Cases. Developed and maintained comprehensive and functional method of communication on Domestic Violence cases filed with the City Attorney in the City and County of Denver. Responsible for processing all Domestic Violence cases, writing letters concerning procedural errors and reporting on the outcome of cases to District Commanders as well as Officers.

Volunteered with the Sexual Offender Registry Section of the Denver Police Department. Responsible for data integrity and proper case file management. Worked with Detectives to manage case files as convicted sex offenders updated and initiated registry with the Department.

First United Bank
Aurora, Colorado

October 2001-April 2004

Operations Supervisor/Assistant Branch Manager

Responsible for the operational and sales functions of new account representatives and tellers employed at the branch. Oversaw daily customer service and cross selling activities, including in person and over the phone sales. Conducted cash audits including daily balancing of the Automated Teller Machine and Cash Vault, monthly audits of teller drawers, vaults and cash items. Assisted with manager duties throughout the branch network as needed, often traveling to different bank locations. Promoted to Operations Supervisor/Assistant Branch Manager within 3 years after holding position of Teller and Senior Teller.

Denver District Attorney's Office
Denver, Colorado

May 2000-October 2001

Intern

Interned in the Juvenile Unit and Drug Court Unit of the Denver District Attorney's Office. Assisted Deputy District Attorneys both in and out of court with cases against defendants between the ages on 10-17 while in the Juvenile Unit. While in the Drug Court Unit, attended review hearings for Drug Court defendants as a representative of the DA's Office. Also responsible for other duties or special projects as assigned by various Deputy & Chief Deputy District Attorneys.

Education:

Metropolitan State College of Denver
Major Concentration: Criminal Justice & Criminology
Denver, Colorado

Bachelor of Science – December 2005

Community College of Aurora
Concentration: Criminal Justice
Aurora, Colorado

Associate of General Studies – August 2004

Community Involvement:

Colorado Organization of Victim Assistance Conference Program Committee Member Volunteer	2022-Present
Community Corrections Board of Denver Board Member Position: Victim Services Representative	2017-2021
Colorado Complete Count Campaign Statewide 2020 Census – Appointed by Governor John Hickenlooper State Committee Member	2018-2020
Partners Mentoring Association Board of Directors Member Past President & Board Member	2013 – 2019
The Blue Bench, Formerly RAAP-Rape Assistance and Awareness Program Board of Directors Member	2010 - 2016
Metro Denver Partners Board of Directors Member Past Vice-President & Board Member	2008-2019
Denver Citizens Police Academy Alumni Association Board Member Representing District 3	2005-2006
Denver Citizens Police Academy Graduate	2005
United States Presidential Volunteer Bronze Medal Recipient	2005

Denver District Attorney's Office – Internal Program Involvement:

Courtrooms to Classrooms Program Participant - Park Hill Elementary	2011-Present
Training Committee Committee Member	2019-Present
Employee Engagement & Recognition Committee Committee Member	2020-Present
LGBTQ Affinity Group Co-Chair	2021-Present

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Workforce Development Council

Name (Last, First Middle) Artis, Eric		County Arapahoe	Cong. District 6	Senate District 27	House District 61
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Aurora		State Colorado	Zip Code 80016
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1964	Gender Male	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Democrat		Ethnicity African American
Present Employer/Title Mile High United Way/Chief Human Resources Officer		Business Phone # (720) 388-2026		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 711 Park Avenue West, Denver, CO, 80205		City Aurora		State Colorado	Zip Code 80016

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Bernie High School	Bernie, Missouri		1982
College	Regis University	Denver, Colorado		1997	Business
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence	Colorado State University	Fort Collins, CO		2001	Organizational Leadership/Human Resources
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if	U.S. Commission on Civil Rights - Wy Advisory Council Centennial Lodge #4 - Member(Mbr) Kappa Alpha Psi, Fraternity Inc - Mbr Lincoln Hills Care Foundation - Past Bd Mbr

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Daniel Brown	Professional	[REDACTED]
James Coleman	Professional	[REDACTED]
Richard Lewis	Professional	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: Full Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis
Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Workforce Development Council

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Artis, Eric	Arapahoe	6	27	61

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

I've been committed to serving my country, state and community for my entire adult life. From my time with the U.S. Air Force until now, the skills I have to offer in leadership and management have more value now more than ever. I want to offer the Workforce Commission the best of what I have to offer and feel the Commission's mission is directly aligned with my passion to serve.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

Eric D. Artis, SPHR

Email: [REDACTED]

C: [REDACTED]

LinkedIn: linkedin.com/in/eric-d-artis-m-ed-sphr-a143841

An accomplished senior human resources executive with a demonstrated track record of success in leading team development, coaching, strategic planning, and goal setting. Excellent strategic and process improvement abilities with an emphasis on human resource practices in conjunction with diversity equity and inclusion initiatives. Ability to implement and manage change within large diverse organizations and engage with executives and staff at all levels. A consistent strategic partner with excellent data analysis, interpretation, and presentation skills. Employs current human capital practices that attract and retain high potential talent. Develops S.M.A.R.T.I.E (Specific, Measurable, Actionable, Realistic, Time-Specific, Inclusive and Equitable) and executable strategies that motivate teams, both individually and financially, to exceed organizational objectives through various economic cycles. Recognized for executing with agility, high integrity and initiative. Highly skilled at prioritizing multiple challenges in a demanding environment with key strengths in:

- Enhancing strategic position & organizational capability
- Earning trust through achieving results
- HR Innovation & Integration
- Initiating Change
- Driving Performance

Education/Certifications

M.Ed. Human Resources & Organization Development | Colorado State University
BS Business Administration | Regis University
Senior Professional in Human Resources (SPHR) | SHRM
Diversity Equity & Inclusion Certificate Program | Cornell University

Professional Experience

Mile High United Way | Chief Human Resources/Diversity Officer 01/2020 – Present

Reporting to the Chief Executive Officer. Responsible for all aspects of strategic/operational HR leadership which includes the development of organization-wide HR strategic initiatives in the area of workforce planning, talent management, performance management, organizational development, employee relations, compensation and benefits and regulatory compliance. Functions as a strategic business advisor to the Executive Team regarding key organizational, management, and human capital issues. Ensures Diversity & Inclusion strategy and practices are embedded throughout the organization's purpose, values and employee experience.

HCA/HealthONE | Continental Division 05/2004 – 10/2019

The Medical Center of Aurora | Vice President, Behavioral Health 01/2018 - 10/ 2019

Reporting to the COO, responsible for the executive leadership of hospital operations, Inpatient Clinical Services, Partial Hospitalization, Intensive Outpatient programs. Also responsible for community relations, coordinating legislative efforts by working with state, local, and federal government agencies, Buckley Air Force Base, Aurora Municipal Court, 18th Judicial Court wellness programs. Responsible for helping the organization meet established goals through the strategic planning process and meeting specified growth initiatives. Responsible for hospital integration, market research and environmental analysis to include

Eric D. Artis, SPHR

Email: [REDACTED]

C: [REDACTED]

LinkedIn: linkedin.com/in/eric-d-artis-m-ed-sphr-a143841

competitive intelligence. Provided leadership for community outreach and supported physician recruitment, labor management, and organizational development and training.

The Medical Center of Aurora | Director, Human Resources 07/2008 – 04/2012
| Vice President, Human Resources 04/2012 – 12/2018

Provides strategic HR and talent consulting/advising to Hospital CEO and Executive management team. Charged with creating the desired workplace culture and an engaged and productive workforce through HCA's policies, programs and practices.

- Evaluated and advised executive leadership on the impact of long-range planning of new programs/strategies and regulatory action.
- Participated actively in enterprise network of Facility Human Resources and diversity officers.
- Monitored facility climate and national trends relevant to diversity and provided responsive leadership.
- Ensured that all initiatives are integrated with and support the overall mission, goals, and hospital objectives.
- Partnered with executive leadership team to cultivate a unified, value-based & high reliability culture.
- Using Finance & HR Analytics data to drive decision making and evaluate key Finance/HR results and deliverables.
- Developed staffing strategies and implementation plans and programs to identify internal & external talent for positions of responsibility.
- Analyzed and prioritized critical business challenges faced by the organization, and deploy appropriate HR interventions in collaboration with appropriate Centers of Excellence (COEs)
 - Developed and implemented strategic retention strategies reducing nursing turnover from >30% to 10% and overall turnover from 25% to <15
 - Created efficiency by designing and implementing new performance review tool
 - Executed leadership work plans yielding positive employee participation & overall engagement trends YOY
 - Reduced YOY overall vacancy rate from 18% to <9%
- Ensured operational excellence by measuring the effectiveness and efficiency of the hospital, Leadership and HR team.
- Provided periodic feedback and support to the Regional/Group VP of HR, the Centers of Excellence and Service Centers to help proactively shape OneHR model policies, programs and practices for maximum business effectiveness.

Presbyterian/St. Luke's Medical Center | Vice President, Human Resources 05/2004 – 07/2008

Provided all aspects of strategic/operational HR leadership with an impeccable record for delivering positive results. Developed leadership development program (Mastering Excellence) curriculum that aligned key strategic/operational indicators with management performance goals. Led all Healthy Work Environment initiatives which include, Employee Engagement, Leadership Effectiveness, Culture, Rewards and Recognition and staffing. Acknowledged for aligning HR with organizational business model.

- Developed and implemented plans, programs and activities that educate and engage hospitals staff in adopting Inclusive Excellence as a core institutional value.
- Assisted with the development of progressive and proactive compensation and benefits programs to provide motivation, incentives and rewards for effective performance and to provide programs which

Eric D. Artis, SPHR

Email: [REDACTED]

C: [REDACTED]

LinkedIn: linkedin.com/in/eric-d-artis-m-ed-sphr-a143841

utilized an employee and company partnership for the short and long-range health and welfare protection of the employees.

- Analyzed and prioritized critical business challenges faced by the organization, and deploy appropriate HR interventions in collaboration with appropriate Centers of Excellence (COEs)
 - Developed and implemented strategic retention strategies reducing overall/nursing
 - Created efficiency by designing and implementing new performance review tool
 - Executed leadership work plans yielding positive employee participation & overall engagement trends YOY
 - Reduced YOY overall vacancy rate
- Developed human resource planning models to identify competency, knowledge and talent gaps and developed specific programs to address identified the gaps.
- Monitored talent management/succession planning programs for key contributor and management positions, training and development programs.
- Development programs/action plans to enhance employee knowledge and understanding of the business of the organization
- Collaborated on a strategic and tactical level with operating leaders on a variety of human resource and business-related initiatives to support organization and operational goals.
- Helped drive change within the organization, to include adoption of new technologies, integration of key new growth businesses and workflows, staffing models, and organization structures.

Affordable Management Services, Inc. (REIT) | Director, Human Resources 07/1998 – 05/2004

Recruited to serve as the Senior HR Business Partner with a wide range of operational responsibilities for 100 Dealership locations, over 300 properties with 2000 employees nationwide. Worked with regional operational leaders in support of new business strategy development, and recruitment.

Sedgwick Claims Services | Claim's Analyst 09/1997 – 07/1998

Responsible for determining liability and evaluating property damages and bodily injury claims. Negotiate settlements utilizing Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) and litigation management techniques, which minimized legal exposure.

Wyoming Professional Teaching Standards Board | Certification Coordinator 02/1995 – 06/1997

Reliable and highly skilled Credentialing Specialist with broad and deep knowledge of the Education system. Extraordinary professional with impeccable communication skills with staff, teachers and relevant government regulators. Responsible for workforce readiness and credentialing of all certified school teachers (K-12) and substitute teaching pool. Assisted with employee relations and policy implementation.

Wyoming Department of Commerce | Records Specialist 01/1994 – 02/1995

Highly focused and meticulous Records Management Specialist with an exceptional record of customer satisfaction. Adept at working well independently with little or no supervision or as part of a records management team. Administered all records management program components. Performed all work in accordance with records management work practices and procedures. Managed inventory of all archived records and updated same on a regular basis.

United States Air Force | Logistics Supervisor 12/1983 – 12/1992

Decorated leader dedicated to enhancing & executing combat support capabilities for the Air Force and joint logistic/services missions. Evaluated organizational structure for effectiveness and efficiency. Performed strategic organizational analysis to develop functional order to support operational contingencies, planning and execution.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Barrier, Ingrid Carlson		County Denver	Cong. District 1	Senate District 31	House District 6
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Denver		State CO	Zip Code 80230
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1971	Gender Female	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Democrat		Ethnicity Caucasian
Present Employer/Title Colorado Department of Public Safety/Chief Human Resources Officer		Business Phone # (720) 863-8984	Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]	E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 700 Kipling Street		City Lakewood	State Colorado	Zip Code 80215

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Kent Denver School	Englewood, CO		1989
College	Bowdoin College	Brunswick, ME		1993	Art History
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence	University of Denver College of Law	Denver, CO		2000	Law
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if	Please see attached resume.

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Michelle Brissette Miller	Former colleague at Attorney General's Office	[REDACTED]
Jennifer Hunt	Former colleague at Hill&Robbins and AG's office	[REDACTED]
Jana Locke	Current Supervisor at CDPS	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: Full Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Barrier, Ingrid Carlson	Denver	1	31	6

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

The best volunteer job I ever had was serving on the Second Judicial District Judicial Nominating Commission. It gave me invaluable perspective into the critical role of boards and commissions in Colorado as adjacent partners to the workings of government, the importance of citizen participation in their own governmental systems, and emphasizing value of different political, professional and personal opinions about decisions that are key to our system of governance. The Commission on Judicial Discipline builds confidence in our court system by carefully vetting concerns about judges in a measured, thoughtful, and precise manner. I am well suited to this work - I am pragmatic, organized, attentive to detail, curious and solution oriented. I work well with a diverse group. I am fair and will build rapport with commissioners, staff and members of the judiciary (as appropriate). I strive to do the right thing.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

Ingrid C. Barrier

December 8, 2023

Please consider me as an attorney member on the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline. I have been a lawyer for 23 years and a Denver, Colorado resident my whole life. I care deeply about our important governmental institutions, the courts being paramount. We deserve high functioning courts at every level in every Judicial District in Colorado. Without a principled forum to address complaints about our judges, we jeopardize the system that resolves so many challenges in our communities.

I am a staunch supporter of Colorado's selection, retention, performance review and investigative processes including censure or potential discipline related to our judges. I served on the Second Judicial Nominating Commission to vet candidates for the governor's consideration and appointment. This role feels like the flip side – it ensures that judges, once appointed, continue to fulfill the mandates of the Judicial Rules, the Judicial Canon, and uphold Colorado law on the bench and in their own lives.

Each complaint (no matter who generates it) must be considered carefully and investigated ethically when investigation is merited. This Commission must ensure that it protects confidentiality, moves swiftly, and relies on its robust constitutional and statutory governance structure to tightly frame its investigations. There is no room for error in evaluating judicial conduct.

I will bring my intellect, my collaborative nature, my good humor, efficiency, and ease in tackling challenging topics to the Commission and will professionally address every appropriate complaint that comes before the Commission.

I look forward to discussing this exciting opportunity with you.

Sincerely,

Ingrid Carlson Barrier

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Brodbeck, Josh		County Denver	Cong. District 1	Senate District 31	House District 6
Home Address [REDACTED]		City DENVER		State CO	Zip Code 80206
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1972	Gender Male	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Democrat		Ethnicity Caucasian
Present Employer/Title Self/Founder, Management Consultant		Business Phone # (303) 668-9351		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address [REDACTED]		City DENVER		State Colorado	Zip Code 80206

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Douglas County High School	Castle Rock, CO		1991
College	University of Denver	Denver, CO		1995	Political Science & Classical Voice
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if	See Resume.

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Marcia Waters	Div. Dir. for CO State Div. I served.	[REDACTED]
Rico Munn	Frequent client, Fmr. DORA Exec. Dir.	[REDACTED]
Kim Day	Frequent client, Fmr. CEO Denver Int'l Airport.	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: Full Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Brodbeck, Josh	Denver	1	31	6

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

Having recently served on the Colorado Real Estate Commission as a public member, it was nothing short of an honor to serve, and was a fulfilling experience. It was also a lot of hard work; I honestly had no idea going into it how much work it would be! But in hindsight, I'm more than glad I did it and it was a true pleasure. I also saw first hand how important the work of Colorado's Boards and Commissions is, and that they need to be served by Commissioners and Members that take the work seriously and are willing to commit the time and effort required for these Boards and Commissions to properly function. And I want to continue to serve on another Commission, if possible.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.

*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

THE OFFICE OF JOSH BRODBECK

Professional

The Office of Josh Brodbeck

Management/Organizational Consulting in Private Practice (8/2003-Present)

- See attached for services and client list.

Colorado Real Estate Commission

Public Commissioner (4/2023-4/2024)

Somerville Partners, Inc.*

Industrial & Organizational Psychology (7/1995-4/1998 Contract Services, 4/1998-8/2003 Full Time Employment)

- Management/Organizational Consultant

[REDACTED]

- Organizational Development
- Work Process Development
- Sales Operations Consulting
- Executive Coaching/Strategic Planning
- Personality-Based Employee Selection Systems
- Structured Behavioral Interviewing and Training
- Analysis of Adverse Impact in Hiring Practices
- Large-Scale Project Management
- Personality Assessment & Survey Administration

*In approximately 2012, Somerville Partners wound down its operations and no longer functions as a stand-alone consulting firm.

Five Star Affiliates, Inc. (3/1997-5/1998)

- Director of Operations

David P. Herskovits, CEO

[REDACTED]

- Directed complex contract negotiation and purchasing of raw materials.
- Oversaw safe chemical handling, storage practices, and training.
- Accountable for inventory management of $1 million-plus raw material and finished product inventory.
- Conducted efficiency analysis and assessment of work processes and chemical production practices.
- Enforced OSHA and EEOC compliance.
- Directed production scheduling for $5 million-plus production facility.

American Golf/Golf Enterprises, Inc. (3/1994-3/1997)

- Operations Management

Danny Cline

[REDACTED]

- Oversight of $1 million-plus annual revenue-generating facilities.
- Turnaround management.
- Management of 50-200 member staff.

Education

The University of Denver & Lamont School of Music

- B.A., 1995

- Political Science

- Classical Voice

Dr. Gregg Kvistad, Provost (ret.)

Dr. Ronald Worstell (ret.)

[REDACTED]

OFFICE: 303-831-0967 . MOBILE: [REDACTED]

E-MAIL: [REDACTED]

THE OFFICE OF JOSH BRODBECK

Personal and Professional References

Ms. Marcia Waters

Director, Colorado Div. Of Real Estate

[REDACTED]

Ms. Barbara Kelley

Fmr. Executive Director
Colorado Dept. of Regulatory Agencies (DORA)

[REDACTED]

Mr. Robb Caseria

CEO, Juanita's Foods
Fmr. CEO, Natural Food Works, Castor & Pollux Petworks

[REDACTED]

Mr. Zac Jacobson

VP, Member Support
Peloton
Fmr. Director of Organizational Development, eBay Inc.

[REDACTED]

Mr. Pete Lansing

Founder, President & CEO, Universal Lending

[REDACTED]

Mr. David Solomon

Founder and Managing Partner
Meritage Private Equity Funds

[REDACTED]

Ms. Kim Day

Fmr. CEO, Denver International Airport
Board Member, Greater Toronto Airports Authority

[REDACTED]

Mr. Rico Munn

Fmr. Superintendent of Schools Aurora Public Schools,
Fmr. Exec. Dir Colorado DORA
Chief of Staff, Colorado State University

[REDACTED]

Mr. Art Zeile

CEO, DHX Group; Fmr. CEO, HostMySite.com, Fmr. CEO
Inflow

[REDACTED]

Mr. Charlie Wooley

CEO, St. Charles Town Company

[REDACTED]

Mr. Josh Berlo

Vice Chancellor for Athletics
University of Denver

[REDACTED]

Mr. Christopher Benyo

CEO, Lift & Store Inc.
Fmr. Executive Vice President, NuVox Communications

[REDACTED]

Ms. Amy Thrall

Principal, Talent Architecture, Ltd.
Fmr. Vice President of Human Resources
Jones International

[REDACTED]

Ms. Shannon Rowley

CHRO
MWH Global Constructors

[REDACTED]

Additional references readily available upon request.

THE OFFICE OF JOSH BRODBECK

The Office of Josh Brodbeck

Josh Brodbeck has been consulting to organizations of all industries and sizes since 1998, practicing as a sole proprietor since 2003. His background in management in manufacturing, then with a large, multi-national organization, and followed by 5 ½ years as a consultant with an industrial psychology firm has given him the best of both worlds in consulting skill -- the scientific ability to assess and diagnose organizational issues combined with the practical know-how to make effective changes quickly. He has worked in all functional areas and at all levels within his client organizations, making him well equipped to work effectively with boards, senior executives, middle-management, and front-line personnel. Josh has expertise working in the following industries/niches:

- High Technology
- Mortgage Lending/Banking/Finance
- Venture Capital/Private Equity
- Multi-Location Retail – Food and Beverage, and Convenience Retail
- State, Municipal, and County Governments
- Commercial Aviation/Airports & Airline Services
- Outdoor Industry
- Pharmaceutical Manufacturing
- Financial/Investment Services
- Energy – Extraction, Refining, and Retail
- Health Care/Insurance
- Software Development
- Telecommunications
- Real Estate Development
- NCAA Div. I Collegiate Athletics
- Multi-Location/National Law Firms
- Electronic Commerce – Retail and Business-to-Business
- Large Scale Industrial Construction

Although Josh's services are customized to each client's needs and run the gamut of organizational development, they can most easily be organized into the following categories:

- Executive Coaching and Assessment:
 - Executive Assessment
 - Executive Coaching – Developmental & Interventional
 - Executive Profiling & Job Package Development
 - Hiring Techniques and Interview Training
- Organizational Forensics
 - Post Crisis/Operational Failure Organizational Assessments
 - Change Management Organizational Assessments (M&A Planning, M&A Integration, Downsizing, Centralizing, Expansion & Growth, etc.)
 - Due Diligence Organizational Study (Pre, During, and Post Transaction)
 - Crisis Communications
- Strategic Planning
 - Executive Retreats
 - Organizational Strategic Reviews
 - Strategic Planning Retreats
- Board Management
 - Board Formation, Assessments & Environmental Reviews
 - Planning, Coordination & Facilitation of Board Meetings/Events
 - Board Communications & Counsel

References, case studies/samples, or additional information about any of Josh's services are available upon request.

THE OFFICE OF JOSH BRODBECK

Clients Include:

City and County of Denver

ENDEAVOUR CAPITAL

Little Pub Company

THE OFFICE OF JOSH BRODBECK

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION - 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Form with fields: Name (Last, First Middle), County, Cong. District, Senate District, House District, Home Address, City, State, Zip Code, Mailing Address, Date of Birth, Gender, Registered Voter?, Party Affiliation?, Ethnicity, Present Employer/Title, Business Phone #, Home Phone #, Cell Phone #, E-mail, Business Address.

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

Table with columns: LEVEL, NAME OF SCHOOL, LOCATION, No. Years Attended, Did You Graduate?, Major Course of Study. Includes rows for High School, College, Graduate Studies, and Memberships in Organizations.

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

Table with columns: NAME, RELATIONSHIP, PHONE #. Lists Sherry Lynn Boyles, Kathleen Voss, and Angie Outlaw as references.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: Full Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Czelatdko, Lisa	El Paso	5	11	16

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

Contribute to betterment of state, be a voice for others, make sure justice and ethics are protected

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

Lisa Czelatdko (sa-lot-ko)

Philanthropist, businesswoman, former Legislator, and advocate for amplifying the voices of women.

Lisa Czelatdko grew up in the Midwest. The oldest of three daughters, Lisa learned the core values of being authentic and hard working. She is always nurturing new and existing relationships, and finding ways to make a difference in people's lives within her community. Lisa has been a volunteer for many organizations. Some including are CASA/GALA, TESSA, American Heart Association, March of Dimes, COS Historic Preservation Board, Pikes Peak Opera League, The Woman's Club of Colorado Springs, and the Colorado Springs Philharmonic Guild.

Lisa is a commercial broker specializing in land acquisitions and disposition of sites sized from 0.5 to 200+ acres.

She brings her honest and creative approach, education, expansive networking and commitment to deliver valuable services to clients.

Lisa has had a diverse background in government relations and legislative policies. Lisa held positions in the Colorado Springs City Council, the Board of Directors for the Colorado Springs Utilities, Pikes Peak Area of Council Governments and Colorado State Transportation Advisory Committee. Her tenure with City Council garnered her specialized knowledge of the inner workings of the City as well as large number of associations through her many multiple board positions and community work.

The oldest of three children, Lisa grew up in Chicago, Illinois. She earned a Bachelor degree in Clinical Counseling Psychology from Saint Xavier University, Chicago, IL and a Master of Science degree in School Counseling from Eastern Illinois University, Charleston, IL.

Other education and certificates include El Paso County Citizens College, Leadership Pikes Peak, the Center for Creative Leadership, the Air Force Space Command Community Relations program, Fort Carson Leadership for the Day, Colorado State Capitol Legislative Internship, and Colorado Candidate School. She has worked as a substitute School Counselor and Teacher in Cheyenne Mountain School District 12 having created and partially funded, a bibliotherapy section for her children's elementary school library.

Lisa is a single mother to four daughters, . She has two fur babies, Stanley and Ollie.

She loves running, attending concerts, and traveling. Lisa has visited thirty-two countries and has a growing list to see more. Lisa strives to live her life filled with passion, faith and volunteerism.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Forsyth, Chris		County Jefferson	Cong. District 7	Senate District 22	House District 23
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Wheat Ridge		State CO	Zip Code 80214
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1965	Gender Male	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Unaffiliated		Ethnicity Caucasian
Present Employer/Title City of Aurora/Assistant City Attorney		Business Phone # (303) 739-7810		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 14999 E Alameda Pkwy		City Aurora		State Colorado	Zip Code 80012

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Erie High School	Erie, Kansas		1983
College	Neosho County Community College	Chanute, Kansas			Liberal Arts
	University of Kansas	Lawrence, Kansas		1988	Journalism
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if	The Judicial Integrity Project (present), Colorado Bar Association (present), Colorado Trial Lawyers Association (past), Workers' Compensation Education Association (past)

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Norman Beecher	friend as judicial reform advocate/lawyer	[REDACTED]
Fredricka Brown	family friend	[REDACTED]
Rosemary Van Gorder	friend as judicial reform advocate	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?:Part Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis
Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Forsyth, Chris	Jefferson	7	22	23

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

I care deeply about judicial integrity. That's why I started The Judicial Integrity Project. Colorado's Commission on Judicial Discipline is one of the worst discipline commissions in the country. It needs to be improved. The judiciary must be trusted, and the people of Colorado have concrete reasons for not trusting the judiciary. That's a problem that needs to be fixed. Violations of the Code of Judicial Conduct must be prosecuted. Changes proposed by the current commission would slightly change the process. But the changes benefit district court judges and not the people. We need to improve the system.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

CHRIS FORSYTH

ATTORNEY

CONTACT

Email: [REDACTED]
Phone: [REDACTED]
Address: [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

ESSENTIALS

Licensed/Bar: Colorado, #22608
Citizenship: USA
Selective Service: Registered

EDUCATION

Juris Doctorate: July 1992
University of Kansas
School of Law
AmJur: Advanced Litigation
Staff Member: Journal of Law and Public Policy
Colorado Bar: May 1993

Bachelor of Science, 1988

University of Kansas
School of Journalism
Awarded:
Outstanding Achievement in Major

GOVERNMENT SERVICE

Attorney

Office of Legislative Legal Services
Colorado General Assembly
1999-2000 legislative session

Deputy District Attorney

Colorado 4th Judicial District
1993-1997

Judicial Law Clerk

Denver Juvenile Court
Hon. Orrelle Weeks
1992-1993

PROFESSIONAL PROFILE

An effective litigator with 25+ years of experience. Proven success in handling complex legal issues, managing large projects, and overseeing investigations. Excellent research, writing and presentation skills. A tenacious trial lawyer who is also adept at handling appellate work. A zealous advocate who most often achieves advantageous settlements.

EXPERIENCE

ATTORNEY/OWNER

Colorado Law Company

05/05/2006 – present (40+ hours per week)

- Advise clients orally and in writing regarding legal strategy in workers' compensation cases
- Negotiate with employers and insurers to reach resolutions that benefit clients and avoid unnecessary litigation
- Coordinate investigations to obtain evidence
- Issue discovery requests and answer discovery
- Determine and prepare exhibits for hearing
- Interrogate witnesses at hearings and depositions
- Draft motions, briefs, and settlement documents in compliance with rules and statutes

ASSOCIATE

Riggs, Abney, Neal, Turpen, Orbison & Lewis PC

06/15/2004 – 05/04/2006 (40+ hours per week)

- Evaluated workers' compensation, civil, and criminal cases to determine appropriate legal representation
- Litigated a variety of cases to resolution or conclusion

IN-HOUSE COUNSEL

Joel N. Varnell & Associates

08/09/2001 – 09/30/2003 (40+ hours per week)

- Analyzed and advised insurer of financial exposure and legal strategy orally and in writing
- Handled a varied caseload of approximately 120 cases including workers' compensation, personal injury, and property damage
- Represented clients in jury trials and administrative hearings

ASSOCIATE

Treece, Alfrey, Musat & Bosworth

05/25/2000 – 08/08/2001 (40+ hours per week)

- Calculated and evaluated financial exposure for various insurers
- Deposed medical and vocational experts
- Performed legal research regarding workers' compensation

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Friesen, Daniel Ernest		County Arapahoe	Cong. District 6	Senate District 26	House District 37
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Englewood		State Colorado	Zip Code 80111
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED], 1959	Gender Male	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Democrat		Ethnicity Caucasian
Present Employer/Title /		Business Phone #		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address		City		State	Zip Code

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Cherry Creek Senior High	Greenwood Village, CO		1977
College	Williams College	Williamstown, MA		1981	Philosophy
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence	University of California at Los Angeles	Los Angeles		1984	Law
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if	See resume attached with cover letter.

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Christine Lamb	Former Law Partner	[REDACTED]
Scott Bechler	Chair of non-profit board on which I serve	[REDACTED]
Patrick Downing	Former client and friend	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: Full Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis
Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Friesen, Daniel Ernest	Arapahoe	6	26	37

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

As set for in the attached cover letter, I am deeply committed to the fair and effective administration of our judicial system and to protecting the public's perceptions of that system. I am a retired employment lawyer, with a life-long commitment to public service, and I believe my background and experience would be helpful to the Commission.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

Daniel E. Friesen

████████████████████
████████████████████
May 8, 2023

Chief Justice Brian D. Boatright
Colorado Supreme Court
2 East 14th Avenue
Denver CO 80203

Re: Application Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline

Dear Chief Justice Boatright,

Please accept my application for the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline. I am applying for this position because I believe the Commission is doing work vital to our legal system, and my background and skills could be helpful to its mission.

The legal and practical experience most relevant to the Commission's charge seems to be in the area of employment law. I am a retired attorney, on inactive status, with 30 years of experience focused primarily on employment litigation and counselling. I was the Chairman of the Employment Law Group at Davis, Graham & Stubbs and then later at my own mid-sized firm. I have litigated hundreds of cases and given dozens of seminars on workplace issues such as sexual harassment, discrimination, accommodating disabilities, substance abuse, and other forms of misconduct by high level professionals in positions of power. I have received recognition for my legal work through various lists and awards. See resumé.

I believe strongly in the importance of public service, and I have, for many years, been deeply committed to Colorado. I have served on 12 non-profit boards, including three as chairman and several involving our legal system. My interest in the integrity of our judiciary is also a family value. My father, Ernest C. Friesen, was one of the founders of the field of court administration. He started the Institute for Court Management and the National College for State Trial Judges, among other accomplishments. Although he is now 94, he remains sharp, and we continue to discuss his experiences training judges, creating judicial ethics codes across the country and related issues.

In today's political environment, it is particularly important to protect both the fair and effective operation of our legal system and the public's confidence in that system. I believe that my relevant legal experiences and my long-standing commitment to the broader Colorado legal community would be helpful to the Commission. Thank you for considering my application.

Sincerely,

Daniel E. Friesen

DANIEL E. FRIESEN

WORK EXPERIENCE

Friesen Lamb, LLP: March 2010 to May 2014. Founding member of 8-lawyer litigation firm, focusing on employment law and commercial litigation.

Hale Friesen, LLP: March 2002 to March 2010. Founding member and managing partner of 20-lawyer litigation firm. Practice emphasized employment law, land use litigation and public policy.

Davis, Graham & Stubbs: 1985-2002. Executive Committee Member, 1999-2000; Chairman Employment Law Group, 1996 to 2002; Partner, Trial Department, 1991-2002. Emphasis on employment law, complex commercial litigation, and constitutional law.

United States District Court for the District of Colorado: Law clerk to Hon. Jim R. Carrigan. August 1984 to August 1985.

EDUCATION

UCLA School of Law, J.D., June 1984

Distinguished Advocate, UCLA Moot Court Honors Program
Managing and Comments Editor, UCLA-Pacific Basin Law Journal
Member, UCLA-Alaska Law Review (published case note)

Williams College, B.A. Philosophy, June 1981

Phi Beta Kappa selection
Cum Laude
Dean's List every semester

Captain Varsity Soccer
President Armstrong House
Fox Award for Leadership

HONORS AND AWARDS

Chambers USA, selected as leading Labor & Employment Lawyer 2007-2014
Colorado Super Lawyer selection 2006-2014
5280 Magazine Top Lawyers in Colorado 2012- 2014
Fortune Magazine "Go To" Law Firm for Nations Top 500 Companies 2011-2014
Best Lawyers in America 2013, 2014
Denver Post Top Rated Lawyers Colorado 2013, 2014
Colorado Storm Soccer Association Hall of Fame, 2014
Lawyers World, Colorado Labor and Employment Attorney of the Year 2012, 2013
Labor and Employment Attorney of the Year Colorado 2011, 2012, 2013
Peer Review Rating AV Martindale Hubbel 1990 to present
9-News 1999 Leader of the Year Finalist
Denver Business Journal 1998 Forty under 40 Business Leaders Award
Outstanding Young Man of America Award, 1996

Leadership Denver Class of 1995
Young Lawyer of the Year 1992, Denver Bar Association
Civil Litigator Award 1991, Colorado Bar Association
Colorado Lawyer for the Arts Award 1991

COMMUNITY SERVICE

Colorado United Soccer Club Board Member 2018 to present
KIPP Board Member, 2014 to 2018. Board Chairman 2018
Colorado Common Cause, Board Member 2013-2014
Colorado Youth for Change, Board Member 2012-2013
The Children's Hospital of Colorado. Board Member 1999-2010, Secretary and Executive Committee 2001-2007, Chairman Professional Affairs Committee 2000-2007, Compensation Committee 2001-2010
Colorado Storm Soccer Association. Board Member 1992-2007, President and Board Chair 1996-2002, Vice President 2002-2007, Competitive Soccer Coach 1992-2009, Planning Committee 2012-2014. Outreach Program Director 2017-2019
Qualistar founding Member Board of Directors and General Counsel 1998-2001
Family Futures Chairman 1993-1997
Mile High Child Care Association Board Member 1988-1996, Vice President 1990-1994
Colorado Lawyers Committee, Board Member 2010-2014, Board Member and Task Force Chairman 1993-1997
Second Vice President, Denver Bar Association, 1993-1994
Board of Trustees, Denver Bar Association, 1993-1994
Association of Senior Citizens Board Member 1991-1994
Mayfair Neighbors Board Member 1987-1990
Pro Bono Coordinator for Davis, Graham & Stubbs, 1991-1997
Diversity Committee, Davis, Graham & Stubbs, 1998-99
Policy Committee Chairman, Dick Frees for Attorney General, 1994
Democratic Party Precinct Committee person 1986-1992

LEGAL TEACHING

Trial Advocacy Instructor, National Institute for Trial Advocacy, 1997-1998
Contracts Professor, University of Colorado 1985.

PUBLICATIONS

"Investigating Sexual Harassment," Vol. 21:9 Colorado Journal, § II 4 (February 1997)
"Enjoining Former Employees from Taking Software," 24 Colorado Lawyer 1771 (1995)
"New Shield Law Protects Reporters from Subpoenas," 20 Colorado Lawyer 891 (1991)
"Drug Testing in Colorado: Problems and Advice for Private Employers," 19 Colorado Lawyer 413 (1990)
"Challenging Alaska's Ban on the Fluctuating Work Week," 12 UCLA-Alaska Law Review 183 (1983-84)

SEMINARS AND SPEECHES

- “Fake News and the First Amendment,” University of Dayton School of Law, March 2021
- “What Can We Do to Protect the Election,” National Webinar Series, University of Dayton School of Law, October 2020
- “Marijuana in the Workplace after Legalization,” Lorman, February 2012
- “Medical Marijuana in the Workplace” Colorado Safety Association, April 2011
- “When Should Human Resources Call Legal Counsel: a guide to use of outside counsel in managing difficult human resources issues,” Hale Friesen Seminars, October 2009.
- “Exit Check Lists, Wage Claim Act Issues, and Other Administrative Considerations When Terminating Employees,” Colorado Bar Association, spring 2009.
- “New Developments in Employment Law: FMLA, ADA, and Discrimination Law,” Employment Seminars, October 2008
- “Fair Labor Standards Act – New Developments in Compliance Issues and Class Actions,” Sterling Education, April 2008
- “Why Plaintiffs Sue: Identifying High Risk Employees in the Areas of Harassment, Wrongful discharge and Discrimination,” HF Employment Seminars, October 2006
- “Employee Handbooks and At-Will Employment,” National Business Institute, January 2006
- “Discrimination Basics – How Companies get it Wrong,” Employment Seminars, 2005
- “Recent Development in Discrimination, Harassment and Sabanes-Oxley,” Employment Seminars, November 2004
- “Motions in Limine,” National Employment Lawyers Association, June 2003
- “Handling Employees with Bad Attitudes,” Employment Seminars, September 2002
- “Opening Statement in Employment Cases,” Lorman, April 2002
- “Employment Law for Small Businesses,” National Business Institute, March 2002
- “Family Medical Leave Act,” American Bar Association, October 2001
- “How to Win Employment Litigation,” Employment Seminars, September 2001
- “Trade Secrets and Non-Compete Agreements,” Colorado Bar Association, September 2001
- “Employment Law Overview,” Colorado Business Association, July 2001
- “Privacy in the Workplace,” National Business Institute, December 2000
- “Protecting Intellectual Property in the Workplace,” Employment Seminars, October 2000
- “The ADA, FMLA and Workers Compensation,” Council on Education in Management, October 1999
- “New Developments in Employee Handbooks,” Employment Seminars, September 1999
- “Employment Law – An Intermediate to Advanced Level Seminar,” Colorado Bar Association, CLE, April 1999
- “Recent Developments in Employment Law,” Colorado Bar Association CLE, October 1998
- “Fundamentals of Mergers & Acquisitions and Ethics of the Transactions,” Colorado Bar Association CLE, October 1998
- “Fundamental Issues in Colorado Human Resources Law,” National Business Institute, October 1998
- “New Developments in Sexual Harassment,” Employment Seminars, September 1998
- “Employee Testing,” Council on Education in Management, August 1998
- “Current Issues in Privacy in the Workplace,” Colorado Legal Education, Inc., March 1998
- “Colorado Labor and Employment Law,” National Business Institute, January 1998

“Domestic Violence in the Workplace – What Employers Must Do,” Colorado Bar Association, August 1997

“Privacy in the Workplace in Electronic Era,” Continuing Legal Education in Colorado, Inc., April 1997

“Top 10 Disabilities Under the ADA and How to Accommodate Them,” Counsel on Education in Management, February 1997

“Employee Reviews in Discrimination Cases,” Colorado Human Resources Association Legislative Law Conference, January 1997

“Ethical Issues for In-House Counsel,” American Corporate Counsel Association, December 1996

“Employment Law – An Overview,” Restaurant Hospitality & Gaming Conference, Las Vegas, November 1996

“Legal Issues in Managing Your Unworking Workforce,” Council on Education in Management, October 1996

“New Developments in ERISA Litigation,” Employment Law Seminar, September 1996

“Employment Issues in Mergers and Acquisitions,” Cambridge Institute, May 1996

“Sexual Harassment – The Most Difficult Problems,” Employment Seminars, April 1996

“Employment Law Update,” Boulder Area Human Resources Institute, January 1996

“Theft of Trade Secrets,” Labor and Employment Seminars, September 1995

“Discharging Employees,” Japan-America Society, January 1995

“Labor and Employment Law Issues for Corporation Counsel,” Continuing Legal Education in Colorado, Inc., October 1994

“Controlling Litigation Expenses,” National Business Institute, September 1994

“Family and Medical Leave Act,” Labor and Employment Seminars, May 1994

“Colorado Labor and Employment Law,” National Business Institute, January 1994

“Litigation Discrimination Clams Before Administrative Agencies in Colorado,” Colorado Bar Association Convention, October 1993

“Family and Medical Leave Act,” Housing and Development Law Institute, Fall 1993

“The Americans With Disabilities Act,” Colorado Bar Association Convention, September 1992

“Fair Labor Standards Act,” Council on Education in Management, June 1993

“Sexual Harassment,” Colorado Human Resources Association, January 1993

“Privacy in the Workplace,” Colorado Human Resources Association, January 1993

“Employment Contracts,” Boulder Human Resources Association, August 1992

“The Civil Rights Act of 1991,” Council on Education Management, July 1992

“The Eroding Doctrine of Employment at Will,” National Business Institute, March 1992

“Employment Contracts,” Labor and Employment Seminars, January 1992

“Employee Theft,” Labor and Employment Seminars, January 1991

“Drug Testing: Problems and Advice for Private Employers,” Drug Free Workplace Seminar, Colorado Chamber of Commerce, June 1990

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Herlik, Edward Charles		County El Paso	Cong. District 5	Senate District 9	House District 20
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Monument		State CO	Zip Code 80132
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1958	Gender Male	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Unaffiliated		Ethnicity Caucasian
Present Employer/Title /		Business Phone #		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address		City		State	Zip Code

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Friendly Senior High School	Oxon Hill, MD		1976
College	US Air Force Academy	Colorado Springs, CO		1980	Engineering & Political Science
	California State University	San Bernardino, CA		1984	Political Science
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held (Indicate if	Veterans of Foreign Wars (present) Mensa (present) AF Academy Association of Graduates (present) El Paso County Sheriff's Citizens Advisory Committee (past)

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Michael Boatner	Service Academy graduate peer	[REDACTED]
Trevor Cofer, Esq.	Attorney	[REDACTED]
Vance Forepaugh	Former military commander	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: Full Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Herlik, Edward Charles	El Paso	5	9	20

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

Please see the cover letter.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

Ed Herlik

Application Cover Letter
Commission on Judicial Discipline

25 March 2024

Dear Governor Polis,

Our judiciary has been in the media for a number of ethical lapses over the past few years. My family has personal experience with failed judicial ethics that reinforces those stories for me. We share the understandable public distrust. That's very concerning because Colorado certainly needs a trusted judiciary as the very foundation for trust in state government generally.

I do my best to offer solutions when I point out problems and to also serve my community where I have something to contribute. Therefore, I hope you'll appoint me to the Commission on Judicial Discipline as a step toward rebuilding trust in our judiciary. I'll contribute in two relevant ways on top of the professionalism and dedication that I'm sure all appointees bring.

I graduated from the Air Force Academy, became a third-generation combat officer, and later volunteered as an honor and ethics instructor and mentor in the Academy's character program for about 25 years. I held very significant government security clearances for decades, meaning I was routinely investigated for trustworthiness. I've easily passed the periodic background checks as a school teacher and as a volunteer with county government. Therefore, I'll bring a demonstrated personal integrity to your team that the public will both recognize and appreciate. I'll also bring that broadening perspective on standards of conduct to compliment the many members of the legal profession who sit on that Commission.

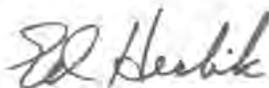

My family's experience with judicial ethics led me to contact the Commission. I'm one of the few citizens who has experienced the Commission's process from the outside, which I'm happy to discuss with you. It's a dissapointing and cautionary story, despite the fact that the problem judge resigned under pressure. That rare perspective will contribute to improving the Commission's process and implementing the change that's very likely to come after November's vote on the relevant ballot issue.

That contact also left me familiar with the Rules of Judicial Discipline. They're very clear and similar to other codes of conduct I've abided by in my professional life.

You're welcome to my resume and any other background information you like. Please just specify what more detail you want.

So, again, I ask that you appoint me to the Commission on Judicial Discipline as a valuable public service in my retirement. I promise integrity, discretion, conscientiousness and loyalty. You'll never be surprised.

Sincerely,

Note: the application form does not have enough space for all the Coloradoans who want to be references:

- | | | |
|--------------------|---------------------------|------------|
| Michael Boatner | West Point Graduate | [Redacted] |
| Bill Byars | Veteran | [Redacted] |
| Trevor Cofer, Esq. | Attorney | [Redacted] |
| Rich Crawford | Veteran | [Redacted] |
| Vance Forepaugh | Former Commander | [Redacted] |
| Dennis Jones | Academy Classmate | [Redacted] |
| Brandon LaValley | Former University Student | [Redacted] |
| Doug Laird | Social Group Friend | [Redacted] |

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Hupfer, Levon		County Adams	Cong. District 8	Senate District 21	House District 32
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Brighton		State CO	Zip Code 80601
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1979	Gender Male	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Unaffiliated		Ethnicity Caucasian
Present Employer/Title Adams County Health Department/Deputy Executive Director		Business Phone #		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address		City		State	Zip Code

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	North High School	Denver Co		1998
College	Liberty University	Lynchburg VA		2003	Religion
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence	Liberty University	Lynchburg VA		2010	Human Services - Marriage and Family Studies
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if	2022-2023 Attorney General's Opioid Settlement Regional Council. Appointed by elected DA 2017-2023

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Senator Michaelson Jenet	Colleague	[REDACTED]
Lewis Brown Jr	Friend and former Colleague	[REDACTED]
Brian Mason	Colleague	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?:Part Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Hupfer, Levon	Adams	8	21	32

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

I have just completed two terms on TGYS and it was an honor so I have some capacity.

I want to use my skills and experience to serve my state and improve my community.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

LEVON HUPFER, MA, LAC

CONTACT

Cell: [REDACTED]

BOARDS/PAPERS/AWARDS

2022

Attorney General's Opioid Settlement Regional Council. Appointed by elected District Attorney

2017-Present

Tony Gramscas Youth Services Board (CDHS), Board Chair. Appointed by Governors Hickenlooper and Polis

2019

Colorado Association of Addiction Counselors (CAAP) President's Award

2014, 2018 & 2019

International Winter Symposium on Addictive Disorders, Behavioral Health & Mental Health

2016

National Symposium on Juvenile Services, Invited Faculty

2011-2013

State Board of Addiction Counselor Examiners, Member. Appointed by Governor Hickenlooper

EDUCATION EXPERIENCE/CREDENTIALS

Cornell University

Certificate of Strategic Human Resources Leadership
Graduate Certificate of Executive Leadership

Liberty University

Master of Arts in Human Services – Marriage & Family Studies

Colorado Department of Regulatory Agencies

LAC – Licensed Addiction Counselor #216

Lean Six Sigma

Green Belt Certification – Rocky Mountain Partnership

RECENT EXPERIENCE

Adams County Health Department

Deputy Executive Director

November 2023 – Present

Lead over 130 staff in 3 Divisions: Public Health Nursing, Environmental Health and Nutrition and Family Health

17th District Attorney's Office

Director of Diversion, Health & Legislation

2013 – 2023

Colorado State University Grad Dept of Psychology

Adjunct Lecturer

2019 – Present

Galvanize Counseling Private Practice

Owner & Therapist

2017 – Present

Colorado Department of Human Services

Program Director

2008 – 2013

Decisively directed all operations of a youth residential center on a 22-acre campus with 50 staff, 50 clients, and a $4M budget

REFERENCES

- Senator Dafna Michaelson Jenet
- District Attorney Brian S. Mason, Colorado's 17th Judicial District
- Lewis Brown, Jr., Vice President of Talent, Comcast, West Region

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Kramer, Daniel Evan		County Larimer	Cong. District 2	Senate District 15	House District 49
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Estes Park		State Colorado	Zip Code 80517
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1983	Gender Male	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Democrat		Ethnicity Caucasian
Present Employer/Title Town of Estes Park, CO/Town Attorney		Business Phone # (970) 577-4761		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 170 MacGregor Ave., P.O. Box 1200		City Estes Park		State Colorado	Zip Code 80517

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Nova High School	Davie, FL		2001
College	Duke University	Durham, NC		2005	Public Policy Studies
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence	University of California, Berkeley, School of Law	Berkeley, CA		2011	Law
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if	Member, Conservation Colorado (present) Member, Estes Valley Land Trust (present) Treasurer, Boulder Ensemble Theatre Company (past) Board Member, Boulder Food Rescue (past)

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Kate Greenberg	Personal	[REDACTED]
Shoshana Lew	Personal; Some intergovernmental work	[REDACTED]
Wendy Koenig	Mayor of Estes Park (employer)	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?:Part Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis
Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Kramer, Daniel Evan	Larimer	2	15	49

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

My mentor, Justice Gregory J. Hobbs, Jr. of the Colorado Supreme Court, recently passed away. Justice Hobbs was a tireless advocate for Coloradans his entire career, fighting for water justice, clean air, and the rights of ordinary people. While I work on some of these issues in my day job in local government, Justice Hobbs' passing has inspired me to get more active at the state level. My background is in environmental, municipal, and administrative law. Please feel free to consider me for any volunteer appointment if my skills might be useful.

Please let me know if you plan to get in touch with my references.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

Daniel Evan Kramer

ATTORNEY EXPERIENCE

Town of Estes Park, CO

2019-present

Town Attorney

Advise and represent the Town on all legal matters, and draft all legal documents. Guide the Town through TABOR litigation, vacation home rental regulation, water negotiations, workforce housing requirements, and emergency response authority, among other issues. Oversee prosecutor and special counsel for municipal broadband, eminent domain, water, bond finance, intellectual property, employment, capital project support, tort claims, civil rights, and other litigation. Participate on the Town's leadership team, making staff-level decisions for the organization.

Longmont City Attorney's Office, Longmont, CO

2012-2019

Assistant City Attorney II

Directly advised the City Council and City administration, drafted ordinances, and represented the City on a wide range of public-facing matters including land use, planning and zoning, affordable housing, public works, natural resources, parks and open space, oil and gas, water and wastewater utilities, water rights and resources, marijuana regulation and licensing, homelessness, special districts, and eminent domain.

Colorado Supreme Court, Denver, CO

2011-2012

Law Clerk to Justice Gregory J. Hobbs, Jr.

Drafted opinions and wrote memoranda to the Court, including on municipal, water, and natural resources law.

EDUCATION

University of California, Berkeley, School of Law, Berkeley, CA

J.D., Order of the Coif (Top 10%), May 2011

Certificate of Specialization in Environmental Law

- Honors: William C. Jones Scholarship (as one of the top five students in Class of 2011, and awarded for exceptional service and original work)
Ellis J. Harmon Prize (best student paper on environmental law & policy)
Prosser Prize in Constitutional Law (from Justice Goodwin Liu)
Prosser Prize in Water Law (from Professor Antonio Rossmann)
- Activities: Editor in Chief, Ecology Law Quarterly
Committee Chair, Graduate Assembly of UC Berkeley
Moot Court Team (nationally competitive)
Berkeley Law Student Association Representative
Strategic and financial management courses, Haas School of Business

Duke University, Durham, NC

B.A., magna cum laude, Public Policy Studies, May 2005 (Dean's List, 6 semesters)

PRIOR EXPERIENCE

California Attorney General's Office, Oakland, CA

Summer 2010

Legal Intern; Environment, Land, and Natural Resources Sections

Center for Biological Diversity, San Francisco, CA

Summer 2009

Legal Intern

Montana Wilderness Association, Livingston, MT 2007-2008
Outreach Coordinator
Organized grassroots support for wilderness protection campaigns.

AmeriCorps 2005-2006
Crew Leader & Member
Built trails, restored streams, killed invasive weeds, etc., throughout Alaska, Maryland, and Utah.

PUBLICATIONS AND PRESENTATIONS

Daniel E. Kramer, Springtime for Home Rule over Oil and Gas, COLORADO LAWYER, July 2019, at 36.

Daniel E. Kramer, The Evolving Definition of "Conflict" in Colorado Preemption Law, COLORADO LAWYER, April 2019, at 38.

Panhandlemonium - How to Move Your Ordinances Along, Colorado Municipal League Attorney Seminar, Fall 2017.

The Death (or Rebirth) of Colorado Preemption Law, Colorado Municipal League Attorney Seminar, Fall 2014.

Daniel Kramer, Comment, United Voices: An Open Proposal for Smart and Fair Growth in the Central Valley, 39 ECOLOGY L.Q. 193 (2012) (Harmon Prize-winning article).

Daniel Kramer, In Brief, Gray Wolves Face Delisting, Again, and Why the Courts Will Force Relisting, Again, 36 ECOLOGY L.Q. 583 (2009).

INTERESTS

Backpacking, biking, bluegrass, gardening, kombucha, meditation, sewing masks, skiing and ski touring, softball, theater, trail running, vegan cooking, yoga.

BAR ADMISSIONS

Colorado

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Mix, Kristen Louise		County Denver	Cong. District 1	Senate District 33	House District 8
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Denver		State CO	Zip Code 80238
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED], 1958	Gender Female	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Unaffiliated		Ethnicity Caucasian
Present Employer/Title Judicial Arbiter Group/Arbiter		Business Phone # (303) 572-1919		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 1601 Blake St., Ste. 500		City Denver		State Colorado	Zip Code 80202

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Nichols School	Buffalo, NY		1976
College	Middlebury College	Middlebury, VT		1980	English
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence	University of Colorado	Boulder, CO		1985	Law
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if	Please see attached biography.

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Hon. Kato Crews	former colleague	[REDACTED]
Hon. Kathryn Starnella	friend and mentee	[REDACTED]
Hon. Nancy E. Rice	friend, mentor, colleague	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?:Part Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Mix, Kristen Louise	Denver	1	33	8

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

I previously served on the Governor's Commission on Family Medicine and found it to be very rewarding. Having retired from service as a judge, I would like to use my experience to contribute on matters relating to judicial discipline.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

Biography of Kristen L. Mix

Kristen L. Mix graduated from Middlebury College, cum laude, with a degree in English. She obtained her J.D. from the University of Colorado School of Law and practiced law in Denver until 2007, when she was appointed to the federal bench. Magistrate Judge Mix's expertise prior to her appointment was in labor and employment law. In 2006 and 2007, Judge Mix was recognized as a top employment lawyer by Chambers U.S.A. and named one of the top twenty-five women lawyers in Colorado by 5280 Magazine. She retired from active judicial service on August 5, 2023 and joined the Judicial Arbitrator Group in Denver, where she works as a mediator, arbitrator and special master.

Magistrate Judge Mix served on the United States District Court for the District of Colorado's Local Rules Committee throughout her tenure on the federal bench. Post-retirement, she continues to serve as Co-Chair of the court's Pro Se Prisoner Task Force, which is developing methods to assist with its extensive prisoner caseload. She led the project to establish the Federal Pro Se Clinic in the District of Colorado, which opened in the Alfred A. Arraj United States Courthouse in June of 2018, and to expand services to pro se prisoner litigants in 2023. From 2012 to 2018, Judge Mix served on the Judicial Conference of the United States' Committee on the Administration of the Magistrate Judge System. Judge Mix also served as a member of the Federal Magistrate Judges Association's Executive Committee from 2017 to 2021 and as President of the FMJA in 2021-2022. She is the past Chair of the Colorado Judicial Coordinating Council, where she created and planned conferences to facilitate sharing of views and ideas between Colorado state and federal judges on matters of common interest. Judge Mix served on the Colorado Access to Justice Commission from 2019-2022. As a member of the Sedona Conference, Judge Mix assisted in drafting the Commentary on Possession, Custody and Control of documents under Fed. R. Civ. P. 34 and the Social Media Primer. She serves on Sedona's Advisory Board as well. In 2023, Judge Mix was appointed to the Global Advisory Council of EDRM, the Electronic Discovery Research Module.

Magistrate Judge Mix has served as an adjunct professor at the University of Colorado School of Law and University of Denver Sturm College of Law. She was the judicial co-founder of the Colorado Intellectual Property American Inn of Court and served on the Executive Committee of the Sonia Sotomayor American Inn of Court. In 2013, Judge Mix created an annual public-service externship program for local, diverse second and third-year law students to obtain externships with public employers and non-profits in the Denver metropolitan area. As of her retirement from the court, more than 350 law students had completed externships through the “MixDIP” program.

In 2006, Judge Mix was appointed by Governor Bill Owens to serve on the Colorado Commission on Family Medicine. She served as Chair of the Commission from 2013-2017, and also served as a member and Chair of the Board of Directors of the Colorado Institute of Family Medicine from 2013 to 2018.

Judge Mix accepts appointments as a mediator, arbitrator and special master in a wide variety of civil litigation and has particular expertise in labor and employment law. She is a frequent writer and speaker on the law.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Nunez, Anthony		County Pueblo	Cong. District 3	Senate District 3	House District 46
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Pueblo		State Colorado	Zip Code 81006
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1947	Gender Male	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Democrat		Ethnicity Caucasian, Native American, Hispanic
Present Employer/Title /		Business Phone #		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address		City		State	Zip Code

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	South High School	Pueblo, CO		1965
College
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if	Present: Director Lower Arkansas Water Conservancy Board, Pueblo Regional Building. Past: 10 Judicial Performance Commission, Pueblo County Commissioner (2 term), Pueblo County Democrat Party, Chairman (3 terms), VP/Trustee City-County Library Foundation

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Garrison Ortiz	Acquittance	[REDACTED]
Dennis Maes	Acquittance	[REDACTED]
Jeff Chostner	Acquittance	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: Full Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis
Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Nunez, Anthony	Pueblo	3	3	46

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

For the betterment of State, Community and Social environments, one must be an active participant. Accountability

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

Anthony Nunez

Community Activist/Retired
Businessman

Experience

2000 - Current

Retired Businessman/Community Activist

Currently involved education improvement movement, advocate for local businessman needing guidance in navigating through licensing and permit issues. Active board member, Lower Arkansas Water Conservancy District

1990 - 2000

Pueblo County Commissioner

Manage the County budget and oversee all operations of County projects. Maintain State guidelines, manage and direct all department heads and address the needs and concerns of all Pueblo County Residents. Chairman, Pueblo Democrat Party.

1965 – 1989

Corporate Businessman/Independent Business Owner/Board Member

Successfully managed the accounting, personal and general everyday operation of my catering, retail liquor store and residential rental businesses. Served on numerous private schools, civic and state boards, to include the 10 Judicial Performance Commission being appointed by Governor Roy Romer and Governor Bill Owens. Management team Safeway Stores Inc.

Education

1961 – 1965

General Curriculum

Pueblo South High

Skills

- Leadership
- Organization
- Problem Solving
- Negotiation
- Teamwork

Contact

██████████
██████████████████
██████████████████
██████████████████████████████

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Pacheco, Marisa Lee		County Pueblo	Cong. District 3	Senate District 3	House District 62
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Pueblo		State Colorado	Zip Code 81006
Mailing Address		City		State	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1973	Gender Female	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Unaffiliated		Ethnicity Caucasian
Present Employer/Title City of Pueblo/Human Resources Director		Business Phone # 719-553-2665		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 301 West B Street		City Pueblo		State Colorado	Zip Code

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	William Mitchell High School	Colorado Springs		1992	General
College	University of Colorado	Colorado Springs		1996	Psychology/Gerontology
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held (Indicate if)	Society of Human Resources Management - Senior Professional Certified International Public Management Association - Senior Professional Certified

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Nick Gradisar		[REDACTED]
Laura Solano		[REDACTED]
Troy Davenport		[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: I am capable of committing as much time as necessary to fulfill the duties of this position. It would be an honor to be selected.

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Pacheco, Marisa Lee	Pueblo	3	3	62

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

I am a Colorado native and dedicated public servant with deep local government expertise. This board opportunity provides a way to serve in a meaningful way at a state level, beyond my immediate community. This is very exciting and of great interest to me both professionally and personally. I have nearly twenty-five years of Human Resources experience, have held management positions for sixteen of those years, mostly working in local government.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

MARISA PACHECO

IMPA-HR SCP, SHRM-SCP

Dynamic, accomplished human resources leader with 24 years of achievement and success in providing strategic human resources leadership in both public sector (union and non-union) and private sector environments. Core competencies and skills include:

- Compensation and classification system design and management
- Budgeting and forecasting
- Benefits administration, cost containment
- Public Safety and civilian union experience
- HR Audits, process improvement, change management
- Worker's compensation and risk management
- Executive and line recruitment
- Program management experience
- Labor relations/union experience
- Training design, development, and delivery
- Employee relations and investigation expertise
- Extensive policy development experience

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE & SELECTED ACHIEVEMENTS

Human Resources Director, City of Pueblo, 4/2010-Present

One of the largest employers in the Pueblo market with approximately 800 regular FTEs and 1300 total employees including seasonal temporaries, the City of Pueblo is a full-service city. General Fund annual budget is approximately 98 million with 70% in personnel costs. In the Human Resources Director role, responsible for all facets of the Human Resources function reporting to the elected Mayor:

- Directed the work of a combination of professional, paraprofessional, technical and administrative support staff
- Serve as policy advisor to the City Manager for 8 years, then following conversion of government to Mayor and Directors.
- Management negotiations team member on annual contract negotiations for International Association of Firefighters (IAFF Local #3), International Brotherhood of Police Officers (IBPO Local #537), Pueblo Association of Government Employees (PAGE affiliate of AFSCME Local #1712) and Amalgamated Transit Union No. 662
- Extensive labor relations experience, representing the City on union grievance issues and disciplinary matters in conjunction with legal counsel
- Deep expertise in employee relations matters to include investigations and mediation
- Manage the compensation and classification systems performing annual market compensation studies, including general market analysis and comprehensive benchmark studies in advance of labor contract negotiations to develop recommendations to the Mayor

- Developed Pueblo Leadership Academy a year-long comprehensive supervisory academy for City staff members starting in 2012 and Director's Informational Workshops in 2020
- For the first time in the City's history, established zero cost positive insurance broker relationship keeping premium changes in line with national trend despite high utilization of plans
- Managed the transition of the City's approximately $13 million dollar per year medical insurance program from fully insured to self-insured in 2020. Manage all benefit plans including fully insured programs, RFP and selection activities
- Moved organization to streamlined web-based platform for benefits open enrollment, served as key operational leader on major ERP system conversion and lead the City's implementation of a new online learning platform
- Manage self-insured workers' compensation and risk management activities
- Developed credibility and strong relationships with senior management and employees
- Performance ratings of exceeds expectations during tenure with City organization

Co-Owner/Principal of Human Capital Group, LLC, 1/2009-4/2010

Co-owner and Principal of innovative human resources management consulting firm specializing in employment lifecycle solutions for private and public sector organizations.

- Provided customized solutions to clients in the core areas of human resources management to include comprehensive audit, administrative review oversight, compensation and classification strategy, recruitment and selection, investigations and fact finding, employee relations, training and facilitation, legal compliance, policy and procedure review and development, training and facilitation, succession planning design and talent and management as well as reduction in force management and career transition services
- Developed nationally certified Human Resources University curriculum
- Shared responsibility for sales and marketing, financial management, and company operations

Human Resources Director – Pueblo City-County Library District, 6/2008–2/2009

Director level position, part of the senior management team reporting directly to Chief Executive of the Library District responsible for all areas of human resources management including the management of volunteer coordination staff.

- Managed all Human Resources functions for the Pueblo City-County Library District (PCCLD) for approximately 120 employees
- Traditional responsibilities included compensation, classification, recruitment, employee relations, EEO compliance, ADA, FMLA, FLSA review and administration, worker's compensation, human resources information systems, manage/oversee volunteer function, budget administration, general program management

- Project management and process improvement projects include the development of a succession planning program, overhaul of policies and procedures for entire district, identification of ways to enhance efficiency and effectiveness of all HR procedures and practices

Human Resources Manager – City of Colorado Springs, 2/2000-6/2008

Human Resources Manager – Colorado Springs Fire Department 5/2007-6/2008

Human Resources Manager – Colorado Springs Police Department 11/2005-11/2007

Human Resources Manager – Central Human Resources 1/2004-11/2005

Principal Human Resources Analyst - 1/2003 – 1/2004

Senior Human Resources Analyst – 8/1/2000-4/2002

Human Resources Analyst II –2/2000-8/2000

At the time of service, the City of Colorado Springs was and remains one of the largest employers in the local market, with approximately 2,700 employees serving a City population of nearly 500,000. The City's budget was approximately 300 million dollars annually, of which approximately 60% of the annual budget was dedicated to total compensation costs.

Focused expertise and responsibilities in compensation, classification, executive recruitment, employee relations, benefits administration, human resources information systems program management and strategic process improvement project experience:

- Only Human Resources Manager in the City to have worked in central Human Resources administration and both public safety departments
- Managed all Human Resources functions for Colorado Springs Fire Department (CSFD) for an employee population of 500
- Prior to being recruited by CSFD, served as the Human Resources Manager for the Colorado Springs Police Department managing all Human Resources functions for an employee population of 1,200
- In all Human Resources Manager positions have managed a combination of professional, paraprofessional, technical and administrative support staff
- During six-year tenure with central City Human Resources, managed the compensation and classification systems performing annual market compensation studies, including general market analysis and comprehensive benchmark studies
- Responsible for the development of recommendations for annual market increases and compensation system realignment for inclusion in the City Manager's annual budget
- Participated in the development of appointed position compensation packages
- Developed credibility and strong relationships with senior management and employees which lead to recruitment to public safety departments
- Developed cost-effective executive recruitment strategy resulting in high-quality hires and is now a model being used by other local public sector agencies
- Facilitated senior management task force to develop succession planning program

- Performance ratings of exceeds expectations during tenure with City organization
- Selected for numerous City-wide and department committees and task forces including, Minority Recruitment Task Force (2005-2008, Chair 2008), Leadership Development Series Executive Steering Committee (2007-2008), PeopleSoft Time and Labor Executive Committee (2007-2008), Promotional Process Committee (2007-2008), City Wellness Committee (2005-2007), City Manager's Budget Analysis Team (2003), Leadership Development Action Team (2003-2005), Customer Service Quality Council (2000-2002) and Diversity and Inclusion Training Team (2001-2005). First civilian recipient of Community Above and Beyond Award (2004).

Human Resources Generalist and National Recruiter, 12/1996-2/2000
Arthur Andersen LLP – Denver, CO, and Chicago IL

Arthur Andersen LLP, formerly one of the largest financial services firms in the world with approximately 60,000 employees worldwide provided assurance, contract accounting, and human capital services to client companies.

During my tenure with Arthur Andersen, I held several professional human resources positions with an emphasis on recruiting within the Assurance and Business Advisory practice, at the local level in Denver and at the national level out of the firm's Chicago headquarters.

National Recruiter, 2/1999-2/2000
Recruiting Coordinator, 10/1997-3/1999
Assurance and Business Advisory (ABA) National Recruiting Team
Chicago, IL

Human Resources Generalist, 12/1996-12/1998
Business Process Outsourcing (BPO) Practice
Denver, CO

EDUCATION & CERTIFICATIONS

Bachelor of Arts (BA), Psychology, academic minor in Gerontology
University of Colorado – May 1996
Graduated magna cum laude with GPA of 3.9

Center for Creative Leadership (CCL) – Colorado Springs
Graduate of Leadership Development Program – 2005

National Incident Management System (NIMS) – Advanced Certification
Certified - ICS 100, ICS 200, ICS 300, ICS 400, ICS 700, ICS 800

International Public Management Association – IMPA-HR Senior Certified Professional

Society for Human Resources Management Senior Certified Professional, SHRM-SCP

PROFESSIONAL MEMBERSHIPS

Society for Human Resources Management (National)
2000-present

Colorado Springs Society for Human Resources Management
2000-2010

Colorado Springs Human Resources Association

Elected Board Member: Vice President, Secretary and Education/Certification Director 2009-2010

IPMA-HR (International Public Management Association) 2010-present

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Powell, David Daniel		County Denver	Cong. District 1	Senate District 31	House District 2
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Denver		State Colorado	Zip Code 80209
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1958	Gender Male	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Democrat		Ethnicity African American
Present Employer/Title Garnett Powell Maximon Barlow/Partner		Business Phone # (720) 252-7947		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 1512 Larimer St. , Suite 950		City Denver		State Colorado	Zip Code 80202

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Salinas High School	Salinas, California		1976
College	University of Santa Clara	Santa Clara, California		1980
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence	UCLA School of Law	Los Angeles, California		1983	Law
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if	Board of Directors, Denver Dumb Friends League, Board of Directors, Colorado Alzheimer's Association, Sam Cary Bar Association, International Society of Barristers, National Employment Law Council, College of Labor and Employment Attorneys

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Stan Garnett	Colleague/Partner	[REDACTED]
Alvin LaCabe	Friend and mentor	[REDACTED]
Natalie Hanlon-Leh	My former supervisor	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: Full Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Powell, David Daniel	Denver	1	31	2

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

I believe my background as an attorney and the leadership roles I've held in various boards and other organizations make me well qualified to serve on a commission. I also believe that as an attorney, I have an obligation to give back to my community and serving on a commission provides me with an ideal opportunity to serve my community, I am particularly interested in serving as a member of the Judicial Disciplinary Commission because our judiciary is the backbone of our civil and criminal justice system.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

DAVID D. POWELL, JR.

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Equity Partner, Garnett Powell Maximon Barlow

Denver, Colorado

April 2023-present

Founding member of trial boutique with a practice focused primarily on employment litigation, advice and investigations.

Deputy Attorney General, State Services

Colorado Attorney General's Office

Denver, Colorado

April 2019-April 2023

Supervised the State Services section of the Colorado Attorney General's Office – comprised of eight separate legal units responsible for representing the state's key elected officials and providing legal services in the areas of health care, human services, K-12 and higher education, state contracts and procurement, labor, and public utilities.

Equity Shareholder, Ogletree, Deakins, Nash, Smoak & Stewart, P.C.

Denver, Colorado

January 2011-April 2019

Member, Board of Directors (January 2014 – April 2019)

Practice was primarily focused on the representation of employers in litigation matters filed in both state and federal courts. Practice also included advising employers on compliance with local, state, and federal employment laws.

Equity Shareholder, Brownstein Hyatt Farber Schreck, LLP

Denver, Colorado

2002-2010

Chair, Employment Practice Group

Member, Diversity and Inclusiveness Committee

Lead counsel on numerous litigation matters involving federal employment and civil rights statutes, including but not limited to Title VII, the Fair Labor Standards Act, the Americans With Disabilities Act, and the Age Discrimination in Employment Act. Many of the same matters were tried to verdict in both state and federal district courts. Practice also included providing advice to individual executives and employers on a variety of business transactions and other matters arising from the employer-employee relationship.

Associate and Partner, Holland & Hart, LLC

Denver, Colorado

1990-2002

Member, Labor and Employment Practice Group

Conducted legal research, prepared memoranda and briefs, conducted and defended depositions. As a senior associate and partner, practice became primarily focused on employment and civil rights litigation in both federal and state district courts. Served as first and second chair on employment cases tried to verdict in both state and federal district courts.

Deputy District Attorney, Denver District Attorney's Office

Denver, Colorado

1986-1990

Investigated and prosecuted misdemeanor and felony criminal cases. Tried to verdict numerous cases in county, juvenile, and district courts in the City and County of Denver.

Law Clerk

1984-1986

Overton, Lyman & Prince, PC

Los Angeles, California

Conducted research and prepared memoranda on various legal issues related to commercial litigation matters.

Law Clerk for the Honorable John L. Kane, Jr.

United States District Court for the District of Colorado

Denver, Colorado

1983-1984

Conducted research, prepared memoranda and preliminary opinions on various legal issues presented in cases pending before the Court.

EDUCATION

UCLA School of Law

Los Angeles, California

Juris Doctorate, 1983

Managing Editor, Vol. 30 of the UCLA Law Review

Member, Black Law Students Association

University of Santa Clara

Santa Clara, California

Bachelor of Arts in History, 1980

Member, Phi Alpha Theta, History Honor Society

Member, Black Students Union

REFERENCES

Available upon request.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Ridge, John H.		County Larimer	Cong. District 2	Senate District 14	House District 53
Home Address [REDACTED]		City FORT COLLINS		State CO	Zip Code 80524
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1964	Gender Male	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Democrat		Ethnicity Caucasian
Present Employer/Title Colorado Department of Law/Senior Assistant Attorney General II		Business Phone # (206) 919-6708		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 1300 Broadway		City Denver		State Colorado	Zip Code 80203

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Christ the King Academy	Poulsbo, WA		1982
College	Northwest University	Kirkland, WA		1988	Philosophy & Religion
	University of Washington	Seattle, WA		1990	Philosophy
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence	Boston College	Newton, MA		1995	Law
	Boston College	Chestnut Hill, MA		2004	Philosophy
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if	See attached resume.

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Noah Patterson	Supervisor	[REDACTED]
Robert Dodd	Supervisor	[REDACTED]
Suzan Kobashigawa	Former Colleague	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?:Part Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis
Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Ridge, John H.	Larimer	2	14	53

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

I believe in civic virtue and the role of serving my community to promote the common good. When we play an active role in our communities by serving on boards and commissions, we better our communities and make them more open and inclusive places. As a person with disabilities, I understand the need for greater inclusivity.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

John Hiski Ridge

EDUCATION

BOSTON COLLEGE Chestnut Hill and Newton Centre, MA
Ph.D. – Philosophy: Political and Legal Theory, Greek Philosophy, Lonergan Studies
J.D. – Articles Editor, Boston College Environmental Affairs Law Review
M.A. – Philosophy: History of Philosophy

UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON Seattle, WA
Post-Baccalaureate B.A. – Philosophy, Magna Cum Laude

NORTHWEST UNIVERSITY Kirkland, WA
B.A. - Religion and Philosophy, Magna Cum Laude

OTHER RELATED EDUCATION

UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON Seattle, WA
Tax LL.M. Program, classes pursued for continuing education

NATIONAL SECURITY LAW INSTITUTE Washington D.C. & Virginia
Certificate – The Institute is operated by the National Security Law Center located at the University of Virginia Law School.

NATIONAL COUNCIL FOR BEHAVIORAL HEALTH United States
Certificate – Adult Mental Health First Aid
Certification valid until June 9, 2024

RELEVANT WORK EXPERIENCE

COLORADO ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OFFICE August 2017 to Present
Senior Assistant Attorney General II: Represent the state of Colorado in tax matters, including property tax matters and other tax controversies before administrative bodies and various courts of law. Represent the Colorado Dept of Revenue Hearings Division as general counsel and assist hearings officers with hearings and other matters. Represent various government clients such as the Mobile Home Park Operating Program and others in trial and appellate work.

WYOMING ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OFFICE December 2016 to August 2017
Supervising Attorney General: Supervise and manage civil rights litigation and tort litigation.

CITY OF CHEYENNE, WYOMING January 2012 to December 2016
Deputy City Attorney: Represent the Board of Public Utilities on a variety of matters, including water issues, wastewater issues, environmental issues, and tax issues. Represent the City Treasurer's Office on municipal finance, budgeting, and tax matters. Represent various government clients in trial and appellate work. Supervise Assistant City Attorneys.

STOEL RIVES, LLP, Seattle, WA September 2003 to January 2012
Partner, Trial and Tax Groups: Represent clients in regulatory hearings, federal and state court litigation, and before various tax forums on a variety of matters, including telecommunications issues, right-of-way issues, utility relocation issues, state and local tax issues, contract disputes, and benzene exposure matters. (Worked for the City of Bellevue, Washington from May 2007 to May 2008 as an Assistant City Attorney, representing the City Utility and Finance Departments on a variety of matters.)

DORSEY & WHITNEY, LLP, Seattle, WA May 2001 to September 2003
Associate Attorney, Trial Group: Represented various clients in regulated industries in federal and state courts.

NORTHWEST UNIVERSITY, Kirkland, WA August 1995 to December 2011
Associate Professor, then Adjunct Associate Professor, Law and Philosophy

Related Courses Developed and Taught:

Constitutional Law I & II (Powers of Government; Civil Rights and Liberties)
Business Law and Ethics
International Human Rights
Jurisprudence/Philosophy of Law
History of Political Philosophy I & II (Ancient and Medieval; Modern)
History of Philosophy I, II, III, & IV (Ancient; Medieval; Modern; Contemporary)
Symbolic Logic and Critical Reasoning

PROFESSIONAL AND COMMUNITY ACTIVITIES AND AWARDS, PAST AND PRESENT

Present: Colorado Disability Bar Association, Board Member, Treasurer.
Colo. Dept of Law, Disability Employee Resource Group, Member.
Dream Team 2.0 Participant, 2022-2023 (judicial training program operated by the Center for Legal Inclusiveness).
Colorado Lawyer, Board Member.
Colorado Lawyer, Coordinating Editor, “As I See It” series.
Colorado Lawyer, Creative Works Committee Member.
Wyoming Lawyer, Co-Author, “Write On” series.
Denver University Law School Mentoring Program, Mentor.
Lawyers with Disabilities, Mentor.
St. Socrates Society, Founding Member.

Past: Wyoming Lawyer, Author, “Friends of the Bar” series.
Hands In Harmony (youth sign language performance team), Board Member, Treasurer.
University of Washington, Dept. of Philosophy, Advisory Board Member.
Washington State Bar Association, Special Disciplinary Counsel.
New Horizons (homeless youth shelter), Pro Bono Counsel.
Government Finance Officers Association (GFOA), Member.
American Bar Association, Member.
American Political Science Association, Member.
American Philosophical Association, Member.

Significant Awards: 2022 Colo. Dept of Law DE&I Achievement and Contribution Award
2010 Regius Award

ACADEMIC AND PROFESSIONAL WRITINGS

John Hiski Ridge and John Broadbent, The Time Is Now: A Conversation on Disabilities and Change, Colorado Lawyer (January 2022).

John H. Ridge and Suzan Kobashigawa, Promoting an Inclusive Workplace by Holding Space, Colorado Lawyer (November 2021).

John H. Ridge and Suzan Kobashigawa, The Job Market Has Declined – What Now?, Colorado Lawyer (October 2020).

John H. Ridge, Managing Relational Space in a Diverse Workplace, Colorado Lawyer (October 2019).

John H. Ridge, Fees or Taxes: Rethinking the Bidart Test as Applied to Telecommunication Right-of-Way Charges, Journal of Multistate Taxation and Incentives (September 2009).

John Hiski Ridge, A Philosophical Analysis of the Fundamental Law of Marriage in American Jurisprudence. Thesis for the degree of PhD, 2004, Boston College. Advisers: Thomas Kohler and Arthur Madigan. Publicly Available.

John Hiski Ridge, Dionysus or Apollo: Observations on the Need for a Redefined Pentecostal Epistemology, Kirkland, WA: Proceedings of the 29th Annual Meeting of the Society for Pentecostal Studies, 2000.

John Hiski Ridge, Deconstructing the Clean Air Act: Examining the Controversy Surrounding Massachusetts's Adoption of the California Low Emission Vehicle Program, 22 B.C. Env'tl. Aff. L. Rev. 163 (1994).

WRITINGS ABOUT WRITING

John H. Ridge, Simplifying Our Writing: Using Active Voice, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, October 2023 edition.

John H. Ridge, Simplifying Our Writing: Choosing Common Words, Reprint, Colorado Lawyer (September 2023).

John H. Ridge, Simplifying Our Writing: Choosing Common Words, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, June 2023 edition.

John Hiski Ridge, Top 10 Writing Tips from Our Top Writers, Reprint, Colorado Lawyer (April 2023).

John H. Ridge, Top 10 Writing Tips from Our Top Writers, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, February 2023 edition.

John H. Ridge, Parentheses, Brackets, and Braces, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, October 2022 edition.

John Hiski Ridge and Suzan Kobashigawa, Editing Other Lawyers' Work: The Six Stages of Effective Editing, Colorado Lawyer (July 2022).

John H. Ridge, Developing Effective Editing Skills, Part 3, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, October 2021 edition.

John H. Ridge, Developing Effective Editing Skills, Part 2, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, June 2021 edition.

John H. Ridge, Developing Effective Editing Skills, Part 1, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, February 2021 edition.

John H. Ridge, Spot the Errors: A Writing Analysis, Part 3, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, October 2020 edition.

John H. Ridge, Spot the Errors: A Writing Analysis, Part 2, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, June 2020 edition.

John H. Ridge, Spot the Errors: A Writing Analysis, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, February 2020 edition.

John H. Ridge, A Grammar Q & A: Part 3, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, October 2019 edition.

John H. Ridge, A Grammar Q & A: Part 2, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, June 2019 edition.

John H. Ridge, A Grammar Q & A: Part 1, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, February 2019 edition.

John H. Ridge, Writing for Your Audience, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, October 2018 edition.

John H. Ridge, Common Writing Rules I Commonly Forget, Part Three, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, June 2018 edition.

John H. Ridge, Common Writing Rules I Commonly Forget, Part Two, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, February 2018 edition.

John H. Ridge, Common Writing Rules I Commonly Forget, Part 1, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, October 2017 edition.

John H. Ridge, Civility in Writing, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, June 2017 edition.

John H. Ridge, Five Punctuation Mistakes We Commonly Make, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, February 2017 edition.

John H. Ridge, Write to Write, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, October 2016 edition.

John H. Ridge, Read to Write, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, June 2016 edition.

John H. Ridge, Confusing Word Pairs, Part Deux, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, February 2016 edition.

John H. Ridge, Unraveling Some Confusing Word Pairs, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, October 2015 edition.

John H. Ridge, Towards an Understanding of Verb Tenses, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, June 2015 edition.

John H. Ridge, Helping Your Verbs Find Their Voice, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, February 2015 edition.

John H. Ridge, Writing With Integrity, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, October 2014 edition.

John H. Ridge, That Wonderfully Difficult Subjunctive Mood, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, June 2014 edition.

John H. Ridge, The Versatile and Emphatic Em Dash, publication in writing series of The Wyoming Lawyer, February 2014 edition.

FICTION

John Hiski Ridge, Athen's Sin Against Philosophy, Colorado Lawyer (March 2023).

FRIENDS OF THE BAR SERIES

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: December 2021 edition featured Robert R. Rose III.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: October 2021 edition featured Christopher Hawks.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: August 2021 edition featured Austin Huff.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: June 2021 edition featured Denise M. Freeman.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: April 2021 edition featured Brad McKim.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: February 2021 edition featured Ashli Tomisich.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: December 2020 edition featured Kristen Reeves Jones.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: October 2020 edition featured Teresa Thybo.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: August 2020 edition featured Sarah Chavez.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: June 2020 edition featured Harvey Gelb.

H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: April 2020 edition featured Brad Bonner.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: February 2020 edition featured Debora Person.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: December 2019 edition featured Brooke M. Barney.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: October 2019 edition featured Bailey K. Schreiber.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: June 2019 edition featured John Knepper.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: April 2019 edition featured Scott Ortiz.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: February 2019 edition featured Alessandra McCoy Fakelman.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: December 2018 edition featured Richard Mulligan.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: October 2018 edition featured Lauren McLane.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: August 2018 edition featured Melissa Mulligan Owens.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: June 2018 edition featured Christopher M. Brennan.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: February 2018 edition featured Maryt Fredrickson.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: December 2017 edition featured David Singleton.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: October 2017 edition featured Ryan Jardine.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: August 2017 edition featured Tyler Renner.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: June 2017 edition featured Jacquelyn Bridgeman.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: April 2017 edition featured Ashley Guritza.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: February 2017 edition featured Anna Reeves Olson.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: December 2016 edition featured Jesse K. Fishman.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: October 2016 edition featured Benjamin J. Rowland.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: August 2016 edition featured Blake A. Klinkner.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: June 2016 edition featured Jason Johnson.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: April 2016 edition featured Amberley Goodchild Baker.

John H. Ridge, Friends of the Bar, a series published in The Wyoming Lawyer: February 2016 edition featured J. Mark Stewart.

ADVENTURE WRITINGS

John H. Ridge, Walking on Old-Man Legs, Adventures NW (Fall 2009).

John H. Ridge, It Only Took Me Four Years to Summit the Grand, www.Climbing.com, Above & Beyond section (September 2008).

LINKEDIN ARTICLES

John H. Ridge, Genetically Diverse Employees: On Educating Leaders, Published on LinkedIn on December 16, 2018.

John H. Ridge, Eliminating a Sense of Otherness in Genetically Diverse Employees, Published on LinkedIn on November 3, 2018.

John H. Ridge, Teaching Job Skills to Genetically Diverse Students through Job Shadowing, Published on LinkedIn on July 22, 2018.

John H. Ridge, The New Discrimination (Its Just the Old Discrimination), Published on LinkedIn on January 30, 2018.

John H. Ridge, Establishing Internships and Fellowships for Genetically Diverse Students, Published on LinkedIn on January 24, 2018.

BLOG ARTICLES

John H. Ridge, Maggie and Me: a Philosophical Dialogue (a Science and Philosophy Blog), Published on johnhiskiridge.com.

POETRY

John H. Ridge, Choice of Two, Second Place Prize, Washington State Creative Composition Contest, 1982.

ARTICLES EDITED

Gabrial Kalousek, Introducing the Colorado Disability Bar Association, Colorado Lawyer (September 2023). Coordinating Editor – John Ridge.

Tim Shannon, The State of the NCAA's Name, Image, and Likeness Rules in Colorado, Colorado Lawyer (July/August 2023). Coordinating Editor – John Ridge.

Martine Wells, Airina Rodrigues, Kayla Dreyer, Colorado's Non-Compete Statute Q&A, Colorado Lawyer (March 2023). Coordinating Editor – John Hiski Ridge.

Julie Stermasi, Bar None, Colorado Lawyer (December 2022). Coordinating Editor – John Ridge.

Casey Frank, Doing Away with Dogmatic Medical Directives, Colorado Lawyer (May 2022). Coordinating Editor – John Ridge.

Marilyn S. Chappell, Think Before You Send, Colorado Lawyer (February 2022). Coordinating Editor – John Ridge.

Sara Scott, Know Their Names, Colorado Lawyer (November 2021). Coordinating Editor – John Ridge.

Larry R. Daves, Reconciling Our Past: Longstanding Policy of Indian Child Separation Calls for Reparations for Native Americans, Colorado Lawyer (October 2021). Coordinating Editor – John Ridge.

Murray I. Weiner, It's Time to Put a "Governor" Back in Our Discourse, Colorado Lawyer (March 2021). Coordinating Editor – John Hiski Ridge.

OTHER AUTHOR'S WRITINGS ON WHICH I ASSISTED

Betram E. Snyder and Susan F. Drogin, The Appeals Court, The "Trade or Commerce" Clause in Chapter 93A, Boston Bar Journal (January/February 1995).

Wesley S. Chused and Lisa Sternchuss, Insurance Law: Refining the Insurer's Duty to Settle Claims, Boston Bar Journal (January/February 1995).

Robert C. Barber, Americo Lopes v. City of Peabody: The SJC Interprets and Applies the Lucas Decision, Boston Bar Journal (January/February 1995).

Paul R. Tremblay, The Role of Casuistry in Legal Ethics: A Tentative Inquiry, Clinical Law Review (Fall 1994).

PRESENTATIONS

Presenter, Understanding the Colorado Open Records Act, Colorado Dept of Revenue, Audit and Conferee Divisions, September 12, 2023.

Presenter, Understanding the Colorado Open Records Act, Colorado Dept of Revenue, Hearings Division, August 17, 2023.

Presenter, Parenting to Empower Children with Disabilities: from Early Intervention to the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, Colorado Dept. of Law University, February 23, 2023.

Invited Guest, Raising Children with 22q11.2DS, Meeting with Colorado Governor and Disability Advisor, February 16, 2023.

Guest Speaker, On the Publishing and Editing Business. NW University English Course, Writing and Publishing, February 14, 2023.

Presenter, Disabilities and the ADA. Minoru Yasui Inn of Court CDBA CLE, February 8, 2023.

Presenter/Interviewee, Parenting a Child With a Rare Diagnosis, Exploring Different Brains with Hackie Reitman, M.D., Different Brains Episode 253, November 7, 2021.

Presenter, Neuro-Diversity, 22q11.2D.S., and Young Adults. HCA Biology Class, Spring Semester, 2019.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Trujillo, Stefanie		County Adams	Cong. District 8	Senate District 21	House District 32
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Commerce City		State CO	Zip Code 80022
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1982	Gender Female	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Unaffiliated		Ethnicity Hispanic
Present Employer/Title Ottens Johnson Robinson Neff + Ragonetti/Litigation Support Coordinator/Senior Paralegal		Business Phone # (303) 575-7566		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 950 17th Street		City Denver		State Colorado	Zip Code 80202

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Pomona High School	Arvada, Colorado		2000
College	Community College of Denver	Denver, Colorado		2002	Paralegal/General Studies
	University of Colorado	Denver, Colorado		2005	Political Science, Law Studies Minor
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Michelle Maynard	Current Direct Supervisor/Firm Administrator	[REDACTED]
Cheralyn Stevenson	Former Direct Supervisor	[REDACTED]
David Hutchinson	Firm Mentor/Attorney	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: Full Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Trujillo, Stefanie	Adams	8	21	32

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

Being a part of Colorado's legal community for over 20 years has given me the insight needed to create change and help right the wrongs in our community. I see serving on this commission as an opportunity to continue doing this work while ensuring there is accountability in the Judiciary. As a non-lawyer who has a lot of experience in the legal community, I see myself as a rather unique candidate. I understand our legal community well, yet I am also able to serve in this role through the lens of a non-lawyer. I truly believe that service is an essential part of every government and I would be honored to serve on the Commission of Judicial Discipline.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

STEFANIE TRUJILLO

She/Her/Ella

Visionary Paralegal | Legal Ambassador | Author and Coach

PROFILE SUMMARY

A multi-faceted legal executive with over 20 years of experience providing leadership, operations and project management, and motivational expertise to ensure streamlined processes, and increased efficiency. Possess in-depth knowledge of legal terminology and principles. Enjoys challenges and able to switch-task in a fast-paced environment.

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Otten Johnson Robinson Neff + Ragonetti, PC, Denver, Colorado

10/2018–Present

Litigation Support Coordinator / Senior Litigation Paralegal

- Coach litigation support staff and provide guidance on their daily projects.
- Oversee the daily operation of the Litigation Department including human resource management, staff development, and ensure that department projects and milestones are met while adhering to approved budgets.
- Identify cost-effective processes and technology solutions for the firm by maintaining a deep understanding of trending legal technology, market competitors, and tools used to support the legal industry.
- Manage complex discovery projects, including evaluation of case eDiscovery needs to determine appropriate eDiscovery tool(s) for collection, processing, and production.
- Prepare Electronically Stored Information (ESI) projects for review, develop review protocols and analyze data.
- Draft pleadings and other legal documents, including but not limited to, motions, briefs, and proposed orders, Rule 26 initial and expert disclosures.
- Attend trials and hearings and present electronic trial exhibits, assist with jury selection, coordinate and prepare witnesses and provide input for witness examinations.
- Co-chair of the Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Committee.
- Serve on the firm's Technology Committee.

Various Law Firms

03/2002–10/2018

Law Firm Administrator / Senior Litigation Paralegal

- Worked for public and private sector law firms.
- Responsible for overall day-to-day operations, including but not limited to, general office coordination, organization, and management to ensure the office is run efficiently.
- Human Resource management including recruitment and new hire interviews.
- Identified cost-effective processes and technology solutions through the entire case lifecycle.
- Prepared, analyzed, and distributed monthly client billing.
- Recorded daily cash receipts and maintained firm books (A/P and A/R).
- Responsible for training and mentoring new associates, junior-level paralegals, and other support staff.
- Provided transactional assistance with regulatory filings, corporate document production, and corporate maintenance, including but not limited to, minute books, processing of annual reports, and license renewals.
- Maintained document databases for all cases, including but not limited to, loading, organizing, coding, and search strategies.
- Oversaw all aspects of ESI including identification, preservation, harvesting, processing, culling, reviewing, and producing the e-discovery.
- Responsible for document management and production, including Bates labeling, redacting, and indexing documents.
- Drafted pleadings and other legal documents, including but not limited to, briefs, motions, and proposed orders, Rule 26 initial and expert disclosures, EEOC position statements, and responses to requests for information.
- Served on various firm committees.

EDUCATION

Community College of Denver

2003

A.A., Paralegal Studies

University of Colorado

2005

B.A., Political Science (Law Studies minor)

RELEVANT SKILLS

Microsoft Office Suite, Adobe Acrobat Professional, LexisNexis Products (Research, LAW, File & Serve), Clio, CaseMap, TimeMap, Westlaw, PACER (CM/ECF), Sanction, Summation, Relativity, Catalyst (Certification), Concordance, TrialDirector, TrialPad,, Everlaw, Smokeball, Elite Enterprise, FileSite Document Management System, Predictive Coding Applications, Practice Manager, Timeslips, Siemens, Quickbooks, Kronos, Tussman, Legal Math, Salesforce

AFFILIATIONS

- President/CEO, The Rocky Mountain Paralegal Association 2021 - Present
- Vice President, The Rocky Mountain Paralegal Association 2019-2021
- Chapter Membership Director, Women in eDiscovery 2018- 2022
- Colorado Supreme Court Outreach and Working Group Committee, LLP Initiative 2021 – 2023

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Windmoeller, Kathryn		County Denver	Cong. District 1	Senate District 32	House District 2
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Denver		State Colorado	Zip Code 80210
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1988	Gender Female	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Unaffiliated		Ethnicity Caucasian
Present Employer/Title Dentons/Senior Manager, Proposals		Business Phone #		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address		City		State	Zip Code

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Conestoga Highschool	Berwyn, PA		2007
College	Lehigh University	Bethlehem, PA		2011	Marketing
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if	N/A

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Catherine Austin	Former boss	[REDACTED]
Liz Paspalas	Coworker	[REDACTED]
Jenni Dubman	Former coworker	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: Full Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Windmoeller, Kathryn	Denver	1	32	2

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

I'm interested in getting involved in something outside of my day-to-day job and personal life. I think this would be a great opportunity to serve Denver in a unique and meaningful way. I would love to undertake a new opportunity and feel I have a unique background having worked in legal my entire career (without being a lawyer!).

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

KATIE WINDMOELLER

SENIOR PROPOSAL MANAGER

Denver, Colorado
[Redacted]
[Redacted]

WORK EXPERIENCE

DENTONS
Denver
2017-present

SENIOR PROPOSAL MANAGER

In my current role, I am responsible for leadership and management of the global and US specific proposal life cycle, regional proposal standards and training and cross functional go-to-market strategy.

My leadership responsibilities for proposal execution include defining strategic operations, oversight of development and design of responses, engagement management with lawyers and key stakeholders, delivery of submissions, and management of delivery against KPIs including follow-up, win rate, etc. I have oversight and responsibility for setting firm-wide standards, developing and defining processes, allocating resources and ensuring proper training of firm staff. I am a central point of contact for all functions, and I drive and deliver a succinct go-to-market strategy for all cross-functional and multi-region proposals (300+ proposals per year). I am a recognized expert in legal marketing and proposal development and I have spoken on panels internally and externally regarding proposal best practices and trends in the legal market (including best practices, obstacles to avoid and ideas on how to prepare a response to best position for selection).

Key highlights and accomplishments in my current role:

- Created and implemented global proposal process for 200+ locations utilizing step-by-step process and templates customized to the firm. Implementation led to streamlined operations, increased efficiency, enhanced go-to-market standards, newly established KPIs and increased effectiveness in global RFP responses.
- Deploying a groundbreaking advisory program for Fortune 500 companies on key topics such as convergence programs, RFP leading practices and issuing proposals.
- Created, implemented and deployed a toolset utilized throughout the region to establish standardized metrics and go/no-go criteria by identifying, scoring and weighing opportunities. Program resulted in an increase in win rate and more effective utilization of proposal staff.
- Implemented a client feedback and debrief process which generates new insights and a better way to understand the result of proposals.
- Created a formal proposal tracking system and established KPIs, measurement of which is communicated to firm leadership.

HOLLAND & HART LLP
Denver | 2014-2017

STRATEGIC PITCHES & PURSUITS MANAGER, BD

MORRISON & FOERSTER LLP
San Francisco | 2012-2014

BUSINESS DEVELOPMENT COORDINATOR

MORRISON & FOERSTER LLP
New York | 2011-2012

CAPITAL MARKETS PRACTICE ASSISTANT

MORRISON & FOERSTER LLP
New York | Summer 2010

MARKETING INTERN

VERIZON CORPORATION
New Jersey | Summer 2009

INTERNAL AUDIT INTERN

ABOUT ME

Katie Windmoeller is a Senior Manager of Proposals at Dentons, where she leads the business development strategy and execution of hundreds of RFP opportunities annually. Katie has over a decade of experience in the proposal and convergence field, where she has helped law firms build deeper relationships with their clients across dozens of different practice areas and industries. Katie has also advised general counsel and legal operations professionals to help them better understand convergence programs and issuing proposals and how to manage the process effectively and efficiently.

EDUCATION

Lehigh University, College of Business and Economics
Bethlehem, PA (2007-2011),
Bachelor of Science, Marketing
(Focus: Business Information Systems)

From: Sooter, Mindy on behalf of Sooter, Mindy [REDACTED]
To: Jeff Walsh; Hayes - GOVOffice, Shannon; Rachel Kurtz-Phelan; Horojah Jawara
Cc: Patel - GovOffice, Niketa; Jennifer Ferrall - GOVOffice; Savannah Martel-Valdez - GOVOffice; Jim Carpenter
Subject: RE: Commission on Judicial Discipline New Appointees
Date: Wednesday, April 10, 2024 6:21:56 AM
Attachments: image001.png

Yes, thank you so much!

Mary (Mindy) V. Sooter | WilmerHale

1225 Seventeenth St.
Suite 2600
Denver, CO 80202 USA
[REDACTED]

This email message and any attachments are being sent by Wilmer Cutler Pickering Hale and Dorr LLP, are confidential, and may be privileged. If you are not the intended recipient, please notify us immediately—by replying to this message or by sending an email to postmaster@wilmerhale.com—and destroy all copies of this message and any attachments. Thank you.

For more information about WilmerHale, please visit us at <http://www.wilmerhale.com>.

From: Jeff Walsh <j.walsh@jd.state.co.us>
Sent: Friday, April 5, 2024 8:18 AM
To: Hayes - GOVOffice, Shannon <shannon.hayes@state.co.us>; Rachel Kurtz-Phelan <rachel.kurtz-phelan@coleg.gov>; Horojah Jawara <horojah.jawara@coleg.gov>
Cc: Patel - GovOffice, Niketa <niketa.patel@state.co.us>; Jennifer Ferrall - GOVOffice <jennifer.ferrall@state.co.us>; Savannah Martel-Valdez - GOVOffice <savannah.martel-valdez@state.co.us>; Jim Carpenter [REDACTED] Sooter, Mindy [REDACTED]
Subject: Commission on Judicial Discipline New Appointees

EXTERNAL SENDER

Nikki and Shannon:

On behalf of the Commission, thank you so much to you and your team for making these appointments happen. Both appointees look great, and I'm sure they'll be strong additions to the Commission.

Best,

Jeffrey M. Walsh
Special Counsel

COLORADO
Office of Judicial Discipline

P: 303-457-5131 | F: 303-457-5195
1300 Broadway, Ste. 210, Denver, CO 80203

ccjd.colorado.gov

This e-mail transmission contains information from the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline which may be confidential or otherwise protected by Colo. Const. Art. VI, § 23(3)(g) and § 24-72-401, C.R.S. Unlawful disclosure of confidential records outside of necessary/authorized parties is punishable according to § 24-72-402, C.R.S. If you are not the intended recipient, you are hereby notified that you must not read this transmission and that any disclosure, copying, printing, distribution or use of any of the information contained in or attached to this transmission is prohibited. If you have received this transmission in error, please notify us immediately by e-mail and delete the original transmission.

From: Hayes - GOVOffice, Shannon <shannon.hayes@state.co.us>
Sent: Thursday, April 4, 2024 3:13 PM
To: Rachel Kurtz-Phelan <rachel.kurtz-phelan@coleg.gov>; Horojah Jawara <horojah.jawara@coleg.gov>; Jeff Walsh <j.walsh@jd.state.co.us>
Cc: Patel - GovOffice, Niketa <niketa.patel@state.co.us>; Jennifer Ferrall - GOVOffice <jennifer.ferrall@state.co.us>; Savannah Martel-Valdez - GOVOffice <savannah.martel-valdez@state.co.us>
Subject: A 2024-076 Judicial Discipline Commission

Hello,

Please find attached the executive order with redacted applications, updated roster page, and original senate letter. Thanks!

--

Shannon Hayes
Deputy Director
Boards and Commissions
Pronouns: she/her

C 303.725.5584
136 State Capitol, Denver, CO 80203
shannon.hayes@state.co.us | www.colorado.gov/governor

Under the Colorado Open Records Act (CORA), all messages sent by or to me on this state-owned e-mail account may be subject to public disclosure.

From: Jeff Walsh on behalf of Jeff Walsh <j.walsh@jd.state.co.us>
To: Hayes - GOVOffice, Shannon; Rachel Kurtz-Phelan; Horojah Jawara
Cc: Patel - GovOffice, Niketa; Jennifer Ferrall - GOVOffice; Savannah Martel-Valdez - GOVOffice; Jim Carpenter; Mindy Sooter
Subject: Commission on Judicial Discipline New Appointees
Date: Friday, April 5, 2024 8:18:07 AM
Attachments: image001.png

Nikki and Shannon:

On behalf of the Commission, thank you so much to you and your team for making these appointments happen. Both appointees look great, and I'm sure they'll be strong additions to the Commission.

Best,

Jeffrey M. Walsh
Special Counsel

COLORADO
Office of Judicial Discipline

P: 303-457-5131 | F: 303-457-5195
1300 Broadway, Ste. 210, Denver, CO 80203
ccjd.colorado.gov

This e-mail transmission contains information from the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline which may be confidential or otherwise protected by Colo. Const. Art. VI, § 23(3)(g) and § 24-72-401, C.R.S. Unlawful disclosure of confidential records outside of necessary/authorized parties is punishable according to § 24-72-402, C.R.S. If you are not the intended recipient, you are hereby notified that you must not read this transmission and that any disclosure, copying, printing, distribution or use of any of the information contained in or attached to this transmission is prohibited. If you have received this transmission in error, please notify us immediately by e-mail and delete the original transmission.

From: Hayes - GOVOffice, Shannon <shannon.hayes@state.co.us>
Sent: Thursday, April 4, 2024 3:13 PM
To: Rachel Kurtz-Phelan <rachel.kurtz-phelan@coleg.gov>; Horojah Jawara <horojah.jawara@coleg.gov>; Jeff Walsh <j.walsh@jd.state.co.us>
Cc: Patel - GovOffice, Niketa <niketa.patel@state.co.us>; Jennifer Ferrall - GOVOffice <jennifer.ferrall@state.co.us>; Savannah Martel-Valdez - GOVOffice <savannah.martel-valdez@state.co.us>
Subject: A 2024-076 Judicial Discipline Commission

Hello,

Please find attached the executive order with redacted applications, updated roster page, and original senate letter. Thanks!

--
Shannon Hayes
Deputy Director

Boards and Commissions
Pronouns: she/her

C 303.725.5584
136 State Capitol, Denver, CO 80203
shannon.hayes@state.co.us | www.colorado.gov/governor

Under the Colorado Open Records Act (CORA), all messages sent by or to me on this state-owned e-mail account may be subject to public disclosure.

From: Hayes - GOVOffice, Shannon on behalf of Hayes - GOVOffice, Shannon <shannon.hayes@state.co.us>
To: Rachel Kurtz-Phelan; Horojah Jawara; j.walsh@jd.state.co.us
Cc: Patel - GovOffice, Niketa; Jennifer Ferrall - GOVOffice; Savannah Martel-Valdez - GOVOffice
Subject: A 2024-076 Judicial Discipline Commission
Date: Thursday, April 4, 2024 3:17:36 PM
Attachments: A 2024-076 Judicial Discipline Commission.pdf
Judicial Discipline \(BIBLE\).docx
Judicial Discipline Commission \(SENATE 2024-076\).docx

Hello,

Please find attached the executive order with redacted applications, updated roster page, and original senate letter. Thanks!

--

Shannon Hayes
Deputy Director
Boards and Commissions
Pronouns: she/her

C 303.725.5584
136 State Capitol, Denver, CO 80203
shannon.hayes@state.co.us | www.colorado.gov/governor

Under the Colorado Open Records Act (CORA), all messages sent by or to me on this state-owned e-mail account may be subject to public disclosure.

COLORADO
Governor Jared Polis

A 2024 076

EXECUTIVE ORDER

MEMBERS

COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

ORDERED:

That the following named persons be and are hereby appointed to the:

COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

for terms expiring June 30, 2027:

Courtney Sutton of Colorado Springs, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, occasioned by the resignation of Gina Lopez of Towaoc, Colorado, appointed;

Emily Tofte Nestaval of Evergreen, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, occasioned by the resignation of Marisa Pacheco of Pueblo, Colorado, appointed.

GIVEN under my hand and the
Executive Seal of the State of Colorado, this fourth day
of April, 2024.

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads 'Jared Polis'.

Jared Polis
Governor

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Sutton, Courtney		County El Paso	Cong. District 5	Senate District 10	House District 15
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Colorado Springs		State CO	Zip Code 80923
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1990	Gender Female	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Democrat		Ethnicity Caucasian
Present Employer/Title Colorado Organization for Victim Assistance/Public Policy Director		Business Phone # (720) 322-4611		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 1325 S. Colorado Blvd Suite 508B		City Denver		State Colorado	Zip Code 80222

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Henry County High School	Paris, TN		2008
College	University of Tennessee	Knoxville, TN
	University of Tennessee, Martin	Martin, TN		2012	Psychology
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence	University of Colorado Colorado Springs	Colorado Springs		2016	Clinical Psychology
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held (Indicate if	Current: board member and Policy and Advocacy Chair for Citizens Project Current: task force member of Judicial Training Task Force

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Mari Dennis	Supervisor	[REDACTED]
Cynthia Romero	Colleague	[REDACTED]
Jordan Rhodes	Colleague	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: Full Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Sutton, Courtney	El Paso	5	10	15

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

I would like to bring the victim and survivor's voice to judicial discipline decisions. I believe it is critical to bring a victim's perspective to all elements of the judicial system.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

Courtney Sutton, MA

Colorado Springs, CO | Email: [REDACTED]

PROFESSIONAL HIGHLIGHTS

- 8+ years of developing collaborative and strategic community partnerships
 - 9+ years of providing trauma informed services to survivors of intimate partner violence, sexual violence, & stalking
 - 8+ years of educating community partners and key stakeholders
-

WORK EXPERIENCE

PUBLIC POLICY DIRECTOR 2023 – Present

Colorado Organization for Victim Assistance (COVA)

- Analyze and monitor legislation and policy initiatives impacting crime victims
- Collaborate with legislators and stakeholders on legislation and policy initiatives
- Provide testimony at legislative hearings
- Create marketing and communication materials to raise awareness on current policy initiatives
- Draft grant proposals
- Contribute to the Judicial Training Task Force and Children Impacted by Violence working group
- Foster and cultivate collaborative relationships with community partners

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR, ANNUAL GIVING 2021 – 2023

Colorado College

- Plan and execute Senior Class Gift and Young Alumni programs including event planning, multichannel communication plan, and fundraising strategy
- Supervise student run Mutual Aid program and student employees
- Recruit, develop, and implement the college's crowdfunding projects
- Review and propose budget for fiscal year 2023

SAFETY AND SUPPORT MANAGER 2018 – 2021

TESSA

- Supervised team of staff advocates, volunteers, and interns in multiple programs, responsible for hiring, retaining, evaluating, overseeing policy and procedure implementation, budgeting, researching and drafting grant proposals, and adapting advocacy protocols during COVID-19 pandemic
- Fostered and built relationships with the judicial system, hospital, law enforcement, legal agencies, rural communities, and other community partners
- Strategized and collaborated with agency leadership for how to improve services and outcomes for survivors with organization and community partners
- Developed All Advocacy meeting with community partners to increase collaboration across agencies
- Significantly contributed to 4th Judicial Domestic Violence Problem Solving Court, No Excuse for Abuse Campaign, Adult Sexual Assault Task Force Meetings, and other community meetings
- Created and delivered trainings for staff, volunteers, and community members, including trainings at Domestic Violence Summit, EMS Institute with Penrose Hospital, Confidential Victim Advocate Training Academy, and more
- Analyzed qualitative and quantitative data for grant reporting on a monthly, quarterly, and yearly basis
- Led, supervised, and cultivated advocates with TESSA's trauma informed policies and best practices

ADJUNCT PSYCHOLOGY PROFESSOR 2018 – 2018

Pikes Peak Community College

- Instructed two Introduction to Psychology college level courses
- Conceptualized teaching materials, assignments, and exams
- Recorded and verified grades for approximately 80 students

Courtney Sutton, MA

Colorado Springs, CO | Email: [REDACTED]

LEAD COURT ADVOCATE

FLEX ADVOCATE AND INTERN

2014 – 2018

TESSA

- Provided confidential victim advocacy to intimate partner violence, sexual violence, stalking, and human trafficking survivors in a variety of avenues at protection order court, local hospitals, 4th Judicial Domestic Violence Court, and local offender treatment provider
 - Trained, supported, and guided court volunteers during temporary and permanent protection order process
 - Optimized statistical tracking method for court data
 - Court advocacy accompaniment to criminal, divorce, and protection order cases with clients
 - Facilitated psychoeducational groups for children of intimate partner violence
-

SELECT EDUCATION & PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

University of Colorado | Master of Arts – Clinical Psychology | Colorado Springs 2016

University of Tennessee | Bachelor of Science - Psychology | Martin 2012

COVA | 35th Annual COVA Conference | Keystone 2023

Anti-Racism I, II, III | University of Colorado | Boulder 2022

STAFF | STAFF 36th Annual Conference | Worcester 2022

State of Colorado | Child and Family Investigator Training | Denver 2021

CCASA | Colorado SART Institute | Denver 2021

EVAWI | Trauma Informed Sexual Assault Investigations | Colorado Springs 2020

NSAC | National Sexual Assault Conference | Philadelphia 2019

CCAW | Conference on Crimes Against Women | Dallas 2019

State of Colorado | Colorado Collaborative Justice Conference | Denver 2017

State of Colorado | Colorado Collaborative Justice Conference | Denver 2016

TESSA | Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault Confidential Training | Colorado Springs 2014

SELECT PRESENTATIONS & PUBLICATIONS

Sutton, C.E. & Fite, C. (2023, October). Trauma Informed Practice. Family Law Conference. El Paso County Bar Association.

Sutton, C.E., Landon, G., Dougherty, M., Drake, J. (2023, October). 2023 Colorado Legislative Update. 35th Annual COVA Conference.

Sutton, C.E. & Lopez, I. (2021). Trauma Informed Care. El Paso County Bar Association.

Sutton, C.E. & Rhodes, J. (2020). Intimate Partner Violence and Trauma Informed Care. Emergency Medical Services Institute with Penrose Hospital.

Sutton, C. E. (2018, October). Manipulation & System Abuse by Abusers. 17th Annual Pikes Peak Regional Domestic Violence Summit.

Sutton, C. E. (2016, October). Domestic Violence Court. 15th Annual Pikes Peak Regional Domestic Violence Summit.

Sutton, C. E. (2016, July). Comorbidity of Personality Disorders in a Prison Sample. Thesis Defense, The University of Colorado, Colorado Springs.

Coolidge, F. L., & Sutton, C. E. (2015, February). Assessment of DSM-5 Neurocognitive Disorder in 3,090 Adult Prison Inmates. Poster presented to the International Neuropsychological Society 43rd annual convention.

Gentry, J. D., Sutton, C. E., Doffing, M., Qualls, S., Davies, D., & Stock, S. (2014, March). Acceptance of Mobile Wellness Technology in a Frail Senior Home Health Population. Poster presented to Gerontological Society of America 67th annual convention.

Merwin, M. M., & Sutton, C. E. (2012, November). YOLO (You only live once): Relevance of May's 1953 Writing. Poster presented to the American Psychological Association 121th annual convention.

Merwin, M. M., Gathers, A. D., Steele, J. J., Smith, B. D., & Sutton, C. E. (2012, August). The Effects of Acute Cardiovascular Exercise on Generative Fluency Tasks. Poster presented at the American Psychological Association 120th annual convention.

Sutton, C. E. (2016). Comorbidity of Personality Disorders in a Prison Sample. (Thesis. University of Colorado Colorado Springs. Kraemer Family Library).

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Tofte (Nestaval), Emily		County Jefferson	Cong. District 7	Senate District 20	House District 7
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Evergreen		State CO	Zip Code 80439
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED], 1982	Gender Female	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Unaffiliated			Ethnicity Caucasian
Present Employer/Title Rocky Mountain Victim Law Center/Executive Director		Business Phone # (303) 295-2001		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 899 Logan Street, Suite 512		City Denver		State Colorado	Zip Code 80203

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Red River High School	Grand Forks, ND		2001
College	University of North Dakota	Grand Forks, ND			Criminal Justice & Psychology
	Indiana University - Bloomington	Bloomington, IN		2005	Criminal Justice & Psychology
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence	University of Michigan	Ann Arbor, MI		2007	Social Work
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if	Executive Director, Rocky Mountain Victim Law Center (present) Colorado Coalitional Against Sexual Assault (former Public Policy co-chair)

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Kazi Houston	Colleague	[REDACTED]
Brie Franklin	Collaborative Partner	[REDACTED]
Michael Dougherty	Collaborative Partner	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?:Part Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis
Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Tofte (Nestaval), Emily	Jefferson	7	20	7

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

I have had the privilege of serving as the Executive Director of the Rocky Mountain Victim Law Center for over 9 years. RMVlc provides direct legal services to crime victims across Colorado. The founding program of RMVlc was its Victims' Rights Legal Services Program. Since its inception 13 years ago, RMVlc has been providing representation to victims as they navigate the criminal legal system. Through my experience in this role, I have the unique opportunity to understand the barriers victims face in seeking justice through the criminal legal system. Similarly, I have the unique perspective of how changes to the criminal legal system have a direct impact on crime victims. Judges play a crucial role in that system and the voices of victims should be considered in the judicial discipline process.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

Emily Tofte Nestaval, MSW

HIGHLIGHTS OF QUALIFICATIONS

- 20+ years of experience providing direct services to victims of violent crime;
- 9 years' experience in nonprofit law firm management.

WORK EXPERIENCE

ROCKY MOUNTAIN VICTIM LAW CENTER (RMvlc) | DENVER, COLORADO

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR | FEBRUARY 2016 - PRESENT

- Provides direct services to victims of crime.
- Serves as lead on all public policy initiatives through meaningful collaboration with other victim services coalitions.
- Provides key leadership, management, and oversight of organization including program development, program evaluation, financial management, fundraising, and staff supervision.
- Manages and writes all state, foundation, and federal grants.
- Key spokesperson for organization including media contact and manages all strategic communications.
- Works in collaboration with Board of Directors to ensure proper fiscal oversight and governance.
- Implements nonprofit best practices to ensure longevity and sustainability of the organization.
- Provides key participation on various public policy to ensure victim rights are at the forefront of policy change.
- Provides direct services to crime victims including advocacy and court accompaniment.

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR | DECEMBER 2012 – MARCH 2014

- Created first organizational fundraising program and increased unrestricted funds by 175% in one year.
- Provided key leadership, management, and oversight of organization including program development, program evaluation, financial management, fundraising, and staff supervision.
- Managed and wrote all state, foundation, and federal grants.
- Worked in collaboration with the Board of Directors to ensure proper fiscal oversight and governance.
- Implemented nonprofit best practices to ensure longevity and sustainability of the organization.
- Responsible for all staff supervision and human resources.
- Provided key participation on various public policy committees.

MINNESOTA COALITION AGAINST SEXUAL ASSAULT | ST. PAUL, MN

SEXUAL VIOLENCE JUSTICE INSTITUTE PROGRAM DIRECTOR | OCT 2015 – MARCH 2016

- Oversee program budget of $1.3 million comprised of eight grant-funded projects.
- Resources and tools to improve team leadership and the multidisciplinary response to sexual violence.
- Oversee legal resources and criminal justice system response to sexual assault victims.
- Provide leadership on multidisciplinary forums for providing guidance on emerging issues in the field.
- Provide training and technical assistance to multidisciplinary teams across the nation.
- Manage four OVW funded technical assistance projects and ensure strategic implementation and compliance.

FINANCIAL MANAGER | JULY 2014 – OCTOBER 2015

- Provide oversight of all financial aspects of organization and its $2.2 million budget.
- Ensure budget management and grant compliance with all federal and state funding streams.
- Prepare & distribute financial reports for the Board of Directors, programs, grants, & other areas as required.
- Prepare organizational and program financial projections for strategic planning and sustainability.

MOVING TO END SEXUAL ASSAULT (MESA) | BOULDER, COLORADO

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR | JUNE 2010 – DECEMBER 2012

- Provide key leadership for county-based Sexual Assault Response Council (multidisciplinary team), Sexual Assault Review Team (case review team), and various other community collaborations.
- Provided project management to federally funded OVW Disabilities Grant Program.
- Responsible for developing policies and procedures, and ensuring compliance by staff and volunteers.
- Oversee Client Services Program including support group, individual therapy, case management, 24-hour crisis hotline services, & 50+ volunteers.
- Oversee the Prevention Education program & other special projects.

INTERIM EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR | APRIL 2009 – JUNE 2010

- Managed organizational annual budget of $550,000 and all state, federal and foundation grants.
- Coordinated two annual fundraisers and increased funds raised from each event by 50% over prior year.

NOVEMBER 2008 – APRIL 2009 | CLIENT SERVICES AND OUTREACH DIRECTOR

- Supervised one professional staff member and over 50+ hotline volunteers.
- Created, implemented, & supervised cost-effective clinical intern program.
- Provided individual and support group therapy for sexual assault survivors.

THE NETWORK AGAINST SEXUAL & DOMESTIC ABUSE (now HAVEN) | BOZEMAN, MONTANA

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR | SEPTEMBER 2007 – NOVEMBER 2008

- Supervised five professional staff members and more than 15 volunteers.
- Managed and wrote all grants including federal, state, and local grants.
- Developed new gala fundraising event, raising over $4,000 in its first year.
- Developed and implemented best practices for nonprofit board governance.

EDUCATION

MASTERS' OF SOCIAL WORK (MSW) | UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN ANN ARBOR, MICHIGAN | APRIL 2007

- Emphasis on Community Organization and Non-Profit Management
- Selected as guest commencement speaker

BACHELOR OF ARTS | INDIANA UNIVERSITY – BLOOMINGTON | BLOOMINGTON, INDIANA | MAY 2005

- B.A. Psychology & B.A. Criminal Justice

AWARDS & ASSOCIATIONS

2021 – 2023 Co-Chair of Colorado Coalition Against Sexual Assault's Public Policy Committee

2017 Victim Rights Award Recipient | 20th Judicial District Attorney's Office

2015 Change Maker Award Recipient | Colorado Coalition Against Sexual Assault

2012 Women Who Make a Difference Award Recipient | University of Colorado Boulder, Women's Resource Center

2009 – 2013 Chair of Colorado Coalition Against Sexual Assault's Board of Directors

COLORADO
Governor Jared Polis

April 4, 2024

To the Honorable
Colorado Senate
Colorado General Assembly
State Capitol Building
Denver, CO 80203

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Pursuant to the powers conferred upon me by the Constitution and Laws of the State of Colorado, I have the honor to designate, appoint, reappoint, and submit to your consideration, the following:

MEMBER OF THE
COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

for terms expiring June 30, 2027:

Courtney Sutton of Colorado Springs, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, occasioned by the resignation of Gina Lopez of Towaoc, Colorado, appointed;

Emily Tofte Nestaval of Evergreen, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, occasioned by the resignation of Marisa Pacheco of Pueblo, Colorado, appointed.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads "Jared Polis".

Jared Polis
Governor

10 Members (6 appointed by Governor)
2 Attorneys, 4 Non-attorneys
4 Year Terms

COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

SENATE CONFIRMATION

	Appointed	Confirmed	Expires
Attorney Members
Mary (Mindy) Sooter, Boulder (D) repl. Gregory, appt.	07-01-21	03-08-22	06-30-25
Ingrid Barrier, Denver (U) appt.	12-21-23	03-11-24	06-30-27
Non-Attorneys
James Carpenter, Englewood (D) repl. Bolling, reappt.	07-01-21	03-08-22	06-30-25
Courtney Sutton, Colorado Springs (D) repl. Lopez, appt.	04-04-24		06-30-27
Emily Tofte Nestaval, Evergreen (U) repl. Pacheco, appt	04-04-24		06-30-27
Stefanie Trujillo, Commerce City (U) appt	12-21-23	03-11-24	06-30-27

C.R.S. 24-72-401

Updated: 04-04-24

1300 Broadway, Ste. 210
303.457.5134

COLORADO
Governor Jared Polis

April 4, 2024

To the Honorable
Colorado Senate
Colorado General Assembly
State Capitol Building
Denver, CO 80203

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Pursuant to the powers conferred upon me by the Constitution and Laws of the State of Colorado, I have the honor to designate, appoint, reappoint, and submit to your consideration, the following:

MEMBER OF THE
COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

for terms expiring June 30, 2027:

Courtney Sutton of Colorado Springs, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, occasioned by the resignation of Gina Lopez of Towaoc, Colorado, appointed;

Emily Tofte Nestaval of Evergreen, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, occasioned by the resignation of Marisa Pacheco of Pueblo, Colorado, appointed.

Sincerely,

Jared Polis
Governor

From: Hayes - GOVOffice, Shannon on behalf of Hayes - GOVOffice, Shannon <shannon.hayes@state.co.us>
To: Rachel Kurtz-Phelan - GA; Horojah Jawara; Christopher Gregory
Cc: Patel - GovOffice, Niketa; Jennifer Ferrall - GOVOffice; Savannah Martel-Valdez - GOVOffice
Subject: A 2023-365 Judicial Discipline Commission
Date: Wednesday, December 20, 2023 4:40:15 PM
Attachments: A 2023-365 Judicial Discipline Commission.pdf
Judicial Discipline Commission \(SENATE2023-365\).docx
Judicial Discipline \(BIBLE\).docx

Hello,

Please find attached the executive order with redacted applications, updated roster page, and original senate letter. Thanks!

--

Shannon Hayes
Deputy Director
Boards and Commissions
Pronouns: she/her

C 303.725.5584
136 State Capitol, Denver, CO 80203
shannon.hayes@state.co.us | www.colorado.gov/governor

Under the Colorado Open Records Act (CORA), all messages sent by or to me on this state-owned e-mail account may be subject to public disclosure.

COLORADO
Governor Jared Polis

A 2023 365

EXECUTIVE ORDER

MEMBERS

COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

ORDERED:

That the following named persons be and are hereby appointed to the:

COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

for terms expiring June 30, 2027:

Ingrid Barrier of Denver, Colorado, to serve as an attorney, appointed;

Stefanie Trujillo of Commerce City, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed.

GIVEN under my hand and the
Executive Seal of the State of Colorado, this twenty first day of
December, 2023.

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads 'Jared Polis'.

Jared Polis
Governor

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Barrier, Ingrid Carlson		County Denver	Cong. District 1	Senate District 31	House District 6
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Denver		State CO	Zip Code 80230
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1971	Gender Female	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Democrat		Ethnicity Caucasian
Present Employer/Title Colorado Department of Public Safety/Chief Human Resources Officer		Business Phone # (720) 863-8984	Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]	E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 700 Kipling Street		City Lakewood	State Colorado	Zip Code 80215

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Kent Denver School	Englewood, CO		1989
College	Bowdoin College	Brunswick, ME		1993	Art History
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence	University of Denver College of Law	Denver, CO		2000	Law
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if	Please see attached resume.

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Michelle Brissette Miller	Former colleague at Attorney General's Office	[REDACTED]
Jennifer Hunt	Former colleague at Hill&Robbins and AG's office	[REDACTED]
Jana Locke	Current Supervisor at CDPS	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: Full Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Barrier, Ingrid Carlson	Denver	1	31	6

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

The best volunteer job I ever had was serving on the Second Judicial District Judicial Nominating Commission. It gave me invaluable perspective into the critical role of boards and commissions in Colorado as adjacent partners to the workings of government, the importance of citizen participation in their own governmental systems, and emphasizing value of different political, professional and personal opinions about decisions that are key to our system of governance. The Commission on Judicial Discipline builds confidence in our court system by carefully vetting concerns about judges in a measured, thoughtful, and precise manner. I am well suited to this work - I am pragmatic, organized, attentive to detail, curious and solution oriented. I work well with a diverse group. I am fair and will build rapport with commissioners, staff and members of the judiciary (as appropriate). I strive to do the right thing.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

Ingrid C. Barrier

December 8, 2023

Please consider me as an attorney member on the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline. I have been a lawyer for 23 years and a Denver, Colorado resident my whole life. I care deeply about our important governmental institutions, the courts being paramount. We deserve high functioning courts at every level in every Judicial District in Colorado. Without a principled forum to address complaints about our judges, we jeopardize the system that resolves so many challenges in our communities.

I am a staunch supporter of Colorado's selection, retention, performance review and investigative processes including censure or potential discipline related to our judges. I served on the Second Judicial Nominating Commission to vet candidates for the governor's consideration and appointment. This role feels like the flip side – it ensures that judges, once appointed, continue to fulfill the mandates of the Judicial Rules, the Judicial Canon, and uphold Colorado law on the bench and in their own lives.

Each complaint (no matter who generates it) must be considered carefully and investigated ethically when investigation is merited. This Commission must ensure that it protects confidentiality, moves swiftly, and relies on its robust constitutional and statutory governance structure to tightly frame its investigations. There is no room for error in evaluating judicial conduct.

I will bring my intellect, my collaborative nature, my good humor, efficiency, and ease in tackling challenging topics to the Commission and will professionally address every appropriate complaint that comes before the Commission.

I look forward to discussing this exciting opportunity with you.

Sincerely,

Ingrid Carlson Barrier

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Trujillo, Stefanie		County Adams	Cong. District 8	Senate District 21	House District 32
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Commerce City		State CO	Zip Code 80022
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1982	Gender Female	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Unaffiliated		Ethnicity Hispanic
Present Employer/Title Ottens Johnson Robinson Neff + Ragonetti/Litigation Support Coordinator/Senior Paralegal		Business Phone # (303) 575-7566		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 950 17th Street		City Denver		State Colorado	Zip Code 80202

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Pomona High School	Arvada, Colorado		2000
College	Community College of Denver	Denver, Colorado		2002	Paralegal/General Studies
	University of Colorado	Denver, Colorado		2005	Political Science, Law Studies Minor
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Michelle Maynard	Current Direct Supervisor/Firm Administrator	[REDACTED]
Cheralyn Stevenson	Former Direct Supervisor	[REDACTED]
David Hutchinson	Firm Mentor/Attorney	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: Full Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Trujillo, Stefanie	Adams	8	21	32

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

Being a part of Colorado's legal community for over 20 years has given me the insight needed to create change and help right the wrongs in our community. I see serving on this commission as an opportunity to continue doing this work while ensuring there is accountability in the Judiciary. As a non-lawyer who has a lot of experience in the legal community, I see myself as a rather unique candidate. I understand our legal community well, yet I am also able to serve in this role through the lens of a non-lawyer. I truly believe that service is an essential part of every government and I would be honored to serve on the Commission of Judicial Discipline.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

STEFANIE TRUJILLO

She/Her/Ella

| Commerce City, Colorado

Visionary Paralegal | Legal Ambassador | Author and Coach

PROFILE SUMMARY

A multi-faceted legal executive with over 20 years of experience providing leadership, operations and project management, and motivational expertise to ensure streamlined processes, and increased efficiency. Possess in-depth knowledge of legal terminology and principles. Enjoys challenges and able to switch-task in a fast-paced environment.

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Otten Johnson Robinson Neff + Ragonetti, PC, Denver, Colorado

10/2018–Present

Litigation Support Coordinator | Senior Litigation Paralegal

- Coach litigation support staff and provide guidance on their daily projects.
- Oversee the daily operation of the Litigation Department including human resource management, staff development, and ensure that department projects and milestones are met while adhering to approved budgets.
- Identify cost-effective processes and technology solutions for the firm by maintaining a deep understanding of trending legal technology, market competitors, and tools used to support the legal industry.
- Manage complex discovery projects, including evaluation of case eDiscovery needs to determine appropriate eDiscovery tool(s) for collection, processing, and production.
- Prepare Electronically Stored Information (ESI) projects for review, develop review protocols and analyze data.
- Draft pleadings and other legal documents, including but not limited to, motions, briefs, and proposed orders, Rule 26 initial and expert disclosures.
- Attend trials and hearings and present electronic trial exhibits, assist with jury selection, coordinate and prepare witnesses and provide input for witness examinations.
- Co-chair of the Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Committee.
- Serve on the firm's Technology Committee.

Various Law Firms

03/2002–10/2018

Law Firm Administrator | Senior Litigation Paralegal

- Worked for public and private sector law firms.
- Responsible for overall day-to-day operations, including but not limited to, general office coordination, organization, and management to ensure the office is run efficiently.
- Human Resource management including recruitment and new hire interviews.
- Identified cost-effective processes and technology solutions through the entire case lifecycle.
- Prepared, analyzed, and distributed monthly client billing.
- Recorded daily cash receipts and maintained firm books (A/P and A/R).
- Responsible for training and mentoring new associates, junior-level paralegals, and other support staff.
- Provided transactional assistance with regulatory filings, corporate document production, and corporate maintenance, including but not limited to, minute books, processing of annual reports, and license renewals.
- Maintained document databases for all cases, including but not limited to, loading, organizing, coding, and search strategies.
- Oversaw all aspects of ESI including identification, preservation, harvesting, processing, culling, reviewing, and producing the e-discovery.
- Responsible for document management and production, including Bates labeling, redacting, and indexing documents.
- Drafted pleadings and other legal documents, including but not limited to, briefs, motions, and proposed orders, Rule 26 initial and expert disclosures, EEOC position statements, and responses to requests for information.
- Served on various firm committees.

EDUCATION

Community College of Denver

2003

A.A., Paralegal Studies

University of Colorado

2005

B.A., Political Science (Law Studies minor)

RELEVANT SKILLS

Microsoft Office Suite, Adobe Acrobat Professional, LexisNexis Products (Research, LAW, File & Serve), Clio, CaseMap, TimeMap, Westlaw, PACER (CM/ECF), Sanction, Summation, Relativity, Catalyst (Certification), Concordance, TrialDirector, TrialPad,, Everlaw, Smokeball, Elite Enterprise, FileSite Document Management System, Predictive Coding Applications, Practice Manager, Timeslips, Siemens, Quickbooks, Kronos, Tussman, Legal Math, Salesforce

AFFILIATIONS

- President/CEO, The Rocky Mountain Paralegal Association 2021 - Present
- Vice President, The Rocky Mountain Paralegal Association 2019-2021
- Chapter Membership Director, Women in eDiscovery 2018- 2022
- Colorado Supreme Court Outreach and Working Group Committee, LLP Initiative 2021 – 2023

COLORADO
Governor Jared Polis

December 21, 2023

To the Honorable
Colorado Senate
Colorado General Assembly
State Capitol Building
Denver, CO 80203

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Pursuant to the powers conferred upon me by the Constitution and Laws of the State of Colorado, I have the honor to designate, appoint, reappoint, and submit to your consideration, the following:

MEMBER OF THE
COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

for terms expiring June 30, 2027:

Ingrid Barrier of Denver, Colorado, to serve as an attorney, appointed;

Stefanie Trujillo of Commerce City, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed.

Sincerely,

Jared Polis
Governor

10 Members (6 appointed by Governor)
2 Attorneys, 4 Non-attorneys
4 Year Terms

COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

SENATE CONFIRMATION

	Appointed	Confirmed	Expires
Attorney Members
Mary (Mindy) Sooter, Boulder repl. Gregory, appt.	07-01-21	03-08-22	06-30-25
Ingrid Barrier, Denver (U) appt.	12-18-23		06-30-27
Non-Attorneys
James Carpenter, Englewood (D) repl. Bolling, reappt.	07-01-21	03-08-22	06-30-25
Gina Lopez, Towaoc (U) appt.	08-11-23		06-30-27
Marisa Pacheco, Pueblo (U) appt	08-11-23		06-30-27
Stefanie Trujillo, Commerce City (U) appt	12-18-23		06-30-27

C.R.S. 24-72-401

Updated: 12-15-23

Christopher Gregory, Exec. Director
1300 Broadway, Ste. 210
303.457.5134

December 22, 2023

To the Honorable
Colorado Senate
Colorado General Assembly
State Capitol Building
Denver, CO 80203

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Pursuant to the powers conferred upon me by the Constitution and Laws of the State of Colorado, I have the honor to designate, appoint, reappoint, and submit to your consideration, the following:

MEMBER OF THE
COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

for terms expiring June 30, 2027:

Ingrid Barrier of Denver, Colorado, to serve as an attorney, appointed;

Stefanie Trujillo of Commerce City, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed.

Sincerely,

Jared Polis
Governor

From: Patel - GovOffice, Niketa on behalf of Patel - GovOffice, Niketa <niketa.patel@state.co.us>
To: Rachel Kurtz-Phelan - GA; Dan Graeve - GA
Cc: Shannon Hayes - GOVOffice; Ferrall - GOVOffice, Jennifer; Savannah Martel-Valdez - GOVOffice; c.gregory@jd.state.co.us
Subject: Re: 2023-203 Judicial Discipline Commission
Date: Friday, August 11, 2023 4:58:02 PM
Attachments: Judicial Discipline \(BIBLE\) \(1\).docx
Judicial Discipline Commission \(SENATE2023-214\).docx
A 2023-214 Judicial Discipline Commission.pdf

Hello,

Attached please find the executive order with redacted applications, original senate letter and updated roster page. This executive order rescinds Executive Order A 2023 203.

Thank you!

Best,
Nikky Patel
Director of Boards and Commissions
c: (303) 957-8054

Under the Colorado Open Records Act (CORA), all messages sent by or to me on this state-owned e-mail account may be subject to public disclosure.

On Fri, Aug 4, 2023 at 2:01 PM Ferrall - GOVOffice, Jennifer <jennifer.ferrall@state.co.us> wrote:

Hello,

Attached please find the executive order with redacted applications, original senate letter and updated roster page.

Thank you,

--

Jennifer Ferrall
Boards and Commissions Coordinator
Office of Boards and Commissions

O: 303.866.5232 C: 720.331.9941
136 State Capitol, Denver, CO 80203
jennifer.ferrall@state.co.us | www.colorado.gov/governor

Under the Colorado Open Records Act (CORA), all messages sent by or to me on this state-owned e-mail account may be subject to public disclosure.

10 Members (6 appointed by Governor)
2 Attorneys, 4 Non-attorneys
4 Year Terms

COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

SENATE CONFIRMATION

	Appointed	Confirmed	Expires
Attorney Members
Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa, Evergreen repl. Alvarez, reappt.	06-20-19	02-03-20	06-30-23
Mary (Mindy) Sooter, Boulder repl. Gregory, appt.	07-01-21	03-08-22	06-30-25

Non-Attorneys

Yolanda Regina Lyons, Colo. Spgs. reappt.	06-20-19	02-03-20	06-30-23
James Carpenter, Englewood repl. Bolling, reappt.	07-01-21	03-08-22	06-30-25
Gina Lopez, Towaoc (U) appt.	08-11-23		06-30-27
Marisa Pacheco, Pueblo (U) appt	08-11-23		06-30-27

C.R.S. 24-72-401

Updated: 08-11-23

Christopher Gregory, Exec. Director
1300 Broadway, Ste. 210
303.457.5134

August 11, 2023

To the Honorable
Colorado Senate
Colorado General Assembly
State Capitol Building
Denver, CO 80203

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Pursuant to the powers conferred upon me by the Constitution and Laws of the State of Colorado, I have the honor to designate, appoint, reappoint, and submit to your consideration, the following, which rescinds Executive Order A 2023 203:

MEMBER OF THE
COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

for terms expiring June 30, 2027:

Gina Lopez of Towaoc, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed;

Marisa Pacheco of Pueblo, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed.

Sincerely,

Jared Polis
Governor

COLORADO
Governor Jared Polis

A 2023 214

EXECUTIVE ORDER

MEMBERS

COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

ORDERED:

That the following named persons be and are hereby appointed to the:

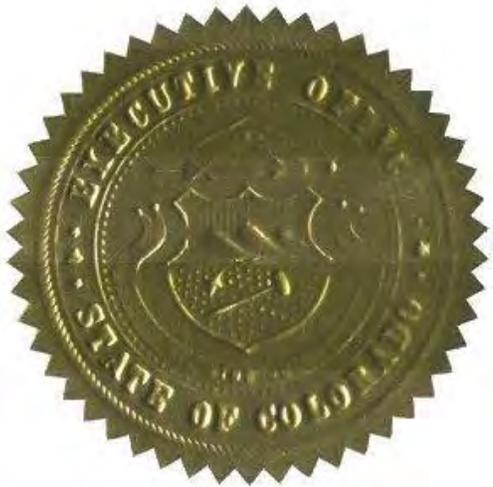

COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

for terms expiring June 30, 2027:

Gina Lopez of Towaoc, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed;

Marisa Pacheco of Pueblo, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed.

This Executive Order shall rescind Executive Order A 2023 203 pertaining to the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline.

GIVEN under my hand and the
Executive Seal of the State of Colorado, this eleventh day
of August, 2023.

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads 'Jared Polis'.

Jared Polis
Governor

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Lopez, Gina Josey		County Montezuma	Cong. District 3	Senate District 6	House District 59
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Towaoc		State Colorado	Zip Code 81334
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1982	Gender Female	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Unaffiliated		Ethnicity Native American
Present Employer/Title Colorado Coalition Against Sexual Assault/Systems Response Program Director		Business Phone # (720) 728-8379		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 1330 Fox Street, Suite 2		City Denver		State Colorado	Zip Code 80204

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Sherman Indian High School	Riverside, CA		2000
College	Metropolitan State University	Denver, CO		2011	Criminal Justice/Criminology, minor Philosophy
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if	Advocate member of Coalition to Stop Violence Against Native Women, member of Montezuma Youth Pride

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Kara Napolitano	Friend/Colleague	[REDACTED]
Kimberly Multine	Friend/Colleague	[REDACTED]
Kia Whiteskunk	Friend	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: Full Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Lopez, Gina Josey	Montezuma	3	6	59

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

I hope to represent our member agencies across Colorado that work to provide advocacy services to victims of sexual violence in their communities and our role in supporting that work is to stay updated with what legislative changes might impact their work and provide training to make sure they are carrying out those requirements that works to be survivor driven. Our member agencies represent many different communities with different accesses to resources and all are tasked with adhering to these legislative requirements and our team is working to support those efforts with innovative practices.

My prior experience working in a rural, Tribal community in Colorado as well as my continued partnership with anti-trafficking organizations and workgroups like the Laboratory to Combat Human Trafficking and the Denver Anti-Trafficking Alliance is my continued commitment to understanding impacts and responses to trafficking. Our training and technical assistance values the work of community systems and programs that may not be direct services advocacy but still have a role to play in the network of care of survivors, those resources have proven to be the best community innovative ways to address gaps in care. CCASA continues to support those community innovations and learn from them to inform and strengthen existing training curriculum that is made better with what we learn from our members and their communities. It is my hope and intention to continue to be that supportive component and collaborator in working to confront trafficking in Colorado. It is my goal to keep this communication and effort strong across our agencies and best represent our coalition engaging with this Human Trafficking Council.

I have worked for CCASA and our member agencies for almost 5 years now and in my role, I have worked to provide training and technical assistance to our advocates who serve their communities. We have provided culturally specific advocacy and rural community advocacy and training support to strengthen existing services. We work hard to understand and know our member agencies' community needs and honor their commitment to survivors' needs as well. I believe that we have a valuable perspective and relationship in Colorado communities that can help this council achieve its goals and collaborative efforts. I am honored to be of assistance and hope to also learn ways to do better in our work so that together, we are nurturing a safer Colorado.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.

*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

▶ Gina Lopez

Objectives

My objective upon leaving my tribal work was to strengthen bridges between communities by stepping into important roles as a bearer of information through training and technical assistance. The experiences I've had in my tribal community victim services allowed me to grow important relationships with neighboring communities and open more options for survivors. I have many years of work experience within a tribal organization and tribal business entities giving me a developed resourcefulness and insight to provide informed guidance. I strive to work for organizations that utilize my voice to further the visibility and space for Indigenous and other silenced communities.

Education

Bachelor of Science Criminal Justice/Criminology, Minor in Philosophy (December 2011)

▶ Metropolitan State University of Denver | Denver, CO

Experience

Systems Response Program Director (10/2018) –(Present)

Colorado Coalition Against Sexual Assault (P.O. Box 40350 | 1330 Fox Street, Denver, CO 80204)

Training and technical assistance to agencies that provide services and resources to rural and indigenous communities as well as statewide agencies. Provide cross-systems work to inform from cultural and geographical perspectives in order to enhance training and advocacy for all survivors of sexual violence. I work in many multi-disciplinary work groups, task forces and collaboratives that confront issues like sexual violence, trafficking, IPV (inter-personal violence) and cultural education. I also co-chair a multi-Tribal, multi-disciplinary coalition that encompasses all four states called the Navajo, Apache, Ute, Hopi, Zuni Coalition Against Sexual Assault and Family Violence wherein we meet monthly to discuss, support and promote justice on all of our tribal lands. The work of coalition building and sustaining led to the organized grassroots effort of co-found the Missing and Murdered Indigenous Relatives of Colorado Taskforce. We successfully, with bipartisan support, passed SB22-150; Colorado's first-ever missing and murdered response and data gathering effort and just this year, assisted in the implementation and branding of the State's first ever Missing Indigenous Person Alert system. The work in this position has only just begun and will continue to broaden the understanding of Colorado providers, funders and systems to work towards better relationships and understanding.

Victim Support Services Program Coordinator (9/2016) –(10/2018)

Ute Mountain Ute Tribe (P.O. Box 189 | 124 Mike Wash Road, Towaoc, CO 81334)

Program coordination, budget and grant management, victim advocacy, supervision of prevention coordinators that covered domestic violence, sexual assault and stalking as well as suicide prevention work. The funding provided for comprehensive victim services for all victims of all crime in Towaoc and White Mesa. We worked in mutually respectful cooperation with federal BIA, FBI and county law enforcement, courts and victim specialists. We also worked with health providers in clinics, hospitals, shelters and child advocacy centers in our state and in other states as well.

Analyst II (5/2015) –(9/2016)

Ute Mountain Ute Tribe (P.O. Box 189 | 124 Mike Wash Road, Towaoc, CO 81334)

Production analysis and revenue reporting of Tribe's oil and gas resources. Communication with companies to reconcile production reporting. Credential through DOI, ONRR (Office of Natural Resources Revenue for database verification and compliance. Review and compliance with natural resource contracts, tribal resolutions and rights-of-way documentation. Completed mandated training for oil and gas production accounting, database use, compliance, and understanding components of oil and gas contracting, landmen, etc.

Revenue Auditor (8/2012) –(5/2015)

Ute Mountain Ute Casino (P.O. Box 268 | 3 Weeminuche Drive, Towaoc, CO 81334)

Daily financial reconciliation and close out of revenue throughout casino departments. Verification of jackpot wins, end-of-month audits of each department inventory, slot meter reading. Training in slot play database, tax verification, cage/vault end-of-month inventory and balance sheets. Daily spreadsheet reconcile with each auditor's entries to balance at end of each day. Resolving accounting and/or POS disputes and issuing correction documentation to each department and employee.

Skills

- ▶ Tribal grant reporting and coordination, supervision of prevention staff, 40-hour advocacy training (State-Colorado, NM, Arizona, OVC, BIA – Bureau of Indian Affairs), CO VRA, danger assessment certified, computer: excel, word, PowerPoint, email/outlook, fax, I0-key, online platforms (zoom, GoTo meetings) and I-LED coursework training for online teaching skills advancement
- ▶ Train in the following focus areas: Sexual Assault/Domestic Violence in Indigenous/Tribal communities; Visibility and enrollment impacts in Tribal communities and survivorship; Sexual Assault advocacy; Anti-Oppression; SART/MDT/CRT development; Trafficking in Indigenous/Tribal communities; MMIR CO TF and policy development
- ▶ Successful remote/hybrid work environment since 2018 including the passage of critical Indigenous led State legislation
- ▶ Manage an emergency fund with trauma-informed advocacy for Native/Indigenous sexual assault and child sexual abuse survivors and their families

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Pacheco, Marisa Lee		County Pueblo	Cong. District 3	Senate District 3	House District 62
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Pueblo		State Colorado	Zip Code 81006
Mailing Address		City		State	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED], 1973	Gender Female	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Unaffiliated		Ethnicity Caucasian
Present Employer/Title City of Pueblo/Human Resources Director		Business Phone # [REDACTED]		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 301 West B Street		City Pueblo		State Colorado	Zip Code

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	William Mitchell High School	Colorado Springs		1992	General
College	University of Colorado	Colorado Springs		1996	Psychology/Gerontology
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held (Indicate if)	Society of Human Resources Management - Senior Professional Certified International Public Management Association - Senior Professional Certified

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Nick Gradisar		[REDACTED]
Laura Solano		[REDACTED]
Troy Davenport		[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: I am capable of committing as much time as necessary to fulfill the duties of this position. It would be an honor to be selected.

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Pacheco, Marisa Lee	Pueblo	3	3	62

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

I am a Colorado native and dedicated public servant with deep local government expertise. This board opportunity provides a way to serve in a meaningful way at a state level, beyond my immediate community. This is very exciting and of great interest to me both professionally and personally. I have nearly twenty-five years of Human Resources experience, have held management positions for sixteen of those years, mostly working in local government.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

MARISA PACHECO

IMPA-HR SCP, SHRM-SCP

Dynamic, accomplished human resources leader with 24 years of achievement and success in providing strategic human resources leadership in both public sector (union and non-union) and private sector environments. Core competencies and skills include:

- Compensation and classification system design and management
- Budgeting and forecasting
- Benefits administration, cost containment
- Public Safety and civilian union experience
- HR Audits, process improvement, change management
- Worker's compensation and risk management
- Executive and line recruitment
- Program management experience
- Labor relations/union experience
- Training design, development, and delivery
- Employee relations and investigation expertise
- Extensive policy development experience

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE & SELECTED ACHIEVEMENTS

Human Resources Director, City of Pueblo, 4/2010-Present

One of the largest employers in the Pueblo market with approximately 800 regular FTEs and 1300 total employees including seasonal temporaries, the City of Pueblo is a full-service city. General Fund annual budget is approximately 98 million with 70% in personnel costs. In the Human Resources Director role, responsible for all facets of the Human Resources function reporting to the elected Mayor:

- Directed the work of a combination of professional, paraprofessional, technical and administrative support staff
- Serve as policy advisor to the City Manager for 8 years, then following conversion of government to Mayor and Directors.
- Management negotiations team member on annual contract negotiations for International Association of Firefighters (IAFF Local #3), International Brotherhood of Police Officers (IBPO Local #537), Pueblo Association of Government Employees (PAGE affiliate of AFSCME Local #1712) and Amalgamated Transit Union No. 662
- Extensive labor relations experience, representing the City on union grievance issues and disciplinary matters in conjunction with legal counsel
- Deep expertise in employee relations matters to include investigations and mediation
- Manage the compensation and classification systems performing annual market compensation studies, including general market analysis and comprehensive benchmark studies in advance of labor contract negotiations to develop recommendations to the Mayor

- Developed Pueblo Leadership Academy a year-long comprehensive supervisory academy for City staff members starting in 2012 and Director's Informational Workshops in 2020
- For the first time in the City's history, established zero cost positive insurance broker relationship keeping premium changes in line with national trend despite high utilization of plans
- Managed the transition of the City's approximately $13 million dollar per year medical insurance program from fully insured to self-insured in 2020. Manage all benefit plans including fully insured programs, RFP and selection activities
- Moved organization to streamlined web-based platform for benefits open enrollment, served as key operational leader on major ERP system conversion and lead the City's implementation of a new online learning platform
- Manage self-insured workers' compensation and risk management activities
- Developed credibility and strong relationships with senior management and employees
- Performance ratings of exceeds expectations during tenure with City organization

Co-Owner/Principal of Human Capital Group, LLC, 1/2009-4/2010

Co-owner and Principal of innovative human resources management consulting firm specializing in employment lifecycle solutions for private and public sector organizations.

- Provided customized solutions to clients in the core areas of human resources management to include comprehensive audit, administrative review oversight, compensation and classification strategy, recruitment and selection, investigations and fact finding, employee relations, training and facilitation, legal compliance, policy and procedure review and development, training and facilitation, succession planning design and talent and management as well as reduction in force management and career transition services
- Developed nationally certified Human Resources University curriculum
- Shared responsibility for sales and marketing, financial management, and company operations

Human Resources Director – Pueblo City-County Library District, 6/2008–2/2009

Director level position, part of the senior management team reporting directly to Chief Executive of the Library District responsible for all areas of human resources management including the management of volunteer coordination staff.

- Managed all Human Resources functions for the Pueblo City-County Library District (PCCLD) for approximately 120 employees
- Traditional responsibilities included compensation, classification, recruitment, employee relations, EEO compliance, ADA, FMLA, FLSA review and administration, worker's compensation, human resources information systems, manage/oversee volunteer function, budget administration, general program management

- Project management and process improvement projects include the development of a succession planning program, overhaul of policies and procedures for entire district, identification of ways to enhance efficiency and effectiveness of all HR procedures and practices

Human Resources Manager – City of Colorado Springs, 2/2000-6/2008

Human Resources Manager – Colorado Springs Fire Department 5/2007-6/2008

Human Resources Manager – Colorado Springs Police Department 11/2005-11/2007

Human Resources Manager – Central Human Resources 1/2004-11/2005

Principal Human Resources Analyst - 1/2003 – 1/2004

Senior Human Resources Analyst – 8/1/2000-4/2002

Human Resources Analyst II –2/2000-8/2000

At the time of service, the City of Colorado Springs was and remains one of the largest employers in the local market, with approximately 2,700 employees serving a City population of nearly 500,000. The City's budget was approximately 300 million dollars annually, of which approximately 60% of the annual budget was dedicated to total compensation costs.

Focused expertise and responsibilities in compensation, classification, executive recruitment, employee relations, benefits administration, human resources information systems program management and strategic process improvement project experience:

- Only Human Resources Manager in the City to have worked in central Human Resources administration and both public safety departments
- Managed all Human Resources functions for Colorado Springs Fire Department (CSFD) for an employee population of 500
- Prior to being recruited by CSFD, served as the Human Resources Manager for the Colorado Springs Police Department managing all Human Resources functions for an employee population of 1,200
- In all Human Resources Manager positions have managed a combination of professional, paraprofessional, technical and administrative support staff
- During six-year tenure with central City Human Resources, managed the compensation and classification systems performing annual market compensation studies, including general market analysis and comprehensive benchmark studies
- Responsible for the development of recommendations for annual market increases and compensation system realignment for inclusion in the City Manager's annual budget
- Participated in the development of appointed position compensation packages
- Developed credibility and strong relationships with senior management and employees which lead to recruitment to public safety departments
- Developed cost-effective executive recruitment strategy resulting in high-quality hires and is now a model being used by other local public sector agencies
- Facilitated senior management task force to develop succession planning program

- Performance ratings of exceeds expectations during tenure with City organization
- Selected for numerous City-wide and department committees and task forces including, Minority Recruitment Task Force (2005-2008, Chair 2008), Leadership Development Series Executive Steering Committee (2007-2008), PeopleSoft Time and Labor Executive Committee (2007-2008), Promotional Process Committee (2007-2008), City Wellness Committee (2005-2007), City Manager's Budget Analysis Team (2003), Leadership Development Action Team (2003-2005), Customer Service Quality Council (2000-2002) and Diversity and Inclusion Training Team (2001-2005). First civilian recipient of Community Above and Beyond Award (2004).

Human Resources Generalist and National Recruiter, 12/1996-2/2000
Arthur Andersen LLP – Denver, CO, and Chicago IL

Arthur Andersen LLP, formerly one of the largest financial services firms in the world with approximately 60,000 employees worldwide provided assurance, contract accounting, and human capital services to client companies.

During my tenure with Arthur Andersen, I held several professional human resources positions with an emphasis on recruiting within the Assurance and Business Advisory practice, at the local level in Denver and at the national level out of the firm's Chicago headquarters.

National Recruiter, 2/1999-2/2000
Recruiting Coordinator, 10/1997-3/1999
Assurance and Business Advisory (ABA) National Recruiting Team
Chicago, IL

Human Resources Generalist, 12/1996-12/1998
Business Process Outsourcing (BPO) Practice
Denver, CO

EDUCATION & CERTIFICATIONS

Bachelor of Arts (BA), Psychology, academic minor in Gerontology
University of Colorado – May 1996
Graduated magna cum laude with GPA of 3.9

Center for Creative Leadership (CCL) – Colorado Springs
Graduate of Leadership Development Program – 2005

National Incident Management System (NIMS) – Advanced Certification
Certified - ICS 100, ICS 200, ICS 300, ICS 400, ICS 700, ICS 800

International Public Management Association – IMPA-HR Senior Certified Professional

Society for Human Resources Management Senior Certified Professional, SHRM-SCP

PROFESSIONAL MEMBERSHIPS

Society for Human Resources Management (National)
2000-present

Colorado Springs Society for Human Resources Management
2000-2010

Colorado Springs Human Resources Association

Elected Board Member: Vice President, Secretary and Education/Certification Director 2009-2010

IPMA-HR (International Public Management Association) 2010-present

COLORADO
Governor Jared Polis

August 11, 2023

To the Honorable
Colorado Senate
Colorado General Assembly
State Capitol Building
Denver, CO 80203

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Pursuant to the powers conferred upon me by the Constitution and Laws of the State of Colorado, I have the honor to designate, appoint, reappoint, and submit to your consideration, the following, which rescinds Executive Order A 2023 203:

MEMBER OF THE
COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

for terms expiring June 30, 2027:

Gina Lopez of Towaoc, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed;

Marisa Pacheco of Pueblo, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads "Jared Polis".

Jared Polis
Governor

From: Ferrall - GOVOffice, Jennifer on behalf of Ferrall - GOVOffice, Jennifer <jennifer.ferrall@state.co.us>
To: Sarah Stoddard Cameron - GOVOffice Intern
Subject: Fwd: 2023-203 Judicial Discipline Commission
Date: Monday, August 7, 2023 9:03:42 AM
Attachments: A 2023-203 Judicial Discipline Commission.pdf
Judicial Discipline Commission \(SENATE 2023-203\).docx
Judicial Discipline \(BIBLE\).docx

--

Jennifer Ferrall

Boards and Commissions Coordinator
Office of Boards and Commissions

O: 303.866.5232 C: 720.331.9941

136 State Capitol, Denver, CO 80203

jennifer.ferrall@state.co.us | www.colorado.gov/governor

Under the Colorado Open Records Act (CORA), all messages sent by or to me on this state-owned e-mail account may be subject to public disclosure.

----- Forwarded message -----

From: Ferrall - GOVOffice, Jennifer <jennifer.ferrall@state.co.us>

Date: Fri, Aug 4, 2023 at 1:57 PM

Subject: 2023-203 Judicial Discipline Commission

To: Rachel Kurtz-Phelan - GA <rachel.kurtz-phelan@state.co.us>, Dan Graeve - GA <dan.graeve@state.co.us>, Niketa Patel - GovOffice <niketa.patel@state.co.us>, Shannon Hayes - GOVOffice <shannon.hayes@state.co.us>, Savannah Martel-Valdez - GOVOffice <savannah.martel-valdez@state.co.us>, <c.gregory@jd.state.co.us>

Hello,

Attached please find the executive order with redacted applications, original senate letter and updated roster page.

Thank you,

--

Jennifer Ferrall

Boards and Commissions Coordinator
Office of Boards and Commissions

O: 303.866.5232 C: 720.331.9941

136 State Capitol, Denver, CO 80203

jennifer.ferrall@state.co.us | www.colorado.gov/governor

Under the Colorado Open Records Act (CORA), all messages sent by or to me on this state-owned e-mail account may be subject to public disclosure.

COLORADO
Governor Jared Polis

A 2023 203

EXECUTIVE ORDER

MEMBERS

COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

ORDERED:

That the following named persons be and are hereby appointed to the:

COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

for terms expiring June 30, 2027:

David Powell of Denver, Colorado, to serve as an attorney, appointed;

Gina Lopez of Towaoc, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed;

Marisa Pacheco of Pueblo, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed.

GIVEN under my hand and the
Executive Seal of the State of Colorado, this fourth day
of August, 2023.

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads 'Jared Polis'.

Jared Polis
Governor

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Powell, David Daniel		County Denver	Cong. District 1	Senate District 31	House District 2
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Denver		State Colorado	Zip Code 80209
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED], 1958	Gender Male	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Democrat		Ethnicity African American
Present Employer/Title Garnett Powell Maximon Barlow/Partner		Business Phone # (720) 252-7947		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 1512 Larimer St. , Suite 950		City Denver		State Colorado	Zip Code 80202

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Salinas High School	Salinas, California		1976
College	University of Santa Clara	Santa Clara, California		1980
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence	UCLA School of Law	Los Angeles, California		1983	Law
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if	Board of Directors, Denver Dumb Friends League, Board of Directors, Colorado Alzheimer's Association, Sam Cary Bar Association, International Society of Barristers, National Employment Law Council, College of Labor and Employment Attorneys

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Stan Garnett	Colleague/Partner	[REDACTED]
Alvin LaCabe	Friend and mentor	[REDACTED]
Natalie Hanlon-Leh	My former supervisor	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: Full Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Powell, David Daniel	Denver	1	31	2

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

I believe my background as an attorney and the leadership roles I've held in various boards and other organizations make me well qualified to serve on a commission. I also believe that as an attorney, I have an obligation to give back to my community and serving on a commission provides me with an ideal opportunity to serve my community, I am particularly interested in serving as a member of the Judicial Disciplinary Commission because our judiciary is the backbone of our civil and criminal justice system.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

DAVID D. POWELL, JR.

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Equity Partner, Garnett Powell Maximon Barlow

Denver, Colorado

April 2023-present

Founding member of trial boutique with a practice focused primarily on employment litigation, advice and investigations.

Deputy Attorney General, State Services

Colorado Attorney General's Office

Denver, Colorado

April 2019-April 2023

Supervised the State Services section of the Colorado Attorney General's Office – comprised of eight separate legal units responsible for representing the state's key elected officials and providing legal services in the areas of health care, human services, K-12 and higher education, state contracts and procurement, labor, and public utilities.

Equity Shareholder, Ogletree, Deakins, Nash, Smoak & Stewart, P.C.

Denver, Colorado

January 2011-April 2019

Member, Board of Directors (January 2014 – April 2019)

Practice was primarily focused on the representation of employers in litigation matters filed in both state and federal courts. Practice also included advising employers on compliance with local, state, and federal employment laws.

Equity Shareholder, Brownstein Hyatt Farber Schreck, LLP

Denver, Colorado

2002-2010

Chair, Employment Practice Group

Member, Diversity and Inclusiveness Committee

Lead counsel on numerous litigation matters involving federal employment and civil rights statutes, including but not limited to Title VII, the Fair Labor Standards Act, the Americans With Disabilities Act, and the Age Discrimination in Employment Act. Many of the same matters were tried to verdict in both state and federal district courts. Practice also included providing advice to individual executives and employers on a variety of business transactions and other matters arising from the employer-employee relationship.

Associate and Partner, Holland & Hart, LLC

Denver, Colorado

1990-2002

Member, Labor and Employment Practice Group

Conducted legal research, prepared memoranda and briefs, conducted and defended depositions. As a senior associate and partner, practice became primarily focused on employment and civil rights litigation in both federal and state district courts. Served as first and second chair on employment cases tried to verdict in both state and federal district courts.

Deputy District Attorney, Denver District Attorney's Office

Denver, Colorado

1986-1990

Investigated and prosecuted misdemeanor and felony criminal cases. Tried to verdict numerous cases in county, juvenile, and district courts in the City and County of Denver.

Law Clerk

1984-1986

Overton, Lyman & Prince, PC

Los Angeles, California

Conducted research and prepared memoranda on various legal issues related to commercial litigation matters.

Law Clerk for the Honorable John L. Kane, Jr.

United States District Court for the District of Colorado

Denver, Colorado

1983-1984

Conducted research, prepared memoranda and preliminary opinions on various legal issues presented in cases pending before the Court.

EDUCATION

UCLA School of Law

Los Angeles, California

Juris Doctorate, 1983

Managing Editor, Vol. 30 of the UCLA Law Review

Member, Black Law Students Association

University of Santa Clara

Santa Clara, California

Bachelor of Arts in History, 1980

Member, Phi Alpha Theta, History Honor Society

Member, Black Students Union

REFERENCES

Available upon request.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Lopez, Gina Josey		County Montezuma	Cong. District 3	Senate District 6	House District 59
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Towaoc		State Colorado	Zip Code 81334
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1982	Gender Female	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Unaffiliated		Ethnicity Native American
Present Employer/Title Colorado Coalition Against Sexual Assault/Systems Response Program Director		Business Phone # (720) 728-8379	Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]	E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 1330 Fox Street, Suite 2		City Denver	State Colorado	Zip Code 80204

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Sherman Indian High School	Riverside, CA		2000
College	Metropolitan State University	Denver, CO		2011	Criminal Justice/Criminology, minor Philosophy
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if	Advocate member of Coalition to Stop Violence Against Native Women, member of Montezuma Youth Pride

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Kara Napolitano	Friend/Colleague	[REDACTED]
Kimberly Multine	Friend/Colleague	[REDACTED]
Kia Whiteskunk	Friend	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: Full Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Lopez, Gina Josey	Montezuma	3	6	59

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

I hope to represent our member agencies across Colorado that work to provide advocacy services to victims of sexual violence in their communities and our role in supporting that work is to stay updated with what legislative changes might impact their work and provide training to make sure they are carrying out those requirements that works to be survivor driven. Our member agencies represent many different communities with different accesses to resources and all are tasked with adhering to these legislative requirements and our team is working to support those efforts with innovative practices.

My prior experience working in a rural, Tribal community in Colorado as well as my continued partnership with anti-trafficking organizations and workgroups like the Laboratory to Combat Human Trafficking and the Denver Anti-Trafficking Alliance is my continued commitment to understanding impacts and responses to trafficking. Our training and technical assistance values the work of community systems and programs that may not be direct services advocacy but still have a role to play in the network of care of survivors, those resources have proven to be the best community innovative ways to address gaps in care. CCASA continues to support those community innovations and learn from them to inform and strengthen existing training curriculum that is made better with what we learn from our members and their communities. It is my hope and intention to continue to be that supportive component and collaborator in working to confront trafficking in Colorado. It is my goal to keep this communication and effort strong across our agencies and best represent our coalition engaging with this Human Trafficking Council.

I have worked for CCASA and our member agencies for almost 5 years now and in my role, I have worked to provide training and technical assistance to our advocates who serve their communities. We have provided culturally specific advocacy and rural community advocacy and training support to strengthen existing services. We work hard to understand and know our member agencies' community needs and honor their commitment to survivors' needs as well. I believe that we have a valuable perspective and relationship in Colorado communities that can help this council achieve its goals and collaborative efforts. I am honored to be of assistance and hope to also learn ways to do better in our work so that together, we are nurturing a safer Colorado.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.

*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

▶ Gina Lopez

Objectives

My objective upon leaving my tribal work was to strengthen bridges between communities by stepping into important roles as a bearer of information through training and technical assistance. The experiences I've had in my tribal community victim services allowed me to grow important relationships with neighboring communities and open more options for survivors. I have many years of work experience within a tribal organization and tribal business entities giving me a developed resourcefulness and insight to provide informed guidance. I strive to work for organizations that utilize my voice to further the visibility and space for Indigenous and other silenced communities.

Education

Bachelor of Science Criminal Justice/Criminology, Minor in Philosophy (December 2011)

▶ Metropolitan State University of Denver | Denver, CO

Experience

Systems Response Program Director (10/2018) –(Present)

Colorado Coalition Against Sexual Assault (P.O. Box 40350 | 1330 Fox Street, Denver, CO 80204)

Training and technical assistance to agencies that provide services and resources to rural and indigenous communities as well as statewide agencies. Provide cross-systems work to inform from cultural and geographical perspectives in order to enhance training and advocacy for all survivors of sexual violence. I work in many multi-disciplinary work groups, task forces and collaboratives that confront issues like sexual violence, trafficking, IPV (inter-personal violence) and cultural education. I also co-chair a multi-Tribal, multi-disciplinary coalition that encompasses all four states called the Navajo, Apache, Ute, Hopi, Zuni Coalition Against Sexual Assault and Family Violence wherein we meet monthly to discuss, support and promote justice on all of our tribal lands. The work of coalition building and sustaining led to the organized grassroots effort of co-found the Missing and Murdered Indigenous Relatives of Colorado Taskforce. We successfully, with bipartisan support, passed SB22-150; Colorado's first-ever missing and murdered response and data gathering effort and just this year, assisted in the implementation and branding of the State's first ever Missing Indigenous Person Alert system. The work in this position has only just begun and will continue to broaden the understanding of Colorado providers, funders and systems to work towards better relationships and understanding.

Victim Support Services Program Coordinator (9/2016) –(10/2018)

Ute Mountain Ute Tribe (P.O. Box 189 | 124 Mike Wash Road, Towaoc, CO 81334)

Program coordination, budget and grant management, victim advocacy, supervision of prevention coordinators that covered domestic violence, sexual assault and stalking as well as suicide prevention work. The funding provided for comprehensive victim services for all victims of all crime in Towaoc and White Mesa. We worked in mutually respectful cooperation with federal BIA, FBI and county law enforcement, courts and victim specialists. We also worked with health providers in clinics, hospitals, shelters and child advocacy centers in our state and in other states as well.

Analyst II (5/2015) –(9/2016)

Ute Mountain Ute Tribe (P.O. Box 189 | 124 Mike Wash Road, Towaoc, CO 81334)

Production analysis and revenue reporting of Tribe's oil and gas resources. Communication with companies to reconcile production reporting. Credential through DOI, ONRR (Office of Natural Resources Revenue for database verification and compliance. Review and compliance with natural resource contracts, tribal resolutions and rights-of-way documentation. Completed mandated training for oil and gas production accounting, database use, compliance, and understanding components of oil and gas contracting, landmen, etc.

Revenue Auditor (8/2012) –(5/2015)

Ute Mountain Ute Casino (P.O. Box 268 | 3 Weeminuche Drive, Towaoc, CO 81334)

Daily financial reconciliation and close out of revenue throughout casino departments. Verification of jackpot wins, end-of-month audits of each department inventory, slot meter reading. Training in slot play database, tax verification, cage/vault end-of-month inventory and balance sheets. Daily spreadsheet reconcile with each auditor's entries to balance at end of each day. Resolving accounting and/or POS disputes and issuing correction documentation to each department and employee.

Skills

- ▶ Tribal grant reporting and coordination, supervision of prevention staff, 40-hour advocacy training (State-Colorado, NM, Arizona, OVC, BIA – Bureau of Indian Affairs), CO VRA, danger assessment certified, computer: excel, word, PowerPoint, email/outlook, fax, I0-key, online platforms (zoom, GoTo meetings) and I-LED coursework training for online teaching skills advancement
- ▶ Train in the following focus areas: Sexual Assault/Domestic Violence in Indigenous/Tribal communities; Visibility and enrollment impacts in Tribal communities and survivorship; Sexual Assault advocacy; Anti-Oppression; SART/MDT/CRT development; Trafficking in Indigenous/Tribal communities; MMIR CO TF and policy development
- ▶ Successful remote/hybrid work environment since 2018 including the passage of critical Indigenous led State legislation
- ▶ Manage an emergency fund with trauma-informed advocacy for Native/Indigenous sexual assault and child sexual abuse survivors and their families

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Pacheco, Marisa Lee		County Pueblo	Cong. District 3	Senate District 3	House District 62
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Pueblo		State Colorado	Zip Code 81006
Mailing Address		City		State	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1973	Gender Female	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Unaffiliated		Ethnicity Caucasian
Present Employer/Title City of Pueblo/Human Resources Director		Business Phone # [REDACTED]		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 301 West B Street		City Pueblo		State Colorado	Zip Code

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	William Mitchell High School	Colorado Springs		1992	General
College	University of Colorado	Colorado Springs		1996	Psychology/Gerontology
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held (Indicate if)	Society of Human Resources Management - Senior Professional Certified International Public Management Association - Senior Professional Certified

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Nick Gradisar		[REDACTED]
Laura Solano		[REDACTED]
Troy Davenport		[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: I am capable of committing as much time as necessary to fulfill the duties of this position. It would be an honor to be selected.

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Pacheco, Marisa Lee	Pueblo	3	3	62

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

I am a Colorado native and dedicated public servant with deep local government expertise. This board opportunity provides a way to serve in a meaningful way at a state level, beyond my immediate community. This is very exciting and of great interest to me both professionally and personally. I have nearly twenty-five years of Human Resources experience, have held management positions for sixteen of those years, mostly working in local government.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

MARISA PACHECO

IMPA-HR SCP, SHRM-SCP

Dynamic, accomplished human resources leader with 24 years of achievement and success in providing strategic human resources leadership in both public sector (union and non-union) and private sector environments. Core competencies and skills include:

- Compensation and classification system design and management
- Budgeting and forecasting
- Benefits administration, cost containment
- Public Safety and civilian union experience
- HR Audits, process improvement, change management
- Worker's compensation and risk management
- Executive and line recruitment
- Program management experience
- Labor relations/union experience
- Training design, development, and delivery
- Employee relations and investigation expertise
- Extensive policy development experience

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE & SELECTED ACHIEVEMENTS

Human Resources Director, City of Pueblo, 4/2010-Present

One of the largest employers in the Pueblo market with approximately 800 regular FTEs and 1300 total employees including seasonal temporaries, the City of Pueblo is a full-service city. General Fund annual budget is approximately 98 million with 70% in personnel costs. In the Human Resources Director role, responsible for all facets of the Human Resources function reporting to the elected Mayor:

- Directed the work of a combination of professional, paraprofessional, technical and administrative support staff
- Serve as policy advisor to the City Manager for 8 years, then following conversion of government to Mayor and Directors.
- Management negotiations team member on annual contract negotiations for International Association of Firefighters (IAFF Local #3), International Brotherhood of Police Officers (IBPO Local #537), Pueblo Association of Government Employees (PAGE affiliate of AFSCME Local #1712) and Amalgamated Transit Union No. 662
- Extensive labor relations experience, representing the City on union grievance issues and disciplinary matters in conjunction with legal counsel
- Deep expertise in employee relations matters to include investigations and mediation
- Manage the compensation and classification systems performing annual market compensation studies, including general market analysis and comprehensive benchmark studies in advance of labor contract negotiations to develop recommendations to the Mayor

- Developed Pueblo Leadership Academy a year-long comprehensive supervisory academy for City staff members starting in 2012 and Director's Informational Workshops in 2020
- For the first time in the City's history, established zero cost positive insurance broker relationship keeping premium changes in line with national trend despite high utilization of plans
- Managed the transition of the City's approximately $13 million dollar per year medical insurance program from fully insured to self-insured in 2020. Manage all benefit plans including fully insured programs, RFP and selection activities
- Moved organization to streamlined web-based platform for benefits open enrollment, served as key operational leader on major ERP system conversion and lead the City's implementation of a new online learning platform
- Manage self-insured workers' compensation and risk management activities
- Developed credibility and strong relationships with senior management and employees
- Performance ratings of exceeds expectations during tenure with City organization

Co-Owner/Principal of Human Capital Group, LLC, 1/2009-4/2010

Co-owner and Principal of innovative human resources management consulting firm specializing in employment lifecycle solutions for private and public sector organizations.

- Provided customized solutions to clients in the core areas of human resources management to include comprehensive audit, administrative review oversight, compensation and classification strategy, recruitment and selection, investigations and fact finding, employee relations, training and facilitation, legal compliance, policy and procedure review and development, training and facilitation, succession planning design and talent and management as well as reduction in force management and career transition services
- Developed nationally certified Human Resources University curriculum
- Shared responsibility for sales and marketing, financial management, and company operations

Human Resources Director – Pueblo City-County Library District, 6/2008–2/2009

Director level position, part of the senior management team reporting directly to Chief Executive of the Library District responsible for all areas of human resources management including the management of volunteer coordination staff.

- Managed all Human Resources functions for the Pueblo City-County Library District (PCCLD) for approximately 120 employees
- Traditional responsibilities included compensation, classification, recruitment, employee relations, EEO compliance, ADA, FMLA, FLSA review and administration, worker's compensation, human resources information systems, manage/oversee volunteer function, budget administration, general program management

- Project management and process improvement projects include the development of a succession planning program, overhaul of policies and procedures for entire district, identification of ways to enhance efficiency and effectiveness of all HR procedures and practices

Human Resources Manager – City of Colorado Springs, 2/2000-6/2008

Human Resources Manager – Colorado Springs Fire Department 5/2007-6/2008

Human Resources Manager – Colorado Springs Police Department 11/2005-11/2007

Human Resources Manager – Central Human Resources 1/2004-11/2005

Principal Human Resources Analyst - 1/2003 – 1/2004

Senior Human Resources Analyst – 8/1/2000-4/2002

Human Resources Analyst II –2/2000-8/2000

At the time of service, the City of Colorado Springs was and remains one of the largest employers in the local market, with approximately 2,700 employees serving a City population of nearly 500,000. The City's budget was approximately 300 million dollars annually, of which approximately 60% of the annual budget was dedicated to total compensation costs.

Focused expertise and responsibilities in compensation, classification, executive recruitment, employee relations, benefits administration, human resources information systems program management and strategic process improvement project experience:

- Only Human Resources Manager in the City to have worked in central Human Resources administration and both public safety departments
- Managed all Human Resources functions for Colorado Springs Fire Department (CSFD) for an employee population of 500
- Prior to being recruited by CSFD, served as the Human Resources Manager for the Colorado Springs Police Department managing all Human Resources functions for an employee population of 1,200
- In all Human Resources Manager positions have managed a combination of professional, paraprofessional, technical and administrative support staff
- During six-year tenure with central City Human Resources, managed the compensation and classification systems performing annual market compensation studies, including general market analysis and comprehensive benchmark studies
- Responsible for the development of recommendations for annual market increases and compensation system realignment for inclusion in the City Manager's annual budget
- Participated in the development of appointed position compensation packages
- Developed credibility and strong relationships with senior management and employees which lead to recruitment to public safety departments
- Developed cost-effective executive recruitment strategy resulting in high-quality hires and is now a model being used by other local public sector agencies
- Facilitated senior management task force to develop succession planning program

- Performance ratings of exceeds expectations during tenure with City organization
- Selected for numerous City-wide and department committees and task forces including, Minority Recruitment Task Force (2005-2008, Chair 2008), Leadership Development Series Executive Steering Committee (2007-2008), PeopleSoft Time and Labor Executive Committee (2007-2008), Promotional Process Committee (2007-2008), City Wellness Committee (2005-2007), City Manager's Budget Analysis Team (2003), Leadership Development Action Team (2003-2005), Customer Service Quality Council (2000-2002) and Diversity and Inclusion Training Team (2001-2005). First civilian recipient of Community Above and Beyond Award (2004).

Human Resources Generalist and National Recruiter, 12/1996-2/2000
Arthur Andersen LLP – Denver, CO, and Chicago IL

Arthur Andersen LLP, formerly one of the largest financial services firms in the world with approximately 60,000 employees worldwide provided assurance, contract accounting, and human capital services to client companies.

During my tenure with Arthur Andersen, I held several professional human resources positions with an emphasis on recruiting within the Assurance and Business Advisory practice, at the local level in Denver and at the national level out of the firm's Chicago headquarters.

National Recruiter, 2/1999-2/2000
Recruiting Coordinator, 10/1997-3/1999
Assurance and Business Advisory (ABA) National Recruiting Team
Chicago, IL

Human Resources Generalist, 12/1996-12/1998
Business Process Outsourcing (BPO) Practice
Denver, CO

EDUCATION & CERTIFICATIONS

Bachelor of Arts (BA), Psychology, academic minor in Gerontology
University of Colorado – May 1996
Graduated magna cum laude with GPA of 3.9

Center for Creative Leadership (CCL) – Colorado Springs
Graduate of Leadership Development Program – 2005

National Incident Management System (NIMS) – Advanced Certification
Certified - ICS 100, ICS 200, ICS 300, ICS 400, ICS 700, ICS 800

International Public Management Association – IMPA-HR Senior Certified Professional

Society for Human Resources Management Senior Certified Professional, SHRM-SCP

PROFESSIONAL MEMBERSHIPS

Society for Human Resources Management (National)
2000-present

Colorado Springs Society for Human Resources Management
2000-2010

Colorado Springs Human Resources Association

Elected Board Member: Vice President, Secretary and Education/Certification Director 2009-2010

IPMA-HR (International Public Management Association) 2010-present

COLORADO
Governor Jared Polis

August 4, 2023

To the Honorable
Colorado Senate
Colorado General Assembly
State Capitol Building
Denver, CO 80203

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Pursuant to the powers conferred upon me by the Constitution and Laws of the State of Colorado, I have the honor to designate, appoint, reappoint, and submit to your consideration, the following:

MEMBER OF THE
COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

for terms expiring June 30, 2027:

David Powell of Denver, Colorado, to serve as an attorney, appointed;

Gina Lopez of Towaoc, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed;

Marisa Pacheco of Pueblo, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads "Jared Polis". The signature is written in a cursive, flowing style.

Jared Polis
Governor

10 Members (6 appointed by Governor)
2 Attorneys, 4 Non-attorneys
4 Year Terms

COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

SENATE CONFIRMATION

	Appointed	Confirmed	Expires
Attorney Members
David Powell, Denver (D) repl. Krupa appt.	08-04-23		06-30-27
Mary (Mindy) Sooter, Boulder repl. Gregory, appt.	07-01-21	03-08-22	06-30-25
Non-Attorneys
Gina Lopez, Towaoc (U) appt.	08-04-23		06-30-27
Marisa Pacheco, Pueblo (U) appt	08-04-23		06-30-27
James Carpenter, Englewood repl. Bolling, reappt.	07-01-21	03-08-22	06-30-25

C.R.S. 24-72-401

Updated: 08-04-23

Christopher Gregory, Exec. Director
1300 Broadway, Ste. 210
303.457.5134

August 4, 2023

To the Honorable
Colorado Senate
Colorado General Assembly
State Capitol Building
Denver, CO 80203

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Pursuant to the powers conferred upon me by the Constitution and Laws of the State of Colorado, I have the honor to designate, appoint, reappoint, and submit to your consideration, the following:

MEMBER OF THE
COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

for terms expiring June 30, 2027:

David Powell of Denver, Colorado, to serve as an attorney, appointed;

Gina Lopez of Towaoc, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed;

Marisa Pacheco of Pueblo, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed.

Sincerely,

Jared Polis
Governor

From: Ferrall - GOVOffice, Jennifer on behalf of Ferrall - GOVOffice, Jennifer <jennifer.ferrall@state.co.us>
To: Rachel Kurtz-Phelan - GA; Dan Graeve - GA; Niketa Patel - GovOffice; Shannon Hayes - GOVOffice; Savannah Martel-Valdez - GOVOffice; c.gregory@jd.state.co.us
Subject: 2023-203 Judicial Discipline Commission
Date: Friday, August 4, 2023 2:02:05 PM
Attachments: A 2023-203 Judicial Discipline Commission.pdf
Judicial Discipline Commission \(SENATE 2023-203\).docx
Judicial Discipline \(BIBLE\).docx

Hello,

Attached please find the executive order with redacted applications, original senate letter and updated roster page.

Thank you,

--

Jennifer Ferrall

Boards and Commissions Coordinator
Office of Boards and Commissions

O: 303.866.5232 C: 720.331.9941

136 State Capitol, Denver, CO 80203

jennifer.ferrall@state.co.us | www.colorado.gov/governor

Under the Colorado Open Records Act (CORA), all messages sent by or to me on this state-owned e-mail account may be subject to public disclosure.

COLORADO
Governor Jared Polis

A 2023 203

EXECUTIVE ORDER

MEMBERS

COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

ORDERED:

That the following named persons be and are hereby appointed to the:

COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

for terms expiring June 30, 2027:

David Powell of Denver, Colorado, to serve as an attorney, appointed;

Gina Lopez of Towaoc, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed;

Marisa Pacheco of Pueblo, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed.

GIVEN under my hand and the
Executive Seal of the State of Colorado, this fourth day
of August, 2023.

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads 'Jared Polis'.

Jared Polis
Governor

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Powell, David Daniel		County Denver	Cong. District 1	Senate District 31	House District 2
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Denver		State Colorado	Zip Code 80209
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1958	Gender Male	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Democrat		Ethnicity African American
Present Employer/Title Garnett Powell Maximon Barlow/Partner		Business Phone # (720) 252-7947		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 1512 Larimer St. , Suite 950		City Denver		State Colorado	Zip Code 80202

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Salinas High School	Salinas, California		1976
College	University of Santa Clara	Santa Clara, California		1980
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence	UCLA School of Law	Los Angeles, California		1983	Law
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if	Board of Directors, Denver Dumb Friends League, Board of Directors, Colorado Alzheimer's Association, Sam Cary Bar Association, International Society of Barristers, National Employment Law Council, College of Labor and Employment Attorneys

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Stan Garnett	Colleague/Partner	[REDACTED]
Alvin LaCabe	Friend and mentor	[REDACTED]
Natalie Hanlon-Leh	My former supervisor	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: Full Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis
Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Powell, David Daniel	Denver	1	31	2

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

I believe my background as an attorney and the leadership roles I've held in various boards and other organizations make me well qualified to serve on a commission. I also believe that as an attorney, I have an obligation to give back to my community and serving on a commission provides me with an ideal opportunity to serve my community, I am particularly interested in serving as a member of the Judicial Disciplinary Commission because our judiciary is the backbone of our civil and criminal justice system.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

DAVID D. POWELL, JR.

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Equity Partner, Garnett Powell Maximon Barlow

Denver, Colorado

April 2023-present

Founding member of trial boutique with a practice focused primarily on employment litigation, advice and investigations.

Deputy Attorney General, State Services

Colorado Attorney General's Office

Denver, Colorado

April 2019-April 2023

Supervised the State Services section of the Colorado Attorney General's Office – comprised of eight separate legal units responsible for representing the state's key elected officials and providing legal services in the areas of health care, human services, K-12 and higher education, state contracts and procurement, labor, and public utilities.

Equity Shareholder, Ogletree, Deakins, Nash, Smoak & Stewart, P.C.

Denver, Colorado

January 2011-April 2019

Member, Board of Directors (January 2014 – April 2019)

Practice was primarily focused on the representation of employers in litigation matters filed in both state and federal courts. Practice also included advising employers on compliance with local, state, and federal employment laws.

Equity Shareholder, Brownstein Hyatt Farber Schreck, LLP

Denver, Colorado

2002-2010

Chair, Employment Practice Group

Member, Diversity and Inclusiveness Committee

Lead counsel on numerous litigation matters involving federal employment and civil rights statutes, including but not limited to Title VII, the Fair Labor Standards Act, the Americans With Disabilities Act, and the Age Discrimination in Employment Act. Many of the same matters were tried to verdict in both state and federal district courts. Practice also included providing advice to individual executives and employers on a variety of business transactions and other matters arising from the employer-employee relationship.

Associate and Partner, Holland & Hart, LLC

Denver, Colorado

1990-2002

Member, Labor and Employment Practice Group

Conducted legal research, prepared memoranda and briefs, conducted and defended depositions. As a senior associate and partner, practice became primarily focused on employment and civil rights litigation in both federal and state district courts. Served as first and second chair on employment cases tried to verdict in both state and federal district courts.

Deputy District Attorney, Denver District Attorney's Office

Denver, Colorado

1986-1990

Investigated and prosecuted misdemeanor and felony criminal cases. Tried to verdict numerous cases in county, juvenile, and district courts in the City and County of Denver.

Law Clerk

1984-1986

Overton, Lyman & Prince, PC

Los Angeles, California

Conducted research and prepared memoranda on various legal issues related to commercial litigation matters.

Law Clerk for the Honorable John L. Kane, Jr.

United States District Court for the District of Colorado

Denver, Colorado

1983-1984

Conducted research, prepared memoranda and preliminary opinions on various legal issues presented in cases pending before the Court.

EDUCATION

UCLA School of Law

Los Angeles, California

Juris Doctorate, 1983

Managing Editor, Vol. 30 of the UCLA Law Review

Member, Black Law Students Association

University of Santa Clara

Santa Clara, California

Bachelor of Arts in History, 1980

Member, Phi Alpha Theta, History Honor Society

Member, Black Students Union

REFERENCES

Available upon request.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Lopez, Gina Josey		County Montezuma	Cong. District 3	Senate District 6	House District 59
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Towaoc		State Colorado	Zip Code 81334
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth February 8, 1982	Gender Female	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Unaffiliated		Ethnicity Native American
Present Employer/Title Colorado Coalition Against Sexual Assault/Systems Response Program Director		Business Phone # (720) 728-8379		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 1330 Fox Street, Suite 2		City Denver		State Colorado	Zip Code 80204

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Sherman Indian High School	Riverside, CA		2000
College	Metropolitan State University	Denver, CO		2011	Criminal Justice/Criminology, minor Philosophy
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if	Advocate member of Coalition to Stop Violence Against Native Women, member of Montezuma Youth Pride

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Kara Napolitano	Friend/Colleague	[REDACTED]
Kimberly Multine	Friend/Colleague	[REDACTED]
Kia Whiteskunk	Friend	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: Full Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Lopez, Gina Josey	Montezuma	3	6	59

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

I hope to represent our member agencies across Colorado that work to provide advocacy services to victims of sexual violence in their communities and our role in supporting that work is to stay updated with what legislative changes might impact their work and provide training to make sure they are carrying out those requirements that works to be survivor driven. Our member agencies represent many different communities with different accesses to resources and all are tasked with adhering to these legislative requirements and our team is working to support those efforts with innovative practices.

My prior experience working in a rural, Tribal community in Colorado as well as my continued partnership with anti-trafficking organizations and workgroups like the Laboratory to Combat Human Trafficking and the Denver Anti-Trafficking Alliance is my continued commitment to understanding impacts and responses to trafficking. Our training and technical assistance values the work of community systems and programs that may not be direct services advocacy but still have a role to play in the network of care of survivors, those resources have proven to be the best community innovative ways to address gaps in care. CCASA continues to support those community innovations and learn from them to inform and strengthen existing training curriculum that is made better with what we learn from our members and their communities. It is my hope and intention to continue to be that supportive component and collaborator in working to confront trafficking in Colorado. It is my goal to keep this communication and effort strong across our agencies and best represent our coalition engaging with this Human Trafficking Council.

I have worked for CCASA and our member agencies for almost 5 years now and in my role, I have worked to provide training and technical assistance to our advocates who serve their communities. We have provided culturally specific advocacy and rural community advocacy and training support to strengthen existing services. We work hard to understand and know our member agencies' community needs and honor their commitment to survivors' needs as well. I believe that we have a valuable perspective and relationship in Colorado communities that can help this council achieve its goals and collaborative efforts. I am honored to be of assistance and hope to also learn ways to do better in our work so that together, we are nurturing a safer Colorado.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.

*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

▶ Gina Lopez

Objectives

My objective upon leaving my tribal work was to strengthen bridges between communities by stepping into important roles as a bearer of information through training and technical assistance. The experiences I've had in my tribal community victim services allowed me to grow important relationships with neighboring communities and open more options for survivors. I have many years of work experience within a tribal organization and tribal business entities giving me a developed resourcefulness and insight to provide informed guidance. I strive to work for organizations that utilize my voice to further the visibility and space for Indigenous and other silenced communities.

Education

Bachelor of Science Criminal Justice/Criminology, Minor in Philosophy (December 2011)

▶ Metropolitan State University of Denver | Denver, CO

Experience

Systems Response Program Director (10/2018) –(Present)

Colorado Coalition Against Sexual Assault (P.O. Box 40350 | 1330 Fox Street, Denver, CO 80204)

Training and technical assistance to agencies that provide services and resources to rural and indigenous communities as well as statewide agencies. Provide cross-systems work to inform from cultural and geographical perspectives in order to enhance training and advocacy for all survivors of sexual violence. I work in many multi-disciplinary work groups, task forces and collaboratives that confront issues like sexual violence, trafficking, IPV (inter-personal violence) and cultural education. I also co-chair a multi-Tribal, multi-disciplinary coalition that encompasses all four states called the Navajo, Apache, Ute, Hopi, Zuni Coalition Against Sexual Assault and Family Violence wherein we meet monthly to discuss, support and promote justice on all of our tribal lands. The work of coalition building and sustaining led to the organized grassroots effort of co-found the Missing and Murdered Indigenous Relatives of Colorado Taskforce. We successfully, with bipartisan support, passed SB22-150; Colorado's first-ever missing and murdered response and data gathering effort and just this year, assisted in the implementation and branding of the State's first ever Missing Indigenous Person Alert system. The work in this position has only just begun and will continue to broaden the understanding of Colorado providers, funders and systems to work towards better relationships and understanding.

Victim Support Services Program Coordinator (9/2016) –(10/2018)

Ute Mountain Ute Tribe (P.O. Box 189 | 124 Mike Wash Road, Towaoc, CO 81334)

Program coordination, budget and grant management, victim advocacy, supervision of prevention coordinators that covered domestic violence, sexual assault and stalking as well as suicide prevention work. The funding provided for comprehensive victim services for all victims of all crime in Towaoc and White Mesa. We worked in mutually respectful cooperation with federal BIA, FBI and county law enforcement, courts and victim specialists. We also worked with health providers in clinics, hospitals, shelters and child advocacy centers in our state and in other states as well.

Analyst II (5/2015) –(9/2016)

Ute Mountain Ute Tribe (P.O. Box 189 | 124 Mike Wash Road, Towaoc, CO 81334)

Production analysis and revenue reporting of Tribe's oil and gas resources. Communication with companies to reconcile production reporting. Credential through DOI, ONRR (Office of Natural Resources Revenue for database verification and compliance. Review and compliance with natural resource contracts, tribal resolutions and rights-of-way documentation. Completed mandated training for oil and gas production accounting, database use, compliance, and understanding components of oil and gas contracting, landmen, etc.

Revenue Auditor (8/2012) –(5/2015)

Ute Mountain Ute Casino (P.O. Box 268 | 3 Weeminuche Drive, Towaoc, CO 81334)

Daily financial reconciliation and close out of revenue throughout casino departments. Verification of jackpot wins, end-of-month audits of each department inventory, slot meter reading. Training in slot play database, tax verification, cage/vault end-of-month inventory and balance sheets. Daily spreadsheet reconcile with each auditor's entries to balance at end of each day. Resolving accounting and/or POS disputes and issuing correction documentation to each department and employee.

Skills

- ▶ Tribal grant reporting and coordination, supervision of prevention staff, 40-hour advocacy training (State-Colorado, NM, Arizona, OVC, BIA – Bureau of Indian Affairs), CO VRA, danger assessment certified, computer: excel, word, PowerPoint, email/outlook, fax, I0-key, online platforms (zoom, GoTo meetings) and I-LED coursework training for online teaching skills advancement
- ▶ Train in the following focus areas: Sexual Assault/Domestic Violence in Indigenous/Tribal communities; Visibility and enrollment impacts in Tribal communities and survivorship; Sexual Assault advocacy; Anti-Oppression; SART/MDT/CRT development; Trafficking in Indigenous/Tribal communities; MMIR CO TF and policy development
- ▶ Successful remote/hybrid work environment since 2018 including the passage of critical Indigenous led State legislation
- ▶ Manage an emergency fund with trauma-informed advocacy for Native/Indigenous sexual assault and child sexual abuse survivors and their families

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Pacheco, Marisa Lee		County Pueblo	Cong. District 3	Senate District 3	House District 62
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Pueblo		State Colorado	Zip Code 81006
Mailing Address		City		State	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED], 1973	Gender Female	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Unaffiliated		Ethnicity Caucasian
Present Employer/Title City of Pueblo/Human Resources Director		Business Phone # [REDACTED]		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 301 West B Street		City Pueblo		State Colorado	Zip Code

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	William Mitchell High School	Colorado Springs		1992	General
College	University of Colorado	Colorado Springs		1996	Psychology/Gerontology
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held (Indicate if)	Society of Human Resources Management - Senior Professional Certified International Public Management Association - Senior Professional Certified

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Nick Gradisar		[REDACTED]
Laura Solano		[REDACTED]
Troy Davenport		[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: I am capable of committing as much time as necessary to fulfill the duties of this position. It would be an honor to be selected.

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Pacheco, Marisa Lee	Pueblo	3	3	62

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

I am a Colorado native and dedicated public servant with deep local government expertise. This board opportunity provides a way to serve in a meaningful way at a state level, beyond my immediate community. This is very exciting and of great interest to me both professionally and personally. I have nearly twenty-five years of Human Resources experience, have held management positions for sixteen of those years, mostly working in local government.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

MARISA PACHECO

IMPA-HR SCP, SHRM-SCP

Dynamic, accomplished human resources leader with 24 years of achievement and success in providing strategic human resources leadership in both public sector (union and non-union) and private sector environments. Core competencies and skills include:

- Compensation and classification system design and management
- Budgeting and forecasting
- Benefits administration, cost containment
- Public Safety and civilian union experience
- HR Audits, process improvement, change management
- Worker's compensation and risk management
- Executive and line recruitment
- Program management experience
- Labor relations/union experience
- Training design, development, and delivery
- Employee relations and investigation expertise
- Extensive policy development experience

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE & SELECTED ACHIEVEMENTS

Human Resources Director, City of Pueblo, 4/2010-Present

One of the largest employers in the Pueblo market with approximately 800 regular FTEs and 1300 total employees including seasonal temporaries, the City of Pueblo is a full-service city. General Fund annual budget is approximately 98 million with 70% in personnel costs. In the Human Resources Director role, responsible for all facets of the Human Resources function reporting to the elected Mayor:

- Directed the work of a combination of professional, paraprofessional, technical and administrative support staff
- Serve as policy advisor to the City Manager for 8 years, then following conversion of government to Mayor and Directors.
- Management negotiations team member on annual contract negotiations for International Association of Firefighters (IAFF Local #3), International Brotherhood of Police Officers (IBPO Local #537), Pueblo Association of Government Employees (PAGE affiliate of AFSCME Local #1712) and Amalgamated Transit Union No. 662
- Extensive labor relations experience, representing the City on union grievance issues and disciplinary matters in conjunction with legal counsel
- Deep expertise in employee relations matters to include investigations and mediation
- Manage the compensation and classification systems performing annual market compensation studies, including general market analysis and comprehensive benchmark studies in advance of labor contract negotiations to develop recommendations to the Mayor

- Developed Pueblo Leadership Academy a year-long comprehensive supervisory academy for City staff members starting in 2012 and Director's Informational Workshops in 2020
- For the first time in the City's history, established zero cost positive insurance broker relationship keeping premium changes in line with national trend despite high utilization of plans
- Managed the transition of the City's approximately $13 million dollar per year medical insurance program from fully insured to self-insured in 2020. Manage all benefit plans including fully insured programs, RFP and selection activities
- Moved organization to streamlined web-based platform for benefits open enrollment, served as key operational leader on major ERP system conversion and lead the City's implementation of a new online learning platform
- Manage self-insured workers' compensation and risk management activities
- Developed credibility and strong relationships with senior management and employees
- Performance ratings of exceeds expectations during tenure with City organization

Co-Owner/Principal of Human Capital Group, LLC, 1/2009-4/2010

Co-owner and Principal of innovative human resources management consulting firm specializing in employment lifecycle solutions for private and public sector organizations.

- Provided customized solutions to clients in the core areas of human resources management to include comprehensive audit, administrative review oversight, compensation and classification strategy, recruitment and selection, investigations and fact finding, employee relations, training and facilitation, legal compliance, policy and procedure review and development, training and facilitation, succession planning design and talent and management as well as reduction in force management and career transition services
- Developed nationally certified Human Resources University curriculum
- Shared responsibility for sales and marketing, financial management, and company operations

Human Resources Director – Pueblo City-County Library District, 6/2008–2/2009

Director level position, part of the senior management team reporting directly to Chief Executive of the Library District responsible for all areas of human resources management including the management of volunteer coordination staff.

- Managed all Human Resources functions for the Pueblo City-County Library District (PCCLD) for approximately 120 employees
- Traditional responsibilities included compensation, classification, recruitment, employee relations, EEO compliance, ADA, FMLA, FLSA review and administration, worker's compensation, human resources information systems, manage/oversee volunteer function, budget administration, general program management

- Project management and process improvement projects include the development of a succession planning program, overhaul of policies and procedures for entire district, identification of ways to enhance efficiency and effectiveness of all HR procedures and practices

Human Resources Manager – City of Colorado Springs, 2/2000-6/2008

Human Resources Manager – Colorado Springs Fire Department 5/2007-6/2008

Human Resources Manager – Colorado Springs Police Department 11/2005-11/2007

Human Resources Manager – Central Human Resources 1/2004-11/2005

Principal Human Resources Analyst - 1/2003 – 1/2004

Senior Human Resources Analyst – 8/1/2000-4/2002

Human Resources Analyst II –2/2000-8/2000

At the time of service, the City of Colorado Springs was and remains one of the largest employers in the local market, with approximately 2,700 employees serving a City population of nearly 500,000. The City's budget was approximately 300 million dollars annually, of which approximately 60% of the annual budget was dedicated to total compensation costs.

Focused expertise and responsibilities in compensation, classification, executive recruitment, employee relations, benefits administration, human resources information systems program management and strategic process improvement project experience:

- Only Human Resources Manager in the City to have worked in central Human Resources administration and both public safety departments
- Managed all Human Resources functions for Colorado Springs Fire Department (CSFD) for an employee population of 500
- Prior to being recruited by CSFD, served as the Human Resources Manager for the Colorado Springs Police Department managing all Human Resources functions for an employee population of 1,200
- In all Human Resources Manager positions have managed a combination of professional, paraprofessional, technical and administrative support staff
- During six-year tenure with central City Human Resources, managed the compensation and classification systems performing annual market compensation studies, including general market analysis and comprehensive benchmark studies
- Responsible for the development of recommendations for annual market increases and compensation system realignment for inclusion in the City Manager's annual budget
- Participated in the development of appointed position compensation packages
- Developed credibility and strong relationships with senior management and employees which lead to recruitment to public safety departments
- Developed cost-effective executive recruitment strategy resulting in high-quality hires and is now a model being used by other local public sector agencies
- Facilitated senior management task force to develop succession planning program

- Performance ratings of exceeds expectations during tenure with City organization
- Selected for numerous City-wide and department committees and task forces including, Minority Recruitment Task Force (2005-2008, Chair 2008), Leadership Development Series Executive Steering Committee (2007-2008), PeopleSoft Time and Labor Executive Committee (2007-2008), Promotional Process Committee (2007-2008), City Wellness Committee (2005-2007), City Manager's Budget Analysis Team (2003), Leadership Development Action Team (2003-2005), Customer Service Quality Council (2000-2002) and Diversity and Inclusion Training Team (2001-2005). First civilian recipient of Community Above and Beyond Award (2004).

Human Resources Generalist and National Recruiter, 12/1996-2/2000
Arthur Andersen LLP – Denver, CO, and Chicago IL

Arthur Andersen LLP, formerly one of the largest financial services firms in the world with approximately 60,000 employees worldwide provided assurance, contract accounting, and human capital services to client companies.

During my tenure with Arthur Andersen, I held several professional human resources positions with an emphasis on recruiting within the Assurance and Business Advisory practice, at the local level in Denver and at the national level out of the firm's Chicago headquarters.

National Recruiter, 2/1999-2/2000
Recruiting Coordinator, 10/1997-3/1999
Assurance and Business Advisory (ABA) National Recruiting Team
Chicago, IL

Human Resources Generalist, 12/1996-12/1998
Business Process Outsourcing (BPO) Practice
Denver, CO

EDUCATION & CERTIFICATIONS

Bachelor of Arts (BA), Psychology, academic minor in Gerontology
University of Colorado – May 1996
Graduated magna cum laude with GPA of 3.9

Center for Creative Leadership (CCL) – Colorado Springs
Graduate of Leadership Development Program – 2005

National Incident Management System (NIMS) – Advanced Certification
Certified - ICS 100, ICS 200, ICS 300, ICS 400, ICS 700, ICS 800

International Public Management Association – IMPA-HR Senior Certified Professional

Society for Human Resources Management Senior Certified Professional, SHRM-SCP

PROFESSIONAL MEMBERSHIPS

Society for Human Resources Management (National)
2000-present

Colorado Springs Society for Human Resources Management
2000-2010

Colorado Springs Human Resources Association

Elected Board Member: Vice President, Secretary and Education/Certification Director 2009-2010

IPMA-HR (International Public Management Association) 2010-present

COLORADO
Governor Jared Polis

August 4, 2023

To the Honorable
Colorado Senate
Colorado General Assembly
State Capitol Building
Denver, CO 80203

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Pursuant to the powers conferred upon me by the Constitution and Laws of the State of Colorado, I have the honor to designate, appoint, reappoint, and submit to your consideration, the following:

MEMBER OF THE
COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

for terms expiring June 30, 2027:

David Powell of Denver, Colorado, to serve as an attorney, appointed;

Gina Lopez of Towaoc, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed;

Marisa Pacheco of Pueblo, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads "Jared Polis".

Jared Polis
Governor

10 Members (6 appointed by Governor)
2 Attorneys, 4 Non-attorneys
4 Year Terms

COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

SENATE CONFIRMATION

	Appointed	Confirmed	Expires
Attorney Members
David Powell, Denver (D) repl. Krupa appt.	08-04-23		06-30-27
Mary (Mindy) Sooter, Boulder repl. Gregory, appt.	07-01-21	03-08-22	06-30-25
Non-Attorneys
Gina Lopez, Towaoc (U) appt.	08-04-23		06-30-27
Marisa Pacheco, Pueblo (U) appt	08-04-23		06-30-27
James Carpenter, Englewood repl. Bolling, reappt.	07-01-21	03-08-22	06-30-25

C.R.S. 24-72-401

Updated: 08-04-23

Christopher Gregory, Exec. Director
1300 Broadway, Ste. 210
303.457.5134

August 4, 2023

To the Honorable
Colorado Senate
Colorado General Assembly
State Capitol Building
Denver, CO 80203

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Pursuant to the powers conferred upon me by the Constitution and Laws of the State of Colorado, I have the honor to designate, appoint, reappoint, and submit to your consideration, the following:

MEMBER OF THE
COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

for terms expiring June 30, 2027:

David Powell of Denver, Colorado, to serve as an attorney, appointed;

Gina Lopez of Towaoc, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed;

Marisa Pacheco of Pueblo, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed.

Sincerely,

Jared Polis
Governor

From: Ferrall - GOVOffice, Jennifer on behalf of Ferrall - GOVOffice, Jennifer <jennifer.ferrall@state.co.us>
To: Rachel Kurtz-Phelan - GA; Dan Graeve - GA; Niketa Patel - GovOffice; Shannon Hayes - GOVOffice; Savannah Martel-Valdez - GOVOffice; c.gregory@jd.state.co.us
Subject: 2023-203 Judicial Discipline Commission
Date: Friday, August 4, 2023 1:57:16 PM
Attachments: A 2023-203 Judicial Discipline Commission.pdf
Judicial Discipline Commission \(SENATE 2023-203\).docx
Judicial Discipline \(BIBLE\).docx

Hello,

Attached please find the executive order with redacted applications, original senate letter and updated roster page.

Thank you,

--

Jennifer Ferrall

Boards and Commissions Coordinator
Office of Boards and Commissions

O: 303.866.5232 C: 720.331.9941

136 State Capitol, Denver, CO 80203

jennifer.ferrall@state.co.us | www.colorado.gov/governor

Under the Colorado Open Records Act (CORA), all messages sent by or to me on this state-owned e-mail account may be subject to public disclosure.

COLORADO
Governor Jared Polis

A 2023 203

EXECUTIVE ORDER

MEMBERS

COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

ORDERED:

That the following named persons be and are hereby appointed to the:

COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

for terms expiring June 30, 2027:

David Powell of Denver, Colorado, to serve as an attorney, appointed;

Gina Lopez of Towaoc, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed;

Marisa Pacheco of Pueblo, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed.

GIVEN under my hand and the
Executive Seal of the State of Colorado, this fourth day
of August, 2023.

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads 'Jared Polis'.

Jared Polis
Governor

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Powell, David Daniel		County Denver	Cong. District 1	Senate District 31	House District 2
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Denver		State Colorado	Zip Code 80209
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED], 1958	Gender Male	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Democrat		Ethnicity African American
Present Employer/Title Garnett Powell Maximon Barlow/Partner		Business Phone # (720) 252-7947		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 1512 Larimer St. , Suite 950		City Denver		State Colorado	Zip Code 80202

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Salinas High School	Salinas, California		1976
College	University of Santa Clara	Santa Clara, California		1980
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence	UCLA School of Law	Los Angeles, California		1983	Law
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if	Board of Directors, Denver Dumb Friends League, Board of Directors, Colorado Alzheimer's Association, Sam Cary Bar Association, International Society of Barristers, National Employment Law Council, College of Labor and Employment Attorneys

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Stan Garnett	Colleague/Partner	[REDACTED]
Alvin LaCabe	Friend and mentor	[REDACTED]
Natalie Hanlon-Leh	My former supervisor	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: Full Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Powell, David Daniel	Denver	1	31	2

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

I believe my background as an attorney and the leadership roles I've held in various boards and other organizations make me well qualified to serve on a commission. I also believe that as an attorney, I have an obligation to give back to my community and serving on a commission provides me with an ideal opportunity to serve my community, I am particularly interested in serving as a member of the Judicial Disciplinary Commission because our judiciary is the backbone of our civil and criminal justice system.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

DAVID D. POWELL, JR.

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Equity Partner, Garnett Powell Maximon Barlow

Denver, Colorado

April 2023-present

Founding member of trial boutique with a practice focused primarily on employment litigation, advice and investigations.

Deputy Attorney General, State Services

Colorado Attorney General's Office

Denver, Colorado

April 2019-April 2023

Supervised the State Services section of the Colorado Attorney General's Office – comprised of eight separate legal units responsible for representing the state's key elected officials and providing legal services in the areas of health care, human services, K-12 and higher education, state contracts and procurement, labor, and public utilities.

Equity Shareholder, Ogletree, Deakins, Nash, Smoak & Stewart, P.C.

Denver, Colorado

January 2011-April 2019

Member, Board of Directors (January 2014 – April 2019)

Practice was primarily focused on the representation of employers in litigation matters filed in both state and federal courts. Practice also included advising employers on compliance with local, state, and federal employment laws.

Equity Shareholder, Brownstein Hyatt Farber Schreck, LLP

Denver, Colorado

2002-2010

Chair, Employment Practice Group

Member, Diversity and Inclusiveness Committee

Lead counsel on numerous litigation matters involving federal employment and civil rights statutes, including but not limited to Title VII, the Fair Labor Standards Act, the Americans With Disabilities Act, and the Age Discrimination in Employment Act. Many of the same matters were tried to verdict in both state and federal district courts. Practice also included providing advice to individual executives and employers on a variety of business transactions and other matters arising from the employer-employee relationship.

Associate and Partner, Holland & Hart, LLC

Denver, Colorado

1990-2002

Member, Labor and Employment Practice Group

Conducted legal research, prepared memoranda and briefs, conducted and defended depositions. As a senior associate and partner, practice became primarily focused on employment and civil rights litigation in both federal and state district courts. Served as first and second chair on employment cases tried to verdict in both state and federal district courts.

Deputy District Attorney, Denver District Attorney's Office

Denver, Colorado

1986-1990

Investigated and prosecuted misdemeanor and felony criminal cases. Tried to verdict numerous cases in county, juvenile, and district courts in the City and County of Denver.

Law Clerk

1984-1986

Overton, Lyman & Prince, PC

Los Angeles, California

Conducted research and prepared memoranda on various legal issues related to commercial litigation matters.

Law Clerk for the Honorable John L. Kane, Jr.

United States District Court for the District of Colorado

Denver, Colorado

1983-1984

Conducted research, prepared memoranda and preliminary opinions on various legal issues presented in cases pending before the Court.

EDUCATION

UCLA School of Law

Los Angeles, California

Juris Doctorate, 1983

Managing Editor, Vol. 30 of the UCLA Law Review

Member, Black Law Students Association

University of Santa Clara

Santa Clara, California

Bachelor of Arts in History, 1980

Member, Phi Alpha Theta, History Honor Society

Member, Black Students Union

REFERENCES

Available upon request.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Lopez, Gina Josey		County Montezuma	Cong. District 3	Senate District 6	House District 59
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Towaoc		State Colorado	Zip Code 81334
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1982	Gender Female	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Unaffiliated		Ethnicity Native American
Present Employer/Title Colorado Coalition Against Sexual Assault/Systems Response Program Director		Business Phone # (720) 728-8379		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 1330 Fox Street, Suite 2		City Denver		State Colorado	Zip Code 80204

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Sherman Indian High School	Riverside, CA		2000
College	Metropolitan State University	Denver, CO		2011	Criminal Justice/Criminology, minor Philosophy
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if	Advocate member of Coalition to Stop Violence Against Native Women, member of Montezuma Youth Pride

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Kara Napolitano	Friend/Colleague	[REDACTED]
Kimberly Multine	Friend/Colleague	[REDACTED]
Kia Whiteskunk	Friend	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: Full Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.

*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Lopez, Gina Josey	Montezuma	3	6	59

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

I hope to represent our member agencies across Colorado that work to provide advocacy services to victims of sexual violence in their communities and our role in supporting that work is to stay updated with what legislative changes might impact their work and provide training to make sure they are carrying out those requirements that works to be survivor driven. Our member agencies represent many different communities with different accesses to resources and all are tasked with adhering to these legislative requirements and our team is working to support those efforts with innovative practices.

My prior experience working in a rural, Tribal community in Colorado as well as my continued partnership with anti-trafficking organizations and workgroups like the Laboratory to Combat Human Trafficking and the Denver Anti-Trafficking Alliance is my continued commitment to understanding impacts and responses to trafficking. Our training and technical assistance values the work of community systems and programs that may not be direct services advocacy but still have a role to play in the network of care of survivors, those resources have proven to be the best community innovative ways to address gaps in care. CCASA continues to support those community innovations and learn from them to inform and strengthen existing training curriculum that is made better with what we learn from our members and their communities. It is my hope and intention to continue to be that supportive component and collaborator in working to confront trafficking in Colorado. It is my goal to keep this communication and effort strong across our agencies and best represent our coalition engaging with this Human Trafficking Council.

I have worked for CCASA and our member agencies for almost 5 years now and in my role, I have worked to provide training and technical assistance to our advocates who serve their communities. We have provided culturally specific advocacy and rural community advocacy and training support to strengthen existing services. We work hard to understand and know our member agencies' community needs and honor their commitment to survivors' needs as well. I believe that we have a valuable perspective and relationship in Colorado communities that can help this council achieve its goals and collaborative efforts. I am honored to be of assistance and hope to also learn ways to do better in our work so that together, we are nurturing a safer Colorado.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.

*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

▶ Gina Lopez

Objectives

My objective upon leaving my tribal work was to strengthen bridges between communities by stepping into important roles as a bearer of information through training and technical assistance. The experiences I've had in my tribal community victim services allowed me to grow important relationships with neighboring communities and open more options for survivors. I have many years of work experience within a tribal organization and tribal business entities giving me a developed resourcefulness and insight to provide informed guidance. I strive to work for organizations that utilize my voice to further the visibility and space for Indigenous and other silenced communities.

Education

Bachelor of Science Criminal Justice/Criminology, Minor in Philosophy (December 2011)

▶ Metropolitan State University of Denver | Denver, CO

Experience

Systems Response Program Director (10/2018) –(Present)

Colorado Coalition Against Sexual Assault (P.O. Box 40350 | 1330 Fox Street, Denver, CO 80204)

Training and technical assistance to agencies that provide services and resources to rural and indigenous communities as well as statewide agencies. Provide cross-systems work to inform from cultural and geographical perspectives in order to enhance training and advocacy for all survivors of sexual violence. I work in many multi-disciplinary work groups, task forces and collaboratives that confront issues like sexual violence, trafficking, IPV (inter-personal violence) and cultural education. I also co-chair a multi-Tribal, multi-disciplinary coalition that encompasses all four states called the Navajo, Apache, Ute, Hopi, Zuni Coalition Against Sexual Assault and Family Violence wherein we meet monthly to discuss, support and promote justice on all of our tribal lands. The work of coalition building and sustaining led to the organized grassroots effort of co-found the Missing and Murdered Indigenous Relatives of Colorado Taskforce. We successfully, with bipartisan support, passed SB22-150; Colorado's first-ever missing and murdered response and data gathering effort and just this year, assisted in the implementation and branding of the State's first ever Missing Indigenous Person Alert system. The work in this position has only just begun and will continue to broaden the understanding of Colorado providers, funders and systems to work towards better relationships and understanding.

Victim Support Services Program Coordinator (9/2016) –(10/2018)

Ute Mountain Ute Tribe (P.O. Box 189 | 124 Mike Wash Road, Towaoc, CO 81334)

Program coordination, budget and grant management, victim advocacy, supervision of prevention coordinators that covered domestic violence, sexual assault and stalking as well as suicide prevention work. The funding provided for comprehensive victim services for all victims of all crime in Towaoc and White Mesa. We worked in mutually respectful cooperation with federal BIA, FBI and county law enforcement, courts and victim specialists. We also worked with health providers in clinics, hospitals, shelters and child advocacy centers in our state and in other states as well.

Analyst II (5/2015) –(9/2016)

Ute Mountain Ute Tribe (P.O. Box 189 | 124 Mike Wash Road, Towaoc, CO 81334)

Production analysis and revenue reporting of Tribe's oil and gas resources. Communication with companies to reconcile production reporting. Credential through DOI, ONRR (Office of Natural Resources Revenue for database verification and compliance. Review and compliance with natural resource contracts, tribal resolutions and rights-of-way documentation. Completed mandated training for oil and gas production accounting, database use, compliance, and understanding components of oil and gas contracting, landmen, etc.

Revenue Auditor (8/2012) –(5/2015)

Ute Mountain Ute Casino (P.O. Box 268 | 3 Weeminuche Drive, Towaoc, CO 81334)

Daily financial reconciliation and close out of revenue throughout casino departments. Verification of jackpot wins, end-of-month audits of each department inventory, slot meter reading. Training in slot play database, tax verification, cage/vault end-of-month inventory and balance sheets. Daily spreadsheet reconcile with each auditor's entries to balance at end of each day. Resolving accounting and/or POS disputes and issuing correction documentation to each department and employee.

Skills

- ▶ Tribal grant reporting and coordination, supervision of prevention staff, 40-hour advocacy training (State-Colorado, NM, Arizona, OVC, BIA – Bureau of Indian Affairs), CO VRA, danger assessment certified, computer: excel, word, PowerPoint, email/outlook, fax, I0-key, online platforms (zoom, GoTo meetings) and I-LED coursework training for online teaching skills advancement
- ▶ Train in the following focus areas: Sexual Assault/Domestic Violence in Indigenous/Tribal communities; Visibility and enrollment impacts in Tribal communities and survivorship; Sexual Assault advocacy; Anti-Oppression; SART/MDT/CRT development; Trafficking in Indigenous/Tribal communities; MMIR CO TF and policy development
- ▶ Successful remote/hybrid work environment since 2018 including the passage of critical Indigenous led State legislation
- ▶ Manage an emergency fund with trauma-informed advocacy for Native/Indigenous sexual assault and child sexual abuse survivors and their families

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Pacheco, Marisa Lee		County Pueblo	Cong. District 3	Senate District 3	House District 62
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Pueblo		State Colorado	Zip Code 81006
Mailing Address		City		State	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1973	Gender Female	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Unaffiliated		Ethnicity Caucasian
Present Employer/Title City of Pueblo/Human Resources Director		Business Phone # [REDACTED]		Home Phone # [REDACTED] 9
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 301 West B Street		City Pueblo		State Colorado	Zip Code

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	William Mitchell High School	Colorado Springs		1992	General
College	University of Colorado	Colorado Springs		1996	Psychology/Gerontology
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held (Indicate if)	Society of Human Resources Management - Senior Professional Certified International Public Management Association - Senior Professional Certified

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Nick Gradisar		[REDACTED]
Laura Solano		[REDACTED]
Troy Davenport		[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: I am capable of committing as much time as necessary to fulfill the duties of this position. It would be an honor to be selected.

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Pacheco, Marisa Lee	Pueblo	3	3	62

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

I am a Colorado native and dedicated public servant with deep local government expertise. This board opportunity provides a way to serve in a meaningful way at a state level, beyond my immediate community. This is very exciting and of great interest to me both professionally and personally. I have nearly twenty-five years of Human Resources experience, have held management positions for sixteen of those years, mostly working in local government.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

MARISA PACHECO

IMPA-HR SCP, SHRM-SCP

Dynamic, accomplished human resources leader with 24 years of achievement and success in providing strategic human resources leadership in both public sector (union and non-union) and private sector environments. Core competencies and skills include:

- Compensation and classification system design and management
- Budgeting and forecasting
- Benefits administration, cost containment
- Public Safety and civilian union experience
- HR Audits, process improvement, change management
- Worker's compensation and risk management
- Executive and line recruitment
- Program management experience
- Labor relations/union experience
- Training design, development, and delivery
- Employee relations and investigation expertise
- Extensive policy development experience

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE & SELECTED ACHIEVEMENTS

Human Resources Director, City of Pueblo, 4/2010-Present

One of the largest employers in the Pueblo market with approximately 800 regular FTEs and 1300 total employees including seasonal temporaries, the City of Pueblo is a full-service city. General Fund annual budget is approximately 98 million with 70% in personnel costs. In the Human Resources Director role, responsible for all facets of the Human Resources function reporting to the elected Mayor:

- Directed the work of a combination of professional, paraprofessional, technical and administrative support staff
- Serve as policy advisor to the City Manager for 8 years, then following conversion of government to Mayor and Directors.
- Management negotiations team member on annual contract negotiations for International Association of Firefighters (IAFF Local #3), International Brotherhood of Police Officers (IBPO Local #537), Pueblo Association of Government Employees (PAGE affiliate of AFSCME Local #1712) and Amalgamated Transit Union No. 662
- Extensive labor relations experience, representing the City on union grievance issues and disciplinary matters in conjunction with legal counsel
- Deep expertise in employee relations matters to include investigations and mediation
- Manage the compensation and classification systems performing annual market compensation studies, including general market analysis and comprehensive benchmark studies in advance of labor contract negotiations to develop recommendations to the Mayor

- Developed Pueblo Leadership Academy a year-long comprehensive supervisory academy for City staff members starting in 2012 and Director's Informational Workshops in 2020
- For the first time in the City's history, established zero cost positive insurance broker relationship keeping premium changes in line with national trend despite high utilization of plans
- Managed the transition of the City's approximately $13 million dollar per year medical insurance program from fully insured to self-insured in 2020. Manage all benefit plans including fully insured programs, RFP and selection activities
- Moved organization to streamlined web-based platform for benefits open enrollment, served as key operational leader on major ERP system conversion and lead the City's implementation of a new online learning platform
- Manage self-insured workers' compensation and risk management activities
- Developed credibility and strong relationships with senior management and employees
- Performance ratings of exceeds expectations during tenure with City organization

Co-Owner/Principal of Human Capital Group, LLC, 1/2009-4/2010

Co-owner and Principal of innovative human resources management consulting firm specializing in employment lifecycle solutions for private and public sector organizations.

- Provided customized solutions to clients in the core areas of human resources management to include comprehensive audit, administrative review oversight, compensation and classification strategy, recruitment and selection, investigations and fact finding, employee relations, training and facilitation, legal compliance, policy and procedure review and development, training and facilitation, succession planning design and talent and management as well as reduction in force management and career transition services
- Developed nationally certified Human Resources University curriculum
- Shared responsibility for sales and marketing, financial management, and company operations

Human Resources Director – Pueblo City-County Library District, 6/2008–2/2009

Director level position, part of the senior management team reporting directly to Chief Executive of the Library District responsible for all areas of human resources management including the management of volunteer coordination staff.

- Managed all Human Resources functions for the Pueblo City-County Library District (PCCLD) for approximately 120 employees
- Traditional responsibilities included compensation, classification, recruitment, employee relations, EEO compliance, ADA, FMLA, FLSA review and administration, worker's compensation, human resources information systems, manage/oversee volunteer function, budget administration, general program management

- Project management and process improvement projects include the development of a succession planning program, overhaul of policies and procedures for entire district, identification of ways to enhance efficiency and effectiveness of all HR procedures and practices

Human Resources Manager – City of Colorado Springs, 2/2000-6/2008

Human Resources Manager – Colorado Springs Fire Department 5/2007-6/2008

Human Resources Manager – Colorado Springs Police Department 11/2005-11/2007

Human Resources Manager – Central Human Resources 1/2004-11/2005

Principal Human Resources Analyst - 1/2003 – 1/2004

Senior Human Resources Analyst – 8/1/2000-4/2002

Human Resources Analyst II –2/2000-8/2000

At the time of service, the City of Colorado Springs was and remains one of the largest employers in the local market, with approximately 2,700 employees serving a City population of nearly 500,000. The City's budget was approximately 300 million dollars annually, of which approximately 60% of the annual budget was dedicated to total compensation costs.

Focused expertise and responsibilities in compensation, classification, executive recruitment, employee relations, benefits administration, human resources information systems program management and strategic process improvement project experience:

- Only Human Resources Manager in the City to have worked in central Human Resources administration and both public safety departments
- Managed all Human Resources functions for Colorado Springs Fire Department (CSFD) for an employee population of 500
- Prior to being recruited by CSFD, served as the Human Resources Manager for the Colorado Springs Police Department managing all Human Resources functions for an employee population of 1,200
- In all Human Resources Manager positions have managed a combination of professional, paraprofessional, technical and administrative support staff
- During six-year tenure with central City Human Resources, managed the compensation and classification systems performing annual market compensation studies, including general market analysis and comprehensive benchmark studies
- Responsible for the development of recommendations for annual market increases and compensation system realignment for inclusion in the City Manager's annual budget
- Participated in the development of appointed position compensation packages
- Developed credibility and strong relationships with senior management and employees which lead to recruitment to public safety departments
- Developed cost-effective executive recruitment strategy resulting in high-quality hires and is now a model being used by other local public sector agencies
- Facilitated senior management task force to develop succession planning program

- Performance ratings of exceeds expectations during tenure with City organization
- Selected for numerous City-wide and department committees and task forces including, Minority Recruitment Task Force (2005-2008, Chair 2008), Leadership Development Series Executive Steering Committee (2007-2008), PeopleSoft Time and Labor Executive Committee (2007-2008), Promotional Process Committee (2007-2008), City Wellness Committee (2005-2007), City Manager's Budget Analysis Team (2003), Leadership Development Action Team (2003-2005), Customer Service Quality Council (2000-2002) and Diversity and Inclusion Training Team (2001-2005). First civilian recipient of Community Above and Beyond Award (2004).

Human Resources Generalist and National Recruiter, 12/1996-2/2000
Arthur Andersen LLP – Denver, CO, and Chicago IL

Arthur Andersen LLP, formerly one of the largest financial services firms in the world with approximately 60,000 employees worldwide provided assurance, contract accounting, and human capital services to client companies.

During my tenure with Arthur Andersen, I held several professional human resources positions with an emphasis on recruiting within the Assurance and Business Advisory practice, at the local level in Denver and at the national level out of the firm's Chicago headquarters.

National Recruiter, 2/1999-2/2000
Recruiting Coordinator, 10/1997-3/1999
Assurance and Business Advisory (ABA) National Recruiting Team
Chicago, IL

Human Resources Generalist, 12/1996-12/1998
Business Process Outsourcing (BPO) Practice
Denver, CO

EDUCATION & CERTIFICATIONS

Bachelor of Arts (BA), Psychology, academic minor in Gerontology
University of Colorado – May 1996
Graduated magna cum laude with GPA of 3.9

Center for Creative Leadership (CCL) – Colorado Springs
Graduate of Leadership Development Program – 2005

National Incident Management System (NIMS) – Advanced Certification
Certified - ICS 100, ICS 200, ICS 300, ICS 400, ICS 700, ICS 800

International Public Management Association – IMPA-HR Senior Certified Professional

Society for Human Resources Management Senior Certified Professional, SHRM-SCP

PROFESSIONAL MEMBERSHIPS

Society for Human Resources Management (National)
2000-present

Colorado Springs Society for Human Resources Management
2000-2010

Colorado Springs Human Resources Association

Elected Board Member: Vice President, Secretary and Education/Certification Director 2009-2010

IPMA-HR (International Public Management Association) 2010-present

COLORADO
Governor Jared Polis

August 4, 2023

To the Honorable
Colorado Senate
Colorado General Assembly
State Capitol Building
Denver, CO 80203

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Pursuant to the powers conferred upon me by the Constitution and Laws of the State of Colorado, I have the honor to designate, appoint, reappoint, and submit to your consideration, the following:

MEMBER OF THE
COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

for terms expiring June 30, 2027:

David Powell of Denver, Colorado, to serve as an attorney, appointed;

Gina Lopez of Towaoc, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed;

Marisa Pacheco of Pueblo, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads "Jared Polis". The signature is written in a cursive, flowing style.

Jared Polis
Governor

August 4, 2023

To the Honorable
Colorado Senate
Colorado General Assembly
State Capitol Building
Denver, CO 80203

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Pursuant to the powers conferred upon me by the Constitution and Laws of the State of Colorado, I have the honor to designate, appoint, reappoint, and submit to your consideration, the following:

MEMBER OF THE
COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

for terms expiring June 30, 2027:

David Powell of Denver, Colorado, to serve as an attorney, appointed;

Gina Lopez of Towaoc, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed;

Marisa Pacheco of Pueblo, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed.

Sincerely,

Jared Polis
Governor

10 Members (6 appointed by Governor)
2 Attorneys, 4 Non-attorneys
4 Year Terms

COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

SENATE CONFIRMATION

	Appointed	Confirmed	Expires
Attorney Members
David Powell, Denver (D) repl. Krupa appt.	08-04-23		06-30-27
Mary (Mindy) Sooter, Boulder repl. Gregory, appt.	07-01-21	03-08-22	06-30-25
Non-Attorneys
Gina Lopez, Towaoc (U) appt.	08-04-23		06-30-27
Marisa Pacheco, Pueblo (U) appt	08-04-23		06-30-27
James Carpenter, Englewood repl. Bolling, reappt.	07-01-21	03-08-22	06-30-25

C.R.S. 24-72-401

Updated: 08-04-23

Christopher Gregory, Exec. Director
1300 Broadway, Ste. 210
303.457.5134

August 4, 2023

To the Honorable
Colorado Senate
Colorado General Assembly
State Capitol Building
Denver, CO 80203

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Pursuant to the powers conferred upon me by the Constitution and Laws of the State of Colorado, I have the honor to designate, appoint, reappoint, and submit to your consideration, the following:

MEMBER OF THE
COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

for terms expiring June 30, 2027:

David Powell of Denver, Colorado, to serve as an attorney, appointed;

Gina Lopez of Towaoc, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed;

Marisa Pacheco of Pueblo, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, appointed.

Sincerely,

Jared Polis
Governor

From: Patel - GovOffice, Niketa on behalf of Patel - GovOffice, Niketa <niketa.patel@state.co.us>
To: Rachel Kurtz-Phejan - GA; Luisa Altmann - GA
Cc: Haley Fried - GovOffice
Subject: Re: A 2021-118 Commission on Judicial Discipline
Date: Wednesday, July 7, 2021 9:58:41 AM
Attachments: Commission on Judicial Discipline \(BIBLF\).doc
Judicial Discipline Commission \(SENATE 2021-118\).docx
A 2021-118 Commission on Judicial Discipline.pdf

See the attached revised EO for Commission on Judicial Discipline with Mindy's last name spelt correctly.

Best,

Nikky Patel
Deputy Director, Boards and Commissions
c: (303) 957-8054

Under the Colorado Open Records Act (CORA), all messages sent by or to me on this state-owned e-mail account may be subject to public disclosure.

On Thu, Jul 1, 2021 at 8:00 AM Patel - GovOffice, Niketa <niketa.patel@state.co.us> wrote:

Hello,

Please find the EO with the redacted applications, senate letter, and the updated roster page attached.

Let me know if you have any questions!

Best,

Nikky Patel
Deputy Director
Boards and Commissions

P 303.866.5232 C 303.957.8054
136 State Capitol, Denver, CO 80203
Niketa.Patel@state.co.us | Learn more about Boards and Commissions

Under the Colorado Open Records Act (CORA), all messages sent by or to me on this state-owned e-mail account may be subject to public disclosure.

A 2021 118

EXECUTIVE ORDER

MEMBERS

COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

ORDERED:

That the following named persons be and are hereby reappointed to the:

COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE for a

for a term expiring June 30, 2025:

James Carpenter of Englewood, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, reappointed;

Mindy Sooter of Boulder, Colorado to serve as an attorney, appointed.

GIVEN under my hand and the
Executive Seal of the State of
Colorado, this first day of
July, 2021.

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads 'Jared Polis'.

Jared Polis
Governor

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Carpenter, James		County Arapahoe	Cong. District 6	Senate District 27	House District 3
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Englewood		State Colorado	Zip Code 80111
Mailing Address [REDACTED]		City Englewood		State Colorado	Zip Code 80111
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1960	Gender Male	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Democrat		Ethnicity Caucasian
Present Employer/Title Freestone Strategies/Co-Founder		Business Phone # 303-358-6581		Home Phone #
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 1415 Park Avenue West		City Denver		State Colorado	Zip Code

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Carpenter	Middle Park High School	4	1978
College	Carpenter	Georgetown University	3		Government
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Alan Salazar		[REDACTED]
Danielle Radovich Piper		[REDACTED]
Hon. Bill Ritter, Jr.		[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: I am prepared to commit the time necessary to serve effectively on the Commission.

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis
Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Carpenter, James	Arapahoe	6	27	3

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

I have recently completed my term as a member of the Supreme Court Nominating Commission. That was a tremendously worthwhile and rewarding experience, which I will miss. I believe is our state's system for selecting and reviewing judges, including the roll of non-attorney community members.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

James F. Carpenter

Profile

Experienced consultant and leader of complex organizations operating in the public arena. Skilled at leading teams of professionals; developing and implementing organizational strategies and priorities; building coalitions to achieve results; acting as liaison with community leaders and diverse stakeholders; speaking and presenting to the public; dealing with the media; fundraising and donor relations; writing; managing crises and unexpected events; balancing multiple priorities and tasks; and overseeing operations, budgets and human resources.

Professional Experience

Freestone Strategies, LLC

Co-Founder, September, 2016 to Present

Owner and co-founder of a public affairs consulting firm. Provide strategic public affairs, communications, government relations and other services to a wide array of corporate and NGO clients focused on energy, technology, healthcare, conservation and public lands. www.freestone-strategies.com

Stratton-Carpenter & Associates

Principal, January, 2011 to September, 2016

Principal in a diverse, state, national and international public affairs consulting firm. Provide strategic public affairs, communications, government relations and other services to private, public and non-profit sector clients.

Colorado Governor Bill Ritter, Jr.

Chief of Staff, November, 2006 to January, 2011.

Recruited after the 2006 General Election to lead Governor's staff and Cabinet. Senior advisor to Governor on all policy, government, state budget, political and operational issues. Direct oversight of state agency executive directors and senior staff. Within the Governor's office, responsibility for overseeing all operations, including offices of legal counsel, legislative affairs, communications, media, budgeting and planning, policy and initiatives, boards and commissions, correspondence and constituent relations, administration, and personnel. Key liaison to Colorado's Congressional Delegation and staff, the National Governors Association and diverse stakeholders, including business and myriad community organizations throughout the state. Coordinate activities with Lt. Governor and First Lady. Oversaw transition team from previous Administration, including recruitment and selection of Cabinet members and senior staff.

James F. Carpenter

Page two

U.S. Senator Ken Salazar

State Director, December, 2004 to November, 2006.

Served as senior Colorado based advisor to Senator Salazar. Led staff of 18 in Denver and 8 regional offices across Colorado. Represented Senator at events and in front of constituent groups. Key liaison with Washington, D.C. staff, and with diverse stakeholders throughout the state. Developed and implemented regional plans.

Campaign Manager, Salazar for US Senate, March to November, 2004

Recruited to manage U.S. Senate campaign. Led team of consultants and staff in all aspects of a high profile, national campaign, including strategy development, paid and earned media, polling, research, field operations, administration and fundraising. Oversaw campaign budget of nearly $10 million, all raised and spent in about 8 months. Salazar was the only Democrat to win an open seat in a so-called “red state” and became one of only two newly elected Democrats in the U.S. Senate (the other: Barack Obama).

National Jewish Medical and Research Center (now National Jewish Health)

Director of Public Affairs, October, 1999 to March, 2004

Oversaw all media, public, government and community relations activities, and in-house graphic design and publications production studio. Responsible for enhancing National Jewish’s visibility and reputation among the media and community as a whole, and for developing and implementing communication efforts to complement overall strategic plans, marketing goals and development activities. Served on 10-member Senior Executive Management Committee, and the Ethics Committee. Managed professional staff of seven and $1.5 million annual budget.

Gonzales Consulting Services

Director, GCS Public Strategies, January to October, 2009

Provided corporate communications, and public, media and government relations services to help clients meet their goals in the public arena.

Colorado Governor Roy Romer

Chief of Staff, August, 1998 to January, 1999

Directed all operations of Governor’s office, including personnel, budget and project management. Coordinated activities with Members of the Cabinet. Managed transition process to new governor.

Director of Communications and Press Secretary, January, 1995 to August, 1998

Directed media relations and served as chief spokesman for Governor Roy Romer. Oversaw Governor’s office communications with public, including press and public events, speeches, correspondence, press releases, and opinion pieces.

James F. Carpenter

Page three

Public Affairs Consultant

January, 1993 to January, 1995

Managed grassroots campaigns and other public affairs projects for various corporate, non-profit and political clients, including acting as communications director and media spokesman for the 1994 re-election campaign of Governor Roy Romer.

U.S. Senator Timothy E. Wirth

Deputy State Director / Campaign Manager, October, 1988 to January, 1993

As Deputy State Director, oversaw Colorado press and communications, scheduling, community relations and political activities. As campaign manager, directed staff and planning for U.S. Senate re-election effort (Wirth ultimately did not seek re-election).

National Strategies

Administrator/Associate, January, 1987 to September, 1988

Served as Administrator and Associate for a public affairs consulting firm in Washington, DC, representing corporate, non-profit and political clients and organizations.

U.S. Representative Timothy E. Wirth

Staff Member, 1978-1986

Held various positions with increasing levels of responsibility, both in Washington, DC, and Colorado, including legislative assistant in the U.S. House of Representatives, and Operations Director for Wirth's successful 1986 U.S. Senate campaign.

Education

B.A., Political Science, University of Colorado, Boulder, 1985.

Attended Georgetown University, Washington, DC, 1978-1981.

Selected Affiliations, Activities and Accomplishments

Colorado Supreme Court Nominating Commission, Gubernatorial Appointee, 2013-2019

Bright By Three, Member of the Board of Directors, Past Board Chair

Colorado Non-Profit Association Leadership Advisory Council

Denver Metro Chamber of Commerce Leadership Exchange Trip, 2008

Denver Post "Colorado Voices" Columnist, 2002

Member, 18th Judicial District Nominating Commission, 1998 to 2004

Democratic National Convention Host Committee Executive Committee, 2007 to 2008

Member, Public Relations Society of America and of Colorado, 2000 to 2004

Member, Colorado Healthcare Communicators, 2000 to 2004

Member, Who's Who in North America and Who's Who in the West

Member, Board of Directors of the Colorado Tobacco Education and Prevention

Alliance, 2001 to 2004. Treasurer, 2003

Member, Mile High United Way Leadership Development Committee, 2002 to 2004

Participant, Aspen Institute Executive Seminar, 1996

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Sooter, Mary (Mindy) Virginia		County Boulder	Cong. District 2	Senate District 18	House District 13
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Boulder		State Colorado	Zip Code 80305
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1967	Gender Female	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Democrat		Ethnicity Caucasian
Present Employer/Title Wilmer Cutler Pickering Hale and Dorr/Partner		Business Phone # (720) 274-3164		Home Phone # [REDACTED] 1
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 1225 17th St., Ste 2600		City Denver		State Colorado	Zip Code 80202

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Smithsburg High School	Smithsburg, MD		1985
College	Texas A&M University	College Station, TX		1990	Electrical Engineering
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence	University of Colorado	Boulder, CO		1999	Telecommunications
	University of Colorado	Boulder, CO		2003	Law
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if	Partner-in-Charge of WilmerHale's Denver Office Former chair of the IP Section of the Colorado Bar Association Former chair of the board of Impact on Education

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Ken Salazar	Law Partner	[REDACTED]
Phil Weiser	Mentor	[REDACTED]
Jacki Cooper Melmed	Classmate	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?:Part Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis
Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Sooter, Mary (Mindy) Virginia	Boulder	2	18	13

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

Two reasons. First, I would like to dedicate some of my time to public service, and this is a perfect opportunity to give back to the state of Colorado and the community in a way that fits well with my skills and my passion. Second, above all else in our legal system, I value the reputation of our judiciary. It must be unbiased, ethical, and moral, both in perception and reality. This requires a judiciary with the appropriate work ethic, demeanor, and temperament, as well as strong moral and ethical values. While the vast majority of judges are upstanding and well-meaning, issues inevitably occur, and since the judicial system is fragile, I would be honored to help protect it.

I very much look forward to

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

Mary (Mindy) V. Sooter

PARTNER

Partner-in-Charge, Denver Office

DENVER

[Redacted]
[Redacted]

Mindy Sooter is a trial lawyer focusing on patent, trade secret, and other high-stakes commercial litigation. Ms. Sooter represents large clients, such as those in the medical device, telecommunications and technology sectors, as well as emerging businesses, in a variety of jurisdictions across the country. She has led and co-led many cases to verdict in federal and state courts across the country, and argues post-grant proceedings at the Patent Trial and Appeal Board. With a background in engineering, Ms. Sooter focuses on cases involving telecommunications, electrical engineering, computer science and medical devices. Ms. Sooter also focuses on bringing highly technical subject matter to a jury in an accessible and persuasive manner.

Before law school, Ms. Sooter worked for a large management consulting firm, and then led the engineering group at a startup software company.

Professional Activities

Ms. Sooter is an adjunct professor teaching patent litigation at the University of Colorado School of Law.

Solutions

Litigation

Intellectual Property Litigation

Trials

Experience

- In recent years, Ms. Sooter's work has prevailed in or successfully resolved numerous cases, including:
 - Led the litigation and successful settlement of a high-stakes trade secret case on behalf of two companies and an individual pending in the District of Colorado.
 - Obtained a dismissal of a trademark case on behalf of a multinational banking company, pending in the District of Colorado.
 - Obtained a dismissal of a patent infringement suit pending in the Western District of Wisconsin on behalf of Medical device company, based on improper venue.
 - Achieving a victory for Akamai Technologies, Inc. when the Delaware Supreme Court affirmed the dismissal of a lawsuit brought by Limelight Networks, Inc., a competitor, asserting breach of a settlement agreement between the parties.
 - Serving as co-lead counsel for Comcast Cable Communications in a ten-patent infringement matter in the Northern District of California involving interactive television patents, which resulted in granting summary judgment of non-infringement in favor of our client.
 - Successfully obtaining dismissal and an award of attorneys' fees of more than $425,000 in a patent case involving optical network design and components.
 - Successfully obtaining a $12 million jury verdict after a jury found that a competitor had engaged in willful patent infringement, willful trade dress infringement and intentional false advertising.
 - Successfully obtaining a summary judgment of non-infringement, and subsequent affirmance by the Federal Circuit, in a patent case involving more than 100 asserted claims and two patents relating to multidimensional database technology.
 - Successfully obtaining dismissal on behalf of a software company in a multi-jurisdictional case involving mapping software.
 - Successfully obtaining a dismissal on behalf of a medical corporation in a case involving the technical performance of distributed computer systems.
 - Successfully obtaining a summary judgment and complete dismissal of a $20 million licensing claim on behalf of a healthcare diagnostics company.

Recognition

- Recognized in the 2021 edition of Chambers USA: America's Leading Lawyers for Business as a top intellectual property lawyer in Colorado
- Recognized by the University of Colorado Law School as a Distinguished Alumni for her contributions to the legal profession, service to her community and dedication to the school
- Recognized by Law Week Colorado as a Top Women Attorney in 2017 and 2020

and named to its 2018 Top Litigators list

- Recognized as the Outstanding Intellectual Property Litigator in Colorado by Managing IP in 2018 and 2019
- Recognized by Colorado Super Lawyers for intellectual property litigation in 2016, 2019–2021
- Named among the Top 250 Women in IP and a 2018–2020 IP Star by Managing IP, a guidebook that identifies leading IP lawyers in the United States
- Selected by peers for inclusion in the 2019–2021 editions of the Best Lawyers in America
- Recognized in the 2014–2020 editions of IAM Patent 1000: The World's Leading Patent Practitioners
- Named 2014 IP Supporter of the Year by the Silicon Flatirons Center at the University of Colorado Law School
- Named a "Rising Star" by Colorado Super Lawyers in 2012
- Selected as an "Up and Coming Lawyer" in 2008 by Law Week Colorado

Credentials

EDUCATION

JD, University of Colorado Law School, 2003

Editor, Law Review, Order of the Coif, top grades of any 3L

ME, Telecommunications, University of Colorado at Boulder, 1999

BS, Electrical Engineering, Texas A&M University, 1990

magna cum laude

Phi Kappa Phi, Tau Beta Pi, Eta Kappa Nu

ADMISSIONS

Colorado

United States Patent and Trademark Office

CLERKSHIPS

The Hon. Ferdinand F. Fernandez, US Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit, 2004 - 2005

The Hon. Mary J. Mullarkey, Colorado Supreme Court, 2003 - 2004

COLORADO
Governor Jared Polis

July 1, 2021

To the Honorable
Colorado Senate
Colorado General Assembly
State Capitol Building
Denver, CO 80203

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Pursuant to the powers conferred upon me by the Constitution and Laws of the State of Colorado, I have the honor to designate, appoint, reappoint, and submit to your consideration, the following:

MEMBER OF THE
COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

effective July 1, 2021 for a term expiring June 30, 2025:

James Carpenter of Englewood, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, reappointed;

Mindy Scooter of Boulder, Colorado to serve as an attorney, appointed.

Sincerely,

Jared Polis
Governor

10 Members (6 appointed by Governor)
2 Attorneys, 4 Non-attorneys
4 Year Terms
SENATE CONFIRMATION

COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

	Appointed	Confirmed	Term Expires
Attorney Members
Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa, Evergreen repl. Alvarez, reappt.	06-20-19	02-03-20	06-30-23
Mary (Mindy) Sooter, Boulder repl. Gregory, appt.	07-01-21		06-30-25
Non-Attorneys
Yolanda Regina Lyons, Colo. Spgs. reappt.	06-20-19	02-03-20	06-30-23
Bruce Casias, Lakewood repl. Kenney, reappt.	06-20-19	02-03-20	06-30-23
Drucilla Pugh, Pueblo repl. Negrete-Winn, reappt.	06-20-19	02-03-20	06-30-23
James Carpenter, Englewood repl. Bolling, reappt.	07-01-21		06-30-25

C.R.S. 24-72-401

Updated: 07-01-21

William J. Campbell, Exec. Director
1300 Broadway, Ste. 210
303.457.5134
w.campbell@jd.state.co.us

June 25, 2021

To the Honorable
Colorado Senate
Colorado General Assembly
State Capitol Building
Denver, CO 80203

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Pursuant to the powers conferred upon me by the Constitution and Laws of the State of Colorado, I have the honor to designate, appoint, reappoint, and submit to your consideration, the following:

MEMBER OF THE
COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

effective July 1, 2021 for a term expiring June 30, 2025:

James Carpenter of Englewood, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, reappointed;

Mindy Sooter of Boulder, Colorado to serve as an attorney, appointed.

Sincerely,

Jared Polis
Governor

From: Patel - GovOffice, Niketa on behalf of Patel - GovOffice, Niketa <niketa.patel@state.co.us>
To: Rachel Kurtz-Phelan - GA; Luisa Altmann - GA
Cc: Kate Siegel Shimko - GOVOffice; Haley Fried - GovOffice; w.campbell@jd.state.co.us
Subject: A 2021-118 Commission on Judicial Discipline
Date: Thursday, July 1, 2021 8:00:00 AM
Attachments: Commission on Judicial Discipline \(BIBL E\).doc
Judicial Discipline Commission \(SENATE 2021-118\).docx
A 2021-118 Commission on Judicial Discipline.pdf

Hello,

Please find the EO with the redacted applications, senate letter, and the updated roster page attached.

Let me know if you have any questions!

Best,
Nikky Patel
Deputy Director
Boards and Commissions

P 303.866.5232 C 303.957.8054
136 State Capitol, Denver, CO 80203
Niketa.Patel@state.co.us | Learn more about Boards and Commissions

Under the Colorado Open Records Act (CORA), all messages sent by or to me on this state-owned e-mail account may be subject to public disclosure.

COLORADO
Governor Jared Polis

A 2021 118

EXECUTIVE ORDER

MEMBERS

COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

ORDERED:

That the following named persons be and are hereby reappointed to the:

COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE for a

for a term expiring June 30, 2025:

James Carpenter of Englewood, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, reappointed;

Mindy Scooter of Boulder, Colorado to serve as an attorney, appointed.

GIVEN under my hand and the
Executive Seal of the State of
Colorado, this first day of
July, 2021.

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads 'Jared Polis'.

Jared Polis
Governor

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Carpenter, James		County Arapahoe	Cong. District 6	Senate District 27	House District 3
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Englewood		State Colorado	Zip Code 80111
Mailing Address [REDACTED]		City Englewood		State Colorado	Zip Code 80111
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1960	Gender Male	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Democrat		Ethnicity Caucasian
Present Employer/Title Freestone Strategies/Co-Founder		Business Phone # 303-358-6581		Home Phone #
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 1415 Park Avenue West		City Denver		State Colorado	Zip Code

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Carpenter	Middle Park High School	4	1978
College	Carpenter	Georgetown University	3		Government
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held(Indicate if

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Alan Salazar		[REDACTED]
Danielle Radovich Piper		[REDACTED]
Hon. Bill Ritter, Jr.		[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: I am prepared to commit the time necessary to serve effectively on the Commission.

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis
Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Carpenter, James	Arapahoe	6	27	3

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

I have recently completed my term as a member of the Supreme Court Nominating Commission. That was a tremendously worthwhile and rewarding experience, which I will miss. I believe is our state's system for selecting and reviewing judges, including the roll of non-attorney community members.

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

James F. Carpenter

Profile

Experienced consultant and leader of complex organizations operating in the public arena. Skilled at leading teams of professionals; developing and implementing organizational strategies and priorities; building coalitions to achieve results; acting as liaison with community leaders and diverse stakeholders; speaking and presenting to the public; dealing with the media; fundraising and donor relations; writing; managing crises and unexpected events; balancing multiple priorities and tasks; and overseeing operations, budgets and human resources.

Professional Experience

Freestone Strategies, LLC

Co-Founder, September, 2016 to Present

Owner and co-founder of a public affairs consulting firm. Provide strategic public affairs, communications, government relations and other services to a wide array of corporate and NGO clients focused on energy, technology, healthcare, conservation and public lands. www.freestone-strategies.com

Stratton-Carpenter & Associates

Principal, January, 2011 to September, 2016

Principal in a diverse, state, national and international public affairs consulting firm. Provide strategic public affairs, communications, government relations and other services to private, public and non-profit sector clients.

Colorado Governor Bill Ritter, Jr.

Chief of Staff, November, 2006 to January, 2011.

Recruited after the 2006 General Election to lead Governor's staff and Cabinet. Senior advisor to Governor on all policy, government, state budget, political and operational issues. Direct oversight of state agency executive directors and senior staff. Within the Governor's office, responsibility for overseeing all operations, including offices of legal counsel, legislative affairs, communications, media, budgeting and planning, policy and initiatives, boards and commissions, correspondence and constituent relations, administration, and personnel. Key liaison to Colorado's Congressional Delegation and staff, the National Governors Association and diverse stakeholders, including business and myriad community organizations throughout the state. Coordinate activities with Lt. Governor and First Lady. Oversaw transition team from previous Administration, including recruitment and selection of Cabinet members and senior staff.

James F. Carpenter

Page two

U.S. Senator Ken Salazar

State Director, December, 2004 to November, 2006.

Served as senior Colorado based advisor to Senator Salazar. Led staff of 18 in Denver and 8 regional offices across Colorado. Represented Senator at events and in front of constituent groups. Key liaison with Washington, D.C. staff, and with diverse stakeholders throughout the state. Developed and implemented regional plans.

Campaign Manager, Salazar for US Senate, March to November, 2004

Recruited to manage U.S. Senate campaign. Led team of consultants and staff in all aspects of a high profile, national campaign, including strategy development, paid and earned media, polling, research, field operations, administration and fundraising. Oversaw campaign budget of nearly $10 million, all raised and spent in about 8 months. Salazar was the only Democrat to win an open seat in a so-called “red state” and became one of only two newly elected Democrats in the U.S. Senate (the other: Barack Obama).

National Jewish Medical and Research Center (now National Jewish Health)

Director of Public Affairs, October, 1999 to March, 2004

Oversaw all media, public, government and community relations activities, and in-house graphic design and publications production studio. Responsible for enhancing National Jewish’s visibility and reputation among the media and community as a whole, and for developing and implementing communication efforts to complement overall strategic plans, marketing goals and development activities. Served on 10-member Senior Executive Management Committee, and the Ethics Committee. Managed professional staff of seven and $1.5 million annual budget.

Gonzales Consulting Services

Director, GCS Public Strategies, January to October, 2009

Provided corporate communications, and public, media and government relations services to help clients meet their goals in the public arena.

Colorado Governor Roy Romer

Chief of Staff, August, 1998 to January, 1999

Directed all operations of Governor’s office, including personnel, budget and project management. Coordinated activities with Members of the Cabinet. Managed transition process to new governor.

Director of Communications and Press Secretary, January, 1995 to August, 1998

Directed media relations and served as chief spokesman for Governor Roy Romer. Oversaw Governor’s office communications with public, including press and public events, speeches, correspondence, press releases, and opinion pieces.

James F. Carpenter

Page three

Public Affairs Consultant

January, 1993 to January, 1995

Managed grassroots campaigns and other public affairs projects for various corporate, non-profit and political clients, including acting as communications director and media spokesman for the 1994 re-election campaign of Governor Roy Romer.

U.S. Senator Timothy E. Wirth

Deputy State Director / Campaign Manager, October, 1988 to January, 1993

As Deputy State Director, oversaw Colorado press and communications, scheduling, community relations and political activities. As campaign manager, directed staff and planning for U.S. Senate re-election effort (Wirth ultimately did not seek re-election).

National Strategies

Administrator/Associate, January, 1987 to September, 1988

Served as Administrator and Associate for a public affairs consulting firm in Washington, DC, representing corporate, non-profit and political clients and organizations.

U.S. Representative Timothy E. Wirth

Staff Member, 1978-1986

Held various positions with increasing levels of responsibility, both in Washington, DC, and Colorado, including legislative assistant in the U.S. House of Representatives, and Operations Director for Wirth's successful 1986 U.S. Senate campaign.

Education

B.A., Political Science, University of Colorado, Boulder, 1985.

Attended Georgetown University, Washington, DC, 1978-1981.

Selected Affiliations, Activities and Accomplishments

Colorado Supreme Court Nominating Commission, Gubernatorial Appointee, 2013-2019

Bright By Three, Member of the Board of Directors, Past Board Chair

Colorado Non-Profit Association Leadership Advisory Council

Denver Metro Chamber of Commerce Leadership Exchange Trip, 2008

Denver Post "Colorado Voices" Columnist, 2002

Member, 18th Judicial District Nominating Commission, 1998 to 2004

Democratic National Convention Host Committee Executive Committee, 2007 to 2008

Member, Public Relations Society of America and of Colorado, 2000 to 2004

Member, Colorado Healthcare Communicators, 2000 to 2004

Member, Who's Who in North America and Who's Who in the West

Member, Board of Directors of the Colorado Tobacco Education and Prevention

Alliance, 2001 to 2004. Treasurer, 2003

Member, Mile High United Way Leadership Development Committee, 2002 to 2004

Participant, Aspen Institute Executive Seminar, 1996

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis

Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle) Sooter, Mary (Mindy) Virginia		County Boulder	Cong. District 2	Senate District 18	House District 13
Home Address [REDACTED]		City Boulder		State Colorado	Zip Code 80305
Mailing Address		City		State Colorado	Zip Code
Date of Birth [REDACTED] 1967	Gender Female	Registered Voter? Yes Party Affiliation? Democrat		Ethnicity Caucasian
Present Employer/Title Wilmer Cutler Pickering Hale and Dorr/Partner		Business Phone # (720) 274-3164		Home Phone # [REDACTED]
		Cell Phone # [REDACTED]		E-mail [REDACTED]
Business Address 1225 17th St., Ste 2600		City Denver		State Colorado	Zip Code 80202

EDUCATION AND GENERAL QUALIFICATIONS

LEVEL	NAME OF SCHOOL	LOCATION	No. Years Attended	Did You Graduate?	Major Course of Study
High School	Smithsburg High School	Smithsburg, MD		1985
College	Texas A&M University	College Station, TX		1990	Electrical Engineering
Graduate Studies -or- Trade/Business/ Correspondence	University of Colorado	Boulder, CO		1999	Telecommunications
	University of Colorado	Boulder, CO		2003	Law
Memberships in Organizations And Offices Held (Indicate if)	Partner-in-Charge of WilmerHale's Denver Office Former chair of the IP Section of the Colorado Bar Association Former chair of the board of Impact on Education

REFERENCES (List three persons, not related to you, who you have known for at least one year.)

NAME	RELATIONSHIP	PHONE #
Ken Salazar	Law Partner	[REDACTED]
Phil Weiser	Mentor	[REDACTED]
Jacki Cooper Melmed	Classmate	[REDACTED]

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public? (On Pg. 2 if applicable)

If appointed, you are expected to attend fully to the duties of the position. How much time are you capable of committing?: Part Time

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission. (On Next Page)

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

STATE OF COLORADO

APPLICATION – 2020
BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS
OFFICE OF GOVERNOR Jared S. Polis
Please attach a resume and fill ALL fields.

FOR OFFICE USE ONLY

DB _____

SLOT _____

Please be advised that applications will not be processed if unsigned or resume is not attached and a board or commission is not specified.

BOARD OR COMMISSION FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING: (Only one per application, your application will not be processed if left blank.)

Judicial Discipline, Commission on

Name (Last, First Middle)	County	Cong. District	Senate District	House District
Sooter, Mary (Mindy) Virginia	Boulder	2	18	13

Please explain why you wish to serve on a board or commission.

Two reasons. First, I would like to dedicate some of my time to public service, and this is a perfect opportunity to give back to the state of Colorado and the community in a way that fits well with my skills and my passion. Second, above all else in our legal system, I value the reputation of our judiciary. It must be unbiased, ethical, and moral, both in perception and reality. This requires a judiciary with the appropriate work ethic, demeanor, and temperament, as well as strong moral and ethical values. While the vast majority of judges are upstanding and well-meaning, issues inevitably occur, and since the judicial system is fragile, I would be honored to help protect it.

I very much look forward to

Have you ever been a party to or the subject of or otherwise involved in any legal proceeding that might adversely affect your qualifications to serve on this board or commission? Is there anything in your background that might be an embarrassment to the Governor or you if it were to become public?

No

*I certify that the facts contained in this application are true and correct to the best of my knowledge. I authorize investigation of all statements contained herein and the references listed above to obtain any and all pertinent information, personal and otherwise. I further authorize the Office of the Governor to conduct a criminal background check, including requesting a criminal history from the Colorado Bureau of Investigation. I release all parties for all liability for any damage that may result from furnishing such information.
*I understand that the Colorado Open Records Act may require that certain information contained in this application be available for inspection by the general public.

Mary (Mindy) V. Sooter

PARTNER

Partner-in-Charge, Denver Office

DENVER

[Redacted]
[Redacted]

Mindy Sooter is a trial lawyer focusing on patent, trade secret, and other high-stakes commercial litigation. Ms. Sooter represents large clients, such as those in the medical device, telecommunications and technology sectors, as well as emerging businesses, in a variety of jurisdictions across the country. She has led and co-led many cases to verdict in federal and state courts across the country, and argues post-grant proceedings at the Patent Trial and Appeal Board. With a background in engineering, Ms. Sooter focuses on cases involving telecommunications, electrical engineering, computer science and medical devices. Ms. Sooter also focuses on bringing highly technical subject matter to a jury in an accessible and persuasive manner.

Before law school, Ms. Sooter worked for a large management consulting firm, and then led the engineering group at a startup software company.

Professional Activities

Ms. Sooter is an adjunct professor teaching patent litigation at the University of Colorado School of Law.

Solutions

Litigation

Intellectual Property Litigation

Trials

Experience

- In recent years, Ms. Sooter's work has prevailed in or successfully resolved numerous cases, including:
 - Led the litigation and successful settlement of a high-stakes trade secret case on behalf of two companies and an individual pending in the District of Colorado.
 - Obtained a dismissal of a trademark case on behalf of a multinational banking company, pending in the District of Colorado.
 - Obtained a dismissal of a patent infringement suit pending in the Western District of Wisconsin on behalf of Medical device company, based on improper venue.
 - Achieving a victory for Akamai Technologies, Inc. when the Delaware Supreme Court affirmed the dismissal of a lawsuit brought by Limelight Networks, Inc., a competitor, asserting breach of a settlement agreement between the parties.
 - Serving as co-lead counsel for Comcast Cable Communications in a ten-patent infringement matter in the Northern District of California involving interactive television patents, which resulted in granting summary judgment of non-infringement in favor of our client.
 - Successfully obtaining dismissal and an award of attorneys' fees of more than $425,000 in a patent case involving optical network design and components.
 - Successfully obtaining a $12 million jury verdict after a jury found that a competitor had engaged in willful patent infringement, willful trade dress infringement and intentional false advertising.
 - Successfully obtaining a summary judgment of non-infringement, and subsequent affirmance by the Federal Circuit, in a patent case involving more than 100 asserted claims and two patents relating to multidimensional database technology.
 - Successfully obtaining dismissal on behalf of a software company in a multi-jurisdictional case involving mapping software.
 - Successfully obtaining a dismissal on behalf of a medical corporation in a case involving the technical performance of distributed computer systems.
 - Successfully obtaining a summary judgment and complete dismissal of a $20 million licensing claim on behalf of a healthcare diagnostics company.

Recognition

- Recognized in the 2021 edition of Chambers USA: America's Leading Lawyers for Business as a top intellectual property lawyer in Colorado
- Recognized by the University of Colorado Law School as a Distinguished Alumni for her contributions to the legal profession, service to her community and dedication to the school
- Recognized by Law Week Colorado as a Top Women Attorney in 2017 and 2020

and named to its 2018 Top Litigators list

- Recognized as the Outstanding Intellectual Property Litigator in Colorado by Managing IP in 2018 and 2019
- Recognized by Colorado Super Lawyers for intellectual property litigation in 2016, 2019–2021
- Named among the Top 250 Women in IP and a 2018–2020 IP Star by Managing IP, a guidebook that identifies leading IP lawyers in the United States
- Selected by peers for inclusion in the 2019–2021 editions of the Best Lawyers in America
- Recognized in the 2014–2020 editions of IAM Patent 1000: The World's Leading Patent Practitioners
- Named 2014 IP Supporter of the Year by the Silicon Flatirons Center at the University of Colorado Law School
- Named a "Rising Star" by Colorado Super Lawyers in 2012
- Selected as an "Up and Coming Lawyer" in 2008 by Law Week Colorado

Credentials

EDUCATION

JD, University of Colorado Law School, 2003

Editor, Law Review, Order of the Coif, top grades of any 3L

ME, Telecommunications, University of Colorado at Boulder, 1999

BS, Electrical Engineering, Texas A&M University, 1990

magna cum laude

Phi Kappa Phi, Tau Beta Pi, Eta Kappa Nu

ADMISSIONS

Colorado

United States Patent and Trademark Office

CLERKSHIPS

The Hon. Ferdinand F. Fernandez, US Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit, 2004 - 2005

The Hon. Mary J. Mullarkey, Colorado Supreme Court, 2003 - 2004

COLORADO
Governor Jared Polis

July 1, 2021

To the Honorable
Colorado Senate
Colorado General Assembly
State Capitol Building
Denver, CO 80203

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Pursuant to the powers conferred upon me by the Constitution and Laws of the State of Colorado, I have the honor to designate, appoint, reappoint, and submit to your consideration, the following:

MEMBER OF THE
COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

effective July 1, 2021 for a term expiring June 30, 2025:

James Carpenter of Englewood, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, reappointed;

Mindy Scooter of Boulder, Colorado to serve as an attorney, appointed.

Sincerely,

Jared Polis
Governor

10 Members (6 appointed by Governor)
2 Attorneys, 4 Non-attorneys
4 Year Terms
SENATE CONFIRMATION

COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

	Appointed	Confirmed	Term Expires
Attorney Members
Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa, Evergreen repl. Alvarez, reappt.	06-20-19	02-03-20	06-30-23
Mary (Mindy) Scooter, Boulder repl. Gregory, appt.	07-01-21		06-30-25
Non-Attorneys
Yolanda Regina Lyons, Colo. Spgs. reappt.	06-20-19	02-03-20	06-30-23
Bruce Casias, Lakewood repl. Kenney, reappt.	06-20-19	02-03-20	06-30-23
Drucilla Pugh, Pueblo repl. Negrete-Winn, reappt.	06-20-19	02-03-20	06-30-23
James Carpenter, Englewood repl. Bolling, reappt.	07-01-21		06-30-25

C.R.S. 24-72-401

Updated: 07-01-21

William J. Campbell, Exec. Director
1300 Broadway, Ste. 210
303.457.5134
w.campbell@jd.state.co.us

June 25, 2021

To the Honorable
Colorado Senate
Colorado General Assembly
State Capitol Building
Denver, CO 80203

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Pursuant to the powers conferred upon me by the Constitution and Laws of the State of Colorado, I have the honor to designate, appoint, reappoint, and submit to your consideration, the following:

MEMBER OF THE
COLORADO COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE

effective July 1, 2021 for a term expiring June 30, 2025:

James Carpenter of Englewood, Colorado, to serve as a non-attorney, reappointed;

Mindy Scooter of Boulder, Colorado to serve as an attorney, appointed.

Sincerely,

Jared Polis
Governor

Appendix 30

Correspondence re: P.A.I.R.R. 2 (Public Records) Requests to and Responses from the Colo. Jud. Dep't.

Records Request

2 messages

Mon, Sep 9, 2024 at 3:49 PM

To: brian.boatright@judicial.state.co.us
Cc: terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us

Dear Justice Boatright,

Attached, please find a request under P.A.I.R.R. 2 for administrative records that should be in your custody and control. Please respond as requested, including with an explanation of any refusal to waive confidentiality as otherwise allowed by Colo. RJD 6.5(d)(9).

Sincerely,

Enclosure (1)

Cc: Terri Morrison, esq.

 001 240711 PAIRR2 Rqst BDB Corresp re Maes RFE.pdf
223K

Mailtrack Reminder <reminders@mailtrack.io>
Reply-To: brian.boatright@judicial.state.co.us, terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us

Thu, Sep 12, 2024 at 3:49 PM

You've not received a reply yet. Snooze for 24H, 48H or 72H

Date: 9/9/24

P.A.I.R.R.2 Request # 1

Please provide all “writings” as defined under § 24-72-202(7), C.R.S. and relevant to the following:

1. The December 2023 Colo. RJD 14(a) notice sent to Chief Justice Brian Boatright in connection with a published request for evaluation of judicial conduct submitted by former 10th District Court Chief Judge Dennis Maes;
2. Chief Justice Boatright’s January 2024 response to the Colo. RJD 14(a) notice; and
3. The Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline’s June 2024 letter dismissing the complaint against Chief Justice Boatright with “an expression of concern.”

If this request is denied as relating to records deemed confidential according to Colo. Const. Art. VI, § 23(3)(g), I request that Justice Boatright confirm in writing that he is refusing to waive confidentiality as allowed by Colo. RJD 6.5(d)(9) and the reasons for his refusal.

Signature:

Date: 9/9/24

PAIRR 2 Request #1 dated 9/9/24 - response

1 message

márquez, monica <monica.marquez@judicial.state.co.us>

Thu, Sep 12, 2024 at 8:50 AM

To:

Cc: "morrison, terri" <terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us>

:

As the custodian of records pursuant to P.A.I.R.R. 2, §1(c)(1) for the Colorado State Courts which necessarily includes the Supreme Court, I'm writing to you in response to your P.A.I.R.R. 2 request #1 submitted on September 9, 2024.

The Colorado Supreme Court does not have any administrative records that are responsive to your request.

Sincerely,

Chief Justice Monica M. Márquez (she/her)

Colorado Supreme Court

2 East 14th Ave.

Denver, CO 80203

(720) 625-5450

monica.marquez@judicial.state.co.us

Website: www.coloradojudicial.gov

From
Subject	Records Request
Message ID	<CAG9LdbYVGxofJW14XLnB1+qKmm4eKbjo6zerFdAMYNpmUiTGLg@mail.gmail.com>
Delivered on	9 Sep, 2024 at 5:49 PM
Delivered to	<brian.boatright@judicial.state.co.us>, <terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us>

Tracking history

- 👁 Opened on 1 Oct, 2024 at 1:02 AM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 1 Oct, 2024 at 12:58 AM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 1 Oct, 2024 at 12:57 AM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 1 Oct, 2024 at 12:51 AM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 1 Oct, 2024 at 12:51 AM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 24 Sep, 2024 at 11:46 AM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 20 Sep, 2024 at 10:28 AM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 20 Sep, 2024 at 10:27 AM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 19 Sep, 2024 at 3:54 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 12:31 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 12:01 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 11:54 AM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 11:54 AM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 12 Sep, 2024 at 4:35 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 12 Sep, 2024 at 3:23 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 12 Sep, 2024 at 10:44 AM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 12 Sep, 2024 at 10:21 AM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 12 Sep, 2024 at 10:20 AM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 12 Sep, 2024 at 10:20 AM by one of the recipients

- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 10:37 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 9:22 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 8:49 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 8:38 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 8:38 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 7:38 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 7:36 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 6:31 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 5:37 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 4:20 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 4:15 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 4:15 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 4:14 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 4:14 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 4:09 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 4:09 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 3:14 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 3:13 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 3:13 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 3:07 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 3:07 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 3:06 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 2:59 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 2:59 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 2:59 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 2:40 PM by one of the recipients

- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 2:34 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 2:33 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 2:33 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 2:30 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 2:28 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 2:16 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 2:15 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 1:12 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 1:12 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 11:48 AM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 11:40 AM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 9:45 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 7:27 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 7:23 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 7:16 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 7:13 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 7:05 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 7:02 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 7:02 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 7:01 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 7:00 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 7:00 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 7:00 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 7:00 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 7:00 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 6:14 PM by one of the recipients

- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 6:13 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 6:12 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 6:12 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 6:12 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 6:11 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 5:10 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 9 Sep, 2024 at 8:04 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 9 Sep, 2024 at 6:57 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 9 Sep, 2024 at 6:41 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 9 Sep, 2024 at 6:38 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 9 Sep, 2024 at 6:32 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 9 Sep, 2024 at 6:25 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 9 Sep, 2024 at 6:22 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 9 Sep, 2024 at 6:22 PM by one of the recipients
- 👁 Opened on 9 Sep, 2024 at 6:14 PM by one of the recipients

Records Request

16 messages

Mon, Sep 9, 2024 at 3:49 PM

To: terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us

Ms. Terri Morrison, Chief Legal Counsel
Colorado State Court Administrator's Office
1300 Broadway, Ste. 1200
Denver, CO 80203

Dear Ms. Morrison,

Attached to this email, please find (20) separate requests for public records according to P.A.I.R.R. 2. An additional separate request is submitted directly to Justice Brian Boatright and copied to you. That request seeks administrative records that would be within Justice Boatright's personal custody or which were received by him while he was still serving as the Chief Justice and the recognized custodian of records according to P.A.I.R.R. 2 § (1)(c)(1).

If you are not the designated custodian of records for any request(s), please re-direct that/those request(s) to the correct person. P.A.I.R.R. 2 § (1)(c). For the logistics of processing the attached requests, I respectfully ask that you treat each request as separate and stand alone. This is consistent with the Judicial Department's self-acknowledged expectation that: "The custodian must take reasonable measures to locate any specific administrative record sought and to ensure public access to the administrative record without unreasonable delay or unreasonable cost." P.A.I.R.R. 2 § 2(b). The deadlines for each respective response should be followed as set forth in P.A.I.R.R. 2 § 4(b).

If the scope of any of these requests can be further refined to reduce the resources necessary to respond, please do not hesitate to contact me with any questions or suggestions that you might have. Thank you for your assistance in processing these requests as provided through P.A.I.R.R. 2.

Sincerely,

Enclosures (20)

20 attachments

-  002 240711 PAIRR2 Rqst CSC COI & Disqual.pdf
184K
-  004 240711 PAIRR2 Rqst Ryan C&D Ltr.pdf
203K
-  005 240713 PAIRR2 Rqst 3-3-24 DG Art re Woods.pdf
221K
-  006 240713 PAIRR2 Rqst Comm & Listening Sessions.pdf
218K
-  003 240711 PAIRR2 Rqst Gabriel NDA.pdf
201K
-  007 240713 PAIRR2 Rqst Cost of WCI.pdf
201K
-  009 240715 PAIRR2 Rqst 2018 OSA Audit Mang Rep Ltr.pdf
201K
-  010 240722 PAIRR2 Rqst re Org Ombuds Budget Rqst.pdf
201K
-  008 240713 PAIRR2 Rqst Gleason CLE.pdf
201K
-  011 240723 PAIRR2 Rqst JES Salary Calc.pdf
201K
-  012 240729 PAIRR2 Rqst CJD-CCJD MOU.pdf
202K
-  014 240815 PAIRR2 Rqst Recds re 230206 JY Ltr.pdf
204K
-  013 240815 PAIRR2 Rqst MM Ltr Amend CRCP 227.pdf
202K
-  016 240819 PAIRR2 Rqst EEK Recusal & RJD 3.5.pdf
189K
-  015 240815 PAIRR2 Rqst Recds re PL Pros.pdf
202K
-  017 240819 PAIRR2 Rqst Emls re 210204 & 210208 Pub Stmts & WilmerHale.pdf
205K
-  018 240824 PAIRR2 Rqst Leg Comm HCR 23-1001 HB1019 HB 23-1205.pdf
183K
-  021 240904 PAIRR2 Rqst OSA Transcripts.pdf
247K

Date: 9/9/24

P.A.I.R.R.2 Request # 2

Please provide all “writings” as defined under § 24-72-202(7), C.R.S. and relevant to the following:

1. Letters from the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline to the individual Justices of the Colorado Supreme Court on June 13, 2022 or thereafter that advised the Justices of conflicts of interest and requested their disqualification. These letters were reported on in the press. David Migoya, Discipline Commission told Supreme Court Justices They Had Conflict of Interest in Investigation and Should Recuse; They Haven't, DENVER GAZETTE, October 8, 2022;
2. Any communications about these letters or expressed impressions by the Justices, including responsive letters sent by Chief Justice Brian Boatright and State Court Administrator Steven Vasconcellos on or about June 16, 2022 or thereafter;
3. All correspondence and communications between the Justices and the Commission regarding conferral, public comment, promulgation, and adoption of Colo. RJD 41, including any subsequent requests to conform Colo. RJD 41 to HCR 23-1001;
4. Copies of written public comments submitted as part of the promulgation of Colo. RJD 41;
5. Communications between the Justices, Department Lobbyist Terry Scanlon, State Court Administrator Steven Vasconcellos, and/or Colorado Supreme Court Staff and outside organizations (i.e. the National Center for State Courts, the Colorado Judicial Institute, the Colorado Bar Association, the American Bar Association, and the Institute for the Advancement of the American Legal System) as such communications relate to promulgation, public notice and comment, and adoption of Colo. RJD 41; and
6. Drafting notes and other internal documents generated by the Colorado Supreme Court as part of its promulgation and adoption of Colo. RJD 41.

If this request is denied in part as relating to records deemed confidential according to Colo. Const. Art. VI, § 23(3)(g), please confirm that the Justices are individually refusing to waive confidentiality as allowed by Colo. RJD 6.5(d)(9) and the reasons for their individual refusals.

This request is made according to PAIRR2 with the 3-business day timeframe for an initial response provided through PAIRR2 § 4. To the extent that you, as custodian of records, characterize any of the records requested as “court records” rather than “administrative records,” any such records should be processed / produced according to PAIRR1 and CJD 05-01. Likewise, if you are not the custodian of any of these records, this request should be re-directed / copied to the appropriate person. PAIRR2 § 1(c).

Signature: _____

Date: 9/9/24

Date: 9/9/24

P.A.I.R.R.2 Request # 3

Please provide all “writings” as defined under § 24-72-202(7), C.R.S. and relevant to the following:

1. The (approximately 2013 or 2014) separation agreement with a general release and non-disclosure provision between the Judicial Department and then-Court of Appeals Judge Richard Gabriel’s female law clerk. This separation agreement is generally referenced in Investigations Law Group, LLC’s Report at pp. 21-26.
2. Documentation related to the Judicial Department’s approval/authorization of the law clerk’s separation agreement; and
3. An accounting of public funds spent as part of the separation agreement.

This request is made according to PAIRR2 with the 3-business day timeframe for an initial response provided through PAIRR2 § 4. To the extent that you, as custodian of records, characterize any of the records requested as “court records” rather than “administrative records,” any such records should be processed / produced according to PAIRR1 and CJD 05-01. Likewise, if you are not the custodian of any of these records, this request should be re-directed / copied to the appropriate person. PAIRR2 § 1(c).

Signature:

Date: 9/9/24

Date: 9/9/24

P.A.I.R.R.2 Request # 4

Please provide all “writings” as defined under § 24-72-202(7), C.R.S. and relevant to the following:

1. Communications including SCAO employees, Counsel to the Chief Justice Andrew Rottman, and/or the Justices of the Colorado Supreme Court with regard to PAIRR2 requests received from either The Denver Post or The Denver Gazette in December 2020-February 2021;
2. Communications including SCAO employees, Counsel to the Chief Justice Andrew Rottman, and/or the Justices of the Colorado Supreme Court reacting to former State Court Administrator Christopher Ryan providing interviews to The Denver Post during the same time period; and
3. Communications and documentation related to the drafting and authorization of a cease-and-desist letter (with a copy of the letter itself) sent to Ryan on or about December 30-31, 2020.

This request is made according to PAIRR2 with the 3-business day timeframe for an initial response provided through PAIRR2 § 4. To the extent that you, as custodian of records, characterize any of the records requested as “court records” rather than “administrative records,” any such records should be processed / produced according to PAIRR1 and CJD 05-01. Likewise, if you are not the custodian of any of these records, this request should be re-directed / copied to the appropriate person. PAIRR2 § 1(c).

Signature:

Date: 9/9/24

Date: 9/9/24

P.A.I.R.R.2 Request # 5

Please provide all “writings” as defined under § 24-72-202(7), C.R.S. and relevant to the following:

1. On March 3, 2024, The Denver Gazette published an article reporting that Chief Justice Boatright, Denver Juvenile Court Judge Laurie Clark, and former Court of Appeals Judge Karen Ashby were aware of a judicial employee/courthouse manager raising concerns about then-Presiding Denver Juvenile Court Judge D. Brett Woods’s habitually intemperate alcohol use (including at the workplace and as part of work-related functions) and the employee then being retaliated (fired) for reporting their concerns. David Migoya, Top Judges Ignored Colleague’s Drinking, DENVER GAZETTE, March 3, 2024. Please provide all documentation and communications related to any of the Justices’, Counsel to the Chief Justice Andrew Rottman’s, or SCAO employees’ reactions to the Gazette article, including public / non-public comments made by Chief Justice Boatright and State Court Administrator Steven Vasconcellos;
2. Any communications with/from Chief Justice Boatright, Judge Clark, and/or former Judge Ashby that confirm their respective contemporaneous awareness of Judge Woods’ intemperance and/or retaliation against the employee;
3. The termination notice provided to the employee who was retaliated against for reporting Judge Woods’ unfitness;
4. The separation agreement (including any general waiver and non-disclosure provisions) with the employee and records of the agreement’s negotiation;
5. Records of public funds paid as part of the separation agreement;
6. Any documentation of relevant Judicial Department records (in the custody of SCAO or the Denver Juvenile Court) being withheld from / not reported to the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline;
7. Any correspondence/communications between the Commission and Chief Justice Boatright, any of the other Justices, former Judge Ashby, and/or Judge Clark as to suspected violation of their duties under Canon Rules 2.15 and 2.16 to self-report and to report the judicial misconduct / judicial disability of others; and
8. Communications between the Commission, the Colorado Supreme Court / SCAO, and/or former Judge Woods relating to either pending or concluded judicial disciplinary proceedings as to Judge Woods.

If this request is denied in part as relating to records deemed confidential according to Colo. Const. Art. VI, § 23(3)(g), please confirm that Chief Justice Boatright, Judge Clark, former Judge

Woods, and/or former Judge Ashby are individually refusing to waive confidentiality as allowed by Colo. RJD 6.5(d)(9) and the reasons for their individual refusals.

This request is made according to PAIRR2 with the 3-business day timeframe for an initial response provided through PAIRR2 § 4. To the extent that you, as custodian of records, characterize any of the records requested as “court records” rather than “administrative records,” any such records should be processed / produced according to PAIRR1 and CJD 05-01. Likewise, if you are not the custodian of any of these records, this request should be re-directed / copied to the appropriate person. PAIRR2 § 1(c).

Signature:

Date: 9/9/24

Date: 9/9/24

P.A.I.R.R.2 Request # 6

Please provide all “writings” as defined under § 24-72-202(7), C.R.S. and relevant to the following:

1. Communications or documentation related to the formation of a “Steering Committee” and working groups for the Colorado Courts Workplace Culture Initiative (including the appointment orders/documentation for the members of the Committee and its working groups and the authorization of public funds for the Committee and the broader Initiative);
2. In its description of “listening sessions,” the Court states:

In October-November 2022, Justice Márquez and Chief Judge Román also hosted a series of listening sessions with the diverse bar associations about the Troyer and ILG Reports and the Supreme Court’s Workplace Culture Initiative. These sessions included meetings with the Asian Pacific American Bar Association (APABA), the Colorado Disability Bar Association (CDBA), the Colorado Hispanic Bar Association (CHBA), the Colorado Women’s Bar Association (CWBA), the Colorado LGBT Bar Association, the South Asian Bar Association (SABA), and the Sam Cary Bar Association (SCBA). Justice Márquez also presented on these topics at the CWBA Legislative Breakfast.

Please provide copies of Justice Márquez and Chief Judge Román’s presentations, presentation notes, and/or recordings from these “listening sessions”;

3. Copies of or access to “learning modules” developed through the Workplace Culture Initiative to train judges and judicial employees as to the Judicial Department’s anti-harassment, anti-retaliation, and mandatory judicial misconduct reporting policies;
4. Justice Márquez and Chief Justice Boatright have described the “listening sessions” as typically including a Colorado Supreme Court Justice accompanied by a Colorado Court of Appeals Judge. Please provide an inventory of the “listening sessions” that occurred, when they occurred, and which Justice and/or Court of Appeals Judge were involved in specific courthouse site visits;
5. Copies of presentations, presentation notes, and/or recordings from the “listening sessions” that occurred as part of courthouse site visits throughout the State;
6. Copies of presentations, presentation notes, and/or recordings from the Judicial Department’s 2021-2023 annual judicial conferences in which the merits of the Masias

Controversy, the Office of the State Auditor's findings, the Troyer-Mitchell Report, the ILG Report, and/or the Workplace Culture Initiative were discussed;

7. Copies of presentations, presentation notes, and/or recordings of the Judicial Department's 2021-2023 new judges' trainings; and
8. Copies of the agendas for the 2021-2024 the Colorado Judicial Department's annual judicial conferences.

This request is made according to PAIRR2 with the 3-business day timeframe for an initial response provided through PAIRR2 § 4. To the extent that you, as custodian of records, characterize any of the records requested as "court records" rather than "administrative records," any such records should be processed / produced according to PAIRR1 and CJD 05-01. Likewise, if you are not the custodian of any of these records, this request should be re-directed / copied to the appropriate person. PAIRR2 § 1(c).

Signature:

Date: 9/9/24

Date: 9/9/24

P.A.I.R.R.2 Request # 7

Please provide all “writings” as defined under § 24-72-202(7), C.R.S. and relevant to the following:

1. A full accounting of public funds expended (through mileage reimbursement, travel costs, production costs, or any other direct costs) on the Colorado Supreme Court’s Workplace Culture Initiative and “Listening Tours.”

This request is made according to PAIRR2 with the 3-business day timeframe for an initial response provided through PAIRR2 § 4. To the extent that you, as custodian of records, characterize any of the records requested as “court records” rather than “administrative records,” any such records should be processed / produced according to PAIRR1 and CJD 05-01. Likewise, if you are not the custodian of any of these records, this request should be re-directed / copied to the appropriate person. PAIRR2 § 1(c).

Signature:

Date: 9/9/24

Date: 9/9/24

P.A.I.R.R.2 Request # 8

Please provide all “writings” as defined under § 24-72-202(7), C.R.S. and relevant to the following:

1. As part of his testimony to the Senate Judiciary Committee on April 14, 2022, Chief Justice Boatright stated:

I will say, quite honestly, we had a training recently, and there was a lawyer who works in this area. And I think he scared everybody to death about nothing, I don't think there's been any bad acts by judicial discipline. This isn't intended as a criticism at all, but people . . . I mean, there's a psychological impact if you just send somebody's name to judicial discipline, and that is a scary proposition, you could lose your career.

Please identify the lawyer who presented the referenced training and who (specifically which Justices and/or other judges) attended the training.

2. Please provide copies of the referenced presentation, presentation notes, and/or the recorded presentation.

This request is made according to PAIRR2 with the 3-business day timeframe for an initial response provided through PAIRR2 § 4. To the extent that you, as custodian of records, characterize any of the records requested as “court records” rather than “administrative records,” any such records should be processed / produced according to PAIRR1 and CJD 05-01. Likewise, if you are not the custodian of any of these records, this request should be re-directed / copied to the appropriate person. PAIRR2 § 1(c).

Signature:

Date: 9/9/24

Date: 9/9/24

P.A.I.R.R.2 Request # 9

Please provide all “writings” as defined under § 24-72-202(7), C.R.S. and relevant to the following:

1. A copy of the fully executed December 2018 single statewide audit management representation letter from the Colorado Judicial Department to the Colorado Office of the State Auditor referenced in Matter of Coats, 2023 CO 44, ¶ 4(11).

This request is made according to PAIRR2 with the 3-business day timeframe for an initial response provided through PAIRR2 § 4. To the extent that you, as custodian of records, characterize any of the records requested as “court records” rather than “administrative records,” any such records should be processed / produced according to PAIRR1 and CJD 05-01. Likewise, if you are not the custodian of any of these records, this request should be re-directed / copied to the appropriate person. PAIRR2 § 1(c).

Signature:

Date: 9/9/24

Date: 9/9/24

P.A.I.R.R.2 Request # 10

Please provide all “writings” as defined under § 24-72-202(7), C.R.S. and relevant to the following:

1. A copy of the Judicial Department’s supplemental 2023 budget request seeking funding for an internal “Office of People and Culture” and an internal “Organizational Ombuds Office”; and
2. Correspondence/communications between the Justices of the Colorado Supreme Court, the Chief Justice’s Counsel Andrew Rottman, and/or SCAO employees and the Colorado Legislature regarding the supplemental 2023 budget request.

This request is made according to PAIRR2 with the 3-business day timeframe for an initial response provided through PAIRR2 § 4. To the extent that you, as custodian of records, characterize any of the records requested as “court records” rather than “administrative records,” any such records should be processed / produced according to PAIRR1 and CJD 05-01. Likewise, if you are not the custodian of any of these records, this request should be re-directed / copied to the appropriate person. PAIRR2 § 1(c).

Signature: -

Date: 9/9/24

Date: 9/9/24

P.A.I.R.R.2 Request # 11

Please provide all “writings” as defined under § 24-72-202(7), C.R.S. and relevant to the following:

1. A calculation and full accounting of the salary and benefits paid to former 18th Judicial District Court Judge John E. Scipione from his suspension from judicial duties by the Colorado Supreme Court, effective August 3, 2022, until his actual separation from employment by the Colorado Judicial Department in January 2023.

This request is made according to PAIRR2 with the 3-business day timeframe for an initial response provided through PAIRR2 § 4. To the extent that you, as custodian of records, characterize any of the records requested as “court records” rather than “administrative records,” any such records should be processed / produced according to PAIRR1 and CJD 05-01. Likewise, if you are not the custodian of any of these records, this request should be re-directed / copied to the appropriate person. PAIRR2 § 1(c).

Signature:

Date: 9/9/24

Date: 9/09/24

P.A.I.R.R.2 Request # 12

Please provide all “writings” as defined under § 24-72-202(7), C.R.S. and relevant to the following:

1. A copy of the 2010 Memorandum of Understanding for the exchange of information between the Colorado Judicial Department and the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline, as referenced by Chief Justice Brian Boatright during remarks to the Senate Judiciary Committee on April 14, 2022.

This request is made according to PAIRR2 with the 3-business day timeframe for an initial response provided through PAIRR2 § 4. To the extent that you, as custodian of records, characterize any of the records requested as “court records” rather than “administrative records,” any such records should be processed / produced according to PAIRR1 and CJD 05-01. Likewise, if you are not the custodian of any of these records, this request should be re-directed / copied to the appropriate person. PAIRR2 § 1(c).

Signature:

Date: 9/9/24

Date: 9/9/24

P.A.I.R.R.2 Request # 13

Please provide all “writings” as defined under § 24-72-202(7), C.R.S. and relevant to the following:

1. A copy of a letter sent by Justice Monica Márquez to the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline in November/December 2022 that announced the Colorado Supreme Court’s amendment of C.R.C.P. 227 to remove the Commission as a recipient of funding/resources through attorney registration fees.

This request is made according to PAIRR2 with the 3-business day timeframe for an initial response provided through PAIRR2 § 4. To the extent that you, as custodian of records, characterize any of the records requested as “court records” rather than “administrative records,” any such records should be processed / produced according to PAIRR1 and CJD 05-01. Likewise, if you are not the custodian of any of these records, this request should be re-directed / copied to the appropriate person. PAIRR2 § 1(c).

Signature:

Date: 9/9/24

Date: 9/9/24

PA.I.R.R.2 Request # 14

Please provide all “writings” as defined under § 24-72-202(7), C.R.S. and relevant to the following:

1. Communications between one or more Justices of the Colorado Supreme Court, Andrew Rottman, and/or SCAO employees and Attorney Regulation Counsel (ARC) Jessica Yates regarding a February 6, 2023, disciplinary letter sent by Yates to Vice Chair David Prince, the judge and attorney members of the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline, and the Commission’s Executive Director Christopher Gregory;
2. A copy of ARC Yates’s February 6, 2023, letter and the Commission’s response authored by appointed Special Assistant Attorney General (SAAG) David Kaplan;
3. Communications between any Justice of the Colorado Supreme Court, ARC Jessica Yates, Andrew Rottman, and/or SCAO employees (including lobbyist Terry Scanlon) and the Colorado Legislature regarding ARC Yates’s February 6, 2023, and/or Kaplan’s response.
4. Correspondence also dated February 6, 2023, from the Commission to Chief Justice Boatright requesting further discovery relating to Matter of Coats, 2023 CO 44; and
5. Records of any internal communications (amongst the Justices of the Colorado Supreme Court, Andrew Rottman, SCAO employees, OARC employees, members of the Legal Regulation Committee, and/or members of the Advisory Committee on the Practice of Law) and any communications with the Colorado Legislature responding to Yates’s February 6, 2023 letter, SAAG Kaplan’s response (which included allegations that Yates had violated criminal prohibitions in § 8-2.5-101(1.5), C.R.S.), or contemporaneous press reporting about either/both of the letters.

This request is made according to PAIRR2 with the 3-business day timeframe for an initial response provided through PAIRR2 § 4. To the extent that you, as custodian of records, characterize any of the records requested as “court records” rather than “administrative records,” any such records should be processed / produced according to PAIRR1 and CJD 05-01. Likewise, if you are not the custodian of any of these records, this request should be re-directed / copied to the appropriate person. PAIRR2 § 1(c).

Signature:

Date: 9/9/24

Date: 9/9/24

PA.I.R.R.2 Request # 15

Please provide all “writings” as defined under § 24-72-202(7), C.R.S. and relevant to the following:

1. All communications between the Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel (OARC) and the 4th Judicial District Attorney’s Office related to the prosecution of Former Senate Judiciary Chair Pete Lee;
2. Any communications to/from any of the Justices of the Colorado Supreme Court that verify their awareness of the prosecution of Senator Lee (including OARC’s communications with the 4th Judicial District Attorney’s Office) and/or the ultimate dismissal of the charges against Senator Lee due to OARC having provided false information to law enforcement; and
3. Records from Senator Lee’s criminal case that were communicated to OARC and/or the Justices of the Colorado Supreme Court including but not limited to Senator Lee’s motion to dismiss the indictment (with accompanying affidavits from OARC) and 4th Judicial District Court Judge Eric Bentley’s ultimate order granting the motion for dismissal.

This request is made according to PAIRR2 with the 3-business day timeframe for an initial response provided through PAIRR2 § 4. To the extent that you, as custodian of records, characterize any of the records requested as “court records” rather than “administrative records,” any such records should be processed / produced according to PAIRR1 and CJD 05-01. Likewise, if you are not the custodian of any of these records, this request should be re-directed / copied to the appropriate person. PAIRR2 § 1(c).

Signature:

Date: 9/9/24

Date: 9/9/24

P.A.I.R.R.2 Request # 16

Please provide all “writings” as defined under § 24-72-202(7), C.R.S. and relevant to the following:

1. The Denver Gazette reported on then-Chair of the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline, Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa recusing herself from proceedings in Matter of Coats, 2023 CO 44 because of her limited representation of someone involved in the Masias Controversy. David Migoya, Bill to Fund Independent Judicial Discipline Commission Heads to Polis, Chairwoman Recuses from Investigation, DENVER GAZETTE, May 11, 2022. With this context, provide communications (occurring approximately during the Fall of 2022) between any of the Justices of the Colorado Supreme Court, Andrew Rottman, SCAO employees, and/or attorneys within the Colorado Attorney General’s Office with the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline regarding the reported basis for seeking then-Commission Chair Elizabeth Espinosa Krupa’s recusal from proceedings in Matter of Coats, 2023 CO 44; and
2. Internal and/or external communications that include any Justices of the Colorado Supreme Court, Andrew Rottman, SCAO employees, and/or the Colorado Attorney General’s Office regarding the Court’s adoption of Colo. RJD 3.5 on October 12, 2021 (Rule Change 2021-20), including any consultation that occurred/did not occur with the Commission on Judicial Discipline.

This request is made according to PAIRR2 with the 3-business day timeframe for an initial response provided through PAIRR2 § 4. To the extent that you, as custodian of records, characterize any of the records requested as “court records” rather than “administrative records,” any such records should be processed / produced according to PAIRR1 and CJD 05-01. Likewise, if you are not the custodian of any of these records, this request should be re-directed / copied to the appropriate person. PAIRR2 § 1(c).

Signature:

Date: 9/9/24

Date: 9/9/24

P.A.I.R.R.2 Request # 17

Please provide all “writings” as defined under § 24-72-202(7), C.R.S. and relevant to the following:

1. Email chains from February 4, 2021, February 8, 2021, and February 16, 2021, between (but which are not limited to) Chief Justice Brian Boatright, Assistant AG LeeAnn Morrill, Assistant Solicitor General Grant Sullivan, Steven Vasconcellos, Andrew Rottman, and/or Terri Morrison regarding contemporaneous public statements to be made by the Colorado Supreme Court. Drafts of the February 8, 2021, public statement include reference to the Justices of the Colorado Supreme Court / the Judicial Departments intentions to enter a sole-source investigation contract with former U.S. Attorney John F. Walsh and his law firm WilmerHale; and
2. Communications between the Justices of the Colorado Supreme Court, Counsel to the Chief Justice Andrew Rottman, attorneys within the Colorado Attorney General’s Office acting on the Justices’ behalf, and/or SCAO employees with employees / partners at WilmerHale regarding the sole source contract contemplated on February 8, 2021 and/or WilmerHale’s later bid in response to the Judicial Department’s RFP process for similar “outside” investigations through a multi-agency selection panel. A search for these communications should include searching for emails that include the email domain “wilmerhale.com.”

This request is made according to PAIRR2 with the 3-business day timeframe for an initial response provided through PAIRR2 § 4. To the extent that you, as custodian of records, characterize any of the records requested as “court records” rather than “administrative records,” any such records should be processed / produced according to PAIRR1 and CJD 05-01. Likewise, if you are not the custodian of any of these records, this request should be re-directed / copied to the appropriate person. PAIRR2 § 1(c).

Signature:

Date: 9/9/24

Date: 9/9/24

P.A.I.R.R.2 Request # 18

Please provide all “writings” as defined under § 24-72-202(7), C.R.S. and relevant to the following:

Records of communications and the drafting of communications (including but not limited to memoranda, emails, text messages, and internal/external correspondence) between the Justices of the Colorado Supreme Court, Counsel to the Chief Justice Andrew Rottman, employees of the State Court Administrator’s Office (SCAO) (including but not limited to SCAO legislative liaison Terry Scanlon) and/or employees of the Court’s Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel and with members and/or staff of the Colorado Legislature regarding House Concurrent Resolution 23-1001, House Bill 23-1019, and/or House Bill 23-1205.

This request is made according to PAIRR2 with the 3-business day timeframe for an initial response provided through PAIRR2 § 4. To the extent that you, as custodian of records, characterize any of the records requested as “court records” rather than “administrative records,” any such records should be processed / produced according to PAIRR1 and CJD 05-01. Likewise, if you are not the custodian of any of these records, this request should be re-directed / copied to the appropriate person. PAIRR2 § 1(c).

Signature:

Date: 9/9/24

Date: 9/9/24

P.A.I.R.R.2 Request # 19

Please provide all “writings” as defined under § 24-72-202(7), C.R.S. and relevant to the following:

1. Records of communications and the drafting of communications (including but not limited to memoranda, emails, text messages, and internal/external correspondence) between the Justices of the Colorado Supreme Court, Counsel to the Chief Justice Andrew Rottman, employees of the State Court Administrator’s Office (SCAO) (including but not limited to SCAO legislative liaison Terry Scanlon) and/or employees of the Court’s Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel and with members and/or staff of the Colorado Legislature regarding Senate Bill 22-201; and
2. Specifically, records within the scope of this overall request that have already been produced to the press as referenced in the following newspaper articles:
 - a. Shelly Bradbury, After Judicial Scandal, Colorado Supreme Court Justices Privately Sought to Delay Reform Bill: Members of High Court Publicly Proclaimed Support for Reform, but Privately Raised Objections with Lawmakers, DENVER POST, April 13, 2022; and
 - b. David Migoya, Justices Lobbying Against Judicial Discipline Bill, DENVER GAZETTE, April 14, 2022.

This request is made according to PAIRR2 with the 3-business day timeframe for an initial response provided through PAIRR2 § 4. To the extent that you, as custodian of records, characterize any of the records requested as “court records” rather than “administrative records,” any such records should be processed / produced according to PAIRR1 and CJD 05-01. Likewise, if you are not the custodian of any of these records, this request should be re-directed / copied to the appropriate person. PAIRR2 § 1(c).

Signature:

Date: 9/9/24

Date: 9/9/24

P.A.I.R.R.2 Request # 20

Please provide all “writings” as defined under § 24-72-202(7), C.R.S. and relevant to the following:

1. Copies of the requests for proposals (RFPs) issued by the Colorado Judicial Department for the two “outside” investigations referenced in Chief Justice Brian Boatright’s 2021 State of the Judiciary Address and a February 16, 2021 press release; and
2. Copies of the contracts ultimately awarded through the RFPs to RCT, Ltd. and Investigations Law Group, LLC, including any subsequent amendments made to the contracts.

This request is made according to PAIRR2 with the 3-business day timeframe for an initial response provided through PAIRR2 § 4. To the extent that you, as custodian of records, characterize any of the records requested as “court records” rather than “administrative records,” any such records should be processed / produced according to PAIRR1 and CJD 05-01. Likewise, if you are not the custodian of any of these records, this request should be re-directed / copied to the appropriate person. PAIRR2 § 1(c).

Signature:

Date: 9/9/24

Date: 9/9/24

P.A.I.R.R.2 Request # 21

Please provide all “writings” as defined under § 24-72-202(7), C.R.S. and relevant to the following:

1. As referenced in his July 12, 2022 testimony to the Legislative Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline, attorney Robert Troyer described his investigation as including a review of deposition testimony compiled as part of the Colorado Office of the State Auditor’s (OSA) fraud hotline investigation. Please provide the transcripts of these depositions generated through the OSA’s fraud hotline investigation.

In submitting this request, I understand that the agency subject to a fraud hotline investigation controls the confidentiality of the OSA’s working papers under § 2-3-110.5, C.R.S. or can otherwise disclose records in the agency’s own possession. To the extent that the Judicial Department is asserting confidentiality as to these records, please provide a written explanation why Chief Justice Márquez (as the principal custodian of the Judicial Department’s records is not waiving confidentiality).

This request is made according to PAIRR2 with the 3-business day timeframe for an initial response provided through PAIRR2 § 4. To the extent that you, as custodian of records, characterize any of the records requested as “court records” rather than “administrative records,” any such records should be processed / produced according to PAIRR1 and CJD 05-01. Likewise, if you are not the custodian of any of these records, this request should be re-directed / copied to the appropriate person. PAIRR2 § 1(c).

Signature:

Date: 9/9/24

 020 240902 PAIRR2 Rqst RFPs & RCT-ILG Ks.pdf
201K

 019 240824 PAIRR2 Rqst Leg Comm SB 22-201.pdf
207K

Mailtrack Notification <notification@mailtrack.io>
Reply-To: terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us

Tue, Sep 10, 2024 at 9:19 AM

Hot conversation: terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us opened it many times in a short period or forwarded it.
View all 9 opens | turn off hot conversations

Mailtrack Notification <notification@mailtrack.io>
Reply-To: terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us

Thu, Sep 12, 2024 at 11:42 AM

Hot conversation: terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us opened it many times in a short period or forwarded it.
View all 26 opens | turn off hot conversations

morrison, terri <terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us>
To:

Thu, Sep 12, 2024 at 11:48 AM

Good morning ,

I am writing in response to the P.A.I.R.R. 2 requests you submitted to me on September 9, 2024. As all twenty requests were received on the same day they are being treated as one request pursuant to our practices and policy. Pursuant to P.A.I.R.R. 2, §4(c)(1) there is a charge for research and redaction, if necessary, of $30.00 per hour after the first hour. In addition, if the total number of responsive records exceeds 20 pages there is a charge of $.25 per page for all responsive records.

For this request, we will need up to an additional 7 business days to respond pursuant to P.A.I.R.R. 2, §4(b)(3)(C).

For the aspects of your request numbered 4, 10, 14, 16, 18, and 19 you have indicated you are seeking records involving correspondence/communications with or by the employees of the State Court Administrator's Office (SCAO). There are 354 employees at the SCAO. You will be charged for employees to research and determine if they have responsive records. This will increase the cost of the request. If you would like to amend your request to narrow the scope of employees you are seeking records from, please let me know.

For number 4 of the request at paragraph 1, it is unclear from the wording of the request if you are seeking communications responding to P.A.I.R.R. 2 requests or communications about P.A.I.R.R. 2 requests from the Denver Post or the Denver Gazette for the time periods stated. Please clarify this aspect of your request.

The following parts of the request have been forwarded:

- To Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel, numbers 14 and 15.
- To Sheri King, Clerk of Court for El Paso County, court records sought in paragraph 3 of number 15.

I anticipate that this request is going to take numerous hours to fulfill and thus the cost estimate is likely to be very high. If you would like to narrow any aspect of the request beyond what I have suggested regarding the 354 employees of SCAO, please let me know. Thank you.

Best Regards,

Terri

Terri S. Morrison (she/her)

Legal Counsel, Colorado Judicial Department

1300 Broadway Suite 1200 | Denver, CO 80203

(o) (720) 625-5817

From:

Sent: Monday, September 9, 2024 3:49 PM

To: morrison, terri <terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us>

Subject: [EXTERNAL] Records Request

EXTERNAL EMAIL: This email originated from outside of the Judicial Department. Do not click links or open attachments unless you recognize the sender and know the content is safe.

[Quoted text hidden]

Thu, Sep 12, 2024 at 3:57 PM

To: "morrison, terri" <terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us>

Good afternoon Ms. Morrison,

Thank you for your response to my P.A.I.R.R. 2 requests (#s 2-21). As you are aware, P.A.I.R.R. 2 requires the custodian(s) of records within the Colorado Judicial Department to perform their duties “without unreasonable delay or unreasonable cost,” particularly when a request relates to a specific administrative record. An “administrative record” is defined as “a record maintained for the purpose of managing the business or performing the duties of the Judicial Branch that is not defined as a court record in P.A.I.R.R. 1 and Chief Justice Directive 05-01.” P.A.I.R.R. 2 § 1(a). In other words, records related to the function of the courts (other than actual court case records) are within the scope of a P.A.I.R.R. 2 request. With regards to the Judicial Department’s obligations to provide a reasonable response, P.A.I.R.R. 2 § 2 states:

(a) All Judicial Branch administrative records shall be available for inspection by any person at reasonable times, except as provided in this rule or as otherwise provided by federal statute or regulation, state statute, court rule, or court order.

* * *

(b) The custodian must take reasonable measures to locate any specific administrative record sought and to ensure public access to the administrative record without unreasonable delay or unreasonable cost.

Nowhere in P.A.I.R.R. 2 is the custodian of records authorized to combine multiple separate, stand-alone records requests in order to obstruct the production of reasonably specific records through excessive estimates of production costs. The records requests that I have submitted are separated so that you can respond immediately to those requests that ask for specific documents or otherwise easily identifiable groups of documents. To the extent that some individual requests ask for a broader range of documents or scope of production, cost estimates should be provided specific to each request. I will, then, be able to decide which of these requests I would like to pursue and, if any, of the requests might be held in abeyance. P.A.I.R.R. 2 is not intended to make requesting the Judicial Department's administrative records an all or nothing proposition. In this context, I respectfully request that you respond to my requests separately with the immediate production of specifically identified documents and by accounting for cost estimates to produce larger groupings of documents according to the respective request number.

Your email references the Judicial Department's "practices and policy" as the basis for your aggregation of my requests but does not cite or provide such a written policy. If a written policy exists, please provide it.

To the extent that you believe that responding to these requests requires each SCAO employee to personally search their email accounts / records and that you will be aggregating the time spent for the purposes of your cost estimates, please provide a listing of all 354 SCAO employees, their positions, and their dates of service. I am happy to collaborate with you on ways of potentially narrowing specific requests to only those employees who likely possess relevant records.

You have asked for clarification as to my Request #4. As written, Request # 4 states, in relevant parts:

1. Communications including SCAO employees, Counsel to the Chief Justice Andrew Rottman, and/or the Justices of the Colorado Supreme Court with regard to PAIRR2 requests received from either The Denver Post or The Denver Gazette in December 2020-February 2021;
2. Communications including SCAO employees, Counsel to the Chief Justice Andrew Rottman, and/or the Justices of the Colorado Supreme Court reacting to former State Court Administrator Christopher Ryan providing interviews to The Denver Post during the same time period[.]

Put more plainly, through these elements, Request #4 is asking for 1) the Judicial Department's internal correspondence discussing/deciding how to respond to the media's P.A.I.R.R. 2 requests regarding the Masias Matter (including when the media presumably began requesting access to the Masias Memo) and 2) the internal communications that predicated the Judicial Department sending former State Court Administrator Christopher Ryan a cease and desist letter after persons involved learned that Ryan had provided interviews to The Denver Post. The scope of Request #4 likely includes PAIRR 2 requests (if related to the Masias Matter) and the ultimate responses provided by the Department (including any discussion about cost estimates). But, the scope is not necessarily limited to that correspondence. To your question, Request #4 should be interpreted to include both directly responsive communications and communications commenting on or "about" the P.A.I.R.R. 2 requests (as any requests/discussions were relevant to the Masias Matter). I am not seeking communications as to P.A.I.R.R. 2 requests unrelated to the Masias Matter (i.e. other high-profile criminal or civil cases, contemporaneous Covid-19 issues, etc.).

I appreciate your cooperation in responding to my P.A.I.R.R. 2 requests and, as now requested, to present distinct cost estimates so that we can move forward with this process. If I can provide further clarification or (with the list that you will provide) help narrow the scope of SCAO employees who may possess relevant records, please do not hesitate to let me know how we can achieve constructive solutions. Please let me know, however, if there are any impediments to you immediately producing those records that are specifically and distinctly identified in my requests.

Sincerely,

[Quoted text hidden]

Mailtrack Notification <notification@mailtrack.io>
Reply-To: terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us

Fri, Sep 13, 2024 at 2:54 PM

Hot conversation: terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us opened it many times in a short period or forwarded it.
View all 63 opens | turn off hot conversations

Mailtrack Notification <notification@mailtrack.io>

Sun, Sep 15, 2024 at 9:06 AM

Reply-To: terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us

Hot conversation: terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us opened it many times in a short period or forwarded it.
View all 73 opens | turn off hot conversations

Mailtrack Notification <notification@mailtrack.io>
Reply-To: terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us

Wed, Sep 18, 2024 at 10:19 AM

Hot conversation: terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us opened it many times in a short period or forwarded it.
View all 83 opens | turn off hot conversations

morrison, terri <terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us>
To:

Wed, Sep 18, 2024 at 11:24 AM

Good morning ,

Under PAIRR2, § 2(a), the custodian of any administrative record is authorized to “make policies governing the inspection of administrative records that are reasonably necessary to ... prevent unnecessary interference with the regular discharge of the duties of the custodian or the custodian’s office.” As explained in my preliminary response, all twenty of your requests that were received on the same day are being treated as one request pursuant to our practice and policy.

The policy about treating seriatim requests as a single request has not been reduced to writing and PAIRR2, § 2(a) does not impose any such requirement. Rather, all that is required is that the policy be “reasonably necessary ... to prevent unnecessary interference with the regular discharge of the duties of the custodian or the custodian’s office.” As you know, most of your seriatim requests seek multiple records that are responsive to broad search parameters. Just to search for and retrieve the universe of records that may be responsive to such requests requires searches to be performed by multiple individuals (sometimes hundreds) of voluminous records (sometimes thousands), which is laborious work that greatly interferes with the regular discharge of the duties of the custodian and the custodian’s office. As a result, it is “reasonably necessary” for your seriatim requests to be treated as a single request.

The custodians continue to research and retrieve records for the completion of the estimate for this request. To date, the custodians have spent 39 hours on the request. From this work so far, we estimate that it will take an additional 197 hours to complete research, retrieval, and redaction if necessary. With no charge for the first hour, the cost estimate so far (with work continuing) at $30.00 per hour is $7,050. This is only a preliminary estimate and the final estimate may be more or less than the final cost for completion on the request.

In connection with aspects of your request numbered 4, 10, 14, 16, 18, and 19, I have attached a list showing the 349 SCAO employees as of August’s payroll. The five other employees included in the 354-count started in September. The column indicating “Judicial employment date” represents the employee’s time with the Department not necessarily time with SCAO. If based on this information, you would like to narrow the scope of these aspects of the request, please let me know

Finally, I also forwarded #19 of the request to the Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel.

Best,

Terri S. Morrison (she/her)

Legal Counsel Colorado Judicial Department

State Court Administrator's Office

O: 720-625-5817

Cell: 303-522-7425

From:

Sent: Thursday, September 12, 2024 3:58 PM

To: morrison, terri <terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us>

Subject: [EXTERNAL] Re: [EXTERNAL] Records Request

EXTERNAL EMAIL: This email originated from outside of the Judicial Department. Do not click links or open attachments unless you recognize the sender and know the content is safe.

Good afternoon Ms. Morrison,

Thank you for your response to my P.A.I.R.R. 2 requests (#s 2-21). As you are aware, P.A.I.R.R. 2 requires the custodian(s) of records within the Colorado Judicial Department to perform their duties “without unreasonable delay or unreasonable cost,” particularly when a request relates to a specific administrative record. An “administrative record” is defined as “a record maintained for the purpose of managing the business or performing the duties of the Judicial Branch that is not defined as a court record in P.A.I.R.R. 1 and Chief Justice Directive 05-01.” P.A.I.R.R. 2 § 1(a). In other words, records related to the function of the courts (other than actual court case records) are within the scope of a P.A.I.R.R. 2 request. With regards to the Judicial Department’s obligations to provide a reasonable response, P.A.I.R.R. 2 § 2 states:

(a) All Judicial Branch administrative records shall be available for inspection by any person at reasonable times, except as provided in this rule or as otherwise provided by federal statute or regulation, state statute, court rule, or court order.

* * *

(b) The custodian must take reasonable measures to locate any specific administrative record sought and to ensure public access to the administrative record without unreasonable delay or unreasonable cost.

Nowhere in P.A.I.R.R. 2 is the custodian of records authorized to combine multiple separate, stand-alone records requests in order to obstruct the production of reasonably specific records through excessive estimates of production costs. The records requests that I have submitted are separated so that you can respond immediately to those requests that ask for specific documents or otherwise easily identifiable groups of documents. To the extent that some individual requests ask for a broader range of documents or scope of production, cost estimates should be provided specific to each request. I will, then, be able to decide which of these requests I would like to pursue and, if any, of the requests might be held in abeyance. P.A.I.R.R. 2 is not intended to make requesting the Judicial Department's administrative records an all or nothing proposition. In this context, I respectfully request that you respond to my requests separately with the immediate production of specifically identified documents and by accounting for cost estimates to produce larger groupings of documents according to the respective request number.

Your email references the Judicial Department's "practices and policy" as the basis for your aggregation of my requests but does not cite or provide such a written policy. If a written policy exists, please provide it.

To the extent that you believe that responding to these requests requires each SCAO employee to personally search their email accounts / records and that you will be aggregating the time spent for the purposes of your cost estimates, please provide a listing of all 354 SCAO employees, their positions, and their dates of service. I am happy to collaborate with you on ways of potentially narrowing specific requests to only those employees who likely possess relevant records.

You have asked for clarification as to my Request #4. As written, Request # 4 states, in relevant parts:

1. Communications including SCAO employees, Counsel to the Chief Justice Andrew Rottman, and/or the Justices of the Colorado Supreme Court with regard to PAIRR2 requests received from either The Denver Post or The Denver Gazette in December 2020-February 2021;
2. Communications including SCAO employees, Counsel to the Chief Justice Andrew Rottman, and/or the Justices of the Colorado Supreme Court reacting to former State Court Administrator Christopher Ryan providing interviews to The Denver Post during the same time period[.]

[Quoted text hidden]

[Quoted text hidden]

[Quoted text hidden]

 Copy of 08.2024 JUDPRFRM All SCAO Employees.xlsx
75K

Thu, Sep 19, 2024 at 10:10 AM

To: "Morrison, Terri" <terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us>

Dear Ms. Morrison,

I respectfully disagree that PAIRR2 § 2(a) gives the custodian of records license to combine separate, reasonably specific stand-alone records requests for the purposes of creating cost barriers and indefinitely delaying the production of specifically requested records. As quoted in my prior email, the scope of the custodian's discretion is limited by PAIRR2 § 2(b). Again, § 2(b) provides:

The custodian must take reasonable measures to locate any specific administrative record sought and to ensure public access to the administrative record without unreasonable delay or unreasonable cost.

By refusing to break your cost estimate down according to the individual requests, you are not taking “reasonable measures” to locate “specific administrative record(s)” and to ensure access “without unreasonable delay or unreasonable cost.” One of the remedies available to address actions by a custodian of records that constitute an abuse of discretion is to seek judicial review under PAIRR2 § 5(a) with the possibility of an award of costs and reasonable fees to the prevailing party. Asking you to process these requests individually and to provide cost estimates broken down according to each the specific request seems reasonable as a means of facilitating the immediate production of specific administrative records (as contemplated by PAIRR2 § 2(b)) and in reducing the overall time and expense needed to respond. Again, a break down of the cost estimates according to each request will allow me to prioritize which requests / parts of requests should be addressed first.

The overall time estimate that you have provided and the time you describe as having already been expended are difficult to understand without an itemized breakdown. The estimate of 234 hours also raises significant concerns about how long it will take for you to produce any records responsive to my separate, specific, and stand-alone requests. Please provide an itemization of your estimate that explains specifically who all has expended 39 hours (and how much time has been applied individually) responding to these requests since their submission, who is expected to conduct the additional record processing (again broken down by person), and an inventory of the documents to be produced (i.e. categories, sources, total pages per document, total number of documents in categories, etc.). Ultimately, however, the reasonable solution would be for you to break the estimated costs of production down by Request #s and by parts of those requests if certain documents are easily retrievable and can be produced immediately while identifying other parts of the requests that may require additional processing, review, etc. As presented, your estimate of $7,050 is grossly unreasonable and appears to be a constructive denial of access to the requested records in violation of PAIRR2 §§ 2(b), 5(a). It deserves emphasis that all the relevant fees under CJD 06-01 (document review/processing and per page costs) are discretionary in that the custodian “may” charge the fees. You have the ability to waive these fees and to prioritize your response to any of my specific, stand-alone requests (including their sub-parts). It remains unclear why you are unable to immediately produce records responsive to those parts of my requests that ask for specific documents or well-defined groups of documents.

I appreciate you providing a list of current SCAO employees. In order to provide a meaningful opportunity to refine the focus of parts of my PAIRR2 requests, however, it is important to have a list of SCAO employees who may have been working at any time from 2019-Present. Is it possible for you to provide an updated list that includes the dates of service and job titles for SCAO employees who were present during times relevant to my requests, but who have since left the Department?

It will be to our mutual benefit if we can approach these requests rationally and in a way that allows for meaningful choices as to how resources will be expended. Again, I ask you to please reconsider your position regarding the amalgamation of my requests and your arbitrary imposition of an accompanying significant/unreasonable tollgate ($7,050) before you will produce of any of the requested records. I thank you in advance for your willingness to cooperate and explore constructive solutions as you process my requests.

Sincerely,

[Quoted text hidden]

Mailtrack Notification <notification@mailtrack.io>
Reply-To: terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us

Thu, Sep 19, 2024 at 11:29 AM

Hot conversation: morrison, terri opened it many times in a short period or forwarded it. View all 8 opens | turn off hot conversations

morrison, terri <terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us>

Fri, Sep 27, 2024 at 8:01 AM

Good morning,

The standard set by PAIRR2, § 2(b) for what type of records a custodian must take “reasonable measures to locate ... without unreasonable delay or unreasonable cost” is not “reasonably specific” as stated in your below email, but rather is “any specific administrative record,” which means a single record that is readily located because the request specifically identifies its contents. For example, a request for a copy of an email from Terri Morrison to [redacted] dated September 27, 2024, regarding the latter’s PAIRR 2 records requests. In contrast, most of the 20 requests that you submitted on September 9th contain several subparts that seek multiple records that are responsive to broad search parameters and therefore require a search of voluminous records to locate. Cf. PAIRR2, § 4(b)(3) (authorizing the custodian to take an additional 7 business days to respond to “[a] broadly stated request ... that encompasses all or substantially all of a large category of records and is without sufficient specificity to allow custodian reasonably to prepare or gather the records within the three-day period” or “[t]he request involves such a large volume of records that the custodian cannot reasonably prepare or gather the records within the three-day period without substantially interfering with the custodian’s obligations to perform other responsibilities.”). And even if a few subparts across your 20 requests sought a single, specifically identified record, any work to-date spent locating potentially responsive records and preparing a cost estimate has not been broken down by each request, much less by each subpart of each request.

Rather, as I informed you on September 12th, all 20 of your seriatim requests are being treated as one request pursuant to our practices and policy. That position stands and therefore only one cost estimate will be provided for this combined request. With respect to the cost estimate, please note that the custodians have continued to work on searching for and locating potentially responsive records, so here is an updated cost estimate that supersedes the one I sent you on September 18th. To date, the custodians have spent 114 hours on the request. From this work so far, we estimate that it will take an additional 281 hours to complete the review, research, and any required redaction. With no charge for the first estimated hour for research and any redaction, the updated cost estimate at $30.00 per hour is $11,820.00. If you approve the cost estimate and the production of more than 20 pages of documents is required to fulfill this request, you will also be charged $.25 per page ($.50 if double-sided) for all documents photocopied, scanned, or produced. This is only an estimate and the final, actual cost to complete work on this combined request may be more or less than this estimate. Payment of the actual cost must be received before delivery of any responsive record(s) that are required to be produced under PAIRR 2.

Please note that you may submit a new PAIRR 2 request that seeks only the production of one or more specifically identified administrative record(s). If you elect to do so, then I will evaluate whether the new request is sufficiently specific and notify you whether the custodian(s) will be able to locate and produce the specifically identified record(s) within 3 business days and whether there is any cost estimate to fulfill the new request.

Regarding your request to have additional information about SCAO employees wherein specifically you stated: “it is important to have a list of SCAO employees who may have been working at any time from 2019-Present. Is it possible for you to provide an updated list that includes the dates of service and job titles for SCAO employees who were present during times relevant to my requests, but who have since left the Department?” I have been working on finding an answer to this question and have learned that to create a report of the people who have left SCAO from the HR data warehouse that is the state’s payroll system would require a year-by-year analysis, and any report would not provide the title of the person as does the list I provided you from the active payroll list. It would only show the year they left. In addition, for the most part when an employee leaves, their records with the department, including email are deactivated and no longer available after 90 days. Therefore, the list that was easily produced is the only data we can provide and as I indicated that data only reflects the employee’s time with the Judicial Department, not necessarily just SCAO.

[Quoted text hidden]

Mailtrack Notification <notification@mailtrack.io>
Reply-To: terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us

Fri, Sep 27, 2024 at 8:41 AM

Hot conversation: morrison, terri opened it many times in a short period or forwarded it. View all 46 opens | turn off hot conversations

Mon, Sep 30, 2024 at 10:18 AM

To: "morrison, terri" <terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us>

Dear Ms. Morrison,

I received your September 27, 2024 email in which you state your position that the expectations of reasonableness contained in PAIRR2 (2)(b) only relate to requests for specific documents (rather than specific groupings of documents). In your email you further adjust the estimate provided by the Judicial Department to now require payment of an $11,820.00 deposit before you will produce any of the requested records. Again, it is unclear why you cannot break this estimate down according to the individual PAIRR2 requests that I have submitted or to discuss how specifically identified documents can be produced immediately without unreasonable cost barriers.

Your email further provides me with the option of submitting an additional / separate PAIRR2 request for specific documents. As I understand your suggestion, such a request will be addressed separately from my previous requests and that you will provide a stand-alone cost estimate for this additional / new request.

Accordingly, I have attached a new request that seeks additional public records while also identifying certain documents specifically by date, recipients, etc. Please provide a stand-alone cost estimate for production of records responsive to the attached PAIRR2 request. Again, to the extent that documents/records that I have identified with specificity can be immediately located and produced, please do so without further delay.

Sincerely,

[Quoted text hidden]

 022 PAIRR2 Rqst CSC Weekly Conference Recds.docx
31K

Mailtrack Notification <notification@mailtrack.io>
Reply-To: terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us

Mon, Sep 30, 2024 at 2:35 PM

Hot conversation: morrison, terri opened it many times in a short period or forwarded it. View all 5 opens | turn off hot conversations

morrison, terri <terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us>

Thu, Oct 3, 2024 at 4:59 PM

We will need an additional 7 business days pursuant to P.A.I.R.R. 2, §4(b)(3)(C) for your latest request submitted September 30, 2024.

[Quoted text hidden]

P.A.I.R.R.2 Request # 22

Please provide all “writings” as defined under § 24-72-202(7), C.R.S. and relevant to the following:

1. Documentation of the reasons for then-State Court Administrator Jerry Marroney’s retirement announced on or about February 23, 2017 and effective June 30, 2017;
2. From October 2018 through August 2019, communications between the Justices of the Colorado Supreme Court, Counsel to the Chief Justice Andrew Rottman, employees of the State Court Administrator’s Office, and/or other involved persons (including employees of the Attorney General’s Office) that relate to the Justices’ contemporaneous awareness of negotiations, approval, and cancellation of the Masias Contract (executed April 11, 2019 and re-ratified June 3, 2019);
3. More specifically, an October 15, 2018 email chain copied to Chief Justice Nathan B. Coats and Rottman that informed the OSA of the results of the David Powell and Tracy Griffith (internal SCAO audit) investigations and the status of disciplinary actions being taken against Mindy Masias. This email chain is referenced in Matter of Coats, 2023 CO 44, ¶ 4(7);
4. An April 4, 2019 email chain between State Court Administrator Christopher Ryan and SCAO Legal Counsel Terri Morrison confirming (through Andrew Rottman) that Ryan had authority from Chief Justice Coats and the Court to proceed with the execution of the Masias Contract;
5. An April 2019 email chain between Chief Justice Coats and Justice Melissa Hart discussing circumstances where Mindy Masias had applied to become the Utah State Court Administrator. These circumstances are generally referenced in the Colorado Supreme Court’s February 4, 2021 public statement commenting on the Masias Contract;
6. Records of a meeting between SCAO procurement officer John Kane and the Justices on or about July 17, 2019, during which meeting Kane discussed the RFP process that occurred before a sole-source determination was made to allow the Masias Contract. The meeting with Kane and an extended special conference of the Justices was described in Chief Justice Coats’s testimony to the Legislative Joint Budget Committee on December 13, 2019;
7. A copy of Ryan’s March 25, 2019 approval of the sole-source determination allowing the Masias Contract and any communications/documentation related to that sole-source determination;
8. Masias’s announcement of her resignation, emailed with the Court’s authorization to all judges and employees of the Judicial Department in April 2019 (referenced in Coats, ¶ 4(19)). This request includes documentation of the Court’s authorization for and awareness of Masias’s system-wide email;
9. Records of communications between Chief Justice Coats, any of the other Justices, SCAO employees, and/or Rottman and Attorney General Phil Weiser and/or other employees of the Attorney General’s Office relating to the anonymous fraud hotline report submitted April 15, 2019, consideration of the Masias Contract, and/or the existence of the Masias Memo. This request specifically includes email communications on July 19, 2019 between 1st Assistant Attorney General LeeAnn Morrill and Rottman acknowledging possession of the Masias Memo and its materiality to the Office of the State Auditor’s then-pending fraud hotline investigation;

10. As disclosed in the April 15, 2019 anonymous fraud hotline report, records of communications between Chief Justice Coats, any of the other Justices, and/or Rottman and Attorney General Phil Weiser and/or other employees of the Attorney General's Office relating to the employment separation agreement negotiated with then-Ralph L. Carr Judicial Center Building Manager Jane Hood;
11. Records of the Justices' meeting(s) on or about July 17, 2019 with Ryan during which meeting(s) Ryan offered his resignation or was asked to resign;
12. Records of communications / meeting(s) with SCAO HR Director Eric Brown on or about July 17, 2019 that resulted in Brown's resignation;
13. Records of meetings and communications between one or more of the Justices, Rottman, Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel (OARC) employees, and/or SCAO employees and members/employees of the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline (CCJD) where the resourcing of the CCJD (including the CCJD's administrative/investigative/legal resources, its housing in the Ralph L. Carr Judicial Center, and/or its security needs) were discussed;
14. Records of the Justices' weekly conferences (or other specially scheduled conferences) from January 2017 through the present as such records relate to the discussion of administrative matters relevant to former State Court Administrator Jerry Marroney's departure from the Judicial Department, Christopher Ryan's subsequent appointment as State Court Administrator, the Masias Contract, the Masias Memo, and the Justices' response to the Masias Controversy (including control over the OSA's fraud hotline investigation, the "independent" investigations commissioned by the Court, the appointment of Steven Vasconcellos as State Court Administrator, public statements made by the Court regarding the merits of the Masias Controversy, the Court's "Workplace Culture Initiative" / "Listening Tours", the Court's oversight of its OARC in relation to the Masias Controversy, and decisions to release or withhold information/records from the CCJD). These administrative matters include, but are not limited to:
 - a. the circumstances of and reasons for then-State Court Administrator Jerry Marroney's retirement, effective June 30, 2017;
 - b. the decision to appoint Christopher Ryan as the interim State Court Administrator and the subsequent decision to make that appointment permanent (rather than re-opening a second recruitment / hiring process);
 - c. the investigations into Masias's suspected financial misconduct and the contemporaneous reporting of information to the Office of the State Auditor (OSA),
 - d. disciplinary actions taken and the decision to terminate Masias,
 - e. contemplation of allowing Masias to continue working for the Judicial Department in a training role (as either an employee or as an independent contractor),
 - f. obligations to disclose information to the OSA as part of its single statewide audit, its 2020 performance audit of SCAO, and/or its requested fraud hotline investigation,
 - g. Chief Justice Coats's meeting(s) with FSD staff, including Myra Dukes and David Kribs, where concerns about Masias's suspected financial misconduct, tone at the top, and/or the 2018 single statewide audit / Colorado's Annual Comprehensive Financial Report were discussed,

- h. Chief Justice Coats and the SCAO's Division Heads' disclosure obligations when verifying the Judicial Department's internal controls as part of a management representation letter sent to the OSA in December 2018,
- i. obligations to disclose information to the CCJD under a 2010 Memorandum of Understanding, Canon Rules 2.15 and 2.16, and, more recently, §§ 13-5.3-105 and 13-5.3-106, C.R.S.,
- j. the authorization of an RFP for the Judicial Department's leadership education contract,
- k. the disciplinary action (termination) taken against SCAO Financial Services Director David Kribs,
- l. the settlement of Kribs' retaliation claims through a general waiver, non-disclosure agreement, and voluntary separation incentive,
- m. the authorization of Masias's separation agreement (with general waiver and non-disclosure provisions),
- n. the authorization of the sole-source determination allowing the Masias Contract,
- o. approval of the Masias Contract,
- p. discussion of the substance of the 2017 surreptitious recording of then-Chief Justice Nancy Rice (and possibly Andrew Rottman) by Mindy Masias,
- q. cancellation of the Masias Contract,
- r. discussion of and/or the request for SCA Ryan's resignation,
- s. discussion of and/or the request for SCAO HR Director Eric Brown's resignation,
- t. discussion of the decisions to appoint Steven Vasconcellos as the interim State Court Administrator and to, later, make the appointment permanent,
- u. discussion of reasons for, the substance of, and whether to collaborate with the CCJD on adoption of Colo. RJD 3.5 on October 12, 2021;
- v. discussion of the plan for the Court to commission "outside" or "independent" investigations of the Masias Controversy (including an originally contemplated sole-source contract with former U.S. Attorney John F. Walsh and his law firm WilmerHale) and to use public funds for such investigations,
- w. discussion of the Court's authorization / denial of funding for the CCJD's investigation / hiring of outside Special Counsel,
- x. discussion of resources provided to the CCJD through OARC,
- y. discussion of messaging / presentation of OARC to the Legislature as being "independent" from the Court (contrary to C.R.C.P. 242.5),
- z. discussion of / awareness of OARC providing false information to law enforcement with regards to the prosecution of Senate Judiciary Committee Chair Pete Lee and causing his resignation from the Legislative Interim Committee on Judicial Discipline in August 2022,
- aa. discussion of / awareness of Attorney Regulation Counsel Jessica Yates sending a February 6, 2023 disciplinary letter to CCJD Vice-Chair David Prince and the attorney / judge members of the CCJD threatening them with attorney discipline for legislative testimony critical of OARC that was presented at the Joint Judiciary Committee's February 1, 2023 SMART Act Hearing (including the

- CCJD's later expressed position that Yates committed a misdemeanor criminal offense according to § 8-2.5-101(1.5), C.R.S.),
- bb. discussion of the handling and responses to the CCJD's requests for information and records related to Matter of Coats, 2023 CO 44, including records requests made by the CCJD on or about February 23, 2021, April 6, 2021, May 18, 2021, July 23, 2021, July 12, 2022, February 6, 2023 and the CCJD's issuance of subpoena(s) for Judicial Department records on or about January 5, 2022,
 - cc. discussion of Chief Justice Coats and State Court Administrator Vasconcellos's preparations for testimony to the Joint Budget Committee on December 13, 2019
 - dd. discussion of the findings and recommendations made in the OSA's 2020 performance audit and the Judicial Department's response,
 - ee. discussion regarding preparations for and the substance of Chief Justice Coats's, SCA Vasconcellos's, and the OSA's presentations to the Legislative Audit Committee on December 7, 2020,
 - ff. discussion of Chief Justice Coats's and SCA Vasconcellos's preparations for testimony to the Joint Budget Committee on December 17, 2020,
 - gg. discussion about the OSA's testimony at the Joint Judiciary Committee's January 25, 2021 SMART Act hearing,
 - hh. discussion of Chief Justice Boatright and SCA Vasconcellos's preparations for the Judicial Department's January 28, 2021 SMART Act hearing before the Joint Judiciary Committee,
 - ii. discussion of Chief Justice Boatright's preparations for his two State of the Judiciary addresses, the first on February 18, 2021 and the second on January 13, 2023,
 - jj. discussion of the Court's approval of public statements as to the merits of the Masias Controversy, including but not limited to public comments made on December 13, 2019, December 7, 2020, January 28, 2021, February 4, 2021, February 8, 2021, February 16, 2021, February 18, 2021, and January 13, 2023 as well as Chief Justice Boatright's commentaries on the OSA's Fraud Hotline Investigation Report, the RCT, Ltd. Report, and the ILG, LLC Report. The scope of this request specifically includes two email chains from February 4, 2021 and February 8, 2021 that discuss drafts of the respective public statements and which have been requested separately through P.A.I.R.R.2 Request #17,
 - kk. discussion of individual Justices' outreach efforts contemporaneous with the Court's February 2021 public comments, including an email sent by Justice Richard Gabriel to the Colorado Judicial Institute on February 4, 2021 at 11:51 a.m. in response to publication of an article in The Denver Post. A copy of the email chain should also be provided within the scope of this request,
 - ll. discussion of control of the OSA's fraud hotline investigation,
 - mm. discussion of disclosure of records to the OSA and any of the other investigations into the Masias Controversy,
 - nn. discussion of / coordination of / the substance of the Court's "Listening Tours" with Colorado Court of Appeals Judges,
 - oo. discussion of the Court's plan to use its "Workplace Culture Initiative" as a response to the Masias Controversy and in conjunction with the Court's "independent" investigations,

- pp. the approval of public funds and resources for the “Workplace Culture Initiative” and its “Listening Tours,”
- qq. discussion related to the promulgation and adoption of Colo. RJD 41,
- rr. discussion of the Court’s announced amendment of C.R.C.P. 227 through a letter to the CCJD dated November 17, 2022,
- ss. discussion of the Judicial Department’s cooperation / non-cooperation with efforts to create and stand up the Administrative Support for Independent Agencies (ASIA) Office established through SB 23-228,
- tt. discussion / awareness of Andrew Rottman’s efforts to intervene in Coats,
- uu. discussion of the Court’s continued appointment of judge members to the CCJD despite the pendency of the Masias Controversy,
- vv. any discussion of direct or indirect communications with the Governor’s Office regarding the appointment of attorney and citizen members to the CCJD,
- ww. any discussion of correspondence from the CCJD questioning the Court’s authority to commission its “independent” investigations or raising grounds for the Justices’ and the Court’s disqualification,
- xx. discussions of the Justices’ responses to this and other public records requests (under PAIRR2 or otherwise and including this series of requests) relating to the Masias Controversy,
- yy. discussions about any Justice’s contact with the media regarding issues related to the Masias Controversy, including responding to PAIRR2 requests and requests for comment,
- zz. discussions or impressions in reaction to the stipulation(s) and the final disciplinary opinion issued by the Special Tribunal in Coats;
- aaa. any messaging or planning by the Justices (including coordination with legislative liaison Terry Scanlon) to respond to the stipulation(s), opinion, and/or outcome in Coats;
- bbb. discussion regarding the nomination of individual Justices for honors and awards through outside legal interest groups, including but not limited to the Colorado Judicial Institute, the Colorado Bar Association, the Colorado Women’s Bar Association, the American Board of Trial Advocates, and the American Inns of Court,
- ccc. discussion of the Justices’ responses to and authorization for State Court Administrator Steven Vasconcellos to publicly comment on two articles and one op-ed published in The Denver Gazette on March 3, 2024 (which describe the suppression of allegations of retaliation within the Colorado Judicial Branch by Chief Justice Boatright with the assistance of the other Justices and other judges), and
- ddd. discussion of the reasons for the individual Justices’ refusals to waive confidentiality and allow public disclosure of communications with the CCJD as otherwise permitted according to Colo. RJD 6.5(2)(d).

The Justices’ administrative actions (including contracting decisions, personnel actions, the release of records to the public / to investigating entities, press releases/public statements, and decisions not to disqualify themselves from such matters) are outside the scope of the judicial deliberative privilege and judicial immunity. Forrester v. White, 484 U.S. 219, 228 (1988). Because these requested administrative records relate to the use of public funds, they should be recognized as public records within the scope of disclosure under PAIRR2. To the extent that the records requested (i.e. documentation of the Court's weekly and other conference discussions) do not exist, please explain why not.

This request is made according to PAIRR2 with the 3-business day timeframe for an initial response provided through PAIRR2 § 4. To the extent that you, as custodian of records, characterize any of the records requested as "court records" rather than "administrative records," any such records should be processed / produced according to PAIRR1 and CJD 05-01. Likewise, if you are not the custodian of any of these records, this request should be re-directed / copied to the appropriate person. PAIRR2 § 1(c).

From
Subject	Records Request
Message ID	<CAG9LdbYO-rc0q+2juyOF8Ax7djyN5eH6j2-qH=kgjzBTE+n9bA@mail.gmail.com>
Delivered on	9 Sep, 2024 at 5:49 PM
Delivered to	<terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us>

Tracking history

- 👁 Opened on 3 Oct, 2024 at 6:14 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 3 Oct, 2024 at 1:04 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 1 Oct, 2024 at 11:02 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 1 Oct, 2024 at 1:27 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 1 Oct, 2024 at 1:20 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 1 Oct, 2024 at 1:19 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 30 Sep, 2024 at 12:36 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 27 Sep, 2024 at 2:59 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 27 Sep, 2024 at 2:58 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 27 Sep, 2024 at 2:11 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 27 Sep, 2024 at 2:11 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 27 Sep, 2024 at 1:55 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 24 Sep, 2024 at 1:29 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 24 Sep, 2024 at 12:28 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 24 Sep, 2024 at 11:46 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 24 Sep, 2024 at 11:46 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 23 Sep, 2024 at 11:24 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 23 Sep, 2024 at 11:21 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 20 Sep, 2024 at 5:25 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us

2024 © Mailsuite, S.L.

C/ Córcega 301, At. 2.

08008 Barcelona - España

Email Delivery Certificate generated by Mailsuite

- 👁 Opened on 20 Sep, 2024 at 4:43 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 20 Sep, 2024 at 4:35 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 20 Sep, 2024 at 4:34 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 20 Sep, 2024 at 4:34 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 20 Sep, 2024 at 4:33 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 20 Sep, 2024 at 4:32 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 20 Sep, 2024 at 4:31 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 20 Sep, 2024 at 4:16 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 20 Sep, 2024 at 3:58 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 20 Sep, 2024 at 3:51 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 20 Sep, 2024 at 3:51 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 20 Sep, 2024 at 3:49 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 20 Sep, 2024 at 3:48 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 20 Sep, 2024 at 10:44 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 20 Sep, 2024 at 10:29 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 20 Sep, 2024 at 10:23 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 20 Sep, 2024 at 9:56 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 20 Sep, 2024 at 9:36 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 20 Sep, 2024 at 9:33 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 20 Sep, 2024 at 9:32 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 19 Sep, 2024 at 11:20 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 19 Sep, 2024 at 5:18 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 19 Sep, 2024 at 5:16 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 19 Sep, 2024 at 12:54 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 19 Sep, 2024 at 12:42 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 11:53 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us

2024 © Mailsuite, S.L.
C/ Córcega 301, At. 2.
08008 Barcelona - España

Email Delivery Certificate generated by Mailsuite

- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 10:18 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 8:07 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 8:02 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 5:55 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 4:26 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 4:25 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 4:25 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 4:25 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 4:13 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 3:52 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 3:48 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 3:20 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 3:20 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 3:11 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 3:11 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 3:11 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 2:47 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 2:47 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 2:47 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 2:42 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 2:27 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 2:17 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 2:15 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 2:12 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 2:08 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 2:05 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us

2024 © Mailsuite, S.L.

C/ Córcega 301, At. 2.

08008 Barcelona - España

Email Delivery Certificate generated by Mailsuite

- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 2:04 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 2:04 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 2:02 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 2:01 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 2:01 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 1:58 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 1:53 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 1:52 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 1:52 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 1:46 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 1:42 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 1:34 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 1:26 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 1:24 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 1:19 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 1:14 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 12:31 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 12:09 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 11:38 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 11:37 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 10:20 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 10:19 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 12:34 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 18 Sep, 2024 at 12:33 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 15 Sep, 2024 at 5:21 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 15 Sep, 2024 at 12:03 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us

2024 © Mailsuite, S.L.
C/ Córcega 301, At. 2.
08008 Barcelona - España

Email Delivery Certificate generated by Mailsuite

- 👁 Opened on 15 Sep, 2024 at 11:08 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 15 Sep, 2024 at 10:56 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 15 Sep, 2024 at 10:56 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 15 Sep, 2024 at 10:29 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 15 Sep, 2024 at 8:58 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 15 Sep, 2024 at 8:57 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 14 Sep, 2024 at 4:17 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 14 Sep, 2024 at 3:39 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 8:30 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 8:08 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 5:06 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 4:44 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 4:44 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 4:44 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 4:44 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 4:33 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 3:21 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 12:22 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 12:16 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 12:13 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 11:52 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 11:34 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 11:34 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 11:04 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 11:02 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 10:57 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us

Email Delivery Certificate generated by Mailsuite

- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 10:50 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 10:46 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 10:46 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 10:43 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 10:32 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 10:24 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 10:18 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 10:18 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 10:17 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 10:16 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 10:09 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 9:48 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 9:48 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 13 Sep, 2024 at 9:29 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 12 Sep, 2024 at 6:23 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 12 Sep, 2024 at 6:02 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 12 Sep, 2024 at 5:58 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 12 Sep, 2024 at 5:57 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 12 Sep, 2024 at 5:52 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 12 Sep, 2024 at 5:50 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 12 Sep, 2024 at 1:55 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 12 Sep, 2024 at 1:49 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 12 Sep, 2024 at 1:32 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 12 Sep, 2024 at 1:29 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 12 Sep, 2024 at 1:17 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 12 Sep, 2024 at 11:36 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us

2024 © Mailsuite, S.L.
C/ Córcega 301, At. 2.
08008 Barcelona - España

- 👁 Opened on 12 Sep, 2024 at 11:36 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 2:07 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 2:06 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 11 Sep, 2024 at 11:43 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 6:35 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 4:49 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 4:00 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 11:43 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 11:23 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 11:22 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 11:20 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 11:19 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 11:19 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 11:16 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 11:10 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 11:09 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 11:09 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 10:49 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 10:39 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 10:35 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 10 Sep, 2024 at 9:47 AM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us
- 👁 Opened on 9 Sep, 2024 at 6:15 PM by terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us

From
Subject	[EXTERNAL] Re: [EXTERNAL] Re: [EXTERNAL] Records Request
Message ID	<CAG9LdbZa-NQu8pdDUNUA=Ke-LMieoYNUw3OJ6XqXqFHRbeYdg@mail.gmail.com>
Delivered on	30 Sep, 2024 at 12:18 PM
Delivered to	morrison, terri <terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us>

Tracking history

- 👁 Opened on 4 Oct, 2024 at 8:15 AM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 4 Oct, 2024 at 8:01 AM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 4 Oct, 2024 at 6:57 AM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 4 Oct, 2024 at 6:32 AM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 4 Oct, 2024 at 6:31 AM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 4 Oct, 2024 at 2:34 AM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 3 Oct, 2024 at 11:21 PM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 3 Oct, 2024 at 11:07 PM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 3 Oct, 2024 at 7:24 PM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 3 Oct, 2024 at 7:20 PM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 3 Oct, 2024 at 7:20 PM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 3 Oct, 2024 at 7:05 PM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 3 Oct, 2024 at 6:59 PM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 3 Oct, 2024 at 6:59 PM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 3 Oct, 2024 at 6:53 PM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 3 Oct, 2024 at 6:52 PM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 2 Oct, 2024 at 3:50 PM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 1 Oct, 2024 at 12:20 PM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 1 Oct, 2024 at 12:20 PM by morrison, terri

- 👁 Opened on 1 Oct, 2024 at 12:20 PM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 1 Oct, 2024 at 12:19 PM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 1 Oct, 2024 at 12:11 PM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 1 Oct, 2024 at 11:35 AM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 1 Oct, 2024 at 11:29 AM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 1 Oct, 2024 at 9:56 AM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 1 Oct, 2024 at 9:42 AM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 30 Sep, 2024 at 4:24 PM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 30 Sep, 2024 at 3:19 PM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 30 Sep, 2024 at 3:04 PM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 30 Sep, 2024 at 2:41 PM by morrison, terri
- 👁 Opened on 30 Sep, 2024 at 2:34 PM by morrison, terri

2024 © Mailsuite, S.L.

C/ Córcega 301, At. 2.

08008 Barcelona - España

P.A.I.R.R. 2 Request 15

1 message

king, sheri <sheri.king@judicial.state.co.us>
To:

Thu, Sep 12, 2024 at 5:08 PM

Your request labeled "P.A.I.R.R. 2 Request 15" was forwarded to me as it pertains to paragraph 3 of the request and you seeking court records of "Senator Lee's motion to dismiss the indictment (with accompanying affidavits from OARC) and 4th Judicial District Court Judge Eric Bentley's ultimate order granting the motion for dismissal."

I'm writing to inform you that there are no court records responsive to this request.

Sheri King

Clerk of Court

El Paso County Combined Courts

4th Judicial District

270 S. Tejon Street, Colorado Springs, CO 80903

Colorado Judicial Branch

Judicial recognizes the need for digital document accessibility. If you experience inaccessible content and require assistance, please contact us by replying to this email or by submitting a request to 4thjdaccessibilityrequests@judicial.state.co.us.

Cost estimate

13 messages

April McMurrey <a.mcmurrey@csc.state.co.us>
To:
Cc: Nicolette Chavez <n.chavez@csc.state.co.us>

Wed, Sep 18, 2024 at 4:45 PM

The cost estimate for the records request you submitted is $370, including time to review and redact, per page cost and time already expended.

If you would like to proceed with the request, please make payment to our office tomorrow. I've cc'd Nicole Chavez here. She will be available to take payment between 8 am and 4 pm.

Sincerely,

April M. McMurrey
Deputy Regulation Counsel
Colorado Supreme Court
Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel
1300 Broadway, Suite 500
Denver, CO 80203
303-928-7866

Nicolette Chavez <n.chavez@csc.state.co.us>
To: April McMurrey <a.mcmurrey@csc.state.co.us> ,

Thu, Sep 19, 2024 at 8:28 AM

Good morning ,

My direct phone number is (303) 928-7872. Please give me a call when you are available, and I will take this payment in.

Thank you,

Nicolette Chavez

Colorado Supreme Court

Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel

Phone: (303) 928-7872

Fax: (303) 501 1144

[Quoted text hidden]

Thu, Sep 19, 2024 at 8:33 AM

To: April McMurrey <a.mcmurrey@csc.state.co.us>

Cc: Nicolette Chavez <n.chavez@csc.state.co.us>

Dear _____,

If you could break down this cost estimate further, I would greatly appreciate it.

In your email the other day, you provided a rough estimate that this PAIRR2 request would take approximately 3 hours to process. With the clarification that I provided regarding the press reporting in Request #19 (Item 2), the scope of the request was reduced (rather than expanded). According to CJD 06-01, a $30 per hour charge should apply (with the first hour provided without charge). Consistent with your estimate, this records request should cost approximately $60. Please provide a breakdown and explanation of the actual time required to respond to this request if there is now a significant upward departure from your previous estimate of 3 processing hours involved. Your updated cost estimate of $370 equates to approximately 12 hours of time required to process this request. This seems excessive and contrary to PAIRR2 Sec. 2 (b), which provides:

The custodian must take reasonable measures to locate any specific administrative record sought and to ensure public access to the administrative record without unreasonable delay or unreasonable cost.

CJD 06-01 further provides that the $0.25 per-page copy charge is discretionary. The per page charge is not intended to supplement the hourly processing charges under CJD 06-01. If this request had related to a case within the Colorado Courts E-Filing system, there would have been a $15 flat fee for 14-days access with full download capabilities. If OARC is now assessing a $0.25 per page charge, please explain if/why that charge will exceed $15, particularly with the documents being provided in an electronic format. It will also be helpful if you can specify the total number of pages that will be produced in response to this/these request(s).

Thank you for your assistance with this process. From your email, I understand that your Office will accept payment by check or credit card?

[Quoted text hidden]

April McMurrey <a.mcmurrey@csc.state.co.us>
To:
Cc: Nicolette Chavez <n.chavez@csc.state.co.us>

Thu, Sep 19, 2024 at 4:26 PM

Thank you for your patience hearing back. I was out of the office for a training today.

I think there is some confusion regarding our prior correspondence. Our final time estimate was not three hours; rather, three hours was how much time we had already spent at the time I wrote you. As of yesterday, we have spent additional time on this request.

I anticipate there are approximately 220 pages (this is an estimate) of pages to review and produce.

With that:

6 hours at $30 an hour already spent= $180

220 pages to review/redact=4.5 x $30=$135

220 pages at .25 per page=$55

Totally cost estimate of $370. Please note that in accordance with our policy, we track time. If the review takes longer, we will ask for additional payment; if the review takes less time, then we will refund that portion of the cost deposit.

Note that regarding fees, PAIRR2 provides:

(c) Fees.

(1) A custodian may impose a fee in response to a record request if the custodian has, before the date of receiving the request, either posted on the custodian's website or otherwise made publicly available a written policy that specifies the applicable conditions and fees for research, retrieval, redaction, copying, and transmission of a record. Assessment of fees shall be consistent with Chief Justice Directive 06-01. Where the fee for a certified copy or other copy, printout, or photograph of a record is specifically prescribed by federal statute or regulation, state statute, court rule, or court order, the specific fee shall apply.

(2) The custodian may notify the requestor that a copy of the record is available but will only be produced once the custodian either receives payment or makes arrangements for receiving payment for all costs associated with records research, retrieval, redaction, copying, and transmission and for all other fees lawfully imposed.

I'm including a link to our policy again:

<https://coloradosupremecourt.com/AboutUs/OpenRecordsPolicy.asp>

We do accept credit cards and checks.

As I mentioned in earlier correspondence, I'm happy to speak to you to discuss any questions, if you like.

Best,

April M. McMurrey
Deputy Regulation Counsel
Colorado Supreme Court
Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel
1300 Broadway, Suite 500
Denver, CO 80203
303-928-7866

From:

Sent: Thursday, September 19, 2024 8:33 AM

To: April McMurrey <a.mcmurrey@csc.state.co.us>

Cc: Nicolette Chavez <n.chavez@csc.state.co.us>

Subject: Re: Cost estimate

[Quoted text hidden]

Fri, Sep 20, 2024 at 8:55 AM

To: April McMurrey <a.mcmurrey@csc.state.co.us>

Cc: Nicolette Chavez <n.chavez@csc.state.co.us>

Dear Ms. McMurrey,

Thank you for your response and clarifications. With the information that the anticipated production will total 220 pages, I hope that you can provide a further breakdown of this estimate. I am not understanding how it took 6 hours to collect these records, and how it will take an additional 4.5 hours to review and redact. Also, your assessment of a per page charge does not respond to my question of why, as the custodian of records with discretion to waive fees, that cost is not being limited to $15 for the production of electronic files.

Please provide further itemization regarding the processing hours as well as a response to my question regarding your discretion to cap the per page costs. Under CJD 06-01, you also have discretion to limit and/or partially waive charges for research and processing. As I understand the intent of P.A.I.R.R.2, Sec. 2(b), the custodian of records is obligated to make reasonable efforts to minimize the time and expense involved in responding to these requests. The $370 cost estimate seems unreasonable/excessive for only 220 pages and is effectively a constructive denial of this request subject to judicial review under P.A.I.R.R.2, Sec. 5(a).

Sincerely,

[Quoted text hidden]

--

[Quoted text hidden]

April McMurrey <a.mcmurrey@csc.state.co.us>
To:

Mon, Sep 23, 2024 at 12:14 PM

Our estimate, as I detailed below, is consistent with our written policies and procedures that I previously sent, but include here again, as well as PAIRR2.

<https://coloradosupremecourt.com/AboutUs/OpenRecordsPolicy.asp>

The subparts of the request have compound questions. In our effort to be responsive, we reviewed numerous emails. The emails that are responsive (gathered for purposes of the cost estimate) have been converted to PDF format so that I may now review and redact in accordance with PAIRR2.

If you would like to modify the request to narrow the records you're requesting, that may lower the cost estimate. Also, as I previously mentioned, we also keep time when we review and redact. If the actual review and redaction time is less than the cost estimate anticipated, funds will be returned to you.

Please let me know how you would like to proceed.

Sincerely,

April M. McMurrey
Deputy Regulation Counsel
Colorado Supreme Court
Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel
1300 Broadway, Suite 500
Denver, CO 80203
303-928-7866

From:
Sent: Friday, September 20, 2024 8:56 AM
To: April McMurrey <a.mcmurrey@csc.state.co.us>
Cc: Nicolette Chavez <n.chavez@csc.state.co.us>
Subject: Re: Cost estimate

Dear Ms. McMurrey,

Thank you for your response and clarifications. With the information that the anticipated production will total 220 pages, I hope that you can provide a further breakdown of this estimate. I am not understanding how it took 6 hours to collect these records, and how it will take an additional 4.5 hours to review and redact. Also, your assessment of a per page charge does not respond to my question of why, as the custodian of records with discretion to waive fees, that cost is not being limited to $15 for the production of electronic files.

Please provide further itemization regarding the processing hours as well as a response to my question regarding your discretion to cap the per page costs. Under CJD 06-01, you also have discretion to limit and/or partially waive charges for research and processing. As I understand the intent of P.A.I.R.R.2, Sec. 2(b), the custodian of records is obligated to make reasonable efforts to minimize the time and expense involved in responding to these requests. The $370 cost estimate seems unreasonable/excessive for only 220 pages and is effectively a constructive denial of this request subject to judicial review under P.A.I.R.R.2, Sec. 5(a).

Sincerely,

[Redacted signature]

[Quoted text hidden]

To: April McMurrey <a.mcmurrey@csc.state.co.us>

Mon, Sep 23, 2024 at 3:02 PM

Dear Ms. McMurrey,

Thank you for your email. From what you describe, 220 pages of emails have been collected for further redaction. It is still unclear to me how the collection of this limited amount of records took 6 hours to complete or why it is anticipated to take another 4.5 hours to redact information (particularly when certain redactions such as email addresses and repeated names may be automated). You again note that you keep time when responding to P.A.I.R.R. 2 requests. But you have not provided the requested breakdown of the 6 hours described as already spent processing these records. As explained in my prior email, it will be helpful if you can respond to two basic questions:

1. What is the specific breakdown of time spent and expected to be spent to process this request (preferably in 0.1 hour increments with identification of the staff who have spent / will spend the time listed)?, and
2. Why, as custodian of records, are you not exercising your discretion to cap the per page charges for the production of electronic records (consistent with the fees charged to access court records through the E-File system)?

Again, without specificity and answers to the above questions, the fees estimated for this production appear unreasonable and excessive. The intent of P.A.I.R.R. 2 and CJD 06-01 is to make public records as accessible as possible through reasonable rates and production timelines. Without further context, the $370 estimate for only 220 electronic pages (which likely includes repeatedly duplicated email chains) appears unreasonable, excessive, and contrary to public interests.

[Quoted text hidden]

April McMurrey <a.mcmurrey@csc.state.co.us>
To:

Mon, Sep 23, 2024 at 4:58 PM

Given the breadth of the request (and its many subparts), our internal search yielded numerous emails that had to be reviewed to determine whether they were responsive. Thereafter, those emails were sorted by category and converted to PDF files. That work comprised the 6 hours already spent.

I have provided an estimate to review those pages and potentially redact information. Again, this is an estimate, done in accordance with our policy and PAIRR2.

As I noted earlier today, to decrease the estimate, you could narrow the request.

[Quoted text hidden]

Tue, Sep 24, 2024 at 9:14 AM

To: April McMurrey <a.mcmurrey@csc.state.co.us>

Dear Ms. McMurrey,

It is fair to ask you to provide a more specific breakdown of the 6 hours that you describe as having been applied to this request as well as explanation of why it is estimated to take 4.5 hours to apply redactions to only 220 pages. This request is especially reasonable given your explanation that your Office tracks time when responding to these requests. If you could provide this requested information, I would greatly appreciate it. The explanation will help inform my decision to either provide the deposit for processing this request or to seek judicial review as allowed under PAIRR2 Sec. 5(a).

Thank you in advance for responding to my questions and addressing my concerns.

[Quoted text hidden]

April McMurrey <a.mcmurrey@csc.state.co.us>

Tue, Sep 24, 2024 at 1:25 PM

To:

Among my many duties as a deputy for OARC, I have been in charge of OARC's responses to PAIRR2 requests since 2017, and have ample experience estimating redactions or withholdings needed pursuant to PAIRR2, as well as redactions or withholdings under any applicable Chief Justice Directive, protective order, statute or court rule. My per-page estimate is based on that extensive experience, and the fact that in any given records production, some redactions are needed for the public interest or required by PAIRR2. See PAIRR2 Section 3(b) and 3(c). As I have explained, you would receive any excess if it turns out that I over-estimated the amount of time, so it is not clear to me what exactly you would be asking a court to review at this point. With respect to the hours already spent, I previously explained that we reviewed voluminous emails and then converted the responsive emails to PDFs.

Please let me know if and when you are ready to make a deposit and we'll organize with Ms. Chavez to take payment.

Sincerely,

April M. McMurrey
Deputy Regulation Counsel
Colorado Supreme Court

Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel
1300 Broadway, Suite 500
Denver, CO 80203
303-928-7866

From: >
Sent: Tuesday, September 24, 2024 9:14 AM
To: April McMurrey <a.mcmurrey@csc.state.co.us>
Subject: Re: Cost estimate

Dear Ms. McMurrey,

It is fair to ask you to provide a more specific breakdown of the 6 hours that you describe as having been applied to this request as well as explanation of why it is estimated to take 4.5 hours to apply redactions to only 220 pages. This request is especially reasonable given your explanation that your Office tracks time when responding to these requests. If you could provide this requested information, I would greatly appreciate it. The explanation will help inform my decision to either provide the deposit for processing this request or to seek judicial review as allowed under PAIRR2 Sec. 5(a).

Thank you in advance for responding to my questions and addressing my concerns.

[Quoted text hidden]

[Quoted text hidden]

To: April McMurrey <a.mcmurrey@csc.state.co.us>

Wed, Sep 25, 2024 at 11:06 AM

Good morning Ms. McMurrey,

Please explain what is preventing you from providing an accounting and breakdown of the 6 hours that you describe as already having been spent to compile these records. That portion of your estimate for a deposit relates to fees your Office should have already recorded and broken down by person, task, and time.

I am sorry, but I am not understanding why you are unable to respond to this reasonable request for an explanation of your calculations. Again, thank you in advance for your cooperation in responding to my request.

Sincerely,

[Quoted text hidden]

April McMurrey <a.mcmurrey@csc.state.co.us>
To:

Wed, Sep 25, 2024 at 11:48 AM

As I have previously explained, multiple times now, the request had multiple subparts. We searched our email to discern whether we had responsive communications. That search yielded multiple emails that had to be reviewed. Those emails were then converted to PDFs. The time reviewing/analyzing the requests, searching for responsive documents and then pulling those and converting them is what comprised the 6 hours.

In my many years of doing this, I have never had so much back and forth regarding a cost estimate. I have tried my best to explain to you what comprises the estimate. You'll recall I also offered to speak by phone (multiple times) to discuss our process. You declined. At this point, I don't think it's productive to continue to debate the deposit, nor does PAIRR2 require that we do so.

If you wish to proceed with making the deposit, please let me know.

[Quoted text hidden]

To: April McMurrey <a.mcmurrey@csc.state.co.us>

Wed, Sep 25, 2024 at 3:50 PM

Ms. McMurrey,

As part of my contracts with other government agencies, i.e. the Office of Alternative Defense Counsel and the Office of Respondent Parents' Counsel, I am required to provide itemized estimates and to obtain pre-approval in order to be reimbursed for CORA, PAIRR2, CCJRA, medical records, and other document requests, when the estimated costs exceed nominal amounts. With this standard practice, I am not understanding why your Office is unable to provide a more detailed breakdown of persons, tasks, and time spent as to your estimate.

[Quoted text hidden]

From
Subject	records request
Message ID	<CAG9LdbY5_EG6kx0DdyUEgPixcgzEZPKgO453qOOof8_xLFsOEq@mail.gmail.com>
Delivered on	17 Sep, 2024 at 4:19 PM
Delivered to	April McMurrey <a.mcmurrey@csc.state.co.us>

Tracking history

- 👁 Opened on 17 Sep, 2024 at 7:48 PM by April McMurrey
- 👁 Opened on 17 Sep, 2024 at 7:07 PM by April McMurrey
- 👁 Opened on 17 Sep, 2024 at 6:51 PM by April McMurrey
- 👁 Opened on 17 Sep, 2024 at 6:03 PM by April McMurrey
- 👁 Opened on 17 Sep, 2024 at 6:02 PM by April McMurrey
- 👁 Opened on 17 Sep, 2024 at 6:02 PM by April McMurrey
- 👁 Opened on 17 Sep, 2024 at 5:56 PM by April McMurrey
- 👁 Opened on 17 Sep, 2024 at 5:55 PM by April McMurrey

Records Request

morrison, terri <terri.morrison@judicial.state.co.us>
To:

Tue, Oct 15, 2024 at 2:16 PM

Good afternoon,

I write in response to the "P.A.I.R.R.2 Request #22" that you submitted on September 30, 2024. At the outset, I would note that it seeks the production of all "writings" as defined by C.R.S. § 24-72-202(7), which is a provision of the Colorado Open Records Act, not PAIRR 2, and therefore does not apply to your request. I would also note that, contrary to the suggestion in my September 27th email that you submit a new PAIRR 2 request that seeks only the production of one or more specifically identified administrative record(s), the September 30th request did not seek only that type of record. Rather, the six-page, single-space request contains 70 discrete subparts many of which seek multiple administrative records that are responsive to broad search parameters and therefore require a search of voluminous records just to search for and preliminarily review records to identify those that are responsive.

As a separate but related matter, we have been corresponding since September 9th about the 20 PAIRR 2 requests that you submitted on that date, for which I prepared and provided you with a single cost estimate for the work needed to fulfill them as a combined request on September 18th, that was superseded by an amended cost estimate that I provided to you on September 27th. The amended cost estimate explained that between September 9th and 27th, I and the custodians of the administrative records sought by the combined request had spent 114 hours—which is the equivalent of nearly 3 work weeks—just searching for and locating the universe of records that may be responsive to that request and, based on the thousands of records in that universe, estimated that it will take an additional 281 hours to complete their review, research, and any required redaction. With no charge for the first estimated hour for research and any redaction and based on a rate of $30.00 per hour, the updated cost estimate to complete work on your September 9th combined request was $11,820.00.

As you know, you have not yet approved the updated cost estimate and agreed to pay the actual costs to fulfill work on your September 9th combined request, which as explained in my September 27th email may be higher or lower than estimated. Instead, you disputed the ability to treat the 20 PAIRR 2 requests that you submitted on September 9th as a combined request for which a single cost estimate may be issued and then submitted the September 30th request that indisputably seeks numerous records many of which are responsive to broad search parameters and therefore require multiple searches of voluminous records. We estimate that it will take at least 80 hours just to search for and preliminarily review records to identify those that are responsive to your September 30th request and, based on our work to-date on your September 9th combined request, it is likely that our search will generate thousands of records that then must be reviewed and evaluated for redaction or production in compliance with PAIRR 2 such that the cost estimate to fulfill all work on that request likewise will total thousands of dollars. In short, to fulfill your September 30th request will require time-consuming work by many individuals that in turn will substantially interfere with their obligations to perform other responsibilities.

Accordingly, we are invoking the provision of PAIRR 2, § 2(a) that authorizes the custodian of any administrative record to "make policies governing the inspection of administrative records that are reasonably necessary to ... prevent unnecessary interference with the regular discharge of the duties of the custodian or the custodian's office" to bifurcate the cost estimate for work on your September 30th request as follows: (1) To search for and preliminarily review records to identify those that are responsive to that request, we estimate that it will take 80 hours, with no charge for the first hour at a rate of $30.00 per hour for a total of $2,370, which you are required to pay in full before any further work is undertaken. Please note that if the actual number of hours to complete the search for and preliminary review of records is lower than estimated, you will be refunded the difference, and if it is higher than estimated, we will stop work and ask you to approve and pay the estimated difference to continue and complete the work; and (2) Once the search for and preliminary review of records has been completed, we will present you with a separate estimate for the cost to review, research, and make any required redaction of the administrative records that were identified as responsive. If you approve the second cost estimate and the production of more than 20 pages of documents is required to fulfill the September 30th request, then you will also be charged $.25 per page ($.50 if double-sided) for all documents photocopied, scanned, or produced. Payment of the actual cost must be received before delivery of any responsive record(s) that are required to be produced under PAIRR 2.

Please let me know within 7 business days from today whether you approve the first cost estimate for work on your September 30th request and, if so, please mail a check payable to The Colorado Judicial Department in the amount of $2,370 to the Colorado State Court Administrator's Office, 1300 Broadway, Suite 1200, Denver, CO 80203. You may address the envelope to my attention. If no such response is received, your September 30th request will be deemed abandoned and administratively closed.

Best,

Terri S. Morrison (she/her)

Legal Counsel Colorado Judicial Department

State Court Administrator's Office

O: 720-625-5817

[Quoted text hidden]

Appendix 31

Colo. Comm'n Jud. Discipline Posting for 2024 Executive Director Vacancy.

⚠ Job expired The job listing posted on Mar 28, 2024 is no longer available

Colorado Judicial Branch 3.7 ★

Courtesy Posting: Executive Director, Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline

Denver, CO

...

Courtesy Posting: Executive Director, Colorado Commission On Judicial Discipline

JOB CODE

EU00426

LOCATION

Denver / Denver County

DEPARTMENT

Other

POSTED

28-Mar-2024

CLOSES

27-Apr-2024

POSITION INFORMATION

This is a courtesy posting for the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline**

Monthly Salary: $16,084.00

Click here for information on employee benefits.

MISSION STATEMENT

The Commission is accepting applications from attorneys in good standing in the state of Colorado to serve as Executive Director. The Commission's office is located in the Ralph Carr Judicial Center. The Commission is charged with assessing allegations of misconduct by the judges of the state courts of Colorado, including judges of County and District Courts, judges of the Court of Appeals, and justices of the Supreme Court. The Commission is a constitutional body created in Article VI, Section 23(3) of the Colorado Constitution. The Commission evaluates and addresses allegations that a judge's conduct violates the Colorado Code of Judicial Conduct (the "Code").

Operations of the Commission are funded by a portion of the annual license fees paid by Colorado attorneys and judges to the Supreme Court which are administered by the Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel. The Commission is an independent agency that oversees compliance with the Code.

STATEMENT OF DUTIES

The Executive Director is responsible for the management of the Commission's office, including the employment of staff, responding to the public, support of the Commission's website, the maintenance of files in accordance with appropriate record retention and confidentiality policies, preparation and public and the judiciary about the Commission.

An ideal candidate will have demonstrated good judgment and discernment in previous positions. The Executive Director is required to develop a timely and responsive initial review of Requests for Evaluation of Judicial Conduct to determine whether the allegations are within the jurisdiction of the Commission and whether there is a reasonable basis for the Commission to commence disciplinary proceedings. The Executive Director provides each complainant with a written response, explaining either that there are no plausible grounds for commencing disciplinary proceedings or that the Request for Evaluation has been referred to the members of the Commission as a complaint. The Executive Director conducts a preliminary investigation of the allegations; assembles and distributes information about the complaint to the members of the Commission for their consideration; and provides each complainant with a written explanation of the status of the complaint and the Commission's decisions.

The Executive Director is required to take appropriate measures to ensure the confidentiality of the Commission's proceedings in accordance with the Colorado Constitution and Colorado Rules of Judicial Discipline ("Colo. RJD") 6.5.

The Executive Director shall attend and participate in the meetings and other activities of national organizations which focus on judicial ethics and judicial discipline.

The Executive Director is a full-time position.

ADDITIONAL COMMENTS

How to Apply:

Please submit your resume, at least 3 references, and a cover letter to the Commission to Gina Cannan at gina.cannan@coag.gov and Mindy Sooter at Mindy.Sooter@wilmerhale.com.

Reports To:

This position is appointed by the Commission on Judicial Discipline under Colo. RJD 2(j), 3(d). The Executive Director reports to the members of the Commission and manages the operations of the Commission in accordance with Article VI, Section 23, of the Colorado Constitution and the Colo. RJD. The Executive Director also helps the Commission prepare an annual report to the public of the Commission's activities.

The employment policies of the Colorado Judicial Branch apply to the conduct of the Executive Director, in addition to the provisions of Colo. RJD. This is an at-will position, subject to appointment, renewal, and termination on such terms as may be determined by the Commission.

ESSENTIAL FUNCTIONS

The Executive Director handles the administrative and budgeting support for the Commission as discussed above. The Executive Director interacts extensively with members of the public in relation to requests for evaluation of potential judicial misconduct and must have outstanding interpersonal communication skills and positively represent the work of the Commission. The position involves substantial writing obligations to be executed in a clear and concise manner, analyzing potential misconduct claims and explaining those analyses to a professional and lay audience. The position requires objectivity to allow the Commission to make its determinations and effectively build consensus, when possible. The position requires an unbiased commitment to efficient disposition of all matters before the Commission, emphasizing transparent communication to the Commission. The Executive Director is also the primary point of contact for the Commission with other state entities such as the Office of Attorney Regulation Counsel, the State Court Administrator's Office, the Office of the Attorney General, the Judicial Department, and others. The position must cultivate and maintain trusted professional relationships with these entities and must represent the Commission with discretion and professionalism. Preference will be given to candidates with an established reputation within the Judicial Branch of good judgment, an ability to consider other perspectives, and an ability to build relationships.

'GLASSDOOR'

practice in Colorado for a minimum of ten years, have no disciplinary history of their law license or other licenses held in Colorado or other states, and have extensive experience with the courts and/or the administrative functions of the judicial branch to understand and oversee the compliance of judges with the Colorado Code of Judicial Conduct.

Specialized Knowledge:

The successful candidate will have strong legal analysis and writing skills, oral communication skills, an understanding of and experience with the operations of courts, capacity for detail work, administrative and organizational skills, budgeting skills, basic technology skills, and the ability to work in relative isolation.

Preferred qualifications:

While not required, knowledge of the Colorado Code of Judicial Conduct and the Colorado Rules of Judicial Discipline is preferred. Prior experience working for or with a professional regulatory or oversight entity will be valued. Applicants with experience addressing or litigating a variety of types of matters in courts (preferably in Colorado state courts) and addressing personnel and employment issues as well as handling personnel or other factual investigations are preferred. Experience managing confidentiality requirements for information and files is preferred. Prior experience working with self-represented litigants or analogous customer service experience is also preferred. Conflict de-escalation experience as well as press relations experience are also valued.

Show less

Base pay

$16K/mo (Employer est.)

Denver, CO

 If an employer includes a salary or salary range on their job, we display it as an "Employer Estimate". If a job has no salary data, Glassdoor displays a "Glassdoor Estimate" if available. To learn more about "Glassdoor Estimates," see our FAQ page.

Related pages

Courtesy Posting: Executive Director, Colora... jobs in Denver, CO →

Jobs at Colorado Judicial Branch in Denver, CO →

Courtesy Posting: Executive Director, Colora... salaries in Denver, CO → Reviews at Colorado Judicial Branch →